FOURTEEN PAGES COMBEST SAYS Clinton Took Credit For GOP Legislation

FRIDAY, JANUARY 30, 1998

"President Clinton took credit for many of the Republican-sponsored programs in his State of the Union address Tuesday, some of which earned him the polite applause of members of congress."

So said Larry Combest (R-Lubbock) in a teleconference Wednesday morning with some of the publishers in his district. Bovina Blade/Friona Star publisher Bill Ellis took part.

"He basically took the Republican agenda for the past few years and bragged on it," Combest stated. "He (Clinton) battled us tooth and nail against many facets of the balanced budget bill, welfare reform and IRS reform. But Tuesday night he took credit for every one of these, as if they were his ideas," the area congressman said.

After ranking first in the region, she was selected first in an audition that included the top performers from the regions surrounding Amarillo, Lubbock, Odessa and El Paso.

Carrie has one more audition and it will determine her chair in the All-State Band. She will be traveling to San Antonio on February 11-14, 1998.

"I am very proud of the work Carrie did in order to be awarded a chair in the All-State Band," said band director Zane Polson. She worked extremely hard to learn the music and developed an enhanced sense of confidence to be so successful in the audition process."

Polson continued, "She has accomplished this now for two years in a row. This is a great compliment to her efforts and the encouragement she has received from her parents. She deserves a great deal of recognition for the accomplishment."

"I would invite anyone who loves music to come see and hear the performance of Carrie and the wonderful group of student musicians on Saturday, February 14, at the Scottish Rite Auditorium in San Antonio. I know I will be there," Polson concluded.

Those who have followed Clinton's moves as president are all too familiar with this trait of his.

The congressman did not initiate any reference to Clinton's current sex scandal. saying that at the present time it was not his place to be concerned. But he did politely answer questions by the publishers on the subject. (See related story).

"He made an excellent speech. I've always been impressed with his speechmaking ability. It's just that I hated to see him taking credit for our (the GOP leaders) work," Combest said.

The president mentioned a budget surplus which money he would like to apply to other programs.

"If you add up all of the programs he proposed last night, there will be no surplus to worry about. I would much rather see this money returned to the taxpayers in the form of tax reduction," the lawmaker said.

Any new programs the president might get passed will turn out to be "money pits" for taxpayers an arm and a leg to fund for years to come, he explained. Challenging Clinton's assertions, Combest said about the following:

Since being challenged on this, I've been checking with some experts and doing further research on the subject. The final authority turns out to be Harvard Professor, Dr. Stephen Jay Gould who has written a book entitled "Questioning the Millennium: A Rationalist's Guide To A Precisely Arbitrary Countdown."

Dr. Gould points out that the calendar is strictly a human invention. Of course, keeping track of things by days, has to do with the revolution of the earth; months have to do with the cycles of the moon; and the year with earth's orbit around the sun. But these natural cycles are not an even multiple of each $1.00 each for 4x6s. other, so it is difficult to set up a simple calendar with a precise number of days. The Roman calendar, which our current calendar grew out of, has gone through many changes over the centuries. It started out with ten months and 360 days. Then Julius Ceaser added two months, and changed it to 365.25 days in the year, which requires us to throw in an extra day every four years which we call "leap year." But that was not precisely right either, so then in the 16th century the Roman Catholic Church decreed that in order to keep the calendar correct in the future, we must drop the extra leap year day in the last year of every century that can be divided by 400. This is our Gregorian calendar which was adopted by England and America in 1752 and differed from the Julian calendar by 11 days.

-----A COUPLE OF MONTHS AGO in this column, I discussed the forthcoming millennium. There was some rebuttal regarding my statement that the 20th century will not end on December 31, 1999 but will actually end on

I mentioned all this just to point out that counting the days, years, and centuries gets to be quite complicated and it has never been a precise science.

For instance, we use the birth of Christ as the point from which we count backward and forward in time: like 325 BC, or 1998 AD. But there are problems there, too. We have no historical records to know exactly when Jesus was born. It is well-documented that King Herod died in 4 B.C. because Herod

But Muleshoe outscored the Chiefs 13-4 in the final quarter to pull out the win. Bustos scored 12 and Matthew Mata had ten.

At Dalhart, the JVs had a 15-point first quarter, and it was close at 19-15. Mata had three baskets, one good for three points, and Bustos added two.

However, the Wolves got better as the game went along, and pulled away. Mata led with 11 points, and Tyson Neill scored 10.

Vision Training

Ordinary problems in visual acuity -nearsightedness and farsightedness, for instance -- is easily corrected with prescription glasses. But many youngsters, and adults, too, have vision problems that are muscular in nature. Some see double print or must close one eye to see a single image.

Ideally, these problems should be dealt with as early as possible, before they interfere with reading and other school work. Children don't know how they are supposed to see. Some youngsters compensate for their vision problems by squinting, sitting in the front row and reading only in short sessions. By high school or college, even the brightest children will find it difficult to keep up with reading requirements because their eyes tire easily and cause headaches.

Vision training, initiated by the optometrist and followed up at home, can help to improve eye movements, focusing and coordination.

I was at the Bovina gym this week watching the Mustangs beat Highland Park and a Highland Park fan kept yelling at the referees, "That was just God-awful." He would say it whistle in Bovina's favor.

I don't know where the term "God-awful" came from but I have heard folks say it since I was a boy. Used it a few times myself. I know it means that something is not good if it is "God-awful."

I was reminded that God has been under extraordinary pressure lately, thanks to Karla Faye Tucker and others.

In 1983, she killed two people with a pickax. At the time she was a prostitute, a drug addict, and a murderer. In 1984, a jury said she was guilty and that the State of Texas should kill her.

In the ensuing years, like so many other murderers claim, she found God and was born again. Of course God is about the only thing you can find in those bare death-row cells.

So if we go ahead and kill her, how will God feel then? A lot of powerful people think we shouldn't kill Karla Faye now because of her belief in God and the good she can do from her jail cell in helping others. For whatever reason, Harris County (Houston) authorities went down to the evidence room and hauled out the 14-year-old pickax Karla Faye left imbedded in her female victim's chest. They displayed the nasty looking instrument for the media, perhaps to remind people of what she did. People are rallying to save Karla Faye, in the name of God. Some say God should save her, while others think God should call her home. In Karla Faye's case, seems God is in a pickle.

One article I read said that God will forgive Karla Faye. That means he hasn't vet, but he will sooner or later. Sorry, I don't buy that theory.

My sometimes murky every time the refs blew the religious training says that God has already forgiven.

Not later. Not when he gets ready. Not on a selective basis. He doesn't forgive some and leave out others.

He doesn't kill some and spare others and he didn't help the Broncos win the Super Bowl. God does not dispense cancer to certain people and just give a common cold to someone else.

The problem for us is that in the scheme of things, in God's plan for man, he gave humans the most important yet dangerous gift of all.

It is called choice. God made the rules, gave us a copy, then stepped out of the way. He is the architect, we are the builders.

Whatever choices you make I forgive you in advance, he said. Karla Faye made a choice to whack two people numerous times with a 15-pound pickax and leave it buried in a lady's chest.

Our man-made rules here on earth state that if you do death penalty, or even the threat of prison time, deters crime. Most of us didn't kill anyone even when we did not have the death penalty.

So the case of Karla Faye is just like the abortion issue, or politics, sex, or money. There will never be an answer to the arguments. (During the time I was working on this column, a bomb at an abortion clinic in Birmingham killed someone. exist. Go figure.)

I will offer the theory that whether we kill her or let her live, it is not God's choice. We have the guidance and unfortunately, an earthling has to make the choice.

If we let her off because she finally found God, what do we tell other folks on death row?

Can people change from bad to good? God says yes, but we still don't seem to be sure.

I predict that a few days from now, Karla Faye Tucker will die with a humanitarian needle in her vein. Sometimes it is so hard to forgive.

Well anyway, I guess God is used to stress by now. Some people say that God never gives you more than you can handle which I think is a lot of baloney. If that were true, suicide would not

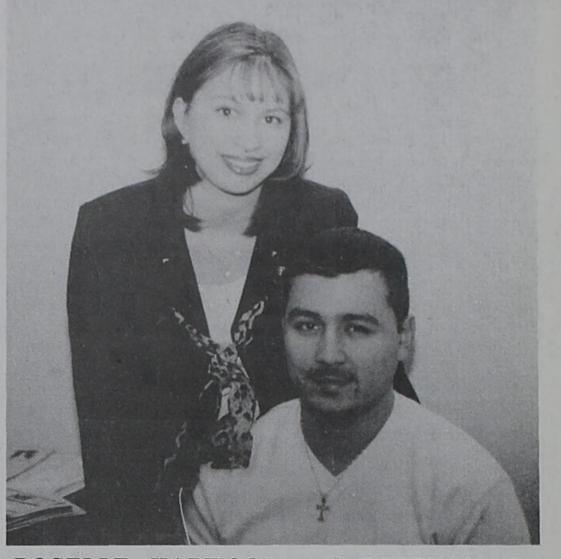

God gets blamed for a lot of things and receives just praise for even more.

Just this week, a clarification came from Washington on the definition of adultery according to the Bible. Many men were very happy.

I have decided that I believe Billy Jeff Clinton. I have decided that everything he has said before and since 1992, including the words "so help me God" in the oath of office, has been true.

He has been picked on and lied about since before he was elected. All the state troopers, all the women, all those Chinese, and all those Republicans have conjured up nasty lies about Billy Jeff and I think it is time to stop.

According to his wife Hill loves everybody and reaches out to people (so what if he grabs a few here and there.) Billy is a good man. I have to believe him because I will never admit that I belong to a society that is so collossally stupid as to elect a liar twice. You've gotta' have faith in something.

ROSELLE HARWOOD and REFEUGIO D. SAIZ, JR....Benita and Jeff Doan of Washington, D.C. announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter to Refeugio D. Saiz, Jr. His parents are Jovita and Daniel Saiz of Friona. The couple will exchange wedding vows Saturday. July 18 at 3 p.m. in St. Teresa's Catholic Church of Friona. Landowners in Parmer County are encouraged to purchase the one-year old seedlings before preferred stock is sold out.

> With a program developed by Texas Farm Bureau, Friona students will learn how the farmer fits into the economy of Texas.

"Agriculture in the Classroom" was developed to teach children where their food and fiber come from. Farm Bureau members have made education a priority because every person in Texas is affected by agriculture.

Kindergarten through fourth grade teachers in the Friona Independent School District will be using materials provided by Farm Bureau to teach lessons on agricultural history, economics, geography, ecology and the future of agriculture as a supplment to their standard curriculums. The series of lessons is designed to teach students about the role agricultural plays in all our lives.

Good luck God. So long, Karla Faye. Keep plugging, Billy Jeff. (Oops! Sorry!)

Combest Defends Intern Program

Congressman Larry Combest told a group of publishers Wednesday that congress, as well as the president, has an intern program. "At the present time, I have two interns, one from Texas Tech and one from West Texas A&M," he said.

"The intern program is great. We have had some very bright youngsters as our interns. The universities choose them for us.

"The gut-wrenching thing about it (the possible scandal hanging over the president) is IF this happened with the intern, I just don't understand how a man of 50, and particularly the president, could do such a thing. It would be reprehensible. The possibility just turns your stomach.

"I cannot believe the people who say that if no laws were broken, then such (an affair) would be okay. I feel that it would definitely NOT be okay, under any circumstances."

"I treat my interns like they were my children, and I think most in congress do likewise."

The congressman said that during the summer months, members of congress may have from six to eight interns.

Quizzed by publisher Bill Ellis about what his reaction would be should the president have to step down in favor of VP Al Gore, Combest said "I feel Gore would be much more difficult to deal with than Clinton. The thing that concerns me about Gore is his blind devotion to environmental controls through the EPA.

"I don't think this congress would implement many of the things Gore would impose. But there are several things along this line that we might be able to change under Clinton that we might not be able to do under Gore," Combest stated.

"If Clinton is able to weather the storm, I feel like Gore will have some Democratic opponents in 2000. If he (Clinton) has to step down and Gore complete the term, then he most likely wouldn't have any Democratic opponents for a new term."

was a major political figure of that time. So we estimate that Jesus was born around 4 B.C. or a little earlier.

We know that the earth is 4.5 billion years old and that man has been on earth for about 200,000 years. However the BC calendar goes back only to 5,000 BC. So you can see that our calendar is not really a very accurate measure of real time.

In the sixth century when the BC/AD system was begun, they started with the year 1 AD, not with a year called 0. There wasn't a zero in Western mathematics in the sixth century, according to Dr. Gould. So if you don't have a year 0, that means our modern recorded time starts with January 1st in the year 1 AD.

Centuries have 100 years, so the year 1800 has to go in with all the 1700s to make up the 18th century; 1900 has to go with all the 1800 years in order to form the 19th century; and the year 2000 has to go with all the 1900 years in order to form the end of the 20th century.

However, most folks probably don't care a fig about any of this mathematical calendar hoo-hah and will just go ahead and celebrate the end of the century on New Year's Eve 1999. Since all of this is pretty arbitrary anyway, it's really no big deal. So just go on and celebrate whenever you feel like it.

And don't be influenced by all the wierdos who will come crawling out of the woodwork in the months just prior to the millennium. Superstitious people will attach a lot of mystical meaning to something that is just another date on a calendar which is probably not even correct. The fact is, on the morning of Jan. 1, 2001 (or 2000 whichever you prefer) you will wake up the same person in the same world that you went to sleep in the night before. The only thing that will have changed is the calendar.
