Chamber Banquet May 13

The Friona Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture's annual membership meeting and banquet will be held May 13.

A Chamber spokesperson said "Check the Friona Star each week for more details about this exciting event."

Nominations for outstanding citizens will be accepted at the Chamber of Commerce office. Nominations will be accepted for "Man of the Year," "Woman of the Year," "Citizen of the Year," "Teacher of the Year," "Most Courteous Employee," "Girl of the Year" and "Boy of the Year."

Nominations may be made in two ways—either submit a letter outlining the accomplishments of the person being nominated or submit a nomination form, which is available at the Chamber office.

The most important aspect of nominating a person for one of the awards is to give details on the contributions which the person has made to the community. A list of criteria used for selection of award winners is available at the Chamber office.

Deadline for submitting nominations is Friday, May 2.

CITY MANAGER TERRI JOHNSON

City Council Hires New City Manager

The Friona city council moved quickly to hire a new city manager. Out of about a dozen applications for the position, the council hired Terri Johnson, longtime city secretary in Hereford, as Friona's city manager.

Mrs. Johnson has been employed by the city of Hereford since 1978, and assumed her current position as city secretary and records management officer in 1992.

She has completed the Certified Public Management course through Texas Tech and SW Texas State and is the current president of the Texas Municipal Clerks Association.

Mrs. Johnson is a Hereford High School graduate and was selected as Hereford's Woman of the Year in 1978.

Mayor John Taylor said Johnson should assume her duties here "in a couple of weeks." She gave her notice to the city of Hereford on Tuesday.

National Doctors' Day Is Observed Locally

Parmer County Community Hospital and the Hospital Auxiliary members joined together in celebration of "National Doctors' Day" on Friday, March 28, with a reception honoring the medical staff.

Parmer County Community Hospital Auxiliary gave red roses to members of the medical staff. Bill Neely, hospital administrator, said, "We are very pleased to join with our Auxiliary members in expressing our appreciation to the medical staff for their outstanding service to our community."

Doctors' Day has been celebrated in March since 1933 and commemorates the discovery of ether for painless surgery.

YES, IT IS that time of year again. The trailer is back in city park to collect your aluminum cans for the Class of 2003's all-night drug free party after the May 23 graduation. Save your cans, bring them to the park. Thanks.

PEOPLE HAVE recently been asking why folks in other countries don't like us here in the good old USA. Well, heck, there are a lot of us here that don't even like each other... such as: liberals vs conservatives, Democrats vs Republicans, Hollywood elitists vs the rest of us hicks.

The Tinseltown film folks managed to limp through their annual "Oscar" pat yourselves on the back last Sunday night, with a muted amount of mud slinging aimed at our country's leaders. Matthew McConaughey, a Texas boy of Irish lineage, is my new hero for wearing a red, white and blue pin on his lapel as a show of patriotic support. Bruce Willis is also a strong supporter of our country's ideals.

I am in total agreement with the lady in Amarillo whose recent "letter to the editor" urged all of us to boycott any movies, videos, CDs, and other forms of entertainment which feature entertainers who do not support our leaders, our country and our military.

My current Hollywood blacklist: Barbara Streisand, Mike Douglas, Susan Sarandon, Michael Moore, Martin Sheen, Sean Penn, Jaimie Lee Curtis, George Clooney, George Michael, Harry Belafonte, Alec Baldwin, Lubbock's own Natalie Maines of the Dixie Chicks, Spike Lee, Ed Harris. Oh well, the list goes on and on. I really liked some of these artists, but when they start spouting political rhetoric, it just ruins it for me to ever enjoy any of their work in the future.

French folks don't seem to like us nearly as well as they did back in June 1944. General George Patton once remarked "I would rather have a German division in front of me than a French one behind me."

General Norman Schwarzkopf says "Going to war without France is like going deer hunting without your accordion."

"The only time France wants us to go to war is when the German Army is sitting in Paris sipping little cups of coffee," states Regis Philbin.

Arizona Senator John McCain has said "You know, the French remind me a little bit of an aging actress of the 1940s who was still trying to dine out on her looks but doesn't have the face for it."

The best quote yet comes from late night talk show host Jay Leno. "I don't know why people are surprised that France won't help us get Saddam out of Iraq. After all, France wouldn't help us get the Germans out of France."

Anyway, there are several other countries out there who DO agree with our position on removing this cruel dictator from power. Those who have pledged their support and sent troops to stand beside the U.S. military forces in Iraq are: Afghanistan, Albania, Azerbaijan, Australia, Bulgaria, Columbia, Czech Republic, Denmark, El Salvador, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Georgia, Hungary, Italy, Japan, South Korea, Latvia, Lithuania, Macedonia, Netherlands, Nicaragua, Philippines, Poland, Romania, Slovakia, Spain, Turkey, United Kingdom, and Uzbekistan. Plus there are several more countries giving support who wish to remain unnamed.

Some of you readers may be old enough to remember when good old Bob Hope used to grab up a troupe of Hollywood stars and travel to wherever there was military action. They would entertain our fighting troops in a show of support. Back at home, well-known movie icons urged folks to buy war bonds to support the war effort. Hollywood whipped up the entire population into a frenzy of patriotism. You simply did not see any anti-war protests going on during WWI, WWII, or the Korean War. I wonder whatever happened to that spirit of togetherness?

"My Turn"

by Carol Ellis

A SELL-OUT CROWD made their way to the Hereford Bull Barn for the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative annual member meeting Tuesday, March 25. Food, entertainment and door prizes were enjoyed by the almost 1,500 attendees.

REC Annual Member Meeting Is Big Success

Great meal, great entertainment and a packed house were the order of the evening at the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative's 65th annual membership meeting Tuesday night at Hereford's Bull Barn.

The chicken, fish and barbecue dinner, with all the trimmings, was catered by Danny's Hens and Fins from Lubbock to almost 1,500 people.

Entertainment was provided by the Flying J Wranglers from Ruidoso and the co-op gave away over $1,000 in door prizes as well as returning capital credits to members of over $1 million.

During the business meeting, all three incumbent directors were re-elected. They are Clark Andrews, Clarence Martin and Donald Wright.

DSEC president and general manager Steve Louder gave members an update on cooperative activities and introduced Sheldon Petersen, governor of the National Rural Utility Cooperative Finance Corporation (NRUCFC).

Mr. Petersen traveled all the way from Virginia to attend the meeting and was the featured speaker during the business meeting. NRUCFC headquarters are located in Herndon, Virginia, and DSEC president Louder is its board chairman this year.

L. Alvarado Reactivated To Marines

Sgt. Leonard Alvarado, Jr., a 1996 graduate of Friona High School, has been reactivated to Marine duty after completing a four year enlistment.

Alvarado enlisted in the Marines in 1997 and served four years, including tours in Guantanamo Bay Cuba, Albania and the Mediterranean. While on active duty he was with the 3rd Battalion, 6th Marines, Scout Sniper Platoon.

Since his four year tour of duty, he has been employed as a police officer in Morehead City, North Carolina. Because of the current conflict in Iraq, he was ordered back to active duty in March 2003 and is currently stationed in Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, and is assigned to the Military Police.

He is married and his wife Susan and son, Caleb, reside in North Carolina. Leonard is the son of Leonard, Sr. and Angelita Alvarado of Friona.

C. Formby Honored For Broadcast Milestone

Long-time Hereford radio broadcaster Clint Formby will be airing his 15,000th consecutive broadcast on Monday morning, March 31. This will establish his radio program, "Day by Day Philosopher," as the longest consecutive broadcast by any person in this country, even surpassing the likes of Paul Harvey and Rush Limbaugh.

Formby's program has been broadcast six days each week, Monday through Saturday, on station KPAN since October 9, 1955, having never missed a program.

Station KPAN and listeners in the Hereford area, including Friona and Bovina, will participate in special observances for the occasion on Monday after the daily program airs. An application to the "Guinness Book of Records" will follow immediately after the broadcast.

Formby has been an active broadcaster, civic leader and businessman in Texas since his graduation from Texas Tech in 1949.

He is a former chairman of the National Association of Broadcasters, Chairman of the Texas Tech Board of Regents, President of the Associated Press Broadcasters, a six year member of the corporate board of the Associated Press, and has been named Texas Broadcaster of the Year, Texas Association of Broadcasters Pioneer of the Year, American Broadcast Pioneer

Herbicide Application

Now is the time to start applying preemergent herbicides for the control of summer annual weeds in lawns, commercial sites, sports fields and golf courses.

To be effective, these products need to be applied and watered in thoroughly before the weed seed start to germinate. The sooner the herbicide is watered in following application, the better since sunlight will break down these materials when left on top of the turf grass plants.

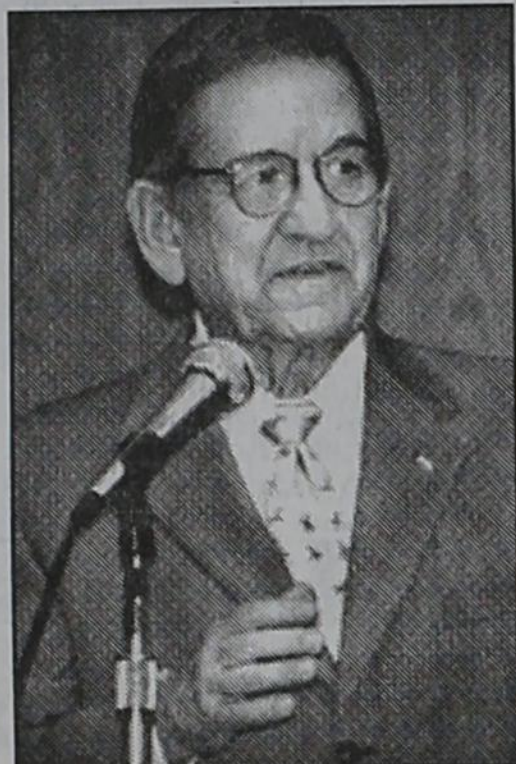

Once the weed seed has germinated and the plant is actively growing, most of the preemergents will have little or no effect on controlling the annual weeds.

For postemergent control of winter weeds, applicators need to wait until daytime temperatures are at least 50-55 degrees for the application of the broadleaf herbicides and at least 85 degrees for the postemergent control of grassy weeds.

Most of the postemergent broadleaf herbicides are in the growth regulatory category. For these herbicides to be effective the plants need to be actively growing. The ideal temperature range for most of these broadleaf products is in the 70-85 degree range.

One of the big problems with application of herbicides to turf grasses in home lawns is the over application of product because of poor calibration of sprayers and/or spreaders. This over application generally results in damage to the turf grass plants.

Contact your local Texas Cooperative Extension Office to obtain a guideline for the calibration and use of hand-cans and backpack sprayers along with some ideas on calibration of a spreader for the application of dry products, such as preemergent herbicides.

CLINT FORMBY

by Broadcasters Foundation, and has served 17 years as a member of the board of Broadcast Music Inc.

Station KPAN was established in August 1948 by two Texas journalists, John Blake and Marshall Formby.

Clint had just completed his Junior year at Texas Tech, and spent the summer as part of the crew who built the new radio station. The very first day the station went on the air, Clint's was the first voice heard when he welcomed listeners with a greeting and an invocation at 6:15 a.m.

As the "philosopher," Formby draws upon his experiences in civic endeavors, business enterprises, and extensive travel experiences. His editorials, "lines for living," poetry and humor have been the hallmark of the daily broadcast for the past 47 years.

BIG SAN ANGELO MEET

Chiefs' Track Team Sparkles In Relays

The 2003 Chieftain track team headed south to San Angelo last weekend having won all three of the meets they had entered, but as Coach Lanny Crow said earlier, "We'll be in high cotton" at the prestigious San Angelo meet.

The results are in, and the Chieftains did very well, thank you!
Friona scored 59 points and finished fourth overall, probably the best they've ever done in the San Angelo meet.

"We are extremely proud of the effort and improvement made. The team placed fourth out of the 21 teams entered. Several of the athletes posted the best marks in their events," said Coach Crow.

Adam Bandy won the long jump with a 21.25 effort, and was third in the 400-meter race. He also anchored Friona's mile relay team, and accounted for 17 points.

Distance runner Andy Vega cut an eye-popping 28 seconds off his 3200-meter race, and finished second.

Adrian Flores also finished second in the shot put. Thompson and Vega were awarded Coach Crow's "Attabooy" award for the week.

Senior Andy Carthel placed third in the 110-meter hurdles, put tripped over a hurdle in the 300-meter hurdles finals, for fifth place. He had qualified first in the qualifying rounds with a 41.77 clocking.

Results were:
400-meter dash: 3. Adam Bandy, 51.87.
800-meter run: 6. Jose Herrera, 2:07.02*
1600-meter run: 5. Jose Herrera, 4:55.02*
3200-meter run: 2. Andy Vega, 10:20.23*
110-meter hurdles: 3. Andy Carthel, 15.25.

Winebrinner Tops Murphree In Discus

Sophomore Trisha Winebrinner edged teammate Amy Murphree in the discus throw, to highlight the FHS Squaws' efforts at the Sudan track and field meet last Friday.

As a team, the Squaws placed fourth with points.

Misses Murphree and Winebrinner have been placing 1-2 most of the season in the discus event, and this past Friday was no exception.

Trisha won the event with a best throw of 114 feet, seven inches, and Amy had to settle for second place with a 110-2 effort. The marks were not the best for either contestant for the season, yet good enough for the 1-2 finish.

The meet was held on a chilly, rainy day, which was not conducive for great marks.

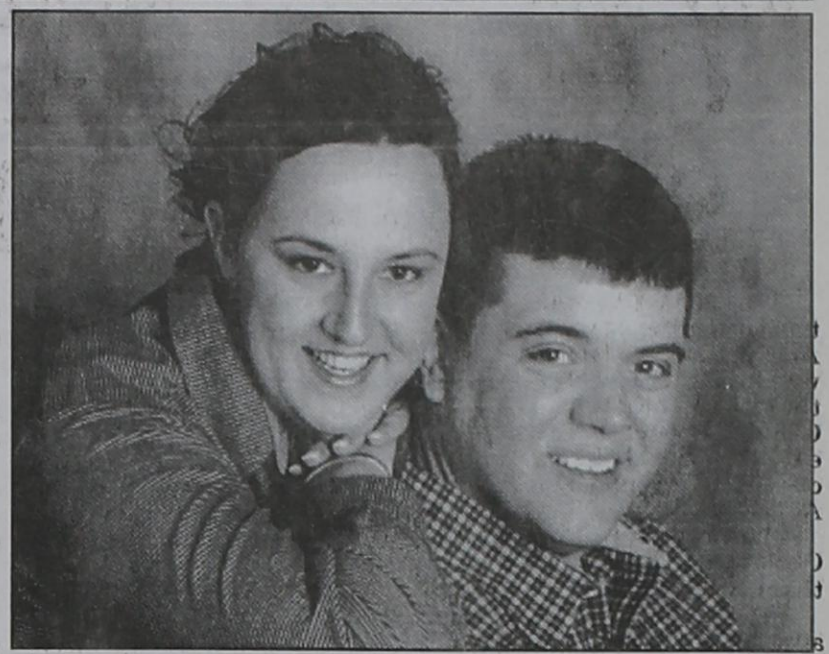

Friona's 800-meter relay team placed second with a 1:58 effort. Team members were Beth Nava, Karla Padilla, VLesha Wilcox and Denise Perez.

The Squaws also placed third in the 1600-meter relay with a clocking of 54.9. Making up this foursome were Yvonne Vega, Misses Wilcox, Padilla and Perez.

Denise Perez also placed third in the 200-meter dash with a time of 29.66.

Friona's 1600-meter relay placed third, with a time of 4:38. Members of this relay were Nava, Jessica Silva, Padilla and Wilcox.

Miss Vega placed third in the 100-meter hurdles race with a time of 19.71, and Kristi Cheney took sixth in the 100-meter dash to round out Friona's scoring.

Stay Grateful and Be Humble

My son Casey called Sunday afternoon.

I've written about him from time to time. You might remember he was employed on the cruise ship Carnival Pride at last mention.

He served out his six-month employment contract as a cruise staff assistant at the end of February and returned to Dallas.

For a little while. Casey doesn't stay in one spot very long, much to the chagrin of his mother.

He called me Sunday afternoon on his cell phone in his GMC Jimmy pickup from somewhere on an Indiana toll road. He had been in Chicago the night before to see a professional hockey game and was on his way to Buffalo,

New York, to see another professional hockey game.

We're not sure where his love of hockey came from. Not from me that's for sure. He played roller blade hockey and lacrosse in college at North Texas University.

From Buffalo he was driving to Brooklyn (New York) to spend a few days with a friend, see New York City and take in a couple of more professional hockey games before moving on down the east coast, ending up in Orlando, Florida.

While we talked, I kept hearing the distinct sound of a radar detector. I asked him about it. "Don't need any more tickets" he said. "Hallelujah," I thought to myself.

He was meeting up with a couple of friends in Florida. They were going to cruise on the Carnival Pride for a week, then he was going to stay on the ship for another week.

Seems during his six-months on board he met and fell hard for a young lady named Candy from Edmonton, Canada. She is a dancer in the stage shows the cruise line presents every night. He's 26 and she is 20 and he claims to be crazy about her.

After his cruises, he and a friend named Kelly are heading to Alaska to work through the summer. When I asked him what kind of work they were going to do, he said he didn't have any idea.

When I asked him where in Alaska they planned to go, he said he didn't have any idea. It must be nice to be young and optimistic enough that you don't have to have definite plans about anything.

He'll be back to Dallas by the fall, he said. His sister, my daughter Kirsten, is getting married on November 1 and he is going to "hang around" until after the wedding.

After that, he says he will probably sign up for another six months on a cruise ship, this time on Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines. Seems that his heartthrob Candy will be dancing on Royal Caribbean by then and he hopes to join her.

For his sake, I hope she hasn't latched on to another boyfriend in his absence.

I learned all this while he was trying to navigate the toll roads of Indiana, under the frequent interruptions of a radar detector.

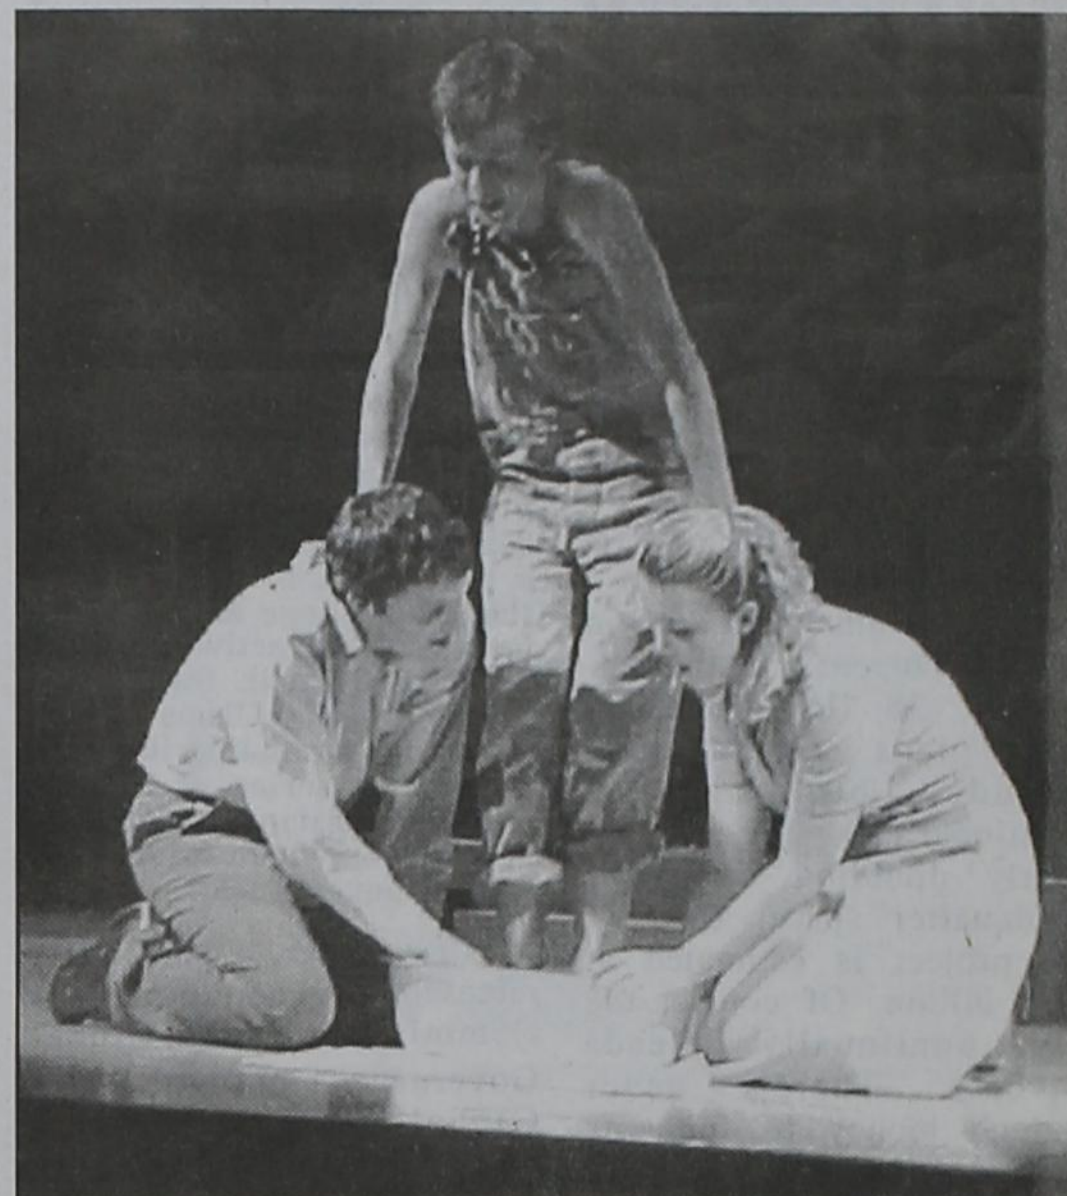

He said his mother was ragging on him to come back to Frisco, Texas, where she and my daughter live, and get a job and settle down. His mother loves him dearly and I know that she worries about his safety and future.

He thinks he might want to be a teacher. His degree is in history. And I know that he would not want to disappoint his mother. So maybe someday, my boy Casey will grab the brass ring, get married, get a real job and family, and make his mother proud.

In the meantime, as you read this, he is on another of

Is The United Nations Worth It To U.S.?

(Compiled from various sources) * * * * *

The fifty-year-old United Nations headquarters building in New York City is starting to show its age. The old building no longer conforms to modern safety, fire and building codes, there's asbestos in the walls. Security needs for protecting the important folks inside is becoming a nightmare. It's a fire trap.

Recently the UN unveiled its plan for a top-to-bottom renovation of its current Manhattan-located, 38 floor building. The plans would also include building an additional 30 story tower, nearly doubling the UN's headquarter space. Cost of the project is estimated at $1.3 billion. Of course, the UN continually pleads poverty. There's never enough money to fund its self-imposed, ever-expanding agenda. What to do?

Silly question. What does the UN always do when it needs something? It looks for that never-ending pot of gold at the end of the Potomac. That's right, after constantly bashing the United States for its selfish, capitalist greed, the benevolent Socialists at the UN want Uncle Sam to float a loan. But not just a loan—they want an interest-free loan!

The arm twisting has already begun as UN officials are rounding up support for the loan at the State Department and in Congress. According to reports, UN Secretary General Kofi Annan cornered President Bush about the issue when they met last November.

Should the United States just provide the loan, no questions asked? or, since the money will actually come from the pockets of the American taxpayer, perhaps the government should act in our interest by making sure the UN actually qualifies for the loan?

A good loan officer at any bank would ask basic questions like these: What, specifically, is the money to be used for? Is the project necessary and fiscally sound? What are the possibilities that the loan will be paid? Is there a sufficient credit record to permit loaning such an amount? For the American taxpayer, let's examine the answers.

The UN says it needs to repair its old headquarters and original plans call for a comprehensive, systematic cost-efficient capital master plan to bring the building up to modern building code requirements.

For example, the building doesn't have a sprinkler system. In addition, say UN officials, the building has become expensive to run and is poorly equipped to handle cable lines or energy saving devices, while most of the existing equipment has become too old to maintain. The UN, under that plan, was seeking to pay for the project incrementally, over twenty five years. OK, so far the applicant is asking for a loan, using fiscally sound reasoning.

However, that plan was discussed in 2000. Suddenly, in late 2002, it was apparently abandoned as the UN announced a grand new scheme calling for an additional 30 floor building, with the whole project being financed by an interest-free loan from the United States. So we must now take a closer look at the reasons why the UN needs such a grand design, including almost doubling office space.

Apparently the UN has plans for growth—big growth. Actually, the UN's plans for growth aren't new. It has been working behind the scenes to expand its reach for the better part of two decades. Many Americans and most members of Congress argue that the UN's urgent mission is to provide a place for nations to hold debates and air differences as a prevention to war. Such is the UN's image as the world focuses on the activities of the Security Council. But behind the scenes, the UN is rapidly changing, expanding its reach through a series of treaties and commissions designed to create a mechanism for "global governance."

In 1995, the UN released a report from the Commission on Global Governance entitled "our Global Neighborhood." The report set forth very specific recommendations to achieve the vision of global governance. Once the report was issued, a network of NGO's (non-government organizations) was created to advance the reports agenda. As a result, the agenda outlined in "our Global Neighborhood" was reissued in a shorter, easy to read report called the "Charter for Global Democracy."

Specifically, the Charter for Global Democracy outlined twelve goals necessary to achieve global governance. These included: 1) Consolidation of all international agencies under direct authority of the United Nations; 2) Regulations by the UN of all transnational corporations and financial institutions; 3) An independent source of revenue for the UN; 4) Eliminate the veto power and permanent member status of the Security Council; 5) Authorize a standing UN army; 6) Require UN registration of all arms and the reduction of all national armies. 7) Require individual and national compliance with all UN Human Rights treaties; 8) Activate the International Criminal Court and make it compulsory for all nations. 9) New institutions to establish economic and environmental Sustainable Development. 10) Establishment of an International Environmental Court; 11) A declaration that climate change is an essential global security interest that requires the creation of a "high level action team" to allocate carbon emission based on equal per-capita rights (Kyoto Global Warming Treaty); 12) Calls for the cancellation of all debt owed by the poorest nations, global poverty reductions and the "equitable sharing of global resources" as allocated by the UN.

In the year 2000, the UN held a "Millennium Summit" attended by almost every head of state in the world. The result of the gathering was a document called the "Millennium Declaration," loosely based on the Charter for Global Democracy, agreed to by the world leaders and taken by the UN to be a mandate for its global governance agenda.

This was confirmed in a statement made soon after the Summit by Assistant Secretary General John Ruggie who said that the Millennium Declaration would be used by the UN, "to implement the political commitments the world's leaders made at the Summit." As a result, since the September 2000 Summit, the UN has held a series of international conferences to lay the ground work for implementing the goals of the Charter for Global Democracy and global governance.

First, in 2001, the UN floated trial balloons with ideas for independent revenue sources, including taxes on international currency trades. Then, in 2002, the UN held a full summit in Mexico, focusing on the subject of international taxes. Second, the UN completed work on the International Criminal Court and it will take effect in 2003. Third, also in 2002, the UN held an international summit in South Africa to discuss implementation of Sustainable Development. In 2001, a UN conference was held in New York to discuss the creation of global standards for the manufacture, sale, export and possession of guns. In addition, discussions have been held concerning the possibility of bringing the World Trade organization (WTO) and the International Monetary Fund (IMF) under the arm of the UN. In fact, since the Millennium Summit, literally all of the twelve points of the Charter for Global Democracy have been discussed on an official international level. It will take several years to implement the agenda, but at the UN, the Millennium Declaration is seen to be the point beyond which there can be no turning back.

To help implement the global governance agenda, the United Nations is enlisting the help of an army of NGO's to "elevate public awareness" to the need for international cooperation. In most cases, the first step is to help create the perception of an international crisis, such as global warming or overpopulation. Then, the NGO's, like the Sierra Club; and the Nature Conservancy; flood newspaper op-ed pages, hold public meetings, besiege Capitol Hill and some even hold protests in the streets to build pressure for international intervention.

Policies are established, bills written and action is taken. The agenda moves forward. We're told that a criminal court must be established just to handle international outlaws; We're warned that the UN needs independent sources of income to handle all of the international upheavals it faces; and it needs an army so that it can rapidly respond anywhere in the world without having to wait for nations to agree to let the UN use their armies. All of these arguments have appeared in the news in recent months. Keep in mind, it's all being carefully orchestrated in order to implement the global governance agenda.

Frankly, the objectives of global governance are no different from the objectives of the Soviet Union under Stalin. If fully implemented, it will allow the UN the ability to consolidate its power into a central bureaucracy where each nation will have only one vote; where special interest voting blocks will dictate policy; where national sovereignty and national boundaries will be relics of the past; and where individual citizens will have no say about policies that directly affect their lives.

As a precursor to full global governance, continental unions are being organized across the globe. The European Union, of course, already exists. Here, ancient cultures have agreed to surrender national sovereignty and boundaries to a centralized governance. Pressure is now building to establish a North American Union in which the United States, Canada and Mexico would morph into one unit. Further plans call for such unions in Africa and South America. It would be only a small step, once the nations of the world are organized into such regional units, to consolidate them into one federation controlled by the United Nations.

Obviously, the UN is planning to expand its operation from the worldwide perception of simply a place where nations can meet to air their differences to the implementation of a global government, complete with taxes, armies and criminal courts' actions historically undertaken only by governments. Plans for a bigger complex of buildings would be necessary as the UN headquarters is transformed into the world capital building.

So now that the purpose of the massive expansion is confirmed on the UN's application for an interest-free loan from American taxpayers, a final question remains. Is the UN a good loan risk? Can it be trusted to pay it back?

The prospects of the United States ever recovering the $1.3 billion don't look good, in light of past experience with UN money management.

For several years the UN and its allies, like mogul Ted Turner and the United Nations Association, have publicly tarred and feathered the United States for not paying its "fair share" of UN costs, even though this nation pays much more than a third of them overall. The record shows that the United States has paid more than $10 billion in support of UN peacekeeping missions in recent years. The rules say this money is supposed to be reimbursed. In fact, records show that the UN used to pay this obligation. But in the past decade the UN has repaid very little. Yet it continues to deride the United States for failure to pay some dues.

There's not a competent loan officer in the world who would make this commitment to such an unstable entity. According to the application, the United Nations has little collateral; no defined income; no sound fiscal control of its spending; a bad payment record; and on top of it all, apparently has no respect for the very lending institution from which it seeks the money. And yet it not only wants the loan—it wants it interest-free!

The American taxpayers very quickly should tell their elected representatives and the State Department that any loan application from the United Nations is dead on arrival—unless they can come up with a suitable co-signer. Better yet, perhaps the UN should just take its business elsewhere.

Chief Baseballers Stand 1-1 In Dist.

The Chieftain baseball team won two of its three games during the past week. The team topped visiting Nazareth, 9-6 on Monday, March 17, and edged Hale Center, 5-3 on Friday, before dropping a 6-1 decision at Abernathy Tuesday.

The two district games left the Chieftains 1-1 in district play and 6-9 overall.

In the Nazareth game, the Chieftains fell behind 5-1 before rallying.

Hayden Patton doubled in the third inning, scoring Nathan Haile, who had singled, pulling Friona to a 5-3 deficit.

Nazareth scored six more runs to lead 9-3, until Friona's turn in the fifth inning.

Three Chieftains reached base on errors, setting up a double by Haile, an RBI single by Jonathan Nava and a two-run home run by Patton. Joey Dominguez also had a double in the inning, as Friona took the win.

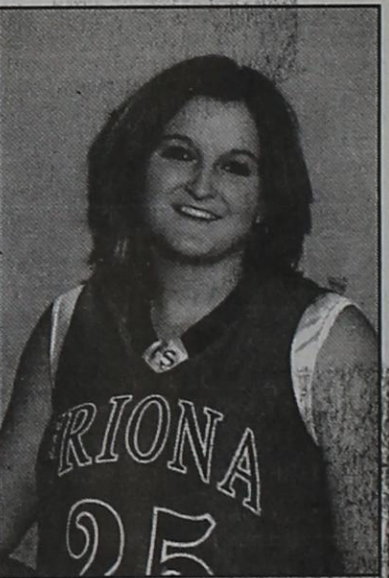

In the district opener here last Friday, Jacob Hoon scattered five hits, gave up two walks and struck out three to gain a 5-3 win over Hale Center.

The first four Friona batters reached base in the bottom of the first. Brock Field, Nava and Kyle Grimsley all had singles, and Patton reached base on a fielder's choice. Nava and Grimsley had RBIs for the Chiefs, who took a 2-0 lead.

The Owls' pitcher had to strike out Dominguez and

AMY MURPHREE Named To Super Team

Senior Amy Murphree was named this week to the Amarillo Globe-News "Super Team" for class 2A.

Miss Murphree led the Squaws in scoring the past two years, scoring 434 points as a junior and 426 as a senior.

She played on two FHS playoff teams and was involved in four playoff wins.

She nailed 43 three-point baskets this season, had 106 rebounds, and made 75.5 per cent of her free throws, 59 of 78.

Patton singled as Friona scored two more runs to take a 4-1 lead.

Busch singled to lead off Friona's fourth, and scored on Field's singled to center. Once again the Chiefs left the bases loaded, settling for a 5-3 lead.

At Abernathy on Tuesday, FHS was limited to four hits and a single run as the Antelopes went 2-0 in district.

...AS THE PEOPLE GATHER THE FOOD, MOSES INSTRUCTS THEM THAT THIS SHALL BE THEIR BREAD FOR A LONG TIME TO COME, AND THAT THEY MUST GATHER IT EVERY MORNING, ENOUGH FOR EACH PERSON TO LAST OUT THE DAY! AND NOW THE PEOPLE NAME THIS FOOD "MANNA".

YOUR EYES

New, Lightweight Eyewear

Do you prefer very lightweight yet durable glasses? Purchase a pair made of titanium, one of the newest materials in visionwear. This same substance helped to develop faster and more agile fighter jets and to protect the space shuttle from external damage.

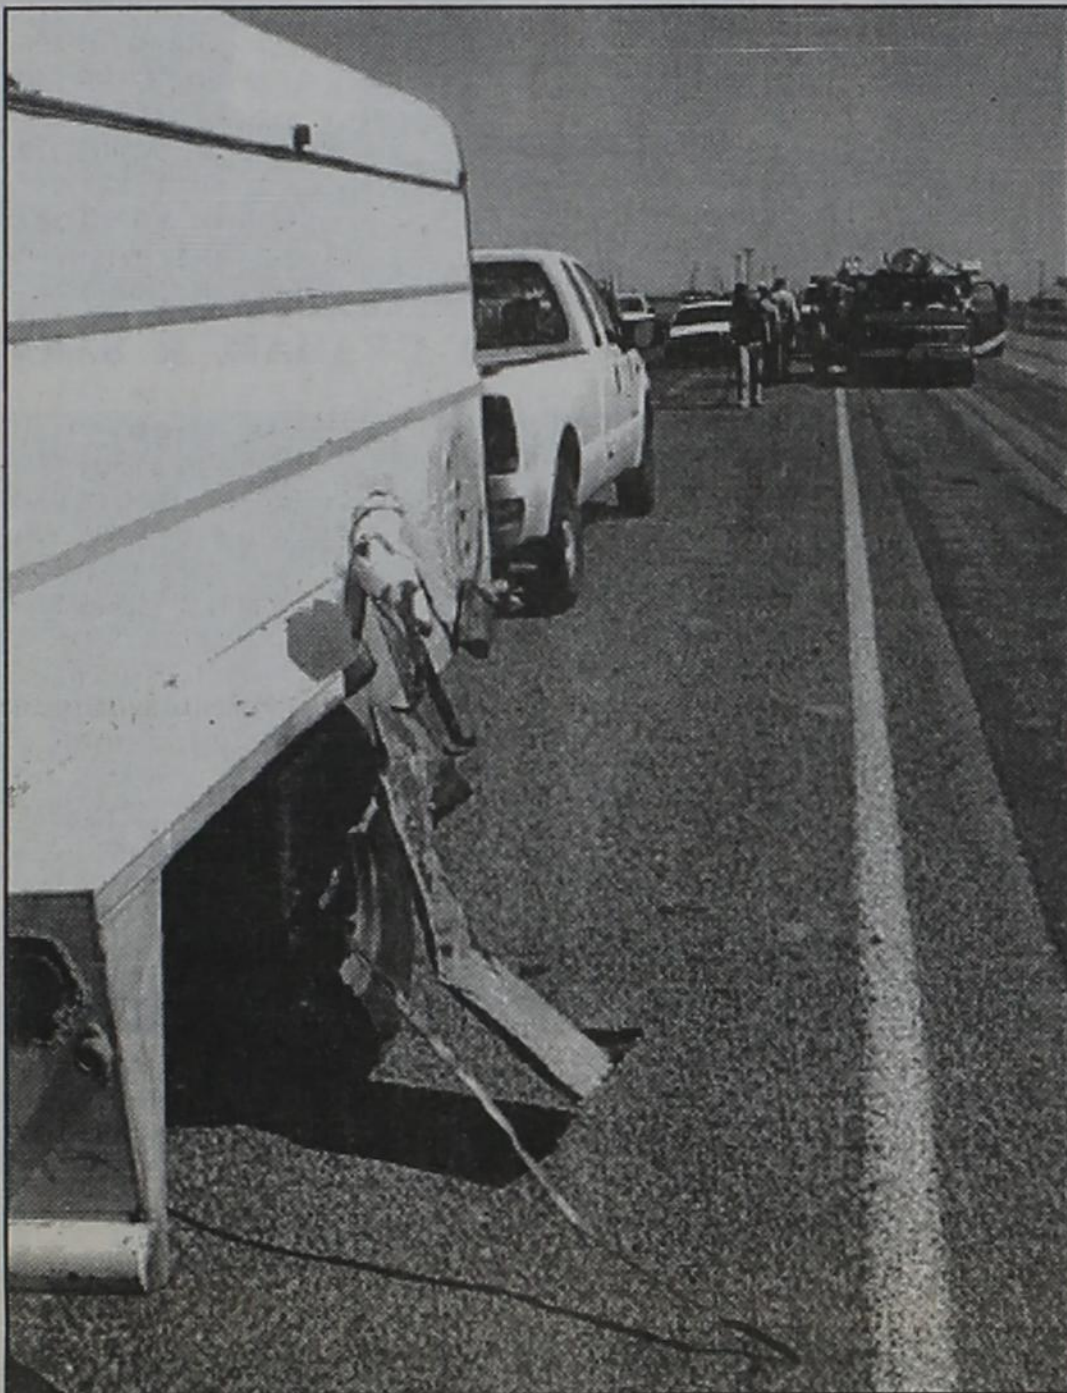

Titanium is about twice as strong as other metals--including aluminum and stainless steel--but 45 percent lighter. Its strength, flexibility and resiliency ensure that glasses return to their original shape after being impacted by most types of stress. Titanium lasts longer, requiring fewer trips back to the dispenser for repairs and/or adjustments. It is also perfect for safety wear.

Titanium frames are well suited for use with both single vision and multi-focal lenses. They can also be coated with anti-glare materials. In addition, the metal is hypoallergenic and helpful for people who react to frames made from such materials as nickel. When you next visit your eye-care specialist, ask about this versatile product. You may pay more, but you will get many additional benefits.

How To Become More Likeable

By REV. ALVIN PETTY

Rule number one is, if you are not liked, never assume that it is all the other fellow's fault.

One handsome young businessman knew he was very much disliked and he finally went to a religious counseling center. There they pointed out to him that he felt he was superior to most of mankind and that he projected an aura of disdainful superiority to everyone he dealt with. People sensed this and did not like him.

Over a period of many months the people at the religious counseling center taught him to work on his attitude and to visualize each person he had met at the end of each day and think of something good he had discovered in each of them. Then he was to say a prayer of blessing for each of them. It was a painful procedure for him but after several months he told his counselor that he had discovered the world was full of interesting people. He became a very likeable man.

If people do not like you, you can not fix them but you can fix yourself. You can reframe your world and by God's grace get a new viewpoint that makes you a new person participating in a world where all things have become new because you see them in a new light (2 Cor. 5:17).

A second rule to follow that will build up your likeableness and bless yourself and others is this: never miss an opportunity to sincerely bless someone's achievement or to sympathize with their loss or sorrow.

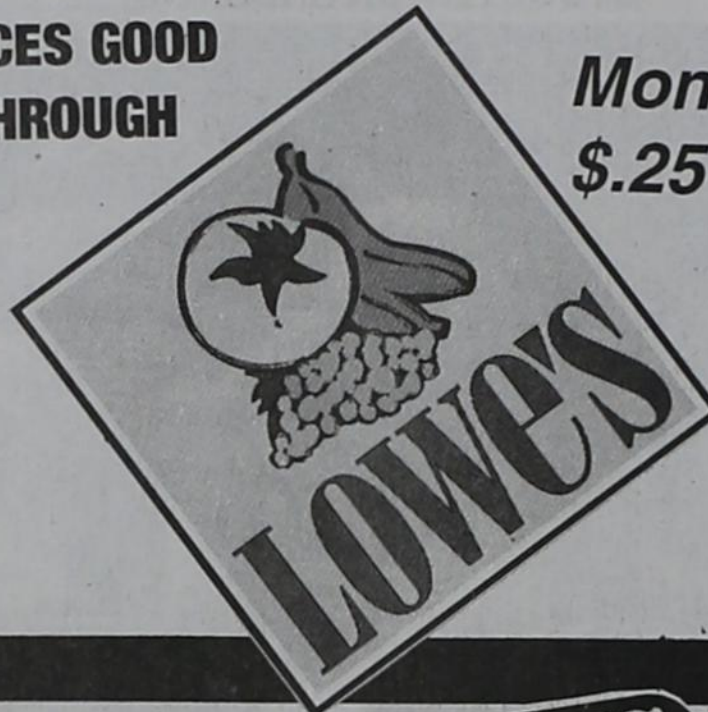

Dr. John W. Hoffman, president of Ohio Wesleyan University in the earlier part of the twentieth century, spoke at a campus fraternity right before graduation. Afterwards he asked one of the boys to walk him home. On the way he said, "son, I have always liked you. I believe in you. You have great possibilities, I shall always be proud of you. You have got it in you."

It seems that Dr. Hoffman was always pulling boys and girls aside and telling them something similar to that. Is it any wonder that hundreds loved him dearly? The young man that he spoke to above was Norman Vincent Peale who became a very likeable north American Christian minister.

Jesus was popular. The average person enjoyed listening to him preach. They heard him gladly (Mark 12:37b). He had some rich and powerful enemies who did him great harm but many loved to have him at their homes or parties. He was a well loved rabbi. He taught us to be aware of the possibility of rejection and how to handle it if it does come (Rom. 12:18 and Luke 9:5).

Jesus never wanted his followers to expect rejection and persecution or go around looking for it. Rather we are to be like him and expect acceptance from god, from life, others and the world because we go around working at embracing and liking and loving life, others and the world. Truly religious, people at bottom line must be committed to liking and loving and becoming more likeable and loveable. It is a continual learning process.
