

A sure sign that summer isn't too far in the future: don't look now, but the television networks are beginning to use re-runs. . . . .

Easter Sunday comes earlier this year than it does most years. This is because there is a full moon on Saturday.

According to early Christian church traditions. the Sunday on which the resurrected Christ appeared among His disciples as a living man must follow upon a full moon. It is also presecribed that the full moon must follow the equinox. The equinox came on Tuesday at 3:47 a.m. We also know this day as the first day of spring.

. . . . The lapse of time between the equinox and Easter Sunday can be considerably more than a month. This year, the lapse of time is relatively short. . . . .

ANNUAL FORECAST

Christians might more appropriately call Easter Sunday "Resurrection Sunday," but they persist in calling it by the name mentioned first in this sentence. Actually, "Easter" was honored by our heaten ancestors as the patroness of fertility and fruitfulness. Strangely enough, we continue to make displays of rabbits and eggs, which were once symbols of the goddess of Easter's interest in fertility, although we don't particularly do this in the name of the goddess.

Nobody calls it "Seward's Folly" anymore. As a matter of fact, the travel reservations already booked indicate that as many as 175,000 people will head northward this year to inspect the real estate bargain Secretary of State Seward negotiated with Imperial Russia 100 years ago this month.

And, according to the U.S. Press Association, they're saying that Centennial season tourists will spend $8 million in Fairbanks alone this year. That's $800,000 more than the United States paid for Alaska.

. . . . "Come early and stay late" is the way the Alaskans are putting it. "We've got plenty of daylight, so don't worry about

Perhaps unknown to many is the fact that Alaska is the midpoint stop-over for polar route jet travel between Europe and Asia. As a result, Alaska is coming to be known as a tourist spot by many Europeans.

All of this activity makes it appropriate to resurrect a quote from one distinguished lawmaker who greeted President Andrew Johnson's request for an appropriation to pay for Alaska with this description of it: "A tract of country that we did not need, that nobody wanted, and, so far as is known, is utterly worthless,"

Too bad this individual couldn't see the preparations for the centennial celebration. . . . .

Fellow we know says it's time people realized that the action taken by the House of Representatives against Adam Clayton Powell had nothing to do with whether or not he was a Negro.

Powell's conduct, it is pointed out, would have been inexcusable on the part of anyone, and is utterly incomprehensible on the part of an ordained minister not to mention a member of Congress. . . . .

Lest we forget --- To help us try to relax and enjoy a good sermon Sunday morning let's look around the house and see if there are some cast aside clothes that would add a ray of sunshine to some less fortunate person's Easter.

One of the most interesting visitors we've had in the Star office in a lon long time was Mrs. Ethel Moyer. She came in to renew her subscription Tuesday morning and chatted with us for several minutes. Mrs. Moyer has been gone from Friona for many years. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sutton.

Her father first purchased land north of town in 1906 and built a large middle America type barn and house before moving his family here from Ohio in 1907. He later served as a local postmaster.

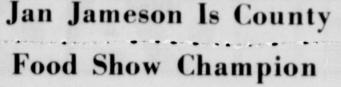

Mrs. Moyer remembers packs of lobo wolves and herds of wild mustangs roaming the Tierra Blanca and adjacent areas when she was a small girl. "My mother was a good marksman." she said. Then added. "Pioneer women had to learn to shoot to protect themselves and their children during the absence of their husbands."

Ethel Sutton started to school in the first school building in Friona, It was a frame structure located on the same property Friona elementary school now occupies. Later she attended school in the community in which her family resided. The school was first known as the Sutton School and later as the Maurer School.

Mrs. Lawrence Lillard, the former Edith Maurer, was Mrs. Mover's teacher at the time she attended the rural school. She was graduated from Hereford High School in 1917. After attending a business school in Amarillo for a time she became employed at the Harvey House Newstand and was transferred from Amarillo to Oklahoma City then to Houston, where she met George Moyer, who later became her husband. The Movers have lived in California for a number of years. They were overnight guests in the home of Mrs. Edith Lillard and visited with other old timers before proceeding

Let's all be very careful. In addition to hazards of the home and the road this year we will want to be careful about where w hide Easter eggs for the small fry. Wheat has such lush growth in the entire irrigated district that it makes the most ideal hiding place for the brightly colored eggs.

Due to the infestation of green bugs and other insects, many acres of wheat in our area have been sprayed and it just isn't wise to have small children hunting eggs in a freshly sprayed field.

Before you hide any eggs in any field, be sure to check with the owner to determine whether

A large crowd was on hand at the Crim place, 18 miles southwest of Friona, for the annual occasion. Included were relatives, neighbors, and five news reporters. Most were hoping for some good news, but Crim wasn't able to perk their spirits up much.

Council Plans Sunday Lunch

On Sunday, April 2, the Stu-dent Council of Friona High School will sponsor a luncheon for the community, at the high school cafeteria. The Student Council plans to send $100 of the proceeds to Girlstown, near Whiteface.

Prices will be $1,50 for those 12 years of age and over: 75 cents for children 11 and under, with a special $5 "family rate."

Lunch will be served from 11:45 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Everyone is invited to have lunch on that date with the Student Council.

BORERS

The week of March 19-25 has been designated as Na tional Poison Prevention Week. Its purpose is to call attention to the dangers created by the increasing use of such toxic substances as medicines, polishes, cleaners, solvents, pesticides, and others.

Some 600,000 Americans may suffer from accidental poisoning this year unless people become more careful about handling and using harmful chemicals. Over 80 per cent of the victims will probably be children under five years of age. In his official proclamation designating the week, President Lyndon B. Johnson pointed out that caution is necessary in using potentially dangerous products. This includes taking the time and trouble to store harmful chemical beyond the reach of children.

Among the most common sources of poisoning are medicins, including aspirin; household items such as kerosens, lighter fluid, furniture polish. paint, shoe polish, turpentine, pesticides; insecticides and rodenticides.

Farm chemicals, garden supplies and poisonous household items should be stored under lock and key especially if small children are present. Small children cannot read and do not recognize the danger involved.

and color of containers, and anything that looks edible often winds up in their mouths. CONTROL SHADE TREE

Many pests of ornamental trees and shrubs will soon be active. Prevention is the best method for holding plant damage to a minimum. This is particularly true in controlling shade tree borers. The most important borer species includes the round headed and flatheaded borers. The adults of the roundheaded borers are known as long-horned beetles because they generally have antennae as long or longer than their body. The larvae (borers) make galleries beneath the bark and also tunnel into the heartwood, The adults of the flatheaded borers are generally beautifully colored or metallic, boatshaped beetles. The typical injury caused by the larvae (borers) consists of rather shallow long, winding, oval galleries beneath the bark.

ers will attack trees and shrubs already weakened or injured by transplant shock, drouth, poor soil fertility, mechanical dam ... age or other means. Keeping the plants in a vigorious growing condition is important in preventing damage to established plants.

There is a wide variation in the life cycle or developmental stages of wood borers. Some species emerge as adults in the early spring and begin egg laying. Others emerge and deposit eggs in crackes and crevices in the bark. Upon hatching, the young borers begin their tunnel-

To prevent newly - hatched borers from becoming established in a tree, it is necessary to apply an insecticide to the trunks and lower branch prior to egg hatch. The first application should be made in early spring soon after the leaves appear. An effective spray treatment is a mixture of DDT-malathion. A copy of L-199. COUNTY CHAMPS... Friona 4-H Club entrants brought home the county food show championship in both the senior and junior divisions. At right is county champion Jan Jameson. On the left is j unior champion Karene Hart. The girls earned the right to enter the district contest next month.

Another 4-H County Food Show is over. Out of some 40 girls who enrolled in food projects groups a total of 26 participated in the County Food Show. These girls will be eligible for County awards. It was unfortunate that some six girls were ill and unable to display at the food show, even though they completed the project work. The displays were generally very good-all scoring high.

The next contest will be held April 1st at Hub Community Center. This will be demonstrated by individuals and teams in various award programs. Many girls and boys are working now on demonstrations. We hope we can have some district winners this year so they may go to A&M State Roundup in June. Clothing work for 4-H groups will start soon. Each girl will be looking forward to the next big event for 4-H'ers in the County-Dress Revue.

Plans are underway by a group of women in the Farwell area, to start classes for Latin American homemakers in Home Economics subject matter. The Extension Agent is working with these volunteer leaders, who are making home visits, to determine needs. Help and assistance will be given in the use of teaching materials for this group. Meeting place and time for the classes will be announced as soon as plans are completed. The need is great for more adults interested in the work. The Extension Service, as an educational agency is prepared to give assistance to any group who is interested in extending the educational opportunity of our Latin American families through improved methods in Home Economics. NATIONAL POISON PRE-VENTION WEEK is designed to

For the Grower Who Wants to Produce Top Yields of Quality Cotton

MULTI-LINE

Paymaster 111 is a multi-line cotton variety, developed from a cross between Paymaster 101 and Lankart 611. It is real quality cotton with high micronaire, stronger fiber and longer staple.

BOLL SIZE

Paymaster 111 has extra large, thin rind, round bolls. The bolls are the largest of any cotton yet developed by Paymaster. 111 is especially adapted for stripper harvesting or it can be spindle picked.

SEEDLING VIGOR

Special selection of parental strains has given Paymaster 111 excellent seedling vigor. Early seedling vigor has two distinct advantages:(a) Establishes and maintains good stands early (b) Helps to escape seedling diseases.

PLANT TYPE

Paymaster 111 fruits well off the ground and is of a semi-compact plant type. It has few long fruiting branches, has light foliage, strong stalks, and strong root system.

MATURITY

Paymaster 111 is a cotton of medium maturity. It is only slightly later than Paymaster 101-A.

STORM RESISTANCE

Paymaster 111 has good storm resistance.

AREAS OF ADAPTATION

Paymaster 111 is the most widely adapted of any Paymaster variety. It has performed well on both irrigated and dryland -from the Texas Rio Grande Valley through the Coastal Bend, Blacklands, North Texas, Western Oklahoma, Eastern New Mexico and the Texas South Plains.

WHAT DOES THE BREEDER SAY?

Dr. Harold Loden states: "Paymaster 111 is the result of an intensified program started in 1952 to develop a really good quality cotton. Particular attention was given to fiber properties which included: (a) staple length (b) micronaire (c) fiber strength. We were also fortunate to develop a cotton with such excellent seedling vigor. I believe Paymaster 111 is the best cotton we have developed to date.'
