JUDGE ELBERT H. GARY DIES

United States Steel Magnate's Death Kept From Stock Exchange For Seven Hours; Ill Six Weeks

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the U. S. Steel corporation, died at his home here at 3:30 o'clock this morning. Chronic myocarditis was given as the immediate cause of death. A noted figure in American steel industry for the last generation, Judge Gary had been ill in his home for the last six weeks. His ailment, screened in secrecy, was reported to be due to a digestive disturbance. Judge Gary's death was kept from the public for seven hours. The first information that Judge Gary had died came in the falling off on the stock exchange of U. S. Steel. News that Judge Gary's illness had taken a sudden turn for the worse flew through the exchange. At the judge's office and home, inquiry as to the judge's condition was evaded.

Elbert Henry Gary was always optimistic. When the trustees of Wall street were walking about with long faces and mulling about business depression, Gary always smiled and issued statements about the brighter side of things. "Pity the foolish, blind pessimist," Judge Gary once told a meeting of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, which he headed for years. "The story of Gary's life is another tale of 'From farmer boy to capitalist,' more typical and successful even than those Horatio Alger used to write. "I have no rule for success," he told his townspeople out in Wheaton, Ill., one year recently when he went back to the farm for a family reunion. "But I would advise every young man to get his start in the country. It makes him healthy, physically, intellectually and morally."

And Gary might have added for his own case "rich." Gary was born on his father's farm near Wheaton—25 miles west of Chicago, October 8, 1846. He was educated in public schools, Wheaton college and the University of Chicago. He started in working on the farm, and later was clerk in the court at a salary of $12 a week. Late in life, as chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, he held what is considered by some the biggest and most responsible position in the United States outside of the white house. Gary a fighter. Gary was a brilliant fighter. Some of his biographers have characterized him as "inscrutable and perplexing." But there was never any doubt about his being a fighter. His first big fight of national prominence was against union labor. His policy, as publicly announced at one time, was: "Hit the first kicker on the head with a shovel and throw him out." If this policy could be successfully carried out, Gary insisted that there would be no such thing as labor trouble. He did not believe in organized labor, he said, because the laborer himself did not believe in it. But after the 12-hour day had been in vogue many years in the steel industry, it was Gary who sounded the note of the capitalists for a change to the 8-hour day. Despite the cost involved, he ordered it put into effect in 1923 in his own mills. Gary was also very open in his discussion of the immigration problem. He believed that the restrictive law passed by congress cutting down immigration was detrimental to the best interests of the business of the country. He also believed that the dry law was a friend to the workman and is credited with having assisted in passing it. Gary's only public office was as head of the United States War Work campaign in 1918. He was a gifted public speaker and spoke often at dinners and meetings. Gary married Miss Julia E. Graves of Aurora, Ill., June 23, 1896, but she died in 1902. Then in 1905 he married Emma Townsend. Admitted to Bar Gary was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1867 and the bar of the United States supreme court in 1882. He was president of the town of Wheaton for three terms and first mayor of the city of Wheaton. He held the position for two terms. For two terms he was also county judge of DuPage county, Illinois, and it was then he received the title that was prefixed to his name for the remainder of his career. Gary went to Chicago a little later and began the practice of law. He was there for 25 years before he became connected with the organization of the Federal Steel company and retired from the law practice to become president of the concern. He was prominently identified with the organization of the United States Steel corporation. After he went to New York to become its president, he was selected president of the American Iron and Steel institute. He was also a member of the United States section of the International High commission, but resigned at the end of the war. He was a trustee of Northwestern university at Evanston, Ill.

In 1923 Gary suffered an illness which kept him out of active business for a few weeks. He was stricken while making an address to steel men at a New York hotel, but after treatment he recovered.

Texas Rangers Rushed to Childress Riot

OLD HOME TOWN

When I first got to New York, there appeared to be no life in the market at all," declared Henry Drumwright, manager of John H. Garner's department store, who has just returned from a marketing trip to New York and St. Louis. "But when cotton took its sensational rise on the government crop report, the market sat up and took notice. It was as if 'high life' had been poured on the market. Buying commenced at once in good volume, and everything took on a most optimistic tone. Other places appeared harder hit than Cisco during the last year. The sections where cotton is grown almost to the exclusion of other products were buying very little. Trade in Cisco, however, has been very satisfactory all this year, and I consider we have been very fortunate, considering the plight of other cities. If we just sit steady and hold on a little longer until oil goes up again, the good price for cotton and other farm products is going to give us some real prosperity before long."

Mr. and Mrs. Minter Womack, their two daughters and little son, of Weatherford, spent a few hours in Cisco today while en route to Abilene. The Womacks formerly lived in Cisco and Mr. Womack hopes to be able to return here permanently at some time in the future.

Frank Minkwitz, of Fort Worth, auditor for the Texas company and former Cisco resident, was in the city today on his way home from a business trip in West Texas. Mr. Minkwitz, always an ardent Cisco booster, is still strong for the Big Dam city and made it very clear that he considers Cisco the leading city of its class in West Texas from residence and business standpoints.

P. A. Meyers reported to Cisco police Monday that someone had stolen $25 in cash from his residence, 1307 West Ninth street, some time during Sunday. R. F. Blackburn also reported to police that an automobile tire pump, casing and rim had been stolen from his home at 700 West Tenth street.

Frank Leffler was among the Ciscoans who attended the national convention of Ducks at Fort Worth last week. Mr. Leffler reported a great time at the convention which was featured by many stunts, one of which was a snowball fight on the main street of Fort Worth using snow imported from the Rocky mountains near Denver, Colorado.

C. H. Blanton, star tackle on the 1925 Cisco high school football team, arrived in Cisco Monday after spending the summer at Temple and Waco. He also worked for a time in Oklahoma. Blanton expects to enter with several other Lobes of the 1928 edition who expect to develop a great team under the tutelage of Coach Monroe Sweeney.

Illustrated Songs Feature of Service

An unusual service in which practically all the songs were illustrated with pictures thrown on the screen was held at the First Christian church Sunday night, with the congregation singing the words and music projected before them. The devotional service was climaxed by the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee," by Mrs. M. V. House, the illustrations being striking. The pastor, Rev. Thomas Lenox, spoke on "Bleking the Way to Jesus," in which he pointed out the influence one person may have on another which may prevent the other from gaining salvation. Attendance at the Sunday school was considered excellent, with a gain of 30 over the same Sunday last year being registered.

NEGROES AND WHITES HAVE MANY FIGHTS

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—Two Texas rangers were hurriedly sent from Fort Worth to Childress last night, it became known here today. The rangers were sent to take charge of the situation at Childress where a race riot threatens, it was said at the executive office today. Despatch of the state officers followed a long distance conversation over telephone last night between Gov. Moody and Mayor Jones of Childress. Jones told Moody local peace officers were unable to cope with the situation which was becoming ugly. Trouble between negroes and whites at Childress is a recent development, Jones declared, adding that several fights occurred Saturday night. The two rangers are Privates C. O. Moore and M. T. Gonzales, Moore is stationed at Fort Worth and Gonzales at Dallas.

NOLAN COUNTY TO IMPROVE BANKHEAD

ABILENE, Aug. 15.—Nolan county will pave the west end of state highway No. 1, the Bankhead, with concrete, linking up with Taylor county pavement from the Callahan county line westward to Smetwater, a stretch of fifty miles. Two for one aid will be allowed Nolan county on all federal designated roads if Highway Commissioner Ely's recommendation is followed by his colleagues at Austin, as he confidently expects they will be followed. The matter will be brought before the highway commissioners at a special meeting Monday. Nolan county expects to vote an additional highway bond issue not to exceed $100,000 to complete the paving program.

PRISONER AT FT. WORTH SLAIN BY INSANE MAN

FORT WORTH, Aug. 15.—W. B. Bedwell, 48, prisoner in the county jail, was beaten to death against a concrete floor by an inmate of the ward for the insane at 10 o'clock Sunday night. Bedwell, who was in jail on an intoxication charge, had been assigned to watch over the ward and his only inmate, J. T. Farrar, a former soldier who was gassed overseas. Shouting from a window of the fourth floor of the jail to roomers of the Cumberland hotel at West Belknap and Throckmorton streets, Farrar told them he had killed a man. Farrar's insistent shouts caused two of the roomers to go to the jail office and notify Assistant Jailor James. "I've just killed a man in here," Farrar told James when he went to the fourth floor. "We got into a fight and I killed him." The body of Bedwell, almost stripped of clothes in the fight and covered with blood, was in one of the cells which Farrar had locked with a key taken from Bedwell's pocket.

German Junker Planes Both Fail In Attempted Flight to America; Fog and Heavy Wind Given Blame

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 15.—Germany's first attempt to conquer the Atlantic ocean with heavier than air machines, failed completely at 4:21 p. m. German time today when the Junker trans-Atlantic plane Bremen and its crew of three men returned to its starting point after attempting for 22 hours to fight its way clear of the wind, rain and fog which held all Europe storm-bound. The Bremen's sister ship, the Europa, which attempted the flight with the Bremen, was forced to earth at Bremen last night, two hours after the start. The Bremen flew as far as Ireland before abandoning any further attempt to cross the Atlantic. "We turned back because we met so much fog and heavy weather we could see no chance of succeeding in the flight," said Frederick Loose and Hermann Koehl, pilots of the Bremen, after their landing here. "When we were over Dublin bay, we could see nothing whatever. We decided to return to the field here at 7:30 o'clock this morning. During our flight we did not get a single radio message. In fact we had no time to take radio messages." We struck heavy fog as soon as we got over the North sea; also heavy winds. Over the Irish sea we could see nothing at all. We climbed to 800 meters and succeeded in shaking off the fog for a while, but it caught up with us again."

COUNTY TAX RATE RAISED; COURTHOUSE

The liquid food was then brought him, and he drank nearly a quart of beef tea. Chief Defense Attorney Arthur D. Hill today completed his brief in the world famous case. AMERICAN PIONEERS

Scientists of the Smithsonian Institution have made important discoveries among the ruins of villages in the Santa Barbara Valley, in California. They seem to prove that the people living there, the Chumash race, formed the first prominent settlements on the North American continent, some 12,000 years or more ago, coming from Asia in successive waves of migration, by way of Alaska. There is thought to have been a land bridge across Bering Strait at that time. That was long before the historic period of Egypt or Mesopotamia or China or India. It may have been before Egypt, from which came most of ancient and modern culture, was settled. And what was the fate of those American aborigines—those Pilgrim Fathers who made a far more perilous hegira than those of our own race three short centuries ago? They flourished, in the rich and healthful valley where they made their home. Life was gentler to them than to our New England settlers. There are evidences of four successive grades of culture, each higher than the last. The record, written in the relics they left, show a continuous occupation and growth over the entire period, down almost to our own day. The conquering Spaniards found them there, a peaceful, hospitable and prosperous people. Spanish "sulture," as usual, wrecked them. They dwindled and decayed. A great population soon shrank to a few thousand. By 1884 there were only 40 miserable Chumash survivors. Today there are none. It has been the old story. "Civilized" man, discovering an "inferior race," with intelligence and knowledge and social customs sufficient for its needs, gives it his own diseases and vices—particularly his vices. "Whisky, as much as anything else, was responsible for the extirpation of the happy and harmless Chumash people, who might conceivably have contributed elements of value to our own culture. At least they were adapted to life in America—a status which as yet the white race has not attained.

TRUSTWORTHY MEN

The head of a big American surety company says "fat men who cuss a little now and then are better honest risks than thin men who are over pious." The implication seems to be that the swearing fat man gets all the dissatisfaction and distemper out of his system, and is then ready to deal honestly, while the thin man, like Shakespeare's Cassius, "thinks too much," and let it fester, and so may turn to crooked courses. Moreover, "married men are far better bond risks than single men," says the same authority, "and women are more honest than men." The woman tends to deal squarely in business, and makes her husband deal squarely. "As to races, the Chinese seem to be the most honest. I have never known a Chinese to cause any loss to a bonding company." Think of that next time you're tempted to look down on the Chinese.

BUYING AND SELLING

International oil companies are quarreling over the ethics of buying oil from Russia. American interests are criticised for their purchases from a country whose government confiscated oil property owned by foreigners. That criticism sounds rather reasonable until an American oil official comes back with the argument that "it isn't any more unrighteous to buy from Russia than to sell to it," and points out that everybody is willing to sell products to Russia. There is a queer notion, which intrudes in many economic and political discussions, that the buyer is always generously conferring a benefit on the seller, and there is therefore natural resentment felt against the seller if he is not regarded as worthy. But as a matter of fact, isn't there as much favor on one side as on the other? The seller sells willingly, because he considers it good business; he wants the money the buyer pays. The buyer buys willingly because he considers it good business; he wants the goods he can get for his money. If the buyer did not consider his purchase advantageous to him, he would not buy. Why should either party assume an air of superiority, whether it is a case of Russian oil or a horse trade or potatoes at the corner grocery?

THE QUEEN AGAIN

Queen Marie of Roumania says she wants to visit the United States again, and hopes to come when her period of mourning for King Ferdinand is over. There are many things she wants to see here which she was unable to see on her former trip. And she may write a book about America, giving her impressions of the country more fully than she did in her newspaper articles, with better knowledge and more mature judgment. The country would be glad to welcome her again. Whatever may have been the faults of Marie's former visit, they were not the personal faults of the Queen. She was surrounded by poor advisers and bad managers, and pestered by a horde of people who wanted to profit, socially and financially, by attaching themselves to her. It should be easier to avoid such troubles if the queen comes, as she desires, in the guise of a private citizen. She is "not queen now," as she sadly observes, but only "a lonely widow." Her personality is always charming. Her gifts are many. Our people like her for her frankness and vitality, even when she is a bit spectacular. Of all royal personages who have visited America in this generation, she is perhaps the most colorful. Her proposed visit should admirably supplement the former one, and leave an impression wiping out all previous unpleasantness.

Figures don't lie, but taxpayers do, when rates are high. Thus Canada, like the United States, finds that it can collect more money with a lower income tax rate.

Another thing the vacationer learns is that the fish are always biting better somewhere else.

BLUE SKIES

Out on the coast of the Pacific Northwest where it is said humorously they have but two seasons, the rainy season and August, the people do not rave about blue skies. In fact, the Pacific Northwesterner does not care so much for blue skies. He likes rain. Never is he so contented as when the sky is gray and a mist sifting down. Let dry weather set in, continue for thirty days, and verify that man who lives in the coastal regions of Washington, Oregon, and Northern California begins to get restless and itchy. "I wish it would rain!" he says. "My pipes are dusty." Then he gets facetious and adds, "The moss on my back is drying up."

Speaking of moss, during the rainy season the roofs of the buildings in Portland and Seattle look like lawns; they are a beautiful bright green, due to a soft, fine moss that covers them closely. When the rains cease in summer that moss dries up and turns brown, but with the rains of autumn it comes back to life.

The Portlander and the Seattleer not only like rain, but they like to be out in it. Rain coats are the rule. But umbrellas are not. Rubbers mark the newcomer. Women wearing handsome hats and carrying no umbrellas walk along the streets in the rain. "Our rain isn't wet," say the natives. And verify that seems to be true. One can be out in the drizzle—and drizzle is what it does there, for hard rains are rare—and be dry a few moments after coming in.

"I'd hate that sort of climate," you may think, but you wouldn't. At first you might, then after you got used to it, you'd adore it. Usually those who have lived for two years on the western side of the coastal range, like rain and dislike too much blue sky. They're men in that part of the country who put one in a state to be never so well satisfied as when the sky is leaden and a fine rain falling. There is something about the northwestern rain washed air that puts zest and zip into one. To breathe it is like drinking wine. When the rains stop one misses something.

But Pluvius lets the folks in the Northwest alone for about three months in the summer. During that time they can go on their camping trips or do anything else in the great outdoors with the reasonable assurance that not a drop of rain will fall on them. And when the rains come again in the fall they are welcomed by expanding lungs and shining faces, and the moss on the roofs again grows green.

A certain amount of blue sky is all right, but it should be remembered that too much blue sky makes a desert.

DINNER STORIES.

A preacher at the close of one of his sermons said: "Let all in the house who are paying their debts stand up," and every man and woman and child with one exception rose to their feet.

The preacher seated them and said: "Now every man not paying his debts stand up." The exception, a careworn, hungry looking individual, who was clothed in his last year's summer suit, assumed a perpendicular position.

"How is it, my friend," asked the minister, "you are the only man not able to meet his obligations?"

"I run a newspaper," he answered, "and the brethren here who stood up are my subscribers, and

"Let us pray," exclaimed the minister.—Exchange.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla. That when you buy products manufactured or sold in the home city, you get not only merchandise you know to be good, but the dollars you spend stay in your home city and continue to work for you.

That when you want the best grade of goods at the lowest price, read ads in your local paper. That right now there are opportunities shrieking directly at you in the advertising columns of your newspapers.

That you should know the reputation of the business houses of your city. That you want to know who keeps goods of first class quality and that they are priced right before you buy.

That you get this information from the advertising columns of your newspapers.

That the business concerns of proven honesty advertise and back up their ads. That men who have craft minds filled with a desire to separate the public from their money without giving much in return, are operating in nearly every section. They dare not try to advertise in newspapers because the newspapers would investigate their standing and would not run their ads.

Newspapers are the greatest protectors of the public's interest and only accept advertising from reliable concerns. Read the ads and buy advertised goods. You will then get honest prices.

THE FOLLOWING IS QUOTED, BY PERMISSION, FROM A LETTER OF MR. A. J. BARKER, ST. LOUIS, DATED MAY 10th, 1927

"It will be, I have no doubt, a source of gratification to you to know that Chesterfield cigarettes were on sale and, at that, the leading American seller, in all parts of the world.

"We started our trip on December 2nd, and visited among other points—Madeira Island... Gibraltar... Monte Carlo... Algiers... Haifa... Jerusalem... Cairo... Naples... Suez...

SIBLEY WELL MAKES RANGER SPIRITS SOAR

RANGER, Aug. 15.—A revival of the oil fraternity in Ranger has been quite noticeable in the past week. This is due to some great extent to the coming in of two splendid producers in the Sibley tract, 8 miles south of Ranger, Sibley No. 4 of the Mook-Texas company, and Sibley No. 2 of the States Oil corporation, one making around 1050 barrels daily and the other a little better than 800 barrels, as to some encouraging reports from the Gordon pool northwest of Ranger, where the Ramsower No. 4 touched the pay last week, and is making both oil and gas in strong paying quantities.

It is also due to the fact that general conditions look better. A number of locations have been made in this and adjoining counties in the last week or ten days and others are contemplated.

There are four new locations in the Sibley pool. The Panhandle company has made a location on the South Hightower, some 200 feet west of Webb No. 2, which came in a month ago for a 35 barreler at a depth of 1190 feet.

About one and one-half miles north of the Gordon pool Moorman-Tharpe No. 1 is showing some gas at 1700 feet.

The Texas Fidelity Oil corporation is drilling around 1,000 feet on its deep test well on the Lipa near Lacasa and the Prairie Oil & Gas company made a location in the Proctor ranch north of Caddo Prairie is moving in on the lease and the well will be drilled by Donley & Chastain of Ranger.

H. L. Singleton, representing the Shaw interests, was in Ranger Friday and that company is preparing to make a location 12 miles southeast of Ranger on the Allen ranch.

About 14 miles southeast of Ranger a rig is up on the Cage ranch.

CROSS PLAINS TEST GETS PAY IN TOP SAND

CROSS PLAINS, Aug. 15.—After drilling 11 feet into the first pay topped at 1928 feet, the outside test well of Hill and West on the Weller land in the new Cross Plains field, is flowing 20 barrels per hour natural flow.

This well is an extension of one location from the Bradstreet well on the north and opens virgin territory in all other directions. It is the first well in the vicinity of the new field to find important production in the top pay, all previous wells having found only a small quantity of oil until after the second sand is reached. The logs of previous drilling have also shown only 7 to 9 feet of the top sand followed by a shale streak of about 3 feet, leading to the possibility that the shale break may have pinched out at this point and this heavier flow may be coming from a stratum corresponding to the top of the second sand.

The Bradstreet discovery drilled sand at 1805 feet, and with the total depth of the new well standing at 1674, indicates that an additional 25 feet of sand remains to be drilled with the prospect that the present rate of flow, that gauges at the rate of 400 barrels may be further increased by additional drilling.

UNCLE NICK MURCHESON OF EASTLAND DIES

Eastland, Aug. 15.—Another Eastland county pioneer has passed on. "Uncle" Nick Murcheson, 72, for 45 years a resident of the county, died early this morning in a sanitarium at Dallas, where he had some a day or so ago for what was thought would be a minor operation. Coming to Eastland county from near San Antonio when this country was a pioneer cattle country, Mr. Murcheson engaged in the cattle business, one of the leading industries of this section in those days.

Mr. Murcheson, while yet a young man, married Miss Florence Latham. Their son, Fred Murcheson, lives in Eastland, but at present is working in the oil fields further west. Mr. Murcheson's wife died many years ago.

GORDON ASKS RECEIVER FOR OIL COMPANY

EASTLAND, Aug. 15.—Asking that a receiver be appointed for the West-Adams Petroleum corporation, Col. Robert D. Gordon filed a suit for $23,000 Saturday afternoon against the corporation whose directors on the day before had removed him as general manager.

His contract as general manager was for a period of three years at $1,000 a month, with the further provision that if he brought in a profitable producer in addition to the No. 1 Ramsower, he was to receive $2,000 a month beginning on November 1, next, Gordon's petition declares.

Four wells were drilled, the plaintiff alleges, the No. 1 still being a good producer after having yielded approximately $170,000 worth of oil; the No. 2 was dry; the No. 3 was a producer of oil, and the No. 4 is making 200 barrels of oil and more than 10,000,000 feet of wet gas a day.

An unlawful conspiracy to freeze out and eliminate the plaintiff is charged. By certain stock dealings the effort was made to leave the corporation without any interest in the 50 acres on which the wells were located and thereby result in Gordon, after completing his work, finding himself in the position of looking to a corporation that existed in name only, for his salary.

An attempt was also made, the plaintiff declares, to sell out the remaining interest of the corporation in the undeveloped 150 acres of the lease and such adjectives as "simulated" and "fraudulent" were used and Edwin Larson was referred to as the "pretended purchaser." The petition closes with the summation that the defendants conspired for the fraudulent purpose of putting the assets of the West-Adams beyond the reach of Gordon and the creditors in general, "with the fraudulent intent of deliberately, willfully, maliciously and wrongfully breaching the contract with Gordon.

RANGER POOL TO BE READY FRIDAY NIGHT

RANGER, Aug. 15.—Excavation has been completed for Ranger's new swimming pool. It is located in the west end of town at a natural depression, and the fact that it is surrounded with large willow trees has given it the name of "The Willows." The pool will be 100 by 200 feet in size. An earthen dam has been thrown up and the inside walls and the floor of the pool will be covered with concrete, which is to be poured without use of forms and is expected to be completed by Friday night. An island 10 by 12 feet in size juts out from the south side of the pool, and is covered by a large oak tree. The pool is to be served by water from the city mains which will be treated with chemicals to make it safe.

Get a NEW IDEA of Washed-Clothes Cleanliness — try the MAYTAG

For homes without electricity, the Maytag is available with in-built gasoline motor

LET the Maytag do your next week's washing. Try it free. Get a new idea of washed clothes cleanliness. Of washdays through sooner—and work done easier.

You'll wonder at the Maytag's greater speed—tubful washed sparkling clean in 3 to 7 minutes. At its washing volume—50 pounds of dry clothes in one short hour. At its hand-gentle washing of the finest silks and laces. At its thorough washing of heavy, bulky pieces—such hard-to-wash things as grimy play-clothes, greasy work-clothes. The way it washes collars, cuffs, wristbands snow-white, smudge-free clean, without hand-rubbing.

When you see how the satin-smooth cast aluminum tub keeps water cleansingly hot throughout an entire big washing—how the convenient, low-set wringer automatically adjusts itself to handkerchief or blanket—how the tub cleans itself in 30 seconds after the washing is done—

THEN you'll know why the Maytag won undisputed World Leadership. Why it is the washing genius in hundreds of thousands of homes. Why it sells itself wherever it goes on a free washing trial.

PHONE US—wash with the Maytag next week. Test it in every way—compare it with other washers.
