THURSDAY, APRIL 2, 1964

Two young Latin-American children died yesterday, victims of an explosion and fire which destroyed their parents' five-room farm home two miles west of the Goodland community.

Five other persons were injured in the butane blast which rocked the house Tuesday afternoon. A teen-age girl, preparing to take a bath, was blown through a window by the concussion.

Dead are Amelia Vasquez, about 4, and her sister, Josie, 15-months-old.

Injured are the children's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Vasquez, both 29; an aunt of the victims, Sally Trivino, 19; Frances Vasquez, the girl blown through the window; and Janie Vasquez, grandmother of the dead children. The 5 p.m. Tuesday explosion blasted walls from the house, ripped out roofing joists and tore out windows. The house is located on the Ben Pinkert farm. It was the residence of 20 persons, whose furniture and clothing were destroyed.

Rites scheduled
Funeral services for the two Vasquez children will be held at 10 a.m. Friday at St. Ann's Catholic Church with Father Lawrence Bobsien officiating at The Mass of The Angels. Burial will be in Morton Memorial Cemetery under the direction of Singleton Funeral Home.

Fifteen months-old Josie died at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Amelia died at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. Each sustained near third degree burns over 95 per cent of her body.

The children's parents and aunt, Sally, were listed in fair condition only at Morton Memorial Hospital. Each is suffering with second and third degree burns over 30 to 40 per cent of the body.

Frances Vasquez was treated at the hospital for minor cuts and was released.

The teen-ager was preparing to take a bath when the explosion occurred. She said that she saw flames shooting from the hot water heater and then heard the blast. The force of the blast catapulted her through the bathroom window.

Also treated and released at the hospital was Janie Vasquez, the grandmother, who received burns

PCG meeting date re-set to April 21

Date for the important area-wide open meeting for cotton growers, originally set for April 16, has been changed to Tuesday, April 21, according to local spokesmen for the Plains Cotton Growers.

Postponement was necessary, it was explained, to secure Frank Moore of Plainview as principal speaker. The meeting will be conducted at the County Activities Building here and will get underway at 8 p.m.

Due to the importance of the informative meeting, the Morton Area Chamber of Commerce has undertaken an all-out effort to secure the largest attendance possible. Committee in charge has set a goal of 300 and is completing last-minute details of a contest for high schoolers in which $100 in prizes will be awarded participants responsible for the largest number of persons present at the meeting.

Skip-row planting
Moore, state ASC committeeman from this area, will show slides of skip-row cotton planting, and discuss the need for growing of longer staple cotton in this area.

In addition to Moore, a representative of the Plains Cotton Growers will also be present to explain the PCG's plan of voluntary assistance by growers and ginners towards the continuing PCG program, aim of which is to better the status of the cotton grower.

Moore, discussing the results from three years of interplanting grain sorghum with cotton in Hale County, said the six-row pattern runs two cotton, one blank, two grain sorghum, and one blank, across the field. In comparison with yields from solid plantings, the system has increased cotton production by 50 per cent, he said, and grain sorghum production by 40 per cent, with a cotton micronaire average a full point above the either solid or simple skip-row system.

Wind, sand considered
"This yield increase for cotton came under conditions where wind and sand damage were not a factor", Moore explained, adding that "when wind and sand damage enter the picture, production figures can be doubled by interplantings". This is assuming that the two crops are planted at the same

April 15 is deadline for inspection stickers

The time is almost here — April 15th is the deadline for having your 1964 Motor Vehicle Inspection sticker displayed in the lower right hand corner of your windshield. Only 50% of the 604,369 registered vehicles in Region No. 5 of the Texas Department of Public Safety have visited safety inspection stations and obtained their 1964 safety inspection sticker, according to Captain Alan Johnson, Motor Vehicle Inspection Service of the D. P.S.

Residents of Cochran County own 5,700 registered vehicles and 2,900 have not been inspected as yet," Johnson said.

"Under the law there can be no extension of the deadline, and motorists who fail to display the new

Two rural mishaps checked by patrol

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated two accidents on rural highways in Cochran county during the month of February, according to Sergeant A. E. Roberts, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

These wrecks accounted for one person injured and an estimated property damage of $700.00.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county for the first two months of 1964 shows a total of three accidents resulting in no persons killed, two persons injured and an estimated property damage of $1,100.00.

sticker on and after April 16th are subject to arrest," he said. Authority for the enforcement of the provisions of the Motor Vehicle Act is vested in any Sheriff or Deputy Sheriff and City Policeman as well as the enforcement officers of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

According to Captain Johnson there are three state approved inspection stations located in this county, and many motorists are going to find long lines awaiting them as the deadline rolls nearer.

He added, "It is as much a violation to display an old sticker as not to have one at all. The law provides a fine of from one dollar to two hundred dollars plus court costs for operating a vehicle registered in Texas subject to the Motor Vehicle Inspection Act without a valid current inspection sticker."

Wayland College plans program of pre-nursing

PLAINVIEW — Beginning with the 1964 fall semester Wayland Baptist College will have a cooperative pre-nursing program with Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing, Amarillo, and Methodist Hospital School of Nursing, Lubbock, according to an announcement by President Roy C. McClung.

Details for the one-year program now required for admission to both schools of nursing have recently been cleared through the efforts of Dean Robert G. Collmer of Wayland, Mrs. Irene Wilson, director of Methodist Hospital School of Nursing, and Mrs. Eunice M. King, director of Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing.

Included in the curriculum for the one-year course are: general biology, human anatomy and physiology, general chemistry, freshman English, elementary foods and nutrition, principles of sociology, family health and general psychology. In addition, Northwest Texas requires an elementary course in microbiology which may be taken at Amarillo College the second term of summer school following completion of the year at Wayland according to Mrs. King.

On completion of the nursing program at either hospital qualified students are encouraged to return to college to complete requirements for a B. A. or a B. S. degree with majors in such fields as window by the concussion. Sally Trivino, aunt of the dead children, was in the house at the time of the explosion but was unhurt when the blast occurred. She rushed outside to search for her small son. Unable to find him, she entered the burning house to search further. It was then that she received severe burns when her clothing and hair ignited. The child, incidentally, was outside the house and was unhurt.

There were nine persons in the house when the explosion ripped it apart. Ten, mostly children, were outside the house. Willie Trivino, husband of the injured Sally, was away from home at work at the time.

Bailey County Sheriff Dee Clements reported that the kitchen area of the house bore the brunt of the damage, indicating that the explosion may have resulted when butane ignited at the cookstove.

"If elected, I will attempt to perform the duties of tax assessor-collector economically, and to the best of my abilities.

time in order to allow cotton to get maximum protection from the faster-growing sorghum, he pointed out. To emphasize the importance of this protection, Moore related that the only April cotton he was able to save under the extreme weather conditions of 1963 was cotton planted in this manner.

Micronaire average on interplanted cotton in 1963 averaged 4.3 as compared to a 3.3 average for cotton from the simple skip-row pattern, according to Moore. The secret to the higher micronaire is in the over-all maturity of the crop induced by higher growing season temperatures and the early season aid to growth furnished by wind and sand protection. To get maximum benefits from the temperature factor.

Irrigation
Moore irrigates only between planted rows, leaving blank rows dry. By not applying 58 degree irrigation water to the blank rows they are allowed to absorb and retain more of the heat from full sunlight. This heat is then radiated around plants at night, helping to keep ground level temperature up to the desirable 70 degrees or above. Also, the protection of the grain sorghum helps to keep wind from dissipating the available heat.

With only one post-planting irrigation, interplanting helped Moore to produce 74.8 bales from 35 acres with only 12 light spot bales and one full spot bale in the lot. Only two days were required to water the plot with one eight inch well, constituting a big saving in water expense.

Moore will elaborate on the subject at the April 21 meeting and also will speak on other points of interest to cotton growers.

Passing thoughts and shifting sands

Shortly after General Eisenhower assumed command of the allied forces in Europe during World War II he discovered he had three wars on his hands. They were the Crusade of Europe, the political war in America which was always flaring up concerning our government's war efforts, and lastly but not least extremely exasperating was the split command of the French military forces.

General Eisenhower in 1942 found the French Forces commanded by three men: Admiral Jean Louis Darlan, General Henri Giraud and last General Charles De Gaulle. The situation among these three men, each desiring full command, each envious of the other, had reached such a stage that oft times Eisenhower found himself serving more as a referee between Washington and the French commands.

The annoying command problem had flamed to where if one French commander posed with allied commanders in a news picture for the press, it was necessary for the other two French commanders each should receive equal publicity. Angry, President Roosevelt once in 1943, sent a message to the British Foreign Office to Eisenhower, "this is a military occupation and that General Giraud must do what Eisenhower dictates both politically and militarily". General Giraud was only one of the three French problems. Admiral Darlan being a navy man there were grave doubts as to whether the French Army would follow him. Too, there were suspicions that Darlan in his efforts to win full command, might climb on the first band wagon that came his way. There doubts as to whether Darlan could be trusted.

The arrogance of the three commanders were such that Eisenhower bitterly stated, "The French troops do not know which side their bread is buttered on". It even appeared in January, 1943, that it might be necessary to take over the civil administration of France in order to get the French high commands to settle down and fight the Axis. In December, 1942, Admiral Darlan had been shot by an assassin. This eliminated one command problem but only caused De Gaulle and Giraud to push their efforts to become commander in chief of the French forces. Eisenhower favored Giraud as the best man. The bitterness between the two French generals caused our own General Patton to remark, "It would take 60,000 Allied troops to occupy Morocco alone". He was speaking of occupation of all France in order that the nation might concentrate its armed forces on the enemy.

In June 1943, Eisenhower managed to get Giraud and De Gaulle to meet with him in Algiers. When Eisenhower pointed out that Giraud should be placed in command of the French Army, De Gaulle walked out of the room.

In April 1944 De Gaulle through political and military maneuvering finally gained control of the French armed forces. From that day to this De Gaulle has moved France always forward and in doing this he has many times turned his back on his allies and walked away — exactly as he did to General Eisenhower in June 1943.

De Gaulle, in pushing France forward to a nation of power, has disregarded World War I and World War II when France was reeling under the impact of German might. His arrogance and ego still shows in his determination to make France a world power. More so when recently he recognized Red China, knowing very well it was a direct slap at England and America, who twice pulled France out from complete destruction in two wars.

De Gaulle, in recognizing Red China, has made our load in Viet Nam indeed more heavy. In Viet Nam, United States soldiers have died fighting communism but this fact bothered De Gaulle not at all when he held his hand out to Red China. De Gaulle, while holding his hand out, may have one foot already in the communist bear-trap. He may have a hard time backing out of this deal. In welcoming Red China, De Gaulle has lowered himself to the same level as Castro. He too may look around someday and find his beloved France swarmed with communists, communists who want to bury him and France in the same grave with the United States and England.

Right now the United States should ask France, "In your efforts to become a world power do you intend to turn communism?" Certainly Russia has a right to look towards De Gaulle with interest and so has Castro. De Gaulle is pulling France through a mire of distrust to gain a policy of her own. Also De Gaulle is building France for war. De Gaulle has never got over the fact that France took two good beatings in World War I and World War II. France is like a prize fighter who is training better for the third round under the fight manager De Gaulle.

De Gaulle, who certainly considers himself a supreme military commander governs France with no conscience but his own. What is good for De Gaulle must be good for France. He once said, "I consider politics too serious a business to leave to politicians." In doing this, to move France ahead, he will use actions to suit his needs. If the outcome is bad he wants France strong enough to fight a war. He wants France to win that war without allied aid.

to meet with him in Algiers. When Eisenhower pointed out that Giraud should be placed in command of the French Army, De Gaulle walked out of the room.

In April 1944 De Gaulle through political and military maneuvering finally gained control of the French armed forces. From that day to this De Gaulle has moved France always forward and in doing this he has many times turned his back on his allies and walked away — exactly as he did to General Eisenhower in June 1943.

De Gaulle, in pushing France forward to a nation of power, has disregarded World War I and World War II when France was reeling under the impact of German might. His arrogance and ego still shows in his determination to make France a world power. More so when recently he recognized Red China, knowing very well it was a direct slap at England and America, who twice pulled France out from complete destruction in two wars.

De Gaulle, in recognizing Red China, has made our load in Viet Nam indeed more heavy. In Viet Nam, United States soldiers have died fighting communism but this fact bothered De Gaulle not at all when he held his hand out to Red China. De Gaulle, while holding his hand out, may have one foot already in the communist bear-trap. He may have a hard time backing out of this deal. In welcoming Red China, De Gaulle has lowered himself to the same level as Castro. He too may look around someday and find his beloved France swarmed with communists, communists who want to bury him and France in the same grave with the United States and England.

Right now the United States should ask France, "In your efforts to become a world power do you intend to turn communism?" Marina brings brothers from Lebanon to visit Smokers in Beirut, Lebanon favor American cigarettes over local brands.

And, like American smokers, they received a recent scare when the announcement was made linking smoking and lung cancer. They slacked off, and like American smokers, soon started puffing again.

Wages in Beirut are a little under the averages paid in the United States, but the cost of products is approximately the same.

Simon Marina, Morton business man and native of Beirut, recently returned to Lebanon and the Holy Land for a month visit.

Simon was accompanied to Texas by his brother, Joseph.

Joseph had never visited the United States before, but speaks perfect English with very precise enunciation.

"I've never been in the United States before, but I'm familiar with Texas. You built an oil refinery in Palestine in 1935."

Simon reported Joseph's impressions and ideas concerning the United States has always been based on his association with the Texans erecting the refinery in 1935 through 1941.

"Everyone is so earnest. So social. It was more than I expected," Joseph said.

The first view of Texas for Joseph was Dallas at night, as seen from an approaching aircraft. Simon reported Joseph's impression from an approaching aircraft. Simon reported Joseph's impression

April 11 date set for examinations for Peace Corps

Saturday, April 11 is the date of the next nation-wide Peace Corps Placement Test, the Peace Corps has announced. It will be administered by the U. S. Civil Service Commission in Room 16 A, Post Office Building at 8:30 a.m. local time.

It is not too late for people to apply for the Peace Corps and still get into one of the summer training programs, officials report. This summer the Peace Corps hopes to train as many as 6,000 men and women at approximately 55 colleges and universities all throughout the country. The intensive three-month training is required before trainees are finally chosen as Volunteers for overseas assignments.

The most needed skills are in the fields of agriculture, health, engineering, construction and education — particularly math and science teaching. Hundreds of additional skills have been requested, such as architecture, geology, economics and social work.

The required non-competitive Placement Test — which includes a general aptitude test and a modern language aptitude test — takes about one and a half hours to complete. Applicants with a knowledge of a foreign language is not a requirement for taking the Placement Test.

Applicants must be American citizens at least 18 years old. Married couples may apply if they have no dependents under 18. A college degree is not required.

If applicants have not already turned in a Peace Corps Questionnaire, they should bring it, completed, with them when they take the Placement Test.

All applicants must be American citizens at least 18 years old. Married couples may apply if they have no dependents under 18. A college degree is not required.

Le Fleur Garden Club hosted by Mrs. Baker

Mrs. Joe Gipson gave a program on "Art and Principals of Flower Arranging" at a meeting Thursday afternoon of Le Fleur Garden Club.

Mrs. Jack Baker hosted the meeting and served refreshments to Mrs. J. D. Glass, Mrs. S. E. Williams, Mrs. W. A. Wood, Mrs. Eugene Bedwell, Mrs. Willie Taylor, Mrs. Bill Cranford, Mrs. Gipson and Mrs. Carney Joiner.

"For the glory of France" are his words, yet he does not hesitate to pull down the glory of France to communist level. He wants France to have a policy even if it is the wrong one.

Someday De Gaulle may have his war and may find he will have to call on us for help in winning it. We will probably help him. We have won two wars for France. Why not a third one? After all American soldiers lie buried in what may become communist France. So with sarcasm and bitterness we watch De Gaulle.

was a statement, "It's a diamond on earth".

Joseph, an accountant for KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, will return to Beirut later this week.

When asked for comparisons between the two countries, after reporting so many similarities, such as industry, crowdedness, business wages, income taxes, and tourists, Joseph cited District Judge M. C. Ledbetter as contrast.

"In Beirut, I would not be drinking coffee with a public official like this. There, the city and district officials travel only with armed police escorts. They have friends, but they also have enemies."

"A person wishing an appointment with an official is required to wait days, possibly weeks before he can see the officer. Then, the official does not have very much time for the visitors. I see none of that here."

Joseph was also impressed with the manners and courtesy shown by the Customs Agents checking baggage at Houston International Airport.

"Beirut has no credit system such as that in the United States. We have banks, but personal checks are not accepted. The only checks honored are those from business house to business house. A person may have an individual checking account, but he cannot write out checks as you do in America. He must present his check at the bank that carries his account and get cash for his transactions."

Joseph also said the practice of sending merchandise to distributors followed by an invoice due in 10, 30 or 60 days was not practiced in Lebanon.

"A business man can get credit from distributors, but each transaction is separate. The men will discuss the date the account will be due, cost of the goods, and the buyer must sign a promissory note before receiving the goods."

Products of all countries are common in Lebanon, the brothers reported. No one country is prominent in any field, with the possible exception of German made automobiles. The most often seen cars are Mercedes and Volkswagens.

Simon spent 32 days visiting his native home, his first visit in ten years.

The rapid growth of the city of Beirut seemed to impress him more than anything, except his visit to the Holy Land.

Simon reported the airport, located ten miles from the city ten years ago, is now in the heart of the city.

An area on the seashore was isolate country ten years ago. Sons visiting the shore left the city before nightfall because of prowling wolves and the dark surroundings.

The area is a resort now, featuring sidewalk cafes, model tents and cafes, and is an important part of the city.

"Persons walking downtown forced to button their jackets, walk with their hands clasped over their heads, and push their way through the crowds," Simon said.

When asked why the brush of the jackets, he explained constant brushing of palms against the other would cause the coats to come off the wearer.

The great increase in the population was attributed to the atmosphere of Beirut and its international reputation as a major attraction. Persons from Syria, Iraq and Palestine flooded into Beirut since revolutions in their own countries.

After a week in Lebanon, Simon visited almost every major city in the Holy Land. His trip included stops at Jerusalem, Jordan, Jerusalem, and Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the tomb where Jesus was buried.

Simon visited almost every major city in the Holy Land. His trip included stops at Jerusalem, Jordan, Jerusalem, and Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the tomb where Jesus was buried.

The ancient remains of Jericho, the Dead Sea, and River Jordan were also visited. Simon reported he could get five yards of the River Jordan but was stopped by members of the Jordanese Army.

"The trip to the Holy Land about one week. I wanted to longer, but my time was up. I left each place with my behind me, after visiting the red and holy places," he said.

Tests show boll weevils survived Plains winter

Ground trash examinations indicate winter survival of boll weevil have been confirmed and sufficient weevils are alive to cause serious damage to the 1964 cotton crop according to W. L. Owen, Entomologist at the Texas Research and Experiment Station Center, Lubbock.

Owen continued, "The conditions before and after the winter are planted greatly in favor of survival and later weevil infestations, making it impossible to forecast weevil activity for 1964 with any degree of certainty."

Samplings were made both above and below the Caprock in areas where the weevil is in greatest numbers during the 1963 growing season. The results of a party of boll weevil researchers made possible by financial aid from area compresses and from Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. It is preparatory to an all-out fall spraying program to eradicate weevils from the High Plains before they become a major production hazard.

Now are in many areas in the High Plains. A total of 29 live weevils were recovered from examination of 182 yards of various kinds of trash with most being found in oak which harbored 24 of the weevils. Johnsongrass along a river yielded three weevils, one each was found in willow cover along a river bank and one in the tree leaf cover.

None of the live weevils discovered above the Caprock, Owen explained that looking for weevils on the thousands of acres covered is like "looking for the proverbial needle," and does not necessarily mean that weevils are not living above the Cap.

Additional information relevant to weevil overwintering will be yielded soon when inspection of 148 weevil "cages" begins. The cages were placed in likely locations above and below the Caprock last fall to test the weevils' ability to withstand High Plains winters. Some 200 locally collected weevils are being studied in each cage.

In early April "trap" crops of cotton will be planted to attract the first weevils to come out of hibernation and give a further indication of where he spent the winter, all of which will be valuable information in the boll weevil eradication program.

The program was decided upon by representatives from every county on the High Plains after leading entomologists who have studied weevils all over the cotton belt advised that the weevil is an ominous and very definite threat to cotton production on the High Plains. These specialists in boll weevil migration and wintering habits have said that this threat will continue to hang over farmers' heads regardless of weevil activity in any given year unless strenuous measures are taken to stop him.

The High Plains has committed itself to taking such measures in the form of fall "diapause" control, which consists of killing the weevil with repeated sprays immediately prior to the time he goes into hibernation. While Plains Cotton Growers is spearheading and working for the project, actual control and direction is in the hands of various committees organized late in 1963 for that purpose.

★ Eastern Star

Slated meeting of Order of Eastern Star at 8 p.m. April 7 in Masonic Hall.

Soviet secondary schools are graduating 1,500,000 students per year as against 1,300,000 in the U. S.

This week's favorite recipe was submitted by Mrs. Billy Foust. A simple to make and delicious sweet suitable for parties, between meal snacks or just about anytime.

Chocolate Treasures
 1 1/2 small packages chocolate chips
 1 can Eagle brand milk
 1/2 stick margarine
 melt together in sauce pan (do no boil)
 Add:
 1 cup flour
 2 cups pecans
 1 teaspoon vanilla

Drop by teaspoon on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for eight to 10 minutes.

Mrs. Foust, the former Naida Mae Coffman, is the elder of two children of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Coffman. Her brother, Stanley is 10.

Mac was born in Lubbock; attending the first three years of school at Neely Ward, transferring to Morton schools where she graduated in 1962.

In June of the same year she was married in a beautiful, formal ceremony to Billy Foust, with whom she'd gone "steady" since her junior year.

They are members of the First Methodist Church and parents of a small eight month old pixie, Connie Jo.

Nalda Mac has many interests but of late has devoted most of her time to the care of her baby daughter.

She bowls on a league, enjoys square dancing, reading and watching selected programs on TV.

Her "quiet" hobbies include needle point and fine beaded work. She is a member of the Woman's Society of Christian Service and Emea Smith Junior Study Club.

Mac plays the piano and hopes to soon find time to resume lessons on that instrument.

Mr. and Mrs. Foust and Connie Jo live in their own attractively furnished home at 508 Southeast Ninth Street. A brick house bought by Bill just prior to their marriage.

Cholera is the number one killer of hogs in the United States. The infections, highly contagious virus disease is nearly always fatal.

CWA, phone firm negotiations get under way again

SAN ANGELO — A meeting on Wednesday morning (March 25) between Communications Workers of America and General Telephone Company of the Southwest may lead to a resumption of contract negotiations.

Union officials requested an indefinite recess October 29 indicating that future talks would be based on results of CWA negotiations with General Telephone of California. An agreement between the California Company and the CWA was reached two weeks ago after a strike that lasted almost four months.

Contract talks between the Southwest Company and the CWA which represents 2700 bargaining unit employees in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico, began June 20. Anniversary date of the present contract was last July 21, but an evergreen clause has kept it in effect.

Frank A. Lennberg, director of personnel, is chief negotiator for the company, while Marvin Collins of St. Louis, Mo., a CWA representative is head union negotiator.

Other members of the company bargaining team, all of San Angelo, are D. E. Van Ness, G. T. Sims, L. L. Porter, W. H. Thomson, C. W. Howard, and Ted Seale.

Other union negotiators in San Angelo are B. J. Limmorth, president of the CWA Local 6180; Tony Sykora of Lubbock, Mrs. Billie Dawn Melton of Sherman, Charles Griffith of Dickinson, and J. W. Bishop of Brownfield.

Collins has indicated that today's meeting with the company could be called a "refresher meeting" — to see where we stand before we start negotiating again.

The candidates for office were presented by a nominating committee of Dean Weatherly, George Boring and Sid Saverance. No nominations were made from the floor.

Officers of the local Toastmasters will serve six month terms, allowing all members of the new organization an opportunity to serve as officers.

The purpose of Toastmasters International is self-improvement. Members are taught to express themselves better by giving short talks and critiquing talks presented by others.

Initiation fees for Toastmaster members of Morton were approved at $10 annually. Monthly dues of $7.50, payable in advance, include a meal at the weekly evening meeting. The club will meet in the Wig Wam at 7:30 p.m. each Thursday.

The constitution and by-laws were approved and the executive committee instructed to obtain a charter for the local club.

Four members of the Lubbock Toastmasters Club were guests of the Morton Club. The Lubbock Toastmasters conducted a model meeting, including the assignment of table topics, short talks, and critiques of the talks presented.

Table topics were assignments given members of the Morton Club by the Lubbock members. The men had a few moments to prepare their talks, and then spoke on the subject for two minutes.

Members of the Lubbock Toastmasters Club attending the meeting were Jimmy Holmes, Jim Haynie, Leroy Waggoner and Larry Curritt.

The organizational meeting on Thursday night was the third in a series to make the Morton Toastmasters Club a reality.

Haggard member of the Lubbock Toastmasters Club before moving to Morton, initiated the movement to Morton. He began correspondence with Toastmasters International and received permission to organize a club here. Haggard was aided in getting the club started by Dean Weatherly, temporary secretary of the organization. The nucleus called a meeting, temporary officers were elected and a steering committee appointed.

Minimum number of members in a Toastmaster Club is 20, maximum, approximately 40, with an average of 30. The Morton Club hopes to have 30 active members.

Commenting on the current projects, the advisors said preparation for marriage and stay in school activities have great appeals to members at this time. Surveys and interviews with marriage counselors and other adult advisors, and with couples who married while in their teens have directed attention to programs discouraging early marriage. Stay in school activities range from publicity campaigns proclaiming "drop outs are let nuts" to actual adoption and support of needy teenagers who would otherwise be forced to leave school.

Berta Dell Darland is bride of Larry Combs

Miss Berta Dell Darland wore a wedding sheath dress of white pique and lace with V neckline when she pledged vows with Larry Glen Combs last Thursday afternoon. Her shoulder length veil of illusion, fashioned by her mother, fell from a headpiece of cabbage roses enhanced with seed pearls. She wore white kid gloves and carried a bouquet of white rose buds surrounded by white mums, showered with satin lover's knots atop a lace covered Bible, gift of her niece, Shonie Sullivan. Something old and blue was a 37 year old silk handkerchief, which belonged to her maternal grandmother. She wore a single strand of pearls borrowed from her sister, Mrs. Jerry Ruzicka.

The wedding ceremony was held in the First Methodist Church with Rev. H. F. Dunn, pastor, officiating for the double ring service.

Traditional bridal music was provided by Mrs. Pegues Houston, organist.

Joan Clappitt and Jerri Holloway attended the bride as maid of honor and bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of mist blue boucle with matching pill box hats covered in blue tulle. Each carried a long stemmed white rose.

Sandra Dell Sullivan, niece and name-sake of the bride, was flower girl, she wore white with blue tulle headpiece and carried a basket of white pom-poms.

Mike Houston was best man. Butch Tucker served as groomsman.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Woodie Combs and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Darland, Star Route 2, Mr. Darland presented his daughter in marriage.

Guests were registered in the church foyer by Kay Hodges.

The bride's table was covered in white net appliqued with medallions of lace and seed pearls over blue. Blue satin runners on the table were topped by wedding bells and bore the inscription "Berta and Larry". A three tiered bridal confection, made by Mrs. Sullivan, centered the table. White sugared roses and doves decorated the cake with roses cascading to three heart shaped groom's cakes. Swans separated tiers of the bride's cake, which was topped with miniature bridal couple.

Punch was served from a crystal bowl. Mrs. H. D. Carroll, Mrs. Jessie Clayton, Melinda Hancock, Barbara Harvey and Jo Ann Wells alternated at the refreshment table.

For a wedding trip to New Mexico the bride changed to three piece aqua linen suit with white accessories, adding a shoulder corsage from the bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Combs is a senior in Morton High School. Her husband attended Morton schools. He is now employed by Bailey County Electric Co-operative.

DEEP SANDS GENERAL SOIL AREA IN COCHRAN COUNTY, TEXAS

Deep, sandy soils of our county are discussed by soil scientist

The third article concerning the soils of Cochran County depicts the deep sands. The deep sand general soil area occurs in the Southwest part of the county in two areas. One is a rather narrow band four miles wide south of Bledsoe. The larger area occurs as an almost continuous band along the south county line.

The deep sand soil association comprises the Brownfield and the Tivoli soils. The Brownfield soils have a sandy surface layer 14 to 36 inches thick overlying a red sandy clay loam subsoil. The Tivoli soils are nothing more than deep sands several feet thick. These soils were formed from wind deposited sands that were blown in about 60 million years ago.

Most of the deep sand area, which comprises about 75,000 acres has remained in rangeland. If properly managed, it produces good yields of tall grasses. Shrubs that have invaded this area include shin oak, sand sagebrush, skunkbush and yucca.

Sound range management practices require that grazing use be adjusted from season to season in accordance with the amount of forage produced. A good rule is to take half and leave half. The amount of forage available varies from range site to range site.

Range sites are kinds of country that differ from each other in ability to produce a significantly different kind and amount of vegetation.

All of the range sites common to Cochran County are discussed along with the numerous range practices that increase range production in the Cochran County Soil Survey report. It will be available in a few weeks through the local Soil Conservation District.

In recent months several portions of this deep sandy area have been deep plowed and put into cultivation. As mentioned earlier, the Tivoli soils lack a suitable subsoil for deep plowing. The Brownfield soils as surveyed in Cochran County are sub-divided into two phases. One has a surface layer 10 to 36 inches thick. The other phase has a 16 to 36 inch surface layer. Deep plowing is a practical mechanical operation to control wind erosion on the thin sandy Brownfield soil. It is a risky and non-practical operation on the thicker surface Brownfield soil. It is much better to have these deep sandy soils in their virgin native condition than to invest large sums of money into an operation that might be economically disappointing.

"HI DADDY"

"Hi Daddy! When are you coming home?"

How happy it would make our Heavenly Father if we responded to His voice in the same joyous manner that this little child has responded to his Daddy's voice.

Enthusiasm for God's Way would turn a greater number of people toward God and His love.

"I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord" (Psalms 122:1) would be a joyous response to God's command, "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together." (Hebrews 10:25)

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Easter Parade program at school highlights beginning of vacation

Judges were hard put Wednesday in selecting winners in the Easter Parade when fifth graders of Morton Elementary School presented an assembly program just prior to dismissal for the Easter holidays.

Skits were given individually and by groups. A playlet, "Easter Fires," under the direction of J. L. Cox, depicted the hill fires near Fredericksburg on Easter eve. The playlet was preceded by a story of the fires, narrated by Cox.

A quartet of boys imitating the "Beatles" in pantomime brought a hearty round of applause from a noisy and appreciative audience.

The Easter Parade, featuring everything from a gum chewing flapper to the space age, proved very popular. Participants in the parade concocted their costumes with great imagination and ingenuity.

Mrs. Connie Gray played piano accompaniment for the parade as well as the "Bunny Hop," group singing and other performances.

Roy D. Hill presented water award by state

AUSTIN — An official State Health Department certificate of competency has been earned by Roy D. Hill, assistant superintendent of the Morton municipal waster water treatment plant.

Signed by the State Health Commissioner and authorities of the Texas Water and Sewage Works Association, the citation was given to Hill after he successfully passed an examination designed to test his skill in plant management and his understanding of the work's importance to community health.

Under terms of the health agency's operator certification program, candidates for certification must acquire a certain amount of actual work experience, and must show a satisfactory record of attendance at state and regional short schools at which the techniques of modern plant management are taught.

Plant operators often attend schools at their own expense on their own time as a means of increasing their efficiency and enhancing their status as key community servants.

The schools are conducted under sponsorship of the State Department of Health, the engineering extension service of Texas A. M. University, and the Texas Water and Sewage Works Association.

TWSWA officials said recipients of the certificates are "credit to their communities and to the profession."
