Helping To Build Texas

by Bill Edwards

Texas University is taking advantage of low construction costs and also contributing measurably to alleviate the employment problem by starting on the most ambitious program of improvement in its half century of existance. Bids are to be opened next month on eight new structure on the campus, costing from $300,000 to $1, 000,000 to be paid for out of its available fund, resultant from its oil endowment. In addition a $900,000 students union building, financed largely by the students and exstudents and alumni, is to be started within the next few weeks, and a $1,000,000 observatory to be built and equipped out of a munificent bequest received several years ago and in litigation much of the time since, has reached the planning stage, with work expected to begin some time in the coming year. Improvement of the enlarged campus is provided for in two contracts recently let for nearly $50,000 worth of paving and two new bridges to cost almost as much. The last of the shacks are being removed to provide sites for the handsome and permanent structures that will take their places. Also out of the University oil endowment, Texas Agricultural & Mechanical College is starting on an ambitious building program, the total of which is to exceed $2,000, Planting of trees along main highways, opening up new routes to points of scenic beauty, the creation of attractive small lakes by damming living streams, and routing of high- $404,000, Cuero alone shipped n0,000 ways thru more presentable sections of the cities along them are some of the phases in the work. Concetrated effort to attract travel to the so-called "Boadway of America" the crosscontinental route that starts at Washington D. C. and goes thru to the Pacific coast by way of Texarkana, Dallas, Ft. Worth, Abilene and El Paso is being started with the announcement that almost one-fourth of the entire distance is in Texas, and that it is nearer a paved route all the way than any other transcontinental route. In the Hill Country, here is a concert of effort among communities of the section to tell the outside world how attractive scenically and otherwise that part of Texas is. A scenic route thru the Davis mountains is under construction, opening up areas heretofore impossible of access except on horseback. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has started a campaign for the beautification of highways and routes by the planting of trees and roses and is getting active co-operation from many of its member cities. Tourists already are leaving many millions a year in Texas. The total can be materially increased first by making Texas traveling more attractive and. secondly, by letting other sections know of the attractiveness.

Miscellaneous items of Texas progress and improvement: Contract for a new $10,000 church has been let and construction begun for the Forest Avenue Baptists, Sherman. Dallas County lets a $65,000 contract for enlarging its jail facilities. Bids are to be opened Jan. 4 on a $80,000 Federal building for Texas City. Plans are about ready for seeking bids on a $100,060 addition to the State Hospital at San Antonio. Beaumont lets contract for $17,000 for storm drainage extensions. Plans have been finally approved for $2,254,000 storm sewer extensions and improvements in Dallas, with contracts to be let for the first section in March and the others in May, October and December fillowing. Grayson County lets contract at $11,131 for a temporary court house in place of the one burned two cubic feet of flood water a second, years ago. Cuero reports 140,000 turkeys shipped out of DeWitt County, valued at to Northern and Eastern markets. With nearly $1,000,000 worth of turkey shipments reported from those two areas, it is likely that the $4,000,-000 estimated total for the entire State is too low. Beaumont plans a new $20,000 steel hanger at its municipal airport. Plans are about ready for starting work on the $50,-000 Federal fish hatchery, which San Antonio secured in competition with several other West Texas Cities .. Plans are about ready for letting contracts on the $500,000 office building which the State Highway Commission will use for its headquarters at Austin. The Texas trapping season is in full blast. Last year Texas marketed about $3,000,000 worth of pelts and even with a decline of about 15 per cent in this year's prices to the trappers the total is expected to fall little if any short of that. Sixteen-mile extension of the part terminal railroad is provided for in a new franchise granted the Houston-Harris County Navigation District. The extension is to be built on the south side of the ship channell to Morgans Point eleven miles and five miles on the north side. Sharp upturn of bank debits was registered in Texas during November, with the seeming decrease from last year's figures just about offsett by approximately the same increase in the purchasing power of the dollar. Industrial improvement , was reflected by Texas textile mills reporting an increase of about 30 per cent in raw cotton used, and also by improvement in the cement plants. It is interesting to note that Texas textile mills account for about 3 per cent of the consumption of Texas-grown cotton, and that while Texas also is the great est wool and mohair producing State in the Union, it has not a single mill for making it into a finished product.

parties, were recorded in opposition. The Republicans, all listed as insurgents, were Frazier, Johnson, beck, Norris, Nye and Schall. The Democrats who voted no were Bulow, Caraway, Connally, Dill, McKellar and Thomas. In view of the pledges President Hoover had received in advance, the ight against ratification was admitted-

y hopeless, but Senator Johnson of California and several others insisted, nevertheless, on volcing at length their objections to the resolution. Johnson a particular was bitter in his denunclation of Mr. Hoover's course in this matter, criticizing him for not giving due notice that the moratorium as originally proposed had to be altered to suit France. He repeatedly charged hat the President had abandoned the former American policy and had agreed to the linking of war debts and reparations. McKellar of Tennessee, Gore of Oklahoma, and one or two others were scarcely less outspoken that Johnson in their opposition.

The senate rejected half a dozen amendments and adopted the resolu tion as it came from the house which had passed it by a vote of 317 to 100 after adding an amendment which puts congress on record as not committing itself to any policy of cancellation or revision of war debts.

Both house and senate, having set tled the moratorium matter, adjourned until January 4. Senator Borah made a futile effort to have the date for reconvening changed to January 28, as the President had recommended.

About the time the President was signing the moratorium resolution word came from Basel that the Young plan advisory committee had reported that Germany will be unable to rene payment of the conditional sepns when the moratorium terminates next July, and that "adjustment of all reparations and war debts to the troubled situation of the world" would be essential. The next reparaons conference is to open at The Hauge on January 18.

BECAUSE of difficulty in obtaining foreign exchange for debt remittances, the government of Hungary declared a moratorium for one year on foreign debts. The decree stipulated that public and private debts for which afficient foreign currency is not available must be paid in pengoes to the Hungarian National bank which will hold the money as trustee for the creditors. The pengo is the Hungarian monetary unit.

In order that trade and commerce my not halt, the National bank will put at the disposal of Hungarian citisens such sums as are needed to carry on and also will cover service on the so-called credit-freezing agreement.

WHILE congress was debating the moratorium, the senate finance committee continued its inquiry into the sale of foreign securities in this country. Several emi-neat bankers were heard, the most interesting in some ways Otto H. Kahn, head of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. For hours Mr. Kahn held forth, explaining the intricacies of international finance and describing vividly the crisis world economics.

Although Mr. Kahn Otto H. Kahn

made clear that he was opposed to either cancellation or permanent reduction of the war debts owed the United States, he declared that the emergency required temporary adjustments to lighten the burden of German reparations and European war debts. Neither justice nor expediency could lead to insistence at this moment on demands for payments to the full letter of agreements effected in the past, Mr. Kahn said.

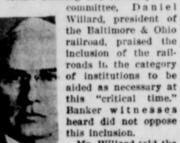

In an outline of his own attitude, in vigorous terms, Mr. Kahn, said, "if it were possible to find a way by which all these reparations and war debts, which hang around the neck of the world like a milistone, could be taken out and sunk in the ocean, I should welcome it."

DRESIDENT HOOVER announced that Gen. Charles G. Dawes, amthe American delegation to the world conference on disarmament in Geneva. "It would be a satisfaction to me," said Mr. Willard, "and I think it would be in the public interest, if, when these securities mature next summer, we could borrow at a reasonable rate of interest from the government. And, of course, it would be to our interest to pay back as quickly as possible. It would be a good deal for the government with a profit, and the bazard would be well nigh negligible.

The alternative, he pointed out, would be for the railroads to borrow from other sources and at "stress

Senator Couzens of Michigan broke in at one point with the assertion that it was folly for a board of "nonexperts in railroad affairs" to pass judgment on loans to railroads; and praised the success of the transportation act of 1920 with its revolving fund of $300,000,000 administered by "railroad experts." He intimated that he will seek to revive a part of that act of 1920.

SENATOR GERALD NYE of North Dakota, on behalf of his committee on campaign expenditures, reported to the senate that Bishop James Cannon, DISPATCHES from Paris stated that France was on the point of signing two important trade treaties. One is with Germany and provides that that country shall supply France with all the nitrates she needs for the next nine months. The other is with Russia and in it France pledges herself never to join any movement to boycott any class of Russian goods or refuse to supply the Soviets with any materials they may need. France's stock of nitrates, an essential for the manufacture of war munitions, is said to be dangerously depleted, and it is held as curious that Germany should undertake to supply the deficiency and, through other provisions of the treaty, to aid in building up the French sitrate industry to int where it will be independent

CHRISTMAS and the succeeding days in the White House were decidedly merry. For the first time since he became President, Mr. Hoover had all his family with him for the yuletide. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., were there and their two little children, Peggy Ann and Herbert III, who is known as Peter, came all the way from California to celebrate the way from California the holiday with their grandparents. Allan Hoover, too, came from Los Angeles where he is employed in a bank. On Wednesday Peggy and Peter were hostess and host at a children's party and the gifts brought by the guests were distributed to needy children. Christmas eve youngsters belonging to the White House secretaries marched with the Presidential family in a candle procession, listened to carols and then received gifts from the Christmas tree. Christmas night children of cabinet members attended a White House dinner with their General Honjo sent a force of 600 infantry and railroad guards northward from Mukden. These troops were instructed to seize the towns of Kangping, Changtu and Fakumen with the object of sweeping out 7,000 Chinese troops who are said to be menacing Japanese lines of communications on both the South Manchuria railway and the line running northwest from Ssupingkai through Chenchiatun and Taonan. Fakumen was taken on Tuesday.

CHINESE internal affairs, mean-while, were in a terrible muss and the country was without a government. Every minister and vice minister resigned, and the nation was without an official to voice a protest against the Japanese aggression. The entire government quit despite an appeal from Gen. Chen Ming-shu, acting head of the executive council, to stay on the job. It was explained that the resignations were due to indications of lack of confidence by the public in its handling of the Manchurian affair.

Texas and Texans

by WILL H. MAYES Austin, Texas "All Texans for All Texas"

Another Year Begins

Texans have every reason to enter hopefully upon the New Year. The lands produced abundantly in 1931, and there is enough food to provide for the needs of all the people until the crop of 1932 can be harvested and marketed. In South Texas much of the fruit and vegetable crops of the old year are still to be gathered and new crops will soon be coming in.

The only trouble seems to be the un willingness of the people to adjust themselves to financial conditions. They have been spending inflated dollars, and it is difficult to realize that products must be sold now on the deflated dollar valuation. It is hard also to pay for purchases made on the high valuations of the past, but is has to be done, and the sooner it is done the better everybody will feel about it.

There is no good to come from com plaining about what has happened. The country has gone through such conditions time and again, always with a favorable reaction. Financiers say that the period of reaction has arrived and that it is up to thepeople to take advantage of it.

Country Property Selling

The most noticeable recent change in living conditions is shown in the increased sales of surburban and rural property. Near every city and town in Texas there is an unusual demand for small acreage, from five to ten acres, where fruits and vegetables may be grown, cows, chickens, and turkeys kept, and where the family may assist in making a living while its head is attending to business in town. With good roads, motor cars, consolidated schools and other modern advantages of rural life, there is little excuse for working people to mass themselves closely in any city, and every reason for getting out into the open spaces and leading the independ ent lives of the country. A San Antonio real estate agent, who has been in the business for 30 years, says he has never before seen such a demand for small tracts of land near the city.

Brag A Little

pite their reputation for bravado, the early cattlemen and cowboys of Texas were an exceptionally modest people, little given to boasting. Texans have largely inherited that characteristic and are too modest in letting the the rest of the world by cutting the world know about the advantages of our State. Few Texans ever tell of the millions of bushels of wheat we grow and supply northern mills to make flour to sell back to Texas; of the vast crops of rice superior to that of Japan; of the honey made from native flowers that give it flavors unexcelled; of the delicious melons and cantaloupes that are demanded by the leading markets of the nation; of the grapefruit that commands a premium all over the world where choicest fruits are sought; of the Elberta peaches that have no rivals anywhere; of the hundreds of other products of orchard, garden, field and mine that bring wealth to land owners, producers manufacturers and the public generally; and above all of the finest year round climate to be found in the wirld Let's talk Texas more in 1932.

This Is Texas

E. B. Neiswanger of the Central Power and Light Company, also a director of Progressive Texans, Inc., briefly sums up the Texas agricultural exhibit of 1931, as follows: 30,000 cars of vegetables; 4,500 cars of spinach; 5,000 cars of citrus fruits; 3,500 cars of onions; 150,000 million bushels of grain (a new record) 1,-212,000 acres of feed crops and sorghum (the largest in our history); large, unestimated crop of melons and fruits; 120,000,000 bushels of corn (the largest in our history); 5,300,000 bushels Irish potatoes; 5,000,000 bu. sweet potatoes; 9,000,000 bags rice; 1,000,000 hogs worth $20,000,000. He does not include the pecans, the berries, and the cabbage, the milk, butter. chickens, eggs, turkeys, wool, mohair, cattle, sheep, goats and numerous other products of farm and ranch. In fact when one starts to "talking Texas," the task gets so big that even one of Neiswanger's gift of speech finds his language unable to do it

Reduced Hotel Charges

Texas hotels need to learn a lesson European countries seeking tourist you will find: patronage. Rate in these countries have been greatly reduced in keeping with the reduced prices of living in the homes of those countries, although the investments in the modern hostelries were made when prices were at their peak. Texas is now trying to attract more United States tourists than ever before and will put forth unusual efforts along that line until at least after the Centennial year of 1936. To get this business, though, those seeking tourist trade must forget largely their initial expenditures and lower the rates to conform to prevailing prices elsewhere.

Davis Mountain Parks

There is no reason why the Davis mountain section of West Texas, when its roads are built, should not get as many tourists each season as now go to Colorado. The new roads will be better than those in other mountainous countries-wider and safer. The State parks which line the roads will be better improved and equipped with hotels, camps and playgrounds. The section is full of natural wondersdeep canyons, groups of many-colored rock s of grotesque and fantastic shapes, giant forests turned to stone, legends of lost gold mines and treasures, relics of a vanished civilization everything to please those in search Texas needs more of the California of adventure, rest, recuperation, scenand Florida spirit of bragging. #### "DIXIE"

Whenever the stirring tune of "Dixie" is played, particularly in the South, it is received with hearty applause. Thus, do Southerners pay tribute, unconsciously as a rule, to an Ohio Yankee, for "Dixie" was composed by Daniel Decatur Emmett, born in Mount Vernon, Ohio, in 1818. Emmett, like that other writer of southern songs, Stephen Foster, never | * lived in the South.

Emmet was one of the organizers of the first negro minstrel company to tour the country, formed in 1842, when it opened in Chatham Square Theater, New York. He was afterward associated with Dan Bryant, and in 1865 he formed his own company. He retired in 1878 and died in 1904 at the age of 89.

The song "Dixie" was written in 1859 and instantly became popular. The South adopted it and now after 72 years it stirs its hearers with undiminished enthusiasm.

Ln 1927 a tablet to Emmet's memory was unveiled in the church yard of the Calvery Episcopel church at Fletcher, N. C., the first memorial erected to him in the South, marking activities out of their usual stride. another link in the chain which binds the reunited country.

Another European conference will be held next month, and its recommenda tions may point the way to a solution of the world's financial troubles. A majority of voters in this country is felt to be against cancellation and the issue may become an important one in the coming Presidental campaign.

Recent developments began to make Newton D. Baker. President Wilson's War Secretary, appear as an important figure in the coming campaign. Baker has come out in the open and shown that he is not averse to being the Democratic candidate if the party as a whole demands him. He has declared that he is willing to be either a standard bearer or a private in the ranks in the campaign. While Governor Roosevelt is still the leading candidate, yet he may be beaten in the convention.

A lot of curiosity still exists as to whether former Governor Smith will back Roosevelt. While Smith is considered unlikely to make the race again himself, yet his voice is still the loudest in the counsils of his party and any man he opposes is unlikely to be nominated, although it is questionable is he is powerful enough to name his own choice.

If Baker is named and elected, he will be the fourth oldest man to be made President. Baker will be 61 when the next President is sworn in. Only William Henry Harrison, 68, James Buchanan, 65, and Zachary Taylor, 64, were older men. John Adams and Andrew Jackson were Baker's age when the were inducted into office. Baker is still considered as a young man in these days, while their election.

Japan Succeeds in Pushing China Out of Manchuria-Plans for Unemployment Relief and Government Economy.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

JAPAN, ignoring the orders of the League of Nations and resentfully disregarding the notes from the United States and other powers, is apparently to have her own way in Manchuria. Conveniently dubbing all opposing forces "ban dits," she sent her armies forward from Mukden during the week in an advance that was destined to reach Chinchow. Resistance was met at various points but was overcome with armored trains, nomb-Gen. Ma Chan ing planes and artiland the Chinese steadily fell

Finally Marshal Chang Hsuch-liang decided it was better to give the Japanese no further excuse for carrying the warfare late North China, so he ordered all his forces to withdraw within the Great Wall, and this movement was begun immediately, accompanied by much confusion and the flight of the panic-stricken civilian population of the region. Thus the Japanese gained complete control of Manchuria and the gallant fight put up by General Ma Chan and by the troops directly under command of Marshal Chang has been in vain.

In Nanking the new coalition government was organized and a new cabinet appointed with Eugene Chen, leader of the Canton faction as minister of foreign affairs. It was thought that Chen might be able to negotiate a settlement with Japan on the basis of guarantees for fulfillment of treaties in exchange for military withdrawal of the Japa-

M OSCOW charges that Czecho-slovakia has been plotting to provoke war between Russia and Japan, presumably to promote the sale of war munitions. The story was that a Czech diplomat had tried to instigate the assassination of Koki Hirota, Japanese ambassador to Moscow, and the man accused turned out to be Carl Wanek, secretary of the Czech diplomatic mission to Moscow. The government at Prague recalled Wanek but scouted the allegation that the mission itself was involved in any plot.

Wanek has a reputation as a specialist in military affairs in several large European countries, and counts among his associates the military attaches of several allied capitals.

MAHATMA GANDHI, returning to Bombay from the round table conference in London, told a vast throng of his followers that he would not flinch from sacrificing the lives of a million people as the price of liberty for India, and he warned them that in the coming conflict with the British they might have to face bullets instead of staves. His utterances plainly indicated that he is about ready to abandon his policy of passive resistance. Gandhi "If the fight is inevitable, I will expect every son and daughter of Mother India to contribute his mite," he said. "However, I will not abandon attempts to save the nation from a flery ordeal. If, on the other hand, there is no single ray of hope I shall not hesitate to call upon you to bear any amount of suffering."

He counseled his followers to keep their heads, despite the bloody events in the northwest frontier province, the arrest of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehur and deportation of Abdul Graffur Khan, leader of the "red-shirt" tribes-

Waste and extravagance in the federal government must be reduced, in the opinion of President Hoover, and many others as well, and it was announced at the White House that the President was preparing a special message to congress recommending the consolidation of departments and bureaus. He wants imme diate legislative action providing for grouping all construction activities of the government under one administrative head and the transfer of the shipping board and all federal merchant marine activities to the Department of Commerce. According to a statement issued by the President, the purpose of the consolidations is to cut the cost of federal government, curtail the growth of independent bureaus, eliminate overlapping and promote efficiency. While refusing to set a definite figure indicating the savings which would fellow the consolidations, Mr. Hoover said the grouping last year of all veterans' ac-tivities under the veterans' administration is expected to save from $10, 000,000 to $15,000,000

Chairman Cochran of the house exenditures committee, which will handle the consolidation legislation, is in accord with most of the Chief Execu-'ve's recommendations.

DURING the holiday recess a senate committee considered two bills that call for the appropriation of federal funds to care for the unemployed, and heard testimony and arguments from social workers from Chicago, New York and other cities. One of the measures, introduced by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, provides for the apprepriation of $250. 000,000. The other, fathered by Senator Costigan of Colorado, puts the amount at $375,000,000, Mr. Costigan told the committee that nothing short of government help could provide necessary relief for the unemployed. Some of the witnesses heard estimated that as much as $700,000,000 would be needed for relief during 1932 and that the funds from state, city and private sources would not be sufficient to carry the load through the winter.

President Hoover is now, as always, opposed to a direct appropriation from the treasury for unemployment relief purposes, holding that it would be in the nature of a dole and would be a dangerous precedent.

WETS in the house of representatives, it now appears, are to obtain only one vote on prohibition in this session. They may have their choice of whether this shall be on a referendum proposal for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment or on a measure calling for modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer.

Representative Rainey of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, said the judiciary committee would not report favorably on either measure. "The wets will have to bring the bill to the floor through the petition of 145 memhe said. "That is the only way in which they can do it. They will have but one vote and that either on a referendum or light wines and beer. They can't have both. The rules of the house will be so inter-

He said he felt the referendum had the better chance for "getting by" because many drys, himself included, would vote for it.

The creditor powers would undertake to concede to Germany an inpartial re-examination of her capacity to pay reparations toward the close of the moratorium period.

On this side of the water Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee comes forward with a call for international action to lower tariff barriers as the first step in solving the debt problem. The former chairman of the Democratic national committee says payments can be made only through the restoration of healthy international trade, that tariff walls have strangled trade and that it is "fatuous" to insist on debt payments and at the same time have world commerce hampered. The enator, who is a member of the Democratic policy committee in congress, says he purposes to offer a resolution looking toward a tariff conference of SENATOR CAREY of Wyoming, Republican, and his subcommittee on banking amended the house bill to increase the capital'ation of the federal land banks by adding the sum of $25,-000,000 to be used in granting postponements on farm mortgage payments. This additional sum is to be repaid to the federal treasury by the banks when their need for the money has passed. Senator Carey believes the amendment will permit a moratorium and, at the same time, avoid weakening the banks. A favorable report on the measure with the amendment was decided upon by the committee.

Acting under a resolution by Seaator Glass to "make a complete sur vey of the national and federal reserv banking systems," the subcommittee is expected to bring in a bill to revise those systems in some particulars.

PRESIDENT HOOVER announced the appointment of the fourth member of the American delegation to the disarmament conference at Geneva. the man selected being Norman II. Davis of New York, who was under secretary of state in the Wilson ad ministration and chief financial adviser to the American delegation in the negotiations that resulted in the treaty of Versailles.

Later in the week the remaining del egate was appointed, he being Hugh Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, a veteran in such negotiations. As alternate in case any delegate cannot serve, Hugh Wilson, minister to Switzerland was named.

Arthur Henderson, former foreign secretary in the Labor government of Great Britain, told correspondents in Paris that he expects to preside over the arms conference, although he no longer is in office.

MEMBERS of the "progressive" group in the senate are again talking about a third party in the campaign of 1932, and are said to be considering three possible candidates-as suming, as they do, that President Hoover will be re-nominated by the Republican convention, and also assuming that the Democrats do not select a candidate to the liking of the group. The three the independents are talking about are Senator Borah of Idaho; Senator Hiram Johnson of Cal ifornia, who is sometimes too "regular" to suit a few of them, and Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania. whose lightning rod is always up. Senator Norris of Nebraska will not let his name be considered.

The Republican independents, it is believed, would be satisfied with Franklin D. Roosevelt as the Democratic nominee, but his selection is no more certain now than it has been for months. Newton D. Baker announced in Cleveland that he would not be a delegate to the Democratic convention but neglected to say whether or not he would accept the nomination if it were offered him. Both he and Roosevelt were declared "available candidates" by Josephus Daniels in a statement given out in New York. There was a recrudescence of the story that Alfred E. Smith would again ask for the honor of leading his party, and a spokesman for "Alfalfa Bill" Murray. spectacular governor of Oklahoma, said that gentleman might be a candidate. R AILROADS west of the Mississippl were granted authority by the interstate commerce commission to put recently authorized freight rate increases into effect on one-day notice. The increase order allowed five days for giving notice, instead of the customary thirty days.

The Southern Pacific Railroad company and its employees' organization reached a harmonious agreement on the wage reduction problem when 15,-000 shop employees accepted a 10 per cent cut in pay. The company notified the maintenance of way men that their wages would be reduced 15 per cent in thirty days.

There was a general expectation that the railway labor unions would accept a 10 per cent wage reduction effective about the middle of January as the result of conferences in Chicago and Cleveland, and that the Canadian unions would adopt the decision of the American unions.

Agree on Troop Shipments.

As a result of these discussions we reached an agreement which provided for the shipment in May by British and American tonnage of the infantry, machine gun, engineer and signal treops, together with the various unit headquarters, of six divisions for training with the British army. It was provided that any shipping in excess of the amount required for this number of troops should be utilized to transport the artillery of these divisions; also that such personnel as might be required to build up corps organizations should then follow, it being understood that the artillery regiments would train with the French and join their proper divisions when this was completed.

To meet any emergency that might require an excess of infantry after the completion of this program, it was agreed that all the American and British shipping available for the transportation of troops was to be used under such arrangement as would insure immediate aid to the allies, and thereafter as far as possible provide other units necessary to complete the organization of our divisions and corns.

It was further agreed that the combatant troops mentioned in connection with May shipments should be followed by such services of supply and other contingents as we ourselves might consider necessary, the shipment of a large number of these troops should be utilized at my discretion, except that the six divisions which the British were to transport would be trained with them.

Washington Makes Concession.

Reaching Chaumont, I found that a cablegram dated April 26 had been received, transmitting a memorandum dated April 19, that had been sent by direction of the President to the British ambassador at Washington in conformity with his approval of note No. 18. In this memorandum the shipment of 120,000 infantry and machine-gun units per month for four months was conceded, with the understanding that their assignment for training and use should be left to my discretion.

It went on to say that the United States, until the situation changed, had no intention of departing from as full compliance with the recommendation of the permanent military representations as the nature of the representatives as the nature of the case would permit.

This was the first official information I had received that the administration had agreed to send any specific tion I had received that the administration had agreed to send any specific numbers of infantry and machine-gun units to France.

Lord Reading's Influence.

This concession went further than it was necessary to go and much further than I had expected. Realizing the complications that might arise from commitments so far in the future and the delay in forming an American army that would follow, I did not in later discussions at the supreme war council with all that the allies now felt justified in demanding. I was opposed to the action of the supreme war council in assuming the power under any circumstances to dispose of American troops. It was not in any sense a prerogative of the supreme war council.

There can be little doubt that Lord Reading received the distinct impression from President Wilson that infantry and machine-gun units would be sent to France at the rate of 120,000 men per month for four months, beginning with April. That the President agreed to this "in principle" is practically certain. It need not be further emphasized that such a concession, even though prompted by the most generous impulse, could only add to the difficulties of our task of building up an army of our own.

It is probable that Lord Reading, skilled advocate that he was, did more while ambassador at Washington to influence the administration to grant allied requests than any other individual.

CHAPTER XXXVII

I left London April 25, 1918, and crossed to France in a British destroyer. Colonel Mott was at Boulogne with a request for me from General Foch to come to Sarcus. I learned then that the Twenty-second division, at Seicheprey, had repulsed a severe trench raid on the night of April 20-21, and had suffered considerable loss.

Arriving at General Foch's headquarters I found Generals Bliss, Harbord and Weygand already there, and after dinner we entered into a general discussion about American troop shipments. The conversation ran as follows:

Foch—On March 28 you came to offer the services of American troops. I have a vivid recollection of the occasion. As to the American divisions, in what order do you think they should be employed?

Pershing—The order would be the Twenty-sixth, Forty-second, Second. (The First had already been sent to an active front near Amiens.) The regiments of the Thirty-second will be ready by May 1.

Foch—I do not think they can be used before May 5, but the more we put into the line the better it will be. Your Seventy-seventh division has arrived, I see. What about the Third and Fifth?

Pershing—The infantry of the Third has arrived, and that of the Fifth will soon follow.

Pershing Stands Firm.

Foch—What we need now is infantry, especially the British, on account of the present crisis. That is why the supreme war council at Versailles recommended that all tonnage be devoted to that purpose for the time being. I hope that America may send over as much infantry as possible during the next three months. The other arms to complete your divisions can come afterward. What do you think of that plan?

Pershing—I cannot commit myself to such a proposition. If nothing but infantry and machine gunners are brought over, to the total of 360,000, it will be October or November before the artillery and auxiliary troops could arrive, and we could not foresee the formation of an American army until next spring.

Foch—I think your calculation is rather pessimistic, for we could begin bringing your other troops in August, but without considering that point we can furnish you with artillery and its personnel and you can have your divisions reconstituted beginning with October. What would you propose in this connection?

Pershing—I think we should limit the transportation of infantry to May, and that the artillery and auxiliary troops should come in June. They should not arrive more than a month later than the infantry. Under what conditions would you employ the American infantry units?

Foch Dodges Final Decision.

Foch—A final decision cannot be made on that subject. That will evidently depend upon the degree of instruction of the units. In the crisis that actually confronts the allied armies it is effectives that we lack. The method of employing these units is a question to be handled in due course and according to their effi-

Pershing—I would like to have the conditions under which these units are to be employed determined now, and to fix the time during which the regiments and brigades will be used

Foch-Make your proposition on that subject.

I then explained the details of the system that was being followed where our divisions were in training with the French and the plan agreed upon with the British. I added that it was fully understood that if an emergency should arise while our troops were in training they would go into battle as part of the divisions with which they were serving.

Pershing Refuses to Consent. General Foch then said:

he Red Gross Was on the Jo

the method, but in the crisis through which we are passing I return to the decision of the supreme 'war council, and I ask you to transport during May, June and July only infantry and machine-gun units. Will you cousent?"

Pershing—No. 1 do not consent. I propose for one month to ship nothing but infantry and machine-gun units, and after that the other arms and service of the rear troops to correspond.

Foch—If you adopt the plan I propose you would have by July 31, 300,-000 more American infantry.

Pershing—You said just now that you would furnish the artillery, and even artillerymen, which would be joined with our infantry to complete our divisions. Then why not consent to transport our artillery personnel along with our infantry?

Foeh—I repeat that it is the infantry of which we have the greatest need at this time. I would like to have General Bliss tell us the considerations which led to the decision taken by the supreme war council at Versailles.

Bliss—The collective note recommended to the United States to send only infantry until the surpeme war council should give instructions to the contrary. The government of the United States, in conformity with this note and with the recommendation of Secretary Baker, consented to this plan. As far as the employment of the units on the front is concerned, the question should be decided by General Pershing according to agreement with the commander in chief to whose army they may be attached.

Foch Fears Disaster.

Pershing—I have been discussing this question of training our units for the last eight months, first with General Petain and then with Marshal Haig. The method agreed upon leads naturally to the formation of constituted American divisions.

General Foch said he wished to see American divisions constituted and an American army formed as large as possible, but the policy he was then advocating would have made it impossible to form an American army without serious delay, if ever. Continuing, he said:

"But do not forget that we are in the midst of a hard battle. If we do not take steps to prevent the disaster which is threatened at present the American army may arrive in France to find the British pushed into the sea and the French driven back behind the Loire, while it tries in vain to organize on lost battle fields over the graves of allied soldiers."

He was assured that it was fully understood that if an emergency should arise while our troops were in training with the British or French they would go into the battle and do their part. I then gave him the numbers to be shipped during May and told him that it had been agreed between the British and ourselves to consider the question for June later. I informed him that the British shipping authorities now thought it would be possible within the next three months to transport to France 750,000 men.

Our Troops Surprised.

With reference to the German attack at Seicheprey on the Twenty-sixth division the night of April 20-21, mentioned at the beginning of this chapter, that point was the focus of a German raid covering a three-kilometer front extending west from the Bois de Remieres. It came during a heavy fog and was a complete surprise to our troops, who were considerably outnumbered. Seicheprey was taken by the enemy, but co-operation was re-established throughout the division and the original front was recaptured on the following day.

In this affair we lost one officer, 80 enlisted men, killed; 11 officers, 176 enlisted men, wounded; 30 officers, 211 enlisted men, gassed, and five officers, 182 enlisted men, missing and pris-

The losses of the enemy in killed and wounded were reported as even greater.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

The question of the shipment of American troops, and particularly their allotment to the allied armies, had assumed very great importance in the minds of the allied leaders.

Accordingly a session of the supreme war council was called at Abbeville May 1, 1918, and Premier Clemenceau opened the meeting by referring forthwith to the previous recommendation of the council's military representatives as to the disposition of American troops.

"The military representatives," he began, "expressed the opinion in their joint note No. 18 that only infantry and machine-gun units should be sent to France for the present Since then the agreement between Lord Milner and General Pershing, signed at London April 24, 1918, has intervened. This agreement makes a change.

"It had been understood at Versailles that America would send 120.000 men per month, which the French and English armies would share equally. Under the Milner-Pershing agreement it appears none go to France. The French have not been consulted. We might suppose that in compensation the American troops arriving in June would be given to France. But it now appears they are also to join the British. I wish to protest that this is not satisfactory.

"I am not discussing the figure of 120,000 men; I am prepared to accept that these men go to the British in May. I am asking to receive the same number of troops in June. There are close to 400,000 Americans in France at present, but only five divisions, or about 125,000 men, can be considered factory proportion."

Milner Defends Agreement,
Lord Milner arose, much incensed at M. Clemenceau's statement, which he considered quite unjust.

"M. Clemenceau has intimated." he asserted, "that there was something mysterious about the London agreement. I believe that an explanation is necessary. He appears to believe that the agreement we signed is a reversal of the supreme war council's decision. I know only of a joint note embodying the recommendations of the military representatives, but it is of no value without the approval of the governments.

"Besides, M. Clemenceau seems to be under the impression that half of the American troops were to go to France and the other half to England. I do not recollect any such decision. All that General Pershing and I have urged is that infantry and machine gunners should be sent to France. We had no intention of depriving France of any American troops. I do not know that anything has been said regarding their allotment on arrival in France. We simply wanted to hasten their coming."

Pershing Uphoids Independence.

"In making the agreement with Lord Milner," I interposed, "I had in mind bringing troops as rapidly as possible to meet the existing situation. Lord Milner is quite correct in stating that there was no agreement as to the allocation of American troops either to the British or French armies. There is no agreement between my government and anybody else that a single American soldier shall be sent to either the British or French.

"There is in existence an agreement between Mr. Lloyd George and myself that six divisions should be brought to France. M. Clemenceau will remember that I spoke to him about going to London to arrange for the shipment of American troops to France and that he approved because it would expedite their arrival. I also spoke to General Petain about it."

M. Clemenceau remembered my speaking of it, but disregarding his previous approval continued his objections, saying:

"We have been informed that nothing had been decided on at Versailles, but something has been decided on at London, and France was closely concerned in this. It was decided that six divisions should go to the British. Well, I will not argue about that. You announce to us artillery for the month of June.

"Where four are in alliance, two of them cannot act independently. Nothing has been provided for France in June.

"The appointment of General Foch as commander in chief is not a mere decoration. This post involves grave responsibilities; he must meet the present situation; he must provide for the future.

"I accept what has been done for May, but I want to knew what is intended for June."

M. Clemenceau said the French had not received certain specialists they had asked for, and also quoted from the conversation I had held with General Foch with reference to sending over troops in May and June.

British Losses Heavy.

Mr. Lloyd George then said:
"I am of M. Clemenceau's opinion.
The interests of the allies are identical; we must not lose sight of that, otherwise the unity of command has no meaning. We must consider what is best for the common cause.

"What is the situation today? The British army has had heavy fighting and has suffered heavy losses. All available drafts have been sent to France and we shall send all who are available in May and June. This would be the case even if all the Americans who arrive in Europe during these months should be assigned to the British army.

"At present certain British divisions have been so severely handled that they cannot be reconstituted. General Foch will remember the number."

"Yes, ten," Foch answered.

"As we cannot again put them in line," Mr. Lloyd George continued, "they must be replaced by new units. The Germans are now fighting with the object of using up our effectives. If they can do this without exhausting their own reserves they will sometime deal us a blow which we shall not be able to parry.

"In the meantime, I suggest that the decision for the allotment of the American troops for June be taken up when that month arrives. In May, in fact, either of our two armies may be hard pressed. That is the one which should be re-enforced. It is not desirable now to decide how troops arriving in June should be allotted."

Foch Also Cites France's Need.

To this, Foch replied:
"It is undeniable that the British army is now exhausted; so let it receive immediately re-enforcement in May. But lately the French have had grave losses, notably at Montdidier, and both during the last few days have been fighting shoulder to shoulder. So American aid is now needed almost as much for France as for Great Britain. Above this question of aid to the French or to the British is aid to the allies.

"We are agreed that the American army is to re-enforce the British army at once; in June we, too, shall need infantry and machine-gun units. So let us make the agreement for June at once by saying: the same shipment of infantry and machine guns as for May. If there is tonnage available we shall devote it, after that to the elements necessary for ning by the american divinions. I am sure that General Pershing, with his generosity and his breadth of view, will grant the fairness of this view and will extend for June the agreement decided upon for May."

Whereupon Mr. Lloyd George gave support to the principle, saying that British recruits would not be available until August and he understood it was the same for France, when both would be able to furnish their own recruits. He then asked that the May program be extended over June, in which M. Clemenceau joined.

Pershing Insists on Own Army. In reply, I said:

"I do not suppose that we are to understand that the American army is to be entirely at the disposal of the French and British commands." M. Clemenceau said that of course this was not the intention. Continuing, I said:

"Speaking for my government and myself, I must insist upon our intention to have our own army. The principle of unity of command must prevail in our army. It must be complete under its own command. I should like to have a date fixed when should like to have a date fixed when this will be realized. I should like to make it clear that all American troops are not to be with the British, as there are five divisions with the French now and there will be two more in a short time.

"As to the extension of the May agreement to June I am not prepared to accept it. The troops arriving in June will not be available for the front before the end of July or the middle of August. So we have the whole month of May ahead before deciding whether an emergency is likely to arise in June. I have explained to Lord Milner and General-Foch why I do not wish to commit the American army so long in advance. If need be, I shall recommend the extension into June. I can see no reason for it now."

CHAPTER XXXIX

"I am commander in chief of the allied armies in France," said General Foch, "and my appointment has been sanctioned by the signature not only of the British and French governments but also by the President of the United States. Hence, I believe myself in a position to insist.

"There is a program signed by Lord Milner and General Pershing at London. I ask to be made a party to this arrangement, since America has given me the strategic direction of the war, or else I have no reason for holding the position.

ing the position.

"So I ask that an agreement be made this evening among Lord Milner, General Pershing and myself, extending to June what has been decided on for May.

"I cannot forget the responsibilities weighing on me, because of the fact that the allied governments have intrusted to me the direction of operations in France."

Of course all present knew that no authority to dictate regarding such matters had been conferred upon him and his remarks only showed that the allies were ready to go to almost any length to carry their point.

Clemenceau Makes Pies.

Premier Clemenceau then said he agreed with General Foch and favored an American army, but that the Germans were at Villers-Bretonneux, and if the lines were broken there the enemy might quickly arrive under the walls of Paris, and liaison between the allied armies might have to be established on the Loire, or if the lines were pierced at Hazebrouck the enemy could reach the sea.

"What is important for the morale of our soldiers," he said, "is not to tell them that the American soldiers are arriving but to show them that they have arrived." In my opinion the plan proposed was entirely unsound, and I thought that the best and quickest way to help the allies would be to build up an American army. Moreover, the implied presumption that the council might dictate to us either as a council or through the allied commander in chief in the arbitrary manner indicated set me more firmly than ever against American units serving in allied armies. The day's discussion made it quite clear that both allies intended to get commitment to the proposed schedule as far into the future as possible.

Saw Pershing Opposing Wilson.
A telegram sent by the British secretary of state for foreign affairs
April 8, 1918, to Lord Reading, British ambassador at Washington, said:

"It is evident from the brief account of the conversation that General Pershing's views are absolutely inconsistent with the brond policy which we believe the President has accepted. The main difference, of course, is that we interpret it as meaning that 480,000 infantry and machine guns are to be brigaded with French and British troops in the course of four months. General Pershing admits no such obligation and does not conceal the fact that he disapproves of the policy.

"A second and minor difference to that, while the British government quite agrees as to the propriety of ultimately withdrawing American troops brigaded with the French and British so as to form an American army, they do not think this process could or ought to be attempted until the end of the season for active operations this year draws to its close, say, in October or November.

"I am unwilling to embarrass the President, who has shown such a firm grasp of the situation, with criticisms of his officers. But the difference of opinion is so fundamental and touches so nearly the issues of the whole war that we are bound to have the matter cleared up."
