SEWER PROJECT — Floyd County manager Bill Feuerbacher and electrical engineer Quinton discuss the city's planned power line and substation construction. Colwell and the councilmen were optimistic that the project could be completed within budget and on schedule.

City Keeps Tax Rate, Raises Sewer Rate

Taxes, sewer and sanitation rates and electric power were high on the list of priorities at the Floydada City Council meeting Tuesday night.

The councilmen decided not to raise the property tax rate, keeping the old rate of 53 cents per $100 valuation.

Sewer and sanitation rates, however, took a noticeable rise for the coming year. The councilmen set the business sanitation rate at $6.50 a month for four pickups, with additional service at $1 for each extra pickup.

Business and residential sewer rates also took a decidedly upward turn, averaging more than a 30 percent jump. The business sewer rate went from $3 a month to $5, with a $1 extra charge for each additional restroom in the establishment.

The council raised the residential sewer rate from $3 a month to $4, with a $1 charge for each additional bathroom in the residence.

After consultation with Quinton Colwell, an electrical engineer, the council authorized bids for materials and construction of new electrical lines and a power substation for the city.

The $308,000 that has been allocated for the project should be ample to finish the project, Colwell told the council, and there should be no problem, despite rumors, in getting the materials for the construction.

Colwell said the construction would be timed so the power line would be completed at about the same time the new substation comes into service. The length of line necessary, he noted, was a quarter mile less than earlier expected, resulting in a small cost savings that would probably be offset by inflation.

The city could possibly arrange to purchase power from other local electric companies while the line and substation are under construction, Colwell suggested.

The council awarded a contract to the Vulcan Sign and Stamping Co., of Foley, Ala., to supply 300 variously sized stop signs and 33 yield signs for city streets. Vulcan turned in a low bid of $3,869, beating out proposals from companies in Arlington, Hearn, Dallas, Bloomington, Ill. and the Texas Department of Corrections at Huntsville. The city will pay for the signs with a $5,000 grant from the state.

In conjunction with the sign purchase, the council authorized city personnel to buy poles to mount the signs. The poles must be paid for by city funds. City manager Bill Feuerbacher noted that some of the old poles could be converted to meet the new specifications.

Adolfo Garcia met with the councilmen to ask that a city ordinance requiring a minimum of 45 days to pass between carnivals be amended to a 30-day period. Garcia said that, with the amended ordinance, more carnivals could be scheduled in the relatively short fair season when the migrant and farm populations are at their greatest.

"We could make more money and provide more work if there was only 30 days between carnivals," Garcia said. Only two carnivals regularly schedule events currently in Floydada.

Bill Feuerbacher suggested that it was perhaps not the scheduling of events that has lowered attendance.

"It's not the time of the carnival, but the times we're living in," he said. "You just don't make as much money on carnivals as you once did."

The council deferred a final decision until the Catholic Church group and the Lions Club discussed the situation.

"I don't think the council would object (to changing the ordinance) if both groups agree," said Mayor Parnell Powell.

After inspecting the ordinance in question, city attorney Bill Kincaid informed the council that the members could make special exception without changing the ordinance.

The council also agreed to hire two school crossing guards for the city. One guard will be posted at 8th St. and Houston Ave., serving the Duncan School, and the other guard will be stationed at 2nd St. and Jackson Ave. for students at the Andrews Ward School.

The pay for the guards was raised from $2.65 to $2.90, the new Federal minimum wage.

Mayor Powell received authorization to sign a letter of credit for the $132,000 Department of Housing and Urban Development housing block grant to rehabilitate substandard dwellings in Floydada.

Once the grant has been awarded, according to city manager Feuerbacher, the city will accept approximately 40 applications for assistance under the rehabilitation grant. Of those applications, 17 will be chosen for aid to update their homes.

The council agreed to pay a one-fifth share, or $490, toward a new emergency medical service radio system for Floydada and Lockney ambulances and hospitals. The Federal government approved matching funds of $13,350 for the project.

After conferring with building official Dorr Blasingame, the council approved adoption of the Uniform Building Code for 1979. Some changes were noted in the new code, but none reportedly were major.

The council also agreed to negotiate with Pioneer Natural Gas Co. for purchases of natural gas for the power-generating station.

In final business, the councilmen rejected a proposal to join the Texas Public Power Association. The TPPA is attempting to form a coherent structure in Texas to represent member communities before the Public Power Commission. The councilmen decided that there was no problem with zones of authority as regards service, so there was no need to join the Association.

Floydada School Board Votes No Tax Increase For 1979-80

The Floydada School Board voted Tuesday night to adopt the proposed budget and to set the tax rate at $1.20. The $1.20 tax rate, set originally in 1977, represents no tax increase for the second year. Administrators and trustees were able to absorb rising costs due to spiraling inflation and lost revenue due to decreased student population and homestead exemptions granted by recent legislation. However, they do foresee future tax increases in order to maintain a quality education in the Floydada school system.

Capital improvements approved in the 1979-80 budget include the addition of PE facilities at R.C. Andrews Elementary and renovation of the High School Cafeteria to include a snack bar. Representatives of Tusha Builders and Hallmark Builders met with the board to discuss their bids and building plans for the proposed R.C. Andrews PE facilities. The contract was awarded to local builder Walter Davis at a bid of $39,975.

In other business school trustees employed Mrs. Linda Lee Stark and Mrs. Frances Elaine Gee as teachers in the migrant program at Duncan Elementary. Federal and local aides for all campuses were hired.

Behner and Company CPA firm was selected as auditors for the coming school year.

The depository bid from First National Bank of Floydada was discussed and the depository contract was awarded.

Revenue Sharing Funds 'Tight' Judge Smith Warns Groups

Judge Choise Smith warned that the revenue sharing funds will be tight for other projects. There will be no excess, but we'll take suggestions for the remainder.

the commissioners readjusted their specifications to lower the cost.

"With the jail costs being higher," Smith told the group, "the revenue sharing funds will be tight for other projects. There will be no excess, but we'll take suggestions for the remainder."

In addition to the jail remodeling, the commissioners already approved $60,000 for heating and air conditioning at the courthouse. The jail and courthouse projects account for more than $360,000 of the available $388,272.

"There are things we need more than a place to lock a man up," the judge said, "but the state came in and insisted that we update the jail." He noted that the improvements would include facilities for juveniles, women and drunks as well as the emergency life-saving equipment.

Representatives from the Floyd County Museum, the Senior Citizens group and the Friends of the Library, among others, were on hand to state their cases and to present their petitions for funding.

The judge praised the civic and community groups for their work and promised to do the best he could to meet as many requests as possible.

Judge Smith defended the commissioners' decision to allocate the major portion of the revenue sharing funds to the jail and courthouse projects, saying that it was possibly the last opportunity to get outside financing for the work. The revenue sharing program, he noted, was in danger of being cut off next year. "We've already lost the lateral road fund," he said.

"We don't want to raise taxes, we're trying to hold them down," Judge Smith said, but the projects must be paid for somehow.

The judge will present his recommendations to the various groups at the special commissioners meeting Aug. 21. The commissioners will also sign the jail construction contract on that date.

In regular business at the Monday meeting, the commissioners approved a motion by Grigsby Milton that the county pay 20 cents a mile to the county Sheriff's Dept. on the understanding that each deputy and sheriff hold their mileage down to less than 2,500 each month.

Former DPS patrolman Bill Dawson received approval from the commissioners as a special deputy for the Sheriff's Dept. There will be no cost to the county for Dawson's services.

The commissioners transferred $60,000 from the Road and Bridge Fund to be divided among the precincts. Each precinct will receive $16,500.

The commissioners also transferred $20,000 from the General Fund to the Permanent Improvement Fund, and another $20,000 from the General Fund to the Officers' Salary Fund.

The court approved a motion by Bob Jarrett to accept H.R. Bundock's $225,531 bid for general construction of the Floyd County Jail. A time limit of 240 days and a 5 percent bond were stipulated.

Also accepted was a $54,630 bid from the Willo Products Co. for detention equipment. A 45-day time limit and 5 percent bond were stipulated on that contract.

In final action, a motion by Judge Smith to establish a Child Welfare Board and put $300 a year into the Child Welfare Board Fund died for lack of a second.

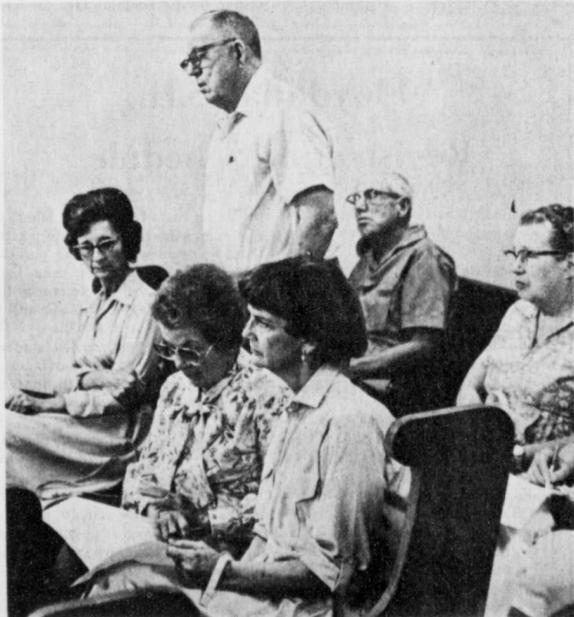

THE COMMISSIONERS — Floyd County commissioners listen Monday to the requests by local groups for part of the revenue sharing funds.

THE MAN IN THE MIDDLE — Floyd County Judge Choise Smith must work up a proposal for dividing the available money among the organizations petitioning a share.

THE CITIZENS — Members of various civic organizations take their turns applying for a limited amount of funding for projects this year.

achievement. 4) Know that losers realize quickly they have little support. Sympathize with the pain felt in defeat, and admit that winning would have been more fun. However, do not promote the "win-above all" feeling — that only makes the pain of losing more severe. 5) Know that children link performance with self-esteem, even when winning or losing has equal importance with other aspects of the game.

Because of that, don't laugh off poor performance when your child feels bad about it. Let him talk about why the event and his part in it were so important. Above all, don't put him down about his performance — you are attacking his self-esteem. 6) Know that sports can contribute to the social, emotional and physical development of your child at a vulnerable period of his life — especially with your interest.

CCC Loan Information

The effect of additional off-farm income on an individual's tax liability situation should also be considered in income management. Such income may affect one's social security tax liability and future social security benefits.

A related concern is whether or not the off-farm income will enable one to "income average," says Lovell. Unless off-farm income offsets a poor yield or commodity price situation, income averaging may be necessary. On the other hand, a taxpayer may not qualify for income averaging if there is no off-farm income. Regardless, a taxpayer should compare this year's developing income situation against last year's in managing one's income tax liability. The economist encourages producers to consult a tax accountant or attorney regarding business details.

Sunlamp Safety

Practice sunlamp safety to prevent injury from misuse, cautions a consumer information specialist, Claudia Kerbel.

Ms. Kerbel is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Injuries usually occur when people do not follow the safety instructions that come with sunlamps, she points out.

They fall asleep under the lamp, fail to use the timers or goggles, or try to tan too quickly with long exposures.

Long-term or repeated exposures to ultra-violet radiation, even gradual tanning which does not burn, can make skin age prematurely. Skin becomes wrinkled, leathery, mottled or discolored. It may also increase the chances of skin cancer.

SUNLAMP PRECAUTIONS
To reduce the hazards when using a sunlamp, Ms. Kerbel recommends these precautions:

Always use a timer — preferably a sunlamp which comes with an automatic timer that shuts off the lamp at a set time.

Be wary of taking certain drugs when exposed to sunlight or sunlamps.

Drugs that can increase a person's sensitivity to ultra-violet radiation include sulfas, tetracyclines, some tranquilizers and certain drugs used in treating health problems such as high blood pressure, rihworm and mature onset of diabetes.

Measure the distance between the closest part of the sunlamp and your body. Be sure that you are not closer to the lamp than the recommended distance.

Do not stay under the lamp beyond the recommended exposure time.

Do not use the lamp more frequently than recommended.

Protect your eyes — they are vulnerable to ultra-violet radiation.

A severe burn to the eyes can scar the cornea and permanently impair vision. Just looking directly at a sunlamp for a few seconds can cause a painful but temporary condition called photokeratitis.

A sunlamp should come with a pair of goggles or other eye protection. Be sure to buy and use these devices if your lamp is not so equipped.

Do not use a sunlamp if you are especially sensitive to the sun. People who have fair skin and freckle easily are more likely to get burned.

Be especially careful after replacing an old sunlamp bulb with a new one.

As sunlamp bulbs wear out, they may give off less ultra-violet radiation.

As you start out with a new bulb, take shorter exposure times than you would have with the old one because the new bulb may be considerably stronger.

Avoid taking hot showers or saunas before using a sunlamp.

When you dry off your body after a shower or sauna, you will remove some of the natural body oils that would have absorbed some of the ultra-violet rays. This oil removal will leave you more sensitive to the effects of radiation.

If you see any tanning or reddening during the exposure, turn off the lamp immediately. It should be at least several hours after exposure before any tanning effect is visible.

Colleen's Question

This Argument Going Nowhere

Dear Colleen:

My boyfriend and I had an argument we hope you can settle. If a couple go to a party together, isn't it assumed they have a date and are not interested in getting picked up? My boyfriend says "yes" — I say people aren't that smart.

Quarreling

Dear Quarreling:

If you ask me, and you did, I'd say the two of you should find something better to fight about. How you act gives others a clue to your relationship and its meaning.

If you're thinking about retiring, chances are good that some of your considerations have to do with social security.

Keep in mind that before you can get retirement checks, you must have credit for a certain amount of work covered by social security. The exact amount depends on your age. You earn credit in one-quarter year units called quarters of coverage. The quarters need not be consecutive.

Time Management—

A Plan And Four Ideas

TIME MANAGEMENT — A PLAN AND FOUR IDEAS

A plan and four ideas make "time management" at home reality.

A plan means setting priorities — deciding which tasks are important.

Any plan will work with the help of four ideas: do major work "piecemeal," leave some for the last minute, delegate some to other people — and use willpower.

Willpower is for sticking to the plan — without feelings of guilt about any free time gained.

PIECEMEAL WORK

Do a major project piecemeal by attacking it in portions.

It makes the task seem lighter, and it avoids waiting for large time blocks for the entire job.

Also, the "piecemeal approach" helps get "dreaded" work started — use the first little time frame just for beginning a task.

Here's how the "piecemeal" idea works — on range and oven cleaning, for example:

FIRST DAY — Just to get started, clean the range surface. Spend as little time as possible on it.

SECOND DAY — Clean the broiler pan or start it soaking.

THIRD DAY — Work on the oven interior.

LAST-MINUTE WORK

Work left for the last minute will take less time than "regularly scheduled" work, so plan disliked tasks for "the last minute" — when only a small amount of time exists.

For example, dusting just before company comes will take less time than dusting on a regularly scheduled "cleaning day."

"DELEGATED" WORK
Delegate some of the work to other people — and share the workload.

Since homemaking is non-competitive, perfection is not necessary or required.

For example, let children clean their rooms.

If their work is less-than-"perfect," learn to accept their contributions.

USE WILLPOWER

One real trick to time management is learning not to feel guilty for gaining control of time.

Time management requires willpower — to stick with priorities once they are set.

Think Safety!

Safety First When Cooling Off

A Service Of Underwriters Laboratories Inc.

Trying to beat the heat this summer? If your plans include cooling off with a portable electric fan or a window air conditioner, Underwriters Laboratories Inc. (UL) reminds you to take time for a safety check before you use the appliances.

Your electric fan should have guards or enclosures which are securely fastened. Grill openings should be small enough that someone's fingers, especially a child's, cannot accidentally contact a moving fan blade. Testing for these potential hazards is just part of the investigation conducted by UL engineers before a fan qualifies for Listing by UL.

Other precautions for the safe operation of your portable fan include:

- * Reading and following the manufacturer's safety and operating instructions.
- * Checking for frayed cords or broken plugs.
- * Placing the fan on a level, stable surface.
- * Positioning the fan and cord so that they won't be bumped into or knocked over by people walking through the room.

Before installing your window air conditioner for the coming season, check for any cracks or deterioration in the power cord insulation or exterior enclosure. If water gets into the air conditioner, it could result in a short circuit or other electrical damage. UL Listed air conditioners are tested for water resistance to rainstorms, but damage can occur to the units through age and use.

If your air conditioner requires a 220 volt electrical line, make sure you carefully follow the manufacturer's instructions for correct installation. Never tamper with the plug or wiring to try to get the unit to operate from the standard household wiring. If new wiring is needed, have it installed by a qualified electrician in accordance with the National Electrical Code.

By following these suggestions, UL hopes you will have a cooler and safer summer.

Cut Your Utility Bill In Half --

With Fans

CUT YOUR UTILITY BILL IN HALF — WITH FANS

Toss out your air conditioner and cool off with fans? Absurd?

Not if you want to slash your utility bill in half in some Texas areas.

Air conditioning accounts for up to 50 percent of all home energy used in some areas of Texas, says Dr. Jane Berry, a housing and home furnishings specialist.

Fans save money, and they provide comfort, she says. You can use them as "helpers" to your air-conditioning system — or in place of it.

Dr. Berry is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Here are two types of fans to start with — in deciding which will do the best job in your home:

CIRCULATING FANS

Circulating the air inside the home makes you feel cooler because it speeds up evaporation of moisture from the skin. These fans "help" air conditioning — or work alone.

Fans for this job include standard table-top fans, "box" fans that sit on the floor or a flat, steady surface, and the old-time ceiling fan.

VENTILATING FANS

Use ventilating fans

without air conditioning — they need open windows.

Fans that ventilate do two things: they exhaust hot, stagnant indoor air to the outdoors, and they bring cooler outside air into the house.

They're most effective at night — or at times when outdoor air is cooler than air inside the home.

To use a ventilating fan, place it in an open window and seal up space around it. Also, shut windows near it for maximum drawing power. Then open a few windows on the opposite side of the area to be ventilated — that may be just one room or the entire house.

WHY FANS?

Texas is rediscovering the fan.

Many Texas residents already report that using the "right" fan lets them run air conditioners at higher settings — or simply turn them off — and still stay comfortable.

Research says that a fan makes an air-conditioned room feel six to eight degrees cooler.

Fans use only about 150 watts of electricity or less, while a typical room air conditioner uses about 860 watts.

Cool and Refreshing Ham and Fruit Salad Is Right for Summer

Ham salad never tasted so good! That's what they'll be saying after the first bite of Mandarin Ham Salad. This deluxe version, fit for a party or dressed up family meal, combines strips of ham with pineapple chunks and mandarin orange segments. Miniature marshmallows and cooked rice add flavor and texture interest while sour cream and mayonnaise pair up for the smooth, creamy dressing.

For economy and convenience, make this summer salad a bonus follow-up for a Sunday ham, suggests the National Live Stock and Meat Board. There are a variety of hams to choose from including bone-in, semi-boneless, boneless and canned. Or buy a "fully-cooked" ham slice and cut it into strips for the salad.

Mandarin Ham Salad

- 3 cups thin strips cooked ham
- 1 can (13½ ounces) pineapple chunks
- 1 can (11 ounces) mandarin oranges, drained
- 1½ cups miniature marshmallows
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- ½ cup mayonnaise
- 2 cups cooked rice
- Lettuce
- Toasted coconut, if desired

Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Combine pineapple with mandarin oranges and marshmallows. Combine ¼ cup pineapple juice with sour cream, mayonnaise and rice. Toss together all ingredients. Serve in lettuce cups. Sprinkle with toasted coconut, if desired. 6 servings.

Solar Energy

by Jon LaBaume
District Conservationist
SCS

Did you know that one of the great miracles of solar energy is the way grass uses the sun's rays to produce livestock forage?

It's a complicated process called photosynthesis. But what it boils down to is the fact that grass produces food in its leaves with the help of sunlight.

And — generally — the more leaves a plant has, the more grass it can grow if the season and moisture conditions are favorable.

But if livestock graze off most of the leaves, the plant has a hard time using solar energy to grow grass.

That's why ranchers need to leave at least half the leaves on their better grasses year-round.

It's called grazing half and leaving half.

When buffalo roamed the rangelands of Texas, they would graze an area, then move on. Several weeks later, they would come back and graze the same land again.

So the grasslands of Texas evolved while being grazed occasionally by buffalo, then rested.

If you are interested in improving your rangeland, remember the way buffalo would graze it a while, then rest it a while.

And a good way to do it is to use what range scientists call a planned grazing system. With such a scheme, pastures are alternately grazed, then rested in a carefully designed sequence.

They are not easy to plan, but once you get them going, they work.

For information on how to improve rangeland with a planned grazing system, contact the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service at Floydada.

Make It Easy

For easier clean-up, lightly oil your measuring cup before measuring honey, molasses or other sticky liquids.

Pick Your Pork

Choosing pork over beef means you pay less per pound but, to get best value, choose your pork wisely. Look for cuts with a relatively small amount of fat over the outside with the meat portion being firm and grayish pink in color — and with a small amount of marbling.

Fortified

Don't shy away from a reasonably-priced skim milk because you think it lacks vitamins. Most lowfat and skim milk is fortified with both Vitamin A and B, and there's about 90 calories in an 8-ounce glass.

NEWS OF WORLD ART

U.S. To See Priceless Hermitage Art Collection

Americans will soon have the opportunity to view more than 400 major works of art from the world famous Hermitage Museum in Leningrad, and never set foot off home soil. An exhibition, entitled The Hermitage of Leningrad: Doorway to World Art, will open in Washington, D.C., at the National Gallery of Art in May, 1980, and tour four other cities in the United States.

This priceless collection is the largest and perhaps the most valuable exhibition ever to leave the Soviet Union. The show has been negotiated with the Soviet Ministry of Culture by Control Data Corporation, a Minneapolis-based company. It is being organized by the Minneapolis Institute of Arts with the National Gallery of Art and the Fine Arts Museum of San Francisco. Among the treasures spanning many centuries Americans will be seeing for the first time are paintings by Rembrandt, Titian, Rubens and other masters. There will be icons, rare drawings, tapestries, glass, furniture, and recently discovered artifacts from ancient cultures. The Hermitage Museum in Leningrad is actually comprised of five separate buildings, the famous Winter Palace and four satellite buildings. If you wanted to see these works in their original settings, you'd have to take a seven-mile-walk through 1300 rooms and 300 halls. After the National Gallery opening in Washington, D.C., the Hermitage art collection will continue on its history-making tour through New York, Minneapolis, San Francisco and Detroit.

LIGHT UP

Now you can change the mood of your dinner party with a flick of the switch, without leaving the table.

A new chandelier, now on the market, includes not only uplights for general room lighting and downlights for illuminating the eating area, but built-in dimmers as well.

A "first" in home lighting, the Halo Lite-Trend chandelier in the Heirloom Classics Series that graces this dining room has its own built-in dimmer.

This means you can have the room brilliantly lit for a sparkling dinner party and then dim the lights on the spot without interrupting the conversation. Those who want to sit around the table comfortably and just chat can relax in an appropriate setting.

If you want to create a romantic air, you can turn the dimmer down low. If you're one of the more practically-minded hostesses, the built-in dimmer makes it easy to hide the dinner remains without getting up to put away dirty dishes.

The Sporting Life

A good soak in a hot tub can be the perfect remedy for the tired, aching muscles associated with strenuous sports activity—especially when there's baking soda in the water. A half cup or more of Arm & Hammer Baking Soda in a tepid bath actually conditions skin, leaving it feeling naturally smooth, soft and clean.

AMERICA'S HERITAGE

HIGHLIGHTS OF AMERICAN HISTORY

For more than 200 years, Marines have served America well.

Since before the United States was a country, back in 1775 our Marine Corps has been protecting our people and our reputation at home and around the world. "From the Halls of Montezuma (which the Marines occupied in the Mexican War of 1846 to 1848) to the Shores of Tripoli" (which our Marine Corps helped clear of pirates between 1801 and 1815) tells not half the story. In every quarter of the globe, under every conceivable adverse condition, the United States Marines have been found: with the Navy, with the Army, with foreign soldiers, sailors and Marines, but more often, alone, protecting American lives and interests—often without causing any international complications.

In the 1800s, Marines protected Americans in the Caribbean, at the Falkland Islands, Sumatra, off the coast of West Africa and in the Orient. In World War I, the Marine Corps distinguished itself on the battlefields of France and between the wars, the Corps developed the doctrine, equipment and organization needed for modern amphibious warfare. The success of this effort was proven on Guadalcanal, Bougainville, Tarawa, New Britain, Eniwetok, Kwajalein, Tinian, Peleliu, Guam, Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

Marines have aided in evacuating Americans from such places as Cyprus, Cambodia and Viet Nam. Our Marine Corps is now 190,000 strong and after more than two centuries of faithful and often heroic service, the need for a ready and effective Marine Corps appears to be more evident than ever.

Men and women who feel they have what it takes to contribute to this long and illustrious history can get free information about becoming Marines by calling, toll free, 800-423-2600. Those in California call, toll free, 800-252-0241.

NEWS OF HEALTH

With today's interest in generic drugs, consumers should be aware that there are some illegally marketed drugs available for sale. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently issued a warning to people who take the prescription diuretic pill furosemide—primarily older people suffering from heart, kidney or high blood pressure problems. The FDA advised these people may be taking "illegally marketed tablets that could be ineffective and, therefore, harmful to patients who need the drug."

The FDA cautions patients taking furosemide—there are an estimated 2.1 million, 80 percent of them over 60 years old—to be sure the name Hoechst or Lasix is on the other side of the tablet and Lasix is on the other. Hoechst-Roussel, the only manufacturer lawfully marketing furosemide tablets, sells it under the trade name Lasix. FDA advises patients taking furosemide tablets that do not have the name

Hoechst on one side and Lasix on the other should ask their pharmacist for a replacement. People who are unsure whether they have the right product should see their pharmacist or physicians.

The manufacturers that illegally marketed tablet versions of the drug have suspended marketing. Although many pills have been seized by the government, unknown quantities remain on the market.

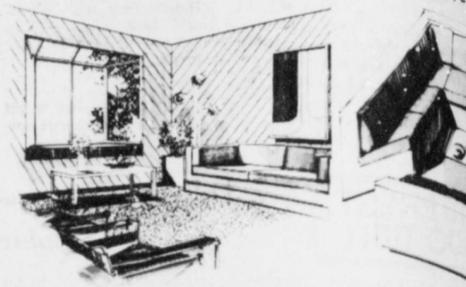

The FDA advises: Be sure you're taking the right prescription diuretic.

Diuretics help the body eliminate fluids. The FDA believes the likely cause of the problem with the illegal

Great Possibilities For Your Home

NEW DIRECTIONS FOR OLD INTERIORS

BEAUTIFUL PREFINISHED PANELING, combined with a built-in bookcase, can give your living room a charming outdoor feel.

Time for a big change in the interior of your home? If so, one of the quickest ways to transform a room is to cover the walls with a beautiful, easy-to-maintain prefinished plywood paneling. The warmth and texture of wood paneling can revitalize the entire room—without changing any of your furnishings!

Paneling may be applied directly with panel adhesive and nails on existing walls that are even and solid. On uneven walls, you must put up furring strips spaced 16" on center horizontally and 48" vertically. These are 3/8" x 1 7/8" plywood strips or 1 x 2 lumber.

Place the bottom furring strip half an inch from the floor. Leave half an inch of space between the horizontal and vertical strips for ventilation.

Fasten panels with size 6d finishing nails spaced 8" along edges and 16" elsewhere. Most paneling may be applied directly to studs, but a half-inch gypsum board backing is strongly recommended.

You can achieve any look with paneling, from modern to textured or rustic. To get an idea of the variety of panelings available, you might want to visit your local Georgia-Pacific registered building materials dealer. There you can see rustic real wood panelings with deep textures, like G-P's Barnplank and Oregon Trail. Elegant softwood and hardwood-veneered panelings will give your room a more formal appearance.

There are many styles and colors from which to choose. If you have time and prefer a hand-crafted, contemporary look, you may want to cover your walls with solid lumber boards placed diagonally, or in a herringbone pattern. The diagonal pattern isn't too difficult since cut ends can be concealed with moldings.

The herringbone pattern is more challenging, whether boards meet in a miter or butt against vertical dividers. The joints must be perfect! You might place the dividers, or narrow battens, as covers over the joints: an asset since it adds a three-dimensional lumber-edge-machined touch. For example, tongue and groove fashion—is best for eliminating gaps. If you use material, you'll find kiln-dried 3/4" V-Bam lumber sold since it comes to 12" and 20". While you're walking, you may build your own sofa of two lengths that resemble a conversation piece. Cover the same paneling the walls. Use or made-to-order ber pads and ottomans.

Frames must construct them 2 x 4 pine, with glue and nail. If you want a built-in sure to use plywood studs the seat pads. For more ideas, write for back "Great Possibilities For Your Home" from Georgia-Pacific, S.W. Fifth Ave., Oregon 97261. For complete details, call 1-800-368-3688.

Farm Management --

Income Tax

Managing farm and ranch income properly is vital to managing one's income tax liability.

Dr. Ashley Lovell, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, emphasizes wise management of all types of income during the current tax year.

Often livestock sales can cause problems in income management, says Lovell.

In 1977 and 1978, many Texas cattlemen were forced to sell excessive numbers of breeding livestock because of the drought. Normally, any gain realized would be recognized for income tax purposes. However, due to forced sales caused by the drought, if replacements are purchased within two years of the year of forced sale, producers can defer paying tax on the gain.

"THRIBBLES"

GASSER. This is not a knee slapper on Hee Haw. It is the term for a commercial well that produces natural gas.

DUCK'S NEST. A standby tank or pit used to hold extra drilling mud or the overflow if mud should be displaced from the well by a blowout.

HALF SOLE. When a section of pipeline becomes corroded, it can be patched with a half sole. The patch, cut from a pipe of the same diameter, is securely welded over the defective section.

Oilmen say 'fourbles' top 'thribbles' every time

HOUSTON, Tex. — In today's complex world, every business has its own terminology. The oil business is no exception, and the language of the modern oilman is particularly colorful. It is not that so many of the words themselves are uncommon, but the meanings they have taken on in the oilfields give an interesting flavor to the oilman's speech. Aminol USA, Inc., a subsidiary of R.J. Reynolds Industries, Inc., offers the following listing of some of the more colorful terms.

CHRISTMAS TREE. Saint Nick wouldn't recognize this variety. It is the assembly of fittings and valves that caps a completed well. It controls the flow of oil from the well to storage tanks or pipelines.

FIREFLOODING. Although it sounds like a contradiction in terms, it refers to another way to increase production of heavy oil. Oil deep underground is ignited and fed large amounts of air. This heats and thins nearby oil and provides pressure to move it to producing wells.

LIGHT ENDS. Not what weight watchers hope to achieve after dieting. They are the more volatile products of petroleum refining, such as gasoline, propane and butane.

HOT FOOTING. The application of heat to the lower extremities . . . of a well. Involves installing a heater at the bottom of an input well to thin heavy crude oil and increase its flow to nearby producing wells.

CRUDE. An individual who is crude is often said to be unrefined. In the oil industry, crude refers to oil that is unrefined. It is oil just as it comes out of the well.

JOINT. It is not a funny cigarette. It is a section or length of steel pipe or casing from 20 to 30 feet long. Joints are added one at a time to drive the rotating drill bit into the earth. The string of pipe is pulled up out of the hole in sections of two, three or four joints.

ROUND TRIP. Describes the voyage of a drill bit when it becomes dull and has to be changed. It is painstakingly pulled up out of the hole — 2, 3 or 4 joints at a time — changed and returned to the bottom. A round trip can take more than 24 hours for very deep wells.

SPUD. No relation to the starchy tuber for which Idaho is famous. To oilmen it is a verb. To spud a well is to begin drilling.

HIGH. Has nothing to do with joints. Has everything to do with the uppermost part of an inclined geological structure deep underground where the possibility of finding oil is considered to be the greatest.

DUSTER. Feather dusters and oil field dusters have something in common, both are dry. A duster is a dry hole, one of the 47 out of 48 wildcats that doesn't find oil or gas.

LESSEE. Not the contraction for "let me see," as in "lessee now, where was I?" A lessee is the company or individual that, under the terms of a lease, is entitled to drill and operate an oil or gas well.

"CHRISTMAS TREE"

STRIPPER. Of course it's not an ecchysias. A stripper well pumps (or "strips") oil from a reservoir. The standard definition of a stripper is one that produces less than 10 barrels of oil per day. With average daily production for the 500,000 oil wells in the United States at 16 barrels of crude per day, we have many strippers. By contrast, in the Mideast, the average well produces 5,500 barrels per day.

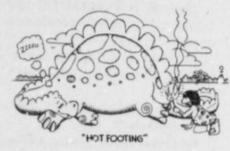

WILDCAT. When is a wildcat not a wildcat? When it is an exploratory well drilled in an area where there has been no previous oil production. About one wildcat well is 48 finds commercial deposits of oil or gas. At $3 million per wildcat in an area like the Baltimore Canyon, it is an expensive gamble.

THRIBBLES. They are not the cute little creatures from Star Trek. When drill pipe and tubing are pulled from the well two joints at a time, they are called doubles. Oilfield logic then designates three joints as thribbles. Yes, four joints are called fourbles.

Tools For Homeowners

Home Improvement, Safety And Economy
PLAY IT SAFE AND SAVE

In this era of escalating costs, more and more people are doing it themselves with tools ranging from a hammer and screwdriver to power tools.

To make home repair pay, you've got to be able to do it for less, and do it with safety. It's no fun — and it can be costly — to unnecessarily injure yourself while doing that odd job around the house or apartment.

Organize! If you have a screwdriver in a kitchen drawer, a saw in the garage or basement and a pair of pliers in the car, valuable time will be lost looking for the tools you need to do the job. And as confidence and skill grow, so does your arsenal of tools. So create a place-for-everything place for all your tools.

You don't need a lot of tools — just the right ones. For example, the Weller Mini-Shop, one of the tools by Cooper The Toolmaker that include Crescent, Lufkin and Nicholson, is a power unit with accessories to do almost every job. To the Weller Model 601K, you can attach everything from drill bits and brushes to sanders and grinders.

As with any power tool, there are basic safety rules to follow. Most important, power tools should be grounded to avoid electric shock. Use only three-wire cords that have three-prong grounding-type plugs and three-pole receptacles. Replace or repair damaged cords.

Here are some other basic safety tips:
* Keep work area clean.

Do-it-yourselfers can avoid doing themselves in if they follow some safety precautions.

Clutter causes accidents.
* Use safety glasses. A face or dust mask is also a good idea if the job calls for it.

* Use the right tool. Don't force a small tool or attachment to do the job of a heavy tool.

* Don't abuse cords. Never carry a tool by the cord or yank it to disconnect it from a plug. Keep the cord away from heat, oil and sharp edges.

* Secure work. Use clamps or a vise to hold the work in place. It's safer than using your hand, and it frees both hands to operate the tool.

Keep tools sharp, clean and properly serviced for best and safety performance.

Hints For Homeowners

HOME IMPROVEMENT, SAFETY AND ECONOMY

Fluorescent Lights
Whenever practical, use the efficient fluorescent lights in place of incandescent lamps, suggests a housing and home furnishings specialist.

One 40-watt fluorescent tube provides more light than three incandescent bulbs, yet uses less electricity, reports Pat Seaman with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Frozen Juices

Use frozen concentrated juices within two or three days after opening and reconstituting them, recommends Gwendolyn Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Baby Talk

It's never too early to talk to children — even tiny babies need this, says Patricia Lamson, a family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The more children hear, the more they learn, she points out.

Question: Something nutty happened the other day when I was roasting almonds on a glass dish in my microwave oven. The dish got very hot. Did I do something wrong?

SHELL OUT PLENTY OF NUTS for roasting or freshening in a microwave oven.

Answer: Normally, glass utensils and the ceramic floor of the oven do not absorb much microwave energy. However, home economists at Whirlpool Corporation point out, if small loads of food or foods with very little moisture are greatly overheated in a microwave oven, the utensil may get hot and even break.

This can be prevented by cooking food according to the time and food quantities given in the cookbook. Smaller amounts of food will cook faster. Be especially careful when drying, roasting, or freshening items like bread, crackers, potato chips or nuts.

We made enough money from our yard sale to buy bright colored table cloths to go on our dining tables. They make the dining room look so homey and nice. We would like to thank Randy Hardin of Beall's Department Store for the discount he gave us on our table cloth's.

Everyone at the home would like to thank Mr. Walter Gabler and E.H. Richie of Vernon, Judge Balch of Seymour and Wes Adams of Floydada for the watermelons they gave us. They were enjoyed by the resident for several meals.

Mrs. Willie Stambough is home from Lockney General. It's nice to have Willie back home and feeling better. However, we have three residents still in Caprock Hospital. Mrs. Anis Franks is improved. Mrs. Molly Jones was feeling much better Sunday and Mr. W.C. Cates is resting comfortably.

We cancelled our bus trip Wednesday because there was only one resident who wanted to go.

Thursday we had a large number of residents play bingo and we had lots of fun. Clara Williamson won big with four games. Mr. James
