"I'd Planned to Make Her Killing Most Sensational in American Crime Annals," Remus Says of Wife's Death

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—"I'd planned to make her killing the most sensational deed in American crime. I'd intended to kill her and Phil Dodge as they appeared to testify against me at a hearing before U. S. Prohibition Director Haynes in Washington. It wasn't because I wanted to create a sensation, but that I wanted to create such interest that every detail would be brought out and let the world know her for the kind of woman she was. I could never bring that true because they were never in the courtroom together."

CISCO HOUSE BADLY BURNED BY NIGHT FIRE

Fire starting from an undetermined cause badly damaged the residence of George Burnett in the 600 block on West Fourth street about 8 o'clock Thursday night. Members of the fire department made an excellent run in answer to the alarm, and were able to prevent the flames from spreading to adjoining property. None of the contents were saved.

ONE KILLED, SECOND DYING FROM GUNSHOTS

Two volleys failed to kill, so that one soldier was called out of line and ordered to shoot from close range.

CREAGER PLEASANT AT EVENTS IN MEXICO.

LAREDO, Oct. 7.—Rene B. Creager, called in Mexico "American ambassador at large to Mexico," returned from Mexico City today in a very happy frame of mind with the information that there has not been any trouble at all in Mexico City except the felling of a plan to overthrow the Calles government. Creager visited the Mexican consul Vasquez and was escorted with him on home. After leaving the consul he told the International News Service correspondent that Gen. Serrano and his 13 friends who were executed Monday had planned the assassination of President Calles and Gen. Obregon, and had planned setting up a military government with Serrano as dictator.

The Yanks potted out nine hits while the Pirates could get but three, and made no errors while Pittsburgh made one. Herb Pennock and Grabowski were the new York battery and Meadows and Gooch performed for the Pirates. Pittsburgh's chances to win the series waned swiftly as today's game ended. A victory Saturday will give the New Yorkers the championship pennant.

BADGERS WILL OPPOSE STRONG ELEVEN SOON

"You can tell the world we have matched a game with a real football team for next week," declared Coach Monroe Sweeney Friday. "We have agreed to bring Texas Military college here from Terrell next Thursday, and the soldiers should give the Badgers a real tussle."

Sweeney was apparently well pleased with the performance of his men in their opening game of the year Thursday, and said that if he can put team work into the performance of the boys, he believes they will be a credit to the college. "If they will do well in their regular schedule games, I hope to get a real post-season game with one of the strongest teams available," he said.

San Angelo Quarterback Receives Ball Like Crayfish, Chapman Says After Seeing Game at Ballinger

A new wrinkle in West Texas football will probably be sprung in Cisco when San Angelo High school comes here for the Lobos' first class A battle, according to Coach W. B. Chapman who went to Ballinger Thursday and saw the Bobcats beat Ballinger 13 to 0. The new idea is the way the quarterback receives the ball from center. Instead of facing the center, the quarterback turns his back to the line and faces the other backfield men. He receives the ball from between his own legs, and then hands it to whatever backfield man is scheduled to make the run. The particular value this method of receiving the ball has is it makes it easier to pull fake plays, and keeps the opposition guessing.

Stephenville To Have Contest In Calling Husbands

STEPHENVILLE, Oct. 7.—A husband calling contest is the unique feature to be instituted at the Erath county three day fair to open here October 13. Protest Clemency For Texas Slayer

AUSTIN, Oct. 7.—Vigorous protest against clemency for H. V. Milliken, sentenced to the electric chair for slaying of Mrs. Virginia Petty of San Antonio, was lodged with Governor Moody today by Fred Blundell, district attorney, who prosecuted the case.

His Boom Under Way

Chapman said the Bobcats present an entirely different appearance from any San Angelo team in the past. The boys are of about the same weight as the Lobos and appear better coached than in the past, he said. Bill Hight from Howard Payne and "Molly" Crawford, a former Austin college schoolmate of Chapman, are coaching the San Angelo team this year. The Bobcats have an excellent full-back who is "big and redheaded," Chapman reported. He said this man does great work in backing up the line, and in this respect is even better than Garland Hinman of Ranger who is certainly no slouch in this part of the game. Chapman's Lobos are scheduled to play Merkel high here this afternoon at Chesley field, the game beginning at 3:30 o'clock.

Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war (above), is being groomed by McAtee forces for Democratic nomination for president.

CISCO APPRECIATES ITS THEATERS

The great crowds which attended showing of the Dempsey-Tunney fight pictures emphasized how fortunate Cisco is in having so progressive a theatrical manager as K. N. Greer. The 2,500 persons who attended the theater to see the picture included probably several hundred persons from out of town. The number of automobiles in which they came to town crowded the downtown district. In addition to attending the show, many of these visitors spent money here otherwise, thus helping many other businesses besides the theater. Due to the aggressiveness of Mr. Greer, Ciscoans were able to see the fight films at the same time Dallas and Fort Worth were enjoying them, and before any other theater in the state besides these three were able to secure them. Many cities have long since learned that the amusements they provide draw many visitors and much new money from points at a distance, and the city that has the best amusements is likely to go ahead otherwise. Realizing this fact, the Daily News hopes that the theaters here will continue to get the big things first for Cisco, even to bringing the first class road shows here, and believes the merchants of the city will appreciate the progressiveness to the fullest extent.

$1,500,000 FOR PEACE

While the expenditures of the navy department are being discussed, Congressman Davenport of New York rises to suggest an inquiry into state department expenses. Not that the congressman accuses anybody of waste there. His complaint is that the department is not getting enough money—that it ought to have more funds and be reorganized on a bigger scale. While the war and navy departments got $676,000,000 last year, he observes, the state department got a measly $10,000,000. And nearly all of that came back in the form of fees for passports and other things, leaving a net cost of only $1,500,000 for the upkeep of that branch of government. Summing up the issue raised here, a New York editor remarks that "we spend $676,000,000 preparing for war and $1,500,000 for insuring peace." That may be an unfair and illogical way to put it. Nevertheless, when it is put like that, it stimulates a little thinking. Possibly we wouldn't get any more peace by spending more money on the department that handles our foreign relations. Still, the pursuit of peace—maintaining peaceful relations with other countries and encouraging them to be peaceful among themselves—is or ought to be the main job of a "foreign ministry" Europeans call it. If Uncle Sam is short of small change, it might do no harm to take, say about $6,000,000 off that $676,000,000, the same being the cost of one small cruiser, and give it to the state department for purposes of pacific diplomacy.

FALL BUSINESS

Business is neither so good as the optimists hoped nor so bad as the pessimists predicted, says a banker. It is moving along slowly, but for the most part satisfactorily. There is the usual seasonal acceleration, but not much more. This is really better news than that of a sudden boom. For what goes up must come down, and the business that goes up with a rush, unsettling everybody and all values, usually comes down like a burst balloon leaving everybody breathless, a few with some easy money, perhaps, but most people with wasted energies and losses. Whereas the business which moves along slowly, giving everybody who wants it some kind of a job, everybody in business a modest profit, hasn't anything to slide down from. It stays on the road. Everybody knows pretty much where he is going, what he can plan for. If his earnings climb a bit, he is so much to the good. It isn't the big booms and lucky breaks that make life comfortable for the many. It's the moving in an orderly way towards a reasonable goal.

PRODIGAL SONS

The 21-year-old heir to a great tobacco fortune, after blowing in $250,000 cash turned over to him last April, disappeared from New York under peculiar circumstances, and for a few days there was much to-do about it. He was supposed to have killed himself, or been murdered or kidnaped. Finally he was discovered in seclusion in St. Louis. He had simply run away from his Broadway debts and was lying low while waiting to get hold of some more of his father's money to spend on riotous living. It's an old, old story—the story of the prodigal, who may or may not come back. The father piles up wealth and the son dissipates it. It is hard on the son, and harder on his family, in such a case. But broadly speaking, it usually works out pretty well in the end. Nature operates according to the familiar rule of about three generations from shirt-sleeves to shirt-sleeves. After such a round, with the family line restored to sanity and vigor by enforced simplicity of life and alliances with fresh, unspoiled blood, there may be a new start. In all fairness, too, it must be said that there are not many such cases. The attention paid to them exaggerates their frequency and importance. The big majority of successful men's sons buckle down quietly into the harness and go ahead doing their bit to boost the family name and fortune.

SHAKESPEARE'S INCOME

An American professor, probing into the professional life of William Shakespeare, reports that he never received for his work as playwright, actor and manager more than 250 pounds a year, which in terms of our present money would be perhaps $5,000 or $6,000. Shakespeare lived fairly well, at that, taking care of his family in Stratford, paying his father's debts, buying his mother a comfortable home for her old age and paying his personal expenses in London. He is known to have been generous, too, and rather careless, in his handling of money. Ben Jonson called him "of an open and free nature," which probably meant, among other things, "a good spender." But if he was ever able to spend lavishly, it was probably money given him by his noble patrons rather than his professional earnings. The sum mentioned is obviously absurd as pecuniary compensation for a successful playwright, the finest intellect of his time and the greatest poet who ever lived. Frank Harris says "the biggest thing yet done in the world" by the English race has been to produce Shakespeare. It has usually been so, however, with the greatest artists. It is so today. And perhaps that is best. Material success may spoil art. We see that among some of our own writers. And the great artist, we may be sure, has other and higher rewards than money and ease.

BOOM! BOOM!! BOOM!!!

How would you like to have a farm or orchard with concrete roads and sidewalks, and long rows of cluster lights strinking through the place in every direction? That is the layout one man has had a splendid, well-paying orchard located on the outskirts of a flourishing city. An unprejudiced real estate boom hit that city, and real estate operators set out to subdivide the whole country. This man's orchard came under the eye of the speculators, and he sold his place for one hundred thousand dollars, one-third cash and the balance in payments about every so often.

The new purchasers immediately grabbed up the beautiful fruit trees, laid the land off into lots, paved the streets, put down sidewalks and built some white ways. About the time they had finished these improvements the boom broke. And the purchasers broke too. They couldn't have continued payments had they wanted to, and they didn't want to. There was no chance to sell those lots, there were too many other lots, so the purchasers kissed their thirty-three and a third cents goodbye, and likewise bade farewell to the improvements they had made and they let the original owner repossess the property.

But what good was that land to the original owner? It was so imbedded with strips of concrete that it looked like a crossword puzzle; there wasn't a fruit tree left standing; his house had been pulled down and all his outbuildings cleared away. He had a subdivision, but he couldn't sell anybody any of it; he had a farm or orchard, if anybody wanted to call it that, but he couldn't work it. And the city limits had been extended to take in the greater portion of that end of the state, so the taxes were so high he couldn't pay them.

"But," someone says "he has the thirty-three thousand three hundred and thirty-three dollars and thirty-three and a third cents; that helps some." Oh no, he hasn't the thirty-three thousand three hundred and thirty-three dollars and thirty-three and a third cents. Not at all. He too was bitten by the boom bug and as soon as he received that money he turned around and bought one hundred thousand dollars worth of real estate himself, one third down and the balance in payments about every so often.

Earthquakes, floods, hurricanes, wars, pestilences, famines, and real estate booms are among the things that devastate communities. "If anybody cleaned up any money in our town, I don't know it," said one man whose city had just passed through a hectic boom. "Most of us made lots of money, but we immediately turned around and bought more property with it. So when the boom broke we all broke too."

ACHED ALL OVER

Was Suffering Dreadfully, Just "Wasting Away," Took Cardui, and Says It Helped Her.

Arlington, Texas.—A resident of this town for many years, Mrs. J. H. Jackson, says: "I had suffered dreadfully with an aching all over my body. At times my head would give me so much trouble I could hardly stand it. I had been in bed for weeks and it looked like I was just wasting away. I took 9 bottles of Cardui and my strength began to slowly return. "Since that time I have used this medicine a good many times and it has always helped me. "At one time I took Cardui for several months regularly. I would be afflicted with sudden spells of dizziness when I could not stand on my feet. Everything would turn black before my eyes and I would feel as if I were going to faint. At times I would be quite nauseated. I turned at once to Cardui and took it till I was safely through. "Cardui is a mild, medicinal tonic, made from purely vegetable ingredients. It has been in use for over 60 years, and in that time thousands of women have written that Cardui helped them back to good health. Sold by all druggists. NC-152

Looks On As Surgeons Take Pin From Lungs

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (1-1-N).—For cold nerve you've got to hand the prize to eleven-year-old Henley Matthews of Atlanta, Ga. Four years ago he swallowed a pin. It gave him no trouble until recently, when it was found imbedded in his left lung near his heart.

The lad was taken to the Jefferson hospital in this city and placed under the care of Dr. Chevalier Jackson, internationally famous specialist in the use of the bronchoscope.

Without taking an anesthetic, Henley calmly looked on as the surgeons removed the pin, which was visible under the light of the fluoroscope. Henley saw every move they made.

"It certainly was interesting," he declared afterward, "and I'm glad they didn't put me to sleep, because then I wouldn't have seen what they did."

"One doctor was the eyes' of the operation, and Dr. Jackson was the fingers." When the assistant moved the light, Dr. Jackson moved his fingers until he got hold of the pin. Then it was a cinch to get it out.

"They had put something in my throat to keep it from hurting too much, and it worked fine. It was a little bit sore for a couple of days, but now it's all gone. I certainly feel great now."

Sweeney Parades Whole Squad Of Heavy Men Before Fans In Winning Game Off Daniel Baker

Coach Monroe Sweeney made his debut as coach of Randolph college Thursday afternoon when he put an eleven on the field that walloped the Daniel Baker reserves 32 to 0 in a game as one-sided as the score would indicate. The game itself was uninteresting, since Daniel Baker flashed no semblance of an offensive at any time during the four quarters, but as a means of introducing to the crowd the men upon whom Sweeney will depend to win big games during the season, it was of utmost interest.

Foremost among the ball toters were Johnny Walker, sensational high school star of a few years ago at Ranger who gave the Lobo fans, and dependable old Kokonoa Couch, veteran of Lobo teams and last year's Randolph eleven. These two men frequently broke away for sensational runs, with Walker making the most spectacular run of the game for 70 yards and a touchdown. Hunky Phillips, another Ranger lad, and Harrison from Breckenridge completed the backfield and shattered the Daniel Baker line time and again for gains. Self, who went in as a substitute back, reminded one of Couch and rivaled him in making gains. McSwain, who relieved Walker, also was a good ball totter, while Yeager of 1925 Lobo fame, plunged the line in his accustomed manner.

In the line, the Lobo team of 1926 was also represented. Blanton and Perdue led the charge at tackle, and gave the line power. Crist, huge guard back from last year's Randolph eleven, played a great game until his trick knee forced him out. Manley was pivot man, and Bullock at right guard looked good. The play of the ends was especially good, featuring Smith from Breckenridge and the sensational Shazo Harrell of last season's Eastland high team.

However, it was not the play of this so-called first-string alone that won the game. Sweeney sent in every man he had except the tripples, and in this parading his troupe of pachyderms, demonstrated to those who cared to look on that he has cunning never before known in the history of Randolph college—plenty of reserve men of first-class calibre. Among those who attracted the public eye was Barrierson, old No. 24, he of the closely cropped hair, who balls from Albany. He tore great holes in the line of the opposition, and as for going over or around him, it just simply wasn't done. Nabors who went in for Crist showed he had plenty of fight and ability, while the remainder of the club was highly satisfactory to the fans.

The team as a whole did not work with the precision that might be desired, but of course, this was the first game of the season, and mid-season form could not be expected. Closer observance of football fundamentals and better interference, coupled with the individual ability of the group of stars should enable Sweeney's men to trample down any and all opposition that may loom in their path this season.

Of the five touchdowns made, four of them were put across by Couch, each after a run of 10 to 20 yards through the opposing line. Walker's sensational 70-yard run came in the second quarter, and was made through a broken field. Blanton kicked goal twice after touchdowns.

"HULA" COLORFUL SOUTH SEA ROMANCE, STARS CLARA

Clara Bow is now a "keke wahini Lalan." Sounds terrible, but that is the part she portrays—a flapper of Hawaii—in her latest starring Paramount vehicle "Hula" which comes to the Palace theater Sunday and Monday. When Miss Bow read Armine von Tompaki's popular novel she begged studio officials to buy it for her. The Paramount corporation lost no time in securing the rights, agreeing that it undoubtedly was one of the best they could obtain for her. "Hula" is a story of a social life on Hawaii; of an American girl, born and raised on the "crossroads of the Pacific" who remains herself amid an artificial atmosphere created by an irresponsible set of "fast lives." In this interesting but strange situation comes Clive Brooks, leading man. The troubles of lively Miss Bow in obtaining her real love makes up one of the most fascinating screen tales of the day. Romance, color, smiles and tears are all rolled together in this fast moving story.

Britton of Abilene Ruled Ineligible

BRECKENRIDGE, Oct. 7.—Lano Britton, alternating quarterback for the Abilene Eagles, has been declared ineligible for this year by Superintendent L. T. Cook of the Breckenridge schools and chairman of the athletic committee for class A schools in this district. It was announced yesterday.

Britton was regular quarterback for the Stephenville high school eleven last year. He moved to Abilene and has been working out with the Coach Mayhew's bunch daily and was assured a berth on the team.

Information from Stephenville revealed the fact that Britton finished his work in that school during the summer instead of during the spring term as the rules require.

Abilene, Mr. Cook stated, has the right to appeal the case from this decision to the full body of the committee.
