First from county vying for title of 'Miss Texas'

The first Cochran County girl ever to have the opportunity to vie for the title of "Miss Texas" is deep in the heart of competition for the crown at the present time.

Miss Ruthie Ann Smith, of Morton, is competing in the contest under the title of "Miss South Plains" which she won while a freshman at South Plains College, Levelland. She is under the sponsorship of the Levelland Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Ruthie, who is five feet six inches tall with blond hair and blue eyes, is a 1970 graduate of Morton High School and daughter of Mrs. Ethyl Smith and the late Norman Smith.

Farm payments in sharp drop

Cochran County farmers are slated to receive an estimated $1.7 million less this year than last, under the present farm payment program, according to John W. Hall, executive director of the county ASCS office.

Main causes for the drop in support payments are the fact that there are no diverted acres in the feed grain program this year and the drop in price support and lower yield on cotton, Hall stated. With no diverted acres there is no diverted acre payment on feed grain and wheat and the price support on cotton in 1970 was 16.8 cents per pound as compared with a first payment of 15 cents per pound this year, he added.

Hall's actual figures for 1970 and his estimates for 1971 in the three categories of feed grain, wheat and cotton payments is as follows:

Feed grain—1970 price support and diverted acre payment total, $1,600,000. Estimated price support payments for 1971, $840,000.

Wheat—1970 price support and diverted acre payments, $7,790. Estimated price support payments for 1971, $3,600.

Cotton—1970 price support payments (there were no diverted acres) $3,906,949.00. Estimated price support payments for 1971, $3,000,000.

Preliminary payments for 1971 are being made on the basis of $1.20 a bushel for wheat, 29 cents a bushel for grain sorghum and 15 cents a pound for cotton.

Only a trickle of preliminary payment checks have gone out since mailing started July 1, Hall said, with only six farmers having received their checks by Tuesday. This is mainly due to late certification of their crops by producers, which in turn is due to the late spring and lack of moisture which caused late planting. The flow is expected to increase rapidly, however, with an estimated 250 checks expected to be mailed by the end of the month.

Danny Key, chairman of the Cochran County ASCS Committee, states that producer certification is the key to prompt See FARM PAYMENTS, Page 6a

Windmills sustained life in Plains

BY DAVID MURRAH

Few Cochran County residents need to be reminded of the problems created by too much or too little rainfall. This year's spasmodic droughts broken only occasionally by Noah-type floods have served only to remind us of the old West Texas adage — if you don't like the weather here, just wait a few hours; it's bound to change.

And if it's any consolation, the problem of rain, and/or the lack of it has been plaguing this region's settlers since the 1880's when the cattlemen first dared to brave the sand, wind, heat, cold and blizzards of our beloved Llano Estacado.

The earliest explorers of the plains region were often fooled by unusually wet years. When Captain Randolph B. Marcy trekked across West Texas during the 1850's, he reported that the country was very green and had plenty of fresh water others referred to the plains as "the Great American Desert," believing that the region would never support agrarian life. One writer predicted that the plains would not be settled within a thousand years.

The earliest cattlemen in the regions of Cochran and Hockley County soon found that the buffalo wallows and alkaline lakes were not capable of supporting large herds of cattle. Even the newly-developed windmill offered little help, simply because most of the early Cochran County ranchers lacked the capital to invest in the rather expensive wind-machines. Know the drug threat

(Fourth in a series)

Today's Subject: More Bad News for "Speed" users (METHAMPHETAMINES).

Last week we talked briefly about injected Methamphetamines commonly called in the jargon of the street, "Speed." You'll recall that the effects of using this drug, in this manner, were very disturbing to say the least. Now, more bad news about "Speed" has come to light. On Thursday, November 5th, 1970, it was reported by a USC Medical Center team at Los Angeles that as many as 20% of the youths who "shoot speed," (take it by injection), may develop a blood vessel disease that has been fatal in about 30% of cases detected to date.

It seems to be indicated the disease kills by blocking blood vessels in vital organs such as kidneys and the heart. This will be the first deadly disease of the system that doctors have found associated with drugs which are abused.

"Speed" is, as we have said, a form of amphetamine—the "pep pill" drug. Users inject it to get a quicker, higher response. According to one doctor, working with the study, persons who take amphetamines orally to control their appetite may possibly be in danger of acquiring the lethal blood vessel disease. There were eight doctors on the medical team which made the discovery, at USC, from the departments of medicine, radiology and pathology. Dr. B. Philip Citron, who headed the team, has a report appearing in the November 5th issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. In it he tells of extensive studies See DRUG THREAT, Page 6a

★ Plant clinic

A Sick Plant Clinic will be held Thursday, July 8, 1971 from 10.00 a. m. to 2:00 p.m. at the County Agent's office in Morton.

Scheduled to conduct the clinic will be Extension Service Specialists in the fields of Pathology, Soil Chemistry and Entomology.

County Agent Roy McClung stated that the clinic will be strictly informal and conducted on a come and go basis. The Agent went on to say that if anyone had something wrong with their flowers, ornamentals, trees, field crops, etc. to bring a sample with them and get an on-the-spot diagnosis.

The clinic is open to the public and all interested persons are invited to attend.

Prairie-Dog Mills

PROVIDED RANCHERS' LIFELOOD . . .

PRAIRIE DOG MILLS, as illustrated by Mrs. Evelyn Seagler, was a typical Slaughter windmill site located around the turn of the century. Some 25 such watering places were located on the vast Slaughter Ranch. Trees were set out at each of the locations about 1910. The Prairie Dog Mills sight, located a few miles east of Morton, served as a favorite picnicking site for several years. (Illustration from Cochran County Sketchbook.)

Whiteface students attend leadership camp in Missouri

Bradley Akin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Akin, Rt. 5, Levelland, and Diane May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl May, Rt. 4, Levelland, both Whiteface High School students, attended the twenty-fifth annual Co-op Youth Leadership Camp on the campus of William Jewell College in Liberty, Missouri.

They were among some 600 outstanding rural youth who attended the camp's four sessions and were sponsored by the Whiteface Co-op.

The camp program is designed to develop leadership abilities, to teach good citizenship, to increase understanding of farmer cooperatives and to provide plenty of fun.

Farmland Industries, with headquarters in Kansas City, are sponsors of this event. Youth at the camp were from fourteen Midwestern states which have farmer cooperatives that own and operate Farmland Industries, a regional cooperative manufacturing petroleum, feed, fertilizer and other farm supplies.

Campers arrived at William Jewell on Monday in time for registration, games and swimming. Tuesday morning they toured Farmland Industries facilities in the Kansas City area. From Tuesday afternoon through Saturday morning, they took part in regular camp activities ranging from athletics to group discussions. Campers themselves plan and conduct much of the camp program and even establish their own rules through their elected Camp Senate. Campers learn how a cooperative functions by organizing and operating a Co-op Canteen during their camping period.

MR. AND MRS. OLIN LEWIS of Whiteface have announced the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Gwen, to Gary Marlar, son of Mrs. Frances Marlar of Levelland. The couple plan to be married July 24 in the First United Methodist Church in Whiteface.

Conservation employ receives coveted award

Gordon Houghton was recently presented two awards by Soil Conservation Service Area Conservationist Arnel Scott. Houghton was awarded a safe drivers certificate and congratulated for driving two and a half years without having an accident on a government vehicle. Twenty-five miles of "heads-up" defensive driving. These miles were traveled in various other conditions and over roads where accidents weren't always the best thing to do.

Gordon was also presented a 30 year service award. The first five years of time was spent in the Army during World War II. Gordon started to work for SCS at Morton in September, 1963. He worked with many of the members of Cochran Soil and Water Conservation District on their terracing, irrigation, and other conservation projects.

Houghton has also worked with SCS employees in helping them get acquainted with the district and the needs of the land. His help has been instrumental in the development of employees to the extent that they have been able to attain promotions and advance to positions of higher responsibility.

Nursing home choice involves consideration of many factors

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a special series of articles featuring some of the mental health aspects of nursing homes — information that is of interest to everyone, but is of special importance to those individuals and their families who are considering and choosing a nursing home.) Mental health plays an important role in the lives of those in nursing homes and of their families and friends; and the mental state of a person and his family who are considering a nursing home is a most significant factor.

This is so because mental attitudes and the approach of the family and the individual to the nursing home can mean a great deal for the future happiness of both the person going into the home and his family.

Knowing some of the key things about life in nursing homes is, therefore, essential to developing the positive kind of outlook that can make the difference between happy stay in a home—and one of utter misery.

For example, the key figure in the lives of most residents of a nursing home is the administrator. He sets the emotional tone of their care and their surroundings.

Even the way the administrator looks and acts is a kind of model for the staff and is an influence upon the residents, too. If the administrator is cordial and helpful, the staff will tend to be the same. The residents will also reflect his cheerfulness and helpfulness.

Like the staff, the furnishings and decorations of a nursing home mirror the administrator's principles and practices of resident care. What the residents need are surroundings that are both stimulating and homelike.

Pictures are appropriate, and residents are more likely to feel most at ease with the kind of landscapes, domestic scenes, and flower pictures with which they have been familiar all their lives. Likewise, insofar as possible, they might be provided with the comfortable, homely kind of furniture they have always had.

Many, for example, welcome a rocking chair like an old friend. A clock, calendar, telephone, mail box, and the like help residents to keep in touch with the realities of time and the outside world.

If the administrator works along lines like these for his residents, chances are that the nursing home will be one in which living becomes a positive and pleasant experience for the resident.

Local election voting open to young voters after bill ratification

Persons 18, 19 or 20 years of age who are presently registered to vote in federal elections may now vote in all elections in the county and other political subdivisions according to notification from Martin Dies, Jr., secretary of state for Texas, to Cochran County Clerk Bob Vinson.

The 26th Amendment to the United States Constitution lowering the voting age to 18 in all elections has been duly ratified by the state legislatures as prescribed by the Federal Constitution. This United States Constitutional Amendment overrides Article VI of the Texas Constitution insofar as it requires an otherwise qualified voter to be 21 years of age to be eligible to vote.

Effective July 1, any registered 18, 19 or 20 year old may vote in any election—federal, state, county, city or other political subdivision.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS

From the Office of Roy L. McClung, Jr.

(Sixth in a Series)
(Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series of news articles on narrow-row cotton production.)

What special effects narrow-row cotton may have on insect populations are yet to be determined. Cotton insect problems are generally minor on the Texas High Plains where the move to narrow-row cotton production is gaining momentum.

"We began to study the effects of narrow-row cotton on insect populations only last year," points out Dr. Dale Bottrell, research entomologist at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock. "Our data are inconclusive to this point, but our long-range research program should uncover some definite findings. As expected, insect populations per acre were larger in fields planted to narrow-row cotton compared to cotton planted in conventional 40-inch rows. But, the insect population per plant appeared about the same."

Damaging populations of insect pests were not encountered during the study last year in the Lubbock area.

"We plan to expand our research project this year to include studies at two locations in the Rolling Plains," adds the entomologist. "Our greatest interest is to determine the influence of the narrow-row production system on boll weevil populations."

Narrow-row cotton may prove to fit into current schemes aimed at fighting the boll weevil, contends Bottrell. Since cotton produced in this manner matures earlier and allows for an earlier harvest, diapausing boll weevil populations may not build up so rapidly during the fall months. This would mean fewer overwintering weevils, the main goal of the High Plains Diapause Boll Weevil Control Program.

few of the cattlemen owned their grass land; most in the region belonged to 28 different counties in blocks of 17,000 acres or less.

Still, a few wells were drilled. One of the earliest located by the Surratt Ranch around 1890 was placed along Sulphur Draw, about a mile northwest of the present site of the Lehman gas plant, or about 14 miles south of Morton.

The Mallet Ranch is southwestern Hockley County utilized a horse-drawn mill near the county line south of Whiteface. By 1897, there were probably less than five windmills scattered across all of Cochran and western Hockley Counties.

That situation began to change rapidly after 1898. In that year C. C. Slaughter began to buy up a huge tract of land in the two-county area, and immediately set windmill crews to work.

Even before he had gained full title to some of the lands, he would order the men to work. Thus, from 1898 to 1910, 44 wells were drilled across the Lazy S pastures, at a cost of more than 50 thousand dollars.

The Slaughter wells generally were located about five miles apart. Usually two or three wells would be clustered around a single dirt tank. The tanks were dug by utilizing a horse-drawn Fresno scraper. Often, the sights chosen for the wells would be a natural buffalo wallow or sink. Eighteen tanks were dug that were supplied by two mills; three tanks had three mills each to furnish water. In all 25 different watering places were scattered all over the vast ranch.

But even the presence of many windmills did not insure an adequate supply of water. A hot dry summer characterized by no wind was the greatest cause for alarm. In the early 1900's a gasoline engine was installed at the headquarters southwest of Morton to be used to pump water during the dry seasons. But the little engine did little more than to furnish enough to keep the fish alive in the tank. However, during the years of the Slaughter operation, late summer rains usually relieved critical situations.

The summer of 1903 proved to be especially hot and dry in the region. George Slaughter, manager of the Lazy S, wrote his father in Dallas, "I have grey hairs in my moustache and one side of my face is grey and my eyes are strained on account of looking for the rains that never come." Such periods also created fire hazards on the wind-swept plains, and Colonel Slaughter required that fire guards be graded and maintained along the ranch's borders.

On very rare occasions, too much rain was a cause for mild anxiety. In the fall of 1905, Colonel Slaughter complained to a reporter that an excess of rain had put too much sap in the grass, making it easy susceptible to frost. Heavy rains also prompted loco weed growth on the ranch.

Because of the importance of the windmills, crews were kept in the field constantly keeping them in repair, and hence, the windmill roads became the standard ranch roads. Even the 1920's found most travelers following the maze of windmill roads as they would attempt to move through this area.

Some windmill sights served as line camps; others stood alone on the bleak prairies. Probably the most famous of the Slaughter mill locations was Prairie Dog Mills, located a few miles east of present-day Morton. Used as a picnic sight for years by early settlers, the tank, tree, and mills provided a refreshing break to the monotony of the flat plains.

Today, little traces of the scattered windmill sights can be found, but history should record that their blades spinning in the West Texas wind pumped lifeblood into the arid region of the western South Plains, and their existence helped create a future for everyday present-day resident of the area.

one of the highlights of the city of Muleshoe's July 4 celebration. The festivities were held the day after Independence Day this year as July 4 fell on Sunday.

Neutzler pitched a "ringer" (three points) on his last toss to go over the required 21 points for the match and the championship.

Other division winners in the mule shoe pitching competition held in the high school stadium were: Women's Division—Patty Pena, of Muleshoe, a teenager and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benny Pena; Junior Division—Johnny Nowlin, of Muleshoe.

Crowds estimated at 5,000 persons flocked into Muleshoe for the day-long round of activities that got underway at 6:30 a.m.

farm program payments. Producer certification, he said, means a program participant comes in to the County ASCS Office, designates his acreage on an aerial photocopy of his farm and certifies compliance with farm program provisions. Following certification, the data is computer-processed and the farmer's payment sent to the County ASCS Office which notifies him of its arrival.

"It's been talking about two weeks from certification to payment, so far," Key said. "This may stretch out a little as farmer certification data from throughout the country pours into the computer center, but probably not by more than a few added days."

Final certification date for cotton and feed grain is August 2. "That means that if a producer is to receive payment, he must certify at the County ASCS Office on or before August 2," Key said.

The preliminary set-aside payments, which were required by the Agricultural Act of 1970 to be made as soon as practicable after July 1, actually began immediately thereafter in Cochran County and many other counties around the Nation.

"These payments, which represent part of the total payments due farmers under the 1971 programs, are made to reimburse producers for the costs of idling productive cropland acres and to help assure an income return sufficient to maintain the productivity of U. S. agriculture," Key said.

The preliminary payment for wheat producers of $1.20 per bushel amounts to 75 percent of the estimated face value of domestic wheat certificates. The final face value of the certificate will be the difference of this year and the y-2 acreage? SEH ence between 100 percent of parity on July 1 of this year and the national average wheat price received by farmers from July 1 through November. Final payment reflecting the difference between the certificate value and the preliminary payment will be made after December 1.

Participants in the 1971 feed grain program are guaranteed a national average of $1.35 per bushel on production from half their corn base and $1.24 per bushel for grain sorghum. Cotton producers are guaranteed a national average of the higher of 65 percent of parity or 35 cents per pound on the acreage planted within the farm base acreage allotment.

for competition in the national contest, the Texas title carries with it many benefits in the form of scholarships, wardrobe, national-wide travel and many others.

The preliminaries to the Miss Texas contest began Wednesday and will culminate in the selection of the winner on Saturday night. Local television viewers may see it on KLBK, Channel 13, beginning at 10:15 p.m. Saturday.

Additional payment is due feed grain and cotton producers, they will be made for cotton after January 1, 1972, and for feed grains after March 1, 1972. If the preliminary payment proves to be higher than the full payment due a farmer, refund will not be required.

Set-aside farm program payments nationwide will be made to about 2,035,000 producers of wheat, corn, grain sorghum and cotton.

Levelland church slates religious production aimed at modern youth

The Wesley United Methodist Church of Levelland will present the Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" on July 18.

Two performances at 10:45 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. on Sunday, July 18, will be presented in the sanctuary of the church.

The folk rock musical is written by the author and composer of "Jesus Christ Superstar." The presentation of the Biblical account of Joseph's dreams in a modern musical style is the only known production in the entire southwestern United States area.

Life magazine (May 28, 1971) in commenting on the works of Rice and Webber said, "Because it is both secular and reverent, it has been embraced by many of the clergy as a way to reach youth. It has been played on Radio Vatican (the broadcast spokesman of the Catholic Church).

Members of many Levelland and out-of-town church choirs will combine their volunteer efforts with the accompaniment of instruments to present folk adaptation of the Bible's teachings to mankind.

Admission is free to both of the performances. The public from the entire West Texas area is encouraged to attend one of the two area productions; done on 14 patients; four of them died and one is now near death. Eight of the 14 were males and six were females.

Most of those who died succumbed to heart failure or kidney failure, due to the blockage by scar tissue of blood vessels within those organs. Autopsies showed small intestines also were severely affected. It is hoped that the discovery will hasten the removal from the market of amphetamines which reportedly have "very little therapeutic value." LSD is also suspected as cause of the same blood vessel disease.

One interesting case, a woman patient involved in the study had been taking pills a day, originally prescribed to control her diet. The dosage for that purpose is two pills a day. It seems this is a startling example of how diet pills, used under a doctor's prescription in the beginning, can get completely out of hand quite easily. In my first letter I mentioned that the purpose of these "letters" was not to pin the blame for the drug problem on anyone. However, one can hardly consider all available information on the subject without coming to the conclusion that adults have been misusing drugs for many years now and have been so doing certainly contributed to the spread and increase of the practice.

Have you checked your medicine chest lately to see what dangerous drugs it may contain? Do you know exactly what drug you keep in the house and whether they are potentially dangerous in the hands of children or young people? How would you feel if one of your children became involved with the misuse of drugs and you found it all started with something you found in your medicine chest?

We are discussing facts, friends, and considering all possibilities. That is why some unpleasant subjects are likely to come up during our consideration of the national drug problem.

Be with me next time. I think you'll find the subject of deep interest and if you are concerned about drugs I know your reading time will not be wasted.
