2nd Annual Maize Days Begins Tonite

We were joined by "budding journalists" this weekend who were busy trying to get out the first issue of The Arrow, offical publication of the Friona

The Arrow will be printed in our plant here in Frions and we figure it will be easy to get sympathy in our efforts to put out a paper from some of these youngsters who worked all Sunday afternoon in order that their paper would appear on time.

They met with most of the difficulties which face that class of "idjits" who figure that working on a newspaper is a good way to pass the time

We hope that Roy Simmons, sponsor of the paper, won't be bothered by a permanent fixation or get some sort of neurosis from the battle they had with pictures this week.

Seems that all the efforts they put out to get pictures around the school and of the recent football games went for naught.

Not once, but several times, shot film would go into the darkroom for developing and come out the way it went in -

But--with all the difficulties and lost sleep they were successful in getting out this is-sur of The Arrow and we hope they will get inspiration from their efforts and keep up the job of supplying our nation with newspaper men and women for the future.

Two carloads of folks from Friona journeyed up to Amarillo Saturday and were "televised" over KGNC-TV on Cot-

Plains Publishers, Star Plan Opening

In addition to a heavy and exciting Maize Days fare this weekend, many Friona area residents will be interested in the open house Saturday of a Friona business.

Sponsored jointly by the Friona Star and Plains Publishers, the opening will be for the purpose of acquainting the residents of the area with the new offices of the newspaper and the new plant of the publishing company.

The two businesses, both owned by W. H. Graham Jr. and Joe Osborn, share the same building. They moved into the new building at 6th and Euclid two months ago.

Friona Star is an old and familiar name to local people, but Plains Publishers is a new enterprise. In beginning the new business, Graham and Osborn ventured into the lithographic field, which as yet is largely experimental for newspapers but which they believe will be the printing process of

"We have had many technical problems to overcome," says Graham, "and they are not yet all solved. However, we have managed to get the papers out and believe that we are approaching a routine in production."

Because the "offset" printing process is so new and so few local people have had the opportunity to see the workings of the plant, a small "open house" edition has been planned for

The schedule of the progressive steps in getting the edition ready can be found in an announcement elsewhere in the paper. Residents can plan to see any or all of the phases.

Council Votes Same Tax Rate as 1957

sion Tuesday night, city coun cil members voted to leave taxes in the city of Friona at the same level they were for the 1957 taxes.

This rate of $1.25 per $100 valuation will be broken down into 41 cents for retirement of bonds and sinking fund and the remaining 84 cents going toward general funds.

Council members voted to exempt certain property within the city from taxes and this included that owned by the American Legion, Assembly of God Church, Baptist Church, Catholic Church, Congregational Church, Church of Christ, city, Friona Independent School District, Friona Lodge, Friona Woman's Club, Methodist Church, Parmer County, Parmer County Community Hospital, State of Texas and Pentecostal Church.

The tragedy was short-lived as it was back in its familiar spot shortly after noon Friday.

What happened for sure may never come to light, but after investigations and interro-

Thursday night Boyd got together a quarter of Bovinates and between the five a plan of action was batched.

plan of action was hatched.

The object in mind was to swipe the jail and take it home. (The reason isn't clear for there isn't a rose garden in front of the bank down in Bovina, we're told.)

At any rate the five came to Friona during the midnight hours Thursday and carried out their plan.

Boyd found the night patrolman. Russell Rentfrow, intro-man, Russell Rentfrow, introduced himself to the new man of Friona's police force, and asked if he could ride with him for awhile.

Eager to make friends in his new home, Rentfrow agreed and he and Boyd began patroling the streets.

At a predetermined time Boyd shyly suggested they get a cup of coffee. So, off down to the highway

Then, the plot began to thicken.

A two-tone Chevrolet pickup stole silently down the streets and parked in front of the Friona State Bank.

The four men jumped out (this part hasn't been figured out yet), and pushed the 1500 pound jail onto the bed of the pickup and sped away. This is where the mistake

On the way out of town, the suspicious cargo was spotted, license plate jotted down and owner of the pickup recognized.

Back to Bovina went the jail and its gleeful "owners."

Their joy was short lived.

Early Friday morning a posse was formed to get the jail back, but then clearer heads decided it would be more humorous if the culprits who "borrowed" the jail had to return it.

A warrant was sworn out and given to Deputy Sheriff Ben Moorman.

Moorman went to Bovina and found two of the men on the streets and told them that if the jail was returned by noon the warrant would be torn up.

Another issue on returning the jail was thrown out-this was that it be returned with Boyd inside.

But-right at the stroke of noon the same Chevrolet pickup, driven by Lee Kimbrough, rounded the Loop curve escorted by a deputy sheriff.

Accompanying the driver were most of his henchmen, Cecil Osborne, Grady Sorley and Jack Jeter. This time two more men came to help the four as Boyd was nowhere to be found.

Thus ends the story of the "traveling jail of Friona."

resident.

Anyhow, a run to Bovina revealed the jail was set up on the bank corner there and after Ben Moorman talked to a couple of folks in Bovina who were suspected of "borrowing" the jail, they agreed to return it to Friona.

So, scarcely 12 hours after they took the jail way, the Bovina-ites returned the jail.

The truck, headed west — to California, struck the railing on the north side of the brige. It was loaded with new Thunderbirds and Lincolns. The truck trailer flipped off the bridge on the north side and landed upside down in the draw. The tractor stayed upright on the bridge, but the car which was being carried immediately above the cab broke loose and shot down the road west several yards. Wreckage caused the highway to be blocked for several minutes after the accident. Farwell Fire Boys were called to the scene. They sprayed the bridge while a wrecker from Karl's Auto Clinic in Farwell dragged the crumpled tractor out of the way. The water was to keep friction sparks from igniting spilled gasoline on the bridge.

The accident was investi-gated by Highway Patrolman Kenneth Maxwell and Sheriff son's time with idle chatter.

In the past two weeks we have had several requests from relatives of the Billington family for copies of the September 4 issue which carried the story of the wreck in which six members of the family were killed at Hub. Our supply has been exhausted and we are unable to fill

It will be greatly appresinted if anyone having the section of the paper which contained this story will call the Star office. We will be happy to pick them up and forward them to the relatives who did not get a copy of the issue.

Having Mrs. Floyd Schlenker visit us is always a pleasure. She stopped in the office Morely morning to tell us that Catherine Chang, one of the girls who made her home with Mrs. Schlenker last school had appeared on a "Queen For a Day" pro-

Mrs. Schlenker didn't see the program, but the girls wrote her about it. Both girls are student nurses and one day the program was set aside for Nurse's Day. Although Catherine didn't get to be Queen For a Day, she was one of the queen's attendants and was one of the ones who were treated to a ride in the gold Cadillac.

Since we moved over here about the first of last month. a large number of persons have asked when we were going to have open house and invite everyone to see our new quarters. Until one day last week we had been giving each inquirer a rather vague answer that generally set the date to coincide with Maize Days.

Now we know the exact date. Everyone in the area is invited by the entire staff of the Star and Plains Publishers to visit us Saturday. Of course, we are very proud of our new place of business and are anxious to show it off to all our friends.

As is true of most West Texas gatherings, you don't need a formal invitation. All there is for you to do now is to make plans to have time Saffirday to detour one block off the main drag and come to see us.

In almost every city there are various courses for adult education and anyone who is interested in furthering his education can easily avail himself of the opportunity to do If anyone happens to ask our opinion of what course is needed by most adults, we have the answer all figured out.

The name of the course would be "Telephone Manners." It is apalling to note the rudeness of some adults when using telephones. These same people would never think of bong rude at any other

Anyone who lives on a rural line or a party line has experienced some of the lack of consideration of other users of the same line. This situation should not exist. Any person who is old enough to use a telephone should be taught to be courteous at all times

Some of the things which grown-ups should never do nor allow their children to do are:

SPRING GRADUATES WIDELY SEPARATED

The opening of school this fall finds the graduates of the class of '58 widely separated. Many of them had been in school together since they were first grade students and others had been classmates a long time.

Two of the class members who chose to spend many more years of their life together are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Fairchild, who were married in the early summer. Although they make their home in town, they spend much of their time in the country. Larry farms in the Lakeview community where he has lived all his life. Mrs. Fairchild was Paula Neel before her marriage.

Other members of the class who have married during the summer are Eva Nell Thomas, who is now Mrs. Robert C. Stovall of Dimmitt, and Dale Williams. Dale lives here and is employed by Reeve Chevrolet Company.

Some of the others who are locally employed are Barbara O'Brian who is with Rushing Insurance Agency, Billie Rae McKee, an employee of the Friona State Bank; Roy Mack Nazworth, who is working for Black Grain Company; Paul Averett, who is farming in the Rhea community; and Peggy Sue Taylor who is working in Superintendent Dillie M. Kelley's office.

Several are furthering their educations. Some of those who are freshmen at West Texas State at Canyon are Weldon Fairchild, Weldon Tatum, and

The Senior Girl Scout Troop met Monday afternoon at the Methodist Church annex. Six Scouts and the leader, Mrs. Russel O'Brian, were present. Plans were made for a money raising project for the year. During the business meeting the following officers were elected: Jacquelyn Magness, president; Jolynda Stokes, vice-president; Linda O-'Brian, secretary; Sally treasurer; Donna Fields, reporter; and Karen O'Brian, assistant reporter.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Burr of Portland, Ore., were weekend guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rolen. Burr is Mrs. Rolen's brother.

Woman's Club History Tells Story of Friona

By Sally Whitesides

'One sunny afternoon, early in the fall of 1909, a group. of progressive-minded women met on the front porch of the Friona Drug Store to discuss the organization of a woman's club." This is an excerpt from a short history of the Friona Woman's Club, written by it's only charter member still active in the club, Mrs. Pearl Kinsley. Now, as the club nears it's 49th anniversary, members are looking back and finding many just causes to celebrate.

many just causes to celebrate.
Friona was, in 1909, in it's infancy; a small village set down on the rolling plains of West Texas. These women who met that day were all representatives of an older and more developed section of the United States. They had come with their families, to build a new home in the promising, untouched country. Women of education and culture, each of these women would have been a real asset to a woman's club anywhere.

A Mrs. Rohrabaugh, wife of the local druggest, was hostess for that initial meeting. There, in the shade of the store's front porch, the club was planned.

Programs for the year were made out and officers were selected. Mrs. J. H. Todd, who had recently moved from Mansfield, Ohio, was chosen as president and Mrs. J. H. Letton was appointed chairman of the program committee.

As when organizing any club, lots of plans had to be made, and discussions ran thick and fast. While the women talked together, a dream within each was fulfilled; that of having a club at which they could meet, visit and work for the imporvement of the new country.

Many of those plans made that first meeting are still in effect. One, the decision to meet on the second and fourth Wednesday afternoons of each month, is still the schedule that they comply by. Only for one year has this been interrupted.

The club was, as said, organized by the pioneer women of the Friona area. Used, as they were, to similar organizations in their former hometowns, to be without one was a loss which these ladies set out to remedy as quickly as possible.

Many of these women, such as Mrs. Kinsley, had come to the plains during those months of 1909 when the sale of land was at it's highest peak. They arrived by the trainload and set about carving homes from a wilderness of tall grass and rolling plains. Others, coming later, were to become members and to take active parts in the building of a successful and interesting and entertaining club.

Those first year's programs show much of what the local ladies were interested in. Those early programs pertained to topics close to the hearts of every young homemaker; housekeeping, raising children, cooking; all generously interspersed with programs of music and reading.

grams of music and reading.
During the initial years,
membership never exceeded 22 women and they continued to be active until 1918. At that time, the club was disbanded for one year and the women, helped with the war effort

by doing Red Cross work.

As in most enterprising clubs, self-teaching and entertainment soon were not enough for the energetic ladies. They took on other projects. Among these were the placing of pictures in the school rooms of Friona; sending books to the Girl's Training School at Gainsville and the contribution of other books to the Friona School library.

It wasn't easy; there were years when membership and attendance dropped to a low ebb. But it was through the efforts of those who remained faithful that the organization continued to operate and, within a few years, even prosper and grow. In the fall of 1922, a big step, as far as the members were concerned, was accom-plished. The Friona Woman's Club was accepted for state federation. The federation meant many things, among them was the fact that the effort of the members, to have a worthwhile club, was noted and appreciated by the Federation Board. Federation made only a few changes in the local club. One is that officers since that time have been elected for two years, instead of one year.

With the years, the programs began to change. They began to reflect the women's concern for more than just homes and families. Programs titled "Keeping up with the World Today," "Travels," and American citizenship studies were to become popular during the 1920's.

For their 20th birthday, the club celebrated with a huge cake, complete with 20 candles. Five years later, a silver tea was held to commemorate their 25th anniversary.

During those years, the club members were constantly busy with projects to improve and beautify their town. Trees were planted in the park; a well was drilled and a windmill was erected, with a supply tank, at the city park. To do all this, money was needed. The women held flower shows, health clinics, baby shows and made flags for the school, the city hall and for several of the merchants.

The sale of food at farm sales was another way in which they struggled to make money. Mrs. S. L. (Lillian) McLellen looks back fondly to one particular sale.

The sale was held near Dimmitt and the time of year was "windy spring" and the local women made the trip there to sell sandwiches and pie to those attending the sale.

It was the dubious honor for Mrs. McLellen to take care of the children for the day. She recalls that she turned them loose in a dirt-floored metal barn and let them play. "They didn't resemble children much by the end of the day," she says, "but, did they ever have a ball!"

In more recent years, the women of the club have seen the needs of the younger women of the community. A number of years ago, they assisted these ladies in organizing a club for women of their own age group.

The club was first called the Friona Junior Study Club, but has recently been renamed the Modern Study Club. Through the joint efforts of the women of both these organizations, a third generation club was organized several years ago and now, in many instances, mother, daughter and granddaughter are, or have been members of the three clubs.

Then too, the needs of the little girls of the community were noted and the Woman's Club has sponsored the Girl Scouts and Brownies in Friona for a number of years.

Back in 1926, the club had one of it's biggest and most satisfying projects. The Better Homes Committee used the parsonage of the Congregational Church as a model home and they proceeded to remodel and redecorate the home. Paper, paint and other facelifting jobs were done and their efforts were amply rein 1909, through to modern On one side of the float,

Not only did the people of the community show their appreciation, but pictures of the "before and after", when sent to the National Headquarters of the Federated Woman's Clubs, received for them honorable mention for their accomplishment.

From the very beginning, the members had one outstanding dream for the future; that of having a club house all their own. Money washard to come by, the the members managed to save a little to go into the club house fund each year. After about 25 years of such plans, the dream became a reality. At last they were to get a club house.

The first hurdle was made when Mrs. Margaret Henschel, then an honorary member of the club, donated lots on the corner of Ninth and Pierce Streets on which the building now stands.

With the help of the Modern Study Club members, a loan was obtained from the bank to build the rock home of the clubs. It features a lobbyentrance, kitchen and a large, assembly hall. The rock for the building was transported from the San Jon, N. M., area and it was "fun, work, plans, dreams, elbow grease and lots of sweat" that v nt into the finished product. The building was completed in the middle 19 0's, and the final payment on the loan was paid five years later.

Several years ago, more work was done on the club house. Some of the rocks needed to be replaced and a window on one corner had to be removed. New floors have been laid, too, and the interior has been redecorated a number of times.

It is not only for the con-venience of the club members, however. A number of other organizations have held committee meetings there, as well as conventions, showers and receptions. The facilities are complete and it is definitely a worthwhile addition to the community.

As the years passed, the women of the Friona Woman's Club kept their fingers to the pulse of progress in their town. A hospital was needed, and, when other organizations and individuals began drives in that direction, the civic and social organization was right in there pitching.

Through a number of projects, they, with the help of their sister-club, the Modern Study Club, raised enough money to be of a real assistance to the hospital fund.

One of their goals which they reached in this matter was the furnishing of a room at the he ipital. This room was donated as a memorial for a longtime club member, Mrs. Fayola Hardesty.

With more progress in their little city, paving came to the streets around the club house. The bill for the paving was large, and it took more projects and money raising schemes to meet the bills. The final installment of the paving was paid, much to the relief and gratification of the women, in 1954.

One of the projects the organization began early in their history was "feeding the Lions." Members of the club, again with the assistance of members of the two other woman's clubs in town, prepare and serve a meal for the Lions Club meetings twice a month.

The work and planning was divided so that, in those early days, two members from each club did the work. In the last few years, the senior club has taken, more or less a back seat in the project. Now, only one member of the original club takes the responsibility of helping at the meals.

There is also a rule which applies to several members of this club, that permits them to cease active duty on the feeds at a certain age. Although a number of the members have passed that age, they continue doing their share for the simple reason that they like to.

While the hospital was still in the "old barracks building" the club members worked earnestly to purchase a most important piece of equipment. After sincere effort, they succeeded and donated the first delivery table used in the hospital. A couple of years ago, when the Maize Days celebration was first begun in Friona, the club assisted in every manner possible. Long members of the annual county fair. parade, they now made up their floats and entered into the Maize Days parade. One of the first was really outstanding, it is reported, as it depicted the passage of time from the first meeting their number amounted to that many women. Over the 49 years which they have been of 50 members, rarely has active, a total of about 350 women have joined the club.

Many of the present members can say with confidence that they are "oldtimers," as they have been active for at least

At the present time, there is a total of 37 members, a number of associate members and one honorary member. Present membership includes Mesdames A. W. Anthony Sr., S. Beaton, John Benger, A. H. Boatman, Ed Boggess, M. B. Buchanan, John Davis, L. R. Dilger, C. W. Dixon, R. N. Gore, Mablelle Hartwell and Mabel Jones.

Mesdames V. R. Jordan, H. C. Kendrick, Pearl Kinsley, O. F. Lange, L. F. Lillard, T. E. Lovett, C.C. Maurer, S. L. McLellan, J. F. Miller, em Miller, Joe Moyer, and Mary Officer.

Others are Mesdames F.L.

Reed, G. E. Reed, F. W. Reeve, R. L. Rule, Charles Russell, Shackelford, Floyd Schlenker, W. B. Stark, W. A. Tinney, Roy Slagle, E. S. White, Fred White and Jewel Woodward. Associate members are Mesdames Hugh Blaylock, L. A. Sartain, Fred Dean and M. B. McKinney. These ladies are wives of pastors of Friona. Mrs. J. C. Wilkison, who lives near Fort Worth, is anhonorary member. While she lived in Friona, she was an active member and great affection is felt for her still.

Mrs. Todd was the first president, way back in 1909, but she has been followed by a number of other women who, through their energetic efforts, have continued to build that which she started.

Those who have held the presidency since that time include Mrs. J. B. Overfelt, Pearl Kinsley, Flora Winn, Margaret Henschel, Elsie Livings, Winnie Wilkison, Adaline Reeve, Letha Hanson, Floy Crawford, Pearl Bledso, Minnie Goodwine and Edith

Others are Nellie Dilger, Katie Osborn, Melinda Schlenker, Rose Lange, Glee White, Luella Maurer, Winnie Dunn, Fayola Hardesty, Virgie Jordan and Lillian Mc-

Mrs. Mary Dixon was president last year and Mrs. Schlenker will take her place for her second term this fall. Several of the women have held the office more than once.

Others holding office for the coming year are Mrs. S. E. Beaton, vice-president; Mrs. Joe Moyer, secretary; Mrs. R. L. Rule, treasurer; Mrs. Floyd Reeve, parliamentarian; and Mrs. E. S. White, reporter.

The community can be justtified in its pride for this organization. Its members and their accomplishments have been wrought for Friona. These women, who have given their time, effort and money for the improvement of conditions in their community, have done much. Each time they meet for the coming year will be much like that first

Although they will meet in the club house, in modern comfort, they are essentially the same women who met long ago on the drug store porch. Their ideas and ideals are the same. First, they meet for visiting with friends, but while they are visiting, they are also busy making plans; plans for a better Friona. They are to be congratulated for their assistance in making their town into the praiseworthy town it is today.

GRAIN SORGHUM PRODUCERS

AMARILLO, TEXAS

Harvest, 1958

Mr. Grain Sorghum Producer:

Have you done anything about selling your grain sorghum this fall? Sure you will deliver it where you always have. But I mean have you done anything about Really selling it to the livestock and poultry feeders, to commercial and industrial users, or to the exporters (these are the only outlets for grain sorghum you know).

WOULDN'T YOU like to sit right down with some big livestock feeder and explain that for some grades and classes of livestock grain sorghum feed value is as much as 103% that of any other feed grain?

WOULDN'T YOU like to visit with poultry raisers about the fast rate of gain and present economics of production that is being enjoyed from grain sorghum rations?

OULDN'T YOU like to suggest specific expanded research and education projects for sorghum production, marketing and utilization?

WOULDN'T YOU like to help some child in some distant land go to bed "full" perhaps for the first time in his life? It may be as simple as showing agricultural leaders in our import countries more about how to use grain sorghum with their livestock and poultry.

WOULDN'T YOU like to go down the list of all the industrial items made from grain sorghum (cooking oil, plastics, ink, instant laundry starch, adhesives, etc.) and point out to others how they might benefit by using grain sorghum as a source of raw material?

WOULDN'T YOU like to help the Secretary of Agriculture decide what is "fair and reasonable" for grain sorghum price supports in the future (that is our only support you know)?

WOULDN'T YOU like grain sorghum represented at an October national meetg when producers of corn, soybeans, rice, barley, wheat and other crops meet to draft policies affecting feed grains?

YOU CAN do all these things. These are the activities of your research, market development, and service association. Ask your elevator operator to deduct two pounds per thousand from your deliveries of grain sorghum to further the program of your association, the Grain Sorghum Producers Association.

Sincerely yours,

Bill Nelson

Once a Must-Now a Hobby

By Sally Whitesides During the past 50 years, vast changes have been made in modes of transportation, commerce, industry and even in hobbies. Things that in 1900 were fundamental parts of a person's everyday life and was essential in their pursuit of prosperity and happiness are no kept for sheer pleasure. Such is the position in which horses are placed in modern

During the years before and after the turn of the century. every family in the Friona area had from one to a 100 head of horses, depending upon their needs and desires. Now, in 1958, few horses can be bund in this part of the country, where 20 mule or horse teams have been replaced by tractors and trucks that boast hundreds of horse-

There are still a few families, however, who keep horses. These are, for the most part, strictly riding animals and they often double as show, working and breeding stock. Such is the case of those belonging to Mrs. Clifford Crow. Mrs. Crow is the proud owner of an Appaloosa brood mare and a six-month old colt.

Appaloosa, pronounced 'appelucy,' horses are a breed that its owners say date back to prehistoric times. These horses range in color from white to black, with spots > ona two years ago. Actually, both Mr. and Mrs. Crow are natives of the Friona area, but they moved to Arkensas several years ago and lived there and in East Texas for about five years. The call of the Plains was too great, though, and they moved back and have full intentions of staying here "forever."

Their peculiar salt and pepper coloring makes them dis-

Always a lover of horses,

Mrs. Crow bought her first mentioned above, in 1952. Since that time, she has had a number of them. At one time, she had 12 head, but she sold her herd when she and her hus-

After the sale of her stock, Mrs. Crow began to dream of acquiring more brood stock. She wants to have about 10 brood mares, if it is at all possible. That dream is well the way of becoming a real-

Mrs. Crow's horses, by the way, aren't strictly for her own pleasure. Although she started out with that in mind, her interest in raising the breed as a profitable hobby has grown. Her horses have been entered in minor Appaloosa horse shows in Arkansas and Texas and they have received favorable recognition at every one.

Appaloosa horses have a long and illustrious background. The first time they were noted in history was, according to a breeder's magazine, about 20,000 years ago. Then in a wild state, this breed, with its coloring so peculiar was known to man only as a game animal to be hunted and eaten. This all took place in northern Europe, shortly after the ice age and before the forests grew. Pictures of horses, with the characteristic spots of the breed, have been found in caves in which the man of that era made his home.

The record then skips to about 1000 B. C. In the valleys of Austria, excavations reveal that pouches and scabbards of the dead warriors were often graced with pictures of horses with spots--with striking resemblance to this mottled colored breed.

During the infamous Han Dynasty of China, more stories and pictures of the Appaloosa horse crop up. History has it that one emperor saw an Appaloosa horse and immediately wanted a span of them for himself. When the breeders refused to sell them to him, war was declared. This war, lasting over 25 years and costing more than 40,000 lives, ended only when all the horses were in the emperor's possession.

Russia, Austria, Germany and the Netherlands were invaded gradually by the very popular breed of horses. They were a mark of quality to the owners and in much demand. By 1600, they were favorites in France and England and early in the 18th Century, they way across Europe, they were becoming the favorite horse of Indian warriors in the unsettled United States. Their "spotted ponies" were descendants of those brought to Chihuahua, Mexico, by the ex-

The breed all but died out during the latter days of the 19th Century, because by then the Indians had been subdued and placed on reservations. There, they weren't allowed to keep the horses that were so much a part of their native existence.

Interest in Appaloosa horses was revived only about 20 years ago and since that time their popularity has grown and now interest in breeding stock is high. It isn't unusual for a good colt to be sold for more than

Other qualities besides the coloring interest the advocates of Appaloosa horses, some of these are versatility, quiet disposition, keen intelligence, all coupled with their willingness to learn-they all make up the characteristics most appreciated by their owners.

hunters, if you want to make a conversation about horses interesting, get advocators from two different breeds together. This was done, with the most friendly results, several weeks ago in Friona. This writer, with Mrs. Crow, visited with Mr. and Mrs. D. E. (Dick) Habbinga. They are owners and promoters of Palomino horses.

Mr. and Mrs. Habbinga are a well-known retired farm couple who live in Friona. They owned a farm and operated it with the use of horses and mules for a good many years. In the 1940's, though, they had to retire due to his health. Since that time, their hobby of horse raising and training has filled a great deal of their time.

Lovers of horses from "way back," the Habbingas have participated in the Friona and Hereford parades for years. They not only ride their horses, saddle and dressed in a cosbut they also put into use a tume of yesterday.

"go-cart" which he picked up at a sale several years ago. Actually, the cart is a twowheeler with extended shafts between which the horse is harnessed. Using one of their gentle horses, Mr. and Mrs. Habbinga and the cart are a familiar sight in the parades of this area. Mrs. Habbinga has, also, in the past ridden their sorrel mare on a side

For their riding, Mr. and Mrs. Habbinga choose Palomino horses. When asked for the characteristics of their favorite breed, the answer was much the same as given hu Mrs. Crow-beauty, intelligence, eagerness to work, etc. But the coloring of the two breeds of horses is the most striking difference. Where the Appaloosa is of an indistinct pattern of black on white, the Palomino is creamy, golden yellow, with a white mane and tail.

They are graceful animals, and are used for show and trick riding. Noted for their intelligence, they are favorites for children's mounts.

The history of Palominos, in contrast to the long one belonging to the Appaloosa, is a source of contention among

This conjecture, however, Parmer County. does not explain how the color and other characteristics of the Palomino came about from a mixture of the various breeds left to run wild.

It is known the Spanish explorer prided himself in owning only the best of horseflesh known to the continent. And, through the generations of living in freedom, bands became breeds and the golden horse that is the pride of so many today is the result.

There are many other people, scattered throughout Parmer County, who still keep a horse or two around. ## A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

In approximately two months this nation will formally observe Thanksgiving Day. This week, however, we citizens of Friona have an advance opportunity during Maize Days. During the fun and frolic of such a celebration as Maize Days we are all prone to overlook the Master, from whose bounty we receive the gracious gifts of good soil, plenteous water, sun, and rain, which help bring the crops on which this celebration is based.

Of course, we should give Him thanks every day for all His generous gifts, but, may we not each take a few minutes during this special week to stop in at one of our churches singly or in groups and offer our thanks to our Creator.

Let us all worship together in the church of our choice Sunday.

many" in the near future. There are many strange things about chinchillas. One is the temperature nevers gets the way in which they must be above 80 degrees. Ideal is from caught and held. Chinchillas are able to, upon being touched, release their fur from their skin and thus escape capture. This characteristic was part of their protection when they lived in a wild state in their native habitat.

A constant prey for larger animals and birds, the little animals had to depend on their lightning-like movements to preserve their race. Thus, when they were attacked, often the only thing which the bird of prey caught was a crop of fur as the near-naked chinchilla made his hasty retreat. When the local family wishes to catch one of theirfurry friends, they must grasp it by the tail, lift it from the cage and place it on their hand or arm. As the animals are inquisitive as well as shy, they will remain passive to the touch of a person they are acquaint-of the loss of fur. If the chinchilla is accidentally caught by the fur, a bare spot is the result and months of regrowth is needed before the pelt returns to its natural high standard.

Housing for chinchillas is fairly uncomplicated. In the first place, there is absolutely no odor to the animals as long as the cages are kept clean. They like and live best in wire cages and the Stephens family is now experimenting with several different types of pens.

They feel that the most successful will be a type that hangs from the wall, with an underflooring which can be cleaned each day. The mesh wire floor doesn't seem to bother the little animals at all.

In the housing situation, though, one must be sure that they are never submitted to much heat. The Stephens family keeps an air conditioner

50 to 70 degrees and, during the winter, only slight heat is needed, even when the temperature drops below freezing. One thing has been learned. A gas-heating system must not be used as even the smallest amount of fumes will kill the animals.

The diet of chinchillas is complicated only to the novice. Each morning, each chinchilla is fed a raisin, as a natural laxative. Luckily, chinchillas are wild about raisins and will rush to the cage door and beg with little whines whenever they hear the raisin box rattle. Mrs. Stephens "hands" each a raisin and they sit on their haunches, much like squirrels, and, holding it between their front paws, will morning, also, boxes of fine, non-abrasive sand is placed in the cages and miniature dust stowns empt as the animals twist and fluff themselves.

Due to the excess oil that they generally carry, precautions must be taken prior to pelting. About 10 days before the animals are to be killed and pelted, they are kept on a strict diet of only water and hay, and have many chances at the bath sand.

Contrary to many beliefs, chinchilla fur is very durable. The density of the fur, plus the added protection of the darker, guard hairs, goes towards making it out last many furs which are considered more servicable.

But this durability comes only after the animal has been put to death. Mrs. Stephens Rabbit pellets are generally says that animals for pelting are put to sleep with chloroform and then placed in a cold cabinet, or old refrigerator, until thoroughly chilled out. in chinchilla fur is a complicated grouping of characteristics. Density, naturally, is of utmost importance, as is resilance. But color, too, is a big item in the market. A few years ago, pelts with a bluish cast to the under-fur was most prized. However, that color chinchilla fashion is a clear, pale grey. To give an idea of just how dense the chinchilla's fur is, there are approximately 70 hairs growing from each follicle or pore in their skin. Rarely does a human head boast of more than a half dozen hairs

The arid desert land and rocky slopes of the Andes Mountains of South America is the native habitat of these little

The use of their fur was at crest in popularity during the years between 1875 and 1905. The pelts were obtained by indiscriminate trapping of the little wild animals and were brought in by the bale. Prices were low and pelts so plentiful that they were used to line men and boys' coats. Now, chinchilla fur is prized greatly and is used to make the most expensive of evening wraps for ladies. chinchilla population caused concern for the South American governments and so a ban on all trapping was made. That action caused the prices to skyrocket and even the poorest grade of pelt was sold at a premium. So human was their attitude that they would pay anything for an item that was about to be lost to the world.

After trapping was banned, several South Americans tried unsuccessfully to raise them in captivity. Each effort failed until a man named Chapman, U. S. mining engineer, tried his hand. After years of study and research, and many heartbreaking experiences, Chapman brought his first few pairs to the United States. Since then, the industry has grown, slowly, but steadily, in this country. Chinchillas aren't hard to raise, reports Mrs. Stephens. They are friendly, inquisitive little animals that only require moderate attention, Noise, as a general rule, doesn't bother them too much. That is, uncoat is dated now; the latest less it is unexpected or of a strange nature. In fact, people and animals which they have become accustomed to, do not bother them in the slightest way; the Stephens' dog is completely ignored on his frequent visits to the room. but this writer, as a stranger among them, received a scolding from them. Their "bark" is slightly rat-like in tone, but is definitely a bark. Chinchillas range very little in size. Most of them are from 12 to 14 inches in length, with a bushy tail that extends behind them about four or five inches. Their nearest relative in North America is the porcupine, but they more closely resemble the squirrel. They are somewhat blocky built animals, with large, beady black eyes, thin transparent ears, and, of course, an extremely fine, dense fur.

Breeding on small ranches, such as the Stephens have, is on the "pair" system. In this manner, a male and female live their complete life cycle in a single cage; he being a very amiable family man. There are characteristics of the female, however, which are of definite concern to most chinchilla breeders.

First, Miss Chinchilla is shy, but murderously mean. She must be "introduced" to her prospective mate while they are still in separate cages. Otherwise he will either be chased from the pen or he will wind up dying a sudden death, a victim of her exceedingly sharp teeth.

It usually takes about two weeks, reports Mrs. Stephens, for the couple to become acquainted while being penned in adjoining cages. Only after this courtship is it safe to place

In larger ranches, though, up to a dozen females share the favor of one male. It takes a complicated system of pens that will allow him free run while they remain in their own pens, though, and is an initial expense that most small breeders do not try until their herd is paying for itself.

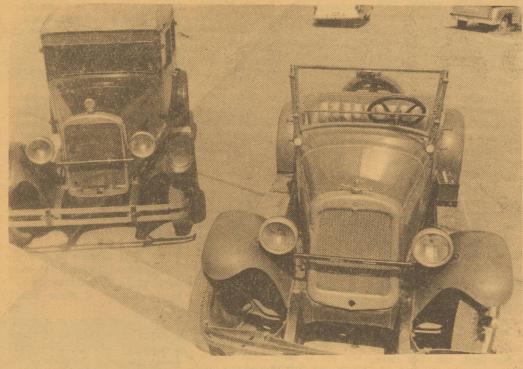

When born, the tiny babies weigh but ounces, but they come equipped with open eyes and steady legs. They can, in fact, move about the cage within minutes after birth and never seem to have the slightest difficulty in managing for themselves.

There are usually two babies to a litter and more than that are actually a tragedy. As the mother can only nurse two, she will either kill the extrasor wipe out the whole litter. Luckily, litters of three or more are rare.

The babies are weaned by the mother at the age of about three months. They are then placed in pens of their own and introduction to prospective males follow immediately. Each pair will have about two litters a year.

Mrs. Stephens pointed out the presence of a piece of wood, open. a stone or a brick in each cage. She reported that these were placed there for the animals to chew on. The gnawing of this hard, abrasive surface usually keeps their teeth dull and thus discourages attacks on their mates. However, if the teeth are allowed to grow, they will eventually turn backwards in the mouth and thus cause other complications. This is prevented by clipping.

This job, the local lady says, is both tedious and nervewracking. To prevent injuring the pelt or the animal, the chinchilla must be caught and gently rolled in a very soft towel. Held thus, and with their mouths pried open, clippers such as are used by radio repairmen, are used to do the actual teeth clipping. It is reported that the chinchillas suffer no ill effects of the treatment. other than to their dignity

As in all living things, there are the freaks and "odd balls" in chinchillas, too. One such pair, owned by the Stephens family, are called furchewers. Mrs. Stephens says it isn't known for sure whether the chewing of fur, both their own and their mate's, is a sign of food deficiency or if it is just an inherited instinct.

Nervousness, too, may have something to do with it. Anyway, they will chew their fur down to a very short coat and keep it that way for the rest of their lives.

Although fur-chewers are of no marketing value themselves, they will usually produce offspring that will not chew their fur and can thus be kept and used for brood stock.

Another interesting point about chinchillas is their obvious disinterest in nesting. The babies are born anywhere at having their mouths held in the cage and never seem to have a soft downy nest as other animals provide for their young. The only show that they ever make to prove they prefer any type of enclosure is the adults reaction to their "play cans." The long fruit juice cans, with both ends removed, are tied inside the cage, up halfway to the ceiling. The chinchillas seem to enjoy rushing around the cage and then popping into a can to lay there quietly, watching their audience with avidly interested eyes. With their less than 20 pair of chinchillas, Mr. and Mrs. Stephens feel that it will be some time yet before they will begin to pelt their animals. Mrs. Stephens feels that to have a successful, profitable business, a ranch should have is the way she puts it.

at least 75 pair of brood stock. They do hope, however, to have a few pairs for sale by the first of the year.

As to price, investments in chinchillas sometimes take a small fortune. Ervin purchased his first three pairs for a total of about $5000. They do multiply fairly rapidly, though and at from $25 to $125 a pelt, the investment is generally returned in a couple of years, barring disaster.

When asked about pelting their animals, Mrs. Stephens smiles---after feeding, watching, cleaning and loving the little animals, she isn't at all sure she can stand it when the big day arrives. She, incidentally, does NOT want a chinchilla coat. "If I had one, who knows, I might be wearing one of these that I feed raisins to each morning---and I don't think I could stand that,"

MRS. DOTTIE OSBORN-

Sweet Tooth Turns to Profitable Hobby

Have you ever started out with a hobby seemingly for the sole benefit and pleasure of your own family, and then have it boomerang? That is just what happened to Mrs. Forrest Osborn and cake bak-

Four or five years ago, after "years" of baking cakes for her family, Mrs. Osborn be-gan experimenting with decorations for special occasions. Through magazine articles and pictures everywhere, she began to catalogue ideas and to put them into practice. Her new-found art was not lost upon her friends. It wasn't long before she was being asked to make and decorrete cakes for their spe-ciar occasions.

During the last year, her home-grown business has swelled until she is now realizing enough from her work to actually begin to count. She averages making about three cakes a week, ranging in price from $4 to $35 apiece. Her cakes aren't just cakes, iced in colors with "store-bought" decorations on them. They are novel. One, for instance, that she made recently was a slab cake, topped with a little cake dog, complete with eyes, nose and mouth. And a very striking resemblence to a dog it

Another was recently ordered by the employees of the Parmer County Press decorated to resemble a newspaper. Others she has made are in the form of lambs, kittens, books, Bibles, houses and even candidate cards. Of course, her real love and thus her specialty is wedding cakes and the professional care she takes in the baking and decorating of them is bringing rewards to the local homemaker from throughout the Friona area.

Wedding cakes, complete with three or four tiers; ropes of dainty sugar icing, delicate bells and miniature rosebuds, take a lot of time to complete. First, the layers of the cake must be baked.

rs. Osborn doesn't mind admitting that she uses cake mixes to make the batter. She feels that, not only are they more economical, but they hold their shape well; they also have a superb texture and are generally very dependable. Of course, she modestly admits, if she wanted to, she could, and at times cipes. But the box mixes are handier and can be prepared in a matter of seconds. Their size also fit well into her

She likes to have at least three days notice before making a birthday or party cake; and at least a week for a wedding or shower cake that will take more preparation. She usually bakes the layers one day and takes them to the locker-plant for an overnight freezing or chilling. Then, usually a day or two is needed to make and set the decorations.

Mrs. Osborn used to buy most of her bells, rosettes and other special decorations. This proved to be expensive unhandy; as there were times when she couldn't obtain the decorations that a certain type of cake called for. So, stepping off the deep end, so to speak, she proceeded to learn how to make her own.

She began with a cake decorating tube of the variety which can be found in almost any kitchen. From that, she expanded her supplies to more than 50 different tips, with which she can make almost any type of decoration called Finding she was successful in this, she stepped even farther. Presses and molds to make her own flowers, bells and other items to beamify even the simplest cake. Now, with a recipe of whipped egg whites and granulated sugar, she makes dainty bells that are as perfect as those bought in the most exclusive caterer's shop.

Another set of molds make carnations, lilies and daisies. These flowers are made also of granulated sugar, but mixed a mixture never quite quits sagging. Frantic measures to save the artwork; such as placing in the refrigerator to chill or in the sun to dry quicker, rarely help.

The stiff mixture is pressed firmly into the molds and allowed to dry. The result is pastel flowers that have graced a good many cakes served with pride by the hostesses of Friona.

Mrs. Osborn suggests anyone wishing to learn how to make hand turned roses and other decorations should use flower nails, a miniature spike with a larger-than-usual head. The flower is made on the head of the spike and is allowed to dry there. A small square of waxed paper is placed over the nail first and 'glued' to it by the use of a little shortening. The flower is made directly on the waxed paper, which is in turn removed from the nail after the flower has dried enough for careful handling.

Mrs. Osborn stores a good supply of all colors and shapes in flowers in her basement. They are then ready to be used at a moments notice. Also, those that have been. allowed to set for some time hold their shape better when

It is a standing joke in the Osborn family that they eat scraps from other people's banquets. Due to the bits that are trimmed from specially ordered cakes, the Osborn family is generally kept in good supple, as far as sweets are concerned.

Recently, Mrs. Osborn did something that is slightly unusual; she baked and decorated a cake especially for a member of her own family. For her son, Carl, on his sixteenth birthday a couple of months ago, she made a cake in the form of a catcher's mitt; complete with colors and all the other usual characteristic to make it look really authentic.

Mrs. Osborn reports her husband came up with bright question that almost went completely with out answer; 'Now, who is going to eat the crumbs from THIS cake?" Days later, Mrs. Osborn says, he found out!

A couple of weeks ago, Mrs. Osborn spent several hours decorating a cake for a party given by one of her nieces. The party was in honor of a friend's return to the college campus and the cake had to be something special. Mrs. Osborn's finished project was just that--it was a book of knowledge. Where does she get her novel ideas? Well, very often, she says, the person who is ordering the cake has an idea that she wants carried out.

But then, other times, friends thoughtfully clip and save all the ideas they find in newspapers and magazines. Other ideas come from their imaginations and often, from Mrs. Osborn's own vivid imagination.

With each assignment, her ability becomes more professional. And, with each cake,

For the best in entertainment and the practice that it gives her, Mrs. Osborn gets more self-assurance in her art.

Through her baking, Mrs. Osborn is proving she is more than "just a housekeeper and mother," which is a feeling that all women like to feel. And, while she's proving that, she is also earning a little pocket money that she can use for any one of a million things that women like to get for their homes.

She is interested in her work and, although her family teases her about it, they are all extremely proud of her. And, actually, what more can one wish of a hobby?

Whoever acquires knowledge but does not practice it is as one who ploughs but does not sow.----Saadi.

Respectable men and women content with the good and easy living are missing some of the most important things in life. Unless you give yourself to some great cause you haven't even begun to live .--William P. Merrill, D. D.

There's a lot in how we handle our lothes that determines how long they will last. Even the way you nang them up affects appearance and life. For example, do not button a suit jacket when you put it on a hanger. It returns to its original shape better unbuttoned. Wrinkles come out of trousers faster if belts re removed before they are hung up. Even though you can slip shoes on without a shoehorn, it's better to use one. Otherwise, you may break down the counter (back) and shorten the ife of the shoe. Woolens often seem to lose their oftness and resilience once they've been washed. If you add a tiny bit of gentle soap to the final rinse water. you'll find that they retain more of their original qualities. Few of us are blessed with really oft water. And we all know that soft water makes soap go twice as far and does a better laundering job. It's also gentler on hands. A half teaspoon of lye in a bucket of water does an excellent water softening job. Use this proportion for more soft water and better laundering.

Three don'ts that seem very obious, but which can help Dad and the boys get longer mileage out of their clothes (1) Don't overstuff pockets, (2) Don't pull trousers over shoes, and (3) Don't hang a jacket on a hook.

Rain Again Stops Grain Harvest

But Sun Comes Out Wednesday

The spot that Parmer County area farmers find themselves in this week is ominously like the one they couldn't get out of in the fall of 1957.

Just at the moment when it looked as if the combines would really start rolling on the big grain crop--perhaps the biggest in history--the weather closed in again this week to stop nearly all har-

Milo was just starting to come in good, and the harvest was expected to be hitting its peak within just a few days when cloudy weather moved in Monday, and general rains followed that eve-

Although the rains were of a very gentle nature, and probably did no damage at all to any crops in the field, they squelched the plans of many a farmer and combine operator, who were planning on being plenty busy this week.

A fairly respectable numbeamof early-maturing fields in the southern part of the Parmer County area had already been cut before the rains came, but the harvest could not really be considered as really having begun.

soils usually give the south-ern farmers a head start on grain and cotton harvest, and this year is no exception. Very few farmers are 'all through' with their milo, though.

Early reports indicate that the grain crop will turn out to be as good as it looked in the field. Many irrigated fields will hit 4,000 pounds or better. The county average on irrigated land last year was between 3,000 and 3,500 pounds.

Some intensely farmed plots will notch upward toward the 9,000 or 10,000 pound mark, but no farmer hopes for such a yield as that on more than

On the whole, a farmer considers that he's done pretty well if he does 4,000 pounds on an across-the-field aver-

A sampling of grain sorghum hybrids appeared in the Parmer County area three years ago, and in 1956 a fairly substantial acreage was planted in hybrid. Last year, area farmers went "whole hog" on hybrids, and have again this year also.

This factor alone has resulted in increasing yields, and, added to the fact that farmers are learning more and more about getting bigger and bigger grain yields each year, the large yields that are being reported are not too surprising.

convenience and worry. There is still plenty of time for most farmers to get their grain in without any problem to speak

However, at about this time last year they were feeling the same way about connever did get any better. The 1957 crop was harvested under the most adverse conditions imaginable.

Over a third was cut after the first snow had fallen. About one-fourth of the crop was blown flat and had to be picked up from the ground with special combine attachments. Farmers don't relish the thought of having to do the same thing again this year.

Wet grain was a problem all season long in 1957. Several elevators and many individual farmers purchased grain dryers and put them to work on the piles of wet grain. At first they seemed like poor investments, but as the weather continued wet and cold, they proved their worth.

If the Parmer County area farmers could just get seven to 10 days of solid sunshine, they'd get most of the crop in. Most of what would be left would be the late-planted or long-maturing crops such as Plainsman, Caprock, or others that seldom are ready for harvest until after the first killing frost.

LLOYD RECTOR estimates his Texas 660 to be making 5,000 pounds to the acre, although his cutting is not advanced enough to tell for sure just what the yield will be. Many other Parmer County farmers expect to harvest record grain sorghum crops this year. Rector's harvest was stopped by rain a few hours after this picture was made Monday af-

We had a little talk with Kenneth Neill of Friona Growers and Shippers the other day about the vegetable business. Kenneth agrees this year is pretty rugged.

He takes rather lightly the oft-heard remark that vegetable growing is an "every other year" venture, and believes that farmers who plan to get in and get out of vegetables in a speculative way are due for some sad sur-

"Some people have the notion that potatoes are good every other year," says Kenneth. Taking 1957 as a bad one and going back a few years seems to establish that sort of cycle for local growers, but he says that it doesn't take a very long memory to remember two or three poor years in a row.

Kenneth grows a lot of vegetables, and is just as anxious to make money farming vegetables as anybody else. However, he is taking this poor year's truck farming record philosophically. He believes that 1958 will help discourage a sudden, big swing to vegetables that has pretty well risk that the growers accepted when they planted, and no profits anywhere near what sometimes comes along in the years that vegetable men call "good ones."

The early potatoes made a little money. Most of the crop did not. Carrots are making a little money, but nothing like they did last year. The Friona shed is selling only cellophane, retail-style packs -- nothing is moving in bulk.

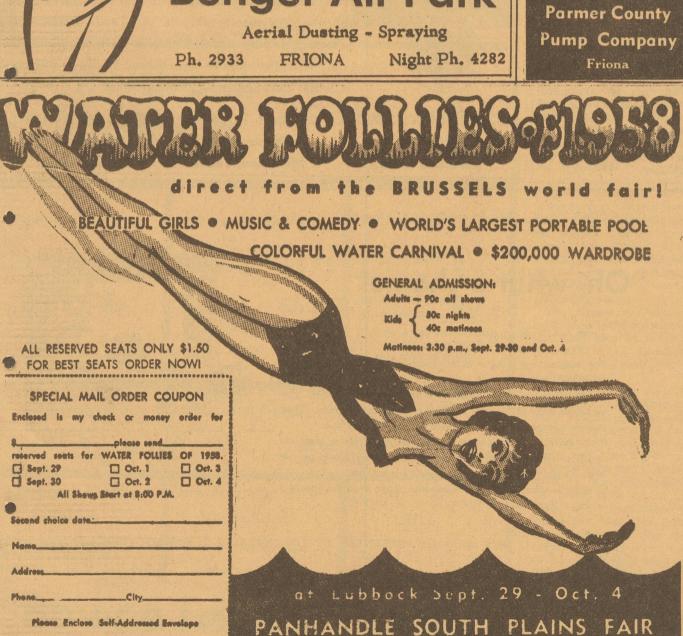

Onions were about a "break-even" type crop. The final details of the cantaloupe harvest around Bovina are not in yet, but profits to the farmers will be small, apparently. Lettuce harvest will begin shortly, but it will be two or three weeks before a marketing trend will be established for this crop.

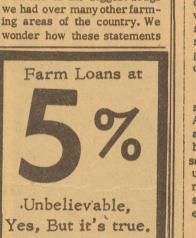

Minor vegetable crops such as bell peppers, cabbage, cucumbers, and what-not are "mixed." Some pay off, some don't. But the acreage is not enough to warrant any significance for the area as a

The defoliants being used do not kill the plant outright, but merely stun it and cause it to shed its leaves. The purpose in mind in that activity is to get the leaves out of the way so that the sunshine can get in and open and cure the matured bolls.

The rain this week was not considered hazardous to the area cotton grades. It fell gently, and affected only those farmers who had begun their early boll pulling.

The ideal time to apply this decayed matter to your soil is in the fall or early spring. Leaves should be spaded, tilled, or plowed into the soil. Nitrogen in manure or in chemical fertilizer should be added along with the decayed leaves for best results.

Some gardening expert said, "The ideal time to start your spring garden is last fall."
For a lot of plants that grow from bulbs, this is the only time to start a spring garden. Tulip bulbs should be put out in the early fall so they will have a cool growing season before cold weather sets in.

This is also a good time to move perennials. Many of us do not realize the importance of dividing perennials until we do the task then see the results the following spring. - 1 square (1 oz) unsweetened chocolate, melted
- 1/4 teaspoon salt 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup evaporated milk 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 cup broken English wal-

In deep heavy saucepan combine sugar, apple, chocolate, salt, butter and evaporated milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Cover and cook until mixture begins to boil. Uncover and cook to soft ball stage. Cool mixture to lukewarm. Add vanilla and beat until creamy. When candy begins to stiffen, quickly stir in nuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto wax paper. Makes about three dozen pieces.

Bake in hot oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to medium. Spread Peanut Brittle topping over apples. Return to over and bake for 30 minutes longer or until apples are tender.

Flour can be substituted for cornstarch in any recipe if you will remember that cornstarch has about two times the thickening power of flour and use about twice as much flour.

The fairs are over and I. for one, can say that it is a hard task and I am glad they are over.

Judy Billingsley, her family, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Billingsley, Bruce and Janice and I will go to the Tri-State Fair Saturday for Rural Youth Day. Judy is Parmer County baking queen and the prize will be awarded for these entries at this time. Judy will also represent Parmer County at the district 4-H council meeting in the afternoon.

Soon it will be time to put away some of those summer clothes, and bring on the fall and winter garments.

Start now to store some of the lighter things, suggest extension clothing specialists. Right storage will increase the life of summer clothing, and make all garments more wearable for the next season.

Here are some suggestions for keeping out-of-season clothing in good condition until next summer:

Mend any ripped seam, tears, loose buttons or other damages. A few stitches can save the life of a garment. Wash or dry clean all garments before storing.

Store cottons and linens unironed. Make certain all starch is removed. It can cause fabric to deteriorate and may attract silverfish.

Dry garments thoroughly and store them in a dry place to prevent mildew. Store in large boxes or trunks to make room in closets for fall clothing. Crisp plump kernels of walnuts and whipped cream make a fine finishing touch for fruit salads; and this easy topping is equally good on cake, gingerbread, fruit gelatin desserts, chiffon pie or a sauce dish of pink rhubarb ... Use this quick garnish to glamorize simple fare. You'll like the crunchy texture walnuts give soft foods.

For a savory dinner bread try this .... spread sliced French bread lightly with mustard flavored mayonnaise mixed with a little grated Parmesan cheese. Sprinkle with instant minced onion and heat in a hot oven until lightly browned. Moisture-free onion is always ready to use right from its container. This bread also is good for outdoor suppers. To prepare, just wrap in foil and brown over coals.

Here's a treat children will like . . . make chocolate fudge from a mix, stirring in 1 cup light or dark raisins. Shape the candy into balls and roll in flaked coconut. Yummy!

An easy, economical way to increase calcium intake is by using "DOUBLE MILK." ... For example, add 4 tablespoons of dry milk to one cup of fluid milk for a delicious cool, refreshing "double milk" beverage. Your favorite fruit or flavoring may be added to this. For variety try molasses, maple, spice or honey. Eggs are available in various grades and sizes in most markets . . . extension foods and nutrition specialists say highest grades, A an AA, are ideal for cooking in the shell, for frying or poaching. The lower grades may be used for scrambling or used in cooked products. The shell color may vary from white to deep brown. This does not make any difference in the flavor, food value, or cooking performance of the egg.

ESOIL CONSERVATION

≡ OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH ≡

Several weeks ago the Soil Conservation Service did some work on Gilbert Kaltwasser's farm to determine the infiltration rate of the soil on different slopes. This is part of the studies that will be conducted by the SCS in order to gain more information about the irrigated soils of the Parmer County Soil Conservation District.

> The infiltration rate is determined by means of orifice plates set 200 feet apart in the irrigation furrow. The first orifice at the check point gives the number of gallons per minute at that point. The difference between these two gives the amount of water absorbed by the soil. These checks were set up at the upper, middle and at the lower end of an irrigation furrow. The length of the furrow that was checked was 1933 feet.

The upper end had a slope of .2 of a foot per 100 feet. The middle had .4 per 100 feet and lower end had .3 per 100 feet. This check was made on a deep, medium textured, moderately permeable soil which is characteristic of the soil in that area.

This field had received approximately 1 1/2 inches of rain 10 days before this check was made. The temperature was in the high nineties and was practically no there wind. The crop being irrigated was cotton. This was the last irrigation for this crop. During the entire check the upper end of the row took about 3 1/2 inches of water. The middle and lower parts took 2 1/2 inches of water. It was noticed in moisture checks prior to irrigation that the root zone soil at the upper end of the row was somewhat dryer than the lower end. This was probably due to the fact that the stand of cotton was thicker at the upper end than on the lower end.

Irrigation started at 9:30 a.m. and ended at 6 p.m. The water reached the upper end check, which was 50 feet from the pipe, one minute after the start. The water was 750 feet down the furrow at the middle check 50 minutes after the start. The lower check at 1400 feet from the pipe was reached in two hours and 26 minutes.

For the first two hours of irrigation the furrow stream at the surface pipe was measured at 28.5 gallons per minute. At this time the furrow stream was adjusted at the surface' pipe and for the next three hours and 45 minutes the furrow stream was 25 gallons per minute.

The stream was adjusted again--five hours and 45 minutes after the start. It varied from 27.5 to 25.5 gallons per minute for the remainder of the irrigation.

For the first hour the infiltration rate on the upper end was 1.2 inches per hour compared to .6 inches per hour for the middle and lower end of the row. After 2 1/2 hours from the start the infiltration rates for the upper, middle and lower parts of the row were all approximately .4 inches per hour. The infiltration rate gradually decreased to .2 inches per hour

Twenty-four hours after irrigation, checks showed that the moisture penetrated to a depth of 6 feet on the upper end. It was wet down to 32 inches at the middle check and possibly deeper because at the end of the irrigation.

Farmers Union Report

To begin with, we want to express our appreciation to the newspapers of Parmer County for affording us the opportunity of presenting the activities of Farmers Union to the people of Parmer County. We hope that this will turn out to be a regular feature for these newspapers, for it is felt that the people ant to know more about the Farmers Union and what it stands for. We hope that through this column we will be able to accomplish this.

> Thursday evening of last week the Lazbuddie local had a meeting in the school cafe-

At this meeting, officers ere elected for the coming year. T. O. Lesly was reelected president, Freeman Davis was elected vice-president, and James Welch was elected to serve as secretary. This is a fine group of wellqualified officers with the cause of Farmers Union uppermost in their minds. We ow that the members of Lazbuddie local will certainly work in harmony under the direction of these men.

Considerable interest was shown during the discussion period, in which nearly everything was discussed from the merits of the new farm bill to those of Mr. Benson and the New York Yankees.

Now is the time to get behind your Farmers Union. It needs your strength to fight for the rights of family farmers all over America. Farmers Union does not agree with the belief held by the Department of Agriculture that there are too many small farmers in agriculture. FU feels that the family farmer (the small farmer) is the backbone of this whole business.

IT'S COTTON PICKING TIME and these laborers on the J. B. Culp farm near Hub are hard at work. Hand-pulling bolls that open early pays off for many farmers because they get better

There will be a hula hoop contest for children under ten. Cash prizes will be drawn for by adults. We will have plenty of good ol' Spudnuts and coffee and a very interesting speaker, prominent in thes parts, will be present to speak to us. Ya'll
