Medical Radio Service The uses of radio are broadening every day and its latest practical benefits have been demonstrated in the Navy where just a year ago the U. S. Public Health Service announced that it had completed arrangements to expand the medical aid service to American seamen, with which it had first been charged by Congress a century and a quarter ago, by prescribing by radio for any sailor who might be taken ill at sea and who might apply. Messages for aid were forwarded to the Service by the ship's radio via the Radio Corporation of America or the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company.

Radio Club Meeting Again the Radio Club held their regular weekly meeting, attended by but a few, but lots was accomplished at this time. The lights have been fixed in the hall and hereafter any member may use the hall at any time he wishes. The key will be left at a place designated by the club.

The constitution committee reported, and with a few minor changes, the draft was read and accepted. The name of the club was finally decided upon and so the club will be known as the Radio Club of Pecos.

Dues were set, which were to be not in excess of $2.00 per month. At present, by a unanimous vote of the quorum present, the dues were set at $2.00 to cover June and July. They will be due and payable at the next meeting.

It has been decided that during the summer months and because a large number wish to attend the Free Picture Show, the time of the meeting will be changed to 7:00 p. m. This will give all a chance to attend the show. Next meeting night, Tuesday, July 2, at 7 p. m., the club will have a lecture on the use of V. T.'s will crystals as detectors. The reflex circuit will be thoroughly discussed in this connection. Also the club set will be hooked up this night, and the detector tried out. A committee was appointed last meeting to erect the aerial and provide for lightning ground. The main business to come before the club at the next meeting will be the organization of the code class. We want each member of the club to hold an operating license, hence the class. Receiving and transmitting by International Morse, commercial abbreviations, commercial radiograms, and methods of calculating transmitting sets will be taken up in this class.

How about those old magazines, fans? Let's bring them to the next meeting.

Lots of apparatus has been brought to the rooms. A report from the vice president Tuesday states that it looks like a radio store room up there now.

Let's all attend the meeting next Tuesday at 7 o'clock.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 16 Proposing an amendment to Article 8, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, which relates to taxation and revenues, by adding thereto a new section to be known as Section 9a, directing the Legislature to provide for the construction, operation and maintenance, under State control, of a state system of public highways; providing for an election for the ratification or rejection of amendment herein proposed, and making an appropriation to defray the expenses of said election.

LISTEN WORLD!

It is time to stop spending money on dry locations drilling, drilling, drilling at a cost of millions until one well has been drilled where my oil locating magnet shows there is commercial oil.

When I classified the Kosse field "A DISAPPOINTMENT" I knew it would prove to be so. Today they have given up, abandoned the field, and quit but not until millions of dollars had been lost foolishly.

LISTEN WORLD: I have been compelled to let my well stand idle while others are drilling and spending thousands of dollars where there is no commercial oil. BUT WORLD, they are proving my oil locating magnet.

LISTEN WORLD: For the news of more disappointments soon to come true where I have known for months there is no commercial oil. No one is so blind as he who will not see.

Don't Try To Lose Your Natural Simplicity

Adelina Patti's test for a singer was never, as you might suppose, "Can you Trill? Can you imitate a mocking bird?" No, it was "Can you sing a simple ballad in honest, straightforward fashion? Such a ballad as 'Home, Sweet Home'?" That was a fair test.

Simplicity shows quality naked and unadorned. And is only genuine worth that dares challenge its criticism. It takes both courage and the consciousness of value to come before the world with affectation. Our assumption of numberless little airs, poses and prejudices is but the confession and apology for weakness.

The strong are always simple. Simplicity implies strength. The weak hide their defects and their lack with tricks and frills.

The highest attainments in painting and sculpture are not the kaleidoscopic, brightly-colored canvases of battle scenes; not the complex many-turreted statue structures that misguided patriots sometimes erect in memorial of achievement. The greatest picture in the world is a mother and her babe. As the sense of skill grows strong and the eye keen in its perception of beauty, non-essentials, jewelry and drapery, are stripped off and the true artist finds satisfaction in the flowing line and satiny flesh texture of the simple human figure.

In the world of letters, that which lives as poetry is not the half-hearted, labored utterances of a Poet Laureate on some quasi "great" occasion. Rather it is the simple stanza that sang itself out of some more obscure poet's heart that binds us all with living bonds through community of feeling and experience. The great song is never the oratorio but the ballad.

Real worth is always unassuming and natural. High thinking seems automatically to draw unto itself the complement of plain living. Napoleon was always most at ease in the Spartan simplicity of camp on the battle field. To his mind, the grandeur and splendor of his French court were a concession to the limitations of the less great.

Great minds focused as they are on great issues have small patience with the trivialities of custom and convention.

It is only when the building is right, true in conception, strong in foundation, pure in outline, that the architect dares let it stand forth unadorned.

So with human souls. Our poor terms "homeliness" and "humanness" may stand for the truest aristocracy of human character.

Poem by UNCLE JOHN

Most everybody's got 'em, though it's powerful hard to say, whether they are due immediate, or, at furdur distant day. Yet a feller ort to figger, as he chaws his daily bread, —how they meet the gall—or PROSPECKS glory—in the prospects out ahead.

AHEAD There's nothin' more absorbin' to a feller's heart an' mind, than in tryin' to shape his prospects to the sort he'd like to find; and, I couldn't think of nothin' that can fill my soul with dread, like a batch of gloomy prospects which is furdur on, ahead!

I aint ashamed to own it,—that the chief of my delights, is to dream of happy prospects, as I lay awake of nights. . . . And I wake up in the mornin' with my face toward the sky, and the appetite fer battle—mebbe never knowin' why!

While everybody's hopin' fer a better state of things, when they swap these earthly garments fer a pair of heavenly wings.—Yet, they better be particklar in the pathway that they tread, if they'd dodge the fire an' brimstone in the prospects out ahead!

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY for 1923

ONCE a little schoolboy held a rabbit by the ears. And he talked to the rabbit "Three times four" he said. "How much is it?" When the rabbit remained silent he cracked it over the head with a stick and repeated the question. "How much is three times four?" When he was asked why he hit the poor rabbit he said: "Well the feller I bought him off said he would multiply and he wont do nothing of the kind." Apparently both buyer and seller were honest, but they didn't understand. The unfortunate rabbit on the side lines got the worst of it.

Richard Lloyd Jones Says

CULTIVATION CULIVATES YOU

Man benefits more by the process of labor than by the products of labor. Where Nature gives most lavishly man does least for himself and there we find Humanity at its lowest ebb.

The less man cultivates the less he is cultivated. Nature often kills by kindness. It is from the stern, rigorous and naturally unfriendly stretches that we get our hardest and best Humanity.

The arid waste forces the farmer to alertness and energy.

One must be more than farmer to farm a desert. He must be engineer; he must bring water from distant mountain basins and release it on the parched ground. He must master gates and sluices to make the reluctant land yield its inherent richness.

Success comes to him who is bigger than his job. The idle are penalized by weakness. The workers are rewarded with power. For each atom of strength expanded more energy is given.

Resistance produces friction and friction gives the dynamo its driving power. Too much smoothness or lubrication may result in a loss of force.

Your automobile engine is never so likely to "go dead" as when you give it no work to do—let it idle. Necessity is the mother of invention, because need forces action, want compels man to do.

Food too easily found always murtures the sluggish mind and flabby muscle. It takes true greatness of soul to weather too easy a life.

We often hear of a man who can master adversity, but who becomes as puffy under the consoling influence of affluence.

To be forced to fight for food quickens the wit. The smartest dog is not the protected lap pet, but the dog whose wit is whetted by duty to perform.

Slothfulness and waste are always found where Nature is kindest, the soil richest, and competition lacking.

Cultivation is a kindly habit. It is the expression of a mother instinct; the passion for power to create, develop and build. It is the wish to nurture the seeds of good, to bring them the moisture of gentle rain, the warmth of the sun, the protection from being crowded out by the stronger things which are not of service to the better end.

We cultivate that the best possible may be brought forth. And in the beautiful economy of life the benefit is reciprocal.

It is our struggle against the elements that lifts our civilization.

Cultivate anything and you cultivate yourself. Make anything grow and you make yourself grow. Build anything and you build yourself. The man who does the biggest work is always recorded in history as the biggest man.

Cultivation is the process of civilization. Perfection is the product of work.

Poem by UNCLE JOHN

Unless I'm poor at guessin' there ain't a grander blessin' that's sent to cheer this anxious world of ours. . . . When the farmer starts to frettin' and the medder needs a wettin' —the thing that helps the bettin' is the showers. . . . I've saw a heap of weather—takin' years, an'

FOR A years together,—an' I reckon I have et my RAINY DAY sheer of dust,—and I've allers been befriended, when the fervid drouth was ended by a copious an' splendid thunder-gust! And I've never had it fail me, when 'e prickly heat would ail me,—I'd do my level best to not complain, for I know my blessed Master watches o'er His earthly pastur' and will jugulate disaster with a rain. . . . In spite of their devotion, there's some that get the notion, that fortune or misfortune's only luck,—but it's been my observation, there's a mighty close relation between a man's salvation—an' his pluck! An' so, in rainy weather, I never wonder whether we face annihilation by the flood,—but I keep my sperit happy with a rhyme that's nice an' snappy, though my cloze is wet an' flappy with the mud!

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY for 1923

REMEMBER that birthday when there were twelve candles on the cake and the big piece rested on the plate of that wonderful girl whose golden curls were the most beautiful in all the world—and then that birthday, when that girl with nut brown hair glanced shyly as Dad told you you were now a man. And then the birthdays came quickly, until there were no candles on the cake, but just a touch of thoughtfulness and love reflected in the making. Now in the mellow of years we can think of birthdays and their joys just as the mirror of the only birthday—the day we pass into life—into Eternity. Smile as the hour nears.

On the Second Every Second

Human wants are constant and continuous. Food, clothing, shelter, and their infinite subdivisions are daily needs.

There is not a clock tick that does not register a million human desires.

The newspaper is the closest thing in the world to the people's daily wants. It is an expression of the ever-pressing desire for news.

The advertiser who uses the weekly newspaper reaches people with his message at exactly the right moment.

Somewhere, with some person wanting something, newspaper advertising registers every second of the day.

It brings buyers and sellers together because it brings the right message at the right time.

There is no advertising medium so close to the people as the newspaper.
