District 4-H Food Show winners named

Originality spiced up some familiar favorite recipes as 135 boys and girls from 20 counties displayed their nutritional knowledge and cooking skills during the South Plains District 4-H Food Show in Lubbock Saturday, December 11. Three girls and a boy advanced to the state competition next year.

Winners in the senior division of the contest in the Home Economics Building at Texas Tech University were Jim Bob Carver of Hale County. main dish: Kayla Gentry of Dawson County, fruits and vegetables; Donna Stout of Hale County breads and cereals; and Donna Smith of Lamb County, nutritious snacks and desserts. Each received a plaque and ribbon in addition to advancing to the state contest.

Senior runners-up, who will participate in the state contest if the winners can't take part, were: Cindy Greaves. Lubbock County, main dish; Shelley Sain, Bailey County, fruits and vegetables: Jene' Nance, Dawson, breads and cereals, and Marie Hooper, Hale, snacks and desserts.

Junior division winners and runnersup in the four food categories also received ribbons, but don't compete beyond the district level. They were: Main dish-Roxie Johnson. Swisher. and Traci Wilson, Hockley. Fruits and vegetables-Misty Riney. Lamb; 'Misti McClurg, Swisher. Breads and cereals -Lisa Terrell, Floyd, and Rosemary Shepard, Hale. Snacks and desserts-John Hamilton, Hale, and Londi Jill Smith, Lamb.

Each contestant had earned championships in their county to advance to the district meet.

Four-H'ers from Floyd County and their awards were: Seniors: Earl Broseh, main dish; and Heather Holt, bread and cereals. Juniors: Kelli La-Baume, main dish; Joel Mitchell, fruits and vegetables; Lisa Terrell, bread and cereals; and Sharon Smith, snacks and Jim Bob Carver took top honors in the main dish category with his "Autumn Festival Beef Pie." a double-crust dish combining beef and green beans seasoned with onion, tomato soup and spices. Cindy Greaves second-place entry was "Shrimp-Stuffed Tomato Blossoms," blending shrimp, pineapapple, and walnuts into a stuffing for fresh tomatoes.

In fruits and vegetables, Kayla Gentry won with a simple salad combining cauliflower with frozen sweet peas and chopped celery. Shelley Sain served up fresh vegetable sticks with a tangy dip with a cream cheese base.

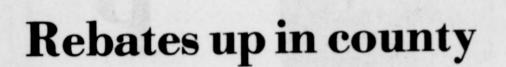

Winning entry in the breads and cereals was Donna Stout's "Whole Grain Honey Bread." It combined whole wheat flour, rolled oats, pecans and honey in a yeast bread. Runner-up was Jene' Nance with her homemade crisp crackers.

Taste-tempting apricot nut bars captured the prize for Donna Smith in the snacks and desserts category. Second place went to Marie Hopper and her "Festive Spinach Treats," a baked hors d'oeuvre blending frozen chopped spinach and herb stuffing with additional

The dishes were judged by a panel of professional home eocnomists and homemakers. Contestants were quizzed on nutritional values, preparation methods and costs of preparation.

The show is one aspect of the year-round foods and nutrition project in 4-H, explained Dr. Catherine Crawford, district director with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. 4-H is the youth program of Extension.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serves people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

African sees America

NEESHA BEHARPATHIE

By Terri Lloyd

At this time of the year, most people look forward to being with their families. But Neesha Beharpathie of Howik West, Natal, South Africa, is excited about something else. She is in the United States for the first time. Neesha is visiting the U.S. with her employers, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Lloyd. also of South Africa and formerly of Floydada.

Neesha is office manager at Texas Tillage Manufacturing. Pty., Ltd., which makes farm implements. Her duties include keeping all the books. typing, ordering and making the payroll.

Neesha did not start out in the office. Mrs. Lloyd first hired her to assist in the canteen, helping serve tea to the office

During Neesha's first day on the job. Mrs. Lloyd asked her if she had gone to school. Neesha said, yes I'm matriculated, which is our equivalent of a high school graduate. After becoming better acquainted. Neesha was promoted her first day at work. Mrs. Lloyd said of Neesha, "She's very intelligent. Her place is in the office.

Neesha learned the basics of the office and after four years has gone on to become the office manager.

Life in South Africa is much different than here. For example, each ethnic group has its own school. The first thru the 11th year of school is called standard one and so on until the 11th year, instead of first grade, second grade and so on. Beginning with the eighth year of school, students start their specialized training. Neesha's emphasis was bookkeeping, so she took courses in typing, bookkeeping, math and economics.

When a student reaches the 12th year of school he is matric, which is equal to our senior in high school. When a student has completed this year, he is matriculated.

South African schools have physical education classes and practice organized sports, but students do not receive credit for the class unless they are recognized as a sportsman or sportswoman. "A student may become one by scoring many points and by contributing the most to the school."

explained Neesha. Also, students play rugby and soccer, instead of football and basketball. In fact. Neesha had never seen a football game until last Sunday. Neesha said. "I liked it better after I understood what was going on! I think it's exciting when von all get together to cheer for te team.

One major difference between the two countries is the weather. South Africa is in summer right now. Neesha saw her first snow when her plane arrived in New York. Slick sidewalks and scraping ice off windshields were a surprise for Neesha! "I liked the snow, but not the cold!" Neesha exclaimed.

Another surprise for Neesha was the ability to buy gas everyday of the week and the price of gas. In South Africa. "petro stations" are open six days a week. Also, there is no self-service. When she and Mrs. Lloyd went to a gas station here. Neesha was surprised when Mrs. Lloyd got out of the car and began to pump her own gas!

Gas is controlled by the state, so there is no competition because the price is fixed. The price of gas is. approximately $2.70 a gallon.

Neesha's religious beliefs have been somewhat a problem since she has been in West Texas. Neesha is a Hindu and Hindu's consider a cow to be sacred and thus do not eat any beef. As we all know, most people in this area eat a great amount of beef!

The cow is sacred because of the use of milk during prayer. Tuesday is a special day of prayer for Neesha and her family. Neesha lives with her parents. her father's twin brother, and her vounger brother and sister. On Tuesdays, they pray and do not eat any meat. The family uses fruit and milk in their prayer. Afterwards, the family eats the fruit and drinks the milk. Neesha laughed and said, "I've been eating a lot of turkey since I've been

Also, Hindus do not celebrate Christmas as we do. "We join in the fun. but we don't exchange gifts." said Neesha. Hindus have a celebration in April named Diwali, which is a festival of lights and is similar to our celebration of

During this celebration, clay lamps are lit in the evenings, and are placed throughout the houses as decorations. Gifts are also exchanged at this time.

When asked what she thought about the U.S., Neesha said, "I think it's great except for the cold! South Africa is a wonderful country, everything is so green and the scenery is so pretty." Neesha added, "I would want to come back again, but not in the winter. Everyone here has been so nice and friendly. I've made many new friends. I'll never forget them.'

Avoid driving into vapor clouds.

 Avoid direct contact with the escaping liquids.

GROUND MARKER GROUND MARKER

When you see signs like those shown above, they tell you that there's a pipeline nearby. If it's underground, you can't see it, of course. But it's there, working quietly to provide energy for you and other consumers throughout this nation.

Some of these signs list the commodity transported in the pipeline, the name of the operator. and a telephone number where the operator's representative can be reached at all times.

Although pipelines have an exceptionally good safety record, once in a while a leak can occur. Indications of a leak might include:

A strange or unusual odor in the vicinity of a pipeline. A hissing or roaring sound (caused) by petroleum or product escaping from a pipeline)

A dense white cloud or fog.

 A spot of dead or discolored vegetation.

An accumulation of petroleum

CASING VENT Avoid creating sparks or sources of heat which could cause the liquids or vapor to ignite and burn If you find yourself in a suspected vapor area, do not light a match, start an engine or even switch on an electric light. Notify the pipeline operator as soon as you reach a safe area. Call collect. Give your name, a description of the leak and its location. If you do not know who the pipeline operator is, call your local fire, police or sheriff's department, or the state police. Advise them of the nature and location of the emergency.

If you see someone digging near a pipeline or doing other construction work . . . or if you plan to do such work near a pipeline yourself please call the telephone number shown on the sign and let the pipeline company know so damage can be avoided. It's in your interest ... and the nation's.

price prospects. But when harvest time rolled around, prices had cooled off

INSECTS AND OTHER PROBLEMS

Insects once again made the scene as the 1982 crop season progressed. Yellow sugarcane aphids, greenbugs and cutworms dealt a lethal blow to thousands of acres of grain sorghum in coastal and central areas.

By mid-year the weather has settled down into its usual pattern--hot and dry. Most crops progressed well for a while, but soon spring moisture was gone and drouth stress set in. In irrigated areas. farmers had irrigation pumps going full blast to keep their crops watered. Needless to say, running those pumps pushed production costs up sharply.

The hot, dry summer weather continued into the fall, providing ideal harvest conditions in most areas. Most farmers reaped good cotton, corn and grain sorghum harvests despite slow crop starts in the spring. However the summer-long drouth cut into crop yields in some areas, particularly cotton and dryland peanuts in central areas and soybeans and peanuts in coastal and eastern sections.

The summer drouth also dealt a blow to this year's pecan crop, which already had its share of disease and insect problems. In addition, this was an alternate-bearing year for most pecan

RANCHERS ALSO HAD PROBLEMS

While farmers were enduring all these problems ranchers weren't faring any better. 1982 started out extremely dry so cattle had little grazing on small grains such as wheat and oats. A siege extremely cold weather followed which brought snow to much of Texas and caused a surge in livestock feeding. Spring brought warmer weather and some rain, but much of the state continued dry until May--and even later in some areas--extending the feeding period due to lack of grazing. Of course, this pushed costs up.

May rains gave a big boost to pastures and ranges and brightened the outlook for most livestock producers. However, market prices remained weak for the most part and tended to waver downward as the year progressed.

Stockmen again had to be on guard screwworms--perennial livestock pests. The first case of screwworms in Texas in more than a year was confirmed May 18 near the Starr-Hidalgo County line. But only a few more cases followed to bring the 1982 total to six, compared to five in 1981.

As the hot, dry summer weather wore on, ranchers had to contend with short grazing conditions, so they started to feed hay. Some had plenty of hay from an abundant harvest or past seasons but others faced short supplies, particularly in coastal, central and southern areas. As the dry siege continued, ranchers started culling their herds heavily. They shipped calves and lambs to market earlier than usual. And these heavy runs at local auctions sent prices plummeting. The dry weather continued into the fall, causing delays in small grain planting for fall and winter grazing. Some fields were dry-planted but didn't come up due to lack of moisture. Limited small grain growth hampered the movement of stocker cattle into the plains area where small grain grazing traditionally is big business. However, the demand for lightweight stocker cattle picked up in early December following widespread rains, with some going for up to $1 a pound.

These December rains gave a big boost to small grains although much of the western half of Texas remained short on soil moisture. Stock water also continued short in some sections due to lack of sunoff.

WHAT'S AHEAD

Undoubtedly, Texas farmers and ranchers are putting improved prices for their products at the top of their list of New Year wishes. There are two chances of that happening--slim and none. So what's there to look forward

Most farmers will need to take a hard look at their operations to try to cut costs wherever possible. They will also need to consider participating in the 1983 government farm program which offers some price protection on their investments and can supplement their

Ranchers also need to adopt efficient management practices--those that can bring in extra dollars--and they need to cut out anything that might be draining their pocketbooks. Farmers and ranchers must strive to become better businessmen if they expect to financially survive the year ahead. If U.S. and world economic conditions improve some, the demand for agricultural products could increase and prices could strengthen. But that may not happen for some time. So farmers and ranchers must continue to hang on for survival--a situation they have become accustomed to over the past several years.

USE CARE WHEN MOVING NATIVE If you like living in Texas, chances are you also appreciate the native plants trees and shrubs - that make Texas so uniquely beautiful; majestic live oaks, stately Spanish oaks, cedar elm, pecan or persimmon, or the hundreds of other native or "wild" plants that add scenic beauty to our landscape

There is a growing trend among horticulturists, nurserymen and landscape architects all across the country to advocate the use of native plants in landscape developments, with good

Native plants have distinct advantages over other types of introduced plants. Most natives are easy to grow. They tend to be tolerant to local weather conditions and local soils, and for the most part they are not troubled with insect and disease problems.

The main problem with the natives lies in trying to transplant and establish the plant from its native habitat to your landscape. Most native plants like to be left alone; they don't like to be disturbed.

However, if you would like to "go wild" and add some native plants to your landscape, the wet, cold days of winter are ideal for transplanting. Now, while the plants are dormant, they will suffer less from the shock of moving and the interruption of growth.

Special precautions must be take when selecting and transplanting native plants. Even though these plants are hardy, it is often difficult for the homeowner to substitute the naturel or native woodland environment which nature has provided. The gardener must first ask himself whether he can provide growing conditions similar to those in which the plant now grows. If not, leave the plant to nature.

In choosing the native to transplant. do not attempt to move overly large specimens. Small plants are usually more vigorous, grow much faster and are easier to handle

It is often advisable, particularly in the case of large specimens, to prune the root system of the selected native prior to digging. Prune the plant's. lateral roots one growing season prior to complete transplanting by making spade cuts around the plant in winter. allowing the soil to remain in place. This allows the plant to adjust to shock prior to transplanting, as well as develop a more intensive root system.

When transplanting, lift the plant with a ball of earth if possible. Wrap the ball with a moist burlap sack or similar material for easy transferral and to prevent disturbance of the root system. Plant the native plant at its normal growing depth immediately after digging. Water well after planting and mulch over the root area with leaves. pine bark or compost.

Pruning the transplanted tree or shrub is often difficult for the gardener but usually essential for livability. The upper branches and end shoots of limbs should be cut back so as to compensate for loss of root area and to encourage new branching and foliage come spring.

There are many beautiful native plants in Texas, yet the fellow with the shovel should be aware of state and county laws concerning native plants and be certain to obtain permission from property owners before digging.

Regardless of your choice, be sure you transplant with caution and care to insure liveability-otherwise, better just leave it to nature and do not disturb.

Peterson said grazing fees are determined by a formula established in the Rangelands Improvement Act of 1978. The formula, which is being used on a seven-year trial basis, considers rates for leasing private grazing lands, the difference between total costs of grazing on public and private lands, beef cattle prices and the costs of producing livestock. "Grazing fees are lower again this year because the prices farmers and ranchers received for beef declined while the costs of livestock production increased," Peterson said. "These factors play a prominent role in determining grazing fees under the formula prescribed by law.

Farmers and ranchers will pay about $9.7 million to graze their livestock on western national forests and grasslands in 1983. Peterson said. Fifty percent of this amount may be appropriated by Congress to maintain and improve national forest rangelands. Twenty-five percent will go to counties where the lands are located and the remainder will go to the U.S. Treasury.

"During the second and third weeks, the program calls for worming and control practices for lice, grubs, flies and ticks. Any symptoms of disease should be immediately diagnosed and treated if necessary.'

"It's been proven time and again to be a worthwhile program for the calves and for the producers," he said. "The beauty of the program is that results can be seen in three short weeks."

PUBLIC NOTICE

Note: This ordinance has been in effect since July 5, 1979 but since it has not been previously published, enforcement has been delayed.

ORDINANCE NO. 205

AN ORDINANCE BY THE CITY OF LOCKNEY, TEXAS, PROHIBITING THE KEEPING OF LIVESTOCK WITHIN THE CITY AND DECLARING THE SAME TO BE A NUISANCE AND FIXING A PENALTY FOR THE VIOLATION THEREOF, AND PROVIDING FOR ABATEMENT AND INJUNCTION

WHEREAS, the City of Lockney, Texas is a municipal entity, incorporated under the general laws of the State of Texas; and,

WHEREAS, the City of Lockney, Texas is charged with protection of the health of its citizens and,

WHEREAS, it is deemed by the Council necessary to enact measures insuring sanitation in the City of Lockney:

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED:

SECTION I: In addition to those things which are elsewhere by ordinances of the City declared to be and constitute nuisances, it is hereby declared to be a nuisance for any person within the limits of the City to maintain or keep any livestock or poultry or any animal or fowl whatsoever, whether for agrarian, home use, or commercial purposes or, to cause or suffer the carcass of any animal or any animal or vegetable matters, slop, swill, suds, garbage, filth, stable drippings or offal or noisome substances of any kind to be collected. deposited or to remain at any place within the City of Lockney.

SECTION II: When judgement shall be rendered against any person for creating, keeping or maintaining any nuisance the subject of this ordinance. it shall be the duty of the Court before whom such conviction is had to order the Defendant in such suit to forwith abate the nuisance; and also, that if the same is not done by such Defendant within 24 hours, the same may be abated and removed by the Chief of Police of the City of Lockney. The order shall be entered upon the docket of the Court and be made a part of the judgement in SECTION III: The right of injunction for purposes of enforcing this ordinance shall remain inviolate as a remedy, but shall be cumulative of all other remedies and not exclusive.

SECTION IV: Every person keeping, creating or maintaining any nuisance the subject of this ordinance, shall be liable for all costs and necessary expenses of abating the same when done by the City; and, in all cases where the Chief of Police or other officer shall abate any such nuisance, he shall keep an account of all such expenses attending such abatement, and shall forthwith report the same to the Mayor, who shall thereupon bring suit for the same in the name of the City against the person creating, keeping or maintaining the nuisance so abated.

SECTION V: Any person convicted of maintaining any nuisance the subject of this ordinance, or who violates any provision of this ordinance or who omits or refuses to comply with this ordinance. shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than $1.00 nor more than $200.00. Any person having been found guilty of creating, keeping or maintaining a nuisance, who shall neglect to abate and remove the same within 24 hours thereafter, during which such nuisance is continued, be subject to a like penalty as that originally incurred for keeping. creating or maintaining a nuisance, and each day that the nuisance is allowed to continue shall constitute a separate offense.

SECTION VI: Not withstanding anything herein contained to the contrary. household pets, such as dogs, cats, canaries and other such domesticated home-environment-kept pets, shall be exempted from such ordinance unless the maintenance of such pets or the number thereof shall, in itself, constitutes a nuisance, in which case they shall be considered within the prohibition created under this ordinance.

SECTION VII: Nothing contained in this ordinance shall be construed to diminish the prohibition of the maintenance of animals dealt with in other ordinances of the City.

SECTION VIII: In the event any provision of this ordinance, for any reason, shall be invalid or unenforceable, all ordinances heretofore passed by the City and otherwise repealed by this ordinance, shall remain in full force and

SECTION IX: The City Council passing this ordinance deems subject matters hereof to create an immediate public necessity and emergency, and this ordinance shall be in full force and effect immediately upon its passage.
