

THE STAR'S EDITORIAL COMMENT

Setting a Precedent

Thursday at midnight Friona will have either to take action on an "or else" issue, or they have backed down in ignominious defeat.

For Thursday night the 10 days the City Fathers gave Strickland Shamrock Oil Co. to move their Shamrock sign or "have it moved" will have ticked away.

What will the City do?

We wonder if they will take the bull by the horns, be found waiting for the time to tick away and be ready to move the sign with a winch truck or some other means or will they be at home or at the City Hall asking each other—"What will we do now?"

We hope the City will make a move to take down the sign.

We have no axe to grind with either party.

Personally we stop and talk to both of them and count them as friends and customers.

But—in our opinion an issue has been forced in which the City has no choice.

The beginning of this estrangement between the City and the Strickland properties began long before we probably ever heard of Friona.

But, since being here and especially in the last few days it is all we have heard being discussed.

To our way of thinking, when the sign was erected it was a direct challenge to the City to "do something."

The state law on the subject is direct and to the point. The property is clearly the state's and the erection of the sign is a direct violation.

When a highway official came through a couple of weeks ago and saw the sign he was disgusted and very pointed as he told the City to do something about it.

The responsibility lies with the City in that they, and they alone, are responsible for providing the state with clear titles for the property along the right of way of the highway.

In the contract also, a section spells out how and where the laydowns are to be placed around places of business along the highway, how far away structures can be placed and so on.

These two items are clearly violated at the Strickland Station.

If it were only between the City and the property owner it might be different.

But, hanging in the balance are other contracts between the City and the State Highway Officials.

Namely, the widening of the Loop and the paving of the farm-to-market road to Schaffer's Corner.

Do you think the State is going to go out of its way to get these projects done when the City is still hanging fire on a contract which is now over three years old?

The City has met the price which the property owner thought fair in the past. The check was made out some time ago and is still waiting for him to claim it.

Of all the property along the right of way only this and one other was contested. All others gave their property, one other was settled quickly and amiably.

How much "face" can the City of Friona have when it must back down to everyone who comes along?

To grow a city must be strong and determined. We don't mean to say they must be selfish, but a price was quoted—it has been met.

Where is there for the City to go but to do the thing they must do?

Vacation Tip... MAKE SAFETY YOUR TRAVELING COMPANION

Planning your vacation? Here's a tip endorsed by leading safety authorities: have your tires checked.

Hidden tire damage can result in inconvenience, serious trouble, even loss of life. Tires weakened by bruises, heat, or moisture can fail at any time and internal damage seldom can be seen from the outside.

Take time for a competent dealer to check inside your tires for bruises, cuts, or ply separations. Have him inspect the outside for excess wear.

Just driving around town, there are many chances of tire injury from holes in the pavement, curbs bumped in parking, quick starts and stops, rain, and snow.

Hard impacts bruise the reinforcing cord inside a tire, causing weak spots. If the bruise is severe, these weakened cords may break and, perhaps days or weeks later, cause a blowout.

Cracks or breaks in the rubber allow moisture to seep into the tire, rotting ordinary cord.

Quick starts, sudden stops, or under-inflation add to the strain of constant bending and flexing a tire normally undergoes.

Then comes vacation time. You're traveling at a rapid pace over a modern turnpike. Suddenly, a blowout. And your vacation is delayed or canceled, depending on the consequences. Hidden damage may have caused the blowout.

Equipping your car with nylon cord tires is a major precaution against hidden damage because nylon is stronger and more resistant to impact than any other tire cord, is not weakened by moisture, has resilience to withstand bending and flexing, and has far greater heat resistance than other cords. Nylon has gained rapid recognition as the outstanding reinforcing cord and is available in almost every brand of tire.

Make this vacation a safe one. Don't ignore your tires.

Lemon Garnish for Beauty and Zest

Gay garnishes bring added life and zest to foods. The proper garnish makes foods more appetizing and gives them that final decorative touch that makes even the most ordinary dish seem dressed-up for a gala occasion. Lemon slices belong in the class of the most versatile garnishes. Slice them into cartwheel shapes . . . add chopped parsley or paprika to the top . . . and note how glamorous they look!

To make the cartwheels, cut thin slices of lemon or orange; then notch the peel with a sharp knife or scissors. A whole clove in the center adds the final touch. Float these in a pitcher of lemonade, or on top of soup.

The garnishes with chopped parsley are made by cutting off the top quarter and the bottom quarter of thin lemon slice. Then each slice is sprinkled with finely chopped parsley. These add a decorative touch to a baked or broiled fish as well as to vegetables.

The curls can be made by cutting half the pulp from a thin lemon or orange slice, being careful to leave all the peel. Curl the peel into a circular motion. Two of these curls placed together and repeated around a large meat platter make a beautiful garnish.

WITH JUNE

Will mysteries never cease? Our understanding of telephone mechanism has never been very good and at different times strange things have happened during telephone conversations. Several months ago after we had dialed the operator and before she answered, we heard a familiar voice and one we didn't recognize.

After a few minutes we became aware of the fact that the voice we recognized was that of Sonny Graham. He was in Farwell and the other party was in Tulia. When the operator answered our call the other conversation was cut off.

Friday morning as we were talking to Mrs. R. E. Barnett on the Hub exchange, two more voices came into the conversation. One was Elizabeth Carmichael's and the other belonged to Glindeen Bailey. The Baileys, Carmichaels, and Barnetts live on different lines. Guess this is just another telephone mystery to add to our list.

There just isn't such a thing as a calm week in a newspaper office, but last week was slightly worse than usual as far as confusion was concerned. By Friday afternoon everything seemed about back to normal after we had sandwiched a hit and miss vacation into part of the week.

At least, we thought things were about as usual until about 4:45 p.m. At that time we started out to drive the girls to Bible School and passed by the Southwestern Public Service Company office, which is next door to us.

Seeing Hank Outland standing at the end of the counter wasn't an unusual sight, but right there our otherwise normal day came to an end. After nodding to Hank we noticed a carbon copy of him, complete with Hank's old work hat, sitting in a chair. The shock of seeing two Hanks in the same office was so great that we had to back up and take a second look.

Even after taking the second look, we drove off without knowing for sure which one was really our neighbor. Haven't found out for sure yet who the other fellow was, but feel certain that he was another Outland. Am wondering if Hank loaned his brother the hat just to confuse his neighbors.

One Friona businessman has come up with what seems to be an original idea. He has been ribbed on numerous occasions about the way he looks in a picture, so has decided after the last time his picture appeared in the Star that in the future he would just get a "stand in" the next time a newspaper photographer showed up in his place of business.

Thanks to C. L. Bracken, we now know why there were no mosquitoes in the section of Central Texas we visited last weekend. His theory is that it rained so much there that all of them drowned. The theory

the Snapshot Guild

Museum visits are a travel must. You can't always take pictures inside, but don't forget the outside.

Traveling With Cameras

It's safe to say that travel and pictures go together just as surely as the "love and marriage" popu. singers sing about.

No, we aren't referring to the picture postcards we all send home to "wish you were here." We mean pictures that you take with your own camera—snapshots, color slides, and/or movies—that record your travels and keep your impressions vividly alive for many years to come.

Note that we say "snapshots, color slides, and/or movies"—because all three kinds of cameras make equally good traveling companions whether you're off on a weekend junket or setting out on a long jaunt around the world. And more and more travelers today like to be armed with at least two cameras: to preserve on film the complete story of their travel experiences. Movie and stereo cameras—light in weight, compact, easy-to-operate—have become especially popular with the vacation traveler because they assure him such a true-to-life record of his trip.

Whether your picture-taking activities are limited to snapshots or include the extra dimension of stereo and the full sweep of movies, you'll want to be prepared to take lots of pictures. Be sure to keep plenty film on hand and have your camera loaded and set for approximately the lighting conditions that prevail. That way, you won't miss any of the countless picture possibilities confronting you at every turn.

The seasoned travelers we know tell us it's a mistake to take a slave to equipment. Camera and film are the only items you really need—and a lot of extra gadgets can become more of a hindrance than a help on a trip.

To capture truly memorable pictures of your travels, you don't have to have professional skill or be a born artist, either. Surrounded by interesting people and picturesque places, you can hardly miss coming up with some pretty wonderful shots. Always impressive is a lively image of human activity set against a striking man-made or natural background—imposing architecture, landscaped gardens, carefully tended farmland, or perhaps just the sheer majesty of mountains, sea and sky.

Moving in close to your subject will help you catch with your camera what you see with your eye. By excluding all unnecessary detail, you'll be able to fill the viewfinder with the particular scene you have in mind.

—John Van Guilder

that they migrated to West Texas seems better to us.

Seeing the bake show at the American Legion Hall Friday afternoon was a rare treat. We regret very much that more people didn't know about the show so they could have seen the pies and biscuits that were on exhibit. Men who complain that biscuit making is a lost art should have attended this show.

The 4-H Club girls of Parmer County would have no trouble proving that there are some girls who are learning to make good biscuits. The pies were very pretty, too.

Any fishermen who do not like to dig worms should read the Star classifieds this week. We have two Friona youths who have fishing worms dug and in containers at all times.

Since we have never gone in very heavily for fishing, it seems strange to us that this sport means so much to so many people. Last week when we were in Comanche, Miss Bertha Gore, who is related to our relatives, was showing us her backyard. It was beautiful and had a large variety of flowers and vegetables growing all around. Near the tool shed we noticed a large wash tub covered with a plastic cover.

"Now, Miss Bertha, what do you have growing here?" we asked. She said, "That's my fish bait. When it gets dry and hot here you just can't find any earthworms, so I just raise my own." She feeds them

Weeds are a worse threat to farmers than bug or blight. They cause a staggering loss estimated at $5 billion a year, and reduce crop yield by 10 per cent. New herbicides, perfected in oil industry laboratories, are proving effective in reducing the damage, and the search for still better ones goes on.

As of mid-1957, industry's average capital investment for each production worker was about $16,000—an increase of $1,200 in a year.

leaves, coffee grounds, and scraps of food. Apparently she had been feeding them good. She got a spade and turned up some of the soil and it was literally "working alive" with the longest fattest earthworms we had ever seen anywhere.

It isn't often that we receive a call from small boys, so we were especially pleased when Jimmy Snead called Saturday morning to tell us he had located Skipper and to thank us for telling people in town that he had left home.

Those of you who don't know Skipper have really missed something. He is quite a dog. His nationality is rather uncertain, but his love for children and activity isn't dimmed a bit by lack of pedigree.

Since the Sneads moved to town about one year ago, Skipper has taken a part in a lot of activities in which young people participate. Last fall when the band began marching practice, Skipper was always on hand to see that things were done right.

Then all during the school year he hardly ever missed a marching session. He was also on hand to see the buses off every time the band members took a trip. In addition to keeping up with the band and other school organizations, he keeps an eye on the happenings at the Sixth Street Church of Christ and Houser's Grocery & Market.

Our Friona, who is just past ten, has made friends with him and thoroughly enjoys playing with him or as she says "just talking to him is fun." One afternoon when she was at the Snead home, several children were playing on the lawn. There was one chair that Skipper didn't want anyone to sit down in. Everytime one of the children would sit in the chair, he would come running over, whine until the child moved, then sit up in the chair until something caught his eye elsewhere.

Of course, we are glad that Jimmy got Skipper back, but in case he ever decides to give him away, we want to be the first one to know about it.

He made this plan known through the medium of men known as prophets and apostles. When the apostle John finished the book of Revelation this was the last part of God's revelation to man. God is not speaking now through any medium except the Bible. Jude 3 says: '... it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints.' 'The faith' here refers to the gospel system or plan found in the New Testament. Some versions say, 'The faith that was once for all time delivered unto the saints.' This means that God gave it; finished it; completed it. This was accomplished in the first century when the New Testament was finished. Some claim that the New Testament as we have it today was not in existence in the first century. Though it was not at first in written form, it was being preached orally by inspired men of God. The people then had the same gospel we have today. They had it preached to them orally then. We have it written in the New Testament now. The same gospel they had to believe and live by then is the gospel we must follow today to be saved in the end. The same gospel that was then God's power to save, is God's power to save now and shall be throughout all time. No one today, or since the days of the apostles, is speaking as a prophet or as the voice of God. The apostles were guided into all truth, John 16:13. They preached the gospel with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, I Peter 1:12. Should any man or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel than what the apostles preached (the gospel revealed in the Bible) the curses of God will rest on him, Galatians 1:6-9. The ceremony was read by Rev. L. A. Sartain before an archway decorated with greenery. The groom is the son of J. H. Mears and the late Mrs. Mears.

The altar was decorated with standing baskets of mums in various hues of lilac. Flanking the arrangement were candelabra with lilac and white tapers. Guest pews were marked with satin ribbon bows.

CARD OF THANKS

Words are inadequate to express the appreciation we feel for all the kindnesses shown us for the past several months. We are very grateful for all the cards, letters, flowers, food, visits, and other expressions of sympathy which we received during the long illness of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Velma McGee, as well as those received following her death. Each one of them will long be remembered.

MRS. JIM DIXON

Jane Collier Weds Jim Dixon

In a candlelight service at the First Baptist Church Sunday evening, June 1, at 5 p.m. Jane Collier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon E. Collier of Happy, and Jim Dixon exchanged wedding vows. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Dixon.

The single ring ceremony was read by Rev. Aaron Mann of Canyon before an arrangement of baskets of white gladioli surrounded by greenery. This arrangement was flanked on either side by white candelabra holding white tapers. Family pews were marked with white satin bows centered with clusters of flowers.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Eva Miller, organist. She also accompanied Lloyd Mann of Canyon, as he sang "Always" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace and net. The fitted bodice featured a bateau neckline and short sleeves with net mitts that ended in points over her hands. The full skirt of net had wide lace panels down the front and back.

Her veil was of imported silk illusion attached to a tiara of polished imported crystals. Her only jewelry was pearl ear clips which were a gift from the groom. She carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and stephanotis atop a white Bible. The ribbon streamers were tied in love knots.

Mrs. Gwen Collier of Canyon, cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore a ballerina length dress of lavender chiffon over taffeta with pink accessories. Her flowers were lavender asters and stephanotis.

Bridesmaids were Glenna Reynolds of Canyon and Sue Price of Olton. They wore identical dresses of pink chiffon over lavender taffeta with white accessories and carried bouquets identical to the one carried by the matron of honor.

Flower girls were Polly Dixon of Mosca, Colo., niece of the groom, and Virginia Collier of Canyon, cousin of the bride. They wore identical dresses of white chiffon over taffeta with lavender and pink satin bows and head bands. They carried bouquets of pink asters. Gary Dale Collier of Canyon, cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Bert Read of College Station was best man; ushers were Ray Landrum, brother-in-law of the groom, Buck Dixon of Mosca, Colo., brother of the groom; Kenneth McLellan, and Lloyd Messenger. Serving as groomsmen were Clyde Hays and M. C. Osborn. Candles were lighted by McLellan and Messenger.

Mrs. Collier, mother of the bride, wore a navy silk dress with lighter blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. Dixon, wore a rose beige lace dress with a matching hat and beige accessories. Her corsage was of white roses.

Assisting with hospitality at a reception at the club house were Mildred Dunn and Sharon Nichols of Happy.

Wedding guests were registered by Mrs. Johnny Mars, cousin of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony was a reception at the club house. The serving table was covered with white lace over lavender and centered with a floral arrangement made from the corsages of the bride's attendants.

Mildred Dunn of Happy served the wedding cake and punch was poured by Sharon Nichols, also of Happy. The receiving line was made up of the bridal couple, Mrs. Vernon E. Collier, Mrs. C. W. Dixon, Mrs. Gwen Collier, Mrs. Glenna Reynolds and Sue Price.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon are at home here after taking a wedding trip to Colorado Springs and other points of interest in New Mexico and Colorado. They plan to leave July 21 for Panama City, Fla., where Dixon will report for duty at Tyndal Air Force Base July 28.

Wheat Allotment Down, Referendum Set For June 20

by W. H. GRAHAM JR.

The 1959 Parmer County wheat allotment was reduced between four and five percent last week, and individual allotment notices have been mailed out to farmers.

From an allotment of 109,905 acres for wheat in 1958, Parmer County has been cut to 105,418 acres for next year. This is in contrast to an increase which was granted in 1958 over 1957 when the allotment was 102,702 acres.

Parmer County farmers have gradually trended away from wheat. Development of large scale irrigation about five years ago meant breaking up of farms into smaller units and a disappearance of the tremendous wheat "spreads" that made notable history in this part of the High Plains.

In 1953 and 1954, area farmers made a rush to row crops such as cotton and grain sorghum which responded well to application of irrigation water. For many farmers, irrigating wheat was a "no pay" practice.

However, in just the past two or three years farmers have been developing the special knack of using fertilizer and planning their irrigations so that yield increases have been sufficient to justify watering wheat. With price declines in grain sorghums and acreage reductions in cotton, irrigated wheat has become more important.

Still, as a general rule, the Parmer County farmer has not made use of his allotment, and plantings have been only about 80 percent of allotments on the average. With re-allocations provisions in effect, much of this unplanted allotment could be saved, but interest in doing this has not been too great.

"In view of the fact that Parmer County wheat farmers have planted only approximately 80 percent of the acres allotted to them in each of the last few years, it is not surprising that this county has received a cut in allotments," comments Prentice Mills, ASC office manager.

County allotments and planted acres: 1954—136,673 and 109,338; 1955—116,885 and 101,001; 1956—108,404 and 82,303; 1957—102,702 and 80,146; 1958—109,905 and 91,221. These figures include wheat in the soil bank.

June 20 has been set as the date on which growers will vote yes or no on the 1959 marketing quotas. The polling places:

Farwell—district courtroom, Bovina—Lawlis & Ely Gin, Rhea—Carl Schlenker Elevator, Lazbuddie—Church of Christ, Friona—city hall.

one of price. Acreage allotments will remain in effect no matter how the vote goes. Those who plant within their allotment will get supports. Those who exceed the allotment: no supports (if the referendum fails).

If growers approve 1959 wheat quotas, a farmer who exceeds his allotment will be subject to a penalty on excess wheat. Price supports for growers who comply with allotments will be at a national average of not less than $1.81 a bushel (75 percent of estimated parity.)

If the quotas fail, allotments will remain in effect as a condition of eligibility for price support. Supports for growers who comply with allotments will be at an average of about $1.20 a bushel (50 percent of estimated parity).

Farmers eligible to vote are those who would be subject to wheat quotas if they went into effect. You can vote if you share in the 1959 wheat crop from a farm on which acreage to be harvested for grain will be more than 15 acres.

Wives are eligible to vote. "In fact, 40 percent of the voters in Parmer County last year were women, and as a result, there were more votes cast here than in any county in Texas," Mills says.

Polls will be open from 8 a. m. until 7 p. m.

Young Elected Veep Of District Group

Cooper Young, Parmer County 4-H member from Lazbuddie, was elected vice-president of the District I council during the annual encampment June 3-5 near Canyon. Judy Billingsley was also a member of the council, which will have its next meeting during the Tri-State Fair in September.

Young will be one of a group of 4-H members who will appear on Cotton John's Farm and Home Program June 21.

Other county youngsters who attended the sessions were Barbara and Virginia Rea and Joe Weldon Jones of Bovina and David Watkins of Farwell.

Keynote speaker was Elmer Knowes who discussed "Understanding Ourselves and Others." Parmer County Agent Joe Jones was leader of the session on 4-H records. Other areas covered included safety, electricity, manners, wildlife, gun safety, rifle shooting, swimming and recreation.

Miss Jimmie Lou Waincott also accompanied the campers.

Midwestern farmers usually feel pretty good if their corn is knee-high by July 4. In Parmer County it's already knee-high and growing daily with the warm weather. This field near Hub is an early-planted variety. It will probably be harvested for grain, although corn makes excellent ensilage, too.

Labor Association Gets Charter

The Panhandle Grower's Association was chartered into existence Thursday of last week by approval of the charter application by the Secretary of the State of Texas.

The approval came after about two weeks of waiting for the charter, after application was filed by a group of Bovina area vegetable growers for Gateway Produce Company.

A special meeting of the association is slated Thursday at 8 p. m. in the American Legion Hall, Bovina, for the purpose of electing permanent officers.

Temporary officers were signed to the charter application, so the association could get underway, assisting area farmers in securing farm labor.

Cards calling attention to the meeting Thursday were mailed to Parmer County farmers along with an invitation to join the association if the farmer was interested in securing adequate farm labor.

Though formed mainly to relieve the problem of vegetable thinning and weeding, the association is not limited to vegetable crops, and will include all types of farmers as members.

Under consideration by the association is construction of housing for Mexican nationalist laborers. Nothing definite has been done, but the temporary officers did some looking for a site for the building, and received one bid on a pre-fab structure.

FARM & RANCH LOANS
Long Term—Low Interest
Ethridge-Spring Agency, Friona

Temporary officers of the association are James Readhimer, president; Bob Wilson, vice-president; Wendol Christian, secretary-treasurer; Durward Bell and Leon Grissom.

The association has yet to be approved by the Dallas office of the U. S. Department of Labor, according to reports Tuesday. Labor Department approval is expected to take about a week.

If the association is approved, inspection of housing and certification for Mexican nationalist laborers would clear the path for getting labor for care of area vegetable and cotton crops.

A farm labor association for the Parmer County area is expected to attract local farmers because of better chances in obtaining needed labor, whether for work in vegetables, cotton, grain, or sesame.

It is estimated that between 250 and 300 workers would be needed to keep up with the demand during the average work load of the growing season.

The figure is expected to more than triple during the vegetable harvesting season, with an expanded acreage of cantaloupes, tomatoes, and peppers. Sesame acreage took a jump from about 2000 to 3000 acres for the 1958 crop, and this crop is also a heavy user of manual labor.

However, whether the labor association will receive certification for Mexican nationalist laborers is not known. The Panhandle Growers Association is pointed out as being an organization to handle the labor problems for its members, and to arrange for housing for the laborers.

Until recently, few if any Mexican nationalist laborers were being certified for work in Parmer County. However, a release from the Littlefield office of the Texas Employment Commission said that 160 of the workers may be employed in Parmer County in the period from June 1 until June 30. This figure is estimated to be about half enough to supply the labor demand of the county farmers immediately.

Whether or not enough local farm laborers are available is debatable, but vegetable farmers around Bovina employed one group of local laborers, but were unable to keep them long enough to stop the weed threat.

Reports are that the hoed used for vegetable weeding, with a 12-inch handle, were not suitable to the local group employed last week.

Get Insects Now

Cotton in Parmer County is now in the stage for early season insect control, says County Agent Joe Jones. This control program should include three to four poisonings and stop around the last week in June or by July 1. Any insect control from then on should be based on insect counts.

By stopping the last week in June, beneficial insects will have about 30 days to build up and help keep the bollworm under control. The bollworm usually makes his appearance here around the third week in July.

"Keep in mind the first summer irrigation should be applied at the first appearance of a bloom. If you could time your irrigation to be half through when the first white bloom appears you would be right on time," says Jones.

This irrigation should replenish moisture taken out by the crop. Cotton is looking very good and all farmers should be able to find blooms in their fields by July 10 and much of it will have bloomed before then, believes Jones. "We are off to a good start. Keep in mind quality is becoming more and more important all the time. A good insect control program and proper timing of irrigation will go a long way toward producing early mature cotton which will usually be a quality cotton," he adds.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

Most of you will receive a newsletter this month on ways to improve the application of water on your farm. It shows several ways it can be done. Several farmers here in Parmer County have requested assistance to change their present system to get better application of water.

J. Sanders and Glenn Floyd helped H. C. Wells on his irrigation system in addition to their usual pipelining checkouts. Bob Crozier and Robert Zetzsche assisted Alvin Brooks and Stanley Bishop on their farms to make changes that would improve the water application. Bishop farms part of the E. M. Jack farm north of Friona.

A range survey was made on part of the Massie Brothers rangeland north of Friona last week. They are interested in the Great Plains Conservation program. Sloan Osborn is planning to overseed a part of his rangeland under the Great Plains Conservation program.

The Great Plains Conservation program is designed to assist farmers and ranchers in carrying out an approved plan of operations for the protection of their land from erosion and deterioration by natural causes. It provides cost-share assistance to those who agree to a long range conservation plan on their land. The cost-share rates, based on average cost of the work in this county, range from 50 to 80 per cent of the total cost of installing the practice.

NEWS FROM THE FARM BUREAU
By RAYMOND EULER

Woody Fleming, Earl Chester, A. L. Black and Bruce Parr flew to Washington Saturday to meet with the Labor Department Sub-Committee in an effort to get the bracero law extended into the 1959 crop period. It would expire if extension were not gained. American Farm Bureau has requested extension, but with the employment situation like it is, it was felt that it would be good to have some men on hand to bolster efforts for extension.

The Labor Department's claim is that there are too many domestic unemployed on hand to be importing Mexican labor. Farmers know, however, that most of the domestic men have no desire to do "stoop" labor, which is what braceros are needed for. We are anxious to hear of the success of this effort.

The Parmer County men went in cooperation with four men from Bailey, Lamb and Castro Counties. You have read or heard of the meetings in Muleshoe on this subject. Joe Sooter, president of Bailey County Farm Bureau, is due much of the credit for getting the project underway.

Gilbert Kaltwasser, PCFB president, had planned to be one of those on the Washington mission, but he landed in the Clovis Memorial Hospital the day before embarkation.

Your membership committee and others appreciate your response to billings and other notices of your memberships being due or lapsed. Membership has remained substantially above six hundred. In case you do not know, you are not counted in the membership if your dues are not paid within the month in which they are due, even though you are counted a renewal if you renew within six months. This way, the actual membership in good standing is all that is counted when such figures are given.

CONSIDER THIS: Go not forth hastily to strive, lest thou know not what to do in the end thereof, when thy neighbor hath put thee to shame. Proverbs 25:8

A mistake proves somebody stopped talking long enough to do something.

People will believe anything if you whisper it.

Happily thumbing some No. 1 Pontiac reds are John Hood, left, and Buck Gregory. These nice-sized potatoes are on Hood's farm southwest of Lariat and are putting on tonnage daily. They should double in size and weight within the next two weeks.

Sandy Land Spuds Coming Along OK

There are two potato deals in the Parmer County area, one with Friona Growers and Shippers, and one at the Gregory shed at Lariat. Friona's "right land" potatoes make up the biggest acreage—about 600—and there are 287 acres in the Lariat deal.

A story in Farm and Home two weeks ago reported on satisfactory progress of the spuds in the northeastern part of Parmer County, and this week, a check with the sandy land farmers to the south indicates progress with the potato crop is satisfactory there also.

It appears that the potato harvest in the Lariat area will begin about the first of July, which is about "normal" for the area, but about two weeks sooner than in 1957.

The potato acreage is distributed among four growers—A. J. Hood, 87; Pershing Bushbee, 30; Ardell Robertson, 30; and Buck Gregory, 140. There will be about another 100 acres of potatoes planted late this month for the fall harvest.

Gregory this week reports that the market is weaker than had been hoped for. "I don't see quite why," he says, pointing out that many areas are off normal production schedules, including California, one of the most prodigious producers of all.

Just the same, the market is weak at the present time and Gregory understands the current crop in Alabama is bringing only $1.65 a sack. That is considerably below standard.

Gregory is not yet discouraged over prospects, however, and he hopes that the market will strengthen as the season moves along. The Arizona harvest should be out of the way by June 20, the Florida deal by the 25th, and the Alabama should wind up by July 1.

That might give High Plains spud growers a chance to slip their harvest in relatively unmolested by big competition.

The most promising field of potatoes in the Lariat deal happens to be owned by the newest grower, John Hood, who is Gregory's brother-in-law, is a brand new hand to farming. He worked as recently as last year for an oil drilling firm in Iran. It's quite a change, but Hood likes it. His neighbors say he has the makings of a good farmer, too. His Pontiac reds are putting on tonnage very rapidly, and should make 225 bushels of No. 1's per acre.

He planted his potatoes March 18 and 19, fertilized with 500 pounds of 16-20-0, and has irrigated nine times. That indicates the expense necessary to producing potatoes in the irrigated Plains. Usually, costs run somewhere between $120 and $150 per acre. With 87 acres Hood has a big investment—especially for a brand new grower.

However, costs may be lower this year. Insects have been fewer than usual, and this is an important area of expense to the potato grower.

Gregory believes that the market will be weak at the beginning of the harvest, but will strengthen in time to help the local deal. He also believes it will level off and possibly decline in the late stages.

Potatoes were only a so-so crop last year so far as prices were concerned. In 1956 they were a very profitable crop.

THE HAPPY HOMEMAKER
BY JUNE FLOYD

In our Mrs. America favorite recipe series, we are down to Mrs. Oregon, who is Mrs. Howard MacMurray. The favorite recipe Mrs. MacMurray selected was for a broccoli casserole. To make this casserole, you will need 6 to 8 stalks broccoli, boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup hot chicken broth or 2/3 cup boiling water in which a bouillon cube has been dissolved, 1 tablespoon butter, and 1/2 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese.

Cook broccoli in boiling salted water until tender but still firm. Drain and arrange in a shallow casserole. Pour broth over broccoli. Season to taste and dot with butter. Sprinkle with cheese and place in broiler to brown. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Mrs. Frank Eytze, who was chosen Mrs. Pennsylvania, says that second helpings are always in order when she makes this fruited rice dessert.

GLORIFIED RICE DESSERT
2/3 cup quick cooking rice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
3/4 cup water
12 marshmallows, quartered
6 maraschino cherries, diced
1/2 cup canned crushed pineapple
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Combine rice, salt, sugar, and water in saucepan. Bring quickly to a boil, cover, remove from heat and let stand ten minutes. Add marshmallows and fruit. Fold in cream. Chill. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

From Mrs. Rhode Island, who is Mrs. Donald V. Stevens, we have a recipe for:

POTATO SCALLOP
6 medium potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
1/2 cup shredded American cheese
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
Pare potatoes and slice thinly. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, and milk. Melt cheese in white sauce. Put half the potato slices in a greased 1 1/2 quart casserole; cover with half the sauce, seasonings, onion, and green pepper. Repeat layers. Cover and bake in moderate hot oven 1 hour. Uncover and brown top. Makes six servings.

When Mrs. Kenneth W. Heist, Mrs. South Carolina, asks members of her family to select their favorite main dish, they often ask for:

STUFFED ROAST BEEF
1/2 cup minced onion
1 can (4 ozs.) mushrooms with liquid drained and reserved
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 1/4 cups soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup celery
Hot water plus liquid from mushrooms to make 1/2 cup salt and pepper
1 tenderloin of beef, about 3 lbs.
4 slices bacon
Saute onions and mushrooms in butter. Add bread crumbs, celery, and hot water. Season to taste and spread over half of the meat which has been split and flattened. Fold other half of meat over and secure edges around stuffing with skewers. Sprinkle all sides with salt and pepper. Top with bacon slices and roast uncovered in moderate oven 1 hour. Makes six to eight servings.

One of the nice things about the recipe which Mrs. Milton Wass, who has the distinction of being Mrs. South Dakota, selected as her favorite recipe, is that it can be made well ahead of a party and stored in the freezer. Another nice thing about it is that there's plenty of second helpings when it's just for the family.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY DESSERT

1 package vanilla wafers, finely crumbled
1/2 cup butter
1 cup confectioners sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup sliced strawberries
3/4 cup slivered toasted almonds
1 cup heavy cream
Spread half the crumbs on bottom of an 8x8x2 inch cake pan. Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and blend. Spread evenly over crumbs. Layer berries, almonds, and cream on top in that order or gently fold together and spoon over mixture. Sprinkle remaining crumbs on top and freeze. Makes 16 servings.

If there are small children in your family, they will enjoy pudding with a bunny face at any noon or evening meal. To any cooked custard, add two banana slices for ears, coconut for whiskers and candy or chocolate chips for eyes, nose, and mouth.

Like a lot of boys away at college, Frank Duane Young finds it hard to sit down and write a letter to his parents.

So he records a message regularly on a tape recorder and mails it to mom and dad, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young, and they play the tape on their recorder. In turn, the parents record their messages to their son on a roll of tape and shoot it up to Texas Tech, Lubbock. Amblin' Around, Alpine Avalanche.

Sidedressing Time For Sorghum Crops

Parmer County area row crops are coming along fast with the warm weather and time for sidedressing is fast approaching. More and more farmers are following the practice of sidedressing sorghum-type crops each year, says County Agent Joe Jones.

"In many instances this practice is being followed even though a pre-planting fertilizer application has been made. Whether or not it is the first fertilizer application or a second to insure plenty of plant food, there are a few things to keep in mind," suggests the agent.

One of these things he mentioned is that he is referring to sidedressing with a nitrogen fertilizer. Phosphate should be put on prior to or at planting and not applied to sorghums as a sidedressing he notes. "Keep in mind that it takes 30 pounds of nitrogen, 12 pounds of phosphoric acid, and nine

MANAGE ENERGY
 Fatigue comes easier during hot weather.

A tired feeling often brings an irritable disposition and cuts down efficiency on the job. It can also increase susceptibility to disease or accidents, according to extension home management specialists.

If you are feeling more tired than usual, stop and analyze yourself and your working methods—specialists say that boredom and frustration, as well as such physical factors as overwork and strain, will cause that tired feeling.

Short rest periods from 10 to 20 minutes will work wonders if you are tired from heavy work. A change of environment or activities will often relieve fatigue caused by boredom or monotony.

Efficient, happy homemakers have found that these simple rules will help to fight fatigue and make work more interesting.

First check your kitchen and household storage—is everything within easy reach? Keep cleaning tools in good repair and located close to the job.

Wear comfortable work clothes and sit as much as possible while you work.

Study your jobs and organize the work in assembly line fashion—Use both hands whenever possible.

Don't try to stay with a heavy or difficult job too long. Interperse big jobs with easier ones and rest at intervals.

"The sun," wrote the youngster in his school essay, "is good to have around, but the moon gives us light at night, when we need it. The sun's only with us in the daytime, and we don't need it."

sometime soon to plan for the best use of leisure time, energy and recreational dollars for summer months.

First, study the recreational interests and needs of each family member. Help each one develop a greater variety of outside interests.

Next, plan time for recreation in the family schedule. Talking this over often helps family members to see how adjustments can be made so that everyone has some individual time for recreation, and that all members plan some time for family recreation—at least once weekly.

Next, plan and provide a place that's a comfortable and adequate place for each family member. For indoor recreation, an unused room or basement would make an ideal room for the TV, piano, record player, radio or indoor games. For outdoor recreation, the family might arrange a court for horse-shoes, volley ball, badminton or croquet. A cement porch or driveway makes a good

PLAN SUMMER FUN

Recreation and summertime just naturally seem to go together. Wholesome recreation is a year-round need for old and young alike. More of us are realizing that fact all of the time, according to Lucille Moore, extension recreation specialist. It's part of the training program in much of our work with 4-H Clubs, home demonstration clubs and organized communities.

With summertime at hand, youngsters out of school, and lots of parties, picnics and family gatherings planned, this is a good time to take a look ahead. Call a family conference

by W. H. Graham Jr.

We ran into Sam Sanders the other day, who, with his son, C. W., has been a big sesame farmer in the area for the past few years. Since getting a good stand is a difficult but very desired feat, we were anxious to know what Sam thinks about prospects so far this spring.

Sam, who will be farming about 350 acres of sesame this year, says he has a stand on about 300 now, although he admits that this has been a tough spring to get a good start.

"The sesame farmer needs to stay away from clods," he says. "From the winter until planting time in the spring, that needs to be his theme."

Sam says that a little sesame sprout just can't budge much of a clod if it gets covered up, and having a nice mulch to germinate in is the secret of a good stand.

This is in strong contrast to grain sorghum and several other crops, which have a lot of strength when they break through the ground. Even cotton carries more punch at the emergence stage than sesame.

Most sesame farmers want their seed in the ground not later than June 20. They are seeding Margo, Dulce, and Blanco varieties this spring, which are heavy yielders and all of which produce seed of good quality that goes directly to the baking trade.

After June 20, Renner No. 15 and Llano, which are shatter-resistant types, can be planted with success because they mature more quickly. They are essentially oilseed, however.

Part of this price disadvantage can be offset by combine type harvesting which is possible under suitable conditions.

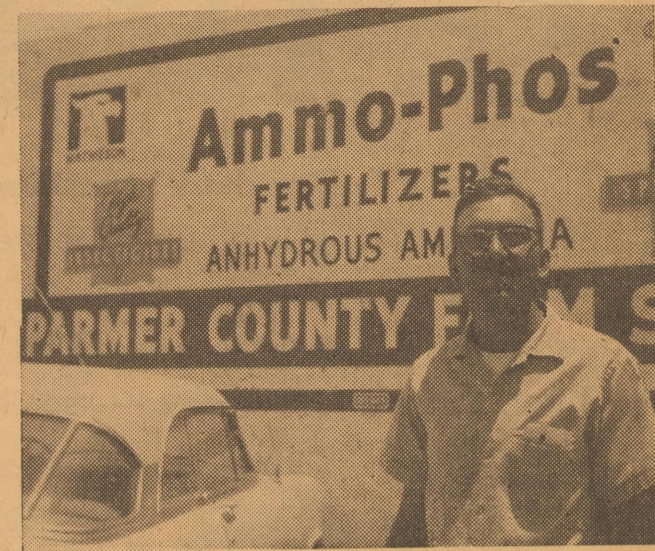

HD Agent to Take Special Courses

Miss Jimmie Lou Wainscott, county home demonstration agent, will attend a regional extension service course at Colorado A&M College at Fort Collins June 16 through July 4.

She plans to take special classes in family economics and recreation under specialists from the Department of Agriculture.

She will be accompanied by the demonstration agent from Panhandle. They plan to leave Saturday.

Dorothy Thompson devoted a recent column to the heavy dependence of the American economy on war spending. This she wrote: "...takes million of employables of the labor market onto the government payroll, and furnishes an inexhaustible market for the basic industries, since its purchases are perpetually obsolete, sometimes even before they have moved on left the drawing board. An arms race is continual turnover, as each new weapon invented by an enemy must be matched and if possible surpassed."
