FIFTEEN CENTS

Others heading more families in county

LEADING THE CHEERING FOR MORTON HIGH SCHOOL this coming year will be (front row) Nola Bowley, Rayma Hall, Tammie Baker, Diana Kuehler, Susan Cadenhead, and (top) Raylene Wells.

Well below national average

In Cochran County, as in most other parts of the country, more families are headed by women than ever before.

In the absence of husbands, for one reason or another, they have taken over the responsibility of earning a living, maintaining a home and bringing up their children by themselves.

In 1970, when the last census was taken, it was found that 66 local families, amounting to 5.1 per cent of the total, were headed by women.

Since then there has been a general increase throughout the country, according to a sampling survey made by the Department of Commerce.

In Cochran County, as a result, it is estimated that the proportion is now approximately 5.9 per cent.

Elsewhere in the United States, by way of comparison, the average is 12.4 per cent. Among the white population it is 9.9 per cent and, among the black, 34.0 per cent.

There are now over 6.6 million families headed by women, 1 million more than in 1970.

Why the sudden increase? The Institute of Life Insurance has an explanation for it.

It states that in 1968, for example, being widowed (46 per cent) was the principal reason for women moving into the leadership role. The second was divorce or separation (44 per cent).

Today, divorce or separation has jumped into the lead (50 per cent), well ahead of widowhood (37 per cent). The number of

FLOYD F. ROWLAND

Prominent pioneer

succumbs Tuesday

One of Cochran county's earliest pioneers and a man who established a list of "firsts" for Cochran county and Morton, passed away in Lubbock Tuesday.

Floyd F. Rowland, 74, who has served the city and county in several capacities and was currently engaged in farming, died at 11:50 a.m. Tuesday in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock after a brief illness.

Services will be held at 3 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Paul McClung, pastor, officiating.

Interment will be in Morton Memorial Cemetery under direction of Singleton Funeral Home.

A native of Eulogy, Texas, Rowland moved to Cochran County in 1920. He registered the first deed for farmland in the county and ginned the first bale of cotton. He was the pitcher on Morton's first baseball team, served as a commissioner for the county and operated the first funeral home in Morton. He was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Rowland was in the hardware business for many years and was engaged in farming at the time of his death.

Survivors include his wife, Levie; two sons, Floyd A. and Tracy, both of Morton and five grandchildren.

Official 1974

one half of '73

Just to make it official, here is the latest count on the 1974 cotton crop as reported by the Texas Department of agriculture last week. It is the smallest upland cotton crop produced in Texas since 1946. The 1974 crop totaled only 2,462,000 bales. This is only 53 per cent of the 1973 total.

Harvested acres are set at 4,400,000, down 15 per cent from the 1973 acreage. Yield per acre fell to only 269 pounds per acre; this compares with 431 pounds average production in 1973.

Indications for 1975 are that acreages will be down a million from 1974. The value of the 1974 crop is down 60 per cent from 1973. Cotton prices in 1974 averaged 35 cents per pound, compared with 46 cents per pound in 1973.

Cottonseed was an exception. That part of the cotton crop in 1974 averaged $120 per ton, which compares with the $93.50 per ton average in 1973.

Nationwide, the 1974 cotton crop is estimated at 11,540,100 bales; this is 11 per cent below the 1973 crop.

June, 1775 saw first steps toward organizing a Continental Army

Two hundred years ago in June the Continental Congress took its first military steps to defend the colonies. Fighting had already begun, but the troops and the financial support came from the individual colonies.

On June 10, 1775, John Adams proposed in Congress that the colonies besieging Boston be organized as a continental army and that a general be appointed. Adams argued strongly that the general should go to George Washington of Virginia.

The first action of Congress in this direction was the authorization of borrowing 6,000

British pounds with which to purchase powder for "The Continental Army," a term used for the first time. The plan to borrow was abandoned shortly thereafter when another plan to raise money was adopted.

On June 14 Congress resolved to raise six (later changed to ten) companies of riflemen from Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia. They were promptly dispatched to Boston to aid the militiamen already besieging the city.

The next day the proposal to appoint a general as commander-in-chief was adopted. George Washington was unanimously elected to the post only after his insistence that he would serve only for his expenses but for no compensation. After eight years of service he submitted records of his expenses totalling 24,700 British pounds.

At the time of his appointment Washington was 43 years old. He had already achieved military prominence for his activities on the frontier, especially during the French and Indian War. During the ill-fated attack on the French at Fort Duquesne (now Pittsburgh) in 1754 led by Lord Braddock, Washington was the only officer to emerge with a greater reputation.

He had taken a leading role in colonial affairs for some time and was well-known throughout the colonies. However, his military knowledge was from limited experience that in no way guaranteed the qualities of leadership now demanded of him. Even though a few people questioned his ability for such a task, he seemed the most likely candidate. Although it may have been somewhat exaggerated, the statement of John Adams that "upon him depend the liberties of America" may well have been more true than Washington himself cared to admit.

In Spanish Texas the residents moved from Adaes were very unhappy about their new status. They refused to accept the new land provided for them and petitioned the governor for permission to return to the northeastern frontier. They requested that they be allowed to return to a location relatively near the old settlement of Adaes because the new location was not satisfactory.

Although the petitioners were sincere in their wishes, they were probably spurred on by Gil Ybarbo who had a ranch in the vicinity of the proposed new settlement. He had most to lose from abandonment of the frontier, but he also recognized the danger to Spanish control if the frontier were actually abandoned. Donald W. Whisenand, history professor, Eastern New Mexico University.

Weather Banquet

An appreciation supper for the Cochran County Weather Watch will be held today at 7 p.m. in the County Activity Building.

Decorating Tips

By Linda Forrest, Designer
Hardwood Institute

OUT OF THE PAST

"Something old, something new" doesn't necessarily have to be a bridal phrase—it could refer to one of the hottest furniture trends around today: period decorating. Period decorating combines the graceful and beautiful old style lines out of furniture history with new construction methods and updated technology.

Fine reproductions of period furniture are manufactured today with close attention to authentic detailing. The fine hardwood used in the originals, for example, are used today in the reproductions—woods like cherry, mahogany, maple, oak, walnut and other, more exotic ones, like rosewood, yew and satinwood for dramatic inlay work.

The 18th century French style of Louis XV furniture is enjoying a renaissance of popularity right now, timed for the Bicentennial and reflecting a desire for the flavor of the past when life was more carefully paced and people had the time and the inclination to enjoy the beauties of decorative arts.

The curved line is the most distinctive element of Louis XV styling: cabriole legs ending in a small volute or whorl; chair backs that are oval, medallion or cartouche shaped; shaped chair arms set back on shaped seats and resting on shaped arm supports. It is impossible to feel hurried or hurried in a Louis XV room—its curving lines create a restful, peaceful setting.

The use of hardwoods is an integral part of the beauty and grace of Louis XV styling. Chair and sofa frames, which are almost always visible, are noted for the continuity of their curves and the warm richness of the wood, usually beech, walnut or cherry. These hardwoods are chosen today, as in the past, for their workability into curves and combine both strength and grace. The wood may be painted, gilded, lacquered or waxed in the natural wood color.

Tables, chests, cabinets, armoires and other case goods, will feature the elegance of marquetry and inlay work. Louis XV pieces will show delicate carvings, fancifully designed in asymmetrical motifs. For authenticity, look for them to be made of mahogany or cherry.

And as with all hardwood furniture, care of this elegant style is easy. All it needs is semi-annual waxing with a paste wax followed by a buffing and frequent dusting. If necessary, hardwood furniture can be cleaned with a non-oily furniture polish, or given a sponge bath with mild soap and water.

Any questions on hardwood? Write to Linda Forrest, Hardwood Institute, Suite 1422, 551 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

Single women heading families also increased, going from 10 per cent to 13 per cent. More and more, as a result, children are being brought up by their mothers alone. The Census Bureau reports that 14 per cent of children in the United States under the age of 18, or 1 out of every 7, are now being raised by their mothers. In Cochran County, according to the latest Government figures, 14 of the families with females heads have children under 18 and 10 of those have children under the age of 6. The changes in household composition and family structure are attributed to such factors as changing attitudes toward marriage and toward separation and divorce. Better job opportunities for women has also been a factor.

Who'll Be First?... Here's The Address... Roasting Ears, Sorghum, Corn, Watermelons.

June means a lot of things to a lot of people, and to the cotton industry, June is the month for the first bale of 1975 cotton to be ginned. The bale is produced in the Lower Rio Grande Valley during the month of June. And while Valley farmers are waiting for the first bale of cotton, other cotton farmers throughout the state are planting their 1975 crop. Cotton farmers are also looking for signs to better days for cotton. And some cotton industry spokesmen are seeing rays of hope ahead. For example, they point to reduced cotton acreages in this nation and abroad, which they say will lower the projections of carryover for cotton. But the best sign is the economic recovery. Some economists believe the recession has bottomed out, and that the economy - including cotton - will begin showing improvements during the latter part of this year.

The textile industry has been especially hard hit by the recession, but indications are that better and brighter things are in store in the coming months.

Meanwhile, cotton planting for the state is now more than 50 per cent completed which compares favorably with last year's schedule. Some fields, as usual, will have to be replanted due to hail and floods.

Cotton acres in Texas this year are expected to be down a million from 1974 plantings.

HAVING TROUBLE in getting your brucellosis indemnity payment? If so, here is the address or telephone number you need to contact: Texas Animal Health Programs Office 702 Colorado Street Austin, Texas 78701

The telephone number is: Area Code 512 397-5551.

Eradication efforts relating to brucellosis are being intensified. Only about one per cent of the nation's herds of cattle are infected with the disease. Federal authorities are now embarked on a program to eradicate the disease as soon as practical.

A report from the Texas Animal Health Commission revealed recently that brucellosis infection in the state was at a level of around three per cent in herds tested.

Indemnity payments are offered to assist livestock producers in financial relief from losses caused by brucellosis-infected cattle. Because of lack of information on reporting forms, some indemnity payments are running behind schedule.

If you need information as to how to apply for indemnity payments or the procedures you need to follow, you can get the correct information by contacting the above address or telephone number.

JUNE IS ALSO A TIME to enjoy fresh produce from Texas farms. It's roasting ear time in the southern part of the state. In the Coastal Bend, watermelon and tomato harvest are underway.

IS THE CHURCH PART OF YOUR LIFE?

Batter up!

There are times when you just know you'll get a hit - until you swing and miss that third strike!

Success is never certain in this world - even to the fellow with confidence written all over his face.

Frequently, achievement comes with giving your best when you're not convinced your best will be enough.

Religion cannot guarantee success to any man.

It promises all men the spiritual impetus to realize their best.

When you come to church next Sunday, you'll gain a deeper understanding of your virtues and of your faith.

Such understanding - with God's help and God's forgiveness - inspires us to give our best to every challenging opportunity.
