The following schedule is approximate for the concert performances:

10:30 a.m., Rankin 6th grade;
11:00 a.m., McCamey 6th grade;
11:30 a.m., McCamey 7th and 8th grades

1:00 p.m., Marfa 7th and 8th grades; 1:30 p.m., Iraan 6th and 7th grades; 2:00 p.m., Big Lake 7th and 8th grades; 2:30 p.m., Rankin 7th and 8th grades.

At 3:30 the Rankin High School Band will present a short concert featuring Mr. Raymond Schroeder, Clarinet Instructor at the University of Texas. Mr. Schroeder, a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory, will perform the famous solo "Concertino" by von Weber. The judges for the Festival will also be guest conductors on the program.

Judge for the concert performances will be Dr. Nelson G. Patrick. Dr. Patrick is a music professor at the University of Texas and State Director of Music Activities for the University Interscholastic League. He is a past president of the Texas Music Educators Association and has a national reputation as a leader in Music Education.

Sight reading judge will be Mr. Carl Lobitz, band director at Crockett Junior High School in Odessa. Mr. Lobitz is a graduate of the University of Texas and North Texas State University. He has developed consistent award-winning bands during his five years in Odessa.

Many directors and students from this area are expected to visit the festival to observe these performing groups. The public is invited and encouraged to also attend.

Gold Bond Stamps Now at McKelvy's

Dave McKelvy, owner of McKelvy Grocery and Market in Rankin, said this week that the store is now offering Gold Bond Trading Stamps and that as a means of getting customers acquainted with the new stamp, a total of 450 free stamps are being offered. Details on this offer, along with grocery specials, are listed elsewhere in this issue of The News.

McKelvy said that the Gold Bond Stamp Co. had recently bought out the Double Thrift Stamp Company. McKelvy's Grocery had previously been giving customers Double Thrift Stamps. He said that the change over in stamps would in no way effect the value of the Double Thrift Stamps already held by customers; that they could finish filling their Double Thrift books and redeem them, along with any full Double Thrift books now held, at any Gold Bond Stamp center. Nearest of these to Rankin are in Odessa and Midland.

Bridge Tournament To Play March 20

Bridge players in the area are reminded of the area tournament to be held in Rankin Wednesday, March 20 at the Yates Hotel.

All players should be registered by not later than 7:00. Entry fee is $3.00 and gametime begins at 8:30. Proceeds go to charity.

THE BAKERS DOZEN—

Thirteen out for the school board? Well, that was the last official count and if a voter can't find someone he likes out of that group, then he's just a darn hard voter to please.

And if we can't have some fun out of a race with that many in it, we must have slipped a cog in our funny machine.

But on the sober side, it's good to have that many out. Shows that interest in Rankin Schools is high and that's always good.

Word is out around town that with that many in the race, a black market is fast developing in campaign managers. Now might be a good time to go into that line of business.

THAT GOOD OLE RED DEVIL BAND—

For those who feared that the days of Rankin's Red Devil Band winning trophies were going to wax lean, last Saturday's performance in Lamesa should ease their fevered brow. You just do not win two first divisions in a band contest by accident—and on top of that, Rankin was the only Class A school to accomplish the feat.

Cheers all round and a special salute to Mr. James Melby, the director.

His was not the easiest task in band—to follow a director who had won as many times as had Fred T. Prentice but Mabry has handled the job with patience and courtesy and has now developed the Red Devil Band into his own type of direction and the results are the same—winners.

I'd venture the forecast that he and his group will make many more trips to the winners circle in the years ahead. With a fine high school band already performing, one needed only to hear the junior high group in action at the public performance March 5 to be convinced that good times are ahead for the band.

As was reportedly overheard at the Lamesa contest: "Rankin had the smallest band here—and the best."

Amen to that.

THEY'RE TRYING—

Perhaps one of the lesser-known facts about the Rankin School Board concerns an effort they have been in over the past year or two to get some legislation passed in Austin that will be of benefit—not only to Rankin Schools but to many other districts over the state.

The Rankin board has sponsored a bill in the Legislature—through our District Representatives and State Senator Dorsey B. Hardman, that would, in effect, allow certain school districts to borrow money for operational purposes on assessed values from taxes for the year ahead.

Such a law would enable a school such as Rankin to plan their operations on a much longer basis and to operate more evenly from year to year without having to delay programs and plans until all tax money for that year was in hand.

The proposed law applies only to operational funds and would not include borrowing for payment of bonds or capital outlays.

The Rankin Board has put in a good bit of time on this legislation and has received some favorable support from other interested school districts.

THE BACKHAND—

Out in West Texas many folk have long maintained that the U. S. was playing the sucker part in Europe through foreign aid. This feeling apparently has not been shared by most of the nation—or at least the politicians for it has continued for many years now.

So what happens? Last month France's de Gaulle as much as gave the back of his hand to Uncle Sam's face and a good many of the other European nations supported his action—or at best, did nothing.

Just such action had long been forecast hereabouts. But to see

THE RANKIN NEWS

Grade Four-RJHS . . .

The following, edited by a Rankin Junior High, is a day in the life of a fourth grader and a list of the aims and objectives of the teaching he receives in the schools.

How long has it been since you have spent a day in the fourth grade? Pull up a chair, relax, and let's take a look at it.

On the agenda everyday is lunch check and the Pledge to the Flag. We try to build self-confidence and poise by giving each student an opportunity of leading the group in the Pledge. We believe "the effectiveness of democracy rests not alone upon knowledge and judgment but upon character", so we strive to instill democratic values.

Fourth graders are compulsive talkers, so there is still a time of "Show and Tell", sometimes just "Tell". The daily recess, noon and physical education period are ever present. The "incidentals" in our curriculum are library treks, music appreciation, choral reading, book reviews, dramatizations, pantomimes, research, experiment, film and filmstrips illustrations, story and poetry time, and assembly programs. Creative writing is used to emphasize the unique and personal. Planning with the children is important because it provides an excellent experience in discussion, and it gives opportunity to involve all children. This time also develops critical thinking and appreciation.

Moving into the "grown-up" environment of the middle grades is an important milestone for the child. Somewhere within the human rhythm there occurs the all-important struggle between the new and what is already known. Language arts is language, reading, writing, and spelling. These skills are an important factor in an individual's sensitivity and responsiveness.

Language extends beyond the concept of communication. It reflects one's own attitudes and feelings. It also affects the way other people feel and act. Oral and written language is an important part of each day's schedule.

The basic reading program is used to provide continuous and sequential instruction in the basic reading skills. The basic program is supplemented with curricular reading to provide guidance in the how-to study skills; with literature reading to help students explore their literary heritage and to appreciate the beauty of words; with news reading to help make students better informed citizens. Guidance is provided to help the child reach the ultimate goal of the reading program, which is voluntary wide reading on his own. To further build self-confidence, good legible handwriting and correct spelling are encouraged and practiced. Challenge words are presented to the faster students. To us, language arts is a way of looking at life.

Arithmetic is thought of as something that influences thought and activity throughout the day. It makes a real difference in the kinds of lives we lead. The children are helped to see the meaning and usefulness of the number

Second Grade Unit Makes Field Trip

Take a pretty, sunshiny day, signs of spring in the air and 20 energetic children. The picture? A section of the second grade on their way to Red Bluff Lumber Company to learn about construction of buildings as a part of a science unit. The children's purpose was to find out about materials for construction and C. J. Shaffer gave a very informative talk and demonstration on where our lumber comes from, how it arrives here, where it is stored, and materials used in Rankin—both for homes and buildings—as well as that used by the oil companies.

The children were eager to see the paint mixer, where nails are weighed, where cement is stored, and pipes used for plumbing. Grateful students were then on their way to Boggs Grocery, laden with gifts of yardsticks and areas, is known as "Field Day". In this manner the organization covers the entire state of Texas during the year.

Dr. Albert F. Tucker, executive secretary of TANE, says that 45 percent of the support of "their efforts on our behalf" comes from the Field Day.

7th Grade: Jimmy Adams, Joe Adams, Sandra Anderson, Carol Crawford, Marsha Funderburg, Billy Wayne Hale, Mickey Hughes, Linda Lantzel, Cheryl Little, Sandra Reeves, Rhonda Sproul, and Penny Woods

6th Grade: Pat Holden, Michael Johnston, John Smith, and David Welsh.

Listed as students who had an 90 average in all subjects combined but not on the all "A" honor roll were:

8th Grade: Judy Anderson, Joe Graham, Kenneth Bean, Billy P. Brown and Mike Eckols

Children noticed how groceries are packaged, the orderly organization to aid customers in finding articles, and the cleanliness and neatness manifested throughout the building.

Students were given ice cream bars by Mr. Boggs, and then observed the school exhibits on Main Street.

As one boy was walking back to the school house, he was heard to say, "Gee, aren't Rankin people nice?"

system and to see the relationship among the various number processes. The idea of sets is used with much emphasis in modern mathematics to assist in the mastery of number facts and to demonstrate relationships.

The term "sets" is used when speaking of sets of number facts, sets of examples and sets of problems. Hence, a "set" is a collection of things. The students are shown the three ways of dividing: by the "regular" method, by grouping, and by measuring. Mental oral Arithemmatic where only the answers are given is used to preface an arithmetic study period, because such thinking is used in the affairs of daily life, and it reveals the pupil's thought processes. The arithmetic program is enriched by the children's own experiences. To clinch learnings there must be ample varied practice to develop skill and mastery in basic processes and in problem solving.

What I hear I may forget.

What I see I may remember.

But what I do I will know.

Human aliveness and growth assumes a kind of reaching out toward the world. Geography helps fulfill that goal. It emphasizes four important concepts, namely, that man lives in an ever changing world; that peoples are interdependent; that the likenesses of people outnumber the differences, and that peoples everywhere are concerned with earning a living. The natural environment, the skills people develop, their education, their heritage of ideas help to explain why they live as they do. As the students understand why people live in the ways they do they develop an attitude of respect of other peoples. They develop an appreciation of the importance and dignity of the different kinds of work. Viewing the world, its peoples, and its situations and problems, even though it has been vicariously, has been a rewarding experience this year.

Increased awareness develops with openness to experiences. Our versatile principal has contributed to our Social Studies program. Recently, he helped one student to understand that we do not buy friendship—here or abroad. Another student was helped to see the beauty and dignity of respecting rightful ownership.

From our study of the Egyptians, the people of the Sahara Desert and along the Nile River, the students realized that geography of any part of the world today is largely an outgrowth of its geography in earlier times. We soon shall begin a study of the African Congo to find out their contribution to community living.

Elementary science should be almost entirely within the boundaries of the child's own experience. We have just finished a unit emphasizing the forces that influence flight. Here again, our principal enriched the study with his deftly drawn chalk drawings relating a wing of a plane to the shape of bird's wing.

The children enriched the recent study of rocks by bringing collections of their own. Since fourth graders are literally conscious of their physical selves, but reject all rules of health and hygiene per se, we have begun a unit on "Cater, the Stream of Life". With it, we are correlating a unit on "cleanliness" and on "Sleep and Rest". In these units we expect solid facts, based on reliable evidence, in place of opinion and bias.

The fourth grader is imaginative. Fantasy, mystery, and adventure occupy his day-dreaming and much of his conscious thinking. He travels far in time and space, so we shall soon travel with him by presenting a unit on the planets. We plan a voyage to the far reaches of the solar system.

Learning is time flowing like a river, in which a sequence of experiences moves toward a recognized goal. The four o'clock bell
