prove to be depends almost entirely upon the attitudes of the men, who will, during the next two years at least, have control of the political policies of our nation.

We now have Mr. Truman, a New Deal President, with his New Deal appointees filling all the appointive offices of the Executive Department of the government, and many of them are vested with power almost equal to that of the President, as composing the Executive Department. On the other hand we have a congress composed of men and women, a goodly majority of whom are members of the opposition or Republican party, thus placing the preponderance of power of the Legislative or Law-making Department of the government in the hands of that party.

Now this condition of affairs seems to be according to biblical expression: "A house divided against itself," but God forbid, that the biblical edict—"Must Fall," that is pronounced against such a house, may ever become the fate of our great nation. This calamity can and MUST be avoided, and to do so will require a sufficient degree of the policy of "Give and take," practiced by these two powerful agencies of the government, to admit of sufficient amount of cooperation by and of these two opposing schools of political policy that the house may not fall.

Will Mr. Truman and his appointees in office still persist in maintaining and forcing upon the voters of the country his New Deal ideas, which have been denounced by these same voters as fallacious and hallucinatory, and after fourteen years of undisputed trial, have apparently been condemned by the voters? Or will he permit of a sufficient degree of cooperation with the Republican controlled Congress by accepting at least a fair amount of the ideas and laws, that will be advanced and passed by the politically opposing Legislative Department?

Modern Pilgrims Can Stay in U. S.

Joy beams from the faces of these refugees at the Border Patrol Dock in Miami, Fla., over news that they will receive immigration visas to remain in the U. S. The modern Pilgrims—47 Estonians and a Finn—made a six-week, 6000-mile trip from Sweden in three small boats because they did not want to return to their native lands, now under Russian domination.

It now appears that if Mr. Truman adopts the first of the above described policies, which has already met the verdict of disapproval of the voters, the results upon our national welfare must, according to the said verdict, be woeful, wretched and wicked. If, on the other hand he should adopt the second of the above mentioned policies, the results SHOULD be roseate, seafai and righteous.

But as Abraham Lincoln expressed it—"I do not expect the house to fall." I expect the "Give and Take" policy of cooperation to be adopted to the end that most of our national ills and blemishes will be ironed out; but I do not expect all this ironing process to be fully accomplished and our country restored to its normal condition within the space of the next two years, not even within the next six years, regardless of which party is in power or methods that may be adopted to make it so.

Surely Mr. Truman has enough intelligence to know if he sets himself up as merely a hindering pettifogger or stumbling block in the way of his country's progress, it will bring only calamity upon his head, both as a politician and as the chief executive of the greatest country on earth. For his own personal influence as a politician, if for nothing else, I am trusting him not to do so.

I fully approve of Mr. Truman's attitude in regard to the proposal or suggestion that he appoint a Republican Secretary of State and then resign as president in his favor. He is perfectly right in discarding and refusing to consider such a proposal, for more than one reason. First, he is the people's choice for the office, and it would show very little moral courage or respect for such a high honor for him to lay down on the job and side from under it, simply because the sea looks stormy before him, so that there will be no more smooth sailing.

Second: to resign would not be the American way of life. When a man aspires to and attains the high office of President of the United States of America, he is supposed to have nerve enough to stay with the job until, as one of our great generals said: "hell freezes over" or until death or elections do them part. I believe Harry Truman will do just that, but just how he will direct his stewardship I know not. And I am not a Harry Truman worshipper—not by a dam-site. (There is no profanity in that expression.) Still I have said more good things about him than lots of the people have, who were almost ravenously mad with joy about him two years ago.

So far as I have been able to understand the Foreign Policy of the United States, especially as regards our negotiations for a permanent peace and commercial relations, I can heartily say—AMEN.

I believe the members of our peace commission are doing a noble work in striving for fair treatment and justice to all the nations regardless of how small and weak or how large and powerful they may be. They should each have the same fair treatment. And when a big mastiff tries to get a hold on a small terrier and drag it into his kennel, our men speak right up and say—"O no, you don't." Or words to that effect; and if I understand it correctly, there are some of the nations trying to do just that.

But there is one thing that I have failed to see mentioned, and that is not one single member of any of the peace councils or of the United Nations has ever suggested, much less gured, that these organizations should adopt the precepts expressed in Christ's Sermon on the Mount, as its code of ethics by which it's councils shall be guided and judged, and it is my firm opinion that unless this is done their efforts and accomplishments will, sooner or later, fall apart and nothing lasting or constructive will have been accomplished.

It seems that some people approve of the suggestion made in this column last week regarding the creation of a musical program by purely local talent and some, it seems, are thinking of giving the suggestion at least one tryout. It further seems like most people are very dubious about trying any of my suggestions; but I just keep on making them.

1946 Polio Epidemic Greatest Since 1916, Says National Foundation Head in Annual Report

Infantile paralysis struck the nation a staggering blow this summer. Just how serious the epidemic really has been was revealed this week in a report on the 1946 Polio Epidemic by Basil O'Connor, President of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, received by W. B. (Woody) Wilson, Deaf Smith county chairman of the 1946 March of Dimes drive. The epidemic this year is second only in severity to the polio nightmare of 1916, when 27,363 cases were reported in 28 states, O'Connor reported. Up to October 12, a total of 20,881 instances of polio infection had been reported throughout the country—almost doubling last year's total. Deaths from polio this year, however, will average less than 5 per cent, O'Connor predicted, as compared with 25 per cent in 1916.

"It was like a shot gun blast," O'Connor said. "There was no telling where it would break out next. And wherever polio struck, it spread in ever increasing concentric circles, like the ripples from a stone splashing in a pool." Pre-seasonal incidence—epidemics usually break out from late June through September—occurred in Texas and Alabama, as well as in Florida. By the end of June, the number of cases began rising in Minnesota and Colorado, and by the middle of July, the entire Mississippi Valley was experiencing a major increase in the number of cases. The eastern seaboard states, where the 1916 epidemic struck most heavily, were relatively free of polio this year.

Virtually every epidemic in the country this summer has been studied first hand by scientists working under March of Dimes grants through the National Foundation, O'Connor reports. A new field service unit, consisting of a truck and trailer containing laboratory equipment, was put in use this summer by the National Foundation. Interchange of equipment between all sections of the country greatly aided the polio fight this year. Equipment such as iron

Little Pat Rusk, 5 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Rusk, is Deaf Smith county's latest polio victim. The case was diagnosed as polio on November 2, and through the aid of the Deaf Smith county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the boy was admitted immediately to the West Texas Polio Clinic at Plainview. This week the youngster was reported by his father to be "doing fine" and is recovering from the attack. The Clinic at Plainview is supported, in part, by the county chapters of the National

S cucumbers and tomatoes, but somewhat weaker for peppers, eggplant and spinach. New Mexico carrots and Louisiana sweet potatoes held about steady as did Texas citrus. Colorado potato and onion sales were stymied because of snow with prices and demand dull.

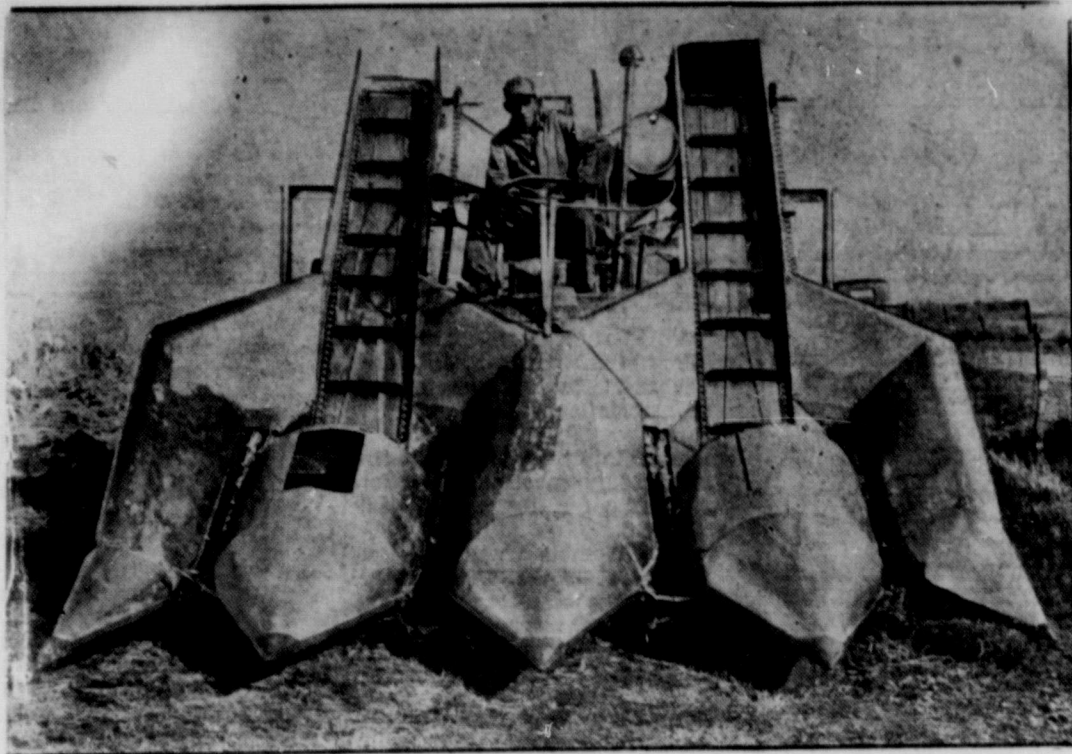

Poultry and egg prices held about steady at southwest markets last week despite slow demand and increased supplies of red meats. However, movement was light due to rain. Turkeys were weaker with Ft. Worth quoting toms at 25 to 27 cents a pound.

Demand for wool was slow last week due to the election which is expected to be the turning point in the trend of business since the trade sees easing of controls by new Congress.

Most lambs were steady to stronger last week compared with the previous week but some aged sheep were off. Broad demand cleared light hog receipts at stronger prices last week. Top butchers were quoted at $24.50 per hundred, San Antonio; $25, Ft. Worth and Oklahoma City; $23.75, Wichita and $26, Denver.

Cattle prices turned upward last week as receipts declined around the market circle and trading continued active. Houston sold common and medium steers and yearlings at $12 to $15 a hundred pounds and good cows at $12.25 to $13. San Antonio moved medium grass steers at $17 to $20 and medium and good cows at $11.50 to $14.50. At Ft. Worth medium and good beef steers and yearlings brought $16 to $22 and medium and good cows $11.50 to $14.50. Medium and good steers realized $18 to $20 at Oklahoma City and $19 to $25 Denver. Medium and good light steers sold at $17 to $20 a hundred, Wichita.

World's First Four-Row Corn Picker

The world's first four-row corn pickers are on the Lester Pfister farm at El Paso, Ill. Pfister has four, home-made in his own plant. They're two standard Oliver models combined. Pfister says one can pick as much corn in 20 minutes as a good hand picker can pick in a full working day. His farm is equipped with seven two-row pickers in addition to the four doubled-up creations, which enables him to pick, husk, and deliver to the elevators more than 300 acres of corn a day. His estimated production this year is 160,000 bushels. Conveyor belts carry the corn from the pickers to trucks which follow. Bill Stephens, a Pfister hand, is at the controls, above.

Increase in Power Output of REA Systems Is Predicted

More electric energy is needed urgently by Texas farmers and other rural consumers receiving service under the Federal rural electrification program, according to reports from managers of the REA-financed rural electric systems of the state.

The economic structure of Texas and the entire southwest is undergoing a complete change and, the co-op managers report, the rural residents of this state are eager to keep pace with what promises to be a vast new industrial development in this area.

You have to look close to recognize Rita Hayworth with her once-red tresses dyed blonde and cut eight inches shorter. Hair-do is special for "The Lady From Shanghai."

This need for more power has been prompted by two outstanding facts. In the first place, the number of electrified Texas farms has increased from approximately 11,400 to more than 168,000 in the 11 years since the Rural Electrification Administration was established.

An even greater factor is the tremendously increased use of electrical farm production equipment on the average electrified farm.

The increase occurred during the war years, when electrical equipment was scarce.

With these potent facts firmly established co-op officials and rural consumers look to the Interior Department's Power Administration for relief from what easily could be an acute power shortage within the next few years. The SPA is bending every effort to speed its proposed program which when completed will assure an abundance of low cost power for rural consumers in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, southwest Missouri and southeast Kansas.

Since early last summer field survey work has been progressing on the project wherein the SPA is to coordinate the power generated at the hydro electric plants at the Norfolk and Denison dams by means of heavy transmission lines. The power program also includes other multiple-purpose reservoir projects scheduled for construction in the future. Once all the government built dams and their hydroelectric plants have been

Texas Tech Gets AAU Approval

LUBBOCK, Nov. 11.—Texas Technological College has been approved for inclusion on the accepted list of the Association of American Universities, according to word just received by Pres. W. M. Whyburn of Tech from Frank H. Bowles, secretary of the association committee on classification of universities and colleges.

Graduates from Texas Tech, the youngest major educational institution in the state, may now enter graduate schools of any leading university in the nation without penalty, Pres. Whyburn said. He also pointed out that many organizations carrying national recognition make membership in the AAU a prerequisite to forming chapters on a college campus.

Dr. Whyburn stated: "Approval by the Association of American Universities represents the result of twenty years of careful thought and closely coordinated effort on the part of all members of the college organization. It constitutes a recognition of our college, particularly with reference to activities in the field of scholarship, which is of highest significance."

United States Navy, Military and civilian personnel purchased a total of $1,698,000,000 worth of savings bonds between September 1, 1941, and August 1, 1946.

How to Handle a Fortune

Some months ago I reported in the Clarion how Mel Rate's uncle died up north, and left him with a tidy fortune.

Naturally, our town was curious to see how Mel would spend it: Traveling around the world... getting a new house or car... wearing fancy clothes... or dining on cold pheasant and champagne...

We can now report, Mel hasn't changed a bit! Drop in on him any night, and you'll find him in his shirt sleeves by the fire, chatting with the Missus, sharing a mellow glass of beer with friends.

From where I sit, Mel has learned the art of handling money—as well as handling people. You don't let cash-in-the-bank push you around any more than you let people push you around. If you like the simple, homey life; companionship and quiet ways; a glass of beer and friendly talk—that's worth a fortune, after all!
