ALL THE adjectives that the English language contains have been used in describing the fantastic landing of men on the moon last Sunday.

Like everyone else, I watched on TV as the first step was taken by Armstrong on moon and as he and Aldrin spent approximately two hours on the lunar surface.

At about the time you read this, the three Apollo 11 astronauts hopefully will be landing safely back on earth, ending an adventure that would have been believed by almost nobody even 20 years ago.

Within the next 20 years, I will not be surprised to see visitors to earth from other planets (some say we've had these already), and discovery of some forms of life on other planets. By then, we may have regular commercial vacation trips to the moon, where some sort of space city may be constructed.

If they'd have the Olympic games there, we'd see some new marks, especially in high jump and pole vault.

President Nixon called the two spacemen by telephone, and then called former President Johnson. If Lady Bird was on the extension, I'll bet she told Nixon to tell those guys to quit cluttering up the moon with litter.

At first visit, there doesn't seem to be a whole lot to look at on the moon, but just wait until man gets going in earnest with his moon contamination program.

In no time, the moon probably will have race riots, hippies (all of these could be sent to the moon, so far as most of us are concerned), taxes, beer cans, door-to-door insurance salesmen, labor unions and electric guitar players with 6-foot amplifiers.

The moon should be a stepping stone to the stars, and most of us may be around to see even greater space achievements than we now can imagine.

TAP PROGRAM IN PROGRESS

The Texas Department of Agriculture's TAP program has opened a two-month promotional campaign to make Texas turkey a part of the summer diet.

"For too long turkey has been considered something special only for Thanksgiving or Christmas", Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said in announcing the turkey campaign.

"It is time Texans realized the delicious birds can be something special for the backyard cookout, Sunday dinner or just for that meal watching the afternoon ballgame."

The TAP program, a highly successful promotion started by Commissioner White to make Texas consumers aware of Texas Agricultural Products (TAP), will utilize its entire resources to promote turkeys and turkey products during July and August.

White said it was not too long ago when chickens were purchased as whole birds only. "Now, it is accepted by everyone that they can be bought a piece at a time just as easily as not. Turkeys can be utilized the same way."

The Texas Department of Agriculture is joining with the Texas Turkey Federation and turkey processing plants in the two-month campaign, and will participate in several conventions with the organizations in promoting turkeys.

"Our five greatest competitors for industrial expansion are California, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois. In each of these States business pays a considerably less proportion of total taxes. We must not burden our potential industry with even greater taxes", Godfrey said.

victory hit for the Plainview team.

Sudan-Amherst had nine hits off Danny Huffines, with Plainview getting 12 off Martin Tucker.

Plainview opened the game with a 2-0 lead, but Amherst-Sudan scored five in the top of the third for a 5-2 lead. Plainview came back with four to lead once more, only to lose that lead 7-6 in the top of the fourth.

After tying the score at 7-7 in the bottom of the fourth, Plainview held the Amherst-Sudan club, scoreless the other two innings.

Carter had a pair of singles to go with his homer. Teammate Wayne Nash was a four-for-four, all singles, and Wesley Brown, the big first baseman, had a pair of singles and a triple.

Amherst-Sudan, Carroll Legg, Mark Davidson and Steve Thompson accounted for six hits. Each had two singles apiece.

Student Earnings

Students receiving social security benefits who are working full-time this summer need to keep up with their earnings, according to John G. Hutton, social security district manager.

"This is especially true of students working part-time while going to school. These students need to add their earnings earlier this year to what they will earn full-time this summer to determine their total earnings for this year," Hutton explained.

Students and other beneficiaries may earn as much as $1,680 during the entire year and get all their social security benefits. If gross earnings (before deductions) are expected to exceed $1,680, a report must be made to the social security administration.

This also applies to students who graduated in May or June and are no longer entitled to benefits, but whose yearly earnings will go over $1,680.

Hutton suggested that students who earned more than $140 a month while going to school and who plan to earn over $1,680 this year get in touch with the Social Security Administration located at 3428 Avenue H, Lubbock, and the telephone number is PO 5-8541.

KNOW YOUR CAR

Since knowing how a car runs and how to keep it running play a big part in safe driving, Chevrolet has recently released a new driver education movie, "Know Your Car."

Through a combination of live photography and cartoon animation, the new Chevrolet 16 mm color and sound motion picture describes the basic ways of knowing how a car runs and the danger signals an auto gives when not functioning properly.

The movie is being distributed free to high school driver education classes across the country.

"Know Your Car" is approximately 28 and one-half minutes long and divided into seven segments. The first three explain, in non-technical terms, the basic mechanical operations of an automobile. The next three cover maintenance requirements, and the last points out some danger signals a car gives when mechanical trouble develops.

There is a short pause between each of the three groups allowing driver instructors to quiz students on the material just presented.

"Know Your Car," which has been distributed to all Chevrolet regions and zones and is available on a no-charge basis to driver education instructors, civic and church groups through the Jam Handy Organization, Detroit, Michigan 48211.

John Chester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Chester, is scheduled for a tonsillectomy Thursday (today) morning at the Littlefield Hospital.

There is a place for light tackle, but a fisherman should be certain he is in the right place before using it.

For instance, I've been reading about fishermen taking cobia (ling) off the Florida coast with light tackle.

Oh boy! In Texas you can figure on the average ling running 15 pounds or better. Some go up to 60 pounds. And every ounce a fighter!

You can get plenty tired boating them with 50-pound-test line. So why fool around with six-pound line on a light-weight rod, and perhaps lose the fish with a hook in its jaws?

Austin Angler Glen Hayden, fishing in the Texoma tournament a year or so ago, (in which he won the top prize of a little more than $2,000), used 17-pound-test line to land his bass. He wasn't fooling with them!

Several irate fishermen from other parts of the world chided him about the weight of his line. One man wrote that he used only two-pound line and that large only because he couldn't buy 1-pound line.

A friend down at Falcon Lake recently said he wanted nothing less than 20-pound-test line for fishing in that wonderful body of water that straddles the Rio Grande between Texas and Mexico.

Fishermen now working the lakes around Texas, where there is considerable brush left on the bottom, like line 14 to 17-pound test.

I learned a good lesson about this last fall, on a ranch tank in South-west Texas, while using a rig that had 8-pound line.

It cast well and I cast far out to the edge of a creek channel that ran into the tank. A four-pound bass took that side-shad plug, jumped a couple of times, then headed straight for brush protruding about half-way to the bank.

With that light line I couldn't hold him. He managed to get to the brush, and I managed to tangle the line in the brush. I then waded out into the chilly water and took him off. Right then I decided it was safer, in more ways than one, to use a line that will handle a fish.

You can get just about all the distance and fun you want, with 12, 14 or 17-pound monoline. And you are much more certain of boating the fish. After all that's what most of us are after. We might turn him loose when we get him in, but don't like to lose him before he reaches the boat or the bank.

One thing can be said about today's monofilament line . . . it usually carries its correctly rated strength. There was a time when you bought a 15-pound line that probably wouldn't test over 10 pounds.

Most bait fishermen learned long ago to use a good heavy line. When they drop a minnow down in the brush bed they want something that will pull the fish out of that brush.

So, if your reel is equipped with a very light line, let me suggest you give it the spring house cleaning treatment and put on a line heavy enough to land your prize fish.

OUTDOOR WALLPAPER ???

Splashes of color and design created by full-vinyl wallcoverings are bringing new excitement to traditionally bland patio settings. Coordinated Glendura® Floral-Grille patterns by Imperial are shown on the paneling in this setting. The panels, held in place by edge molding, are removed easily. Different patterns may be hung on the reverse side and the panels rotated periodically to create a new mood.

The vinyl wallcovering also hangs easily, a definite advantage to the do-it-yourselfer. Outside applications are possible through the development of full-vinyl materials, such as Glendura. It is fully scrubable, stainproof, and scuff resistant. A high resistance to mildew makes it ideal for patios as well as basements, rec-rooms and bathrooms. Other outdoor uses include flower boxes, balcony dividers, and screens.

LEWIS LLEWELLYN

Don't Be Fooled By Tricky Slogan

The U. S. News and World Report recently published a letter written by a young man from Great Neck, N. Y., in which he set forth briefly the main points of his belief as to what is wrong with this country and what should be done about it.

For example, he complains that "we are forced to live in a society which places property rights above personal rights and freedoms."

He declares our society must be changed and that "human rights must be placed above both property and majority rights."

If he were alone in advocating these "reforms," we might ignore him. But he is not alone. Many young people have embraced the same general philosophy.

Tricky Slogan

There are multitudes who parrot the slogan, "Human rights must be placed above property rights." Many of them don't really understand the meaning of the words.

Certainly, human rights must take precedence over everything else in the world—excepting only the rights of the God Who made the world and gave it to us for our use.

But what are "property rights"? If by "property" we mean lands, buildings, factories, machines, etc.—which is the usual meaning of the term in such cases—then it should be stated clearly and positively that such property has no rights.

But one of the most basic of human rights is the right to own property. This right must not be denied.

The Bible confirms this human right in the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal." This means, of course, "You shall not take from another person the property which belongs to him."

The Marxist slogan attempts to belaud this issue—to make it appear that, under some circumstances, it is proper for one man or one group of men to take from somebody else what belongs to him.

Reassessment Needed There is a need for a reassessment of some of the values on which our society is based—but let's not be misled by people who are clever with words but short on integrity.

There was a Teacher, long ago, whose teachings contained the essence of sound policy in our personal and social relationships.

His philosophy was—briefly put—"Love God with your whole heart . . . and love your neighbor as yourself."

If our society could be revised to incorporate this principle, there would be few other changes needed.

But His words were intended to be accepted—or rejected—by individuals, not nations, or even large groups of people.

Have you accepted His individual invitation to you? Have you become genuinely His disciple?

This is the way in which you can really do your part to change the world . . . because it is changed people who will produce a changed world.

Devotional

By HAZEL HOUSE

I Corinthians 1:18-25
Preaching? This is something which is foolishness to the world and exultant joy to the Christian. It is the preaching of Christ crucified and risen; the preaching of the Cross that is foolishness to the world, because the world does not understand why they should make sacrifices of themselves for Jesus sake, and for others. The world sees no reason why they should even make an effort to go to worship on Sunday when the natural, physical man had rather find an easy chair and not be disturbed. Paul wrote that it pleased God through the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. Life has no meaning without the Crucified and Risen Christ! You may be the finest artist and paint beautiful pictures; you may understand the Einstein Theory of Relativity; you may be a pilot or an astronaut; you may be a wonderful musician or singer; you may speak in many different languages; you may be a doctor; you may be a home maker or an expert cook; but some of these things are important without Christ. Because without Christ, no matter what else you may have, it will all end within a very few years. With Christ crucified and risen, all of these things have meaning because Christ gives us a different kind of life—a gift of eternal life right now.

As soon as we accept Jesus as our own Savior, we are born again into God's family and will live forever. Physical death will only be a journey from one room of life into another room. Paul wrote in I John 3:2b: "It doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is."

When we know that we will never die and that some day we shall know all things, then what we are capable of doing and learning now has meaning, for we know that we are only stewards here over all the things which we have.

God is the giver of all the talents and all good things that we have.

Accepting the preaching of the cross that is foolishness to this world, we then can worship the giver and not the gift. Remember, it is the Way of the Cross That Leads Home.

"The persons most difficult to convince they're at retirement age are children at bedtime."

Insurance Rate Hike Is Being Investigated

Stiff resistance is forming to a proposed 11.4 per cent average insurance rate hike.

Gov. Preston Smith promised a "full scale" investigation of soaring rates after State Insurance Board rate experts recommended the new increase.

Smith said the proposal "borders on catastrophe" and the car insurance situation "has become intolerable for many of our citizens."

Governor announced an early meeting with insurance company executives and said he is considering appointment of a select panel of citizens outside the industry to make a thorough study and recommendations.

Board rate—authorities blamed the increase on the number and cost of auto accidents. Labor cost for repairs, in particular, was emphasized.

Recommendations and testimony at the public hearing will be reviewed by the board before August 1. New rates will take effect with policies written or renewed on or after Sept. 1.

*Liability rates, under staff recommendation, would go up 5.5 per cent. (Bodily injury coverage actually would be reduced 3.7 per cent, but property damage would increase 21.4 per cent.)

*Collision insurance would increase 17.5 per cent.

*Comprehensive coverage for physical damage would climb 24.9 per cent.

Commercial vehicles, with better safety records, would get lower rates. Figuring as classes of vehicles, the statewide average increase would be 9.2 per cent and staff recommendations.

Insurance company spokesmen argued for reduction rather than raise.

"An automobile is an absolute necessity in our current society, and, I, for one do not intend to sit by and see it priced into a position being a luxury," said Smith.

Down deep within the life, the soul,
There lives a hope to reach a goal,
A hope that's guiding us each day,
A hope that brightens up our way,
It's hopes that drives away all gloom
And tells us better days will come,
Then hope assures us there will be
A great and grand eternity.
