Maize Days Set To Roll

Everything is "go" for Friona's 1987 Maize Days celebration, according to Kathy Beard, Chamber of Commerce manager.

Representatives of E&B Funtime Rides were in Friona on Thursday visiting with Maize Days officials, and will be moving their rides and equipment into town beginning this weekend.

The carnival will set up at the Community Center, and will open on Tuesday evening. The E&B company plans to bring 12 big rides--six for adults and six kiddie-types, along with eight or ten concession-type games.

The Little Miss Pageant will be held Tuesday, September 1 at the high school auditorium. Seventeen young ladies are entered. Eleven former winners will also appear on the pageant stage.

Highlighting Friday will be the Friona Chieftains hosting the River Road Wildcats at 8 p.m. at Chieftain Stadium.

Also beginning Friday are the art show, Country Store and Photography Show. The two later events are housed on Main Street, former Winner's Choice location.

The annual Maize Days parade begins at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, September 5.

Earlier in the morning, the American Legion's hot cake breakfast will be served from 5:30 a.m.-8 a.m.

The Dixon six-mile run starts at 8 a.m. at Anthony's corner.

The Maize Days Barbecue will begin serving at 11:30 a.m., catered by K-Bob's of Hereford.

A craft show also is scheduled at the Community Center on Friday and Saturday.

Other events include the Money Doll, a dunking booth sponsored by Excel to benefit the FHS band. Various organizations and clubs are staging drawings.

Rounding out the schedule is a dance, featuring the Tiny Lynn Band. Tickets are $7 for singles and $10 for couples.

PHILLIP BRIAN JESKO

Wreck Kills Lazbuddie Young Man

A Lazbuddie man, Phillip Jesko, 24, was killed Thursday morning, and his brother, Jeff Jesko, injured, when their 1973 Peterbilt tractor-trailer overturned on an Interstate 40 off-ramp in Amarillo.

Two Jaws of Life apparatuses were used to extricate the two men from the truck. The process took over 3½ hours before Jeff Jesko, the driver, was pulled from the wreckage. Phillip was dead at the scene and Jeff was taken to Northwest Texas Hospital, where he is listed as satisfactory.

Reports said that the younger Jesko suffered a fractured lower vertebrae, along with scratches and bruises.

Witnesses told police that the westbound truck went into a skid, smashed through a guardrail and flipped on its side when the driver attempted a right turn at the off-ramp.

The tractor-trailer rig was carrying 134 head of cattle when it overturned and cattle scattered in all directions in Amarillo, causing many traffic problems.

Funeral services for Phillip Jesko will be held Saturday, August 29, in Muleshoe. (See separate obituary story.)

Area Gets Good Rain

The Friona area has received some needed rainfall this week. On Sunday, August 23, a slow "mountain shower" type rain fell all morning long, with the measurement being .65 inch.

Another .15 inch was registered Monday.

Then on Wednesday, a hard rain left 1.9 inches, coming just after 5 p.m.

Total for the week was 2.7 inches, which was welcomed by most farmers and city dwellers alike.

Phillip Jesko Rites Are Set Saturday

Funeral services for Phillip Brian Jesko, 24, will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday, August 29, in the First Baptist Church of Muleshoe with Rev. Berry Bradley, pastor, and Father Frank Davied of Littlefield, officiating.

Beef Cook-Off Set Sept. 22 In Idaho

The year's best indoor and outdoor beef recipes will be determined September 22 at the 1987 National Beef Cook-Off in scenic Sun Valley, Idaho.

Sponsored by the American National CattleWomen in cooperation with the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board, the National Beef Cook-Off pits the winners of 48 previously-held state beef cook-offs against one another in new competition for the titles of Best Amateur Indoor and (for the first time) Best Amateur Outdoor Beef Chef.

All state winners (from both indoor and outdoor categories) are

NOREEN O'BRIAN

O'Brian's Rites Held Wednesday

Funeral services for Noreen O'Brian, 69, of Friona, were held Wednesday, August 26, at 2:30 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church of Friona with Rev. Archie Echols, pastor, and Leon Talley, minister of the Sixth Street Church of Christ, officiating.

Burial was in the Friona Cemetery under the direction of Ellis-Blackwell Funeral Home.

Born February 25, 1918 in Bovina, she married Tom O'Brian September 6, 1939 in Clovis, New Mexico. Mrs. O'Brian was a housewife and a member of the First United Methodist Church. She died Monday, August 24, at her home south of Friona.

Survivors include her husband, Tom O'Brian of the home; one daughter, Barbara Mason of Friona; one son, Roy O'Brian of Friona; two brothers, J.D. Ball of Amarillo and Tom Ball of Lubbock; seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Pallbearers were Thomas Merritt, Ron Arnold, John Knox, Ray Mason, Edward O'Brian and Robert Ross.

Honorary pallbearers were Charles Richerd, Joe Mercer, Dee Willard, N.C. White, Jr., C.L. Mercer and Gene Ellis.

required to prepare their winning recipe in Sun Valley one final time--for an independent panel of professional food experts. The winner of the Cook-Off's Indoor Category will receive $5,000; the winner of the all-new Outdoor Barbecue Category will receive $2,500.

Judges for the Indoor Category of this year's National Beef Cook-Off are Bert Greene, an award-winning cookbook author and nationally syndicated newspaper columnist; Joanne Hayes, food editor, Country Living; Barbara Durbin, food writer, The Oregonian; Diana Hansen, a nationally syndicated microwave columnist; Barbara Ostman, food editor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Jan Hazard, food and equipment editor, Ladies Home Journal; and John DeMers, food editor, United Press International.

Judges for the Outdoor Barbecue Category are Charlotte Walker, food writer for Woman's Day and Working Woman, and co-author of the book Grilling & Barbecuing; Philip Stephen Schulz, author of Cooking With Fire and Smoke; and Kitty Crider, food editor, Austin American-Statesman (Texas).

"It never fails. The winning recipe from each year's National Beef Cook-Off always ends up being that year's most popular beef recipe," said Jane Lindeman, Cook-Off coordinator for the Chicago-based Beef Industry Council. "Last year's winning recipe, a sandwich called 'Hot Nunan Hoagies,' was in great national demand among consumers. It was easy to make, nutritious and tasted great. Everyone loved it."

Lindeman said that with the addition of a new category--outdoor cooking--this year's winning Cook-Off recipes will generate even more consumer interest.

"Everyone seems to have their own beef barbecue cooking 'secret,' but I've never met anyone who isn't at least curious about sampling someone else's beef barbecue recipe. That's why we're confident that this year's winning outdoor Cook-Off recipe will become one of next summer's most popular beef barbecue favorites," said Lindeman.

In addition to the indoor and outdoor cooking competition, which are open to the general public, the National Beef Cook-Off will feature unique activities that reflect life in and around the Sun Valley area. These include tours of a working ranch, horse training demonstrations, a Basque dancing exhibition (many people of Basque descent are natives of the area) and, of course, all the summertime recreational activities associated with the Sun Valley Resort.

Providing technical assistance and support to the National Beef Cook-Off are three official sponsors: White-Westinghouse Ranges and Tappan Microwave Ovens, Kingsford Charcoal and Weber Grills.

Janie W. Best, a resident of Austin, is the winner of the South Region of the National Cook-Off's new Outdoor Barbecue Category. Her winning dish was "Chateaubriand Steak."

As winner of the regional barbecue category, Best earned an expense-paid trip to compete against six other U.S. regional winners in the Outdoor Barbecue Category at the 14th National Beef Cook-Off.

At the national contest, Best will be required to prepare her unique dish one final time for an independent panel of professional food experts who serve as the event's judges.

Christmas Trees Are New 'Crop' Locally

There's an unusual crop growing out southeast of Friona these days.

The owners of the "crop" are probably the only Panhandle-area members of the Texas Christmas Tree Growers Association.

Joe and Bonnie Wilhelm explain that three or four years ago they were searching for something to grow on a small acreage, when they stumbled across the idea of growing Christmas trees.

"I had a friend in Hereford who was growing pecans and black walnuts. I was looking at his trees, and he also had some small Christmas trees, and I decided that Christmas trees might be a good idea," Wilhelm says.

As you might expect, there was not a lot of ready information for the growing of Christmas trees in Parmer County, but the Wilhelms did receive some information from the County Extension Service, as well as from the Parmer County Soil and Water Conservation District.

The Extension Service had a little info in their files on growing Christmas trees, as did the Parmer County S&WCD.

"The conservation district recommended that we plant either Blue Spruce or Scotch Pines. We planted the Scotch Pines, but also planted some Afghan Pines," Wilhelm said.

Although they are not one of the varieties expected to do best in this area, the Afghan Pines have been a pleasant surprise to the Wilhelms in their experimental venture.

"In two years we had some five feet tall trees," Wilhelm said.

However, they had a slight problem as the young trees were "lanky," or not filled out.

In the meantime, the Wilhelms had found out about the Texas Christmas Tree Growers Assn., and attended one of their meetings.

The Wilhelms were told that if they would trim back the young Afghan pines, they would fill out nicely. They returned home and got out the pruning shears, and after giving the trees a good pruning, they now have filled out exceptionally well, and have made nice trees.

"One of the pros told me that anytime you prune a plant, it will just 'go crazy' growing in other areas, and that's what happened," Wilhelm said.

The fantastic thing about the special pines the Wilhelms have grown is that they have some trees which will be ready to sell in less than four years. The Blue Spruce trees take from seven to ten years to develop into a nice tree.

Wilhelm said that the Christmas tree industry is a fairly new industry to Texas—about ten years old.

In southern and eastern Texas, some of the growers have to spray their trees with a green substance, as some of the varieties take on a brownish look even though they're fresh.

"I don't think that is going to be a problem here. Maybe it's our cooler summers, but so far our trees are pretty and green," says Wilhelm.

The Wilhelms have been so enthused with their new idea that they have put another 500 trees out this year.

They plan to make their operation a "choose and cut" affair, where you come out, select your tree, and cut it yourself if you wish (or they will cut it for you).

The Wilhelms expect that their prices for the live Christmas trees will range from $25 to $50 per tree, depending upon the size, etc.

The biggest competition to the Christmas tree industry in Texas, Wilhelm says, are artificial trees, and trees grown in the Northern states.

Michigan is the number one

Christmas tree producer, followed by Oregon. North Carolina also ranks high in the production of pines for the yule season.

Some of the trees grown so many miles away are trucked in by refrigerated truck, to help keep them fresh, but most are still trucked the old-fashioned way—stacked in an open truck.

The trouble with this is—most customers don't know which trees are fresh and which are not, when they make their purchases.

As with any crop that is grown, you have to be on the lookout for diseases and insects, and do some spraying. But so far the area's newest crop has proven almost trouble-free.

And the nice rain that was falling at the time of this interview didn't hurt the pine trees a bit.

CHRISTMAS TREES...Bonnie Wilhelm is shown working with one of the Afghan Spruce trees which the Wilhelms are growing at their place southeast of Friona. They are a most unusual undertaking for Parmer County.

Society Holds Beginning Day Dinner

The Beta Beta Omicron chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held their Beginning Day Dinner by remembering the past. All attending dressed as they did in high school. The dinner was held August 25 at the Friona State Bank Community Room.

Amidst the laughter, reminiscence and dinner, business was conducted. The main topic discussed was the Bike Raffle to be held Saturday, September 5 at the Maize Days celebration.

Members attending were Lisa Rollins, Janet Buske, Lori Holcomb, Daphne Cunningham, Paula Clark, Veca White, Linda Thomas, Patty Haile, and Cordella Jeter. Holly Campbell was a guest.

Child Cancer Treatment Center Plans Are Reality

State-of-the-art cancer center for children of the High Plains will soon be reality now that Charlene Holt, M.D., FAAP, has joined The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center as Director of Pediatric Oncology.

Already Holt is seeing patients, and she will be the guiding force in the development of a comprehensive treatment program for children with cancer. Holt also will be involved in clinical research and the development of a cancer control program, to include both cancer education and screening for area residents.

As scholar, scientist and physician, Holt is recognized internationally for her expertise in research and treatment of children with cancer. She comes to Amarillo from Adria Laboratories in Ohio, where she was the associate director of clinical development in oncology.

Holt graduated Magna Cum Laude from Florida Southern College and earned her doctorate in medicine at the University of Miami School of Medicine. There she developed an interest in research and served as a summer research fellow in pediatrics.

After internship and residency at the Baptist Hospital and University of Tennessee in Memphis, Holt continued pediatric oncology Fellowship. She served on the staff of St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, and was Assistant Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Tennessee School of Medicine.

Holt continued her academic career at the University of Colorado School of Medicine when she was selected as Director of Oncology at the Denver Children's Hospital in 1969. Five years later, Holt became the founding director of the Colorado Regional Cancer Center, a comprehensive cancer care facility designated by the National Cancer Institute (NCI).

In 1975, Holt was commissioned to design a cancer control program for the state of Idaho. During that time she also served as consultant and director of pediatric oncology at the Mountain State Tumor Institute and later as director of the Intermountain Youth Cancer Center. Since 1978, Holt has been involved with the U.S. Army Medical Corps, consulting and directing oncology programs and research at facilities in the U.S. and Central America.

Holt's extensive consulting work includes everything from developing an oncology program in the Middle East to serving as technical medical advisor for television and films. She also has remained an active researcher, receiving several prestigious grants from the NCI and other notable sources.

Holt is a Fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics, and a Diplomate of both the American Board of Pediatrics and the National Board of Medical Examiners. She is an international speaker and is substantially published. Holt also has been widely honored for service and contributions to the profession.

In our country, cancer is the leading cause of death in children, second only to accidents. Although the Harrington Cancer Center has been successful in developing a comprehensive program for adults in the region, the majority of children with cancer could receive only follow-up care at the Center. In the last five years, nearly 150 children have had to travel hundreds of miles away to receive treatment.

Bringing modern, multi-disciplinary care to children with cancer in the High Plains is the goal of the Harrington Cancer Center's pediatric oncology program. In this region, an estimated 35 children each year will be diagnosed with cancer. The pediatric oncology program is a joint effort of the Harrington Cancer Center and the Texas Tech School of Medicine. A second goal is to develop a core curriculum for teaching medical students, family medicine and pediatric residents about the cancer problem and its management in children.

"Cancer in children is the great imitator, with symptoms such as a fever of unknown origin or a lump or bump. Any physician seeing children must be aware--without creating fear in patients," cautions Holt. "The techniques for early detection and prevention in adults are not feasible in children because the biology and types of tumors and leukemias seen are entirely different."

In the last 20 years, a tremendous amount of progress has been made in the diagnosis and management of these illnesses in children. Cancers such as Wilms' tumor have come so far that health care providers now are looking at minimizing treatment. Scientists and specially trained physicians throughout the U.S. have teamed up to design a variety of treatment protocols to answer basic science questions and provide state-of-the-art therapy in the child's home setting.

"Now the average child with leukemia has better than a 71% chance of surviving longer than five years and enjoying a relatively normal life with full activities. Twenty years ago, the survival rate in this illness was four to six months," Holt says.

The solid tumors of childhood treated aggressively with surgery, radiation therapy and appropriate combination chemotherapy also are yielding cure in early stage disease. Children with all stages of Wilms' tumor, neuroblastoma, lymphomas and sarcomas have an overall survival rate of greater than 50%. Holt says major progress in cancer care, supportive care with blood component therapy, newer antibiotics, and specialized personnel in oncology services, psychosocial support and rehabilitation have improved survival rates and quality of life.

"By establishing a pediatric oncology program in the Texas Panhandle, we hope to deliver the latest, best care to children in this region. This means working directly with national cooperative pediatric research groups and the National Cancer Institute so modern medical care can be given nearer to the child's home setting.

In the psychosocial realm there are concerns about long term survival, interpersonal relationships, education and employment potential. The parents' feelings about participating in clinical trials and randomized studies must be considered in addition to the socioeconomic impacts on the family.

Holt sees increased collaboration with existing community resources such as practicing pediatricians and all physicians seeing children, the Ronald McDonald House, and crippled children's services.

Holt emphasizes cancer in children often strikes the young family who is not adequately equipped for the extreme financial and emotional burden. She says financial support from private and community resources is needed to help the program grow.

Patients with diagnosis or suspected diagnosis of cancer now may be referred to the Harrington Cancer Center. Physicians may refer directly to the Center by calling (806) 378-HOPE, ext. 4117. New patients and those currently receiving treatment at distant facilities also may be referred by their physician.

The following events, selected by Mari Schnell of the Tourism Division of the Texas Dept. of Commerce, are but a few of the many excellent opportunities offered by communities across the state.

Sept. 4-5 -- Oatmeal Festival, Bertram/Oatmeal. Years ago, the town of Oatmeal was left off the state map, but after much hoopla and petitions by nearby Bertram, Oatmeal was again shown on the map. The two communities join together in celebration of this momentous event with crowning of oatmeal royalty, oatmeal cookoff and flaky contests. There will be parades, fun run, arts, crafts, music, food and a street dance. Admission free. Details from Oatmeal Festival, Box 70, Bertram 78605 (512-355-2197).

Sept. 5-7 -- Alamo Village's 27th Labor Day Weekend, Brackettville. A rip-roaring weekend is planned in the frontier town built for John Wayne's epic, "The Alamo." The Alamo facade was recently refurbished for the movie "The Price of Freedom" filmed for the new giant-screened IMAX theatre to be built in San Antonio. Shoot-outs, stage-coach rides and live entertainment bring the Old West alive as visitors saunter through an old-time jail, cantina and other frontier buildings. On Monday, enjoy barbecue ($5) while waiting for the Cowboy Horse Races. Daily admission: $5 adults; $2.50 children 6-11, under 6 free. For more information contact Alamo Village, Box 258, Brackettville 78832 (512-563-2580).

Sept. 12 -- Kolache Festival, Caldwell. Celebration of the Czech heritage of this Central Texas community features colorful costumes, music, dancing, museum exhibits, arts, crafts, quilt show, antique cars, ethnic foods and old world craft demonstrations. Highlight will be the County and State Champion competition in baking kolaches, small wedding pastries with fruit or meat fillings. Free admission. More details from Chamber of Commerce, Box 126, Caldwell 77836 (409-567-3218).

Sept. 13 -- Family Fun Day, Heard Natural Science Museum & Wildlife Sanctuary, McKinney. Special lectures with live animals will enhance

The National Golden Spur Award will be presented to an individual who has made significant contributions to the ranching and livestock industry at the Prairie Party that evening. Ranch Day on Sat. at the 14-acre Ranching Heritage Center, which depicts 100 years of ranching heritage with over 30 restored ranch structures, will feature country music, folk dancing and crafts typical of early ranch life. School Wardrobe Should Fit Budget

Buying a child's entire school wardrobe before the school year starts may mean money gets spent on clothes that will soon be outgrown or never worn.

"A few new things will help the youngster get ready for the school year," says clothing specialist Alma Fonseca. "But when children grow rapidly, clothes bought too far in advance may be outgrown before the child gets much wear out of them."

"Since children's clothing preferences are influenced by what their classmates wear, it may also be wise to delay some purchases until after the school year starts," adds the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist.

"This also gives parents time to plan the child's wardrobe and budget for it throughout the year," says Fonseca.

The clothing specialist suggests starting with a "try-on" session in the child's room. Have the youngster try on the clothes he or she has now to see which are still useable for school.

"Your clothing budget is another consideration," she says. "Try to set aside a certain amount each month for clothing for each family member. Some months you may need to spend all of it and other months you may want to save it to buy a more expensive item later."

According to Fonseca, you should plan to spend the most money on clothing that is worn frequently, receives the hardest wear and is laundered often. If you buy separates, they can be mixed and matched with clothes already in the child's wardrobe.

For children who are growing rapidly, she suggests buying only what is needed at one time. Seasonless clothes that can be worn as long as they fit and look good will also stretch your budget. Short sleeve tops, for example, can be layered with other tops and sweaters for use in colder weather.

The specialist notes that many families stretch their clothing budget by shopping at yard sales, thrift shops and used clothing stores. Since children frequently outgrow clothes before they are worn out, good quality clothing often can be found through these sources.

"When you shop for children's clothing, take along a list of the items the youngster needs so you can make sure the purchase fits into both your wardrobe and budget plan," she remarks.

Friona High School Has Greek Exchange Student

One of the new members of the senior class of Friona High School is Sofia-Demetra Papakosta, who is called Mimika. She's the daughter of Sharon and Ted White and is the exchange student under the American Field Service program. Mimika left her home in Arta, Greece August 16 and went to Athens.

The following day she arrived in New York at 4:00 p.m. Soon after de-planing, she learned that she and all the other exchange students had arrived too late to make connections to other cities throughout the United States.

Upon arrival at the hotel to which they were assigned, the group learned that not many rooms were available.

She said, "The New York hotel where we stayed didn't have any bedrooms vacant, so another girl and I slept in the living room part of a suite. We had an arm chair, a couch and some lamps, but no bed, so we slept on the couch."

"A boy and I were supposed to catch a flight to Dallas at 9:30 a.m.

the next day and we made the flight and arrived at Dallas without any trouble. He was able to continue on his way, but I had a lay-over and didn't get out until about 2:20. When I arrived at Lubbock one hour later, my family was there to meet me."

Mimika is a farm girl, so she feels at home in the farm home of Sharon, Ted, Bill and Elaine White, who live southeast of town.

"Our kind of farming is different," Mimika explains. "We raise olives, which are harvested in the autumn; oranges, which are harvested in the winter; and peaches, which are harvested in the summer."

Her family, which consists of her father, Dimitrios; her mother, Irene, a brother, Michael, 18, and a sister, Dina, 12, does most of the work except at harvest time when workers are hired to pick and pack the produce.

The Papakosta family speaks modern Greek, which is very different from ancient Greek, which Mimika has learned in private school. She also speaks English and minimal French and German.

The education system of Greece is a highly centralized system with the Ministry of Education in Athens regulating the academic system of the country. The system offers free and compulsory education through primary school, which is for students ages 6-12. Pre-school is optional.

For students wishing to continue past primary school, secondary school for ages 12-18 is also free in the public system. Secondary school in Greece is divided into two cycles of three years each. There are two main types—lyceum which is a college preparatory program with a classical emphasis on language and the humanities, and the technical vocational program, which offers a wide variety of skills and career options.

Mimika has already learned that there's a vast difference in transportation. In Greece a person must be 18 to drive an automobile and there are not automatic transmissions.

From the age of 14 young people are able to ride motorcycles, so most of the young teenagers depend upon this type of transportation.

The usual workday in Greece begins at 6:00 a.m. and ends at 2:00 p.m. Then, after lunch most residents of the country take a nap. This period is known as "common quiet" and everyone refrains from making noises of any kind.

About 5:30 or 6:00 the country wakes up and many take part in one of the most pleasant of Greek habits, "the volta," which is an evening walk. People stroll along and meet friends, talk and enjoy the evening.

Mimika's interest in coming to America began several years ago and she took her first examinations to qualify for the American Field Service in February. She came to our country by choice, but to Texas by assignment.

"The climate is very different here," she says. "At home we never have rain in August."

She reports that the climate in her native country is about like that of Florida.

Other things she misses are the ocean, trees and mountains. She had never seen so much flat treeless country before.

This fall she's taking band, English, speech and home and family living and is looking forward to getting acquainted with and participating in other activities.

Visiting with Mimika I learned that Americans aren't the only ones who have friendship bracelets. She was wearing one which her sister, Elaine, had made for her, but said, "We have these in Greece, too."

IT'S TIME TO RELAX....Many residents of Greece spend several hours each afternoon relaxing and visiting with friends. Mimika Papakosta is pictured here on the lawn of her home in Arta. She's a senior at Friona High School and is looking forward to being here until next summer.

PEACHES AND MORE PEACHES...Fresh peaches are being picked from the orchard of the Papakosta near Arta, Greece in early summer. The tractor is being driven by Mimika, who arrived in Friona recently and is living in the home of Ted, Sharon, Bill and Elaine White.

E.N.M.U. Had Rough Start

(This article, by ENMU graduate student, Beth Coppock, traces the early days of Eastern New Mexico University. Most of the information is from the book, "The Golden Years," by former Eastern President, Floyd D. Golden.)

Eastern New Mexico Normal School opened its doors in 1934, but its history began years before the doors actually opened to students.

Even as New Mexico was struggling to become a state, people on the eastern side of the state wanted a provision for an institution of higher learning in the state constitution.

The constitution, which was adopted in 1912 when New Mexico entered the Union, provided for "a normal school which shall be established by the legislature and located in one of the counties of Union, Quay, Roosevelt, Chaves or Eddy." It also reserved 30,000 acres of public lands for the institution.

But it was several years after New Mexico became a state before sufficient action was taken to establish a school in eastern New Mexico. Events such as a world war, depression and the dust bowl years obviously put survival at the top of the list of priorities for area citizens.

But in 1927, the Roosevelt County Chamber of Commerce became actively interested in locating the Eastern New Mexico Normal School at Portales.

Portales and area supporters worked hard, both with financial assistance and with participation, to get the approval of the legislature to establish a new institution of higher education in Portales. And on February 25, 1927, Governor Dillon signed Senate Bill 22, locating Eastern New Mexico Normal School at Portales.

An early matter for discussion was the selection for the site for the college. The Roosevelt Chamber of Commerce purchased approximately 43 acres on the west side of Portales, and offered it to the Regents. Their gift was accepted, and on the land, which aside from having a small house, was pasture covered with grass and weeds, was placed a sign reading, "The Future Home of Eastern New Mexico Normal School."

One of the main concerns of supporters was financial support for the school. To this end, they worked from 1928 to 1932 to have federal acres given to the state of New Mexico for the use of the school. In March of 1932, 76,667 acres were appropriated from federal land. With the approximately 30,000 acres allocated in the Constitution of New Mexico, the over 100,000 acres available provided some regular income for the institution.

A survey of high school students in eastern New Mexico identified over 400 students that showed a definite interest in attending the new college. A budget was prepared on estimates of costs, and then lobbying began in the legislature. The operating budget for the first year was estimated to be $328,059.

At that time, the campus consisted of two-fifths of the Administration Building, and two rows of Chinese elm trees running parallel to the highway. There were no other buildings, other landscaping, or streets, nor were sewer, water or electrical lines available on the campus. It was also during the depression, but this helped some in the improvement of the campus. With the 1933 Franklin D. Roosevelt administration came the New Deal programs, and the goal was to provide jobs, not just hand out relief money.

Roosevelt County applied for New Deal assistance, and local workers went to work. Among the projects was the planting of more than four hundred and fifty Chinese elm trees given to the school by the New Mexico State

The cross country movement of buildings to the early Eastern campus was not an uncommon sight as structures such as the Air Force Gymnasium (above) were moved from the Fort Sumner Air Base to Portales. This 128 by 164 feet Gymnasium was moved by trucks and tractors—all on the inside of the building and was used as a vocation building.

College.

One of the first things that was done in preparation to opening the school was changing the name from Eastern New Mexico Normal School to Eastern New Mexico Junior College.

Dr. Donald W. MacKay, then serving as Rural School Supervisor for the Department of Education in Santa Fe, accepted the first presidency of Eastern. The Board of Regents also requested that the Portales Board of Education allow Dr. Golden to continue to serve as superintendent of the Portales Schools in a half-time position, and also serve half-time as Dean of the college for the first year. It was agreed that Dr. Golden would at the end of the first year make a decision as to which position he would continue in a full-time capacity.

The school first opened its doors for its summer session in 1934.

One hundred and sixty-five students enrolled for the semester, and began classes on Monday, June 4. The first all college assembly was held in the undercroft of the Methodist Church on the evening of June 5.

Even for that first semester, several varied student activities were scheduled. A trip was planned every weekend to various parts of New Mexico, Colorado, Texas or Arizona. Social occasions, music programs, recreational activities and at least one picnic a week were events for the students.

The first full session began in the fall of 1934. Eighteen faculty members, four of whom held the PhD degree, taught the classes. Approximately three hundred students took the 136 courses offered. The eighteen faculty members, who included administrators, taught the classes in a building with nine classrooms, a science room, a home economics room, a commercial room, an art room, a library and administrative offices. The limited space meant that students would frequently have to move chairs from one room to another so there would be seating for everyone.

By the year 1939-40, which was the first year the college added two additional years of instruction, enrollment had increased to 729 students, 30 faculty members (including administrators) and 242 courses were being offered.

The highlight of the first academic year was the inauguration of the college's first president, Dr. MacKay. It was on October 6, 1934 in the sanctuary of the Methodist Church, followed by a barbecue provided by the Portales Chamber of Commerce. The college's first football game took place that afternoon, when the Greyhounds, coached by D.H. (Tiny) Reed, took on the New Mexico A&M Freshmen.

The mascot, college colors and the name for the college newspaper had only been selected the Tuesday before the Saturday inauguration. The entire student body, and faculty, met in an assembly with prepared arguments to support their choice.

The most interest was on the school mascot, and the Greyhounds were selected after much controversy.

Almost every weekend there was a dance at the Woman's Club building, and a party in another location for those students and faculty members who did not care to dance.

Also available for the students were organized tours. One such tour took place in 1936 when six male students took thirty-five days in the summer and visited 21 states, the District of Columbia and parts of Canada, traveling approximately 6,000 miles.

Eastern's first opera was produced in the spring of 1935 and a tradition which began the second year of the college's existence was the all-college rodeo. It also became a major annual event in the community as well. A rodeo queen was selected, and the Ag Club members were required to not shave for a certain number of days. The queen then would select the best beard.

Also organized the first year of the college was a student government, called the "Associated Students."

The depression years made it difficult for many area youth to attend the college, even with the low fees. The community was cooperative in trying to provide jobs for students. Of course, several businesses hired students. Some housewives employed girls to work part-time in their homes, and odd jobs attending lawns and caring for flowers provided work for many boys. Also, the college hired students for library, stenographic, or other work on the campus.

One unique aspect of the college's willingness to help the students financially was that the college cooperated when students began to bring animals to campus with them. Some students brought milk cows, which were kept on the campus, and the milk was sold to finance the student's costs. At that time, a cow giving four gallons of milk per day would finance a student in college. Other students brought saddle horses which were rented out, and chickens providing eggs and fryers were other agriculturally related financial supports for the students.

Still, many more students needed help, which was provided by the National Youth Administration, established by Congress as part of the "New Deal."

The student worked forty hours per month for $15.00, and spent the rest of his time in an educational program. This $15.00 was actually enough for many students to attend the Junior College. "A small group of boys or girls each contributed five dollars a month to rent an apartment. They then contributed another five dollars per month to purchase groceries. The remaining five dollars was applied to their tuition and fees. At the end of the semester, the student just barely made ends meet."

"In addition to other projects, the college set up an NYA resident training encampment to accommodate sixty boys who made concrete bricks and tile and constructed the first men's dormitory on the campus. It was a cooperative dormitory where the young men could bring food from home to contribute to their financial support."

"Another project on the campus was the construction of barracks-type buildings on the east side of the campus to house one hundred boys. The young men constructed these temporary barracks buildings in such a way that they could be dismantled and moved any time permanent structures could be built."

The entire nation was having difficulty financially, and New Mexico state government was no exception. According to Dr. Golden, "convincing the 1935 legislature to fund the institution was one of the most serious periods in the institution's history."

An appropriation of $44,500 for each of the next two years was finally made and even though that was less than was needed, it was seen as a significant achievement.

"The growth of the student body during the junior college years was phenomenal considering the depressed economic conditions and the newness of the college. A major factor in this growth was the intensive public relations and recruiting program of the college."

"To encourage students in Clovis, arrangements were made with Wood Garage of Clovis to transport students from Clovis to the college in the morning and return them in the afternoon for a charge of five dollars per month per student."

One way the college tried to attract academically talented students was through scholarships. During the summer of 1937, A.E. Hunt, Director of Public Relations, began a drive to sell one hundred scholarships at $30 each, which at that time was the cost of tuition and fees for one year. The scholarships were sold to businessmen and other citizens and were awarded to high school graduates throughout the entire area. The program was carried to the business and professional people of all the surrounding communities in eastern New Mexico and west Texas. The program continued, eventually reaching a value of $100 as tuition and fees increased.

A formal inauguration was held on October 31, 1942, during Homecoming.

The selective service began in the fall of 1940. The immediate impact on the college of American involvement in the war was intense. The college enrollment dropped from 768 in 1940-41 to an all-time low of 241 in 1943-44, a decrease of more than sixty per cent.

The disastrous effect of the war on the college was deflected some by government assistance. The CAA program for training civilian aviators was discontinued after Pearl Harbor. The college was then given a V-5 Navy Aviation Unit. Forty-five men were sent to Eastern to train for eight weeks before they went into the Navy Aviation Service.

The government also approved the use of the NYA center on the campus for a War-Working project for young men and women of New Mexico. Seventy-five to 110 students were trained for twelve weeks in some type of mechanical skills that were needed in defense plants.

Despite lower enrollments, the war-time college budget increased by 18 per cent. War-time prosperity made money more available, and the state legislature was able to allocate more.

By 1940 the Administration Building had been completed and the Roosevelt County Museum (near Ad Building) and Quay Hall (lower left) had been constructed. The first section of Lea Hall (above track) was finished in 1940.

The post-war boom affected Eastern, as it did all higher education institutions. Students flooded the campus, causing shortages in just about everything.

During 1943-44 there were only 241 students enrolled in the college, and in 1944-45, the last year of the war, the number increased only to 276. Within one year they had an increase of almost one hundred per cent. In 1945-46, 511 students enrolled, most of them for the second semester.

With the rapidly increasing enrollment, the physical facilities were limited. But the college was able to have many of its needs met by obtaining war facilities from the government, inexpensively.

Among the first things the college received was a Chevrolet that was used for the administrators to use to travel to different bases in search of war surplus materials.

They obtained civilian apartments from the Fort Sumner base that were used for married housing as well as an airplane hangar that was made into a gymnasium. The seating capacity of 3,600 made it the largest fieldhouse and gymnasium in the state at that time.

The college was accredited at the baccalaureate level by the North Central Association in 1947 and the Board of Regents changed the name from Eastern New Mexico College to Eastern New Mexico University in 1949.

'Texas' Production Has Successful Run

Nearly 100,000 people enjoyed "TEXAS" beneath the cliffs of Palo Duro Canyon in 1987 to make the second best season in the 22 year history of the musical drama.

At the conclusion of the final show on August 22, the attendance count showed 99,157 came to "TEXAS" this season. This figure did not include the audience of 2,025 that was present during the only rainout of the summer on Saturday, August 8.

Following the last performance, the cast of 80 and the crew of 60 disassembled the show for the year. Breakfast followed "strike" at 2 a.m.

"TEXAS" began on June 10 this year and played nightly under the stars except Sunday in Palo Duro Canyon State Park for 64 performances.

Highlights of the season included visits from local, state and national celebrities.

During June, Texas Governor Bill Clements saw the show. The special benefactress of "TEXAS," Sybil Harrington, was also a guest that evening.

The Don & Sybil Harrington Foundation donated $100,000 to the show this year to bring the latest in sound technology to "TEXAS." The new track is a masterpiece of ingenuity that brought an added professionalism to this famous Paul Green play.

State legislators traveled to "TEXAS" in July. And Lucy Johnson Turpin, daughter of the late President Lyndon Baines Johnson and Lady Bird Johnson, returned to "TEXAS" in August bringing her husband, Ian Turpin from Canada, children and nieces to see the performance.

Visitors from every state in the United States and from 84 foreign countries saw "TEXAS" this year.

Statistics indicate that 32% traveled from 0-150 miles, 41% came from 150-500 miles and 27% journeyed over 500 miles in 1987 to see "TEXAS."

Groups totalling 665 selected "TEXAS" as part of their itinerary this summer with originations from 28 states plus Canada, Japan, England and Germany.

New special effects drew gasps of amazement from 1987 audiences. No one expected the additions to the already acclaimed thunderstorm, and many even had trouble distinguishing real from the simulated sounds.

Filming for a ten minute promotion video was also done by a professional crew this summer. This new addition should be released in early spring for media and tour companies.

"TEXAS" is produced by a non-profit foundation, The Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation. It costs close to a million dollars each year to assemble, pays money to the state and has always generated enough revenue to recoup show expenses.

Neil Hess, who has been with the show since its beginning, is the director.

Bentsen Speaks Out On Nuclear Waste

"As if there weren't enough reasons against dumping the nation's nuclear waste in the Texas Panhandle, an accident at a construction site in West Germany has raised more questions," says Lloyd Bentsen, United States Senator.

"Much of my opposition to locating the nuclear waste repository in Deaf Smith County centers on the area's agricultural importance and the presence of the Ogallala and Santa Rosa aquifers.

"Despite these objections, the Department of Energy (DOE) continues to consider this site a top contender for the dump--apparently without regard for what its selection would mean to Texas and other states that depend on these aquifers for water.

"Now we learn about an accident at a repository construction site near Gorleben, West Germany, earlier this year. It revealed an extra hazard in the plans to drill through the aquifer in Deaf Smith County.

"We don't have a lot of details, but the ones we have cause me great concern. We know that one worker died. We know the construction workers were using a ground-freezing technique to drill a shaft--using the same technique DOE plans to use in Texas.

"And we know that as a result of this accident, West Germany is reassessing its program. But we didn't learn any of this from DOE.

"In fact, six weeks after the accident, Energy Department witnesses were telling Senate Energy Committee members that this ground-freezing technology was 'proven' that it is more than 100 years old and that it is very safe. They even cited its 'successful' use at the West German repository. It is outrageous they didn't tell us about it. That requires some explanation, and I have some serious questions for Energy Secretary John Herrington.

"I have asked him what kind of information was kept from us. What are the West Germans doing about the technique? Are they going to proceed with it? Have they found ways to correct the problem? I also asked him to keep Texas officials fully informed on

Survivor SS Benefits Are Payable

If people in the New Mexico and West Texas area are anything like those in other parts of the country, many of them do not know that Social Security pays benefits to survivors of deceased workers who worked in jobs covered by Social Security long enough to become insured, Carl Thompson, Social Security manager in Clovis, said recently.

More than seven million people get survivor benefits. It is important for survivors to contact Social Security as soon as possible after the worker's death to make sure that no benefits are missed, Thompson said. In any event, a person should apply no later than the month after the month of death.

Social Security survivor benefits can be paid to:

- *A widow or widower 60 or over.
- *A disabled widow or widower 50-60.
- *A child under 18 or 18-19 if a full-time high school student, or over 18 if disabled before 22.
- *A mother or father caring for an entitled child under 16 or disabled.
- *A parent 62 or older who was dependent upon the worker for half or more of his or her support.

Under a special rule, children and their mother or father can receive benefits if the worker had Social Security credit for 1½ years of work in the three years before death. Also, Thompson said, children can receive benefits on their mother's Social Security record as well as their father's.

In addition, there is a $255 lump-sum death payment that can be made to an eligible widow or widower, or if none, to an eligible child.

More information about Social Security survivor benefits can be obtained at the Clovis Social Security Office, located at 912 Parkland Drive in Clovis. The telephone number is (505) 762-4595.

the developments.

"As I told Secretary Herrington, 'I can think of few matters in our government today that require any more cooperation, openness and candor than the civilian radioactive waste program. As nearly everyone associated with the program admits, the problem of how and where to dispose of high level nuclear waste is particularly complex. But the analysis of the problem is not advanced when full and frank disclosure of glitches in the program or its related technology are not made known immediately to all of the concerned parties.'

"The people who drink this water and depend on agricultural products from this region deserve to have the answers to these questions," Senator Bentsen concluded.

LEIGH NEELLEY, 17-year-old daughter of Robert and Connie Neelley, is being sponsored in the Miss Friona Pageant by Friona State Bank. She will sing with a cassette for accompaniment for her talent in the contest. Leigh is 5'2" tall, has red hair, green eyes and is a senior at Friona High School. WTSU Traces Origin Back To Year 1910

In a land where calves outnumbered children ten to one and horses provided most transportation, a proud institution was born in 1910, one that would bring cultural enrichment and revenue to its region and would eventually initiate students into the computer age with courses in robotics and computer use.

Now, 77 years later, West Texas State University is far more than the teachers' college the Texas legislature created. Citizens of Canyon City donated the land and $100,000 and West Texas State Normal College opened its doors to students in the fall of 1910.

The 227 students who enrolled that year were taught by 16 faculty members. Classes met in the courthouse, in churches and in other community buildings until construction of the college was completed. Students often walked a mile or two to class, carrying sack lunches from the homes of local citizens with whom they roomed.

After completion of the first building, a sturdy iron fence was constructed to prevent droves of cattle headed to market from trampling the campus. A president's home and stables, complete with windmill to pump water for the lawn, garden and stock, were erected on the southeast corner of the campus.

Students age 16 or older who had completed ninth grade or passed entrance exams could enroll at WTSNC. At that time, a teacher's certificate was obtained after one year of study. In 1914 an additional year was added to the college and in 1917 two more, making it a four-year school.

The college burned in 1914, but classes continued the next day at the request of President Joseph A. Hill, who declared the institution "more than brick and mortar." Community facilities and temporary structures, many built by volunteer faculty, students and local residents, served as classrooms until the new building, dubbed "the greatest school house in Texas," was complete. Undergoing renovation this year, Old Main remains the cornerstone of the campus and a proud reminder of the spirit and dedication that built West Texas State University.

New courses and programs have been added throughout the school's history beginning with pre-medical, pre-law and pre-engineering and extending into psychology, industrial arts, computer science and dance. The University is now organized into four colleges and boasts an enrollment of nearly 6,000.

Throughout the years, major historical events have made their mark on campus life. In 1917 male students and faculty put down their books to take up arms in defense of the nation despite the exhortations of artist Georgia O'Keeffe, then a teacher at WTSU, to stay in school.

Students felt the pinch of the depression, with stories about a student who worked her way through college with a washing machine and a man who repaired furniture not uncommon. Despite the 1940 basketball team, termed the "Tallest Team in the World," being featured in Life magazine, intercollegiate sports were suspended in 1943 due to the absence of so many students.

While some history is forgotten, some important traditions have survived the years. The buffalo mascot is a reminder of the rural life that gave birth to the university and of the cowboy who rose at an assembly to explain that the buffalo's determination and strength of character are qualities worthy of emulation. The maroon and white colors continue to represent the university and the victory bell still rings on special occasions.

In the 77 years since its birth, West Texas State University has grown from a small school with one course of study to a four-year university offering 22 degrees. From the horse and buggy days to the space age, WTSU continues to offer students the opportunity to learn and grow.

Following are several "firsts" associated with West Texas State University.

ON THE EDGE OF Common sense

The No. 2 hairball

Ever buy one of those feeders
That never seems to get well?
Right off the truck to the sick pen,
Straight from receiving to hell.

They're common. Each semi load's got one.
'Specially if they're from a sale.
I call 'em a Number 2 Hairball.
They're fluffy, but thin as a rail.

They look like those two-day-old cornflakes
That stick to the side of the bowl.
Pot bellied, wormy and drippin'
From every unpluggable hole.

His muzzle's as wide as a suitcase,
His tail comes down to his heels,
His hide's as dry as a Baptist bar,
The last brand still hasn't peeled.

You treat 'em for weeks with your potions,
With everything Doc recommends.
But 60 days later he still gets his mail
Addressed to the hospital pen.

Where do these chronics all come from?
I've had some time to reflect.
There's a purebred herd of 'em somewhere,
At least that's what I suspect.

A place where animal science
And Doctor Frankenstein meet,
Where the characteristics they breed for
Are the same ones you try to treat.

Like, only one lung ever works right.
The cough is just part of the deal.
And scours is standard equipment,
Plus footrot that never will heal.

No matter which treatment you try out,
You're confused at every attempt.
'Cause one hundred four point seven
Is really their normal temp!

So you keep pumpin' medicine in 'em
'Til the drug bill his high as the sky.
Yet they never completely recover,
But the bloody buggars won't die!

Now, of course, I'm making' this all up.
No chronic cow breeder's been caught.
But if I was a medicine maker...
I just might give it some thought.

Boy's Ranch Rodeo
Labor Day Weekend

It will soon be rodeo time at Cal Farley's Boy's Ranch where some 200 cowboys will be performing over the Labor Day weekend, September 6 and 7.

This nationally famous rodeo is an event for all of the boys who compete on broncs, bulls, calves and stick-horses. Some contenders prefer the wild steer race, chute-dogging, or displaying their abilities as daring rodeo clowns.

The Sunday and Monday performances will begin at 2:30 each afternoon with barbecue lunches available at noon both days.

At stake in the competition are the trophy buckles, the titles of Junior and Senior All-Around Cowboys and the appreciative applause of up to 5,000 rodeo fans each afternoon.

All of the Ranch's boys will have some part in the rodeo. While most will be riding in the spacious arena, others will perform in specialty events, playing in the Boy's Ranch Band and assisting with refreshments or helping visitors.

Along with area riding clubs which will appear in the Grand Entries, special guests will include the girls and staff of Girlstown, U.S.A., who will share in the exciting festivities.

Plenty of tickets are still available for both performances. Reservations and information are available in Amarillo at the Boy's Ranch Office at 600 West 11th or by calling 806/372-2341. General admission tickets for $2.50 may be purchased at the rodeo arena or at the Ranch office.

Texas Tech Plays Vital Area Role

Texas Tech University has played an important role in the development of the area, and is annually one of the top choices for local graduating seniors who want to further their education.

The creation of Texas Tech was a victory for residents of West Texas, who as far back as 1915 recognized the need for an institution of higher learning in this area.

A group of people met in Sweetwater in April of 1916 and formed an organization which they named the "West Texas A&M College Campaign Committee."

A bill was passed in 1917 to form a college, but after much confusion over the site, the bill was repealed. Cities receiving votes from the site committee included Abilene, Snyder and Amarillo.

It was said that at one time there were 37 cities bidding to become the site of the college.

Finally in 1923 the legislation was passed creating a new college for West Texas, to be named Texas Technological College, and to be located in Lubbock. Governor Pat Neff signed the bill.

One member of the legislature, presumably from one of the other areas in Texas that never has recognized the High Plains as part of the state, is said to have commented after the college was created that if as many as 300 students registered for the first term, he would walk from Austin to Lubbock.

At the close of the first registration in 1925, a total of 914 students had signed up, and President P.W. Horn sent a telegram to the skeptical lawmaker saying simply "Start walking."

Ready for use on opening day were the first units of the Administration and Home Economics buildings, the Textile Engineering Building, the Stock Judging Pavilion, the Dairy Barn and the president's residence.

Formal opening of the college took place on September 30, 1925. Amon G. Carter, renowned leader from Fort Worth, and chairman of Texas Tech's first board of directors, presided at the formal opening.

In 1929, the college graduated its first class of students which had gone completely through Tech. In 1930-31, its enrollment had grown to 5,102, and the college's early success was well-known throughout the state.

The 1987 enrollment was 23,000. It is recorded that Irwin Coleman and Winfield Watkins were the first two students to register at Texas Tech.

FRANK A. SPRING
An Early Tech Student

J.T. GEE

We're not sure who the first Friona student at the college was, but among the early ones were Frank A. Spring (who also has the first birth certificate in Parmer County); Mary Spring, Martha McFarland Clements, Elvin J. Johnson, Estella Welch and Otho Whitefield.

Faola Warren, who graduated at Plainview High School, and later married Wesley Hardesty and lived in Friona, was one of the members of the first graduating classes at Texas Tech in 1927, having attended Wayland College, then a junior college, her first two years.

Although not a graduate of Friona High School, another prominent early-day Tech student came to reside here. He was W.L. (Preach) Edelman, who was a member of the Tech debate team, played on the baseball team one year, and served as editor of the college yearbook in 1929.

(Exactly 30 years later, another future Frionan, Bill Ellis, also served as Tech's yearbook editor.)

Nelson Welch and his sister, Estella, were early Tech students.

Irene McFarland was the first of the McFarland sisters to attend in 1926, followed later by Martha, and Gerry.

J.T. Gee was an Ag Major from Carbon in 1927 and later his bride-to-be Lila Gay Rogers from Lubbock was a Home Economics major. Gee also played basketball for Tech.

On September 1, 1969, Texas Tech achieved another milestone when it reached university status. In reality, it had been a university for a number of years, with the only change being necessary for its name.

The changeover created quite a controversy, as there was a faction that wanted to change the name to "Texas State University," arguing that a "technological" college

Five Farmers Are Elected To TGSPB

Five sorghum farmers were elected to the Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board in mail balloting which ended on August 15. They are Billy Bob Brown of Panhandle, Ralph B. Mabry of Lubbock, K.B. Parish of Springlake, Dale K. Spurgin of McKinney and Wilbert Vorwerk of Taylor. Mabry and Parish were incumbents.

Spurgin and Vorwerk have served as appointed representatives to the board.

Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board (TGSPB) is a fifteen-member board elected by fellow-producers to administer the program of market development, research, and education that is conducted with sorghum checkoff funds. The TGSPB checkoff is eight-tenths cent per hundredweight and refundable upon request.

TGSPB is regulated by the Texas Commodity Referendum Law which specifies election procedures. Members of the election canvassing committee were Lubbock County Judge Rod Shaw; Dr. Brent Bean of Texas Agricultural Extension Service; Mrs. Dolores Hibbs, an attorney with the Texas Department of Agriculture; and Albert Scheele, past chairman of TGSPB.

This election was the first stage of a statewide districting plan to give equal representation to all sorghum producers in the state. With the next election, in 1989, the fifteen TGSPB directors will be allocated to five districts. Each district will be represented by three directors and, in future elections, one director from each region will be elected every two years. Directors will serve six-year terms.

Other directors serving on the TGSPB are James Dyer of Weslaco, J.W. "Chato" Bauer of Refugio, Jack Crowl of Morse, George Reeves of Dalhart, Albert Scheele of Lockney, Delbert Watson of Muleshoe, Richard H. Perry of Robstown, Jack Cobb of Plains, Howard D. Salge of Skidmore and Weldon Shelton of Lamesa.

The new directors will take the oath of office at the next regular meeting of the board on September 3 in Dallas.

LORY TANNAHILL, 16-year-old daughter of Johnny and Gaye Tannahill, is being sponsored in the Miss Friona Pageant by Bengel Aero Spraying. She will sing and use a tape for her talent in the contest. She is 5'7" tall, has sandy blonde hair, brown eyes and is a junior at Friona High School. She likes to swim, sing and watch college football.

Hospital Auxiliary To Meet Sept. 1

Parmer County Community Hospital Auxiliary will have a meeting Tuesday, September 1 at 2 p.m. in the Sun Room of the hospital, according to Elizabeth McLellan, president.

Following the meeting, the Auxiliary will be accepting rummage from 2:30 to 4 p.m. at the old Blossom Cottage building, 615 Main Street.

All the old rummage has been removed from the building and the Auxiliary will be starting over with new stock. The Auxiliary members request that items donated be clean, useable items and not leftover garage sale items. Household items, furniture, bric-a-brac, flower arrangements and craft items are in demand.

The rummage sale will be held Friday, September 4.

The Parmer County Community Hospital Auxiliary was first organized in August, 1956. The rummage sales, television rentals, and the Hospital Memorial Fund are the major source of income. All income is used for the hospital's benefit.

Anyone interested in joining the Auxiliary is asked to come to their first meeting of the new year, Tuesday, September 1, in the Sun Room.

After spending a week in Tipton, Oklahoma, where I visited in the home of John, Geneva (she's my number one daughter) and Heather Osborn, Sunday morning's lower temperature was most welcome. However, in spite of the heat-or maybe because of it-cotton, okra and other hot weather loving crops were beautiful in the Altus, Hollis, Tipton, Frederick area.

Some of the farming in that area is in the Red River Valley and those crops looked like our irrigated crops. That fork of the river has flooded several times this spring and summer, so most farmers have had more than enough water.

Jason Floyd, my number two grandson who has been working here all summer, has gone back to Lubbock Christian University, so the population at 1301 Columbia is back to one again.

By the way, Dorothy Ellis, who lives east of Hub has this suggestion: "Place a bay leaf in any container of flour, meal or whatever you want to keep weevils out of it."

There's a new operator at Shara's Hair Affair. She's Lori Stockstill. She and her husband Greg, who is on the local coaching staff, moved here from Canyon and live at 1405 Elm.

Lori is a barber-stylist and will be taking appointments Monday through Saturday.

Bud and Arvilla Elmore and Lucille Wilson visited in the home of one of Bud's aunts, Bonita Potter, in Amarillo Monday.

Mrs. Potter served as a juvenile court judge many years before her retirement a few years ago. She's presently living at Park Place Towers.

A lot of our young people will be going away soon to continue their education in various institutions of higher learning in a lot of different places.

If you haven't already done so, maybe you should go by the Friona Star office and make arrangements to send the hometown paper to your student. Then, to make reading it more enjoyable to each one, you need to remember to report happenings of interest to Town Talk.

Without the help of our readers, there would be no such column. Your tips are very much appreciated.

Doyle and Judy Cummings returned home Wednesday evening after spending some time in the Sunshine State. Judy, who is incoming president of Gateway Association of Life Underwriters, attended an area leadership conference at Las Cruces before the couple went to the family cabin near Tres Ritas, New Mexico.

While they were there Scott and Donna Cummings and son, Kyle, who live in Lubbock, joined them for a few days. Later Lisa and Boonie Gonzales and sons, John-Paul and Eli of Azle, Texas, joined the group.

The Gonzales family returned to Friona with Doyle and Judy for a visit with local relatives and friends.

Harold and Jamie Lu Lillard, who live in Waco, Texas, are visiting in the homes of Mrs. J.M. Watson and other kith and kin this week. Harold reported unusually warm and dry weather in Waco.

He said, "Our rainfall is several inches below normal and we had more than three weeks of temperatures over 100 degrees."

"We finally got a respite," he continued, "one day it was only 99 degrees."

The Lillards are former residents and Jamie Lu is the daughter of Mrs. Watson.

About 85 persons registered at the annual reunion of the descendants of the late L.D. and Carrie Cummings in Beulah, Colorado earlier this month. Hosts for this year's gathering were Cecil and Hazel Cummings of Amarillo and their children and spouses, Benny Cummings, Carlsbad, New Mexico; and Leonard Cummings and Janice Duckett, Amarillo.

The Cummings family lived in the Hollene, New Mexico, area in the twenties and in Friona in the thirties. He was a pioneer Church of Christ preacher.

Frionans attending were Rosco and Beulah Cummings Ivie. Other children of the couple who were present were Dee Cummings, Dillie Stamps and Lena Chapin, all of Panhandle, Texas.

Also Walter Cummings, Levelland, Texas; and Loretta Beiderwell, Seal Beach, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Jones returned home Thursday evening after spending a fun filled week on Lake Hubbard, which is down near Breckenridge, Texas.

The Frionans were joined by Pat and Charles Joyce and Allie Ruth Smith, all of Edgewood, Texas. Pat and Allie Ruth are Max's sisters.

Raymond and Marie Fleming of Lubbock visited in Friona on Sunday. The Flemings, former local residents, are parents of Ray Dean Fleming and Lavon Reeve.

John Gaede observed his 80th birthday August 6. His wife, Zora, had planned a surprise party for him and regretted that the couple's only son, Maurice, who lives in Waukegan, Illinois, would not be able to attend.

Soon after lunch on Saturday Zora heard the doorbell ring and as she went to answer it, she thought, "It's probably some salesman and I don't really have time to spare, so I'll just not invite him in."

When she opened the door, the polite refusal had already been thought out and words were almost on the tip of her tongue. Maurice was standing on the porch and with his sun glasses on, so his mother was so taken by surprise that she did not recognize him immediately.

Later he said, "I almost didn't get invited in."

Out-of-town guests attending the Sunday afternoon party, which Maurice helped his mother host, were Joe and Verna Ferris, Muleshoe and Roy and Billie Partain, Hereford.

A lot of local neighbors and friends were present.

Maurice was able to stay a week, so his visit was like icing on John's birthday cake.

Zora said, "We enjoyed his visit so much and he did a lot of things we are not able to do any more."

The Friona Community Heritage Society will have the depot open for the public to see following the Maize Days parade, Saturday, September 5.

The depot will be open for about one hour, and members of the Heritage Society will be present to show you around the inside of the depot.

The Society is very pleased with their progress to date and are making plans to paint and re-roof the building soon.

Luther and Clessy Stroud returned home early last week. They are our down the street neighbors who divide their time between Okarche, Oklahoma and Friona, Texas.

Ethel Shields of Amarillo, who is a pioneer school teacher and mother of Deke Kendrick had another birthday recently. She's 86, but not too old to fly in a privately owned plane from Amarillo to Friona.

A nephew, Neal Lowe, teaches electronic engineering at Amarillo College and has a pilot's license. He and his wife, Helen, who teaches psychiatric nursing at Amarillo College, brought Mrs. Shields down for a one day visit with Deke and Pudge.

A birthday surprise for her was the presence of Sally Kendrick Messenger and her two daughters, Amanda and Suzanne, who live in Abilene, Texas. Danny and Teresa Kendrick and their sons, Andy and Matthew, who live here, were also present.

This was not the first time Mrs. Shields had flown in a small plane. Her first flight was a prize she won for selling more savings bonds than any other Clarendon College student during World War I.

Mrs. Shields began her teaching career at Spring Creek, which was a small school between Borger and Skellytown. Later she taught at Pampa then moved to Vega, where she taught many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowe and their Aunt Ethel returned to Amarillo late in the afternoon. Her parting remark was "This is the best 86th birthday I've ever had."

Mary Lou Truitt Baxter, who is a resident of a nursing home at Coalgate, Oklahoma, reported to her brother and sister-in-law, Frank and Carmaleet Truitt, by telephone early this week that her condition is improving.

She grew up here and is the widow of Charley Baxter. The Baxters lived in Clovis many many years.

If you've baked, fried, sauteed and diced zucchini for every dish you can think of, here's one you're sure to like. I think the name sounds interesting. It is: Calabacitas Con Maiz. It is really a delicious combination of squash, corn, green chili peppers and seasonings.

4 medium fresh zucchini
1/2 cup chopped onion

4 tablespoons oil or shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 clove minced garlic
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 ounces chopped green chile peppers
1 can whole kernel corn
1/2 cup cold water.
Rinse squash and dice without peeling. Fry squash and onion in oil about two minutes. Add garlic, green chile peppers, corn, and seasonings. Mix well. Add water and simmer in covered saucepan until squash is tender.

CASIE ESCOBEDO, daughter of Albert and Suann Escobedo, is being sponsored in the Friona Little Miss Pageant by Cora's Kitchen.

KAREN WIED will be sponsored in the Miss Friona Pageant by Modern Study Club. She will perform a skit for her talent in the contest. Karen is the 17-year-old daughter of Bobby and Delphine Wied and is a senior at Friona High School. She is 5'8" tall, has blonde hair and green eyes. Her hobbies include playing the piano, cooking, reading, collecting stuffed animals and playing basketball.

Study Club Sets Local Photography Show

Modern Study Club will again be host to Friona's annual Photography Show during Maize Days next week.

Those wishing to enter photographs should bring them to the old Winner's Choice location at the corner of Seventh and Main Streets on Thursday afternoon, September 3 anytime from noon until late. Photos in color and black and white are accepted if they are size 5x7 or larger and are matted or framed for hanging.

Pictures can be viewed all day Friday, September 4 and Saturday, September 5 until noon. Photographers are asked to pick up their pictures at noon on Saturday.

Don Spring of Bovina will again be judging the photos at noon September 4.

Ribbons will be given for first, second, third, and honorable mention in each of several categories. The visitors to the show will be asked to vote on their favorite photo which will receive the "best of show" award at noon on Saturday.

A special point of interest at last year's show was the antique photo section. Townspeople are invited to display antique photos of any size. These will not be judged but are just for fun as everyone seemed to especially enjoy viewing the old pictures in the photography show last year.

"West Texas is dry when it comes to rainfall, but wet when it comes to liquor. East Texas is wet with rain, but dry of alcohol. And while West Texans eat their barbecue dry, East Texans smother it in sauce."

Such are the observations of Texas Monthly senior editor, Dick J. Reavis, concerning some of the differences between east and west in Texas. Reavis has driven more than 50,000 miles of state highways that have taken him from Brownsville to El Paso to Texarkana.

His wanderings are all a part of the National Tour of Texas, a journey that began at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas on New Year's Day 1987 and will eventually cover every inch of highway in the state before returning to the Cotton Bowl on January 1, 1988.

Reavis is driving a Chevrolet Suburban, which was dubbed the National Car of Texas by Texas Monthly last year, and he is writing monthly columns for the magazine describing the people and places he sees along the way. Now halfway through his trek, Reavis stopped for awhile in a northeast Texas La Quinta Inn to share his first hand observations of Texans on either side of the state.

"The economy is a topic of discussion everywhere," says Reavis, "but for varying reasons. In the west, it's the decline of the oil industry and the devaluation of the Mexican peso. But in the forests of East Texas, where the lumber business is so important, the decline in the home building industry is what's hurt the region."

The most amusing differences Reavis has recorded have to do with the people. Having talked with hundreds of Texans over the last six months, this Texas

Monthly writer has developed some well-researched opinions about the people of the Lone Star State.

"Concerning religion, West Texans are either Baptist or Catholic. But East Texans are either Baptist or Baptist or Baptist. Overall, West Texans are more matter-of-fact and very blunt. They don't waste words. But East Texans will talk your ear off on just about any subject. They're more conscious of social mores too."

Reavis sees these differences as quite natural considering the disparities in population between East and West Texas. You can drive a hundred miles through West Texas and count the number of human beings you see on one hand. But you can't go a hundred yards in most East Texas towns without seeing at least as many people, and even the region's rural areas are heavily settled.

Reavis has also been observing lawmakers both east and west during his trip. "Becoming a judge in West Texas is a minor honor," says Reavis. "But in East Texas, if a man serves one term on the county bench, he's called Judge for the rest of his life. Most counties in West Texas don't have constables at all. And in the counties that do have them, the constables are just assistants to the sheriff and the courts. Their principle job is delivering civil papers. In East Texas, constables make arrests, patrol traffic, and generally enforce the law, but nobody trusts them. Lawmen are watched very closely in East Texas because everyone figures they're the ones who are stealing!"

More stories about the people and places Reavis has seen during the National Tour of Texas are recorded in his columns for Texas Monthly. Now in its fifteenth year of publication, Texas Monthly has a paid circulation of 280,000 and is read by more than one million people each month.

Prairie Acres Party Line

This week has been a pleasant one. The residents have enjoyed the rain, but are looking forward to some sunshine.

Friday was Melanie Montoya's last day with us. She will be returning to Portales. Donna Echols will be back with us Monday. She took a long summer vacation.

We have found a stray Blue Heeler male dog. He has no collar, but looks well fed. Please give us a call if he belongs to you. We would like to find him a home.

Roger, our maintenance man, hasn't been here this week because his father in California is very ill. We wish him the best.

We had memorials this week in memory of Decimae Beene from Eufaula Ethridge and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Zorns; in memory of Jimmy Hughes from Mr. and Mrs. Jim Zorns; in memory of Noreen O'Brian from Mr. and Mrs. Arley L. "Jake" Outland.

We would like to thank the Friona United Methodist ladies for doing hair care Tuesday. Also we would like to thank the Assembly of God Church for holding services Sunday. This Sunday, the St. Teresa's Catholic Church will hold our church services at 4 p.m.

Essie Alderson returned from the Hereford hospital Tuesday. She's doing better.

Ben Israel will have surgery on his foot in Hereford Friday. His surgery is minor, but we wish him well.

We would like to thank Becky Riethmayer, Lois Norwood and Delinda Carr for donating magazines. We have really enjoyed them.

We would like to thank Floyd and Wilda Millican for donating a 24 pound cantaloupe. One cantaloupe will feed everyone.

We would like to thank the Booster Club for donating a watermelon. It was delicious!

We would like to thank Mrs. Ben Rejino for donating a big box of peaches. The residents really enjoyed them.

We had our re-dedication ceremony on Wednesday. It went well. KFSA News Station was here and Globe Newspaper from Amarillo was here. Also our own Friona Star.

The mortgage was burned! The Chamber of Commerce served their "coffee cart." We would like to thank those ladies for taking time to bring the cart. Thanks to all the board members and to the city council who participated.

Jo wanted to thank Melanie and Teresa for making the giant check and the sign out front. And for helping get things together for this occasion. We would like to acknowledge Glenda Sifford as our long-term staff member. Debbie Sweatt has been here since Prairie Acres opened, but took a year off. This was a memorable occasion.

We would like to say that we miss Connie Neelley very much! She comes every week to help with hair care. We hope she feels better soon. Hope you have a speedy recovery, Connie.

TRICIA ICHTERTZ, 17-year-old daughter of Vergil and Judy Ichtertz, is being sponsored in the Miss Friona Pageant by Friona Noon Lions Club. She is 5'11" tall, has red hair, hazel eyes and is a senior at Friona High School. She will sing and dance to the "Rockin' Robin" tape. Her hobbies include playing volleyball, swimming and playing tennis.

DIAMOND AGUIRRE will be sponsored in the Friona Little Miss Pageant by Kendrick Oil Company. Her parents are Joe and Minnie Aguirre.

ESTELLA LOUISE ABEYTA, daughter of Alfonso and Rita Abeyta, will be sponsored in the Friona Little Miss Pageant by Cleo's Cleaners.

Balloon Launch Site Said "Ideal"

"Buffalo Springs Lake is one of the best hot air balloon launch sites I've seen anywhere and is a most picturesque area, too," said Ron Bush, the veteran hot air balloon pilot in West Texas, and a 12-year flying instructor in the spectacular sport.

"Along with being hazard-free, the level plateau area drains well in the event of unneeded rainfall, lending itself well to a dry launch which all balloonists hope for. Located in the heart of the most naturally scenic canyon and plains area of West Texas, it's a thrill to see it from the air in a balloon. Good landing spots are also plentiful all around."

Those are the complimentary opinions expressed by Bush when interviewed about the Third Annual Hot Air Balloon Rally scheduled for sunrise both Saturday and Sunday mornings, September 19 and 20. It will be held at the popular recreation area just southeast of Lubbock. "I would also say that the lake area retains its natural beauty since the Lubbock County Water District people have simply enhanced its appearance, creating no artificial or unnatural beauty," explained Bush.

Bush, president of the Lubbock Balloon Club, is a widely known and respected pilot in the ballooning fraternity over the nation. Flying over the Buffalo Springs Lake area during weekends and holidays, he is impressed by the number and variety of attractions he sees at the recreation site.

In addition to water sports, fishing and family picnicking, other activities are enjoyed by thousands of area people throughout the year. One special attraction is the annual July 4 fireworks display, reflections from which can be seen in the night sky for miles. "Only our upcoming Hot Air Balloon Rally will be more spectacular," grinned Bush, adding that he felt the thousands that will attend the sunrise event will thoroughly enjoy the colorful show designed for all members of the family.

Observers of hot air balloon rallies are predicting as many as forty thousand people will come to the lake to get a close-up view of the inflation of the balloons and their dramatic launching. Many of them will be Lubbock residents, but upwards of ten thousand will be out-of-town visitors coming to Lubbock to get the first-hand thrill of the entire operation, observers say. The Visitors and Conventions Bureau and the Hotel-Motel Association view the affair as a major drawing card similar to a large convention. Both groups are fully cooperating with the Balloon Club in the affair.

Bush modestly fails to stress the hard work involved in presenting such an attraction. Lubbock Balloon Club members, numbering more than fifty, work year-round on developing the spectacle. Balloon pilots in a three state area are invited to enter the Rally. As many as fifty of the beautiful sky-ships could be seen floating skyward those two September mornings.

Coordination of the show requires the assistance of many groups such as traffic controllers, CB radio operators, concessions and lake personnel. However, technical direction of the Rally remains in the hands of experienced club members and helpers for launching the sky giants, in addition to chase crews who follow the balloons. Where possible, they assist in their balloon's landing, its deflation, and the proper storage for the next flight. The crews provide transportation back to the launch site for pilot and passengers, if any.

"The most important thing about the entire effort," said Bush, "is that the Ronald McDonald House will receive the proceeds to apply on the new building near Lubbock General Hospital, and that's good."
