Attends Fighter Pilots' Reunion

Vernon Parker Remembers The 'Eagles'

Customers who walk into Vernon Parker's photography studio in downtown Floydada may be surprised, when they read the yellowed newspaper articles and faded photographs that decorate his inside wall, to discover that the soft-spoken photographer who now fills his days taking wedding and graduation pictures, was once a member of one of the most celebrated fighter pilot squadrons of the Second World War.

The Spitfire airplanes he and his 240 American comrades flew in the dark days of 1940-41 when Britain had her back to the sea and her defenses were being assaulted by the German war machine are now relics of older, less remembered glory. The once young and dashing heroes have blended back into the society that a third of them died to defend.

But this year, as in years past, the former pilots gathered to remember their fallen friends and their deeds in the skies over Europe. This month, the members of the three Eagle Squadrons, the pilots who joined the fight against Nazi tyranny before America was dragged into the war, held their annual reunion at San Diego, Calif. And once again, Vernon Parker relived the past with men who shared its making.

Parker saw more than his share of combat action, during the Battle of Britain.

"I went over in June, 1941," he remembered. Before transferring to the regular U.S. Army Air Corps eighteen months later he was credited with downing a Fokke-Wolfe 190 fighter, a Junker 88 bomber, half a kill on another aircraft, three locomotive engines, numerous anti-aircraft positions and canal barges.

"But the worst time of all," he said, "was when the Germans tried to move the battle cruisers Prince Eugen, the Gneisenau and the Scharnhorst from Brest to Norway."

"It was the worst kind of weather. There were seven different layers of clouds all the way down to the sea," Parker remembered.

"Our mission was to attack the planes escorting the ships. I flew five sorties that day. When we came out of the clouds, the ship's guns opened up on us--we never got near the escorting planes."

The fire got so bad that the Eagle pilots resorted to making their runs between the ships so the naval fire couldn't be used against the Allied planes without hitting German ships.

Parker was one of the lucky ones in that war.

"I got hit several times but never got shot down," he said. "I had four planes shot up so bad they were useless, but I managed to bring them all back to the field in England. They used to kid me--'get one more plane and you'll be a German ace,'" he recalled, smiling.

On one mission, he risked a court martial to bring in a plane that had a wing about to fall off. The cannon mounts caused stress on the wings and occasional failure, he said. By bringing the plane back in, even though disobeying orders to parachute out if trouble developed, British engineers were able to redesign the wing to eliminate the problem. Parker was the first to make it back to base with a damaged wing.

Pointing out the faces on an old photograph of the squadron, Parker listed the dead and how they met their end. This one was hit by ground fire, that one shot down in a dogfight. Another simply peeled off the returning formation one day and fell into the English Channel. The turnover rate for Eagle pilots was 85 percent.

"Some men got shot down before they unpacked their clothes," he said. "The average life span for a fighter pilot in those times was only 41 days."

"You get pretty close to people in situations like that," Parker said. "I lost five pretty good friends. We left Dallas with 33 men. By then end of the war, only three were still alive. Parker keeps close contact with the survivors."

"They called us hard-hearted Americans," Parker said, "because when we lost someone, we'd have a party with a drink sitting in the dead man's place." But they had to deal with death in their own way.

"You couldn't dwell on it," he said. "If you sat down and thought about it, you'd crack up." And some did crack.

When looking at the old photos, the visitor is struck by the youth of the pilots.

"I was 23 when we left the U.S.," Parker said. But those young men, as much as any regular Royal Air Force pilot defending the British homeland, were responsible for Winston Churchill's famous statement that "Never has so much been owed by so many to so few."

And the English people, Parker said, shared that opinion.

"You couldn't buy a meal or a drink or ride in a taxicab and pay for it," he said. The Britishers would refuse the Americans' money with the comment "you've already paid for it." Parker and his fellow Eagle pilots found that spirit still alive when they returned to England for the 1976 reunion.

The Eagle pilots received an unusual bonus at their San Diego reunion this year. Two former German pilots, who flew against the Americans over France and the Low Countries happened to be living in southern California and accepted an invitation to attend.

Hans Busch, now on German-language radio in San Diego, and Franz Joseph Schmidt, with General Dynamics, showed up to help the Americans celebrate their survival and to swap tales of the battles that the men fought against each other.

Schmidt, who was shot down by a British plane, was fond of commenting that he always thought it was an American in the pilot's seat, Parker recalled.

The uniforms and equipment now hang in museums around the world. The planes, Spitfires and Hurricanes, fly only on special occasions. And the pilots go about their business quietly and pretty much unnoticed. Parker takes his photographs and patiently answers questions about life in a simpler, if more turbulent time.

But as he steps from the studio and studies the clouds, there is a professional squint to his eyes, making it clear that he knows, more than any modern aircraft passenger, what it was like to be free in the skies and a hero to an entire nation.

Entomologist To Serve South Plains Area

A second area entomologist has been appointed by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to work with Extension agents and producers of the South Plains.

Dr. Raymond G. Thompson has joined the staff at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center here.

"Dr. Thompson will give key leadership to insect pest management programs of the major crops except cotton, in the South Plains," said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, Extension director, in announcing the appointment. "Insect pest management is a vital phase of crop production, particularly in such an intensified agricultural area as the South Plains, and we feel Dr. Thompson has the expertise to conduct effective educational programs in this area."

Thompson fills the vacancy left when Dr. William P. Morrison resigned to join the faculty at Texas Tech. Dr. James F. Leser is the area cotton entomologist at the Lubbock center.

Thompson has served as an assistant professor and Extension entomologist with the University of Tennessee for the past two years where he has been involved with pest control in major crops and farm-stored grains.

A native of Lea County, N.M., Thompson holds a B.S. degree from Eastern New Mexico University and a M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Arkansas, all in entomology. He was a graduate assistant and research assistant at the University of Arkansas while doing graduate work.

Rural Women Choosing Traditional Roles?

(Editor's Note: A recent Texas A&M University study claimed that rural women in Texas lagged behind their urban counterparts in adopting the expanded roles that are now open to women. Hesperian staffer Beth Pratt went on assignment to discover whether Floydada women agreed with this assessment of their status.)

by Beth Pratt

Are women in Floyd County still choosing the traditional roles of nurse, teacher, secretary and housewife? Is it true that the women's movement has made little impact on career choices for rural women, as sociologists, Dr. J. Steve Picou and Arthur G. Gosby of Texas A&M University, claim?

A talk with three local women, all housewives who combine careers with family responsibilities, focuses attention on some of the variables involved in their career choices.

Wanda Hickerson, office manager at Lighthouse Electric Cooperative since 1956, reveals that her father gave an emphatic "no" to her entering a nursing career.

"I liked being with people and always aimed at a career...I enjoyed math and was first employed as a bookkeeper," Wanda said.

Ms. Hickerson believes that the schools may fail to stress the other fields women can succeed in, but parents are instrumental in encouraging daughters to prepare for a professional or business career. Believing a woman should be independent, Mr. and Mrs. Hickerson stressed the importance of a college degree to their daughter. She was one of the few girls from her senior class to complete that degree. Subsequent events in their daughter's life have proved their wisdom Ms. Hickerson said.

One woman began working as a legal secretary. Her employer allowed her great latitude in working hours. She worked only during school hours and took summers off when her children were home. She is now the owner and manager of a business. In 1964 when she applied for her license, she received it in her husband's name. Asked if that would be necessary now, she is not sure.

She considers herself a two-career person and believes she is happier and healthier as a result. This business woman and her husband insisted that their daughters work summers during their teen years. The girls later thanked their parents for this opportunity, as it has been as great an asset when they were job hunting as the schooling they received.

Asked if the women's movement has had any effect in this community, she says that she senses a real change in people's attitudes regarding a woman's competence in the business world.

County librarian, Jackie Walls waited until her daughter left home to resume a career outside the home. In thinking about attitudes toward careers for women, she remembers that her father did not consider it appropriate for women to work outside the home. She believes that World War II had much to do with the change in attitude about working women.

"It became one's patriotic duty to take an outside job," says Jackie. Questioned about her feelings on careers for women, she acknowledged the importance of preparing for being a good homemaker, but does not see it as a career, but a part of life. "Men are not considered as having two careers simply because they are husbands," she says.

"I was always at home when my daughter was home, although I'm not sure now it was as important as I thought at the time. I don't regret those 25 years I spent as a housewife but the most important thing is having a choice.

The dissatisfaction comes when a person has no choice about whether or not to work outside. It is important to prepare yourself for a career other than homemaking."

"I enjoy being at home and I also enjoy the feeling of accomplishment I have through my job," Ms. Walls said.

Concerning women in traditional occupations, Ms. Walls believes there are fewer opportunities in the small town for jobs outside the nurse, teacher, secretary, housewife categories. "Women are also discriminated against in salaries...a janitor makes more than a skilled woman worker with the excuse given that he is head of a family. A man holding the same job as the woman would be paid a higher salary in Floyd County," she said.

Parental influence and expectations seems to have played a key role in the career choices of the women interviewed. Career counseling, as such, was not a part of the school program when these women were in school. Their daughters received more encouragement and counseling in this area, so changes are evident, though not so pronounced as in urban areas.

Next week will feature interviews with career women who have not combined marriage and career.

Rep. Stenholm Opposes Oil Windfall Profits Tax Bill

WASHINGTON D.C. -- Congressman Charles W. Stenholm voiced strong opposition to the Crude Oil Windfall Profits Tax bill Monday, saying he is convinced that the private sector would use the additional decontrol revenues to produce more crude oil and other energy sources domestically than the Federal Government could.

"Washington does not have a record of ever producing one barrel of oil or one cubic foot of gas with your tax revenues," Stenholm said in a statement issued from his Washington office.

"The Department of Energy's proposed budget authority and outlays for Fiscal Year 1980 is $16.4 billion, whereas the combined profits for the 24 largest oil companies in 1978 totaled $13.4 billion. More government regulation and higher taxes do not serve any useful purpose and only perpetuates the problem."

The Congressman also emphasized that the tax bill, recently passed by the House, is unfair to the royalty owner and the independent oil producer. "The approximately 28,000 land owners in the 17th District alone will pay their share of the windfall profits tax," he commented. "These monies should stay in the District, enhancing our own rural economy. To tax one specific group of people in this manner is inconsistent with any basic principle of fairness."

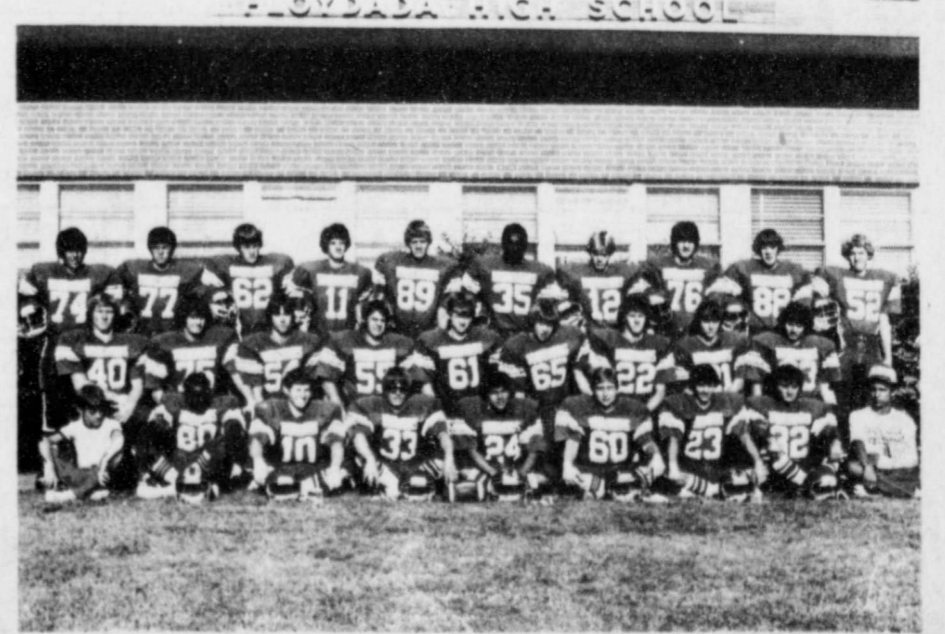

In addressing the problems of the independent oil producer, Stenholm said the tax would cripple the industry, "the one business that explores and finds most of our new fields."

"The independent producer drills 90 percent of the wildcat wells and finds 75 percent of the new fields," Stenholm pointed out. "This accounts for more than half of all the oil and gas reserves discovered. It is a proven fact that the independent producers during the last five years have re-invested more than 100 percent of their revenues in exploration."

"These extra funds come from outside private investors and from borrowed capital. No outside investor would put money into a wildcat well," the congressman continued, "knowing that if a discovery was made, part of the revenues would be permanently taxed away. The whole idea of crude oil decontrol is to stimulate new production incentives. Without an exemption for the independent producer, the windfall profits tax will counteract these incentives."

Stenholm, who opposed the recently passed tax bill, said he will continue to work for an exemption to the windfall profits tax for the royalty owner and the independent producer.

State Employees Could Qualify For Food Stamps

AUSTIN, Tex.—State Comptroller Bob Bullock Wednesday said that more than 100,000 state employees live on the fringe of qualifying for food stamps. "Payroll records show that nearly 60 percent of all state employees may be candidates for food stamps," Bullock said. He said that "these folks who are just a foot away from food stamps represent every kind of state job from carrying bedpans for our relatives in state hospitals to cooking for our kids in college cafeterias to guarding our criminals in prison." Bullock said his figures came from the actual May payroll when the average gross monthly salary was $963 for 81,000 classified employees, $882 for 8,500 hourly employees and $769 for 30,000 non-academic college employees. Or looking at it from another angle, Bullock said, 109,000 of the state's 170,000 employees had an average gross pay in May of $936—meaning that if the employee was the breadwinner in a "typical" family of five they would qualify for a handout. Of those, 58,000 employees had an average monthly pay of $642 and would qualify for food stamps without question, he said. "The hungry reality of these folks' paychecks is a far cry from the fatcat bureaucratic image that some people try to pin on state workers," Bullock said.

Small Acreage Owned By Foreign Investors,

The Texas Department of Agriculture this week discounted claims by the American Agriculture this week discounted claims by the American Agriculture Movement that foreign investors were making significant purchases of Texas farmland.

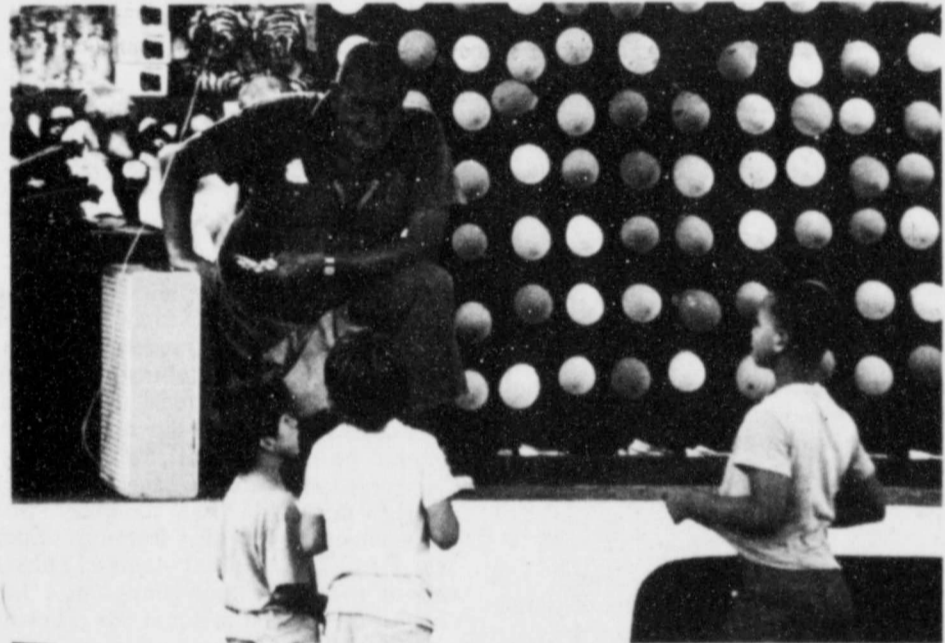

Foreigners own a total of 53,002.09 acres of Texas farm and ranchland, with an estimated value of $27,291,493, according to Regan Brown, commissioner for the state Dept. of Agriculture.

Estimates of non-citizen land ownership in the state included in the first official reports of foreign investment, indicated that only .044 percent of the arable land in Texas has been purchased by out-of-country buyers, Brown said.

The largest single tract of land purchased by foreigners is in Pecos County; 14,030 acres used as pasture by a Mexican citizen, he noted.

Under the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act of 1978, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is responsible for gathering reports which must be completed by foreign owners on the acreage, estimates value, the use of the land and details on management or rental agreements. This information is furnished to the states for their use, Brown said.

The reports will be open to public inspection at Texas Department of Agriculture offices in Austin, Brown said.

Langston Williams Takes Waco Job

Langston Williams, a former Floydadan, has accepted a position as football scout and head of girls' basketball and track at University High School in Waco.

Williams, a 1972 graduate of Floydada High, went on to graduate from Wayland Baptist College in 1976 and took a job as football assistant and girls' basketball and track coach at Lubbock Monterrey.

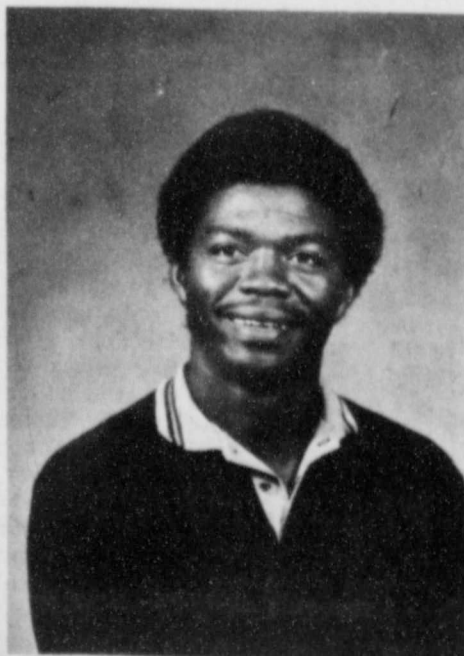

Williams will begin his new position Monday.

"I expect it to be a tough district to compete in," he said. "We will be playing against Killeen, Temple and Round Rock. But we've got some good girls."

Williams anticipated a successful season.

"It should be really competitive," he said.

Williams is the son of Langston and Lou Williams, 203 N. 12th St. in Floydada.

Traffic Death Toll

A total of 900 Texans died in rural-area traffic accidents during the first six months of 1979, according to the latest Department of Public Safety report.

Another 14,000 persons were injured in rural areas.

Interstate, U.S. and state routes accounted for less than half the fatalities. The greater share occurred on farm-to-market roads, county roads and city streets, the report said.

In 399 accidents and pedestrian deaths, 368 motorists were killed. Out of 1,361 vehicles involved in accidents, 1,161 were damaged.

Dove Forecast 'Good'

The dove forecast for the north zone of Texas is good according to reports from Texas Parks and Wildlife Department personnel and hunters should find ample birds on the annual opening day, September 1.

The dove is a migratory game bird affected by both food and weather conditions and local populations can and will change between now and the first of the season.

Ample rains in Texas have produced good weed/wild sunflower patches and water holes for the birds and hunters should find doves at any of these areas. The counties off the caprock are well-known for their high dove populations and good to excellent dove populations were observed in mid-August.

Northern dove hunters are hoping for some warm, dry weather to hold the birds on the plains till the season gets underway.

The north zone dove season will continue through again next winter. The north zone includes all of a Del Rio, San Antonio, San Augustin Station, San Augustin. The south zone season will be Sept. 23-5-20, 1980. Dove hunters these zones may have minutes before sunrise. The daily bag limit is 10 and 20 birds in possession. The white-winged dove the Rio Grande has been from noon to sunset. Dove hunters are new Texas hunting laws on Sept. 1. Also, the hunt the migratory plugged to hold on shells in the chamber combined.

Traveling By Houseboat Is New Experience

Although a Lockney couple has been fishing for years, they had the unusual experience recently of casting their lines from a houseboat.

Clark and Lucille Harris of Lockney vacationed Aug. 11-19 on Lake Powell near Paige, Arizona.

They were met there by their daughter, Joan and Dane Clark, Brooks and Cameron, of Golden, Colorado. Dane is the brother of Mrs. J. E. Waller of Floydada.

The two families rented a 36-foot houseboat for three days of sight-seeing on Lake Powell. Lucille claims that the scenery was so beautiful that she has not the words to describe it. "And the water was indigo blue when you looked across it. But it was emerald green and clear to a great depth when you looked into it."

They had heard that the weather would be very hot but they were pleasantly surprised to find it cooler than at home.

Dane Clark and his son Brooks slept at night on the deck above the houseboat, while the rest of the group slept in beds below. The houseboat was like a modern home with paneling and wall-paper. There was a kitchen with a butane stove and an electric refrigerator, and there was a bathroom with shower and plenty of hot water. A generator on the boat provided the electric power.

Two huge motors powered the houseboat which could travel as fast as 30 miles an hour. The Harris-Clark group, however, usually cruised five to ten miles slower than that.

The group would cruise until they found a suitable cove each afternoon, and would anchor until the next afternoon. Several times the front of the boat was on a sandy beach, with the rear setting in water 200 feet deep. A deck was on each end of the boat, with narrower deck on each side, so fishing was quite comfortably done.

The children, Brooks and Cameron, enjoyed swimming in the "just-right temperature" water, diving from rocks. They had a small inflatable raft that they paddled around. Hiking was another favorite activity. Dane Clark, a well-known artist, also watched for ideas for paintings.

Lake Powell is 180 miles long and covers parts of both Arizona and Utah. When the lake was created in recent years, roads to the national monument "Rainbow Bridge" were flooded. Now the only way to view it is from boats.

The group rented a motor boat one day before boarding the houseboat and made the 50-mile trip to see the bridge.

They were surprised to see many foreign tour groups on the lake.

They pulled a smaller boat behind the houseboat to use for serious fishing. A large icebox was provided on one of the decks to hold fish. Fishing was not as good at this particular time of year, Mrs. Harris said.

Everything from dishes and pots and pans to paper towels was included in the boat rental. All the families had to supply was food and bedding.

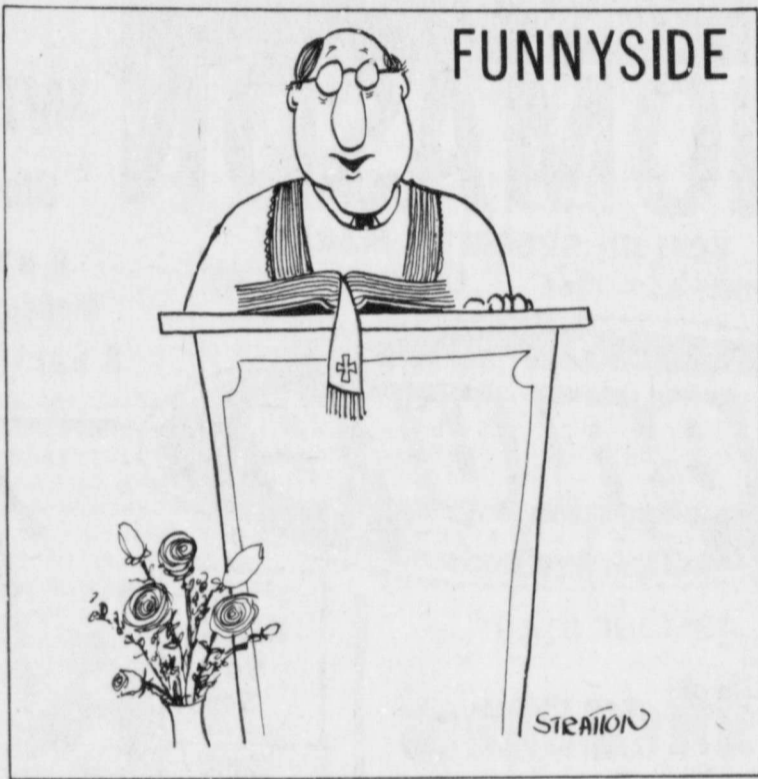

Lucille and Clark Harris plan to return to Lake Powell for another houseboat trip.

Dominican People

Located in the Caribbean Sea between Puerto Rico and Cuba, the Dominican Republic is the home of approximately 4 million people. About 70 per cent of the Dominican population is mixed, 15 per cent Caucasian and 15 per cent Negro.

Planet Earth

Circling the Sun at an average distance of 93 million miles, the Earth is the Universe's fifth largest planet. The Earth's surface area encompasses about 197 million square miles - approximately three-fourths of which is water.

Mailing Cheeses

Most dairy products can't be mailed because they are highly perishable and require refrigeration. But hard cheese and hot pack cheese spreads are exceptions. Aged hard cheeses such as cheddar, swiss and processed are those you can safely mail. Make sure these cheeses are sealed in wax or air-tight vacuum wraps to prevent mold contamination from the air and surface spoilage.

Albert Scheele Runs For Sorghum Board

A Lockney man is among the candidates for four directors' positions open in the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board currently underway in 29 High Plains counties.

Albert Scheele, of Lockney, was placed in nomination along with Dennis Anthony, from Friona, Olan Crowl, from Morse, John Gilbreath, of Hart, and Steve Lee, of Hale Center. Gilbreath is the only incumbent candidate.

A.W. Anthony, of Friona, E.C. Witten, of Edmonson and Don Nelson, of Tulia, opted against seeking reelection to the board.

Ballots were mailed to producers throughout the area. Every two years, four seats on the board come up for election.

All grain sorghum producers in the TGSP area are eligible to vote in the election. Any producer who does not receive a ballot by mail may obtain one from his county agents office.

Deadline for the election is Sept. 15. Any ballot postmarked later than that date will not be considered. A space is provided on the ballot for write-in candidates, provided the candidate agrees to serve if elected.

Hollis and Jo Payne are teachers at R.C. Andrews Ward School in Floydada. Daughter Tammy will be leaving soon to begin her freshman year of college at North Texas State in Denton. Son Joey will be an eighth grade student at Floydada Junior High School. The public is cordially invited to attend the concert.

Floydada's evangelistic singing team, the Payne family, will be in concert Sunday, August 26, 7 p.m. at Calvary Baptist Church.

Hollis has served as pastor of Calvary Baptist Church for several years. This talented family is often called on for special music for numerous activities within the community.

Lockney Friends Meet Baby

Monday morning in the home of Mrs. Rick Mosley (Marceina) Gross of Lockney, a six-week-old son Jacob was present at the party.

Grandmother, Mrs. Veronice Webb, Floydada, called or sent gifts. Mrs. Webb registered guests and assisted in serving watermelon and cantaloupe balls, coffee, spiced tea, and orange juice.

The serving table was laid with a blue cloth covered by a white lace cloth. An arrangement of pastel-colored silk flowers in a blue vase centered the table. Appointments were of silver and crystal.

Serving as co-hostess was Mrs. Boyce "Pete" Mosley.

OTERO SCHEELE recently acquired two Nubian goats to add to her already-large collection of animals. [Staff Photo]

Otero Scheele Is Herdsman

On the Albert Scheele farm southwest of Providence Mrs. Scheele (Otero) has done everything in the farm operation except run the cotton stripper or combine.

And she says she's not going to learn how! Still, she can be counted on to haul the maize, corn or cotton to the elevator or gin. And she's always on call if help is needed in plowing, cultivating etc.

Until the Scheeles bought their present six-row equipment and a larger tractor she did more of the farming than she presently does. "It was fun planting. I learned how to set the correct depth. It wouldn't be hard to plant with six-row equipment, I just haven't been needed."

Although not as active as a "farmer" as she once was, she still has all the responsibility of the farm animals. Son Ralph helps quite a lot with the animal chores since he has gotten older, but it's still Otero's main farm job.

She raises show lambs, cattle, geese, chickens, rabbits, pheasants, guineas, ducks, goats, dogs and cats, and still keeps a cow that she milks every day.

In the Providence community Otero is called often for advice on medical treatment for cows, sheep and dogs. She does most of the veterinary care for her animals, and helps shear her sheep.

At one time she groomed dogs (two of her daughters learned from her and have run their own grooming services.) and has raised many kinds of dogs to sell. Right now her Shih Tsu is expecting pups, but in past years there have been Pekingese, Chihuahua, collie, poodle, dachshund puppies at the Scheeles.

For the past five years Otero has been a licensed vocational nurse working on the surgical floor at Central Plains Hospital in Plainview. Most weeks she works three or four days and takes leaves of absence occasionally. Once her leaves of absence were because of lambing or harvest, but new grand-

Labor Day Telethon
Even If You Miss A Little, You Miss A Lot.
Floydada Alpha Mu Delta

"Even if you miss a little, you miss a lot" is the theme of the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy. Alpha Mu Delta members will be assisting with the telethon by answering phones in Floydada and Lockney.

Proceeds from the telethon go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, which sponsors research into the biochemistry and biophysics of normal muscle, as well as clinical studies of muscular dystrophy and its related disorders.

A disease that can begin at any age, but most often appears among women in their 20's and men over 40, myasthenia gravis is characterized by intermittent muscular weakness of variable degree and duration. While any muscles may be involved, those most commonly involved are muscles of eye movement, facial expression, and eyelid elevation, says the Association.

In mild cases muscle function is regained after rest. Severe cases may involve respiratory muscles and chewing and swallowing. Strength may not return even with prolonged rest. There is no known cure for myasthenia gravis, the Association says, but the disease can often be controlled with drug therapy.

Locals Celebrate August Birthdays

Let's serenade these ladies
To cheer them on their way...
With the good old birthday "ditty" ...
On this their SPECIAL day!

Ladies of the City Park church of Christ hosted the monthly birthday party at the Rest Home on Thursday, August 16, with four ladies being honored. Residents of the home were ushered into the dining room with the honorees being seated at the "honor" table. Places were marked with special cards and the table was covered with a white cloth, centered with an arrangement of silk flowers in a white bowl. The poem was read and all joined in singing the "birthday song."

A delicious refreshment plate of layered cake iced in white and pink, and Hawaiian punch was served to the honorees, guests and employees. Mrs. Sally Kreis had as her special guest her daughter, Ruth McIntosh.

Following the party the Hesperian photographer came for the picture taking. We are very sorry Mrs. Wcmack was unable to attend any of the festivities. The next party will be Thursday, September 13, 2:30 p.m. You are invited to attend.

BIBLE BLESSINGS

But as it is written, "I have not seen, nor ear heard, nor have entered into the heart of man the things which God has prepared for them who love him."

1 Cor. 13:1

How many of the things we find so pleasurable on earth are but part of life eternal? — or none at all?

If heaven is a place, it is heaven's happiness to ever be there.

We are such individuals, varied likes and dislikes, can even paradise be to each of us?

Heaven, in a manner, can be made known to us, and the righteous, must for a closer relationship with man and his Creator.

WHOZITS . . .

Lockney And Floydada Whozit . . .
This fellow should be known in both
Lockney and Floydada

No one should have any trouble deciding the name of this young man. This picture was made at South Plains in 1942. If you are from Floydada and think this boy looks familiar--he does. He's a graduate of FHS.

Lockney Whozit Pictures Were Of 1938 Parade

No one has called the Beacon to identify the pictures from last week's Whozit. So we called Retha Wofford since we knew she was in one of the pictures.
Retha says that the group of women were wearing old-time dresses to be in the Old-Settlers Parade in Lockney in May, 1938. The parade either former or ended at the high school which is in the background of the pictures. The ladies rode in the parade on an open bed truck, loaned by Higginbotham Lumber Yard manager Arthur Barton.
In the picture of the three women, Retha Wofford is in the middle. On her right side is Ireta Roberson Vincent; Retha doesn't remember the name of the other woman.
In the group picture in the back are Vee Jackson, Leota "Pete" Shelton (dressed like a man) and Gwen Wofford McPherson. The young girl in front is Mary Roberson and her mother Mrs. Ott Roberson is next to her.
Retha remembers that Mary Roberson carried a huge lollipop all through the parade, and had smeared egg white on her face that dried making it appear that she had lollipop stickiness on her face.

LAST WEEK'S FLOYDADA WHOZIT

WOULD YOU BELIEVE? No one guessed last week's Floydada Whozit. It was Malvin Jarboe.

Proper Management Key To Profitable Harvest

Techniques and management practices for water conservation in the Texas High Plains area are included in a report just completed as a joint project of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 and the Texas Department of Water Resources.
Titled "Summary of Techniques and Management Practices for Profitable Water Conservation on the Texas High Plains," the report provides combinations of physical and managerial practices for High Plains farmers designed to increase water use efficiency in the area, and to protect the productive life of the Ogallala aquifer, as well as offering a possibility for increased farm income.

energy sources, costs and consumptions of four different systems, and examines efficiency capabilities of side roll, center pivot, and hand moved sprinkler systems, as well as furrow irrigation.
Supporting graphs are included to document and illustrate the results of

THE DEVELOPMENT

The attractive sign on the highway says "Glenview Estates" or something like that. But to folks in the older part of town it is just "the development."

And to the folks who live here it is home!

Before the builder completed his development a group of the neighbors got together and built a church here. It's a small church, and it took a lot of financial help from denominational headquarters to build . . . but it's here!

And now that the developer has left, our little church has become The Developer. It is bringing to life in Glenview Estates (or something like that) essential ingredients that architects, builders and landscapers cannot provide . . . the Faith around which to build a home . . . the Truth by which to raise a family.

In or near every development there is a real Developer. Thank God! And thank also the earnest people who establish, attend, support and serve our churches!

Tips On Controlling White Grubs In Lawns

May or June beetles are emerging from the soil and starting to swarm late in the evening. The females are laying eggs and the white grub worms that hatch will soon be feeding on the roots of bermudagrass in home lawns. Once the grubs begin feeding, control measures should be taken, says Paul Treptow, county entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Treatment time varies with the particular area of the state and ranges from early July in South Texas to mid-August in the Panhandle. Homeowners in Crosby and Floyd counties will need to treat for grubs now. Timing of application is critical for adequate control.

White grubs in excessive numbers can heavily damage lawns, notes Treptow. Check for white grubs by cutting a square foot section of sod with a shovel and examining all of the roots and soil to a depth of 4 inches. Examine at least one square foot of sod for each 1,000 square feet of lawn area. Chemical treatment is needed if there are more than four grubs per square foot of sod.

Diazinon provides adequate control and should be used at the recommended rates given on the chemical container label. The granular form is easier to apply and easier to wash into the soil than the liquid or spray formulations. After using granules, drag the grass with a tow sack or water hose to knock the granules down to the soil. Then apply enough water to soak the granules into the soil.

Apply diazinon sprays at the rate of 25 gallons of water, including the insecticide, per 1,000 square feet to wash the insecticide into the soil. Wetting the lawn before spray application also helps. Always keep children and pets off the treated lawn until the grass is dry.

The key to white grub control in home lawns is proper timing of chemical applications and getting the insecticide through the grass to the root zone where the grubs are feeding, emphasizes Treptow.

Further information is provided in the publication, "White Grubs in Texas Turfgrass" which is available at the county Extension office.

Tech Museum To Sponsor Art Exhibit

An exhibit of paintings and drawings strongly influenced by West Texas open spaces and stream beds will open at the Museum of Texas Tech University today.

The public is invited to meet the artist, Jeanette Spehr Cole, at a reception for her from 2-4:30 p.m. at the Museum on the day of the opening. Cole calls the exhibit "Oval Rocks-Open Spaces," and much of it was inspired, she said, by the flat oval rocks she picked from West Texas stream beds and from the spaciousness of the West Texas landscape.

Familiar in many of the works also is the shape of a platform, sometimes appearing as a land form, sometimes as the picnic table at which she often worked.

The show is Cole's thesis exhibit, a part of the requirements for her master of fine arts degree on which she has been working at Texas Tech University. In the exhibit are some large oil paintings, watercolors, colored pencil drawings and works using both colored pencils and air brush.

"I like working with illusions," Cole said she. She added that she found the rocks and spaces depicted in her works could take on a variety of meanings, depending partly upon the artist's interpretation and also on the viewer's perception.

Her work has been shown in numerous juried exhibitions, and she has won awards in the 1979 Little Rock Drawings and Crafts Exhibition, the 1979 Texas College Art Show and in the 10th annual Southwest Exhibition at the Museum of the Southwest in Midland, 1976.

Chamber Awards Announced

Four recipients of the coveted West Texas Chamber of Commerce Cultural Achievement Awards for 1979 have been announced by Lou Cooley of Borger, chairman of the WTCC Cultural Affairs Committee. The awards ceremony will take place during the Mid-Year Meeting of the WTCC in Amarillo on Oct. 11-12.

One award will be presented to Tumbleweed Smith (Bob Smith Lewis) of Big Spring, whose radio program "The Sounds of Texas" has preserved the heritage of Texas on tape for posterity and been a source of daily entertainment. The outstanding and unusual traits of Texans have also been chronicled in Smith's book, "The Tumbleweed Collection."

The Carson County Square House Museum of Panhandle will be honored for its role in preserving and displaying the area's history since its establishment in 1967. A major tourist attraction on U.S. Highway 60, the museum is accredited by the American Association of Museums.

The Lubbock Arts Festival will also receive a Cultural Achievement Award. The entire arts field was represented in the first annual, three-day festival held in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center as more than 65,000 visitors were exposed to the arts.

For sharing her artistic impressions of West Texas with the public, an award will be presented to Mrs. Willie Reed Rowe of Fort Stockton. Mrs. Rowe specializes in etchings and has exhibited her work in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

The annual awards luncheon will be held Friday, Oct. 12 at the Villa Inn in Amarillo.

Tax Information To Assist The Budget

DEDUCT MOVING EXPENSES FROM FEDERAL INCOME TAX

Before moving to a new home, know the tax allowances and limitations related to moving.

If the move meets the necessary requirements, reasonable direct moving expenses are fully deductible and indirect moving expenses are allowable within specific limitations.

What are the requirements?

1) You must be moving to a new principle residence to work as an employee or a self-employed individual at a new principle place of work.

2) The distance between your old home and new place of work must be at least 35 miles greater than the distance between your old home and old place of work.

3) You must work full time for at least 39 weeks during the 12-month period immediately after your arrival in the general location of your new principle place of work (not necessarily with only one employer or for 39 consecutive weeks).

4) If self-employed, you must perform services on a full-time basis for at least 78 weeks during the 24-month period immediately after your arrival at your new residence.

What is deductible?

1) The cost of moving household goods and personal effects to a new residence is fully deductible. This includes the actual cost of transportation or hauling from your old residence to your new one, the cost of packing and crating, intransit storage up to 30 consecutive days, and insurance.

2) The cost of shipping your automobile is deductible.

3) The cost of transporting household pets (dogs, cats, tropical fish, etc.) is deductible.

4) The cost of moving personal belongings from a place other than your old residence (summer home, relative's home, etc.) can be deducted to the extent that it does not exceed what it would have cost to move them from your old residence.

5) The final family trip to the new residence is considered a direct moving expense and is fully deductible. This includes meals, lodging, gas, oil and repairs incurred on the trip.

6) Indirect moving expenses including pre-move house-hunting trips, temporary quarters, selling and buying your old and new residence and settling an unexpired lease or acquiring a new lease can be deducted within certain limits.

The maximum limit for indirect moving expenses is $3,000 of which more than $1,500 may be for house-hunting trips and temporary quarters.

The deductible cost of selling or acquiring a residence includes all of the fees and expenses paid or incurred in connection with the sale, exchange or purchase of your old and new residence.

Finally, be sure you keep all receipts of all expenses.

8) Remember you may deduct moving expenses whether or not you claim excess itemized deductions.

A word about Quality, Price & Value.

We live by a very simple philosophy. We strive to give you extra value for your food dollar. Not once in awhile, but day in and day out, week in, week out.

We do this with high quality food, competitive prices, friendly, efficient service, and the important extra of S&H Green Stamps. S&H Green Stamps are, in fact, good for both of us. For us, they mean more customers; and the more customers we have, the more food we sell, the lower our prices.

And for you, Green Stamps are a genuine extra, a little bonus at the checkout counter that can translate into beautiful S&H gifts.

So, in a very real sense, shopping at our store means day to day savings for you and your family. The solid value of quality food at competitive prices...and S&H Green Stamps, too. In today's economy, that makes a lot of sense.

Sincerely yours,
Buddy's Food

Conference Studies Effects Of Times On Rural Churches

Rural churches remain a stronghold, "something to cling to," for many rural Texans. But forces of change are at work that are affecting both rural communities and their churches.

Discussions on the nature and extent of these changes will highlight the 34th annual Town and Country Church Conference at Rudder Center, Texas A&M University, Oct. 4-5.

Conference theme will be "New Towns in Old Communities: The Conversion of Rural Texas."

"Church and community leaders are groping for new meaning and direction, and this conference will focus on the latest issues affectin church and community life," points out Dr. Dave Ruesink, sociologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and conference chairman. The Extension Service is sponsoring the annual conference along with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

A highlight of the conference will be the presentation of the Texas Rural Minister of the Year Award by the Progressive Farmer magazine during the final session.

Along with a host of speakers who will address the issue of rural change, the conferece will acquaint participants with the many recources available to local communities through Texas A&M University, notes Ruesink.

Headlining the list of speakers will be Calvin Beale, a demographer with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, who will discuss national population trends in rural areas. Then Dr. Bob Skrabanek, Texas A&M Demographer will bring the issue closer to home by discussing population changes in rural Texas.

Other speakers the first day will include Lonnie Jones, State Property Tax Practices Board, Austin, and Steve Murdock, Texas A&M rural sociologist, who will talk about "The Consequences of Sudden, Massive Change" on rural communities. Also, Jim Benson, Texas A&M transportation specialist, will discuss "Impacts of the Gasoline Shortage in Rural Areas."

Featurd speakers the second day will be Dr. William Kuvlesky, Texas A&M rural sociologist, who will talk on "The Dynamics of Change in Rural Texas Culture" and Robert Greene, director of the Resource Center for Small Churches, Luling, who will talk about "Conflicts Between 'New' and 'Old' Community Members."
