Country club on National Register as historic site

Secretary of the Interior Cecil D. Andrus this week approved the Floyd County Club site in Blanco as a historic site for inclusion into the National Register of Historic Places.

The country club area joined the National Register of Historic Places in 1979. The site is located on a hillside adjacent to the D.M. Ranch in northeast Floyd County.

The register is the official list of the nation's historic places worthy of preservation.

The country club area is one of the most significant archaeological sites in the county, said Jim Hester, a member of the county historical commission. "It was a meeting place for the west, east and south."

The site was known to be more than a thousand years old in human habitation and probably much further than that.

"I don't know how old it really is," Hester said, "because there's never been a really deep excavation. It's no use trying to establish people there as far as 500 A.D. up to historical times."

"Digging 15 or 20 feet you might go as far as 10,000 years ago," he said.

There are no immediate plans to do a depth exploration of the site, Hester noted, that would take years of time and a great deal of money.

Floyd County Historical Commission submitted the site for nomination to the National Register about two years ago on the basis of its archaeological significance.

Future development of the country club area will now require approval of the Interior Department so that the buried artifacts yet in the canyon will not be disturbed.

Junior high school students hold a different kind of beauty contest

Anyone looking for a conventional beauty contest at the Floydada junior high would have been surprised, but perhaps not disappointed, Friday afternoon.

The seventh and eighth grade students and their guests gathered in the junior high auditorium to watch the selection of Miss Homeroom Honey. All the contestants, however, were boys in girls' clothes.

The nine competitors first modeled their outfits and then changed clothes for the talent segment of the competition.

The talent competition consisted of a piano recital, singing, disco dancing, ballet and a prose reading, among other innovative entries.

After the general presentations, the judges narrowed the contestants down to four finalists. Each finalist had to answer one question, such as "What would you do if it was the last day of the world?" or "What century would you like to live in?"

When it was all said and done, Carlos Baker, appearing under the pseudonym "Pearlme Lichtenstein," was the Junior High Homeroom Honey for 1979.

Runners-up were Quint "Boom Boom Baloo" Anderson, Max "Maxine Bratt" Bearden, and Shane "Shawna Bradon" Bearden. Also appearing were Darrell "Darla Oddfellow" Odom, Greg "Gretchen Tomlin" Thompson, Cliff "Dolly Apartment" McLain, Adolfo "Adella Grant" Garcia and David "Daisy Beatle" Beaty.

Dairy Queen changes owners

The Floydada Dairy Queen closed this week and will reopen soon under new management, according to Pete Looney, vice president of Hollis Jones Dairy Queen Restaurants. Hollis and Sue Jones recently completed the purchase of the Floydada firm.

Keith and Mary Mensch will manage the Floydada restaurant when it reopens. The Mensches received their training at the Dairy Queen in Wolfthorpe and helped with the opening of a store in Decatur. They put the finishing touches on their training at the Ralls Dairy Queen.

The Mensches grew up in Petersburg and attended school there. They previously worked for the Abernathy Dairy Queen before joining the Jones organization.

They have two children, Christi, three years old, and Tyson, six months old.

Pete Looney said he feels that there is a good future for his chain in Floydada. The key to their success, he said, has been good food, courteous service.

"We know that our closing will be an inconvenience to some people," Looney said, "but when we reopen people will be pleased with the new food products and methods of operation that we will introduce."

Looney said that the restaurant would add a chicken breast strip platter and redo the Mexican plate, among other changes.

Looney anticipated no major modifications to the building other than to complete necessary repairs.

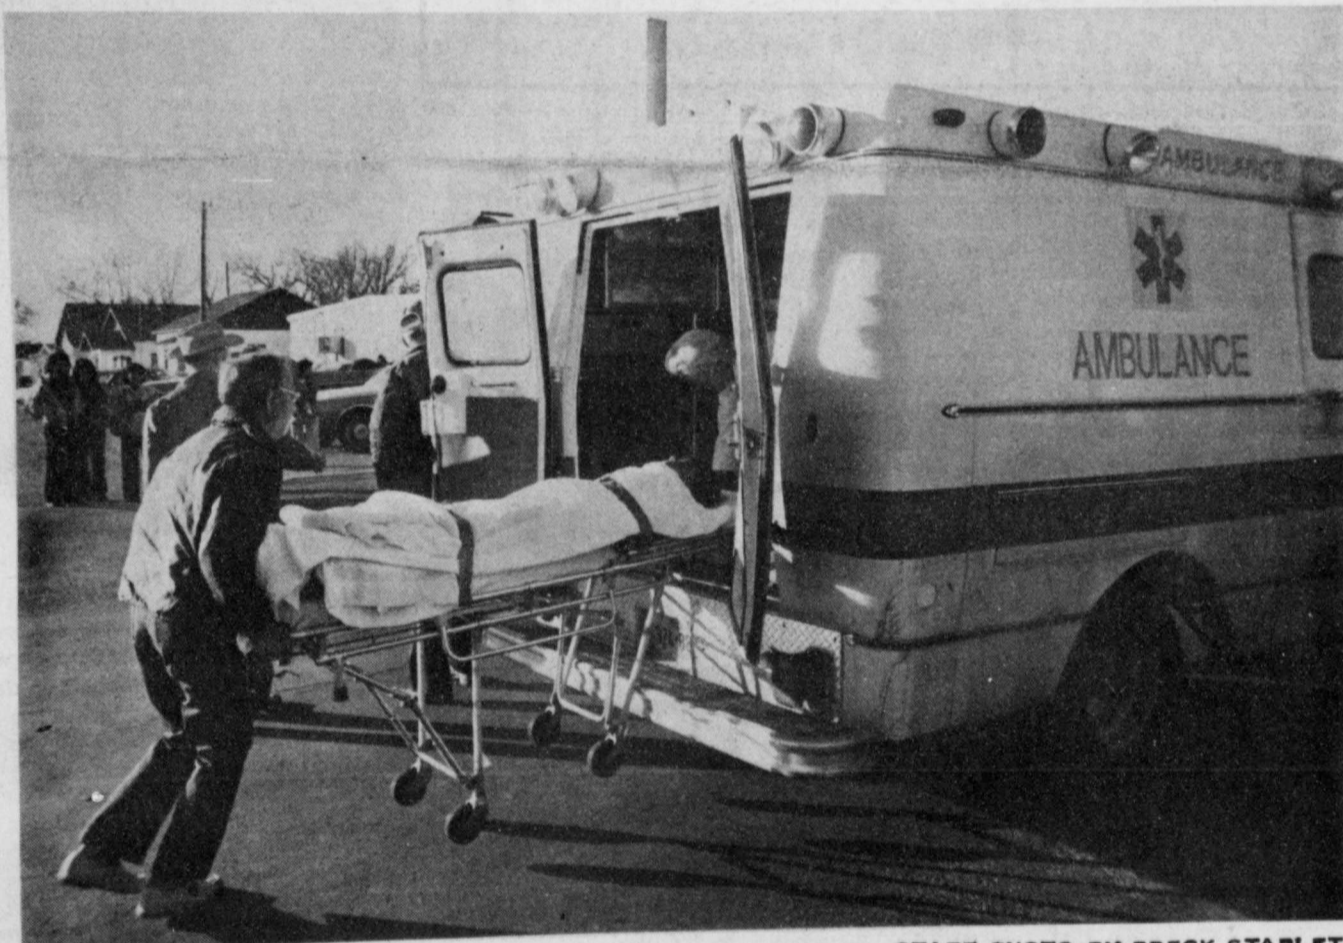

The Hollis Jones operation began in Decatur in 1969 and has since expanded to include 27 stores. The Floydada store will join restaurants in Lockney, Crosbyton, Ralls, Idalou, Olton, Earth, Paducah and Vernon under Jones' management.

The company recently opened a new store in Decatur featuring a turn-of-the-century design concept and is said to be regionally famous for its Buffalo burger.

Pete Looney joined the Jones organization five and one half years ago and is now field director for operations in West Texas.

Looney is a graduate of Floydada High School. He married the former Alice Roberts, of Bovina. Looney was a barber in Floydada for 17 years before joining Jones Dairy Queen.

Looney put a tentative reopening date of next Friday for the Floydada Dairy Queen.

VICTIM — Mark McCormick is lifted into a waiting ambulance while Floydada police direct traffic and curious onlookers away from the accident scene.

Floydada youth injured in accident

A late afternoon traffic accident on Second Street Friday sent a Floydada teenager to Caprock Hospital with suspected neck injuries.

Floydada police said that Mark McCormick, 15, had stopped his automobile behind another stopped vehicle at the intersection of Second and Mississippi Streets.

Another youth, also 15 years old, was following McCormick in a pickup truck and apparently didn't see the obstruction in time to stop before rear-ending McCormick's car, the police said.

No one in the pickup was reported to be injured.

Young McCormick was in undetermined condition and undergoing treatment at the Caprock Hospital emergency room at press time.

HSA joins fight against regionalization

South Plains Health Systems (SPHS) chairman John Selby this week announced opposition to proposed alterations to South Plains health care operations made recently by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

In reviewing a summary of the HEW goals for health systems, the SPHS executive committee decided that the HEW goals do not leave enough discretion for solution to the local areas. Proposed changes, Selby said, may have far-reaching implications for the health care delivery system if implemented in their present form.

"We would agree that primary care for medically underserved areas is a need," Selby said, but "this need is strongly reflected in our plans." Selby disagreed with the HEW idea of using nurse practitioners and physician assistants to help take the place of doctors.

"It must be understood," Selby said, "that such personnel are not trained to take the place of a physician. Rather, these personnel are trained to extend the capability of a physician if properly utilized and supervised."

The HEW goals, Selby said, did not place enough limitations on the use of nurse practitioners and physician assistants to assure quality health care. Selby also expressed concern that there is a potential danger in the HEW plans to regionalize health care.

"As a practical matter, regionalization tends to centralize care in urban areas, threatening the existence of rural health care delivery systems," the chairman said.

Physicians will not practice in rural areas without the presence of a hospital. If rural hospitals close, physicians will leave."

Then, Selby noted, rural patients would have even less access to primary health care than before.

"It is for these reasons," he said, "that we question the statement that 'regionalization can also increase accessibility in rural areas.'"

The chairman also said that regionalization could work against the concept of competition, a basis on which prices are kept reasonable for the patient.

Side Glances

IT'S STARTING TO GET AWFULLY COLD. And the horrible part is, I've already broken out all my winter woolies. Old timers tell me that it can get a heck of a lot colder before it gets any warmer.

I guess that's the price you pay for living in almost perpetual summer for the past 15 years. Viva la difference.

CONTRARY TO POPULAR BELIEF, vaudeville is not dead. It's merely living its second childhood on the Captain Kangaroo Show. Have you seen the good Captain lately? It's bits, gags and takes right out of the Bijou Theatre before the moving pictures came along, and not bad stuff at that. Shades of Al Jolson.

I HEARD THAT MERLE HAGGARD got a standing cheer recently in some auditorium when he connected the Iran situation to his one-time hit song "You're Walking On The Fighting Side Of Me." I could be wrong, but it seems that I read somewhere that Mr. Haggard spent two years in prison for a petty burglary.

If that's true, Mr. Haggard has already expressed his feelings for his fellow Americans and ought to shut up.

WHILE WE'RE ON THE SUBJECT of Iran, the Mexican government this morning revoked the shah's visa to live in that country. This action follows closely a Mexican announcement that the shah could come back.

It looks to me that the Mexican government doesn't have to worry about getting its Iranian oil shut off because Mexico recently discovered huge oil deposits. Then why put the U.S. back in the hot seat by refusing to readmit the shah? To watch the "Norteamericanos" squirm a little bit more, perhaps?

PET ARMADILLO — Randy Spurlock holds Tuffy, a Texas nine-banded armadillo, that James Spurlock captured on a hunting trip. The animal now resides at Duncan School.

Duncan School gets new 'student'

The youngsters at Duncan School have a new playmate. Well, not a playmate that you can actually play with, but "Tuffy the Armadillo" is an awful lot of fun to watch.

Tuffy came to Duncan a few days ago after Bob Copeland discovered the armadillo one morning rooting around in the educator's back yard before work.

Deciding that the animal would make an interesting diversion for the kids, and remembering that there is a perfect fenced-in area on the campus in which to place the creature, Copeland took Tuffy to school.

Copeland found later that Tuffy had wandered away from the James Spurlock residence some time before. Randy Spurlock was keeping the armadillo, which his father captured during a hunting trip near Fredericksburg a couple of weeks ago.

Randy said that armadillos are easy to feed. They seem to eat things like worms, vegetables and insects, digging the edibles from the neighbors' gardens on occasion.

The armadillo got his name from fighting with the Spurlocks' dog "Bo". Randy decided to leave Tuffy with the school children, at least for the time being, where, according to Copeland, "the kids are watching him pretty close."

But football isn't all that Marler teaches well, even though it is his first interest. He topped a series of coaching positions before moving to Port Arthur by leading the Kilgore High track team to the state championships.

A 1961 graduate of Floydada High, where he played halfback in varsity football his junior and senior years, Marler went on to take a physical education degree at Texas Tech. He became assistant coach at Port Arthur six years ago and, after only a year, took over as head coach and athletic director. Marler is married to the former Linda Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Ed Hammond. The Marler's have two children, Trisha and Charlie. Orville and Lynn Marler flew to Houston Friday afternoon to join their son at the regional championship game.

According to census results the Panhandle pheasant population has been steadily increasing for the past several years. Dvorak attributed the increase to a mild winter with no lingering heavy snows and very favorable spring nesting conditions.

Pheasant hunters should have no trouble finding birds when the season opens Dec. 8 and continues through Jan. 6, 1980. The daily bag limit is two cocks per day, possession limit is four, and the head and feet must remain attached.

The data being gathered now will help in putting together a comprehensive picture of the wildlife scene on the southern Great Plains.

Storner and his colleague are concerned about the lack of wildlife information available in the area.

"Income from hunting leases in the southern Great Plains could vary from a dollar per acre per year on some range land to $10 per acre per year in quality areas, and the wide margin can be attributed, in part, to lack of management information available to land- owners and to hunters," Dr. Samuel Beason said.

Ten species of upland game birds and eight big game animals are residents of the southern Great Plains, and the 200,000-plus acres of playa lakes provide habitat for approximately 1,000,000 wintering ducks of about 20 species.

Mrs. Richard Mark Bryan

Miss Nixon, Bryan married in double ring ceremony

Linda Gay Nixon and Richard Mark Bryan exchanged marriage vows in evening ceremonies, Saturday, December 1 at the New Salem Primitive Baptist Church in Floydada. Elder Joe Jackson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen Nixon of Lubbock. She is a 1978 graduate of Monterey High School and attends Texas Tech University. She is employed by Methodist Hospital as a laboratory technician.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Sue Bryan of Lubbock and Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Bryan of Irving. He attended Lubbock High School and was a 1977 graduate of Cathedral High School in El Paso. He is employed by Montgomery Motors in Lubbock.

Pianist Mrs. David Yirak of Lubbock presented pre-nuptial selections. Sandra Fay Nixon, sister of the bride of Lubbock, presented a flute and vocal solo.

Mrs. Randall Handley, pianist of Lubbock, played the wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. The bride wore a formal length gown of white Quiana fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline, edged with scalloped Venise lace. Venise lace, encrusted with pearls, enhanced the bodice and sleeves. The A-line skirt flowed from an empire bodice and cascaded into a chapel length train. The veil was a walking mantilla of nylon illusion. She carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and baby's breath atop a bible belonging to her sister.

Sandra Nixon played Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" on the piano as the candles were lit by Kelly Handley and Tim Handley. Mrs. Yirak presented "Nocturne" by Chopin as the mothers of the bride and groom and Mrs. Jewel Halton of San Antonio, maternal grandmother of the groom, were seated. The church decorations, arranged by the groom's mother, featured arrangements of gladioli and chrysanthemums flanked by candelabrum holding cranberry candles.

Sandra Nixon served as maid of honor; and Mrs. Rick Barta was the bride's Matron. Bridesmaids were Kim Nixon and Karla Leslie. Attendants wore identical formal length dresses of flowing Quiana with flowing capelets. They carried nosegays of white carnations, roses and baby's breath.

Best man was William Jacobs of El Paso. Grooms-men were Todd Bryan and Tracy Bryan, brothers of the groom, and Steve Gilbert. The groom and the male attendants wore white tuxedos.

Flower girl was Jeni D'Lyn Harbin of Houston; and ring bearer was Greg Lawson of Floydada. Wedding guests were registered by LaDelle Noland of Floydada.

Reception

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held. The bride's table was laid with a cranberry cloth under white nylon illusion. Table decorations consisted of the bridesmaid's nosegays. Joni Handley and Pam Nixon served the five-tiered cake, which was arranged on pedestals and decorated with cherubs. Cranberry punch was served from a silver and crystal bowl. Mixed nuts and mints filled ruby crystal dishes.

Gold ware was used at the groom's table, which was laid with a holly green cloth under matching nylon illusion and centered with a brass compote containing a fall floral arrangement. LaDell Noland and Tammy Gentry of Floydada served fruit cake rings, coffee and hot spiced tea. Brass compotes held nuts, fondants and mints.

Aunts of the bride, Mmes. Leslie Nixon of Floydada, Dale Lawson of Floydada, Lowell Nixon, Mark Harbin and Leon Handley were houseparty members. Jana Lawson of Floydada and Susie Nixon presented guests with rice-filled satin roses. They wore wristlet corsages with their formal length dresses.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, New Mexico, the couple will be at home in Lubbock.

FARM & RANCH NEWS

Playing economic odds may be best bet for marketing

RALEIGH — During the next two months, many American cotton producers will be deciding their marketing strategy for this year's crop.

As always, producers will have to decide whether current prices are satisfactory or whether postponing sales to a later period will produce a better return.

To help cotton producers make their best decisions, Cotton Incorporated's Economic Research and Development staff has evaluated supply and demand fundamentals and other factors in the marketplace.

The economists' conclusion as of the moment:

"While the future continues clouded in uncertainty, the overwhelming economic evidence at this time suggests that the odds of lower cotton prices as the harvest advances far outweigh those of higher prices. Selling at current prices, or fixing prices now with delivery arranged at a later date for tax purposes, will probably be better than selling after harvest.

"If prices do sag from harvest pressure," they add, "producers may find putting cotton in the (government) loan a second best alternative. Consideration, however, must always be taken of the monthly costs of holding cotton and the price gains that can be expected."

The analysis of supply and demand fundamentals and other factors to be considered in marketing decisions is contained in the November issue of the Cotton Summary, Cotton Incorporated's monthly publication. Cotton Incorporated is the fiber research and marketing company of American cotton producers, supported with producers' per bale assessments.

Lawrence Shaw, associate director for supply economics, says world production of cotton this crop year is expected to total 64.7 million bales, 4.7 million bales more than was produced in 1978-79. This year's estimate includes a projected U.S. crop of 14 million bales.

"World production this crop year is expected to exceed consumption by over two million bales," he points out. "As a result, cotton supplies will be plentiful, with U.S. stocks climbing to the highest level in 10 years."

Shaw acknowledges that cotton prices have remained strong in spite of the "bearish" supply and demand fundamentals. But he says several factors are providing that price strength.

"The U.S. harvest is late, and many mills and exporters are finding adequate supplies of specific quality cotton difficult to obtain," he explains.

Also, as of October 14, "exports and outstanding sales of this year's cotton are 35 percent ahead of the same period in 1978. China alone has already bought a million bales in 1979-80, compared with purchases of 280,000 bales at this time last year."

Finally, says the Cotton Incorporated economist, "continued strength of cotton consumption by U.S. mills has been another factor maintaining cotton prices at current levels. Both foreign and U.S. retail demand for all-cotton textile products has been good."

In mapping their marketing strategies, Shaw says producers should look beyond current conditions and consider the following factors:

—Within the next 60 days, large amounts of cotton will come on the market, as the bulk of the U.S. harvest is finished. Current shortages could turn to glut in just a few weeks.

Early export sales also have been excellent. But last year sales peaked early in the season. Should they follow the same pattern this year, the impetus foreign sales have given to the cotton market could quickly subside.

—While U.S. mill business is still relatively strong, mill executives are wary of the recession. Should demand for textile products begin to fall along with other retail items, mills will not hesitate to cut production to avoid building inventories, especially in light of soaring interest rates.

Maintain seed cotton quality with module builders

Special precautions when using module builders will help maintain cotton lint and seed quality.

"Favorable weather and the use of module builders has allowed many cotton producers to harvest at a maximum rate independent of trailer or gin capacity," Dr. Robert B. Metzger, cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service said recently. "Thus, considerable cotton is getting off the stalk at a rapid pace to escape field deterioration."

While escaping field weathering is a key step in obtaining high cotton lint and seed quality, maintaining this quality hinges on sound harvesting and modulating practices, contends the specialist.

"Moisture that is so essential in producing a profitable crop becomes enemy No. 1 once bolls open and harvesting gets underway," Metzger said. "Seed cotton moisture should be 12 percent or less when stored in modules."

To preserve cotton quality in modules, locate them on well-drained sites so that cotton can be transported to the gin at any time. Compress cotton uniformly. Keep the center of the module higher and round off cotton to permit better drainage and protection from rain or snow. If prolonged storage is anticipated, it's good insurance to cover the module with a tarp, he noted.

"Check cotton temperature frequently for the first three to five days of storage," Metzger said. "A normal temperature rise can be expected the first 48 hours, but if seed cotton is below 12 percent moisture, the temperature will level off and stabilize after this time."

If cotton has a moisture content above 12 percent, monitor the temperature closely at several locations in the module. If the temperature continues to rise to the 110-120 degree F. range, gin the module immediately, he said.

"To avoid problems with cotton modules, the best approach is to module only dry seed cotton on a well-drained site and cover with a tarp," Metzger concluded. "It's the best insurance against hot modules that result in low quality lint and seed."

Farm act causing misunderstanding

The state of Texas will not be loaning money for agricultural land purchases under the recently-approved Farm and Ranch Security Program, Reagan Brown, state commissioner of agriculture, announced this week. Brown noted that there had been a great deal of misunderstanding concerning the measure that Texas voters approved in November.

"We have been receiving a great number of calls since the amendment was approved November 6," Brown said. "Many have been told that the state will be loaning money at six percent interest while, in fact, the state will not be loaning money at all."

"Under the provisions of the program, $10 million in bonds will be issued with the proceeds being used to guarantee loans offered by already-established sources in the purchase of farm and ranch land," Brown said.

Applicants will need to locate their own financing at the best interest rate they can negotiate, Brown explained. He noted that the emphasis of the loan guarantee program is in allowing financial institutions to extend credit to young farmers and ranchers who may not have the necessary collateral or down payments now being required for agricultural land purchases.

"This program will allow many young people in the coming years to enter farming and ranching who could not afford to otherwise," Brown said.

Explaining that the Texas Department of Agriculture will administer the program, Brown stated, "It will be several months before we can actually establish the program and approve the first loan."

"It's just not the same as it was back in '49."

Cotton Today

TEXANS TO JUDGE MAID: Three Texans will be among the judges for the 1980 Maid of Cotton Selection in Memphis, Tenn., December 26-28. They are Dr. Douglas Ann Newsom, associate professor of journalism, Texas Christian University, Fort Worth; Lloyd Cline, cotton producer, Lamesa; and 1973 Maid of Cotton Debra Ploch Kristen, Corpus Christi.

SUPPORT URGED FOR RECOVERY ACT: National Cotton Council President Hoke Leggett has urged adoption of a measure that would provide 10-5- and 3-year depreciation by businesses of investments in buildings, machinery, and transportation equipment, respectively. He said that without a tax write-off as proposed in the Capital Cost Recovery Act it would be virtually impossible for the cotton industry to obtain the huge amount of capital required in an effort to meet the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's cotton dust standard. He added that the act "may make it possible to reduce dust levels in the expensive fashion dictated by OSHA, greatly increase our productivity, and continue processing of cotton in this country."

IIC MEMBERSHIP GROWS: Three countries — Argentina, Egypt, and Sudan — have announced they will join the International Institute for Cotton. The additions bring IIC's total membership to 14 countries. IIC works to increase use of cotton on a worldwide basis.

COTTON MEETINGS SET: The futures market and cotton dust will be explored during two special meetings at the Beltwide Cotton Conferences sponsored by the National Cotton Council and other groups in January in St. Louis. A special panel of cotton producer, economists, and commercial firms will discuss how to make the futures market work for makers on January 7. The dust seminar on January 8-9 will include a discussion of biological and engineering research to reduce the amount of plant trash in cotton. Speakers will include both European and U.S. experts.

AND COTTON YESTERDAY: In 1919, the town of Enterprise, Ala., erected a monument in honor of the boll weevil.

Farm Bureau News Summary

THE OIL CRISIS?

The U.S. "oil crisis" has been created by government regulations. No amount of substitute fuel or change will ease the "energy crisis". If alternate fuels are created, they will face the same bureaucratic regulation as the oil industry and will be no more effective. These statements are based on the foundation fact that the production of oil, the same as all other commodities, is dependent upon natural resources, which the U.S. has, plus human energy, both physical and mental which is available and tools and equipment which is being denied the industry. Some reports indicate that government is now taking 78% of the profits from the oil industry.

The direct results of the situation will in the long-run change the American system to a socialist planned society. The following few paragraphs are reproduced from the November 12 issue of MEMO FROM COPE (Committee on Political Education), the political arm of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organization (AFL-CIO) for the purpose of revealing how easily Americans are led to abandon the tried and proven American economic system for one that has a 100% failure record.

Immediate gasoline rationing and a national corporation to buy all imported oil for re-sale to U.S. distributors is the only way to assure that available supplies go where they are most needed at fair prices, AFL-CIO lobbyist Ray Denison, declared.

"Short of a miracle oil strike tomorrow that suddenly gives the U.S. control over all of the oil it needs, such a two-step program would effectively curb "run-away" energy costs and OPEC's "economic blackmail," Denison asserted. He said that the nation is now trying to deal with the energy crisis from a position of "weakness," not knowing what oil "really costs and what the distribution problems really are."

Speaking on the network radion interview Labor New Conference, Denison said that "unless there is a strong program to bring the cost of oil under control, the oil industry should be nationalized," which would fix costs and profits and set a guaranteed return on investments.

Denison deplored the reluctance of Congress in wrestling with a windfall profits tax on the oil companies, stressing that the Senate Finance Committee has "further weakened" the modest bill passed earlier by the House of Representatives. Noting the recently-announced oil company profits and the Treasury Department's estimate that more than $1 trillion will be transferred to the oil industry from American consumers over the next decade, he declared, "it's unbelievable that profits of this magnitude—in addition to their normal profits—should be allowed to go relatively unscathed and untaxed."

The hope now is that windfall tax measure will be tightened in Senate floor action and the eventual Senate-House conference, in light of growing public pressure as the magnitude of these profits is realized, Denison said.

ENERGY CONSERVATION
U. S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT, November 26, 1979 reported the following:

"Americans have done nothing to conserve energy." Don't you believe it. Despite all the harping about fuel-wasteful citizens: Between 1973 and last year, U.S. industry turned out 21 percent more goods while consuming only 1 percent more energy. In the same five years, half the homeowners in the country reinsulated their houses in some way to save fuel.

Gasoline consumption this year is lower than it was in 1977 or 1978. In six years, gas use has gone up 5 percent; number of vehicles, up 25 million.

PORK PRODUCERS WIN INJUNCTION

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL of 11-16-79 reported that the National Pork Producers Council won a preliminary court injunction against a new agricultural department ruling that permits calling products "bacon" or "hotdogs" even if they haven't been cured in the usual nitrite-based process. The winning argument seemed to be a well-recognized fact that consumers are schooled in the use of cured meat products and if the trade is permitted to call fresh products by the same name, much damage would be done. The Agriculture Department officials have indicated they would appeal the case.

MONEY SUPPLY
The U.S. Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System reports that the M1 money supply (currency plus demand deposits) September 1979 was $367.8 billion which is 4.7% above the $360.7 billion for September 1978. M1+ money supply (M1 plus checkable deposits at commercial banks and institutions) September 1979 was $408.1 billion is 2.1% above the $399.1 billion reported in September 1978. M2 money supply (M1 plus savings deposits at commercial banks and other than large certificates of deposit) September 1979 was $521.4 billion which is 7.66% above the $484.6 billion reported in September 1978. M3 money supply (M2 plus non-bank thrift institutions deposits) September 1979 at $1,594.4 billion is 8.16% above the $1,474.1 billion reported in September 1978. So long as the government continues to print money in such way as to increase supplies without a corresponding increase in production, will continue to advance.

FERTILIZER CONSUMPTION
Fertilizer consumption in the Puerto Rico during the year ending 30, 1979 is placed at 51.0 million up 7 percent from the 47.5 million consumed during the 1977-78. Primary nutrient content (nitrogen phosphate, P2O5; and potash) was 22.4 million tons, up 9 percent a year earlier. Nitrogen consumption increased 7 percent to 10.6 million tons; phosphate usage increased 9 percent to 5.5 million tons; and potash 5 million tons was up 12 percent. The five leading States in fertilizer consumption and the change in consumption from last year were: Illinois, 20 percent; Iowa, up 20 percent; Indiana, down 6 percent; Kansas, up 8 percent and Texas, up 8 percent. Fertilizer consumption represents commercial fertilizer tonnage shipped for farm and non-farm use. Materials used in the manufacture of registered mixes and other fertilizers are excluded.

RESEARCH GRANTS
The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced competitive research grants as follows: soybean research $1,843,000; energy research $1,843,000; health research $6,790,000; industrial hydrocarbons $468,000. This money is allocated to the authority of federal law to competitive grants not to exceed years to state agricultural experiment stations, colleges and other research institutions and organizations, federal agencies, private organizations or corporations and individuals. Details regarding the program available in the FEDERAL REGISTER, November 14, beginning on page 40. Copies are available from the FOREIGN AGRICULTURE DIVISION.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimating U.S. agricultural exports for the fiscal year ending on September 30, 1980 at $38.0 billion which is 1 percent of last year's exports. Agricultural exports for the fiscal year ending on September 30, 1979 at $37.4 billion improved 1 percent of the $7.74 billion imported for the fiscal year ending on September 30, 1979.

U.S. agricultural imports for the fiscal year ending on September 30, 1980 at $17.5 billion, which is 1 percent of the U.S. agricultural exports for the fiscal year ending on September 30, 1979. U.S. agricultural imports for the fiscal year ending on September 30, 1979 at $16.19 billion is 21.3 percent of the $7.74 billion imported for the fiscal year ending on September 30, 1979.

COTTON LOAN RATES
USDA has announced a 1980 cotton loan rate at 48 cents per pound strict low middling 1-1/16 inch staple 3.5 through 4.9. The average location, the 1979 average is 2.23 cents below the 1978 average. The department has also announced the 1980 seed cotton loan program to the one available to borrowers. Recourse loans available for the Upland cotton loans are for a period, beginning on the first day of the first month the loan is made. The first month the loan is made, the additional 8 months at the request, provided the average of the basic cotton grade in the spot markets for the preceding 30 days does not exceed 130% of the spot price for the preceding 30 days. Program provisions are similar to those for the 1979 program.

Inflation-Fighting Ideas To Help You

Knowing how to save money includes knowing how not to save money. The current energy crisis has led to an increasing number of devices that are supposed to help you save energy—but don't—and the wise buyer should beware—and be aware.

One such item is a gadget called a transient surge suppressor. One can cost from $140 to $300, and most scientists agree, won't work the way you may think it should. These surge suppressors operate on the theory that when a major appliance is turned on, a surge or jolt occurs and the electric current peaks briefly over the normal voltage. This is supposed to cause electric motors to run hotter than normal, burn up more quickly and shorten the life of bulbs and appliances. The surge suppressor is supposed to prevent those current surges and so keep appliances running cooler, more efficiently and longer.

Don't waste money trying to save energy in such a way.

It is also supposed to bring about a big savings in your electric bills. The surge suppressor is connected to the main fuse box and is designed specifically to suppress surges. It cannot cut power usages. According to Dr. John Kasagient, professor at the Electric Power Systems Engineering Laboratory at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, "We know of no reliable electrical engineer or scientist who believes in the effectiveness of the surge suppressor for conserving energy or cutting electrical bills."

Don't waste money trying to save energy in such a way.

Host families sought for high school exchange students

Local families have the opportunity to share in an unusual Christmas gift this year by inviting a South American student to live with them.
 "Sharing your home and love with an exchange student eager to learn about America, can be a gift to enrich your life," states John Richardson, Jr., President of Youth for Understanding and former Assistant Secretary of State for Education and Cultural Affairs. "It is an opportunity to learn about another culture in a very personal way."

 Youth for Understanding is a non-profit educational program that has exchanged over 75,000 teenagers worldwide, since 1951. It is one of three high school student exchange programs recognized by the International Communication Agency of the U.S. Department of State.

"The purpose of this program is to increase international understanding through the family-living experience for young people and we are inviting families to share the spirit of America with students from South America," said Fenton and Judy Kovic, Regional Directors of the Youth for Understanding International Student Exchange Program. Students like Elsa Nieto of Colombia and Paulo de Mello of Brazil will be living with host families and attending local high schools. Elsa is a serious piano student who also enjoys playing the guitar. She has interests similar to American seventeen-year-olds, including tennis, volleyball, dancing and reading. Elsa describes herself as sincere, polite and friendly. She would like to live with a host family in a small town and have a sister of her own age. She speaks English and French fluently.

Paulo is 15 and sports in his home town Rio de Janeiro. He likes soccer and volleyball.

Exchange students come from all over the world and have many responsibilities and hobbies. Families are made to match the interests of the students. Families who are interested in participating in the program should contact:
