Senator Connally Speaks At Meet In London

Extracts from the speech of Senator Tom Connally, Chairman, Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, and United States Delegate to the general assembly of the United Nations in London. Delivered in the Senate, March 12, 1946.

At the outset, I want to make my position unequivocally clear. In my opinion, the General Assembly was an outstanding success. In my opinion, the United Nations machinery demonstrated its usefulness and the great influence it may exert in behalf of world peace. In my opinion the Charter remains the best hope of mankind.

I would not be frank if I were to imply that all was light without heat in London. Just as there are evidences of party politics, sectionalism and pressure group activities in our own Congress, so there were evidences of nationalism, power politics and lobbying in London.

Slowly and painfully the 51 United Nations, through the instrumentality of the General Assembly, are learning to cooperate on a peace-time basis. We must not be impatient with the progress made. We cannot expect a child to run before he has first learned to walk.

It is possible too, that the frank and open statements in the Security Council may be ushering the world into a new era in diplomacy when statesmen will speak to the people in a language they can understand. This may be the beginning of a

BUBBLE GUM BLACK MARKET IS RAGING

HARLINGEN, March 22. School kids chewed happily today, unperturbed by their elders' discovery of the latest black market—in bubble gum.

Reports were that the war-scarce gum was back, but not available at the customary nickel-a-package. Fifteen cents was the price.

Bubble gum by the stick, in sales between students, was reported to have reached skyrocketing prices—as high as a quarter for a penny stick.

Health Hints

This article is presented by the Cochran county Tuberculosis Association in the interest of better health.

Since the discovery of the sulfa drugs and penicillin, pneumonia is not as grave a threat to life as it was a few years ago. Nevertheless, pneumonia is by no means to be taken lightly. It ranks among the leading causes of death and is apt to strike particularly hard during the months of January, February and March.

Lobar pneumonias an infection of the lung usually caused by the invasion of an organism called pneumococcus. It results in inflammation of the lung and is accompanied by high fever. There are various types of lobar pneumonia, some more and some less resistant to the sulfa drugs. All types of pneumonia, are serious and may be followed by such complications as pleurisy, lung abscesses or meningitis.

The first symptoms of lobar pneumonia are a chill and pain in the side. The disease develops rapidly. Within 48 hours there is a high fever, which may go to 104 degrees or more. The patient has a rasping cough and expectorates blood-tinged sputum. Breathing is heavy and difficult. When sulfa or penicillin used, the disease is usually brought under control quickly. The drugs do not seem to be effective, however, with some types of pneumonia.

Pneumonia often develops if proper care is not taken after other illnesses. The patient who becomes active too soon after influenza may break down with pneumonia. Any number of illnesses may be followed by pneumonia if the body is not permitted to regain its strength before normal activities are resumed.

The best precaution against pneumonia is a strong body. This means getting sufficient rest, eating nourishing meals, taking care of one's self after illness, avoid sudden chilling, not going out in cold or wet weather without protective clothing.

Some diseases, such as scarlet fever, set up immunity against reinfection. This is not true of pneumonia. On the contrary, pneumonia frequently recurs.

Although pneumonia may be quickly brought under control today when sulfa or penicillin can be used, the patient should follow the doctor's advise and allow time for complete convalescence before taking up his usual activities again.

Diagnosing TB will be discussed in the next article.

A Goal Of Million Gardens In Texas Is Announced

The goal of three quarters of a million home gardens in Texas, previously announced for 1946, has been upped to a full million by C. R. Heaton, horticulturist of the Texas A and M College Extension.

The upward revision points out the need for home production of vegetables at a level to that of the war years and reflects the critical world food situation.

The appeal to Texas home gardeners to plant an additional 250,000 gardens came after M. L. Wilson, director of the federal Extension Service, called upon Texas director Ide P. Trotter to again put into effect wartime policies of home food production.

Dr. Trotter has instructed all county agricultural and home demonstration agents to make home gardening a major activity. He said recent developments in the world food situation are such that food will be as critical an item, if not more so, than during any years of the war.

With the wide fluctuation of temperatures and general weather conditions usually coming with March, the National Conservation Bureau warns that this time of year frequently brings the worst epidemics of colds and flu.

TAKE THE DRUDGERY OUT OF PLOWING—F. O. Masten, South Plains largest farm operator, has perfected a device which practically does away with the need of human labor in preparation of the seed bed. The device consists of a two-wheel tractor guide which keeps the machine following a furrow around and around the field. In the top picture above left, four tractors equipped with the guides are shown plowing behind each other. In the right picture, the tractors are shown making a turn in the field. In the bottom picture, one of the tractors is shown as it passed in front of the camera. The pictures were made at a demonstration at Masten's 2,000-acre farm, three miles north of Wellington.

F. O. Masten Demonstrates Tractor Which Saves Man Labor Hours

F. O. Masten extensive farmer in Cochran, Lamb and Collingsworth counties demonstrated a "driverless" tractor on his 2000 acre farm two miles north of Sudan, Tuesday of last week for 100 representatives and newsmen from Morton, Levelland, Littlefield, Sudan, Farwell, Amherst, Lubbock and Amarillo.

The party was arranged after "Life" and "Time" magazines had read of the automatic plow, which Masten had used to break his farm near Wellington. Life Photographer W. W. Kirkland of Chicago made pictures of the event which are expected to appear in the nationally distributed magazine.

The automatic plows are tractors equipped with large dual wheels and with a twin-disc guide. The large wheels provides the necessary traction for an even pull, and the twin disc, which extends from the front of the tractor, serve as a guide. The discs are dropped into a furrow which has been marked off, the tractor started and then left to run with the guide following the furrow. Masten has five of these automatic tractors in one field.

The same method can be used in planting, but men are required to be at each end of the rows to make the turns and start the tractor back.

In a field of his 2,000-acre farm four tractors equipped with the guides plowed around a 20-acre plot to demonstrate the effectiveness of the method to farmers, county agents, vocational agriculture students, business men, newspapermen and others from seven neighboring communities.

Masten had previously plowed a 420-acre field on a farm near Wellington to prove his theory of economy in the operation. Operating a tractor equipped with one of the guides and hooked up with a twin plow, Masten cut man-hours of the operation from 1,180 in 1945 to 35 this spring and tractor hours from 985 to 429 this year. Labor costs on the operation were cut from $590 to $17.50. Equipment costs (he operated three tractors in the field last year as compared to one this year) were reduced from $7,605 last year to $2,924 this year.

The tractor was operated both day and night and required serving only one (at 11 p. m.) during night runs.

Cochran County Garden Club Holds Meeting

At the conclusion of business meeting, Mrs. J. A. Morrow, program chairman introduced Mrs. Greer, who gave a very interesting talk on the growing of exhibition Dahlias in West Texas.

Overseas Easter Mail Should Be Made At Once

Postmaster Walter Taylor announces that all Easter mail for overseas should be mailed now.

With the war over and millions of our boys home, there is a natural tendency on the part of most of us here at home to place less emphasis upon the overseas aspect of our holidays than we did in the past.

The war Departments release comes as a timely reminder that there are still millions of American boys overseas and that, although the war is over, distance separating them from home has not diminished — Tokyo and Berlin and the other areas of Occupation are still a long way from home.

In some respects, the job of an army of occupation is almost as trying as that of a wartime this was followed by a short discussion of Dahlias by Mrs. Morrow. The club members then had an informal garden quiz.

Mmes. Greer and Morrow demonstrated the dividing of Dahlia tubers and a specimen presented the members.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ferguson to 20 members.

Health Officer Explains Disease

Austin, Texas, March 27 —Undulant (Malta) fever is a disease which is transmitted to human beings by infected animals. Individuals may acquire the disease (1) as the result of direct contact with infected animals or (2) following the use of raw dairy products obtained from infected cows. If the disease is due to contact with infected animals or their products, the germ gains entrance to the human body through the skin, stated Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

Persons who live on farms are more subject to undulant fever than those who live in cities. On farms, the disease is more apt to affect men due to the fact that those who live in cities, hogs and cows to a much greater extent than do farm women. Farmers have direct contact with animals during loading and unloading for market. The hauling of infected cows or sows and of the young at time of birth represent hazardous types of contact. The danger of undulant fever may be reduced greatly by avoiding as much as possible all forms of direct contact with animals which may be infected. The wearing of heavy gloves if contact is unavoidable should aid in protecting the skin against exposure.

Urban residents have little or no occasion to come in direct contact with infected animals. Undulant fever acquired in city or towns is due, as a rule, to the use of milk, cream, and butter which lack certain safeguards. Prevention of undulant fever, whether due to contact with infected animals or to ingestion of contaminated dairy products, is dependent to a further extent, upon the eradication of contagious abortion from farm animals and careful pasteurization of dairy products.

Farmers Urged To Repair Machinery And Help Keep Down Accidents

With the high crop requirements and shortage of new machinery, a higher farm accident toll is apt to result this year unless proper precautions are taken, says R. E. Hickerson, assistant state farm labor supervisor for the A and M College Extension Service.

The fundamental step in the safe operation of machinery is to put it in good condition before field work starts, say Mr. Hickerson.

Defective hitches, seats, clutches, wheels, brakes, steering mechanism and unguarded revolving parts are things to check for. The National Safety council at Chicago reports that many fatal accidents have been caused by failure of makeshift seats and unguarded power take-off shafts.

Clean all dirt, trash and grease from platforms, pedals, foot rests or steps to assure safe footing, Mr. Hickerson says.

Special care should be taken in checking homemade labor-saving equipment for accident hazards. The operator's safety often is overlooked in the development of this type of equipment, and accidents can easily offset all other advantages of such equipment.

Poorly conditioned farm machinery is irritating and fatiguing to the operator. It reduces his alertness and encourages carelessness. Timely servicing will reduce accidents as well as costly field breakdowns.

Let's Grow Vegetables of Finer Flavor

Some of the vegetable varieties grandpa and grandma raised in their garden long ago still can't be beat. But they are exceptions. Plant breeders have been extremely busy during the last half century, and particularly in recent years, developing new and better varieties and strains of all kinds. In addition to improving other characteristics in vegetables, they have been placing a lot of emphasis on getting them to taste better.

Now that peace-time gardens are underway again, you can add to your own keen interest in gardening and your own and the family's zest in eating vegetables by being more discriminating than ever before in selecting varieties to plant. And when you select for finer flavor you'll usually get all the other superb characteristics thrown in, such as tenderness, fine texture, good form, rich color, and often greater vitamin content so much desired today.

Ever munch a carrot right out of the garden row? That's the way to get true carrot flavor. Put in a row or two of Nantes this season alongside the varieties you usually plant. Compare the flavors. Nantes is the one with the blunt rounded ends which many home gardeners especially like.

Even snap beans vary enough so that choice of varieties can affect your enjoyment in eating them. The delicate flavor of brittle, golden yellow Pencil Pod is unsurpassed. Or, perhaps you prefer green beans. Ferry's Plentiful is a decided improvement over many of the older varieties with flat pods; Tendergreen, a fairly new round pod green bean, is in the same class in excellence.

If you have never tasted the crisp dark green crumpled leaves of Chieftain, the latest development in Savoy or "odorless" cabbage, you have a treat coming. While there's no mistaking its sistership to other cabbages, there's a difference!

A vast improvement has been made in garden peas these later years. Little Marvel and any of the Laxton type have richer sweeter flavor than some handed down from earlier days.

Naturally, you will want your vegetable garden to consist mostly of your old favorites and standbys. But a few of the newer varieties added along with the others may prove to be a genuine revelation. If your dealer does not have them, he can undoubtedly get them for you.

Year by year plant breeders are forging ahead in the improvement of all characteristics in vegetables. Home gardens of the future are bound to furnish fresh foods even more flavorful, more nearly perfect in every way, than in the past.

Sidelights From Washington

By George Mahon

An intelligent national effort to do something about preventing and curing mental diseases has long been overdue. A few days ago the House passed a little-noticed bill on the subject which should prove to be of far reaching importance.

We provided for the creation within the Public Health Service of the National Institute of Mental Health. The Institute will devote its efforts to study and research in the field of mental disease, and to a program of co-operation with the states and with public and private hospitals and institutions.

The mentally ill have been confined in public and private institutions, but no determined and sustained great national effort has ever been made to find the cure for mental illness and to discover methods of prevention. The emphasis should be upon a cure for mental patients, and not merely upon confinement in institutions as too often has been the case in the past.

Here are some of the striking facts. More than one-half of all hospital beds in America are occupied by mental patients. The American people through public and private channels, are spending about a quarter billion dollars annually to care for mental patients, but only a small fraction of that amount is being spent for research in the field of prevention and cure.

During World War II, 1,760,000 men were rejected for military service because of mental illness. Members of the medical profession have pointed out that medical colleges in the past have placed inadequate emphasis on subjects having to do with mental illness; there is a scarcity of specialists in this field of medical science.

The bill is endorsed by outstanding members of the medical profession and by the American Medical Association, the American Legion and numerous organizations. The medical profession and those of us who oppose so-called socialized medicine feel that the bill is in keeping with the best American medical traditions.

It is felt that the Senate will agree with the House, pass the bill and send it to the President for his approval.

The U. S. House of Representatives is more economy minded than the Senate if we can take as a guide the first annual appropriation for Government agencies to be finally approved this year. The bill provides funds for various independent agencies of the Government—19 in number—such as the Interstate Commerce Commission, Tariff Commission, Federal Trade Commission and Civil Service Commission. It was passed by the House several weeks ago and sent to the Senate. The Senate adopted thirty amendments to the bill. Of the thirty amendments adopted by the Senate, only two of them provided for a reduction below the figures agreed upon in the House. The other amendments provided for increases or changes in language.

The final draft of the bill has now cleared both Houses and the approval of the President is expected next week. The bill provides for forty-five million dollars less money than was requested by the agencies involved.
