Would Improve Business Conditions

Kansas City, Mo., January 9. Increased purchasing power throughout the nation, with a resultant increase in employment and production through the immediate cash payment of the government's adjusted compensation certificates granted to World War veterans in 1924, is a solution to present business conditions strenuously urged by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

"Between two and three billions of dollars will be placed in circulation if Congress sees fit to act on this suggestion," points out Commander-in-Chief Paul C. Wolman in a plea addressed to business men and veterans for support in behalf of this proposed action by Congress.

"Loans floated by the government for this purpose will provide money that will stimulate virtually every channel of business endeavor. The bulk of this money will undoubtedly be spent for the payment of debts already incurred by veterans in distress, while the more fortunate ex-service men can make good use of this money to feed and clothe their families, for the building of homes and for the purchase of little necessities and luxuries that have thus far been denied.

"Instead of making the ex-service man, who needs this money, hold these promissory notes issued by Uncle Sam, why not transfer these certificates to the hands of capitalists who can best afford waiting until 1945 before these notes mature," Commander-in-Chief Paul Wolman suggested.

Immediate cash payment of these certificates as a source of relief to disabled and needy veterans was first conceived and advocated by a major veteran organization when resolutions to this effect were adopted at the 1929 National Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States held at St. Paul.

This stand was reiterated at the Baltimore Encampment of the organization in August, 1930, following similar expressions favorable to this plan received from individual V. F. W.

Good Times Restored by Advertising

Roger W. Babson, the great writer on financial subjects recommends more advertising to encourage buying. When the surplus of mass production is consumed by mass consumption the retailers will begin to buy more from the wholesale merchant. Then the wholesale merchant will order from the factories. Then the factory wheels will turn to produce more and raw products will be needed.

Advertising is ideally fitted and competent to accelerate the circulation. It is the most effective known force for accomplishing the speeding up of money and thereby giving us more business at times when more business is the nation's greatest need.

There never was more money than there is today. Banks hold it, corporations hold it, the people hold it. That is the trouble, the money is held instead of circulated. A beautiful system of piping, a plentiful supply of fluid, but the whole mechanism fails to function for the want of the pumping power of publicity to tell the world of better goods, lower prices and greater service. We need a sound plan to reduce the choppy action of business and promote smoothness and growth.

Advertising is the sorely needed governor of business. It requires no novel mechanism. All the apparatus is available. Though capable of illimitable improvement, the fundamental principles of advertising are clearly established; its practice is a well-known art.

The basic cause at which the jobless should shake their fists is not that too few mills are running, but that too few advertising campaigns are running.—Ex.

units throughout the country.

In addition, a number of state departments of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are conducting militant campaigns through the distribution of petitions that will be conveyed to Congress as actual evidence of increasing sentiment in support of a bill to this effect introduced by Congressman Wright Patman, Texas, a world war veteran, in April, 1930, and now pending before the House.

In response to resolutions adopted by the Baltimore Encampment, Commander-in-Chief Wolman urged favorable consideration for this movement by President Hoover in his conference with the chief executive of the nation at the White House on November 19, 1930.

"The manner in which thousands of veterans demonstrated their need for funds by renewing their loans on these certificates as the loan value automatically increased on January 1, is ample evidence of the emergency that exists among those who served during the world war," Commander-in-Chief Wolman points out. "When Congress passed the world war adjusted compensation act in 1924 it officially acknowledged this country's debt to those who served in the war with Germany. The debt is a just one, and deserving of recognition now at a time when these funds would contribute so materially to the welfare of the ex-service men and the nation at large."

Newsy Notes From The High School

This week is the last week of the first semester. Exams will be given to high school students on Thursday and Friday, January 8 and 9. Examinations are not being given in the elementary grades this term.

There will be some students who will receive failing or low grades on their cards. These low grades may be due to several things, but it has been found that the most outstanding reason is because students have not learned the need of conscientiously devoting themselves to the daily and hourly duties of the school room. They are too interested in outside affairs. Indifferent pupils who have to be driven or forced through stated tasks do not find going to school a congenial task. They do not realize the importance of the opportunity which the school is affording them to develop healthy bodies, trained minds, and disciplined characters until it is too late to take advantage of the opportunity. As Horace Mann says, "The Common school is the greatest discovery ever made by man. Other social organizations are curative or remedial; this is a preventative and antidote. They come to heal diseases and wounds; this to make the physical and moral frame invulnerable to them."

For this reason parents should urge their children to attend school regularly and apply themselves in such a manner that they can be classed among the progressive group.

The first basketball game to be played in the new gymnasium was played last Tuesday night, December 30, between the Eagles and the town team. The result of this game was a defeat for the High School boys; however, on Friday night the Eagles in turn defeated the town boys by a score of 37 to 25.

On Saturday night, January 3, the Eagles contested the Marfa All-Stars at Marfa and defeated them by a score of 23 to 18. This is the first time the All-Stars had been defeated since they organized some months ago. At the end of the first half when the score was 12 to 7 in favor of them it seemed that the game would be another victory, but during the intermission the Eagles pulled themselves together and re-entered the game with a fighting spirit that brought them out victorious.

This is just the beginning of the games that have been scheduled for this basketball season. The next games will be Friday and Saturday nights, January 9 and 10, here at the High School gym with the Alpine High School team.

A basketball tournament is to be held here on Friday and Saturday, January 30-31. All teams from San Antonio to El Paso, and from San Angelo to Lamesa are being invited to this big play. We are expecting the leading teams of this section of the State to participate, so there will be plenty of strong competition for all teams. Practice games for teams eliminated may be arranged if desired.

This tournament is not being sponsored for commercial purposes but for the purpose of bringing the teams together for a good time and for keen competition in preparation for the district tournaments that will follow soon after this meet.

Very cheap rates will be arranged for all visiting clubs, and trophies will be awarded to the winner, the runner-up, and the consolation winner. Awards will also be given to the all tournament men selected by various coaches and sports writers that may be present.

Sanderson boasts of having the most complete and modern high school in West Texas, and it is with great pleasure that we look forward to being host to the many clubs that may visit us during the tournament, January 30-31.

Lee Bridges Found Dead in His Room

Last Monday morning about 9 o'clock Justice of the Peace Henry Gates was called to the residence of B. C. Farley to hold an inquest over the body of Lee Bridges, aged 42 years.

Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Tabor, who have rooms at Mr. Farley's, discovered Mr. Bridges lying on the floor of his room about 8 o'clock that morning. He had come here from Burkburnett, Texas, to help Mr. Tabor install the furniture in the court house and school house. Early in the morning Mr. and Mrs. Tabor heard Mr. Bridges moving around in his room, then things became quiet and when they went into the room about eight o'clock Mr. Bridges was slumped on the floor, partly resting against the door casing. Dr. Utterback, Sheriff Cook and Justice of the Peace Gates was summoned and after a formal inquest it was determined that Mr. Bridges came to his death from heart failure and high blood pressure.

There were no papers on his person to indicate where his relatives were, and as he and Mr.

South Beats West in Football Game

Two "Crimson Tide Specials" passed through Sanderson Saturday night on the return trip from California. The specials carried foot ball players of the University of Alabama and rooters. This is the third successful invasion of the Crimson Tide in west coast football.

Three times they have played west coast champions in Rose Bowl at the tournament of Roses game on new years day. Twice they have been victors and once the score was tied. The result of this years game was 24 to 0 in favor of Alabama.

Pyle-Coates Wedding Nuptials Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Collins Coates announces the approaching marriage of their daughter Louise to F. B. Pyle, son of T. M. Pyle, on Jan. 15th at high noon.

The Coates and Pyles are old residents of this section, both having ranches out of Sanderson in Pecos county, and both young people have a host of friends in this community.

A tea was given on Dec. 20th, by Mrs. Coates announcing the wedding of her daughter on Jan. 15th. Several old time friends in Sanderson were invited.

About ten o'clock Wednesday morning a fire alarm was turned in from the residence of Ray Caldwell. The alarm was immediately responded to by the fire department and a host of citizens, and it was discovered that the blaze was in the ceiling and caught from the pipe of a heating stove. Fortunately by prompt action the blaze was put out before any damage was done.

Poisons absorbed into the system form scouring waste in the bowels, cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drug stores sell.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. They make a runaway marriage. Briceland is furious, but helpless, as Ernestine is of age. Loring Hamilton, lawyer, wins Lillian's consent to be his wife. Will and Ernestine begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. John Poole, Will's best friend, gives a birthday party for Ernestine at Ruby Pastano's resort. Pastano irritates Ernestine by criticizing Will for bringing her to such a place. Will and Ernestine have their first quarrel. Conscious of approaching motherhood, Ernestine opens a savings account. Will's father dies suddenly.

He kissed her again, and they said goodby. The conversation had washed away a little of her resentment and made her feel better. She had a strong desire to cling to her own family, opposed by the resolution she had taken to harden her heart against them all. She thought of mamma and Lillian and Loring, come in Loring's coupe, standing quiet and in a little tight knot at the funeral. She had taken her own stand by Will and Mrs. Schluss, and Mr. and Mrs. Pryor.

The day after the funeral when Ernestine, with one of Mrs. Todd's aprons pinned over an old silk dress, was experimenting with a broom, Mr. Pastano came, and with him a huge old lady with slow black eyes and a face so round and kind that Ernestine's heart went out to her.

Mr. Pastano had brought some potted plants, which seemed fresh and beautiful after the scent of decay that had come with the funeral sets.

"These are for Willie's mamma," Madame Pastano said haltingly. "We come to make consolation call—to bring you friendship. As the plants grow, so grows the new soul, in Heaven."

Ernestine yielded to impulse, was enfolded on the soft and luxurious bosom of Madame Pastano and kissed her smooth cheek. How strange that all of her haughty resentment was gone, that she actually liked Ruby Pastano, with his slow thick voice and his mottled dark eyes.

"When Willie's mamma is better, you will come to visit us?" the old lady asked, and Ernestine called her husband Willie for days afterward. She promised to come.

Will was worried about money, and Ernestine tried to spend as little as possible. Mr. Todd's lodge insurance had paid for his funeral and left a small balance, which was soon eaten up by the heavy expenses of the mother's illness. Will asked for a raise and got five dollars. At length he was forced to borrow from Mr. Poole, although Ernestine told him she could get money from her father.

"Money!" he burst out passionately. "I don't want any Briceland money! We wanted something real from them. Money's all they have."
"You'll have to increase your earnings, Will."

"It takes time. And I intend to do it on my own job, not in your father's office. Your folks must understand that."
"Lillian says beggars can't choose," she said.

"This beggar chooses," he warned her.

Will's mother began to mend a little, the third or fourth week, although she was desperately ill. One day she asked Ernestine how they were managing, and Ernestine confessed that they had had to borrow.

"The Troy street house is in my name," said Mrs. Todd. "Tell Will the deed and all are in his father's box—tell him to have some real estate office sell it. I'll sign the deed—it will be more than enough for my illness."
"But, mother, when you are better, you will need your money."
"I'll not be better. And I'd like to have the nurse all the time now."

So the house was sold, and the few thousand dollars they got for it certainly made a remarkable difference. The doctor brought them a resident nurse. Ernestine and Will agreed that they should spend Mrs. Todd's money only for the expense of her illness.

On the day that Lillian was married Mrs. Todd was able to sit up, and Will consented to go to the wedding. The church was filled with flowers—the bridesmaids made a rainbow—Ernestine had pleaded the excuse of mourning for taking no part in the ceremony. The pews were filled with old famillar faces—the ushers were young men Ernestine and Lillian had known always. Everything was very beautiful and formal, and Ernestine realized that mamma would have liked such a wedding for her.

She was glad afterward, that she had gone, for the weeks and months just passed had been so hard for her that the beauty of her own romance had become a little dimmed. But when she heard the marriage ceremony again, when she stood by Will and watched her sister marry Loring Hamilton, she remembered every word and every kiss of her own marriage day—its storms and turmoil, and she looked at Will, at his clear strong face, at his lean bony body in the shabby suit, at the big square hands resting on his knees, and the richness of her love for him welled up in her like a great tide that would and must carry everything before it.

CHAPTER VII

The Baby for Passenger

Lillian was in Europe. Mamma and papa and grandmother had gone to Langley lake for the month of August. Ernestine entered into a period of waiting, of passing through days of unrealty and nights of patient endurance. Sometimes, waking after she had slept, she looked about the walls of the little room with a feeling of enormous surprise. Was this really she, Ernestine Briceland, in this dim room, with the curtains pinned back to admit any vagrant breeze, listening with her heart suddenly quick in the still night for her husband's footsteps?

Mr. Poole came often to visit them. Ernestine began to look for him for late Sunday breakfast. And the Pastanos were kindness itself. Their shining car, with the swart grinning chauffeur, was often at the door.

One day as Ernestine sat reading aloud, Will's mother laid a swollen, creased hand over the book, and Ernestine, looking up at her, smiled quickly and kissed her.

"What is it, mother?"
They talked a little about the coming baby, and the plans Ernestine and Will had made.

"It is hard for your mother," said Mrs. Todd, with a smile. "I think perhaps it is as great a mistake to be stiff-necked about favors as it is to be greedy."
"Perhaps," admitted Ernestine. "It is hard to be exactly balanced. One must choose a direction in which to lean."

They fell into a friendly silence. After a little, Will's mother pressed Ernestine's hand.

"About Will—," she said and hesitated, and Ernestine's heart beat a little faster.

"Be patient with him. He hasn't found himself yet. But he will. You are more mature than Will. Children will increase the distance between your wisdom and his childishness. Just love him. He'll come home."

Ernestine knew no answer, but the words fell into her heart as though there were more significance to them than their stereotyped importance. For an hour or more they sat in silence, Ernestine dreaming of Mrs. Todd remembering, Will!

Mrs. Todd lived just long enough to see her grandson and to kiss his poppy silk cheek. Will laid him in the hollow of her arms, but after a moment, with a word of entreaty, she asked him to take the baby away. He did

Abundant Proof That Animals Change Color

Though many an animal in the Arctic regions will change its coat to white for the winter months, there are few animals who turn gray, as human beings do, from old age. Animals are, however, susceptible to fright and shock, and this may cause their hair or fur to change to white, just as in the case of human beings. Domestic pets are naturally more susceptible to this than animals who are used to fending for themselves in the wild. The black coat of a dog will sometimes turn practically white if the dog has a fit or falls victim to a very bad bout of distemper. Cats are not immune from shock. Horses' coats often seem to change quite appreciably in color, but this may be only a matter of clipping. A horse that has been turned out for some time and then brought in to be clipped will become a light fawn color after the operation, when before it he seemed a dark chestnut. You wouldn't know he was the same horse!

Licorice Water Has Value
For generations nonalcoholic drinks made from water infusions of licorice root or paste have been popular throughout southern Europe. This sounds much like the anemic concoction of our childhood days, "lickerish water," which was carried around in a bottle and shaken at frequent intervals to make it froth. This mixture of licorice root, water and sugar, so beloved of children, really has medicinal value, for the virtue of licorice as a tonic and blood purifier has been long recognized. In many factories of France, especially in the iron and steel mills, it is given to workers for drinking purposes instead of plain water.

MILK RULES ARE BASED ON HEALTH

States Are Now Seeking the Same Level for Butterfat.

That the rules for health are becoming standardized throughout the nation and they are becoming more uniform in the respective states is indicated by figures compiled from the latest government reports by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America and put in a condensed summary of "A Few Facts to Be Considered in Drafting a Milk Ordinance or Milk Regulations."

They show that 44 states have their own regulations in regard to the butterfat and total solids content sold as whole milk and that five use the federal regulations in this regard. Forty-two states now have fat requirements of 3.25 per cent or less, compared to 39 states in 1926. One has a fat requirement of 3.5 per cent, two require 3.35 per cent, and four require 3.50 per cent. Since 1926, three more states have found it advisable to change the requirement from 3.50 to 3.25 per cent. No state requires 4 per cent fat and the federal score card no longer requires 4 per cent fat in order to have a "perfect" milk.

Chicago and New York recently considered the advisability of requiring the high fat standard of 3.5 per cent fat in whole milk but decided that 3.25 per cent was a better requirement. Doctors generally oppose a high fat requirement, especially for children and invalids, and some advocate 2 per cent fat in milk as more satisfactory for children. Commercial milk companies have discovered this same fact on their milk routes as they find that more butterfat (and consequently more milk) will be used by their patrons when the fat content more nearly approaches that of mother's milk which is comparable in fat content to that of the average cow.

Clean Utensils Assist in High Grade Cream

(By JAMES W. LINN, Extension Dairyman, Kansas State Agricultural College.)

Past experience shows that it is impossible to make a truly high grade butter from butterfat that has come from frozen cream. It is not uncommon for cream to set on the floor of the kitchen or some other room and be a long time in cooling. Such a practice is no more desirable in the winter than in the summer nor is it best to add warm cream to cool cream or to older cream without first cooling the new cream.

For most profitable results recommendations call for clean utensils so that when the milk comes in contact with them it will not be contaminated. The dairymen who is after high grade cream in the winter will pay attention to the cleanliness of his cows. Clean stalls, clipping of the hair on the udder and right flank so that it will not retain the dirt and filth, and removal of loose particles of dirt with a damp rag or sponge will help in securing quality cream.

Salt and Mineral Cups Increase Production

Salt and mineral cups, which are a rather new piece of farm equipment, have been responsible for increased milk flow. These cups are used in connection with automatic drinking bowls, and attach to the stanchions within convenient reach of the cows. Besides supplying needed mineral food for milk production, constant access to salt also stimulates thirst and results in consumption of greater quantities of water. Many dairymen find that the definite increase in milk flow will pay for the cost of the cups in about two months time.

Much investigation has been made to determine the best design and shape of salt cups. It has been found that cows will waste much of the mineral if the containers are shallow and wide topped. Consequently the tendency is to make the cups with rather narrow openings so that the cow can reach the salt with her tongue only.

Cattle Abortion Can Be Completely Eradicated

The complete eradication of abortion disease from cattle herds is possible, and would mean stopping a serious source of loss to the dairymen, according to Dr. H. J. Metzger of the New York State College of Agriculture, who recommends the blood test and the isolation of infected animals as a means of stamping out the disease.

These measures are complete isolation of the diseased animal, complete cleanliness, the rearing of all animals on the farm to keep from re-infecting a clean herd. A more complete discussion is given in a new bulletin, just written by Doctor Metzger and published by the college, which will be sent free of charge to anyone who will write to the college of agriculture at Ithaca and ask for bulletin E 182.

Give Calf Chance

Young calves are quite susceptible to certain infections, as also to indigestion brought about by improper feeding. It is one thing to bring a cow safely through calving and another thing to bring her calf safely through the first few weeks of its life. Young calves should be born in clean places. It is too much to expect good results with calves born in places teeming with the cause of infections. Navel infection is a frequent cause of digestive disturbance.

Amazes Mother

"Bobbie's stomach was often upset and he suffered a lot from colds," says Mrs. P. S. Fletcher, Jr., 4410 W. 30th St., Los Angeles, Cal. "We found he was constipated."
"Mother used California Fig Syrup, so we gave Bobbie some. He amazed me by the quick way he became strong, energetic, well again. His bowels act freely now—and his digestion is splendid."

The quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, headachy, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Every child loves it. It has the full endorsement of doctors. Appetite is increased by its use; digestion is assisted; weak stomach and bowels are given tone and strength.

Look for the word California on the carton. That marks the genuine, famous for 50 years.

There's a Limit
Optimist—Well, the depression can't last forever.
Business Man—No, neither can I.

Don't neglect a COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours. This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes. To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Important men have to keep their word; but that is one great reason why they became important.

Don't Neglect Your Kidneys!

If bothered with bladder irritations, getting up at night and constant backache, don't take chances! Help your kidneys at the first sign of disorder. Use Doan's Pills. Successful for more than 50 years. Endorsed by hundreds of thousands of grateful users. Get Doan's today. Sold everywhere.

Between 5,000 and 6,000 Fillpinos are employed during harvests of the California asparagus crop.

INDIGESTION GOES—QUICKLY, PLEASANTLY

When you suffer from heartburn, gas or indigestion, it's usually too much acid in your stomach. The quickest way to stop your trouble is with Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. A spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids—instantly. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

Try Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, and you will never allow yourself to suffer from over-acidity again. It is the standard anti-acid with doctors. Your druggist has Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, with directions for use, in generous 25c and 50c bottles.

Buy across the Counter

WHEN you buy across the counter in the stores of this town, you are using good business judgment. Why? There are many reasons, but one of the most important is this:

You can buy what you want at the price you wish to pay! You are not obliged to accept "something just as good," because you are in a position to compare values and make your own selections.

When you trade at home you are helping your friends to help you! And there is no finer thing in life than neighborly co-operation. It always pays—in happiness and satisfaction as well as dollars and cents.

The Boyhood of Famous Americans

By I. V. Fitzgerald

Vice President Charles Curtis

The Cheyennes were on the war-path. They were out to exterminate the Kaws. Vastly superior in numbers, they attacked their enemy at the Council Grove reservation. The Kaws were in a perilous position. They faced death. The chiefs met in council. They had to get a messenger through to Topeka for aid if they were to survive. They selected an eight-year-old boy to carry the news of their plight through the lines of the Cheyennes and across 57 miles of prairie that separated them from Topeka.

Charles Curtis was the lad picked for that hazardous errand. He took a supply of dried buffalo meat, won his way through the Cheyennes, and trotted and trudged all the way to Topeka to get the aid that reached the Kaws in time to save them. That was in 1868, when the West was really wild and woolly, when buffalo roamed the plains, when Indians still fought and scalped.

The boy's father was a white man, a New Englander of good birth. His Indian heritage came through his mother, a descendant of White Hair, famous Osage chief. White Hair was the great-great-grandfather of the lad who brought relief to the beleaguered Kaws. The boy was attending school at the Kaw agency, living there with his mother's people, when the Cheyennes took the warpath.

The little fellow, destined to become leader of the United States senate and vice president of the United States, was brought up in the Indian tradition that fortitude, ability to stand hardships, and physical superiority were traits to cultivate from the cradle.

Before his mother died, which was when he was three, he had learned to swim and to ride. His mother had put him on the back of an Indian pony when he was a year old. It was she, also, who taught him to swim. He could follow a trail, catch fish and hunt when he was of the kindergarten age of the present generation. He was born in 1866 in a log cabin, near the banks of the Kansas river, in what is now North Topeka. The great outdoors of the prairie was his early school room. There he learned the lessons that were of so much help to him in getting his feet on the first rungs of the ladder of success.

After his mother's death he went to live with his Indian relatives, but following the Cheyenne raid he rejoined his father, staying with his father's parents at North Topeka. There he entered the grade schools, attending them during the winters until he was sixteen.

Almost born on the back of a pony, he spent his summers as a jockey, riding in races at the country fairs. He was famous as a jockey all over the state and the frontier country by the time he was ten. He rode the horses of his father and other owners in the sprint races that were such a feature of western fairs those days.

He was riding at a Kansas City track when Jesse James and his gang held up the course in 1872. The bandits were after money only, but the lad thinking they might steal his favorite horse, hid the animal until they rode away.

While he got a bad fall when a horse bolted with him in a race, the marks of which he still carries on his face, he didn't quit racing until his wise Indian grandmother advised him to leave horses alone and study, that he might amount to something in life. She gave him this advice after he started with her tribe on a migration to Oklahoma, then Indian territory.

Persuaded by her to return to Topeka, he resumed his schooling. He drove a hack at night to pay his way through high school. He turned down a fine contract as a jockey so he might follow the advice of his Indian grandmother and get an education.

He was a good student, once his mind was made up to find a career for himself. He made particular strides in elocution, and delivered the commencement address when he was graduated. It so impressed the wife of a lawyer in the audience that she induced her husband to take the youngster into his office.

That is how Charles Curtis began the study of law that was to help him reach such high places. He was admitted to the bar in 1881. He went to congress in 1892, rose rapidly to a commanding position as a legislator, and was his party's successful nominee for vice president of the United States.

Odd Refuge for Quail

A trained dog stays when told to drop. Old "Lookout," a hunting dog belonging to Charles Lanier, was told to lie down when two quail flushed silently, indicating that their nest was near.

The dog obeyed immediately, but the young ones could not be found. Finally a curious stirring of the setter's silky "feathers" revealed that 14 baby quail had taken cover beneath the motionless dog.—St. Nicholas.

Treating Seed Corn May Help

Much Depends on Variety, Time of Planting and Weather Conditions.

To the question: Is it worth while to treat seed corn with the new organic mercury disinfectants, Dr. E. C. Stakman of the University farm (St. Paul, Minn.) staff replies:

Result Doubtful.
"Sometimes it is and sometimes it is not. It may pay one year and not the next. It may pay in one section of the state and not in another. It is a reasonable and regional problem. Tests have been made by the Minnesota experiment station for several years and the results have been somewhat conflicting. Much depends on the variety of corn, the condition of the seed, the time of planting, the soil conditions at planting time, and the weather conditions in the spring.

"The treatment does not cost much—only about five cents an acre. If yields are increased only four or five bushels an acre, it will pay to treat; but no one can guarantee that yields will be increased. The best thing to do is to try it. Follow the directions on the package. Treat seed for part of the field, leave the rest untreated, plant side by side, and see which yields the most. The chances are the treated seed will."

Tests at Nebraska.
According to the news service of the Nebraska Agricultural college, experiments carried on for three years at that station demonstrated that none of the seed treatment preparations significantly affected the yield per acre or the general quality of the crop.

Cut Out Fire Blight on Young Pear Trees

Where pear trees and young apple trees are infected with fire blight it is advisable to cut out all of the diseased parts, for if there is a secondary growing season, the trees may be killed, suggests the New York State College of Agriculture.

All cuts should be made six to twelve inches below the last evidence of infection, depending on the growing condition of the branch. When the blight is cut out during the growing season a disinfectant solution should be used on the tools and on the wound to prevent spreading the disease. Dip pruning shears or saws in a solution of one-fourth ounce of mercuric bichloride, one-fourth ounce mercuric cyanide and one gallon of water between each cut and mix the liquid in glass or earthenware containers. It should be swabbed on the wound with a rag, brush or sponge.

House for Winter

A good poultry house is a valuable asset at any time of the year, but never more so than in the winter when the flock needs the warmth and protection of a house and when egg prices are high enough to make poultry care seem worth while. Two types of houses are particularly recommended for Iowa poultrymen—the half monitor type and the straw loft type. Both have their advantages. The poultry husbandry department, Iowa State college, Ames, is always ready to help in planning.

Planting Fruit Tree

To prepare a fruit tree for planting, all injured and broken roots are pruned off. Also long, slender roots should be pruned back to conform with the others. Great care should be taken that the roots do not become dry. They may be protected in the field by keeping moist packing over them or, better still, by keeping the roots immersed in water. This may be done by drawing a barrel along with you either in a wagon or on runners.

Using Improved Sires

It is important to discover sires capable of improving the production of a given herd when their daughters take the places of the dams in the herd. It is equally important to discover as many sires as possible that are not capable of improving the production of at least a fair to medium herd of cows. When the progeny of these latter sires are withdrawn from the various breeds, they will be released of a tremendous handicap.

Fire Blight Bacteria

Fire blight bacteria live over the winter on both apple and pear trees and at one time it was thought they could not live over in limbs less than one inch in diameter. This theory has been disproved and the fire blight germs are able to overwinter in twigs as small as 1/4 inch in diameter. During the latter part of the summer the fire blight germs cease active invasion of new tissues and remain more or less dormant until spring.

Best Hatchability

"Success in poultry work is often determined by the hatchability of the eggs from which the flock is raised," declares Clyde Ingram, poultry specialist of the Louisiana State university, poultry department. Hatchability can be improved in many instances, through the selection of the birds to be used in the breeding pens, Ingram continues, and that combined with a good ration and proper management, will work to a definite end.

Lesson for January 11

THE CHILDHOOD OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:40-52.

GOLDEN TEXT—And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Ideal Childhood. JUNIOR TOPIC—Growing up for God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Responsibility of Youth.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Being about the Father's business.

I. Jesus Growing (v. 40).

While Jesus was as to his personality, God, yet his deity did not interfere with his development as a human being. The processes of his physical, mental, and spiritual growth were the same as those of any normal human being.

1. "Grew and waxed strong." It was necessary for his body to develop. His brain, nerves, and muscles must not only attain unto the proper size but must come to act in unison, become correlated.

2. "Filled with wisdom." As with most children his training was largely in the hands of his mother. She, no doubt, taught him to commit to memory Bible verses and taught him the great stories of the Old Testament, from the creation down through the patriarchs and prophets. It seems that it was customary among the Jews to send the child at the age of six years to the synagogue school, where the Old Testament was the textbook.

3. "And the grace of God was upon him." By the grace of God doubtless, is meant God's loving favor and tender care.

II. Jesus Tarrying Behind at Jerusalem (vv. 41-43).

At the age of twelve years the Jewish child took his place as a worshiper in the temple. He was then considered "a child of the law." Being thoroughly conscious of his mission, Jesus tarried behind and inquired into the meaning of the ordinances of God's house. His heart yearned for his Father.

III. Jesus Found in the Temple (vv. 44-47).

When his mother and Joseph had gone some distance on the homeward journey, they perceived that Jesus was not with them and sought for him among their kinsfolk and acquaintances. Not finding him, they returned to Jerusalem and found him in the temple.

1. He was sitting (v. 46). He was perfectly at home in his Father's house.

2. He was hearing the teachers of God's Word (v. 46), and was eager to learn God's will.

3. He asked questions (v. 46). His growing mind was inquisitive; it inquired after—reached out after—truth.

4. He answered questions (v. 47). His answers showed such great wisdom that he astonished those who heard him. It was the expression of the workings of a perfect human mind suffused by the Holy Spirit.

IV. Mary's Complaint (vv. 48-50).

1. Her question (v. 48). "Why hast thou dealt thus with us?" She reproached with him for his behavior.

2. Jesus' reply (v. 49). He replied to her question in a dignified yet tender manner, but made no apology, thus indicating that he was more than merely the son of Mary. God was his Father.

3. Mary acquiesced in his revelation of himself (v. 51). She did not understand all these things, but she kept them in her heart.

V. Jesus' Obedience (v. 51).

Though he was fully conscious of his divine being and mission, he lived a life of filial obedience, thus teaching us that obedience to parents is pleasing to God, and a duty which will be discharged faithfully by those who have the spirit of Jesus Christ.

VI. Jesus' Development (v. 52).

1. Mental. "Increased in wisdom." Although the divine nature was united with the human, his mind was left free to develop normally.

2. Physical. He increased in stature. His body developed according to the laws of a normal human being.

3. Spiritual. He increased in favor with God and man. As his mind developed, and his apprehension of God became more comprehensive, the Divine Being could be more fully expressed through him, and as the perfect life was lived, men could recognize his superior qualities, and therefore, their hearts would open to him.

Christian Victory

To trust him and to keep the eye on him is the one secret of all Christian victory.—G. H. Morrison.

The Disease, the Remedy

The law discovers the disease. The gospel gives the remedy.—Martin Luther.

Man's Religion

A man has no more religion than he acts out in his life.—Henry Ward Beecher

Cions for Grafting Best While Dormant

Should Be About Diameter of a Lead Pencil.

Cions for grafting are best cut from dormant wood. Select medium-sized water sprouts or strong terminals to give wood preferably about the diameter of a lead pencil. Such wood cuts nicely for making the grafts.

Store cions in a box with damp sand or moss completely covering them. They must not be allowed to dry out at any time. A layer of coin wood and a layer of wet sand should be used in filling the box. Keep preferably at near freezing temperature. It is often a good plan to take the box of cions to a cold storage and take out the cions as needed.

If just a few grafts are needed a soft wax that can be worked in the hands can be used. A good formula for soft wax is, resin four pounds, beeswax or paraffin two pounds, and linseed oil or tallow one pound. Melt these together, pour into water to set. Grease the hands and pull like taffy until of even grain and proper consistency. Soft wax can be heated in water to soften and can be worked by the hands before applying. It should be covered with strips of muslin to prevent hot sun melting it and causing it to run off the grafts.

Grafting can be started as soon as the sap is active in the tree and growth has started. If cions are kept dormant until late in the spring—even up until the first of June if necessary. For late grafting it is desirable to paraffin the cions after setting, to prevent drying out. Covering the entire cion with paraffin is always helpful in getting a good stand of grafts.

Ventilation Essential for Best Chick Hatches

Poor hatches may result from operating an incubator in a small room where there is a lack of fresh air. The products of combustion from the lamp must not pass through the machine. Remember that air is constantly passing through the incubator and the quality of the air is no better than the outside conditions.

The ventilation in cellars can sometimes be improved by removing one of the glass windows and substituting a curtain made of feed sack material. The curtain will retard draughts but permit oxygen to enter the cellar and allow the fumes of the lamp to escape.

Be sure to operate the ventilation of an incubator according to the directions of the maker. Many hatches are injured each year through disregard of the directions which will permit too much air, or not enough, to pass through the machine at different periods of the hatch.

Feed Green Stuff

Green feeds must be provided for the laying hens. During the summer months it is a comparatively easy matter to furnish succulent feeds from the fields. During the winter greens must also be provided; hence artificial methods of producing greens must be used.

Sprouting oats affords an easy and convenient method of providing green feeds to poultry. Mechanical oat sprouters have been developed.

Farm Hints

The quickest and surest way to get rid of stumps is to grub them out.

Hens are rarely profitable layers after two or three seasons' production.

Keep the covering around the roots of trees until immediately before planting.

Comfortable stables or other quarters for the dairy herd greatly reduce the cost of production.

There is no danger from pruning apple trees at any time during the winter or early spring.

Soy bean production will continue to increase as we find better methods and machinery for handling the crop.

It is a mistake to start vegetable plants too soon. Six to eight weeks ahead of the time to set in the field is soon enough.

A dirt floor is hard to clean and it is almost impossible to keep it level. A few loads of gravel will keep the hens from digging deep holes in it.

Oyster shells make the best egg shells. If there is plenty of lime stone around the poultry house the birds will help themselves to that.

Good rotations increase crop yields, reduce production expenses, and provide a better and more profitable diversity. Spring is the time to put them into effect.

Cowpea and soy bean hays are of practically equal value, when properly cured. This being the case, the soy bean is generally a better crop to use for this purpose.

There is no other one factor as important in wheat production as is the proper preparation of the seedbed. The time of preparing the land for wheat is of utmost importance.

Can't PLAY Can't REST

—child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will

Swiftest, Easiest Way to End Bilious Spell

When you neglect those first symptoms of constipation—bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness, the whole system soon suffers. Appetite lags, Digestion slows up. You become headachy, dizzy, bilious.

It's easy to correct sluggish bowel action! Take a candy Cascaret to-night. See how quickly—and pleasantly—the bowels are activated. All the souring waste is gently propelled from the system. Regular and complete bowel action is restored. Cascarets are made from pure cascara, a substance which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have Cascarets, 10c.

First Mexican Coinage
The first money coined in Mexico dates back to 1537, very soon after the arrival of the Spaniards.

It was once supposed that the northern lights of Arctic regions could be smelled as well as seen.

HEAD HURT?

WORK won't wait for a headache to wear off. Don't look for sympathy at such times, but get some Bayer Aspirin. It never fails.

Don't be a chronic sufferer from headaches, or any other pain. See a doctor and get at the cause. Meantime, don't play martyr. There's always quick comfort in Bayer Aspirin. It never does any harm. Isn't it foolish to suffer any needless pain? It may be only a simple headache, or it may be neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatism, Lumbago, Bayer Aspirin is still the sensible thing to take. There is hardly any ache or pain these tablets can't relieve; they are a great comfort to women who suffer periodically;
