

"I WISH I HAD YOUR BUNCH OF MERCHANTS"

Brownfield is Known Far and Wide as the Town Where Merchants are Real Advertisers. Also Known For its Big Trade Territory. Reason: Real Business Men.

Often we have heard the expression from other newspapermen of this section that they wished they had a bunch of merchants in their town that advertised like those of Brownfield, especially grocers. Many newspapers in this section perhaps carry less advertising from their combined grocery firms than either one of three or four we can pick out in Brownfield does. Is it then any wonder that Brownfield has leaped forward as a trading center of many towns that had railroad facilities long before we had them here? There was a time when the newspaper was considered as a secondary asset to the town. In those days it was more than likely regarded as a child of charity to be supported along with the other widows and orphans. They kept it alive with mere doles in order to record the marriages, births and deaths of the community, as well as the local happenings, the comings and goings.

As a consequence, the paper had little influence or prestige in the community. There was no possible chance for it to expand and grow and put in more modern facilities that it might the better serve its community as a semi-public institution. In most cases, the publisher owed most everyone in town, and his debts were considered as poor pay. In fact, instead of cash, he often had to take payment off of the stocks of the merchants, and his paper and supplies were shipped to him C.O.D. We have in mind at this time a little county seat paper in the red hills of Tennessee that was established long before we were born. It is no larger now than when we can first remember, although it is still owned by the same family it was in when we were a mere child. It is still using the same old press and folding by hand. The paper is still hand set throughout with well worn type, and the size is still a four page affair. What editorials that are written at all, are all political, and intensely partisan. There is never any to boost the growth of the town and development of the community.

What a contrast to the western weekly as a whole. They are all set by linotype machines in town the size of that; they have up-to-date presses and folding-machines, and it keeps them just about busy keeping up with the growth of the community. For instance, the Herald has changed newspaper presses five times in the past 22 years in order to better handle the business. Western weeklies, as a whole pay their accounts promptly, and are considered business assets of the community, and their pay rolls well up to other institutions, roll back into the trade channels. Most of them have open accounts with all supply houses, making buying easy and pleasant. The editorials are of a boosting nature.

And in contrast, the merchant of this hustling western section never thinks of his local paper as an object of charity. He may not even like the publisher very well, but the publisher has something he wishes to buy, for he knows it will pay him. He contracts for a good space and pays the cash for it, and expects the editor to pay his bills. The reader, playing his part of the complex business, takes the paper primarily of course for the town and neighborhood news, but close to that value, he wants the local paper for the advertising matter that goes into it. Many times in the year he is thus able to save more than it takes to pay for the paper by watching the bargain ads, and so express themselves. Many newcomers tell us that the news value of the Herald is not great to them, as they know no one here, but buy it for the ads mostly.

But back to the first aim of this editorial. We said that many neighboring paper men express wonder on how we get so much advertising. That is part educational of course, but mostly because the merchants of Brownfield are well aware as business men that advertising does pay. They are themselves readers, and they can count on all fingers and all toes men they know who have made a success with their advertising. Men with business heads don't have to be out-gargued to get advertising out of them. They are already sold on it. An editor in a nearby town in a phone conversation recently said: "I wish I had some merchants here like those in Brownfield." Another editor told a local citizen a week or so ago, who was in his city that he never saw a paper better supported, size town considered, than the Herald.

But they will all come to this some of these days. Take the merchants who are really doing the business in any town, and we'll tell you whether or not he is an advertiser. If the merchants of these towns are not advertising, some one will come in some day who will get all their business, providing of course they have the goods and prices. Yes, Brownfield merchants are advertisers, and they are getting the business far and wide, and the neighboring towns that are not advertising are losing ground to Brownfield every week of the world. Put this in your pipe and smoke it.

The Baseball Season Opens

State Telephone Representative Visits Us

Mr. F. A. Robinette, district manager of the State Telephone Co., who makes his headquarters in Tahoka, was a pleasant caller at the Herald office the past week. Mr. Robinette is of a real pleasing personality, and anyone can get along with him who wants to get along. We are always glad to have any official of any Brownfield institution call on us and discuss the business outlook. Mr. Robinette says he has no fear of the future, but believes that the business conditions will so improve that we will not recognize that we have gone through a depression. He is not of the opinion that farm products will be as high as a few years ago, but that they will be adjusted to present farm prices by that time with other adjustments in conformity.

Among other things he visited the city of Brownfield to look after was advertising. He remarked that they had sadly neglected this end of their business for the past several years due to the fact that they were expanding so fast, and were having to work over so many exchanges, and get things in shape to deliver first class service. They had a job on their hands, he said, but were about out from under now, and aimed to do quite a bit of newspaper advertising from now on. He obtained information about the circulation and advertising rates of the Herald.

Brownfield Wins First Place in Co. Meet

We are glad this week to give a brief summary of the field and literary events here a few weeks ago. The information is necessarily brief, as it was given us that way, but we are glad to give this information even at this date. Brownfield and Meadow were thrown into Class B instead of A, and as stated above all kinds of events are included, and resulted as follows:

Brownfield 1st, Meadow 2nd and Forrester 3rd.

The Class C events went to the following schools in the order named: Needmore 1st, Scudday 2nd and Prairie View 3rd.

Great crowds attended these events for the two day, and much interest was manifested in the final outcome. Each school had its line of boosters, and things were hotly contested from beginning to end. There is a great school spirit in Terry county. Those that lost let the winners know that they were on hand and had not been idle this spring.

Levelland Rotarians Put on Good Program

The unanimous expression of the Brownfield Rotary bunch last Friday night after the program was put on here by the Levelland Rotary Club, was to the effect that they had never been better entertained. There were some 18 or 20 of the Levelland boys down together with some of their wives and invited friends who participated in the program. Levelland club has not suffered loss of membership as has the Brownfield club, they still having around 23 members, we understand. President John Doyle, of the Levelland Club presided at the banquet and entertainment.

The program proper was opened with a song by the two clubs, which was "America." After a few preliminary remarks by Rotarian Doyle, he called on Jake Mabe, who spoke on the subject of "What is a Rotary Club." This was followed by Miss Virginia Mathis singing a medley of old time love and sentimental airs, which certainly caught the audience. Miss Mathis has a real voice, well trained.

A quartet composed of T. L. Mulligan, Harold Clingan, Rex Everett and Preston Lee gave "Parody on Dixie." They were vigorously encouraged but took their seats as the program was well filled. They were followed by Thompson Reid, an ex-employee of the U. S. Consular Service, who spent quite a while in India. He gave the audience quite an interesting account of his experiences, as well as the customs of India. He was followed again by the quartet with some kind of potato looking tin instruments into which they kinder hummed tunes. It was not only novel, but real good music.

Mrs. Jake Mabe then gave a reading that was real humorous, in which she mimicked "boss" of the household that wore the dress and pants both. Judge Bill Walker then told of his experience as a Rotarian abroad, among which was a funny incident of his getting lost in Chicago last summer at the convention, and after travelling in a circle for several hours, a motorcycle traffic man gave chase and Bill thought he was a racketeer and kept driving until stopped by a signal light. Whereupon he was asked if he were not lost. Yes, says Bill. Thought so, said the other, as you have passed me several times lately. The traffic man then piloted him until he was well on his way out some 23 miles where he wanted to go. The closing song was "The End of a Rotary Day."

Singing Convention To Convene Sunday

We are authorized to announce that the Terry County Singing Convention will convene at the High school auditorium here next Sunday, which is the third Sunday.

A great crowd is expected again, and Terry county people are expected to bring their own lunch, and sufficient to feed all out-of-county visitors.

G. A. Michie, of McAllen, Texas, who has been here visiting his brother J. E. Michie has returned home.

Whoa! Back Up a Few Notches, "Bawldy"

We finished up a nice writeup last week of the bank statements of Terry—we thought—and fully expected the first banker we met after we put the paper in the office to come through with the smokes. But such is our life expectations, we were rudely awakened from our day dreams by the first money changer we met. True, he kinder in a way paid a compliment to our write up, but that was as far as he got. He then fired into us about our figuring.

This fellow was R. M. Kendrick, president of the First National Bank of this fine city. Here's about the way he hit us. Say, you sure made a heluva let in that bank writeup this week. Of course you wrote a nice article about the banks, but are d-m poor in figures. Why, darnit, the State bank has almost as much cash as you gave the three banks. Figures don't lie they say, and we just kept listening and watching the adding machine work under the hands of an expert, and instead of the measley combined cash and exchange as we had it last week of $235,000.00, he showed us that it should have been $335,000.00, or nearly a hundred thousand more than the loans.

Well, we knew all the time there should be more money than that here. We knew we didn't have it, but kept seeing it on other guys from time to time. We also knew that we had been giving all we could beg or borrow to other fellows here for 22 years, and none had left the county that we knew of. Not only were we astounded with the gravity of the situation and the multiplicity of figures, but h—Kindrick—then went into details about liquid assets, which he explained were not concerned with corn or corned, but government bonds and such like held by local banks, from which they could, comparatively speaking, wring out another hundred thousand dollars, making more than $435,000.00 cash.

Time to Unpack the Old Ball Uniforms

Play ball. The season is now opening up, and we wonder what Brownfield is to do. There are a lot of like-ly players here, but need some one to take the initiative in the matter. Dalt Lewis, T. I. Brwn, Oscar Jones and T. I. Poor have usually done this. So why not dig the old uniforms up out of the box, dust them off or send them to the tailors, and get ready to put 'em over the plate.

We note that the colored population are already swinging at 'em of Sunday afternoons out at the park. They are getting ready for visiting teams of their color during the spring and summer, we understand. If we aim to play this summer, the sooner we start, the better the team we will have when the test comes. Go for the training camp.

EDITOR BACK WITH MORE GOOD POETRY THIS WEEK

This Pencil Pusher Willing to Demonstrate For Benefit of His Critics. Poetry Out of Our Line. Neither Do We Greatly Fancy It. Several Different Styles.

Well, the weather has been nice and balmy this week again, and the buds are once more venturing forth, and we hope will not be nipped again. The buttercups seems to be the hardest plant extant, for the late March freeze didn't seem to faze them in the least, but they are blooming as never before apparently, while the locust, maple and even the Chinese Elm had to back up and take a new start. Anyway looking out on the billowery white blooms of the wild buttercups, and the greening grass and trees, together with the returning warble of the pretty bird puts poetry in our soul once more. Hail! Spring Approacheth!

Many of the local people have made light of our former undertaking, especially when it was so rudely quashed by the icy blasts of the late March blizzard. But they were mostly home folks whom we considered did not understand or appreciate real poetry. So we paid little attention to their whinings. But last Sunday a guy from Lubbock asked us when we were going to start our spring "effusion" again. It made us so cock-eyed sore for a few days that we banned all poetic attempts, but by Tuesday morning our soul had forgotten the caustic stab, and so here we go again with—

Ducks in the mill pond quack-quack Geese in the meadow, fiddle-i-fee Guinea in the haymow, pot-a-rack Pigs in the gobbler patch, wee-wee. You will note that every other line rhymes. Let us proceed: Little birds are all atwitter

Gobblers putting on astrutter Hen and chick all flutter Spread the cornpone thick with but-er.

You will note that atwitter doesn't exactly rhyme well with the ending of the other lines, but the last syllable does. So observe the bars, cords and stanzas not as we have written them, but as we intend them to sound. So, on to the next.

The lark is up to meet the day The bee on his shining wing Old Brindle is in the hay Don't forget the bee can sting!

Is there any poetry and more soulful—more real—especially the last line. We have made an every other line rhyme quality, which we consider our masterpiece for the morning:

A bull frog sat on the Sabine With his dull konk-konk A flapper in her limosene Answers his honk-honk Wild geese head for Wisconsin Echoes her signal with kwonk-kwonk.

Be sure to accent Wisconsin on the last syllable to get the full poetic twang and effect. Of course we can do this free verse of free lance poetry until you can't rest, but there are lots of folks doing that. What we wanted to display was our adeptness at real rhyming.

Now, we suppose that a host of our critic here as well as that bird from Lubbock will let us rest on our laurels for awhile at least. Come on gentle spring!

Terry County Schools Get Aid of $11,127.00

State Rural Aid Inspector Frank Van Winkle from Austin accompanied by our County Superintendent Jay Barret visited all the schools of the County that had applied for aid last week and granted them assistance as follows:

Harris	$ 580.00
Tokio	993.00
Union	1020.00
Scudday	1723.00
Johnson	670.00
Harmony	683.00
Sawyer	492.00
Willow Wells	372.00
Hunter	493.00
Forrester	555.00
Challis	607.00
Prairie View	411.00
Lahey	430.00
Happy	689.00
Poole	380.00
Needmore	689.00
Wellman	674.00
Gomez	576.00
Total	$11,127.00

Mr. Van Winkle inspected the schools of this County seven years ago and was well pleased with the progress that had been made since that time.

He said he did not recognize a school building in the County as they had all built new buildings or from one to four rooms on the old ones.

He had to ask but few requirements of any of the trustees and at several places he asked none at all. Mr. Van Winkle is a very pleasant gentleman and intensely interested in school work and gave the teachers and trustees many suggestions for the good of their schools.

Only 13 schools got aid to the amount of $7,775.00 last year.

Judge Price Building $15,000 Tourist Park

Work is now under way here for what promises to be not only one of the finest, but one of the most up-to-date tourist camps and parks in this section of the country, and when completed will be a real asset to the business interest of this city. At the time this is being written, however, construction is being temporarily held up to await some delayed material. We understand that $9,000.00 will be spent for materials alone, and it is thought the total construction cost will run the camp around $12,000 or $15,000.

Besides the filling station and storage section, which is being built to conform to the latest model of such plants, there will be ten camp apartments, some with double rooms for larger families, in which will be installed hot and cold running water, baths, electric lights and gas for both cooking and heating. We understand the plumbing bill alone will run around $1,300. The location is on Lubbock boulevard.

So far, the Herald has not been informed just who will have charge of the plant when it is completed.

Later: Joe Price a brother of the Judge, will have charge of it we understand.

George O'Brien Has New Western Role

George O'Brien, who, in his recent pictures, has portrayed the role of an outlaw, by circumstance rather than by choice, enacts a new role in "Fair Warning." Fox movietone romantic thriller of the wide open spaces, coming to the Rialto Theatre Friday and Saturday.

In "Fair Warning," adapted from Max Brand's widely read story, "The Untamed," O'Brien appears as a boy who has lived so close to nature that he is himself untamed, but contact with society leads to understanding and to romance.

Louise Huntington, whose beauty, charm and talent have been widely acclaimed by stage critics, portrays the leading feminine role, and others who enact prominent roles are Mitchell Harris, George Brent and Nat Pendleton.

The picture was directed by Alfred L. Werker, whose previous directorial effort was "Last of the Duanes," in which O'Brien was featured. Ernest L. Pascal, successful novelist and dramatist, made the adaptation and wrote the dialog.

W.G. Terry Has Leased The Commerce Hotel

Mr. W. G. Terry has leased the Commerce Hotel on the southwest corner of the square from the new owner, G. S. Webber, and moved in Monday of this week. Mr. Claunch and family who have been in charge of this hotel about two years have moved out on a farm, we understand.

Hunter Drug Has Installed New Fountain

A new sanitary fountain of the very latest model was received Monday of this week by the Hunter drug store, which is being installed as soon as a man sent here from Amarillo by the manufacturers can put it together and in working order. The man was to arrive Tuesday afternoon.

Brownfield P. T. A. Met Tuesday Evening

The Brownfield P. T. A. met in the High School Auditorium Tuesday evening, April 14th at 8 P. M. At this meeting we were given the pleasure of hearing our contest winners in music, songs and declamation. The meeting was opened with a prayer by Rev. Drennon and the song "America" by the audience after which the delegates report of District Conference was given.

Mrs. Crews made an interesting talk on "Failure Prevention" which we parents would do well to remember and Mr. Marlin Hayhurst talked to us of the advantage and disadvantages of athletics in school. We were persuaded that the advantages outweighed the disadvantages. Elizabeth Ann Smith, Queenelle Sawyer and Eileen Ellington rendered some interesting piano selections. Little Christine McDuffie and Dalphane Moore each sweetly sang a song. Kyle Adams declaimed for us and after we had heard our own pupils Miss Fay Brown, Teacher of Challis school, graciously treated us to another piano selection.

The meeting adjourned to meet Tuesday evening May 5, 1931.

County Council Meeting Parent-Teacher Ass'n

The Terry County Council of Parents and Teachers will meet with the Brownfield P.-T. A. Monday evening, April 20, at 8 o'clock. All local associations are urged to be represented in this meeting for the election of officers for the coming year. An interesting program has been prepared for this meeting.

A Woman's Work In the Community

By Grace Marian Smith

Agricultural Extension Department International Harvester Company In her evening talk here during the Short Course, on "Women's Work In the Community," Miss Grace Marian Smith used moving pictures and stories to carry her message. She said:

"Three movements need help in practically every community.

"1. Organizations which have to do with the education and training of young people. The schools, the P. T. A. 4-H Club work, Boy and Girl Scouts, the Sunday school, and similar organizations can always make profitable use of more helpers and more money than they have. Let's all help.

"2. Health conditions are rarely as good as they should be. Farm Relief," she said, includes ridding the rural districts of the filthy, deadly fly and flyborne typhoid, tuberculosis, and diarrheal diseases; of mosquitoes which carry malaria, and of diphtheria, scarlet fever, smallpox and other diseases for which we have preventive vaccines. It includes tuberculin-tested cows, sanitary dairies and home surroundings, clean-up campaigns, sanitary school buildings and surroundings, and regular, pre-school examination of all pupils before they enter school and throughout the year, safety campaigns and health supervision all along the line.

"It ought to mean," she continued, "a County Health Unit with a full-time school nurse, and the cooperation of the entire community to cut the annual death rate, the number of under-par folks—adults and children—safety campaigns and help for all those handicapped by chronic and congenital disease and deformities.

"Between the ages of 5 and 14, more deaths are due to accidents than to any one disease." (Incidentally, accidents are third as a cause of death in the ages of 1 to 4 years and second between the ages of 15 and 19. Automobile accidents are the largest single accident cause between the ages of 5 and 65. Burns and wrong medicines stand high for 1 to 5 years and falls for 65 years and older.)

"More attention to the training, health and recreation facilities for the young people is necessary to meet present day civilization and standards," she declared. "All of these are possible to any determined community with someone to lead the movement. That someone usually means a group of women."

She said that whenever women undertake to put over any project, they find they have little or no time to give to it. They are handicapped by time-consuming methods and out-of-date equipment in the home.

"3. Home equipment," she continued, "must be brought up to the standards of factories, farm and office, both for the sake of Mother and in order to set women free to help put over much-needed reforms for the benefit of all."

Miss Smith's last word was a plea for unity: "With schools, Boys and Girls Clubs and similar institutions needing help, Health of pressing and immediate concern and Labor-saving Equipment in the Home a necessity in order that the women may have time to lead organized movements for improvement, the big need is for united action.

"If we can't agree on what to do first, don't quarrel—draw out or toss a bat. But all work together in whatever we decide to do first, then take the next in order and so on, until all the things which need attention have been given some help and their improvement has become a community habit—a part of the regular routine of life.

"If the women start something and the men folks help; if the town people start something and the farm folks help; if the educators and ministers and editors and bankers and doctors and lawyers and merchants and farmers help; if the people in all sections help; if each of you, as individuals, put in all you have, and you all work together you would like to do for your community or for your state that you couldn't put over? I can't. It's up to you."

Mr. Loyd and Miss Kathryn Hughey, niece and nephew of Mrs. Carl Lewis, from Sweetwater, also Mr. Don Farris and Miss Helen Carr, of that city, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis.

Seminole Bank Failure Not to Affect Lea Co.

Monday morning the bank at Seminole failed to open. With $81,000 of its $85,000 deposits tied up in Hobbs certificates of indebtedness, the failure did not greatly surprise banking interests in this territory. However, to its many depositors in Lea County and in Gaines County, Texas, the loss came as a sudden blow at a time when they were least able to meet it.

It is believed that approximately half of its deposits were in the name of Lea County people. The bank was an old-established institution and its officers were considered able bankers.

It is timely to mention here that the failure of Seminole bank will not effect the condition of the two banks in Lea County, the Lea County State Bank at Lovington and the Hobbs State Bank at Hobbs. Neither of these banks have deposits invested in bonds other than U. S. government Liberty bonds. The large loans of the local banks are handled thru a separate financial organization, a cattle loan company.

Further indication of sound conditions in this county were made known here yesterday when R. H. Grissom, state school auditor, declared that this was the first county in the state that he had visited this year that showed an increase in valuation, that the other had decreased in valuation to a point where the total valuation of the state would probably be twenty million dollars less this year than last year.—Loving (N. M.) Leader.

S. K. Alewine is building a nice brick veneer home on east Broadway, just east of the Carpenter residence. Foundation was laid this week. It will contain six rooms and bath, and will be modern throughout. Roy Wingerd is the contractor.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hughey and little daughter, Dorothy, were week end guests in the home of Mrs. Hughey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Turner.

If we don't discipline ourselves the world will do it for us.

Report of the District Conference of P.T.A.

We have been asked by the delegates from Terry County, who attended the District Conference of Parent-Teacher Association, to have a report of this meeting published in the Herald. It will be impossible to give a full report so we are giving a few points which we consider most interesting.

Mrs. Mary W. Doak, Dean of Women Texas Tech College, talked interestingly on the subject, "A Dean of Women for High Schools," saying that our duty as parents goes further than merely exposing our children to reading, writing and arithmetic. Since each high school teacher has a full daily program of teaching there should be one teacher to take care of the work of a Dean of Women; help the girls to make adjustments where their earlier training has been neglected by creating friendliness etc., see that curriculum of school work is evened up so that all heavy assignments do not come on the same day, supervise extra curriculum and enter into all social activities. Endeavor to learn each girls talent and have that talent developed. Mrs. Doak said, "The goal of an education is through training for a sound mind, good health and good manners."

Mrs. L. E. Ledbetter, State Director of Health gave us a talk on health which we wish more mothers could have heard. She said that every child should have a health rating of 100 percent and that mental and physical hygiene go hand in hand. This being the case "Health" is the first objective of education and to insure her child's health the mother should take care of her own health, see that her family is properly nourished, and meet situations in the home life in a tactful manner. Mrs. Ledbetter told us that home should be an understanding place for nothing fills the place of a happy home life and that children who are adjusted to their home life will be more able to meet the problems which will come up in their future lives.

President Hill of Canyon, W. T. S. T. C. spoke earnestly on, "Training College Students for Parenthood," saying among many other things that the home is the greatest institution in the world and that a nation is no stronger than the social life of its people. He quoted some alarming statistics on divorce and wound up by saying that if the stars and stripes are to stand forever we must find ways and means to make the homes of the U. S. A. secure. One way is to train our youth for parenthood according to Prof. Hill. We wish we could give you his talk verbatim.

Other interesting numbers on the program were: and able discourse on, "Parental Education," by Dr. Paul W. Horn of Texas Tech; The pageant, "The Seven Objectives of Childhood," Health Home, Learning, Character, Citizenship, Vocation and Leisure, directed by Mrs. Matt McCall of Lamesa, was an inspiration to all parents who were present. Miss Mae Murfee, County Supt., of Schools in Lubbock county, spoke feelingly on the "Relation of Parents and Teachers to Child life." Many other numbers too numerous to mention, but each important, helped to make the three day program a success. We received many inspirational helps in this meeting which will be reported in the Parent-Teacher Association.

Our district the 14th, is composed of 24 counties. Two prizes were offered for the best Publicity Record Books in the district, one for city schools and one for rural schools. Rotan P. T. A. won for city schools and Wellman P. T. A. in Terry county won for rural schools. Wellman also has the only standard P. T. A. in Terry county. We were proud of Terry county reports. We learned that one of our local association members, Mrs. W. B. Toone, is a Charter member of the Texas Congress of others an Parents-Teacher Associations having helped in the organization of this noble work in our State.

The next District Conference will meet at Slaton in April 1932.

In conclusion we wish to express the sincere appreciation of all Terry county delegates for the royal way in which Lamesa singly and collectively entertained all delegates and visitors.

Mrs. Brit Clare, President County Council P. T. A.

The Herald received a letter this week that carried our minds back to the far past. It was from Mrs. Vera Alberding, (nee) Boone, of Dallas, and enclosed money to have the Herald sent to her father, C. M. Boone, of Tucson, Ariz. The Boone family was one of the first to settle in Brownfield, and we can remember years ago when Vera as a little girl stayed in our home and attended school after her parents moved to the farm.

"What's the matter now?" "Engine's missing." "Well, for the love of Pete walk back and find it!"

Few jobs are as difficult as finding the right adjectives with which to admire a new baby.

Hankins is Attending Annual Highway Meet

The annual meeting of the Arkoma Highway association Monday at Muskogee, Okla., will be attended by J. H. Hankins, president of Carlsbad Caverns U. S. 62 Highway association, of Lubbock, and other officers of the latter organization.

Mr. Hankins and Luke Roberts, a vice-president of the Caverns association, of Lovington, N. M., left here Saturday morning for Muskogee. They were to be joined enroute to the Arkoma conference by C. W. Snyder, a vice-president of the Caverns association, of Altus, Okla., and R. A. Singletary, manager of the good roads division of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce.

The Arkoma highway extends from Oklahoma City to Pochontas, Ark., although its activity has been confined principally for a strip from the vicinity of Okmulgee and Henryetta, Okla., to Pochontas, attaches of the Carlsbad association said.

Route Corresponds Carlsbad Caverns U. S. 62 highway extends from Chihuahua, Mexico, to Maysville, Ky., and a part of the Arkoma route corresponds to that of the Caverns highway, which has received federal designation.

Representatives of the Caverns highway indicated that they would attempt to gain reconciliation of the duplication in the routes, that problems being mentioned in invitations extended them by the Arkoma highway group.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Mitchell Granted Bail In O'Donnell Killing

At the close of an examining trial which consumed most of the day, Quannah (Jack) Mitchell was granted bond by Justice B. F. Rogers in the sum of $2,500 Friday afternoon on a charge of murder filed in connection with the killing of Dr. C. E. Collins, the homicide having occurred in O'Donnell on Monday night of last week. Bond was promptly made by Mitchell and he was released from the custody of the sheriff to await the action of the grand jury which will convene here next Fall.

George Jones, father-in-law of the defendant, Lonnie Jones, brother of George Jones, C. M. Mitchell, father, and B. L. Parker, sheriff were placed on the stand as witness by the State. The defendant introduced no evidence except such as was brought out by cross-examination of the State's witnesses.—Tahoka News.

Tremendous Power from the Wind

THE Aeromotor Co. is now making a self-oiling windmill 20 feet in diameter. If you have a well 1000 feet deep, or if you want to raise a large quantity of water from a shallower well, this is the windmill you need. This new Auto-Oiled Aeromotor weighs nearly 2 1/2 tons without the tower. It is a giant for power.

Whatever your water requirements may be there is an Auto-Oiled Aeromotor of the right size for the work. They are made from 6 feet to 20 feet in diameter. Use the smaller sizes for the shallow wells and the larger ones for the deep wells or large quantities of water. Our tables, sent upon request, tell you just what each size will do.

The Improved Auto-Oiled Aeromotor, the genuine self-oiling windmill, is the most economical and the most reliable device for pumping water. It works every day and will last a lifetime.

Every size of Auto-Oiled Aeromotor has double gears running in oil. All moving parts are fully and constantly oiled. One oiling a year is all that is required.

The Auto-Oiled Aeromotor is made by the company which originated the steel windmill business. For full information write

RAILROADS TO RABBIT SKIN

Recently, while walking in front of a country town store, I happened to notice two bunches of tickets in the show window unlike anything I had ever seen. The white tickets bore the imprint, "State of Texas, 1c;" the red one, "State of Texas, 5c." Being unable to make out what such tickets meant, I asked the merchant to explain them. He said: "If little Willie Jones, who lives on his daddy's farm up the creek, should go out and catch a possum and a coon, skin them both and bring the hides in here for sale, the law requires that he buy and attach a white ticket to the possum hide and a red one to the coon hide before offering them for sale."

That is what the merchant said to me. What I said to him was: "In the name of God, has the grand old State of Texas come down to gouging pennies out of every poor farm boy with a rabbit skin to sell?" Then it dawned upon me why our Legislature of two years ago spent nearly half its time hunting something new to tax. It seemed that finding untaxed things in Texas was a difficult task, and I wondered why. It is all clear now. We have everything from railroads to rabbit skins taxed. The way to ease the tax burden is to lower taxes; the way to lower taxes is to cut expenses; the way to cut expenses is to fire a few hundred deadheads now on the pay roll. Since every 10-year-old boy knows all this to be true, there is no charge for the information.—J. Henry Smith, in Dallas News.

Says Much Radio Interference Can be Stopped

The time of the year has arrived when we cannot afford to have but little radio interference to get the best results, and from what we can learn, we have plenty of it. Indeed, all you have to do is turn on your machine here any time of the day, and there is a constant grinding, not unlike some one grinding a pair of shears on a coarse grindstone. In the winter one can turn down the power on their machines most any time and get good reception, but when summer comes, conditions must be the best.

In conversation with Mr. Stevenson at the Radio Shop recently, he informed us that reception was very bad anywhere in the business section, and was gradually growing worse. He said there was a lot of leaky transformers that could be fixed without much trouble, as well as a lot of roofs on which power wires had dragged until the insulation had worn off, making some serious shorts. It would seem that if this is a fact, and his story was verified by another local radio dealer, that it is not only bad for radioing, but may be the cause of a serious fire. Then there are a lot of old motors in the city that should have new brushes, or thrown into the dump heap one. Certainly motors in such condition either need repairs or to be replaced, for a bad motor will run up your bill to where the difference will soon pay for a new one.

Mr. Stevenson's idea is that people who are interested have a meeting with the city council some time in an endeavor to get some action in the matter. His estimate is that it will cost the city very little to work over the entire highline system and put it in good shape for summer radio reception.

Mr. Stevenson cannot be wholly interested from a financial standpoint, as he sells machines, but many people have made inquiries of him how such unnecessary noises can be eliminated, and he was merely giving his views.

Can Get Markers For Confederate Graves

Some time during or just after the World War, the federal government got so lenient toward the south that a law was passed to place nice marble slabs at the graves of Confederate Soldiers as well as soldiers who fought in the union army, or other war in which this nation has participated. A number of these slabs, which gives the birth and death date, name and the regiment to which they belonged were put to a number of Confederate graves, but it seems that a succeeding administration quashed the law for the time being, but in the past year has been revived. Many of these tomb stones are being put up in Tennessee and other old states, as well as in central and east Texas.

But it seems that it has never been understood in this section to apply to Confederates until very recently, because perhaps that there were so few old soldiers of either army of the sixties who lived in this section. The south Plains is made up mostly of men who have come on after the war. But perhaps there is some grave in Brownfield or Terry county of an old Confederate that has no marker of any kind. If so, and it is the desire to use one of these, get in touch with the local American Legion, who will help you to get in touch with the proper authorities to get one. They are made somewhere in Georgia, and laid down at your railway depot prepaid. The only expense you have is having them hauled out to the cemetery and erected.

Construction Begun on Gulf, West Texas Line

Fredericksburg, April—Construction of the Gulf and Texas railway, which will give Fredericksburg a through railroad and connect the Texas Panhandle with the port of Corpus Christi, was begun near here today under supervision of the Southern Pacific railroad, which acquired the Gulf and West Texas permit.

The initial project consists of construction of an overpass at the intersection of highway 20-A, two miles west of Fredericksburg. Another overpass will be built at the intersection of highway 9, near Fredericksburg, according to R. W. Barnes, chief engineer, while work of building the grade will start within a few weeks, as soon as all the right-of-way is obtained.

Believe in Acreage Reduction Law

W. R. Mangum, Brownfield, Terry County in Dallas Farm News.

There's been quite a lot of discussion pro and con, relative to farm relief and cotton acreage reduction. About all the relief the old farmer may expect is what he brings to himself by living at home in the bounds of his income, using economy from every standpoint. This is experience. Nothing short of compulsion will bring this about acreage reduction. There should be a law with a heavy penalty for a man to plant over 50 or 60 per cent of land farmed in cotton, and enforce said law.

Some heller, "unconstitutional."

Listen, the Government controls the output of oil and other things, why not the cotton acreage? It comes from Mother Earth, while the oil comes from the bowels of the earth. She feeds and clothes the world, pay all the bills. Some say the banks can control the cotton acreage. They can not! Because the element they control, the small farmer, is not what is hurting the cotton business, but the big landowners, or plantation farmer who works his land by cheap labor that in most cases don't need the banks' help. Were it not for the banks to handle, the small farmer, the weak become the weaker and the strong, stronger. When the little fellow reduces his acreage, the big man takes advantage of it.

New listen fellows, I don't like to be forced to do a thing, but I'll be one of the first to sign a petition to our Legislature to pass such law, because it's our only salvation to raise the price of cotton. The ruling commodity of the world.

Listen again, fellows, the Lord said, "What thou doest, do quickly." If this is the way, some man that knows how, start it now, if we expect to get any relief from low priced cotton in 1931.

I've farmed all my life, the body of above has always been my motto, and if all farmers in the cotton belt had been thus, we'd not be suffering from low prices today.

I've been a reader of The Farm News for one-half a century.

Long live the good old Farm News, with a hearty co-operation to above measure.

Good humor is good sense.

Successful Lamb Feeding in West Texas

D. BURNS
Field Representative, National Cottonseed Products Association in Farm and Ranch

A practical feeding demonstration that shows that West Texas can finish lambs successfully for market is being completed by Jarratt Brothers on their twelve-section farm, in Terry county.

It is practically impossible to market bundle grain sorghums successfully in West Texas, especially where they have to be hauled long distances. Bundle feed cannot be shipped, and unless local demand is very good, the only outlet for this kind of feed is to market it through livestock on the farm.

With this in mind, Jarratt Brothers purchased 2,162 head of lambs and put them on feed about October 25. At the time these lambs were put on feed, they weighed about 50 pounds.

In planning their feeding operations, Jarratt Brothers first designed and built an ideal feeding plant on the south slope of a hill to afford good drainage. They constructed their pens and sheds so as to allow plenty of room for the lambs and get efficiently utilize all space in the pens and sheds. Pens were built 40 by 140 feet to hold 600 lambs, and 20 by 140 feet to hold 400 lambs. All partitions and outside fences were built as troughs with one linear foot of trough space allowed for each lamb. The one-way sheds on the north side of the feeding pens were built 28 by 40 feet for the larger pens of lambs, and 28 by 30 feet for the smaller pens of lambs. Home-made automatic watering troughs were put in all pens.

The death loss of lambs in most lamb-feeding areas has been a big factor in the success of finishing lambs for the market. Most of these losses can be attributed to one of two major causes: those occurring from bad handling and those from disease. Losses from bad handling usually occur early in the feeding period, and are largely due to the feeder's trying to get his lambs on a heavy grain ration too soon after they have been put into the feedlots. Lambs that are weaned and driven long distances to shipping points and are loaded empty and then spend many hours on the cars arrive at the feedlot with vitaling low and are highly susceptible to disease or loss from overfeeding. For the above reasons, lambs should be started on feed very carefully, and Jarratt Brothers seemed to know their business along this line, although they have never fed any lambs until this year.

The Jarratt lambs were started on ground bundles without any grain and kept on this ration for about two weeks. At this time, a small amount of maize heads were added to the bundle feed along with about 1-6 pound of cottonseed meal. The amount of this ration was increased until they were on full feed.

Formerly, the one big drawback to feeding lambs in West Texas was the lack of alfalfa hay, which has always been considered very necessary to successful lamb-feeding operations. Besides supplying roughage alfalfa is high in lime content, and this mineral is deficient in the grain sorghums. A great deal of trouble and large death losses were experienced by lamb feeders who were attempting to finish lambs for market using only grain sorghums rations for finishing. Death losses were largely due to what is commonly called urinary calculi, or the formation of obstructions in the kidneys and urinary tract, and was attributed to the lack of lime in the rations. Several years ago, some experimental feeding tests were conducted at the Spur Station to determine limestone flour would have in correcting this loss in the feedlot. Some successful results were accomplished, and the death loss in lambs fed on grain sorghum ration was minimized. This work has been followed by W. L. Stangel, Head of the Department of Animal Husbandry, at the Texas Technological College, Lubbock, Texas. With very successful results, thus proving that the addition of finely ground limestone flour to the grain-sorghum rations has largely overcome the one big drawback to lamb feeding in West Texas.

The Jarratt lambs included a mineral mixture which was high in lime content in their rations, and the extremely small death loss, which so far has been less than one per cent, bears out the fact that we have largely overcome the cause of large death losses in the feeding of lambs in West Texas.

On February 24, the Jarratt Brothers were shipping out their second shipment of lambs to the Kansas City market. These lambs are going to town weighing about 90 pounds, showing an average daily gain of 1-3 pound per day, which is very good in any lamb-feeding operation.

These men have gone into the feeding game in earnest and plan to continue the feeding of livestock as a means of furnishing a market for the large amounts of feed produced on their farms.

Story Opens Market in Helpy-Selfy Grocery

W. D. T. Story has opened a meat market in the Helpy-Selfy grocery store, and will carry a full line of the choicest meat both fresh and cured that the market affords. He made the purchase from Mrs. Lovelace who has had charge of the store for the past several months.

THREE CITIES MAKES TEXAS GO REPUBLICAN

The following shows clearly "who killed cock robin" in Texas for the Republican ticket. Note too, that these three cities are Ku Klux controlled politically:

In a recent issue of the Texas Weekly, Editor Peter Molyneux judged the election figures of 1928, which are all together misleading and confusing in trying to explain where the majority came from for the Hoover ticket in Texas. He quotes the comparative vote in a number of counties, not at all necessary to show that those counties with a large urban vote turned the scales in favor of the Republican candidate. Smith carried Bexar county, so why include that vote in the summary by which the democratic candidate lost the state. The fact states the voters of Texas in the face that the three counties of Dallas, Harris and Tarrant gave the Hoover ticket a greater majority than it received in the entire state. Here are the figures:

County	Hoover	Smith
Dallas	27,272	17,437
Harris	27,188	21,534
Tarrant	20,481	9,298

Totals 74,941 48,241
Majority for Hoover in three counties, 26,650; majority in state 24,604.

In extending the list of counties giving a majority for the republican ticket, Editor Molyneux evidently sought to relieve to some extent the votes of the three counties from the burden of having placed the state of Texas in the republican column. Let disloyalty, if there was such, rest where it properly belongs and not place it where the vote was negligible, so far as the actual result was concerned.—Greenville Messenger.

THE HOUSE AT THE TURN IN THE ROAD

There are reckless souls that drive like mad
In a piece of shattered Ford,
There are souls, like stars, that shoot around
As if to defy the Lord;
There are blooming souls that steer their cars
Where the highway never ran;
But I live in a house at the turn of the road,
And I'm afraid of man!

I live in a house at the turn of the road
Where men go racing by,
The men that are good, the men that are bad,
As good and as bad as I;
But how can I make it a safe retreat,
Or live my life's full span?
For I live in a house at the turn in the road,
And I'm afraid of man.

I see from my house at the turn in the road,
At the turn in this highway of strife,
The men who press with ardor of speed,
The men who are careless of life,
But I turn not away from their clamors for help,
Or from any confounded plan—
Oh I live in a house at the turn in the road,
And I'm afraid of man.

I know there are midnight parties ahead,
An wrack to pile at my door,
And I know that I'll lean every blade of thing I own
Just the same as I've done before,
But still I'll rejoice, though they crash through the house,
If they'll stop at the foot of my bed

And leave me a wall I can call my own

And a place I can lay my head,
Oh, I live in a house at the turn in the road,
Where men go racing by,
They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong,
Woe, foolish—so am I,
But what chance can I have for a safe retreat
Or a single future plan,
For I live in a house at the turn in the road,
And I'm scared to death of man!

FEWER COMPANIES BUT HAVE MORE CAPITAL

Austin, Texas, April—New companies organized in Texas during the first three months of 1931 totaled 621, compared to 640 during the first quarter of 1930, a decrease of 6 per cent, but the capital stock represented totaled $21,494,000 for the first quarter of 1931, compared to $17,815,000 for the corresponding period of the preceding year, an increase of 44 per cent. These figures were taken from the quarterly report of the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas.
Charters granted by the Secretary of State for March numbered 261, the largest group since January, 1930. The Bureau's report showed the total capitalization of these companies amounted to $20,000,000, the highest monthly figure, with the exception of December, 1929.

MORE FAILURES FIRST QUARTER 1931 THAN 1930

Austin, Texas, April—An increase of 67 per cent was recorded from the first quarter of 1930 to the corresponding period of 1931 in the number of commercial failures which occurred in Texas, according to the Bureau of Business Research at The University of Texas. During the first three months of 1931 commercial failures totaled 278, compared to 167 during a like period of 1930, while indebtedness of defaulting companies amounted to $2,358,000 for the first quarter of 1931, compared to $2,052,000 during the same period of 1930.
The number of failures during March totaled 71, compared to 51 in February. This decline was apparently seasonal for this period, the Bureau's report showed. Liabilities fell off from $2,054,000 in February to $1,264,000 in March, reaching the lowest level since October.

Harmony News

Our Sunday school is making great progress, as we have several new members every Sunday, and there seems to be great interest taken. Singing is also improving.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Sweat and children and Miss Opal Ray, returned Saturday from Grand Quivera, New Mexico, where they have been visiting.

Several weeks ago, the story of the good Samaritan was studied in Sunday school. The teacher of the Adult class, our Harmony poet, wrote this rhyme:

As a traveler on a journey, wended his way,
He found bruised and bleeding, a man on the road as he lay.

Unpacking his script, he took out oil and wine,
And the wounded man bruises he he did bind.

Now as he survived, the soothing ointment penetrated,
He to this good Samaritan, a story related,

As how a priest, so dignified, had passed him by,
Alsa a Levite, seeing, would not come nigh.

The good Samaritan placed the man on his steed,
And to the nearest inn, he quickly did lead;

Administering to his needs throughout the night,
Seemed to give his soul great joy and delight.

On the morrow, as this good man his journey did pursue,
He felt in his heart that he'd rendered a service true;

Nor would he ask of him any gratitude of recompense,
For leaving with the inn keeper the two pence.

In words, perhaps the wounded man tried to tell him,
How grateful he was for his care in the Inn;

But words only failed him, then, as do now,
For deeds of kindness can't be spoken anyhow.

By faith I can see him as he plod along,
And methinks I can hear his joyful song;
Singing praises to the God above,
For the gift to him of his great love.

Now in the parable of the good Samaritan, we find,
Jesus is teaching us to be compassionate and kind;
For as we read the parable through,
We find that he says, "go and likewise do."

(W. J. Sullivan.)

Don't forget the play ("The Eighteen Carat Boob," to be presented Friday night April 17. Everybody invited.

A burglar tore a screen from the residence of E. D. Hobby, local Gulf agent, sometime about mid-night Tuesday, and succeeded in making his escape with a pair of trousers which were the property of Mr. Hobby, and with seventy-five dollars which were in the pockets. Officers were called as soon as the loss was discovered, and have been at work on the case. A number of clues are being followed up, and an arrest is expected shortly.—O'Donnell Index.

S. K. Grimes handed in the dollar fifty last week on renewal. S. K. says he ought to have paid it long ago, but he had always made it a rule never to pay anything until he had the money. Pretty good policy.

RAILROAD ADVERTISING

Years ago the newspaper man carried a pass in his pocket. Legislative members later came to the conclusion that this custom might result in great harm to the public and banished the practice.

The railroads did less advertising under the new regime until recently. Realizing the value of publicity in the country weeklies, the roads are again to return to ask the paper men to carry their message to the people.

F. D. Dagget, general passenger agent of the Denver was in Cleveland Thursday making arrangements to run a regular schedule of advertising provided the Railroad Commission will permit them to tell their story as they want it told.—Cleveland Leader.

The Red Cross Visits The Stricklin Family

For a time Saturday, the Stricklin family forgot the "depression" was on, for they had the best meal since Christmas—we mean at home—and all because Ed Thompson had too many gubblers out at his house. You know turkeys are bigamists of the food family as well as chickens, and while people approve a plurality of wives for the farmyard denizens, they ache like the dickens of human practice it, which we guess is right, as most of us can't manage but one wife. But gubblers are different; they wear beards, and a woman is afraid of only those birds and nestlers that wear shiny all over their faces, according to State Press of the Dallas News. In other words, a man who tries to live with a gubbler there is regarded about like a stepson by the "women."

Anyway, Ed had the gubbler and we had a cook stove and had paid our gas bill for the past month, and when Ed's wife and our wife got their heads together and calculated and planned, not to mention a few visits to good hearted grocers not given to quining very close, they concocted a meal to put at our house that would please most any reasonable person, and boy they had enough of it pulled together to have fed four families. There was the 18 pound gubbler and all the trimmings we usually have at Thanksgiving.

Of course being an office man, we quit when we thought we had all we could carry without being sick, but not so with Ed Thompson. Man, he ate enough for two men, then was undecided whether to quit or eat more. He ate some more—three lemon pies we believe. Anyway, it was a great day for the two families, and we thank the Thompson family for the makings.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING

The best evidence that can be presented in support of stringent laws requiring licensing examinations for motorists is provided by National Safety Council statistics.

Last year automobile accidents claimed 32,500 lives, an increase of four per cent over 1929, though motor registrations increased less than one per cent. The ten states with strong drivers' license law showed decreases in the death rate averaging 1.5 per cent and one of them, Rhode Island, enjoyed a reduction of 20.1 per cent.

In contrast to this twenty-four states without examination laws had an average increase of 8.8 per cent and in one state increase totaled 48.1 per cent.

The fact that automobile deaths increased from 21,926 in 1925 to more than 32,000 in 1930, conclusively demonstrates that immediate action is necessary. It is estimated that if every state had a drivers examination law 1,700 lives would have been saved last year alone. Every state legislature should adopt the law as the starting point of a campaign for highway safety.

MADE THE DEPRESSION PAY LARGER DIVIDENDS

(Tombac News)

The depression didn't bother G. W. Hill, president of the American Tobacco company, a whole lot.

He increased his advertising, increased it to such an extent his company spent more for advertising during the year 1930 than any other concern had ever spent in any year for a like purpose.

And what was the result? Read it and weep, you business men who cut your advertising to the ridiculous stage last year and are continuing the cut this year.

His advertising piled up a net income for the American Tobacco company of 43 million dollars, which was an increase of more than 40 per cent over the preceding year, the best year in the company's history, a year when the country was prosperous.

The stockholders of the company were so well pleased with the management of Mr. Hill he was voted a salary for the year of approximately $2,250,000.

The colder the iron becomes, the harder the blacksmith hammers it. The steeper the hill the more gas the motorist gives his auto.

The more severe the drought the deeper the farmer cultivates.

The poorer the farm animals become the more the farmer feeds.

The colder the weather the more coal is piled into the fire.

The hotter the day the more cool drinks one takes.

Still there are merchants who cut their advertising as soon as business becomes the least bit shaky, cut it in face of the fact everything illustrates beyond argument that advertising is the only means thru which they can draw customers to their stores.

It's no wonder, when you study the situation just slightly, there are so many business failures during times of stress.—Livingston (N. M.) Leader.

FRANK DOBIE'S BOOK

(By Frances Swan Hunter in the Pike County (Ill.) Republican)

"As tales, I have listened to them in camps under stars and on ranch galleries out in the brush." This sentence from the introduction to Frank Dobie's book has in it the unmistakable flavor of Texas and no one who knows and loves Texas could possibly mistake it. The tales, the camps, the stars, the galleries, the brush are of the essence. The semi-tropical climate invites stories in brush-surrounded camps under the stars and no Texan ever sits on a "porch" but on a gallery.

As for the stories themselves, their greatness lies in their simplicity, where much of true greatness lies, and in the universality of their appeal. They remind me of a little new church I passed in Texas once. Of simple line and construction it stood on a rocky hill outside San Antonio. The stone of which it was sturdily built was native. It rose above the chaparral as though it had grown there instead of being built by a builder who knew enough not to fit gingerbread into simple natural beauty. This is the thing that Dobie has done.

Out of the soil of Texas he has taken the materials for a fascinating and enduring tale and he has used them with utter honesty and simplicity.

One of the baffling qualities of greatness in literature is that it always induces wonder as to why the reader himself didn't turn the trick. Surely there is a vast army of folk in Texas alone who have listened to these folk tales who should have seen that: "The representative legends of American are the legends of Coronado's Children."

Peter Molyneux said in The Texas Weekly (Dallas) last month that people must live a long time in a region before they produce creative writers. They must live through the gingerbread era before they learn to build with native rock and leave the chaparral and the live oaks and the mesquite standing.

This is Mr. Dobie's triumph. Five years must elapse before Texas celebrates the centennial of her glorious won independence but Frank Dobie, whose book is the first to be

RAILROADS AND BUSES

The so-called "battle" between railroads and bus lines is not so serious as some wild statements, from both sides, might make it seem. Buses and rails have the same common purpose—to give the public good service, in return for a fair profit. Those who have blamed failing rail business entirely on the buses find no support in fact. According to John F. Deasy, vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the decline in passenger traffic on his line, was principally due to the use of private automobiles. Compared to the number of people now traveling in their own vehicles, both the railroads and buses are very small fry when it comes to short-haul transportation.

What is needed is wise cooperation between buses and rails—and this is coming. Demands for tax rates and regulation that would stifle the bus industry are certainly not the solution to the problem. At present the buses, in most states, are providing a receptive public with fast, safe and economical transportation—and the systems are contributing great sums in taxes, most of which are used for roads.

Both the railroads and the buses fill a necessary place. Those interested in social and industrial progress will wish both these great, progressive and essential industries well.—The Manufacturer.

What sort of an appearing man is he?" "Little dried-up feller," replied the gaunt Missourian, "that looks like he always ate at the second table."

Work—hard and keep your eyes open.

chosen by the Literary Guild or any similar organization, which was published outside New York or Boston, is a Texan of the Texans.

The Texas Weekly makes a claim which I think will be substantiated. "The publication of this book is quite as important to literature in this section of the country as was the publication of Washington Irving's 'Sketch Book' in 1820 to American literature."

HENRY FORD SAYS NATION IS PROSPEROUS

One of the biggest jokes of the season is the statement of Henry Ford that "the nation is prosperous but unable to realize its good fortune." He also says that Herbert Hoover will be elected for another term as president.

Mr. Ford probably intends to compete with Will Rogers as the most noted humorists in America. He might succeed in this were it not that his statements are merely ridiculous instead of funny. He has probably mistaken the jokes which have been cracked at the expense of his "Liz-zie" as being of his own manufacture.

The manufacturer further said: "These are really good times, but only a few know it. The only thing I see for a general enjoyment of conditions is price reduction and a realization of the cause of price depression. The average man, however, won't do a day's work unless he is caught and cannot get out of it. There's plenty of work to do if people would do it." Mr. Ford is either more ignorant about present conditions than a Georgia negro or else he is wilfully misrepresenting the facts. There should not be a man so ignorant in this land as not to know that there are men all over this country of ours who are tramping the streets and the highways begging for work, that there are women and even little children actually starving for bread and who would work in order to secure the bare necessities of life.

It's easy enough for a bloated millionaire like Henry Ford to say that present conditions are prosperous and that a president like Mr. Hoover who works constantly for the millionaire class, should be elected for another term, but the average American citizen has an altogether different view of the matter. And their votes will probably outnumber those of the millionaire class many times in the next presidential election.—Lovington (N. M.) Leader.

THERE'S THE TROUBLE

The plumber rang the bell, and as it happened, both the master and mistress of the house came to the door.

As they stood in the hall, the husband, who was very methodical, said: "I wish, before we go upstairs, to acquaint you with the trouble."

"I'm very pleased to meet you, mum," said the plumber.

RAILROAD GETTING IT IN THE NECK

We are playing a real old time populist joke on the railroads these days. We are taxing them until it hurts to build highways on which the busses and trucks run to take away their passengers and freight traffic. Having turned all our rights to control railroad traffic over to the Federal government, we have no power to help them any by allowing them to compete with the trucks and busses, but must stand and see these great industries suffer because the Interstate Commerce Commission will not allow the railroads to help themselves. If the railroads were not hamstrung by a bonehead commission, they could put the trucks and busses out of commission by lowering the rates. As it is they must stick to the war prices by a bunch of boneheads until they are robbed of their just dues.—Big Spring News.

ATHEISM, OR CHRISTIANITY

To The Dallas News

Bleak, blank atheism measured swords with Christian faith in a discussion in Dallas the other night having the brilliant, cynical Clarence Darrow as its champion.

That it should even stand up and wage a discussion with the greatest constructive force that the world has ever known is a matter of wonderment.

Atheism starts at nothing, and gets nowhere; it is the incarnation of negation, the personification of stark nothing, it denies, nullifies, attempts nothing, achieves nothing.

Atheism extinguishes the only light in the universe, that of faith, and leaves the world in utter darkness; it paralyzes human activity, strips life of its meaning, its significance, and reduces two silences, a dismal monotony, unrelieved by any harmony, a picture of utter desolation.

Christianity lights the tall white candle of hope for the human race, sets to singing the vibrant chords of the human heart, gives the ideals that stand out as verdant mountain tops and at the same time the inspiration in the soul that makes those mountain tops of success and happiness attainable. It makes of this earth life just a prelude to immortal glory, places the star in the night of death and attunes the ear to the rustle of the angel wings, pointing the way to an eternity beyond the stars.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," atheism never built a hospital, or an asylum; never put a smile on the face of any human; never caused a song to leap from the human heart; never painted a picture of a life beyond. Christianity, on the other hand, has cheered the souls of untold millions; softened human woes; eased suffering; gilded the eastern skies with a glorious sunrise, and made the sun set radiant with the life that is to be.

And yet atheism dares to measure swords with Christianity itself!
