Miss Roberts had but one misspelled word in her list. Mrs. McComas, Jack Hamner, Leslie Randolph, Mrs. Jo W. Wayland, and Mrs. R. L. Maggard each failed on two words. Mrs. Patrick Connelly showed three errors in her list, and while several others had but three errors, Mrs. Connelly won on neatness and attention to rules.

Many failed in as many as eighteen or twenty words. Those who had ten or less errors, besides the winners, were: Henry Ansley, Amarillo; Ruth Ogden, Olton; Pearl Miller, Floydada; Mrs. A. T. Rev. M. L. Hamilton and sons, Professor E. G. Hamilton and Ewart Hamilton, of Paris, Texas, came to Plainview today in their car. They are en route to Andrews County. Professor Hamilton is with the Peacock Military Academy, in San Antonio. He says Plainview is the prettiest and liveliest town he has seen since leaving Wichita Falls. They find the roads of the South Plains delightful for touring. Incidentally, Plainview's good machine shops were convenient for them, since they have been experiencing car trouble.

WATER RATE HERE IS LOW. Of Texas Towns Reporting, Plainview's Maximum Charge Is Least.

Statistics regarding water rates in various towns of the United States have been compiled by the Municipal Journal, New York. Of the Texas towns reporting, Plainview's maximum rate is the lowest, fifteen cents per thousand gallons. Waxahachie, Longview and Plainview have the same minimum rate, ten cents per thousand. Plainview has the same rate as Greeley and Colorado Springs, Colo., both of which have the gravity system. The highest maximum rate in Texas as shown is fifty cents, this being in force in Dublin and Austin. The next lowest (nearest Plainview's) maximum rate is Austin, twenty cents. In the last-named city water is pumped from the Colorado River lake. Plainview's water supply is from one of the famous shallow wells of the Plainview district.

Democratic Executive Nominee

WOODROW WILSON.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 15.—President Wilson was renominated for the Presidency by the Democratic National Convention at 11:52 tonight by acclamation. The renomination of Vice President Marshall followed immediately.

The convention convened shortly after 9 o'clock, and announcement was made that the session would be held until the nominations were completed, with all other business. Practically all of the vice presidential booms had been killed.

The Coliseum was packed before the convention opened, and firemen took charge of the doors and refused to admit any more persons. W. J. Bryan was among those on the outside, but finally got by. The rules were suspended and a request was made for him to address the convention. A few scattering "noes" were heard. He was introduced as "America's leading Democrat." Bryan said: "You may take all of the administrations from the beginning of the history of this republic and not find as many laws written upon the statute books that were of as great importance to the people as you will find written by Woodrow Wilson, a Democratic President."

He referred to the tariff, the Federal Reserve law, strengthening of anti-trust laws, and other legislation. While he was speaking, word came that there were 200 Democratic leaders marooned on the outside, unable to gain admission. Charles F. Murphy, Tammany leader, struggled for an hour before getting through the lines.

The county has purchased the Halfway school bonds to the amount of $515.25 out of the permanent county school fund, which has been created by the sale of the school lands.

The Commissioners' Court is sitting as a board of equalization this week. The tax assessor has completed his rolls. However, the roll has not yet been tabulated.

James E. Willis, Jr., is now with Chas. Reinken's Satisfaction Store.

Despite the inconveniences of army life, they say the boys all enjoy themselves and are contented. The most disagreeable feature is the sameness of the food. It is out of the question for the army commissary department to furnish much of a variety, but the food is wholesome and healthful.

The Herald's Review of the Movies

The coming week is opened at The Ruby with "The Iron Claw," episode No. 7, "The Hooded Helper." The scrip of paper is again located, in an ash barrel, by an old negro mammy. Golden's wife is relocated in the home of her husband, along with her daughter, Margery, and the parrot, stolen from the chicken coop by a negro, again takes a hand.

"Lathered Truth" is a two-reel Victor number, featuring Rosemary Theby as a manicure girl with social aspiration and Harry C. Myers as a moving-picture director. "The plot is not much," says a reviewer of note, "but the satirical humor is good and the subtleties are clever."

Val Paul, Myrtle Gonzales and Fred Church form a pleasing cast in "The Brink," which the reviewer says presents "no strong drama."

Robert Edeson is ideally cast in the title role and Eleanor Woodruff is a talented and charming heroine in "Big Jim Garrity," a Pathe Gold Rooster in five parts, which appears at The Olympic Monday. Peter Milne, reviewing the picture, says:

"Melodramatic-loving persons will find the fulfillment of their hearts' desires in 'Big Jim Garrity.' It is melodrama pure and simple, with any number of tense situations that show to much better advantage on the screen than they did on the stage."

"Big Jim Garrity" was not overly successful on the stage, but we are quite positive that it will be as a picture. The wildness of the spoken lines is silenced and convincing action takes the place of heated words.

"The great scope of the motion-picture drama has been advantageously adapted to this feature. The mining scenes, for instance, are truly the best that we have ever seen on the celluloid. The mine is the local for the early events of the story, and shortly after the opening we are treated to a big thrill that sends our interest up many degrees."

Tuesday The Ruby presents "The Love Mask," a good Western picture, poorly named, in which is featured Cleo Ridgely, who is a woman prospector, who finds gold after many disappointments and then her claim is jumped by a band of our big, strong men. She calls in the handsome young sheriff (Wallace Reid), but he can do nothing, and so the story goes on. The excellence of the cast and scenes overcomes any fault in the story.

Four titles appear on The Olympic's

COCHRANE, GROUND FLOOR STUDIO.

Tuesday program. "Held for Damages" is an Imp comedy, in which the girl milliner holds up the wealthy father for $500 apiece for his son and his bulldog, both of which played havoc in her shop. "Not a very plausible little comedy, but well photographed and entertaining," is the expression of one who saw the picture.

Francis Ford, Grace Cunard, Harry Mann and Irving Lippner are presented in a split-reel Victor, of recent release, "The Sham Reality."

"The Moth and the Star" is a "Stingaree" episode. It is a very good number. Lois Weber produced and is featured in "The Toll of the Angelus," a one-part Spanish drama.

That the Essanay-Chaplin Comedy on The Olympic's Wednesday program is new is shown by the fact that it was released on May 27. It is one of the last Chaplin pictures to be released by this company. It will be a very difficult audience which is not delighted by this excellent comedy. Charlie Chaplin is given a great opportunity to do those things which he does funniest. Included in the supporting cast are Edna Purviance, Wesley Ruggles, Billy Armstrong, John Rand and Leo White.

"Brigadier Gerard," a five-reel Red Feather, Universal, completes this program. Peter Milne, in "The Motion Picture News," says:

"The story portrays the adventure of Gerard and Countess de Rocquelaure in their efforts to obtain valuable papers for Napoleon, which are in the possession of Telleyrand, the ruler of Paris, who has turned traitor to the Emperor.

"Their path is not an easy one at all, as Telleyrand is a very clever fellow, and the two lovers only win out by a mere mistake when all seems lost.

"The plot, though concerning chiefly the adventures of these two, is absorbing at times. Conan Doyle's stories have been made into a fine scenario, and the climaxes are well reached and fully developed.

"The direction is fully in keeping with the character of the picture. The costuming, the design of the settings, and the business of the players belong strictly to the Napoleonic period, and the illusion is admirably maintained throughout."

Sis Hopkins is coming to The Ruby again Wednesday, in "When Things Go Wrong." There is just enough outline of a story as a peg on which to hang the real business of the play—to create laughter—and it fulfills its mission.

A new comic, Fernandez Perez, and a remarkable gentleman has arrived. He is going to make a place for himself in the top row of knock-about comedians. "Bungle's Rainy Day" is his vehicle.

The "Selig-Tribune" is a news feature. It will be remembered that now the Selig-Tribune has an armored car in Mexico taking movies of current events, but this run is not about Mexico, but about Diki Diki, the dwarf ruler of the Philippine Islands, and other unique and interesting subjects.

The second episode of the "Social Pirates" is also to be shown on this day. This should prove a very popular series. Each episode is complete in itself. This time Mona and Mary set out to teach a conceited man-about-town a lesson. They succeed.

Lesson for Home Economics Clubs Is On Jelly Making

There is another principle involved in jelly making in addition to the principle of preservation. Fruit contains a substance known as pectose, one of the carbohydrates, that partially solidifies the fruit juice when the water in the juice is partially evaporated. The addition of sugar helps in this process, but no amount of sugar will set the jelly if the pectose is not present. Some fruits have more than others, and also more when not over ripe.

There is another step in this process, the straining out of the juice from the pulp. For this, prepare a jelly bag from firm cotton cloth which has been boiled and washed. This bag must be hung in such a way that the juice drops from the point of the bag into a bowl below. It may be hung upon a stick between two chairs, or upon the rod of a strong towel rack over a table. Always use a glass or stone bowl for the purpose of receiving the strained juices. Never use tin. An enameled bucket or vessel of course will do quite as well as a stone bowl.

Select tart, red-skinned apples, cut them in small pieces with the skins on. Keep the cores, and put them in a kettle with cold water to barely cover. When thoroughly cooked and mashed, put this pulp into the jelly bag and allow the juice to drip as long as it will. Do not squeeze the bag, nor stir the pulp, if you wish clear jelly. This dripping process is a matter of hours, and in the home kitchen may continue all night. Allow a pint of sugar to a pint of juice. Return the juice to the kettle, and allow it to simmer for twenty-five minutes or half an hour, skimming when necessary. In the meantime, heat the sugar, being careful not to melt or burn it. Stir the sugar gently into the juice and boil five minutes. Test a little upon a saucer. It should show signs of jellying as it cools. Boil longer, if necessary. Finish as directed. Jelly often does not set until twenty-four hours' standing.

Here is a suggestion for my girls. Try this and see how nice it really is. Save the juice from canned fruits, strain, add sugar to it, boil for a short time and see what delicious jelly you will have. MRS. J. L. LANDRUM.

FAMOUS AUTO DRIVER IS SERVICE DEPARTMENT HEAD.

George Schuster, known among automobile drivers as "Around-the-World Schuster," as the result of his winning the great New York to Paris race a few years ago, is back in harness again. Mr. Schuster has just joined the Henshaw Motor Co., of Boston, Dodge Brothers' dealer, as general superintendent of the service division.

While Mr. Schuster is one of the most experienced mechanical men in the automobile trade, the public persists in remembering him for his exploits as a road driver.

The New York to Paris race, which Mr. Schuster won with 26 days' margin over his nearest competitor, was one of the most remarkable contests in automobile history. The trophy was offered by a Paris and a New York newspaper jointly for an international contest. American, French, German and Italian cars were entered, and when they started from Times Square, New York, it is estimated that 150,000 people gathered to see them off. The course was across the United States, thence to Alaska, but Schuster's car was the only one that attempted the Alaskan trip, the others being deterred by the almost entire absence of roads. Then the cars were taken across the Pacific to Japan, thence to Siberia.

All sorts of hardships for the men and cars were encountered in crossing Siberia and Russia, and Schuster and his companions were frequently hungry and thirsty and overcome with fatigue, while the car in the midst of wildernesses had to ford wide rivers, climb mountains and overcome obstacles, succeeding only through the staunchness of the car and the ingenuity of the crew. The Schuster car arrived in Paris, however, after being 170 days on the way. It covered 13, 341 miles on land and was transported 8,659 miles by water. Upon their return to New York, Mr. Schuster and his companions were given a great reception, being received by President Roosevelt, who complimented Schuster on his pluck and daring.

NEWS FILM CAR CAN TRAVEL 800 MILES WITHOUT SUPPLIES.

The Selig-Tribune, the animated news film released twice weekly through General Film Service, recently sent a specially constructed motor car into Mexico. The plans for the war car were prepared by Editor Jack Wheeler, and the car was manufactured by the Thos. B. Jeffrey Co., Kenosha, Wis. This is probably the first occasion where a motor car has been specially built and equipped for war service by a news film service. The Selig-Tribune motor car, which is now in Mexico, carries 75 gallons of gasoline, 15 gallons of water, and 8 gallons of cylinder oil. An especially constructed top of khaki affords shelter during the day and can be adjusted as a sleeping and shelter tent at night. The car also is equipped to carry a camera, tripod, blankets, canned goods, cooking utensils, and there is a rack for machine-gun equipment. In fact, the car has been so constructed that it can make a continuous journey of 800 miles without stopping for either gasoline, water or oil. There is also a bullet-proof body, and, in case of attack, the car can be operated from the interior of the box.

CHEVROLET IN COAST MARK.

R. C. Durant, driving a Chevrolet touring car and carrying three passengers besides the driver, set up a new round-trip record from Los Angeles to the San Diego Exposition and return. Durant cut the time from 8 hours 10 minutes to 7 hours 55 minutes.

WORLD'S FASTEST CAR IS ALSO THE BIGGEST.

The world's biggest and fastest racing car always will be attractive to the motorist, no matter what his personal views may be on practicality and economy. Fiat holds the record for both size and speed, with a 300-horsepower car which was driven by Duray at Ostend, Belgium, at a speed of 142.9 miles an hour. This racing freak has a four-cylinder motor of 7.48 inches by 10.4 inches bore and stroke, giving a piston displacement of 1,828 cubic inches. The car was built to the order of a Russian prince, and was first driven by Nazzaro. The ambition of the prince was to break the world's straightaway record, and with this object in view he sent Arthur Duray and the car to Ostend in November, 1913.

The Italian car was officially timed on several occasions to cover the kilometer at a fraction more than 142 miles an hour. But in order to satisfy the European regulations the run had to be made in both directions within a quarter of an hour. Owing to variable weather conditions—wind from the sea, sand blowing in from the shore, rain, etc.—Duray could never make the two trips within the time allowance. Thus, although his speed was never doubted, his performance never was given official European recognition.

"SHOO THEM OUT"

Make Your Youngsters Live on the Lawn this Summer

The following story, by Myrtle Middleton Powell, from the Woman's Magazine (New York) for July makes a good bit of campaign literature for civic-improvement organizations or other bodies interested in the promotion of tree planting. This is the "Young Folks Number" of the magazine, and the story is illustrated with pictures of two Plainview youngsters, Elisabeth and Frances Powell. The story follows:

"Fly to the lawn! Here comes mother."

This from twelve-year-old Elizabeth. And well they know, all the youngsters, that whenever the weather makes it at all possible, I will "shoo" them from the living room, hall, or even the veranda, out to the well shaded lawn.

After living eight years in a west Texas prairie town without a tree in sight, I learned as I never had before to value a good shade tree as a friend indeed. And when we acquired our present home, with a fine grass lawn and a number of splendid shade trees already overtopping the house, I at once set about planning to make the most of the lawn.

With the approach of summer I designated a certain plot, on the south side of the house, as a playground for the children. Here they have their sand-box, their swings, chairs, and table; their hammock, seesaw and other playthings; and here they are allowed absolute freedom to play, with the understanding that they are to put such things as might be injured by rain—hammock, pillows, etc.—into the near-by outhouse at night, in case of a sudden shower.

We read and talk much about the advantages to be derived from the big out-of-doors, and many of us journey miles to find just the right locality for open-air living, yet all we need do to live out is just to step out, and there you are!

The sand-box, which is, without question, the most popular feature of the playground with the younger children, we contrived to acquire at very little expense; as the flower-pit happened to be just the right distance from the side of the house—about four feet—to make the two long sides of the box.

By boarding up the ends, and having a load of sand brought, the sand-box was completed and afforded more amusement to the children than any other investment of a dollar that I ever made.

Not only do I send the children out, but as soon as possible, after getting through in the kitchen, putting things to rights from the midday meal, I carry out my own books, magazines and needlework and spend the afternoon "Under the Trees." (I hope you have read Mr. Hamilton Wright Mable's book with that title. No one who has can ever fail to be a lover of trees.)

And about mid-afternoon somebody gets hungry and then they want to know if they can't have a tea-party. As they make their own sandwiches and lemonade, I give assent and am offered a sup and a bite myself, when all is in readiness. Or, maybe, it is a watermelon feast that we have, sitting gipsy-fashion on the grass.

You may consider a bathing-suit a superfluous article of wearing apparel unless you live near enough to the seashore to have frequent trips to the beach. My children have their shower-bath under the faucet daily, in midsummer, and as we live in a country where everybody has his own windmill and all the water he needs, I am hoping by another summer to have a swimming pool for an additional feature of our home playground.

In the meantime the children love to play with the hose, and on a hot summer day I allow them to shower each other for a half-hour at a time. They run no risk of catching cold, for they keep in perpetual motion, hopping and running gaily about, shrieking with laughter and high spirits.

All the good, old-fashioned joys which children used to know before the days of elaborate toys, my youngsters have rediscovered for themselves, and at the same time they have gained a love for the out-of-doors and kept healthy and active through the trying days of summer. "Shoo" your own youngsters out, and see how well my plan works.

It's weed cutting time.

And don't forget the industrial and agricultural survey of the county, which the Y. M. B. L. will take, June 27.

The best fly eradicator is the cylindrical trap. Any boy in Plainview can make one for a few cents. On page one, second section, of this issue full directions for making are printed.

Another wheat crop will soon be moving to market from the Plainview Country. The farmers will be exchanging their surplus cash for motor cars, tractors, sewing machines and settling up their indebtedness. It seems that the yield will be surprisingly good.

Many men would profit by being as careful of the little things making up character as they are of the details which make their reputation.

Government statistics show that the crop condition of the United States as a whole is 97.7, 100 representing the average for ten years. In twenty-five states the condition is above the ten-year average. The lowest is Utah, 82.2. Texas' condition is 95.8.

WHY HALE COUNTY HAS SCHOOL LAND.

The attitude of Texas toward public schools is best shown by quoting from our constitution: "A general diffusion of knowledge being essential to the liberties and rights of the people, it shall be the duty of the Legislature of the State to establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools."

Right at the time when Hale County is disposing of her school lands, a bit of history of Texas school-land grants is interesting.

The total amount of land set aside by the Republic of Texas and the State of Texas for school purposes approximates 52,000,000 acres. This has been divided between the University of Texas, the permanent school fund, and the permanent county school fund.

The State permanent school fund is composed of land notes, unsold land, interest-bearing bonds, railroad bonds and cash on hand.

The county permanent school fund consists of all funds made available by sale of lands. The money derived from land sales Tuesday is a permanent school fund for Hale County schools. The principal can never be touched, and the county is responsible for its investment, which may be "in bonds of the United States, the State of Texas, or counties of said State. The interest therefrom and other revenue, except the principal, shall be available fund."

The Republic of Texas granted to each county organized or to be organized later three leagues of land, or 13,227 acres. This was a constitutional provision. The State later set aside another league, making four leagues for each county.

In the early history of the State lands were granted to various railroads, the railroads to do the surveying and the State to retain the even-numbered sections. This land became school land, and the receipts from sales were placed in the permanent State school fund. Receipts from the sale of county school lands, or the equivalent in money or other lands donated to the counties after the allotment was exhausted, formed the basis for the permanent county school funds.

Other money for the conduct of Texas schools is derived in this manner: "One-fourth of the revenue derived from the State occupation taxes and a poll tax of one dollar on every male inhabitant of the State between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years shall be set apart annually for the benefit of the public free schools, and in addition thereto there shall be levied an annual ad valorem State tax of such an amount, not to exceed twenty cents on the one hundred dollars' valuation, as, with the available school fund arising from all other sources, will be sufficient to maintain and support the public free schools of this State for not less than six months in each year. And the Legislature may authorize an additional ad valorem tax to be levied, and collected within all school districts, not to exceed fifty cents on the hundred dollars."

The Wichita Beacon thinks a movement started in Madrid to propose King Alfonso of Spain as candidate for the 1916 nomination for the Nobel peace prize is "a good one."

The Herald is firmly convinced that sheep offer the South Plains farmers a good means of turning their surplus sorghum grains into money. There are several farmers who have made good money with a few sheep and many who have found large sheep herds profitable. Sheep are farm gleaners. They will clean the grass out of the growing field crops and the lanes and roadways. They might be well termed a by-product of the farm.

And more than ever we are convinced that those who fully appreciate the feeding value of the sorghum grains do not hesitate to convert them into beef, pork, mutton, milk and poultry. It is true that the sorghums may be marketed at a profit where transportation is no large figure, but by marketing the crops on the hoof the grain and the roughage is utilized; manure is returned to enrich the soil; marketing is facilitated; and the farmer's chances for favorable financial outcome may be thereby greatly enhanced. Incidentally, Farmers' Bulletin 724, which may be secured from the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., is an interesting treatise on the feeding of grain sorghums to live stock.

CO-OPERATION.

One of the best examples of co-operation, in the commonly applied sense, is the movement on the part of business men to interest the boys and girls of the country in productive work on the farm. Anything that tends to make farm life less monotonous, to make it more remunerative, to bring with it more cultural and educational advantages, will cause more boys and girls to remain on the farms and will increase the wealth of the country. Live, wide-awake business men are beginning to realize this. The Government has taken the matter up. Nothing more significant can be found in this line than the boys' pig clubs. The bankers in many States are realizing the value of pig-club work as a means of materially improving rural conditions. In this improvement there is a dual purpose, philanthropic and selfish. By helping the boy he assists in character building, for it is but natural for a boy, when treated as a man, to act in a manly manner. The banker in doing so helps himself. A case in point is that of a Texas banker. The president of the bank placed 326 pigs among the pig-club members of his county. As a result of the acquaintance made in securing and placing these pigs, many new patrons were secured. These patrons brought over $75,000 in individual deposits. Needless to say, the immediate results of the effort were profitable, but this will increase with time in its beneficial influence. The boys helped by the bank will soon be on their feet financially. They are the coming men. That banker built for the future and built wisely.—(From Plainview Evening Herald in Dallas Evening Journal of May 31.)

ALL TYPES AND SIZES OF TRACTORS AT DALLAS SHOW.

At the National Tractor Demonstration at Dallas, July 18 to 21, the modern horse will be exhibited in every size and type. There will be probably two hundred of these, from the largest to the smallest, the output of every factory in the United States. The modern horse eats only while it works. It is made of steel and iron. The modern horse consumes gasoline and kerosene, with dessert of lubricating oils and tonics of electric sparks. The modern horse is given life from a cylinder, has a draft power of many tons, and it requires but a single person to control. The modern horse is going to be responsible for the great development of our agricultural resources.

The modern horse is known as the farm tractor, and is the offspring of the automobile, but bred for performing burdensome tasks. As the modern horse stands on the floor of the factory, it is an inert and inanimate thing of many parts, assembled by skilled mechanics for many purposes. You touch a small lever and it responds to the wishes of the driver to do things which have, in the past, been put on the willing shoulders of the horse. The predominant idea in the modern horse is the elimination of the need of surplus horses and the substitution of the internal-combustion engine for farm work. It may be hitched to anything that is to be drawn, and operated economically. If the farmer wishes to plow his field, he hitches three or four plows behind his tractor, instead of one plow behind two horses, and the tractor will pull them over level land, up hill and down, plow deep or shallow, wide or narrow, as the farmer desires. He can place harrows behind his plow and chop and pulverize the soil. He can hitch a corn harvester behind his horse of steel, and in a few hours the corn is cut, bundled and tied in shocks without man's assistance.

These modern horses of steel and iron will be shown at the tractor demonstration at Dallas doing all kinds of actual farm work.

Special rates on all railroads.

P. J. Becker, of Amarillo, was here Wednesday on business.

COUNTY SCHOOL TRUSTEES MAY CREATE NEW DISTRICTS.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 15.—The Attorney General's Department, through Assistant C. W. Taylor, today ruled that the County School Trustees have the power to create new common school districts, but that when such districts are created the County Commissioners' Court shall have the authority to appoint the local trustees for the new district to serve until the next election. It is held that the law creating County School Trustees gives that board power to create new districts, but it is further held that the general language of the act is not sufficiently broad to repeal the expressed authority conferred by other statutes on the Commissioners' Courts to fill vacancies in the office of local School Trustees.

FARMER JONES.

(To Tune of "Casey Jones.")

MONT WYMAN, in Farm and Ranch.

Said Farmer Jones, smiling big and wide,
"Somebody makes a tractor that I'm going to ride.
I don't know just who makes it, but I'm going to see,
So the Dallas Demonstration is the place for me."

Now, Farmer Jones he had an automobile,
And he didn't care for distance when he sat at the wheel;
So he got a bunch of neighbors and threw 'em in his car—
"We're going up to Dallas where the tractors are."

So Farmer Jones burned up the gasoline,
And soon arrived in Dallas in his big machine.
But when he saw the people, he did opine,
"The other farmers got the hunch just the same as mine."

For four long days they watched the tractors roll;
They burned no wood and they didn't fool with coal;
The land they plowed and harrowed was a sight to see—
"There'll be no more hungry horses on a farm with me."

They saw tractors cutting ensilage, and filling silos, too,
And building fancy highways with a very meagre crew.
"They run a great big thresher; then, with one little turn,
They belt the blame thing down and make it run a churn."

Oh, Farmer Jones, he's a tractor farmer now;
He doesn't trust his horses to operate his plow.
And all of Jones's neighbors have an easy row to hoe
Since he took 'em down to Dallas to the Tractor Show.

KANSAS CITY MOTORISTS FRAME HEADLIGHT MEASURE.

The Automobile Club of Kansas City, Mo., has worked out a new ordinance concerning headlights, which has been introduced in the city council, and is now in the hands of a committee. In ordinary headlights the lamp shall not exceed 36 candle power, and shall reveal objects 150 feet ahead; the direct shaft, door open, must keep under 42 inches, or the level of the lamp.

THE PLAINVIEW EVENING HERALD

Section Two

TWICE-A-WEEK

VOLUME 27. NUMBER 48

PLAINVIEW, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JUNE 16, 1916

COMPANY L'S LOCATION IS BEST IN BATTALION

MEMBERS NOW IMMUNE FROM TYPHOID FEVER—ALL ARE IN GOOD HEALTH.

LAUNDERER IS OVER-WORKED

Battalion Receives Nickname, "Milk," in an Unusual Manner—Earned It at Camp Wilson.

In Camp, Sanderson, Texas, June 11, 1916.

The entire company was lined up the other morning and given the third shot of the typhoid serum. This makes us all immune from the dreaded typhoid for three years, so you see that we are all satisfied, or should be satisfied, on that account. As soon as they had finished injecting the typhoid serum, they lined us up again and vaccinated the bunch for smallpox. Contrary to our expectations, not an arm has been sore, at least not sore enough to amount to anything. The vaccination does not seem to have taken, and I suppose that a great many of the arms will have to be scratched again.

We are expecting to get our physical examination in a few days. Now, if the exam is as strict as it used to be there will be some cut back, but I understand that it is to be made so that those who will be unable to stand the rough marching can be picked out and arrangements made to suit.

The other morning at drill they gave us our first lesson in climbing hills in company or skirmish-line formation.

They took us up the hill, and some of us were sure puffing when we reached the top, but the scenery after we reached there more than repaid us for our trouble. From our stand we could see mountains some of which they claim were 85 miles to the north-west and others 120 miles south. That would bring those to the South way into old Mexico, as the border, or the Rio Grande, is just 22 miles south. Some of these mountains were very distinct, while others were so far that all we could see was the outline. Of course, the guesses made by the boys were very much shy, as some of them said the foothills were only five or ten miles away.

Our comrade Earl Gray has been the envy of quite a few of the members, but his statements are wrong regarding the weather conditions, especially so when one is standing guard, with the sky for a roof and a blanket to sleep on and one to cover with.

The days here have been exceedingly warm, but there have been only two nights that I have slept out from under the covers, and those were the nights when I had charge of the guard and all the time I had to lie down was between my visits to the different posts, and, believe me, covering would not have felt bad those nights in addition to my clothing.

The boys are all enjoying good health with the exception of a few each day who have a sore toe or finger or a headache, which is natural.

Our captain left us last Saturday for an inspection trip, and returned to camp the fore part of this week. He informed us that we could be very well satisfied with our location, as it was considered the best in the battalion.

A battalion is made up of four companies of infantry, this being the Third Battalion of the Fourth Infantry. A curious thing about this one is that the companies are I, K, L and M. These letters, when properly placed, spell "MILK," which nickname has been given us, and no doubt rightly, for while we were at Camp Wilson the dairy wagon would drive up to the head of the company street, usually Company K, and all the boys would rush out at each meal and buy a bottle of milk, a pint bottle for 5 cents, and it sure did go good with our meals. I tried it myself as long as my cash lasted, and I know.

Of course, I don't suppose that our nickname will suit us in the least, should we ever be called into action, for I know that there is not a man in the company who would hesitate a moment when called upon.

There has sure been some feasting around the camp this past week, for not a day passes but what one or two of the boys receives a box from home (and anyone who has ever received one knows just about what they contain). As soon as the drills are over for the day you can hear the call go around for so and so to report at so and so's tent at once. Of course, every one knows just what that means. I don't suppose that anyone has been slighted, intentionally, so far.

Last week we reported that we had installed a laundry, under the management of "Slim" Watkins. Well, Slim reports that business has been so good this week that he is compelled to cut down, as he is unable to hire any helpers that will do good work, and he does not want to turn out anything except good work.

Yours truly,

"DESERT STUFF" UNPOPULAR WITH THE PATHE PLAYERS.

Jose's "Light That Failed" Company Nearly Perish From Cold on "Burning Desert Sands."

A certain beautiful and popular song is built around the theme "till the sands of the desert grow cold." The burning love that vowed to endure until such an unheard-of and unexpected calamity occurred would have met an untimely end had it been exposed to the biting winds that swept over the "Sahara Desert" location which producer Edward Jose and his Pathe players found on Fayerweather's Island, off the city of Bridgeport, Conn., recently. Kipling, when he wrote "The Light That Failed," which Mr. Jose is now putting into a Pathe Gold Rooster play, little reckoned when he placed his characters in the blistering heat of a Hades-like desert of the troubles he was causing an earnest, able and artistic director anxious to get his picture full of real atmosphere. But it was so, and old Boreas, of the nasty disposition, kicked out Aeolus, Zephyrus, and all the rest of that gentle mythological crew and set out to do his darndest. He succeeded.

The stately caravan of shivering Arabs, British soldiers, camels and horses moved across the sands under the eagle eye of Mr. Jose, which eagle eye was shedding tears under the promptings of the heartless gale.

"Remember, men," shouted the producer, "you are fairly shivering from intense heat! You are parched, exhausted and dripping with perspiration. You must register all that!"

Frozen fingers sought for handkerchiefs and mopped brows that were blue with cold. The man who touched his icy rifle barrel once with his bare hand showed a surprising reluctance to do it again. The "slops of the desert" ploughed through the sand as stiff-legged as so many automatic toys, squealing with protest.

"It came time for a 'close-up' of Robert Edeson. The camera was planted and the miserable leading man placed himself in front of it. "Mr. Edeson," said Mr. Jose, from between his teeth, which chattered like castanets, "you are in the throes of mental agony—" "Quite right," interpolated Mr. Edeson, very feelingly. "You must register that," continued Mr. Jose, "and hold it until I give the word."

The cameraman turned. From Mr. Edeson's lips as he breathed issued jets of steam-like vapor, a tribute to the potency of friend Boreas. "Heaven!" said Mr. Jose. "This will never do in a desert scene! Mr. Edeson, you must hold your breath."

And so Robert Edeson registered mental agony and held his breath while the cameraman turned and turned, until his face became as purple as an Egyptian sunset. "Say friends," said Mr. Jose, "we'll finish this desert stuff in Nogales, Arizona!"

KELLEHER'S WHEAT WILL AVERAGE FIFTEEN BUSHEL.

Joe Kelleher is cutting his wheat this week. He has about one thousand acres. Although he has sustained some loss by hail, he states that he will thresh, he believes, an average of fifteen bushels to the acre. Part of his wheat will yield more than twenty-five bushels, he estimates.

L. A. Knight has two thousand acre, and although little of his wheat has been cut, he estimates his yield at about ten bushels to the acre.

I. Jacobs, of Wolfe City, arrived Wednesday to visit with his sons, J. L. and Abe Jacobs.

An Effective Fly Trap Which the Boys Can Make

Any boy in Plainview can make a good fly trap in a few hours and at small cost. A fly trap is far more effective than fly paper, poison or fly killer for reducing the annual crop of house flies. Many types have been advocated to apply to windows, garbage cans, and manure boxes. The Department of Agriculture, however, has made exhaustive tests, and finds that the cylindrical cone type will catch more flies than any other type yet devised. In a new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 734, by F. C. Bishopp, means of making this and other types of traps and other methods of destroying flies are described.

The bulletin describes how to make a trap of the cone type with only four second-hand barrel hoops, a barrel head, a few strips of lumber, and 45 cents' worth of screening and tacks.

The two barrel hoops are bent into a circle and nailed together, the ends being trimmed to give a close fit. These form the bottom of the frame, and the other two hoops, nailed together in a similar way, the top. The top of the trap is fitted with an ordinary barrel head with the beveled edge sawed off, causing the head to fit closely in the hoops to which it is securely nailed. A square is cut out of the center of the top to form a door, and the portions of the top are held together by inch strips. The door consists of a narrow frame covered with screening well fitted into the trap and held in place by buttons. When nailed together the trap is cylindrical in shape and the frame is covered with closely tacked screen wire on the outside of the hoops. Four laths (or light strips) are nailed to the hoops on the outside of the trap, to act as supports between the hoops, and the ends are allowed to project 1 inch at the bottom, to form legs. A cone is cut from the screen and sewed with fine wire or soldered where the edges meet. The top of the cone is then cut off, to give an opening an inch in diameter. This is then inserted in the bottom of the trap and closely tacked to the hoop around the base.

Care is necessary in choosing a location for the trap if it is to attract the greatest number of flies. Traps may be baited with milk or molasses and water contained in a shallow bucket-cover placed beneath the trap. The trap should be located where flies naturally congregate. Fresh bait should be put in frequently and the caught flies killed and emptied out. The destruction of the flies is best accomplished by immersing the trap in hot water, or, still better, by placing a few live coals in a pan on the ground and scattering sulphur over them. The trap should be placed over the coals and a barrel turned over to confine the sulphur fumes. The flies will be rendered motionless in about five minutes, and may then be killed with hot water or thrown into the fire.

Motor News of General Interest

RISING COST OF GASOLINE SHOULD'NT ALARM MOTORISTS.

R. H. Collins, of the Buick Motor Company, deals with the rising cost of gasoline, in The Buick Bulletin, as follows:

"If those persons who are alarmed over the gasoline price situation will 'think back' a few years they will discover, perhaps to their great surprise, that there is far less cause for worry at the present time than may appear at first glance.

"It was only six or seven years ago that motor cars similar in carry capacity to those of the present day sold for just about twice the price that now prevails. And it will be further remembered that the motor-car purchaser of those days, despite the fact that he paid double the present prices, did not enjoy the advantages that are covered in the short but very significant phrase found nowadays in all automobile advertisements, namely: 'Completely equipped.'

It was just a few brief years ago that the motor-car purchaser had only started to spend his money when he paid over the purchase price of his car. First of all, he had to buy a top, because the manufacturers were unable to include that necessary part of the car as stock equipment, so tremendously high were manufacturing costs. Then he had to pay extra for a windshield, or 'glass front,' as it was called in those days. Lighting material and equipment also came extra, as did tire holders, horns, license brackets. Electric self-starters were undreamed of in those days, and tires, which cost nearly twice what they do now, would not give more than half the mileage of present-day tires. A mileage guarantee of five thousand miles is a common thing in the 'trade, with rebates and adjustments for the user if the tires fail to yield their guaranteed mileage.

"And in those days, after the user had paid out all these various sums, he had a car that would give him just about half the wear that he can get from a modern car. He got the best obtainable, it is true; but the 'best' of that day could not be compared to the present product. Manufacturers have found better ways for tempering metals, better methods of manufacture, improved design, better methods of painting and finishing, and a better car all 'round.

"Think, for a moment, of the tremendous improvements that have been made in motor cars. There is not a unit in the thousands which enter into the makeup of present-day motor cars which isn't a vast improvement over its counterpart of a few years back. Take the electric self-starter, for instance. In the old days a motor-car purchaser could estimate, almost with mathematical precision, his chances for a broken arm, incidental to starting his car with the old hand crank. Thus doctors' bills, to say nothing of the pain and suffering caused by broken bones, had to be figured as part of the cost of the earlier motor cars.

"All this has been done away with by the self-starter. Motoring is an unalloyed pleasure nowadays, whereas it was a pleasure diluted with no small amount of mental and physical strain and stress in the days before self-starters were developed.

"And yet, in the face of all these improvements, the cost of automobiles has steadily descended, and that includes both the first cost and the upkeep cost. A better car for less money has been the constant slogan of the makers, and that this ideal has been realized none will deny. Even the users of cars have been amazed by the way motor-car prices have parachuted downward in the past few years.

"While we must view with alarm the sudden rise in the price of gasoline, we must not overlook the fact that the up-to-date motor of correct design will carry its owner and a full load about twice as far as the same sized car would a few years ago, on the same amount of gasoline. And it naturally follows that while we may view with apprehension the continued rise in the cost of gasoline, the fact remains that the cost of the actual mileage obtained is about the same as when gasoline was one-half its present price.

"Further, we do not believe that the producers of gasoline have any idea of permitting the price of this highly demanded product to become prohibitive. The best informed authorities trace the recent sharp rise in its cost to the unusual demand that is being made at the present time.

"Chief among consumers are the warring nations of Europe, and we do not believe that the producers are over-optimistic when they insist that after conditions throughout the world again assume normal proportions, gasoline products will be marketed on whatever basis is necessary to still assure the producers a tremendous volume, which they must necessarily have in order to make their elaborate facilities for producing gasoline a paying investment, and it is our personal opinion that oil producers have no intention of permitting the price of their products to become prohibitive to such an extent that necessity, itself, will demand and find a substitute—thus robbing them of a market and a revenue which they have created at a tremendous cost, and which would necessarily become a worthless asset instead of one of their main revenue producers within a short time after such a condition becomes a fact.

"In other words, it is our thought that the oil producers want the gasoline business and that they have no intention of 'killing the goose that lays the golden egg.'"

FORD RUNABOUT
2-Passenger—4-Cylinder—20 Horsepower—fully equipped, except speedometer. Price $390 f. o. b. Detroit.

Economy

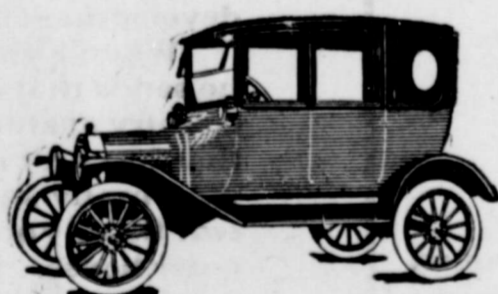

By all accounts the Ford is most economical. It costs less to operate than any other car. Individual experiences vary, according to the temperament of the person who drives it, and the condition under which it is maintained. Many of our owners drive their cars at a cost of less than 2 cts. a mile. A few of them may double this cost. But all agree that the Ford's cost of maintenance is lowest.

When over half the motor cars in America today—about a million and a quarter—are of one make, there must be a mighty good reason. In every kind of service, under all conditions of road and weather, Ford Cars have proved to be the most dependable, economical and efficient servants of men.

Service

In the matter of service Ford leads. Ford repairs are to be had in practically every town or city in the country. More than eight thousand Ford dealers are required, under their contracts with the company, to carry a complete assortment of Ford repair parts. The dollar value of these agency parts stocks at the present time is considerably more than twelve million dollars.

Co-Operation In

Co-operation is one of the basic principles that a single man, a single firm or corporation cannot build it. A town may grow without development is not as extensive as when the people cooperate. When a citizen of town or country orders goods he sends that much money where it will never come back to the country again. That it is not worth while to get goods that he can't meet prices the mail order house with many people. On the other hand the mail order house can fill any order as cheaply and with as good order house. So there you are. The problem is to get the people into his store to compare prices. A man who sends away for his goods is saving money. If he buys thoroughly by both buyer and seller, the result compared, there will be found grounds for co-operation. The interest of the two is mutual.

CENSUS BUREAU'S SUMMARY ON TEXAS MANUFACTURES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.—A preliminary statement of the general results of the census of manufactures for Texas has been issued by Director Sam. L. Rogers, of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. It consists of a summary comparing the figures for 1909 and 1914, by totals, prepared under the direction of Mr. William M. Stewart, chief statistician for manufactures.

ject to such change and correction as may be found necessary from a further examination of the original reports.

The census of 1914, like that of 1909, with reference to manufactures, excluded the hand trades, the building trades, and the neighborhood industries, and took account only of establishments conducted under the factory system. In the last census, also, as in that for 1909, statistics were not collected for establishments having products for the census year valued at less than $500, except that reports were taken for establishments idle during a portion of the census year, or which began operation during that year, and whose products for such reason were valued at less than $500.

The word "establishment" as used in the census reports may mean more than one mill or plant, provided they are owned or controlled and operated by a single individual, partnership, corporation, or other owner or operator, and are located in the same town or city.

The reports were taken for the calendar year ending December 31, 1914, wherever the system of book-keeping permitted figures for that period to be secured, but when the fiscal year of an establishment differed from the calendar year a report was obtained for the operations of that establishment for its fiscal year falling most largely within the calendar year.

Percentages of Increase.

The population of Texas at the census of 1910 was 3,896,542, and it is estimated that it was 4,258,000 on July 1, 1914.

The summary shows a considerable increase at the census of 1914, compared with that for 1909. In the order of their importance, from a percentage standpoint, the increases for the several items rank as follows: Materials, 42 per cent; value of products, 32.4 per cent; salaries, 32.1 per cent; capital, 30.7 per cent; primary horsepower, 18.9 per cent; wages, 18.2 per cent; salaried employees, 16.5 per cent; value added by manufacture, 14.2 per cent; number of establishments, 10.8 per cent; wage earners, 6.6 per cent; and proprietors and firm members, 6.5 per cent.

Capital Invested.

The capital invested, as reported in 1914, was $283,544,000, a gain of $66,668,000, or 30.7 per cent, over $216,876,000 in 1909. The average capital per establishment was approximately $56,000 in 1914 and $47,000 in 1909. In this connection it should be stated that the inquiry contained in the census schedule calls for the total amount of capital, both owned and borrowed, invested in the business, but excludes the value of rented property, plant, or equipment which was employed in the conduct of manufacturing enterprises. In the final bulletins and reports the rental paid for such property will be shown separately.

Cost of Materials.

The cost of materials used was $253,090,000 in 1914 as against $178,179,000 in 1909, an increase of $74,911,000, or 42 per cent. The average cost of materials per establishment was approximately $50,000 in 1914 and $39,000 in 1909. In addition to the component materials which enter into the products of the establishment for the census year there are included the cost of fuel, mill supplies, and rent of power and heat. The cost of materials, however, does not include unused materials and supplies bought either for speculation or for use during a subsequent period.

The census inquiry does not include amounts paid for miscellaneous expenses, such as rent of offices, royalties, insurance, ordinary repairs, advertising, traveling expenses, or allowance for depreciation.

Value of Products.

The value of products was $361,279,000 in 1914 and $272,896,000 in 1909, the increase being $88,383,000, or 32.4 per cent. The average per establishment was approximately $71,000 in 1914 and $59,000 in 1909.

The value of products represents their selling value or price at the plants as actually turned out by the factories during the census year, and does not necessarily have any relation to the amount of sales for that year. The values under this head also include amounts received for work done on materials furnished by others.

Value Added by Manufacture.

The value added by manufacture represents the difference between the cost of materials used and the value of the products manufactured from them. The value added by manufacture was $108,189,000 in 1914 and $94,717,000 in 1909, the increase being $13,472,000, or 14.2 per cent. The value added by manufacture formed 29.9 per cent of the total value of products in 1914 and 34.7 per cent in 1909.

The salaries and wages amounted to $59,179,000 in 1914 and to $48,775,000 in 1909, the increase being $10,404,000, or 21.3 per cent.

The number of salaried employees was 11,474 in 1914, as compared with 9,849 in 1909, making an increase of 1,625, or 16.5 per cent.

The average number of wage earners was 74,853 in 1914 and 70,230 in 1909, the increase being 4,623, or 6.6 per cent.

The maximum number of wage earners (76,993) for 1914 were employed during January, while the maximum number (75,648) for 1909 were employed during November. In 1914 and in 1909 the minimum number of wage earners (72,219 and 66,079, respectively) were employed during May.

HANEY RESIGNS CHAIR WITH UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 14.—Dr. L. H. Haney, for five years professor of economics in the University of Texas, has just handed in his resignation to Acting President Battle, in order to accept a position as economic expert with the Federal Trade Commission, in Washington, D. C. Several months ago Professor Haney obtained a leave of absence in order to take a temporary position with the Commission, and this position has now been made permanent at a salary of $5,000 per year. He is engaged for the Commission in an inquiry into the cause of the recent rises in the price of gasoline. There are several economic experts for the Commission, of which Dr. Haney is one, working under the general direction of F. A. Walker.

CHOICE FED CATTLE HIGHER.

Wichita, Kansas, June 14, 1916.

With moderate receipts of choice fed cattle at all points this week, the market on prime heavy killing steers has shown an advance of 10 to 25 cents, while all other classes of butcher cattle are selling a shade lower than the high time of last week.

Locally, receipts have consisted principally of plain short-fed and grass stuff. There were very few well finished cattle offered. Prime heavy-weight steers are selling around $10.00, with the bulk of the well finished 1,100- to 1,400-pound cattle from $9.25 to $9.85. Medium and short-fed heavyweight cattle from $8.50 to $9.00; yearlings up to $10.00, with the bulk from $8.00 to $9.00; doxies up to $8.50, with the bulk from $7.25 to $8.00; grass-fat heifers $7.00 to $7.25. Choice cows up to $7.75, with the bulk of the good fat cows from $6.75 to $7.25; medium and half-fat grassers $5.75 to $6.50; cutters $4.50 to $5.00; carvers $4.00 to $4.50; fed bulls up to $7.00, with the bulk of the good killing bulls from $6.25 to $6.65; plain bolognas $5.50 to $6.00; veals up to $10.00, with the bulk of the good heavyweight killing calves from $7.50 to $8.50.

With a limited country demand and a liberal supply of stockers, the market shows a decline of 50 cents from the high time. We sold some choice Hereford stockers at $8.50, this class stuff showing very little decline, but these ordinary and plain cattle are hard to sell at the decline. The bulk of the good native stockers are selling around $7.25; plain kinds from $6.50 to $7.00; cut backs from $5.00 to $5.50; stock heifers $6.25 to $6.75, depending on quality; cows $5.00 to $5.75; stock bulls $5.50 to $6.00.

We advise shippers to be very careful on this half-fat grass stuff and on plain stockers, as you can look for a draggy market the balance of the season.

The hog market opened 10 cents lower here this morning and closed 15 cents lower. We had a top of $9.45, with the bulk of sales ranging from $9.15 to $9.40. Good to choice heavies from $9.35 to $9.45. Fair to good medium $9.20 to $9.35. Good to choice lights $9.00 to $9.20. Pigs $7.75 to $8.25. Roughs and stags $8.50 to $9.00.

Yours very truly,
HEALY & COMPANY.

Every Single Item That Enters Into a Pair of Boots

Has greatly increased in cost during the past year. The better leathers are very hard to get and at greatly increased cost. This means of course that a boot cannot be made at the same price, or anything like its former price. It simply means that the boot must be made with inferior materials to sell at the old price or it must sell for more if made as well and of as good materials as formerly.

We Will Have to Increase Our Prices About July 1st

So suggest that if you are going to need a pair of boots soon that you place your order at once.

KANSAS CITY STOCK MARKET IN DETAIL.

KANSAS CITY STOCK YARDS, June 12.—Prime cattle held practically steady last week, but everything below prime cattle in price, common steers selling 30 to 50 cents lower for the week. Butcher grades got a moderate cut, cows and bulls holding up because of scarcity. Stockers and feeders held about steady, as there was a good demand from the country, and the yards were well cleared.

The supply today is 10,000 cattle, and the market averages fully steady, prime steers and butcher grades selling stronger, and low grades of steers, including quarantines of this class, weak to 10 cents lower. A car load of pulp-fed steers sold at $11.00, a new high figure on pulp steers, and highest price paid this year for any steers. Other pulpers brought $10.00 to $10.75, and the Western delegation also included some short-fed steers around $9.00. Cattle from the summer feeding section of Missouri are starting, some of them bringing $10.80 today. Prime dry-lot, corn-fed cattle are scarce, although numerous lots of steers were good enough to sell at $10.00 to $10.55. A train of Arizona steers weighing 1-185 pounds sold at $9.00, including 3 loads of 916-pound steers at $8.55.

In the quarantine division offerings comprised about 40 cars of fed steers from the Fort Worth district, nothing extra choice included, sales $8.50 to $9.20, some fed Oklahomas at $8.10 to $8.50, and grassers at $6.80 to $7.75. South Texas grassers sold Thursday up to $8.90 in the quarantine division here.

This is the dull season for stockers and feeders, but is a good grass year, and a certain demand continues, sales of stock calves largely at $7.25 to $8.00, feeders $7.75 to $8.50.

Hogs began to show strength the middle of last week, and closed with part of recent losses regained, sales today 10 cents higher, receipts 12,000 head, top $9.55, bulk of sales $9.20 to $9.50. Heavy hogs lead in price, because of scarcity, owners preferring to cash their hogs as fast as they get up around 200 pounds or a little more, rather than hold for big weight, although feeding operation on hogs of this weight continues immensely profitable. Average weight here last week was 202 pounds, practically the same as it was same week last year.

Demands on killers for all kinds of pork will be heavy as long as high beef and mutton offer no relief.

Sheep and lambs are firm where quality is good, but much common stock is offered today, and prices on such are weak, receipts 12,000 head. Native and Arizona spring lambs sold up to $11.25, quality not choice in either case, prime springs worth $11.50 or more. Clipped ewes sold at $7.25 to $7.50 if good, Texas muttons here today at $6.75 to $7.15, some common ones at a lower price.

Best Angoras here sold at $5.25 to killers and also for the country, common Mexican brushers down to $4.00, killers and brushers selling about alike today. J. A. RICKART, Market Correspondent.
