Rail station blast kills at least 72

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — A thunderous explosion tore through the crowded waiting rooms and restaurant of Bologna's main railway station Saturday, killing at least 72 people, city officials reported. Authorities were investigating the possibility that it was a terrorist bombing.

Local police said 76 were killed. The blast injured an additional 180 people — many in critical condition with second- and third-degree burns. Rescue workers feared others were still trapped under tons of brick and twisted steel. A large section of the building was leveled.

At least two Americans were listed among the injured. They were identified as Jeff Davis, 19, and W.S. Davis, 22, of Provo, Utah. Their conditions were not reported.

City government spokeswoman Miriam Ridolfi said the death toll, earlier reported at 55, climbed to at least 72 when more bodies were recovered and several persons died in hospitals of their injuries.

If it was a bombing, it would be the bloodiest terror attack in post-war Italy.

Two anonymous callers to newspapers claimed responsibility for the blast in the names of right-wing and left-wing terrorist groups. Police dismissed the leftist claim, but Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni told a news conference authorities were investigating whether extreme right-wingers planted a bomb.

Authorities ruled out one initial theory in Saturday's explosion — that the station boiler had exploded. But the exact cause is not expected to be known for several days, until the rubble is cleared and specialists can examine the evidence.

The station was crowded because early August is a peak travel period for Europeans and Italians headed to the beaches. Rognoni said most of the victims were Italians, but four of the dead had German-sounding names.

HIS OWN SEVEREST CRITIC — James Hampton (in checkered shirt), one of the stars in the movie, "Hangar 18," which had a special showing at the Ritz Theater here Friday night, appears to be critically weighing his own performance in the film. The writers, in fact, saved some of the best lines for the former Texan. Others pictured on the same row with Hampton (from the left) are Julie Shaheli, wardrobe designer; James Conway, director; and Carol Fontana, assistant producer. Big Spring businessman George Weeks and Big Spring Police Captain Claude Morris can be seen on the second row. Most of the Sunn Classic program was filmed in and around Big Spring. The movie has received critical acclaim.

17-year-old death case is reopened

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

A visit by a Big Spring man to the Howard County Sheriff's office last week has law enforcement officials here investigating a killing that occurred 17 years ago.

Saldivar Trevino of 903 Northwest Third walked into the sheriff's office around 9 a.m. Wednesday and said, according to a deputy, "My conscience is bothering me."

Trevino began to lay out the details of a killing that took place "23 years ago."

"He gave us an approximate location and time (of the killing)," Howard County Sheriff Aubrey Standard said, adding that the names of the suspect and deceased was also given.

Sheriff's personnel and the Big Spring Police Department began investigating the case and found a death resulting from a fracas in 1963 as fitting the descriptions Trevino had given officers.

"It had a similar term sequence and cause," Standard said of the 1963 killing.

The case involved a fight that occurred in the early afternoon hours of July 22, 1963, at Bolingers on North Gregg. The fight was between a 60-year-old man, Salaman Miller and an 18-year-old, Raymond Quintana.

Miller died as a result of the conflict. He was pronounced dead at 4:57 p.m. July 22, 1963 by Justice of the Peace Jess Slaughter. Police began searching for Quintana. On July 23, Quintana turned himself into Big Spring police.

Standard said Saturday evening that to his knowledge no charges were filed on the case.

The Herald contacted by phone Trevino Saturday night at his residence.

Trevino gave his version of the story. About 1:30 a.m., he and Quintana began talking at Bolingers on North Gregg. Three men approached Trevino and Quintana. An argument arose and fighting started as a result of it.

Miller suffered several contusions to the upper body and fractures. But, Trevino said, "Nobody knew who done it (the killing)." Because of the nature of the struggle, the victim was struck several times by Quintana and Trevino.

Trevino ran from the fracas and kept quiet about the incident.

"I didn't want nobody to know," he said. "The killing, though, remained on his mind."

"I didn't forget it," he said. "I didn't feel very good." He added with his conscience bothering him, he decided to tell law enforcement officials about the struggle.

For second straight quarter

Cost of living below norm

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

For the second straight quarter, Big Spring residents cashed in on a cost of living well below a nationwide norm.

According to a report released by the American Chamber of Commerce Researchers, Big Spring scored 7.9 points below an across-the-country cost-of-living index.

The index was established after collecting data from Chambers of Commerce in over 200 cities at the first of April. The data consists of prices paid for items in six categories. The categories are groceries, housing, utilities, transportation, health care and miscellaneous goods.

From the prices, a norm is computed and is represented by the value of 100. A score above 100 for a city indicates the municipality having a cost of living above the national norm, as well as a score below 100 representing the cost of living for a particular place being lower to the relative intercity scale.

The grocery category has 25 products, ranging from meats, dairy products, produce and bakery products to tobacco, canned goods, detergents and baby food.

The housing category has two price listings. Monthly rent for a two bedroom, one bath, furnished apartment is computed into this category; and the monthly payment, excluding taxes and insurance, for a new 1800 sq. ft. home with a 25-year first mortgage on a 25 percent down payment.

The utilities category includes electricity and natural gas for the 1800 sq. ft. home and the monthly rate for telephone service.

The transportation category is made up of the cost of bus and taxi fare, automobile repair and a gallon of unleaded gasoline.

The health category includes the cost per day of a semi-private hospital room, the cost of a visit to a general practice doctor and the charges for teeth cleaning and inspection from a dentist.

The miscellaneous category consists of a man's haircut, a woman's shampoo and set, the prices for an evening movie and bowling, a home service call for major appliance repair and a bottle of Seagram's 7-Crown.

On the national scale, Big Spring scored 92.1 down from 94.6 in the ACCRA's January study.

The breakdown in the various categories showed Big Spring having a score of 97.1 in groceries; 88.7 in housing; 90.9 in utilities; 90.4 in transportation; 86.1 in health care; and 95.7 in miscellaneous goods and services.

Only one other of the 26 participating Texas cities had a lower score than Big Spring's. Texarkana had a value of 90.6.

The Texas cities having the highest score on the index were Lubbock, 108.6; Midland, 106.8 and Plano, also with 106.8.

Nationwide, the cities of Hagerstown, Md. and Stevens Point, Wis. had the lowest index values in the study.

Hagerstown had a score of 86.7, and Stevens Point 87.3.

The cities having the highest cost of living indexes were White Plains, N.Y., New York, N.Y., and Detroit, Mich.

White Plains had an index value of 138.8, New York City 129.1 and Detroit 127.7.

In the previous study, four cities had lower scores than Big Spring. They were Amarillo with 93.8, Texarkana with 91.4, Waco with 92.2 and Temple with 91.2.

The study is used by the local Chamber of Commerce in promoting Big Spring.

"We make a lot of use of the data," said Leroy Tillery, executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. "It is not something we do and then put in a file."

Tillery did say the study does have limitations. For one, he said the housing category does not include taxes and insurance in the cost of the 1800 sq. ft. home.

"On our housing cost, the figure we turn in is principal and interest," he said. He added in some parts of the country insurance is added into the house payment; whereas in other parts it is not.

Tillery also said the housing category may also be distorted another way by exclusion of taxes and insurance.

"Some parts of the country are subject to higher insurance and tax rates," Tillery commented.

But, he insisted, "It is an accurate comparison of principal and interest."

The chamber of commerce executive said that only wide differences in numerical values indicate substantial variances in cost of living.

"If it is within three to five points of each other there's not that much difference," Tillery said.

Despite its limitation, Tillery said the study gives a picture of living costs in a locale. It provides an answer to the same question any body has in contemplating moving to another city. "How much does it cost to live there?"

"It is the best thing available," Tillery concluded.

'Hangar 18' extras help pack theater

Big Spring steals applause

By ANDREA COHEN

Here it was. The special showing of "Hangar 18," after three months of filming in and around Big Spring and a wait of another few months.

The tickets said it was a special showing. Others called it a premiere. Nobody was sure what it was, but almost everyone knew it was the first time it was showing without it being in the testing stages.

But whatever it was, it was special. The Ritz, for the first time in anyone's memory, was filled to the brim with people, all who had paid $5 a ticket to attend. Johnnie Lou Avery made a speech before the film started, introducing James Hampton who played one of the astronauts and who came to town for the show. Then she had the rest of the Sunn Pictures crew rise all at once for their applause.

This was not a movie, but THE movie. The one which employed locals for three months. Most of the extras were there Friday night to see if they made it through the final cuts. The rest were plagued with curiosity. This was the end product of all the publicity, the inconvenience when roads were blocked off, and of the extra income local businesses made because of the film.

Let's sit back and enjoy the film. Opening credits. Gary Collins' name was received with applause. James Hampton's name was received with even bigger applause. Then credit to the City of Big Spring. Applause? Don't ask.

The opening shots are of the capsule colliding with the U.F.O. The NASA Space Center is all part of it. But all that is not important. The important thing is that James Werrell had played an extra as a NASA technician. Let's look for him.

The Herald reporter is in here somewhere. Keep looking to the left and the right of the screen. The movie editors have no taste if they cut him out. Besides that, guess who had to take over his city beat while he went to Hollywood? Where is he? There he is! The camera just panned across his face for a split fraction of a second. Quite a bit of buzzing comes from the people sitting in my row. There's Jamie! Did you see him? We miss the next five minutes of dialogue because of it. Then we sit back and try to take in the rest of the film.

Everyone knows Gary Collins and James Hampton play two astronauts. But watching the movie, you find out there is a third, one who dies and gets his head knocked off in space. You know this because there is the space suit. The helmet is separated from the suit but close enough to be seen in the same shot floating in space. It was amazing the helmet did not land in the next galaxy.

Bring the astronauts down and go to Arizona where an unemployed drunk sees a U.F.O. and goes to get the sheriff. When he brings the sheriff back awhile later, the U.F.O. is gone. This town in Arizona has a bar that looks amazingly like a bar in Big Spring. Applause.

The astronauts are being set up to take the blame. They decide to go to the point where the U.F.O. landed. They fly to Arizona, rent a beat-up truck for $20 a day and head for the site.

Turning on to a deserted road, we see a car with two men in dark suits sitting in a car, waiting to follow them. There are no other cars in sight anywhere, but the astronauts pay no attention.

The scriptwriters blew it here. This is the Southwest. If there is a lone car sitting on a deserted road like that, couldn't the astronauts have the decency to stop and see if they needed help? Maybe AAA had to be called. Well, it's only a movie. Maybe the highway patrol will stop and help.

On to the site. They see no U.F.O., but there is the desert Applause. The cover-up is going on in Washington. Robert Vaughn who plays a gopher to the president is afraid the press is going to be all over the place. Now let's see. A U.F.O. crashes into a space capsule. Assuming this was all on television and everyone knows about it already, the press is GOING to be all over the place? That shows how little the scriptwriters know about the press.

That's understandable. The public relations director who was in Big Spring never knew anything about the press either.

But while all this is going on, the spaceship is put in a hangar at an airbase in a town in west Texas.

The car enters the airbase. There is the gate Applause. There it is. The spaceship. A magnificent piece of work designed by alien beings from Utah. It was in a crash, but there are no scratch marks. Amazing!

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Stocks, profits

Q. What percentage of people investing in the stock market end up losing money?

A. We consulted our resident expert, Dan Wilkins (manager of Edward D. Jones & Co.) about this. "It has been stated that three of four trades in commodities result in losses," Dan said. "The way to make money in commodities then is to make sure that your one profit is a big one. About stocks, I think it can be said that in general most people make money, though there are numerous exceptions. Traders in good markets invariably do good and those in bad markets do badly. Most investors who buy and hold stocks make money. There is a book out, entitled 'Beating the Street,' which says that most investors in securities make money."

Calendar: Firemen call meeting

A meeting of all firemen of the Jonesboro Volunteer Fire Department will be held at 7:30 at the fire station.

Summer Band will begin from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. All band members are requested to attend.

TUESDAY

Post 2013 of the V.F.W. and Auxiliary will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the V.F.W. Hall on Driver Road.

Tops on TV: 'From Here to Eternity'

Drama unfolds at 8 p.m. as NBC shows the movie "From Here to Eternity: Island and Homecoming." The movie features William Devane and Roy Thinnes in a film about an army sergeant with a heart condition wanting to join his men on the Pacific Front during World War II. The first in a two-part series starts at 6 p.m. on Disney's Worldview on NBC. "The Omega Connection" stars Jeffrey Byron as a CIA agent in England trying to solve the kidnapping of a defecting scientist from East Europe.

Inside: Marfa lights

EVER SINCE PIONEER cattleman Robert R. Ellison reported strange lights during an 1883 cattle drive, the "Marfa Lights" have mystified local residents, delighted tourists and baffled scientists. See page 5-B.

AT AGE 12, Kirk was headed for reform school. But he and other fortunate youths got a second chance — at Cal Farley's Boy's Ranch. See page 12-B.

Outside: Bad odds

Clear today with hot, sunny afternoon temperatures. Highs in the upper 90s, lows tonight in the 70s. Winds during the day to be southwesterly 10 to 15 miles per hour, becoming light and variable tonight. The early part of this week should see no let up in hot weather, but by mid-week there is a chance for late afternoon, night-time thundershowers.

FIRST HAND KNOWLEDGE — Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. Vaughn were approached by a Herald newsmann for their reaction to the movie, "Hangar 18," which was presented especially for Big Spring audiences Friday night.

UNQUALIFIED PRAISE — Gary Westbrook (above) was one of those attending the movie, "Hangar 18," at the Ritz Theater here Friday night who was ecstatic in his praise of the film.

AN EVENING WELL SPENT — Mr. and Mrs. Travis Floyd seemed delighted with what they saw in the movie, "Hangar 18," screened here Friday night at the Ritz Theater.

"WHAT HAPPENED?" — Pretty Marva Allen of Big Spring had a speaking part in the Sunn Classic movie, "Hangar 18," but it wound up on the cutting room floor.

Was THE movie worth $5?

(Continued from page 1) soap opera replies. "The question is, do we want to open it?" I get a craving for corn. The only thing we find out is what we all thought when we met this actor at a local business establishment. He still thinks he is a heart throb.

What they never explain in the film is how the U.F.O. was transferred to the base. Does one use a tow truck to move something of this magnitude? Does the manager of this service station charge double his fee for this type of service? Does he put it on two back wheels and crank it up? Since the scientists explore it for the first time while it is in the hangar, they obviously did not hire someone with a U.F.O. pilot's license to fly it in there.

because they were filming there. I'll never forget getting completely lost getting there. I remember something about my car landing in a ditch on one of the unpaved roads. I'm glad I suffered nothing serious. Applause for 11th Place Hey, wait, nobody is clapping with me.

And there are more locals. There is Martha Coborn and Clyde McMahon Jr. and Steve Lewis and a host of others. And the film goes on. They are still after the astronauts. Hampton gets killed. I turn around to look two rows behind me. There he sits. My eyes are playing tricks. It's a good thing I don't drink in Hollywood, maybe they're used to this type of thing. Will we ever get used to it in Big Spring? Maybe this really is a premiere.

astronauts, but we were never given enough. Too little appetizer, not enough entree. I do not think much was expected out of a company that makes films such as "The Lincoln Conspiracy," "Mysterious Monsters" and "In Search of Noah's Ark."

It was time to go over to the college for the reception. There was Chuck Sellier, producer of the flick, co-writer of the book and head honcho of the company walking around with a smile from ear to ear. And over here is Hampton surrounded constantly by a crowd. Here are the others from the company walking around, taking the compliments, soaking it all up. I congratulate Hampton. He asks me if I like the film. I tell him I like parts of it. Not enough scenes with him and Collins. He thanks me.

"FANTASTIC" — That was the way Mac McMillan described the wonders of the movie, "Hangar 18," which was screened for the benefit of a special audience at the Ritz Theater here Friday night.

Kennedy in upbeat mood

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was waiting for a flight home at the end of a long day of campaigning recently when he realized he had 15 minutes to spare. So the Massachusetts senator ducked into a spare airport office and made one more telephone call to one more Democratic National Convention delegate.

Weather

El Paso's 108 breaks old record

It was the same song, umpteenth verse for those cities in the grip of the 1980 heat wave Saturday. In El Paso, a high of 108 broke a 20-year-old record of 103 and extended the number of consecutive 100-degree days to 51.

Wichita Falls also had 108 and Dallas-Fort Worth, 104. Those areas now have had 41 consecutive days of 100 degrees or higher. It was 102 in Waco and Austin tied a 22-year-old record with a 101 reading. Abilene's high of 102 marked the 36th consecutive day of 100-degree-plus temperatures there.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Table with 3 columns: Location, High, Low, Precip. Includes cities like Abilene, Alice, Alpine, Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Brownsville, etc.

FORECAST

White House releases another Billy cable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House made public Saturday another State Department cable from the U.S. Embassy in Libya on a visit by Billy Carter to the North African nation.

The two sentence, unclassified message merely reports that the president's brother arrived in Libya for a Sept. 1, 1979 parade. He also had visited Libya a year earlier.

Also released were copies of two confidential letters from William L. Eagleton Jr., the charge d'affaires at the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli, to the State Department reporting on Billy Carter's "low profile" behavior.

The 1979 visit was the younger Carter's second trip to Libya. Seven cables about his first trip, in 1978, were made public on Thursday.

Vandals roaming Big Spring

Vandals roamed Big Spring late Friday and early Saturday, resulting in nine separate cases of criminal mischief being reported.

All cases except one involved automobile windows being shattered.

J.H. Barber of 107 Algeria had between midnight and 12:55 a.m. Saturday a window to his car was broken.

Greg Moore of 1311 Princeton also reported the driver's side window to his vehicle shattered between 11:45 p.m. and midnight Saturday.

Levora McNeese of 2409 E. 25th reported Saturday that late Friday night the rear window to her vehicle was damaged.

Joe Porras of 511 Johnson reported Saturday that between 10:15 and 10:45 p.m. Friday a window to his car was broken.

Delores Gillenwater of 3213 Auburn reported Saturday that between 9:20 p.m. and 10:33 p.m. Friday the rear window to her automobile was shot out while the vehicle was parked at Hall-Bennett Hospital.

Two Big Spring residents were mugged over the weekend.

Juan Jalamo of 212 N. Gregg reported that he was assaulted around 11:55 a.m.

'Get the Chinamen out of Korea'

Truman twice considered nuclear threat

HOUSTON (AP) — President Harry S. Truman twice considered using the threat of nuclear war against China and the Soviet Union, the Houston Chronicle said Saturday in a copyright story.

Francis L. Loewenheim, Rice University historian, said Truman considered the threats as a means of ending the Korean war and made them in his own handwriting in an intermittent journal he kept while in the White House from April 1945 to January 1953.

Loewenheim wrote that the memoranda included scathing denunciations of the Communist regimes but Truman apparently intended his writings for his eyes only.

"Truman's hot temper was well known in his lifetime, and likewise cannot be discounted as a factor in his writing as he did... for his own eyes," Loewenheim wrote.

"His outpouring, in that sense, it might be argued, was a kind of catharsis. His feelings somewhat relieved, the president would try again, together with impetuously patient men like Secretary (Dean) Acheson, to bring about some kind of honorable, lasting peace in Korea."

Loewenheim said the memoranda were retained in Truman's highly personal records in his own wing of the Truman Library at Independence, Mo., until some years after his death in 1972.

The Chronicle story, published Sunday, quoted from documents dated Jan. 27 and May 18, 1952.

The Jan. 27 memo read, in part:

"It seems to me that the proper approach now would be an ultimatum with a ten day expiration limit, informing Moscow that we intend to blockade the China coast from the Korean border to Indo-China, and that we intend to destroy every military base in Manchuria, including submarine bases, by means now in our control — and if there is further interference we shall eliminate any ports or cities necessary to accomplish our peaceful purposes."

The document said Russia had broken every agreement made at Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam, had raped Poland, Romania, "Czechoslovakia," Hungary, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, was holding prisoners of war contrary to cease-fire terms and had kidnapped children in every country occupied.

"This program is evidently a continuing one. It must stop and stop now. We of the free world have suffered long enough."

"Get the Chinamen out of Korea."

"Give Poland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Rumania and Hungary their freedom. Stop supplying war materials to the thugs who are attacking the world and settle down to an honorable policy of keeping agreements which have already been made."

It repeated the earlier charges about holding World War II prisoners of war and then continued:

"How many South Korean and Allied prisoners have you shot without cause. You claim you hold only 12,000 prisoners. Where are the other thousands of civilians and soldiers you carried off from South Korea."

"If you signed an agreement it wouldn't be worth the paper it is written on."

FARM FORUM

By RONNIE WOOD

Arabic arithmetic may be come a required course for American farmers. This special sort of mathematical learning is based on a very simple premise, "if you control a resource the rest of the world has to have, make sure they pay for it." American agricultural producers' ability to supply a large portion of the world's food has been responsible for a variety of new terms developed during the past few years... some even in the past few months. First... food power, then Agri-power... now, some politicians are talking about "agridollars." In balance of trade situation, the American public will benefit as long as the "agridollars" coming in equal or exceed the "petrodollars" going out. From that point the future looks bright... nearly everyone had rather run out of gas than groceries.

Fuel failed to reach poor in cold winter

BOSTON (AP) — Millions of gallons of low-cost heating oil obtained by Joseph P. Kennedy III failed to reach poor people in Massachusetts last winter, and now a federal agency is trying to get back about $1.5 million it provided for the project.

But state and federal officials and Kennedy himself say they are confident the snags in the first-in-the-nation program can be worked out and that the oil eventually will reach the needy.

Last year Kennedy, son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, formed the non-profit Citizens Energy Corp., which purchased crude oil from Venezuela, had it refined and sold the heating oil to the state for 47 cents a gallon. That was about half the price fuel oil dealers were charging.

Kennedy said he could charge the lower price because his company took no profit on the heating oil. He also sold other products, such as gasoline, at market prices and used the money to reduce the heating oil prices.

In February the state paid Kennedy's corporation $3.9 million for nearly 8½ million gallons of heating oil.

But about 4 million gallons never got past state storage tanks.

That created a problem: the federal government, which allowed the state to use energy aid money to buy the oil, set a June 30 deadline for completion of deliveries. When the state missed the deadline, the U.S. Community Services Administration asked the state to return $1 million to $2 million. The amount is not precise because of disagreements over how much oil remains in storage depots.

The money hasn't been returned.

The Massachusetts Law Reform Institute recently won a preliminary order from a federal judge in Boston allowing the state to hold on to the money, at least for now.

State Energy Office spokesman Larry Carpmann and Kennedy said the oil will be just as useful this winter.

"It's in storage now. We are attempting to keep it in storage until we devise a plan that will be agreeable with the federal government," Carpmann said.

State energy officials and Kennedy said the fact the heating oil did not reach the state until February contributed to the distribution problem.

EXTINGUISHING FIRE — Soviet policemen gather round smoky fire that broke out suddenly in Moscow's Red Square Saturday about 1 p.m., in an attempt to extinguish it. Witnesses reported seeing a human body in the midst of the smoking flames that was quickly carried off by police. The square was cordoned off for several hours until all traces of the incident could be cleaned away.

Hammerman dismissed a deadly weapon charge Friday against Thelma C. Trumper, 36, of Baltimore.

Fighting prejudice

I'm not ready to retire, but I'm willing to admit that I'm fighting to keep from developing prejudices against the Democratic National Convention in comparison, the Marines had it easy on Iwo Jima.

Board found some fat to trim from higher education's budget requests for the next biennium?

In meetings last week with officials from several universities, budget board staff members kept asking about the number of teaching assistants at each school, how they are selected and what they do to earn their paychecks.

The staff members also asked officials whether they have problems with employees working other jobs in order to make ends meet.

Two officials said they encourage professors to do some outside work to stay in touch with the more practical side of their professions. But Elliott Bowers, president of Sam Houston State University at Huntsville, added that professors on his campus must not increase their pay by more than 20 percent.

Viking dragonship alert

HAWLEY, Minn. (AP) — The Coast Guard has been alerted if someone sees a Viking dragon ship cruising around on Lake Superior this week, stay calm. That will be Bob Asp.

"We will soon know," Asp was saying as he surveyed his marvelous handiwork, now moored in this tiny prairie village surrounded by sunflower fields, "whether it floats right side up."

If Asp had any doubt that his ship would float right side up, or that he will sail it across the sea to Norway in a gesture of gratitude, he would not have made it the passion of his life.

"Some dreams seem so remote even the dreamer knows they will never become reality," he said.

"Mine might have appeared as that sort of dream, but it never was, not in my mind. When I first got the idea, and said to myself, 'Why not?' I knew I could do it, and would."

So he did. He cut oak trees, 150 of them, from all over the state. He sawed them into lumber. He turned an abandoned potato warehouse into a shipyard and put up a sign: Shipyard. He cut, planned, riveted and caulked. For nearly 10 years, he labored like a man obsessed.

What emerged a fortnight ago from its warehouse womb — by knocking out the front wall — was a full-fledged Viking ship, a precise copy of the Gokstad Viking ship in the Oslo museum, the one in all the history books, an oaken colossus 76½ feet long, 17½ feet wide.

Asp christened his ship "Hjemkomst," in the tongue of his Norwegian forebears, "Homecoming."

"I want my trip to represent all those Scandinavian immigrants who came here and settled so thickly in this part of America. They never forgot their native land, never lost their love for it, but could never return, many of them, not even for a visit."

If his plans stay on schedule, Asp will truck his ship clear across the state to Duluth, arriving Wednesday, launch it Thursday and sail on Lake Superior.

We're prone to neglect alleyways

Most everyone who has been overwhelmed by the magnificence of major edifices in this country invariably are disappointed if they happen to view those same structures from their back sides.

The alleyways adjacent to the buildings, more often than not, are a dreary succession of garbage containers, utility outlets, telephone poles and poorly kept fences — complemented by flora that is not always correctly maintained.

MANY AMERICAN homes, no matter how impressive they look from the street, sadly suffer the same sort of neglect. To be brutally frank, most alleyways in Big Spring are disgraces. Grass and weeds are allowed to grow as high as an elephant's eye. Once such growth gets out of control, it stops all the debris that blows its way, adding to the unsightliness.

It doesn't take very long for weeds, brush and trash to increase health, fire and safety hazards. Rats, roaches and mosquitos thrive in unkept alleys. The risk of fire increases once the grass and weeds dry out during the latter days of summer and in the fall. Roaring conflagrations that consume entire houses and apartment buildings have been started in remote alleyways.

Another argument for cleaner alleyways is the fact that we would have fewer allergies if cleanliness was practiced all over our property. Weeds invariably are a bane for such sufferers.

From time to time the City of Big Spring offered unlimited cooperation if alley cleanups are started, but the appeal to home owners for cooperation, more often than not, falls on deaf ears. More than a few people think, no doubt, that the responsibility to keep the alleys clean is the responsibility of the city when that is not the case at all.

PROPERTY OWNERS are inconsistent in their pledges to keep alleyways clean. People who rent property usually are far worse.

Instead, they are prone to accuse the landlord of dereliction of duty and never move a hand to eliminate the eyesores that accumulate.

All garbage containers should have lids and be kept closed at all times. Regrettably, here they are not. Old tree limbs dumped in alleyways should be moved. They rarely are, perhaps because the resident does not have the right kind of vehicle to cart them away.

The home is usually the biggest investment we make. The value of it will be enhanced remarkably if we use the same painstaking care 'policing' the back side of the property as we do in the front. We owe it to ourselves to undertake such missions regularly.

Oh, to be swinger

Art Buchwald

(Since Art Buchwald is now leading in the polls against Carter, Reagan and Anderson, his political managers have advised him to take a few weeks off to formulate his summer strategy. He left behind some of his favorite columns.)

It's very hard for many college students to live up to the roles they have been given by the mass media. What newspapers, magazines, and television networks expect from students is more than most of them can deliver. I discovered this when I was speaking at a Midwestern campus not long ago.

A student, whom I shall call Ronald Hoffman, seemed very troubled, and I asked him what the problem was.

"My parents are coming up next week, and I don't know what to do."

"Why?"

"Well, you see, I told them I was living off campus with this coed in an apartment. But the truth is that I'm living in the dormitory."

"That shouldn't really disturb them."

"OH, BUT IT will. They're very proud of me, and they think I should have a mind of my own. When my dad heard I was living off campus with a coed, he doubled my allowance because, as he put it, 'Anyone who is willing to spit in the eye of conformity deserves his father's support.' I don't know what he's going to say when he finds out I used the money for books."

"It'll hurt him," I agreed, "but will your mother say?"

"I don't know. She's been crying a lot since I wrote her about living with this coed, and Dad's been arguing with her that her trouble is she doesn't understand youth. Mom's likely to get pretty sore when she discovers she's been crying for nothing."

"Not to mention how silly your father will look for making her cry?"

Ronald shook his head sadly. "The trouble with parents these days is they believe everything they read. Time magazine, in a 'Sex on the Campus' article, made it sound so easy to find a coed who won't even do the dishes."

"Then all this talk of students living out of wedlock is exaggerated?"

"EXAGGERATED? WHEN I got here, I asked 10 girls if they wanted to live with me. The first one said she didn't come to college to iron shirts for the wrong guy, four told me frankly that it would hurt their chances of finding a husband, four told me to drop dead, and one reported me to the campus police. I was lucky to get a room in the dormitory."

"I guess it's no fun for a young man to pretend he's a swinger."

"You can say that again. Every time I go home, everybody wants to know about the pot parties and orgies I go to at school. The only thing that's saved me is that I've seen 'Caligula' twice."

"You have to depend on your imagination?"

"What college boy doesn't?"

Ronald said, "There are more conscientious objectors among coeds in the sexual revolution than any modern sociologist would dare admit."

"It's enough to destroy your faith in People magazine," I said.

"Look, I'm not complaining," Ronald said. "I'm just trying to figure out how to explain it to my father. He's living his fantasies through me, and I hate to let him down."

"Why don't you tell him the reason you can't introduce the coed you're living with is that she's going to have a baby?"

"Hey," Ronald said, "that's a great idea. It might cause Mom to cry again, but it will make Dad awfully proud."

"Well, here they come... Illegal aliens!"

Shoulder joint: Lots can go wrong

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Will you please help a high school teenager who's whole life is swimming, but who seems to be running into trouble? Her right shoulder is beginning to hurt, and she worries that she may have to give up her young career. Up to now everything has been OK. What should this young girl do? — Anxious Mother

She should begin with a professional diagnosis of what precisely is causing this pain, the sooner the better. An orthopedic doctor would be the one to look up.

The shoulder joint is one of the most amazing in the body. If you compare the motions of which it is capable with those of, say, the elbow, you get an idea. The elbow is only a hinge that bends and straightens. The shoulder rotates, elevates, depresses and moves the arm toward or away from the body — a lot of work for one joint.

It doesn't come without a price. There are so many muscles, tendons and bones required for all this variety of motion that the cause or combination of causes for shoulder pain are staggering. A common problem with swimmers is inflammation of tendons that pass near the joint, especially the tendon of the biceps muscle. That's the large muscle on the front of the upper arm — the "show off" muscle, if we can call it that.

Another problem that would produce pain at the top of the shoulder is irritation of the muscles that arise from the shoulder blade and pass down over the joint on the way to their attachment to the upper arm. Those muscles make up the famous "rotator cuff" which you hear about a lot in baseball season when pitching arms go bad. Bursitis of the shoulder is another, more general cause of pain.

This girl needs rest and she needs to have heat applied to the shoulder. If she is not incapacitated and does continue working out, the shoulder should be packed with ice after sessions.

I hesitate to advise exercises unless she has seen a doctor and has gotten approval. With that in mind, I might suggest stretching exercises. She can hold a pole in her hands behind her back. Then while bending forward, she should raise her arms upward, then spread her arms upward, then spread her hands farther apart on the pole. She should stop at the first sign of pain.

Persistent shoulder pain should receive some attention. It is too important a joint to permit permanent damage to occur by delaying expert advice.

Dear Dr. Donohue: We enjoy your column very much. It was with interest I read your column about "D.A.R." and her sore knuckles after bowling. I own a bowling center and pro shop, and consider myself expert at measuring and drilling bowling balls. It has been my experience that most sore and swollen knuckles come from a ball that does not fit properly. The distance between the thumb and finger holes is too short, therefore putting unnecessary strain on the fingers. Also, some bowlers upon reaching 50 should consider changing to a lighter ball. — J.N.

Those are good points, J.N. There were obviously holes in my answer on that one.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What kinds of vitamins should be given to a young athlete prior to an athletic event calling for lots of stamina? What do the professionals use? — Mrs. R.Y.

Vitamins beyond what one gets in a balanced daily diet will not enhance physical performance, professional or any other kind.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My grandson, age 12, was kicked during gym class on the inner part of his upper thigh. He is still having trouble. The explanation was that there was injury to a muscle, with the lump representing calcium. Will this lump disappear with time? — J.M.

This is myositis ossificans, which means literally "muscle becoming bone." It is a complication of a blow to a muscle. A large collection of blood forms in the muscle, and that is called a "hematoma." Hematomas may become ossified — turn into bone. This, I assume, is what happened to your grandson.

Immediate treatment is to put the muscle at rest. Applying heat is permitted. Movement should be permitted only if it is painless. The condition often subsides on its own, and whatever stiffness there is disappears in time. The entire rehabilitation process may take several months.

If the bone formation in the muscles cannot be stopped through conservative measures as described above, and if pain persists, then surgical removal of the ossified area may be necessary. This is done after the injury-caused bone formation has subsided.

In response to reader requests, Dr. Donohue's publisher now has a complete listing of all the booklets on various medical problems. Readers wishing this list can write him care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return mailing.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My problem is that my friends constantly try to get me to do things that I know are wrong. I seem to always give in to the pressure, although I feel guilty afterwards. How can I change? — S.O.

DEAR S.O.: Pressure from other people can be very strong power, and one that many find hard to resist. Most of us want to be liked, and don't want to be considered odd or run the risk of being disliked.

But there are times when we must run that risk and resist the crowd if we are to do what is right. The Bible tells us that there are some things which displease God and are always wrong — just as there are some things which are always right. When we give in and do what is wrong, we not only harm ourselves, but commit sin.

How can you have strength to resist the temptations you face? First, you need to face honestly the fact that you are not strong enough. I am sure you have tried and tried, and you have made promises and resolutions without end, and yet you still give in. No, you can't resist temptation, — but God can help you. Confess your sin and your weakness to Him and ask Him to come into your life and cleanse it. Then ask him to help you each day to resist the temptations you face.

Then Christ will help you by giving you new friends — Christian friends who will encourage you and support you in your commitment to live for Christ. He also will give you a new power — the power of the Holy Spirit. Live for Christ — it's the only path of joy and lasting peace.

Rallied to help

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — In an earlier column, I mentioned the tendency of the Carter administration's Georgia good ol' boys to rally around a friend in trouble.

That was a possible explanation for the strange, step-by-step timing that circumstantially linked Jimmy Carter's support of warplane sales to the Saudi Arabian government with the bailout of his buddy Bert Lance by a Saudi businessman who had close ties to the Saudi royal family.

Now it appears that the same Georgia network may have been behind the financial bailout of the No. 1 Good Ol' Boy — Jimmy Carter himself — at a crucial point in his campaign for the presidency.

THE TANGLED transactions of the Carter family business in the spring of 1976 raise the distinct possibility that Bert Lance had earned the right to later favors by some extremely lenient treatment of a $115 million loan to Carter's Warehouse at a time when the Carter campaign was badly in need of cash.

Even more disturbing is the possibility that the subsequent investigation of Carter's campaign funding was given correspondingly lenient treatment because of the same good ol' boy network.

As uncovered by my reporter Peter Peckarsky, the terms of the $115 million loan required the posting of collateral — in this case peanuts — worth 125 percent of the loan in bonded storage. Yet for the entire seven weeks when Federal Election Commission matching payments were being held up — from March 23 to May 14, 1976 — there wasn't a single peanut in bonded storage as collateral for the loan.

The explanation for this benign neglect of strict banking practices was that the collateral was actually in unbonded storage. And sure enough, on the day matching federal funds were assured to the Carter campaign, the Carter warehouse suddenly put $665,550 worth of peanuts into bonded storage.

WHY WERE they in unbonded storage during the seven weeks that the campaign was starved for federal funds? No explanation. But in unbonded storage the collateral could have been used for a secret loan to the hard-pressed Carter primary campaign. The "double duty" of the collateral could have been possible only if Lance relaxed the loan requirement of bonded storage. It would have been extremely difficult to use peanuts in bonded storage as collateral for another loan.

There is no proof, of course, of a secret loan. Paul Curran, the Justice Department's special counsel, gave Jimmy Carter a clean bill of health. But Curran himself had ties to the Georgia network. He was appointed by then-Attorney General Griffin Bell, a Carter friend and law partner (before and after taking office) of Charles Kirbo, who handles the president's financial affairs. And Curran's report was accepted by the attorney general, Benjamin Civiletti — who got his first job in Carter's Justice Department on the recommendation of Kirbo.

As for the president's indebtedness to a Saudi-controlled bank, which I reported in previous columns, Curran declined to pursue a possible conflict of interest. Interestingly, Curran's own law firm represents Texaco, one of the four American oil companies that make up Aramco, the organization that produces Saudi Arabian oil.

THE CAVIAR CAVALIER: During the years he was in Washington as Iranian ambassador, suave, handsome Ardeshir Zahedi, one-time son-in-law of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, cut a wide social swath. The parties he gave were lavish affairs, equally elegant were the gifts he handed out to those he was trying to influence or impress.

Many of those on his gift list were top-flight members of the media. I've obtained a copy of Zahedi's list — "United States: Mass Media" — for 1975-76. It is a meticulous log of the Christmas presents he gave to an average of 250 members of the press each year.

The gifts ranged from $150 editions of Omar Khayyam's poetry, leather-bound on parchment paper, to silver baubles from Cartier, Persian silk rugs and a $7,000 diamond watch. The standard stocking-stuffer from the Iranian Santa Claus was a 15-ounce tin of the finest Iranian caviar (value: $350) or a bottle or two of Dom Perignon champagne.

Three secretaries were kept busy full time, logging the ambassador's gifts, and the shah set up a $19,000 slush fund for spur-of-the-moment giving by Zahedi.

Some of the media heavies had had second thoughts now about the propriety of accepting the Iranian largesse. But only one present in the ambassador's long list was marked "returned."

UNDER THE DOME: In a bit of pre-Fourth of July fireworks only partially reported in the Congressional Record, House Speaker Tip O'Neill blew up at one of the more persistent Republican thorns in his side, Rep. Bob Bauman of Maryland. "You're showing the same respect for this body that you always do!" O'Neill shouted during a foreign aid debate, Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, chimed in, questioning Bauman's competence in foreign affairs. "Do you want him as secretary of state?" yelled Wright. Not one bit cowed by his elders, Bauman stood up and declared, "I accept."

Former Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., caught congressional bookkeepers flatfooted with his surprise resignation June 3, prior to entering prison on fraud and kickback charges. What concerns the House administrative officials is Diggs' ability to pay Congress back the $40,000 he admitted missing.

No growth projected for 80-81 school year

By DON WOODS
Big Spring School District officials are projecting no growth in attendance totals in 1980-81 school year, but add that there is no way to accurately predict the number of students.

Bentley. However, when Webb Air Force Base was closed by the government, growth became less apparent. Also, officials find it impossible to keep track of the higher degree of family moving within town and from one town to another.

expected in attendance in the city's seven elementary schools. Golind enrollment is an expected 750 students, he said.

At the Big Spring High School, 1,475 students are expected. In the Head Start program, officials applied for funds for 215 students from the Department of Health Education and Welfare of the federal government.

Attendance figures will not hit the projected high on the first day. Projected enrollment for 1980-1981 is based on last year's maximums he said.

The 1980 U.S. Census, said Bentley, will not help officials determine the number of students to expect because it doesn't break the population into age groups.

In Midland-Odessa, school attendance figures do not increase in proportion to overall population figures, but school officials in general used birth rate figures to determine that 1985 will be a boom year for school attendance.

"First grade, second grade, any grade... you have some kids move in," said Bentley. "One grade increases, another decreases..."

HC enrollment up 43 percent

Enrollment totals at Howard College for both summer sessions is up 43 percent over the same period last year, according to Jan Dunagan, Registrar at HC.

Howard College has enrolled a total of 711 students for both summer sessions, as compared to 496 students for last year's summer sessions.

Of those contact hours, 38,104 were academic contact hours and 42,960 were vocational-technical contact hours.

Pre-registration at HC continues through Aug. 7

Students wishing to pre-register for courses during the upcoming Fall semester at Howard College may still do so until 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 7, in the Registrar's Office located in the Administration Building, according to Jan Dunagan, Registrar at HC. Times for pre-registration for the Fall semester are from 7 a.m. until 5:30 p.m.

Forms for immunization records and transcript requests will be provided by the Registrar for students to fill out for registration. All students planning to attend classes full-time are asked to bring their ACT or SAT scores. Students who have not completed one of these tests will still be eligible to register. Howard College will offer the ACT test Tuesday, Aug. 19.

Registration for the Fall semester at Howard College is scheduled from 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 21 for sophomore students, and from 8 a.m. till noon, and 1-4 p.m. Friday, Aug. 22 for freshmen students. Registration for evening students will be from 6-8:30 p.m., Aug. 21-22.

Contact hours (actual class time) have also experienced an increase over this same period last year. Total contact hours for the summer sessions last year were 56,074. This year's total is 81,064, a 43 percent increase, or 24,990 more contact hours.

Full semester classes will begin Monday, Aug. 25. For additional information about registration, contact the Registrar's Office at 267-6311, ext. 34.

"We are extremely happy to see this increase in student enrollment," said Dunagan. "As Howard College's funding is based on the amount of contact hours received per semester; the more contact hours we have, the more funding we receive from the state."

Encyclopedia can be helpful to students

Reference books in your home will mean a lot to your children in the coming school years. Educators often note that a child's success in school is closely related to the books his parents have in their home library.

Back-to-school time is a good time to review your family's reference resources, particularly to see if the books are current and up-to-date on facts. Then, when your children have questions or homework assignments, they will have reliable help right at hand. The core of any home reference library is an up-to-date, respected encyclopedia. There are many sets of widely varying qualities available but you will get your top dollar value if you insist on a top quality encyclopedia — and your best buy doesn't need to be the most expensive encyclopedia on the market.

Before you buy, check with independent, reliable sources. General Encyclopedias in Print, an independent information service for consumers, is available at your local library. While there, ask your librarian for an opinion and look over the encyclopedia you are considering.

Forsan students register for classes Aug. 12-14

Forsan School District students register for classes Aug. 12 through 14. New students to the district register Aug. 12, 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Seniors register Aug. 13, 9 to 11:30 a.m. Juniors register 1 to 3:30 p.m. the same day. Sophomores register Aug. 14 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Freshmen register the same day at 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Athletes should report with physicals before they can work out.

Drug abuse is highest among ages 18-25

Those in the age group of 18-25 years have the highest percentage of drug abuse, according to the National Institute on Drug Abuse. Although drug abuse is not confined to young people, they are cause for special concern: experts feel that if young persons do not abuse drugs between the ages of 8 to 20, they are less likely to have serious drug problems later on.

While some drugs, such as barbiturates or narcotics, are especially dangerous in that they affect the body's physical system, any drug can be harmful, medical authorities point out. For more information on this serious health problem, write to the National Clearinghouse for Drug Abuse Information, 5600 Fishers Lane, Room 10A-56, Rockville, MD 20857.

Dry weather crops are looking better

By STEVE HERSHBERGER

In this area cotton is king, but farmers in this county have insurance against a possible decline in the future in the prices for the white fiber.

The insurance is the plant guar, which is a summer annual legume that grows best in sandy loam soils and requires minimum amounts of water.

Bill Fryrear with the USDA Experimental Station here commented, "If something else happens to the cotton market, we have something else to grow."

The Guar seed contains a gum which forms a thick gel in water. The gum has food and industrial uses. The best known food use is in soft ice cream, artificial breakfast drinks, whip and chill puddings, barbecue sauces and salad dressings.

The gum in these uses serves as a stabilizer, giving the processed food improved texture by keeping materials in suspension.

Larger volume uses of guar gum are in cloth and paper sizings and oil well drilling muds.

After extraction of the gum, the remains of the legume are used in a meal for cattle and sheep. The meal contains about 35 percent protein and is 95 percent digestible.

Guar was introduced to the United States in 1903 from India, where it is grown for exports and human consumption.

Commercial production of guar began in the early 1950's in South Texas, but the center for farming the legume moved north to the Rolling Plains of Texas and Oklahoma.

"In fact," Fryrear said, "there used to be a fair acreage of it in the 50's."

The price of guar does not quite compare to cotton at this time.

"The contract price on guar, I believe, is 10 to 12 cents a pound," Fryrear said. The normal yield, he added, of the legume is between 1200 and 1500 pounds an acre.

But, commenting on the experimental farming of guar at the USDA field, Fryrear said, "We have produced as high as 2200 pounds an acre."

These prices and yields compare to the 60 cents a pound for cotton lint, with about 500 pounds of lint being produced capably on an acre in Howard County.

Guar can fit in well in the Howard County area. It is drought resistant. According to the Texas A&M University Extension Service, when moisture is short for the guar legume, growth stops until water becomes available. The plant is best adapted to area with 20 inches of annual rainfall.

Excessive rain after maturity causes the seed to turn black and shrivel, which lowers the quality of the beans.

Guar also looms to fit into a crop rotating program. The legume serves as a soil-improving crop because it fixes nitrogen back into the ground. Increased yields are realized from other crops following a year with guar. This is due mainly to the increased soil fertility.

A three-year test at the Extension Service's Chillocothe Experiment Station showed in rotation with cotton, yields of the white fiber increased 15 percent.

The demand for the product is expected to increase in the next several years, the Extension Service projects. The reasons for this increase are the growing wide use of guar gum in a number of different products and efforts by companies in this country to obtain a larger percentage of their guar supply from domestic production. Presently, there are two marketing outlets for guar beans in the Rolling Plains area. General Mills has a plant in Munday; and Stein, Hall & Co. in Vernon.

The market price of guar beans is based on the portion of the endosperm of the seed with the hull and germ removed.

Official grain standards for guar beans have not been established by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Commercial companies have set grades to based prices on. Grade factors are the amount of moisture and foreign material and the weight per bushel.

Jeter named associate publisher of Drill Bit

Larry Jeter has been named general manager and associate publisher of Drill Bit magazine, a monthly trade publication established in 1953 which serves the oil and gas industry of the Permian Basin and North Central Texas, according to Donald Hart, editor and publisher.

Jeter, who recently completed an intensive nine-month management internship in which he was actively involved in all phases of the publication's operations, will direct the overall activities of Drill Bit from its office in Midland.

"We are most pleased to have at the helm a person of Larry's experience and ability. He knows intimately, from the ground floor up, the many different functions that go into publishing a magazine of Drill Bit's caliber," said Hart, president of Hart Publications, Inc.

Before joining the firm in 1979, Jeter spent five years with San Antonio-based Harte Hanks Communications, most recently as general manager of Basin Weekly newspaper in Odessa. He spent the four years before that in advertising and sales with the Abilene Reporter News, another Harte Hanks newspaper.

LARRY JETER

A native of Post Oak, Tex., he holds a bachelor of arts degree in business administration from McMurry College in Abilene.

A former U.S. Army helicopter pilot, he joined the service in 1964 as a private and later received a direct commission from chief warrant officer to first lieutenant. He served in the Army nine years in Viet Nam, Germany, Korea and at various U.S. posts, attaining the rank of captain. He was awarded the bronze star, the air medal for valor, 19 other air medals as well as the Army commendation medal.

Jeter, his wife, Jan, and their children, Steven, 10, and Brandy, 9, reside in Odessa.

A new Texas law could help save your child's vision.

A new law in Texas requires every child to have a vision screening test before or soon after entering public school this year.

The testing is important, because your child could have vision problems without knowing it and without your being aware of it. Yet 80 per cent of what a child knows is learned through the eyes.

To find out the true condition of your child's eyes, TSO recommends an examination by a qualified practitioner.

If the examination shows that your child needs corrective eyewear, you can depend on us for glasses made exactly to the doctor's prescription—at reasonable prices.

TSO has provided prescription eyewear of outstanding quality to millions of people for over 45 years. We want people to be able to afford the kind of eyewear that helps them see as well as they should.

Actors' strike clips film work in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The actors strike that has stopped the cameras on the film and television industry is holding up millions of dollars in productions in Texas, according to the executive director of the Texas Film Commission.

Pat Wolfe said several movie and TV projects in the state came to a halt when the actors struck. A $17 million movie project in El Paso, starring Jack Nicholson, "had to abruptly pull the plug," she said.

Filming has also stopped in Maxwell, near Austin, where Sissy Spacek was working on "Raggedy Man."

"It could mean about $52.7 million could be affected in this state if it is not resolved. About a third of that would have stayed in the state," she said.

Ms. Wolfe was interviewed on State Capitol Dateline, scheduled for be aired Sunday on Wendell Mayes' radio stations.

Ms. Wolfe also said work on the television series "Dallas," with a budget of $750,000 an episode, stopped when the picket lines went up.

The Texas Film Commission, a division of the governor's office, has been successful in luring film companies out of Hollywood. Last year, on a budget of $149,000, the commission brought in $58 million for the state.

"We are making money for the state. We are one of the very few divisions of any government that can say that," Ms. Wolfe said.

She predicted even more movie money for the state as film makers discover what's available in Texas.

"We've got a lot of film related services," she said. "We've also got a variety of terrain, unlike most states."

Three Texas-produced movies — "Honeysuckle Rose," "Roadie" and "Urban Cowboy" — are currently doing well at the box office, according to Ms. Wolfe.

She also reported that Texas locations will be selected for future commercials filmed for Lone Star beer. A current ad campaign for the Texas brew was filmed in California.

"I had a meeting with the director of advertising for that brewery last Monday. I do not anticipate we will ever hear that they shot a commercial outside of the state of Texas again," she said.

Council will discuss rates

STANTON — The Stanton city council will consider a resolution to intervene in the current Southwestern Bell Telephone Company rate call when it convenes here at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The council will also contemplate the awarding of a bid to pave various streets in Stanton, consider an ordinance adjusting the sewer and garbage rates for residential, commercial and out-of-city customers, discuss police department personnel and operations and open sealed bids for the paving of other streets within the city.

RPC will not meet Aug. 13

Because there is a lack of agenda items, the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission will forego its Aug. 13 meeting.

Next board meeting is now scheduled for Sept. 10 at the Midland Air Terminal.

'I'm glad I was there'

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The new director of NJ Transit rode the North Jersey Coast Line to see what passengers are complaining about — and got stuck in a three-hour delay affecting more than 11,000 commuters.

The director, Jerome Premo, was invited by state Sen. Thomas Gagliano on a fact-finding tour Thursday evening.

"I'm glad I was there," Premo, who became NJ Transit's executive director six weeks ago, said Friday. "I know a lot more about the coast line this morning than I did Thursday."

Gagliano said, "It was just horrible. But in a sense, I was happy the conditions were so bad because it gave the director a first-hand view of these nighttime debacles."

His neighbor smells bad

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Eddie Barbeau got his property taxes reduced — all because his neighbor smells bad.

Barbeau, who lives next to the city's sewer plant, told the Lewis and Clark County Tax Appeals Board his property is almost worthless because of the odors caused by malfunctions in the plant's purifying system.

Varied agenda awaits board

The Howard College board of trustees will enter into personnel considerations when it convenes at noon Tuesday at the college.

Specifically, the trustees will deal with the employment of SWCID personnel, nursing instructors, the hiring of a director of the LVN program in San Angelo, the employment of a computer instructor and resignations.

The board will also consider bids on vehicles, office and dormitory furniture (including air conditioning), consider a proposal to increase tax income and address new attention to the preliminary budget for the SWCID.

President Charles Hays will offer his report before the meeting ends.

Reasons why U.S. should keep gas in energy mix

HOUSTON (AP) — Dr. Bernard S. Lee says a $100 billion investment ranks at the top of a number of important reasons why the United States should maintain the role of gas in its energy mix.

Lee is a Nanjing, China, native who now is president of the Institute of Gas Technology, a not-for-profit membership organization founded in 1941 to conduct research into a variety of energy conversion processes.

For many years, the major coal gasification research and development efforts in the United States have been carried out by the Chicago-based Institute and by the U.S. Bureau of Mines. Lee has had primary responsibility for the development of the Institute's Hygas process for producing pipeline quality gas from coal.

Natural gas now provides about 25 percent of the nation's total primary energy needs, including 41 percent of residential and commercial energy requirements and 36 percent of its industrial fuel.

Lee says conservation is a major tool for reducing dependency on foreign oil supplies but adds that the nation must have production from its own supplemental resources.

"There is now a world surplus of oil but we are still importing 7 million barrels a day and we are still in a heck of a hole," he said.

"If we want to back down imports further, we must look at synthetics."

Existing and developing technology, he said, will permit synthetics to help maintain the major role now held by gas in meeting the nation's energy demands.

Lee, who recently visited in China, said the Chinese have vast quantities of natural gas but no distribution system.

"Once you have a distribution system, gas is economical and that is why gas is a natural thing for the United States," he said.

"The United States is covered with a gas transmission and distribution network which cost $50 billion to build and which is literally irreplaceable today. An additional $50 billion has been invested by gas customers in gas burning equipment."

Lee said maximizing the use of the system and equipment will provide continuing economic benefits to gas consumers.

"Maintenance of adequate gas supplies is necessary to permit customers to benefit from their investment," he said.

"Substitute natural gas from coal can play a major role in meeting future gas requirements."

Crush of key money bills facing solons

By MARILEE STRONG
States News Service
WASHINGTON — Though faced with a crush of important legislation and budget work, an election-minded Congress has scheduled itself 45 more working days for the rest of the year.

As holiday vacations and political appearances dominate the rest of the congressional term:

— One-third of the state of Alaska hangs in the balance between conservation and development while members of Congress are reluctant to compromise in an election year.

— A worsening economy and rising unemployment will probably force the budget Congress has been trying all year to balance into the red.

The long-awaited revision of the U.S. criminal code, debated by Congress for the last nine years, will probably have to wait for another, less conspicuous year when hard vote choices on controversial civil liberty issues are not as noticeable.

— And multi-billion dollar packages of welfare reform housing and community development, jobs for ghetto youth, and nuclear and chemical waste clean-up are being churned out by segments of the federal bureaucracy while Congress drags its feet, waiting to see who will head the next Administration.

The legislators already have been out for a week to commemorate the Independence Day holiday, and another week-long recess is set for late August for Labor Day.

— And because this is an election year, Congress will get more time off for the Democratic convention — two and a half weeks for the Senate and three weeks for the House.

— "When you get right down to it, Congress doesn't spend much time on legislation in an election year," says Nancy Drabble, director of Congress Watch, the lobbying arm of Ralph Nader's citizen action group Public Citizen.

— Drabble said that this year in particular Congress has made little effort to decide major policy questions. First, she says, there has been a strong sentiment that already there are too many laws. Secondly, leaders in both houses have made it clear that the legislators should shy away from controversy which could lead to bad press.

— "Sen. Majority Leader (Robert) Byrd made a remark in private that he doesn't want to have any difficult votes in the last days before the election," said Drabble. "He said he wants to 'protect his Democrats.'"

Drabble also said that Congress is hesitant to pass legislation for fear it would be altered by a Republican administration, should former California governor Ronald Reagan be elected president in November.

Staff members admit that Congress has not allowed itself enough time to work through what are some of the most important pieces of social, economic and environmental legislation to face the country in recent years.

— Some even doubt whether Congress could finish business by working overtime.

— Talk of extra sessions both before and after the election has been raised by congressional leadership, but does not seem to be taken too seriously. House speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill had suggested the representatives reconvene between the July 4 recess and the Republican convention but no action was taken.

— Now the house is planning to meet five days a week for its remaining nine weeks. For the first five months of the year the representatives met only four days a week, with Fridays off and no votes generally taken on Mondays.

— No Saturday sessions have been scheduled, but O'Neill vowed that the Congress would come back after the November election if the remaining 11 of the 18 budget appropriations bills are not passed.

— The Senate, which also began on a four-day schedule, has expanded to five and even six days in recent weeks.

In census count, small town at disadvantage

States News Service

WASHINGTON — President Carter hosted a reception for Hispanic Democrats at the White House Thursday night against a backdrop of complaints about administration policies leveled by members of that same group.

Carter told an audience of 300, including a contingent of South Texans, he came to office nearly four years ago "determined that I would do nothing to perpetuate discrimination," but added "we have not fully won the battle for complete equality."

The ceremony included the swearing-in of Richard Rios, former head of economic opportunity programs in California, as director of the Community Services Administration.

"I have not appointed you to manage poverty programs," Carter told Rios. "I have appointed you to lead people out of poverty."

Federal programs were very much on the minds of some of the visitors who were saying this trip to Washington to complain about undercounts in the 1980 census.

Robstown Mayor Ricardo Rodriguez had planned to talk to Carter about census problems in his city, but the president departed quickly after the official ceremony. Rodriguez, along with Mayor James Flores of Mathis, were to visit with federal revenue-sharing officials Friday to get some bottom line answers as to how the census will affect their communities.

Census officials estimated $200 in federal money is spent for each person counted in the census, a fact that has already caused concern about the census count in Dallas, Fort Worth and Abilene. Each of these cities claims the federal count of the population is lower than its report.

The problem is complicated by the fact by Census Bureau rules that give cities only ten days to find a basis for appeal of the federal count.

"Large cities can double check their own figures with their own staffs," Rodriguez said, but the small cities can't, said Rodriguez. "We are at the poverty level and we can't raise this kind of challenge. It's very unfair."

John Wilson due to be ordained

John N. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn F. Wilson of Northport, Ala., will be ordained to the office of elder in the United Methodist Church Aug. 10, at 7:00 p.m. in the Sanctuary of First United Methodist Church, Johnson City, Tenn.

Bishop H. Ellis Finger, resident Bishop of the Holston Conference of the United Methodist Church will deliver the ordination sermon.

Wilson has been serving as associate minister at the First United Methodist Church since March 1, 1979.

He is a graduate of Perkins School of Theology, Dallas, receiving his Master of Sacred Music Degree in 1970 and his Master of Theology Degree in 1978.

Prior to his appointment to First United Methodist Church, he was associate minister at White Rock United Methodist Church, Dallas.

Wilson is married to the former Merry Lee Dibrell of Big Spring, and is the father of two daughters, ages 3 years and 9 months.

A reception will follow in the Fellowship Hall of the Church after the Ordination.

Cooper early pick of 5-A-A-A-A-A coaches

THE DISTRICT 5-A-A-A-A-A PRE-SEASON MAGAZINE is out, and all of the typical coaching jargons and buildup aside, it appears to be a wide open race for the title.

(For a list of local businesses that have extra copies, see Scorecard on page 2-B.)

The way the coaches see it, four teams have excellent chances at winning the league title, with the other four having the capabilities to make their voice heard.

One thing's for sure around 5-A-A-A-A this year — there are plenty of quality quarterbacks. In fact, I will be willing to bet that three of them — Midland's Michael Feldt, Cooper's Lanny Dycus and Abilene's Loyal Proffitt — will ink with major colleges on signing date next February.

Five schools return their starting QBs, with a sixth, Odessa High, returning a starting halfback converted to the signal caller in Johnny Subia.

The returning champion, Abilene Cooper, received four first place votes in the 5-A-A-A-A-A coaches poll and is the early pick to repeat to the throne. But Odessa Permian is also picked high at second, and Midland High and Midland Lee are not too far behind in the point rating.

COOPER HAD A TEAM LOADED with talent that couldn't get past bi-district last year, and Cougar Coach Ray Overton made a statement in the publication that could scare opposing mentors.

Rated just behind Cooper is Permian. Looking at Permian's lineup, one would have to wonder by the weight size if it is a ninth grade team. They are listed as extremely small, except tackle-kicker Roy Dunn, who Mojo Coach John Wilkins assesses: "He has a chance at being the best we've ever had."

But Wilkins has been known to lie concerning weight size, although it looks as though Permian's high pre-season rating is just out of respect of their past success.

Both Midland schools, equipped with new head coaches that have impressive credentials, look to be the biggest teams in 5-A-A-A-A-A.

Both have lines that average in excess of 215 pounds, and both return their starting QBs.

Abilene, Odessa and San Angelo are all picked extremely close in the point system at 5-6-7, and don't quite have the look of overall strength to go all the way. Abilene returns an excellent passer in Loyal Proffitt, and is fortunate to have acquired a tight end from Big Spring who Eagle Coach Louie Spinks thinks will be an excellent one in DAVID COFFEY.

COFFEY, WHO STARTED FOR THE STEERS last year as a quarterback and a safety, moved to Abilene last December with his parents. A growing athlete with excellent potential, Big Spring Coach Ralph Harris could no doubt have used the versatile 6'1", 180-pounder this year in his overhaul.

In the 5-A-A-A-A-A magazine, Spinks praised Coffey, who will start for Abilene at tight end and cornerback, stating: "We knew he was fast and could catch the ball, but he's also a great blocker. That was our big concern going into spring practice. He's going to be a good one."

Odessa High, which returns eight lettermen from a 6-4 team, and San Angelo, which returns 15 lettermen from a 3-6-1 team, have the potential to be spoilers.

Big Spring occupies the cellar in the pre-season ratings, which comes as no surprise.

It is hard for the other schools to have a high amount of respect for the Steers, who haven't won a district game since 1974, and scored only three touchdowns in loop play last season.

But the lack of respect could work in the Steers' favor, as there is no doubt that new head coach Harris is making some changes toward the proper direction.

THE STEERS DO HAVE ONE FAVORABLE ASPECT going for them this year, and that is their pre-season schedule. They face Snyder, a team they have a very realistic chance of beating, and then Sweetwater and Levelland, two teams that they should defeat.

If the Big Spring gridders could get off to a 3-0 non-district mark, it would no doubt pump their minds up going into the rugged 5-A-A-A-A-A schedule.

And rugged it will be. Jerry Millsaps, Odessa High's head mentor, toots the 5-A-A-A-A-A horn by saying: "I truly feel that the 5-A-A-A-A-A is the toughest district in the state, not just this year, but any year."

People in the Tyler-Longview district might argue, as might the Temple Killeen district.

But I can't see a league having more balance with good teams than 5-A-A-A-A-A apparently has this year.

Thomas Hearns KO's Pipino Cuevas in Round Two

Motor City Hitman strikes again

DETROIT (AP) — Undefeated Thomas Hearns captured the World Boxing Association welterweight title Saturday night, unleashing a furious barrage of punches to dispose of defending champion Pipino Cuevas of Mexico at 2:39 of the second round.

Hearns earned $500,000 but now stands in line for a big-money shot against either Sugar Ray Leonard or possibly Roberto Durand, the World Boxing Council welterweight champion.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Rookie left-hander Bob Ojeda won his first major league game Saturday night, combining with Bob Stanley for an eight-hit 1-0 shutout over the Texas Rangers.

Hearns lost no time in getting it on. He opened the fight with a left jab that startled Cuevas, who got in a left hook of his own then slipped on the canvas.

Hearns kept throwing left jabs and slipping away from Cuevas' reputedly devastating left hook. He didn't land any Saturday night.

The win was extremely disappointing for the Big Spring team, as they blew late inning leads on two occasions.

Danny White won't talk pressure

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Danny White has no illusions about his role with the Dallas Cowboys in 1980.

DANNY WHITE (AP LASERPHOTO)

He recognizes if the offense fails to click, the blame will be placed squarely on his shoulders.

"But really, I don't believe in all that pressure talk," said White between practice sessions at the Cowboy training camp at California Lutheran College. "If I were to take over at quarterback on a mediocre team, it would be different. In that case the fans and media would be looking for me to turn the situation around."

The 28-year-old product of Arizona State University and the defunct World Football League approaches his new job with the team concept in mind.

"No one man is responsible for the Cowboy season," maintains the quietly confident White, who enjoyed all-star status in college as a WFL. "Certainly, my role as quarterback is most important, but don't forget I will be getting an awful lot of help from everyone on the offensive unit. We will all have to pick up the slack caused by Roger's retirement."

"Don't look for much difference in the hite-led Cowboys. The offensive concepts remain the same as in the Staubach era.

"We will be doing the same things everyone associates with us," said White. "You don't change a successful system just because one man retires."

Nevertheless, it is difficult to ignore Staubach's statistics. He led the National Football League in passing four times, including both 1978 and 1979. In his final season, Staubach completed 267 passes for 3,586 yards and 27 touchdowns with only 11 interceptions.

More importantly, with Staubach at quarterback, the Cowboys missed the playoffs only once, won two Superbowls, four NFC titles and the NFC East six times.

"I have no doubt that Danny will be an effective quarterback for the Cowboys," declared Coach Tom Landry. "He has been preparing for this opportunity for five years. He is ready to take over."

While collecting bench splinters, White was thinking seriously of leaving the Cowboys. "Nobody likes to sit on the bench," he said.

New Hall of Fame inductees give thanks to teammates, God

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — The emotion of joining the Pro Football Hall of Fame Saturday proved too much for Bob Lilly. The Dallas Cowboys great broke down and cried twice during his acceptance speech.

"I'm awful sorry," Lilly told the audience encircling the Shrine's steps after he fought back tears.

Lilly joined Herb Adderley, Jim Otto and David "Deacon" Jones as the latest inductees in the Hall of Fame, pushing the total of immortals enshrined there to 106.

Lilly, a defensive tackle, first broke when he talked of his father and of former college Coach Abe Martin, both of whom are dead.

"This is the toughest part," he warned the audience. Lilly paused to collect himself and the crowd applauded. Still sniffling, Lilly said: "I got all the attention when I was growing up. I appreciate the fact my family continues to love me."

Later, a more composed Lilly said: "All of us are here today for one reason. We played on teams that were winners. To sum it up, I deserve just a small part of this award today. It took teamwork."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry presented Lilly and said: "There won't be another Bob Lilly in my lifetime. Not only was he a great football player, but he is one of the finest individuals I have ever known."

Adderley, a left cornerback and the sixth member from the great Green Bay Packer teams of the 1960s to make the shrine, thanked God for his selection.

"I have to go back to the beginning, and the beginning was God. God is No. 1 for everything making, everything presented by long-time teammate Willie Davis.

"I can't say enough for my teammates," he said. "Without your teammates, you can't make it. Without me, this would be a great class. To be included with these guys, it's more than a pleasure."

Former Los Angeles and Washington Coach George Allen introduced Jones, a former defensive end with both his teams.

"Regardless who wins the presidency this fall, Deacon Jones should be the first Cabinet appointee as secretary of defense," Allen said.

Jones was known by that title while he was making life miserable for opposing quarterbacks in the National Football League.

Jones recalled that as a Florida youngster he fought racial bias and was denied the privileges of YMCA and junior football leagues.

"I declared my own private war against racial prejudices at the time. The student remained true to his vision," said Jones.

Otto, the only All-Star center of the American Football League had in its decade, called enshrinement a dream come true.

"Only one person I have to thank, and that's the Good Lord," said the Oakland Raiders' immortal. "I thank Him and I praise Him."

He thanked his wife for making it possible for him to play in 12 pro football all-star games. "The first three years was more of a nightmare than a dream. Without my wife, my dream might have fizzled," said Otto, presented by Al Davis, the Raiders' managing general partner.

Storm halts Packers-Chargers

Play was canceled at 6:15 p.m. at the Pro Football Hall of Fame exhibition game at Canton, Ohio, because of a severe electrical storm with accompanying heavy rain and high winds. There was no score with 5:29 left in the fourth quarter. The Chargers had the ball on the Green Bay 24-yard line.

As Twitty's bubble burst

Conner leads in Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Conner, hardly a household word on the pro golf tour, took a one-stroke lead after three rounds of the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic Saturday with an 11 under par 202.

Conner, a native of Vienna, Austria, where his father was an Army man, actually started his athletic career as a tennis pro but turned to golf because he felt there was more money to be won.

This tournament might be described as the Yo Yo contest, with all the ups and downs. On Saturday, the lead changed faster than officials could post the scores.

The biggest downer was Howard Twitty, who for the past 3½ weeks was the hottest player in golf. He won last week at Hartford, had played in the 60s 13 of 14 rounds, was 57 under par for his previous 158 holes, and hadn't lost a stroke to par in 36 holes.

But Twitty, who led the first two rounds, fell apart in Saturday's third round, posting seven bogeys. He almost made good on a prophesy made in jest when asked to explain his hot streak.

"Hey, this is a humbling game and tomorrow (Saturday) I might shoot an 80," said the one-time Arizona State player.

He carded a 41-36-77 Saturday, to virtually drop out of contention.

Conner, 34, a self-styled golf hustler in the mold of his friend and tutor, Lee Trevino, has put together rounds of 70-66-66-202, good for a one-stroke lead over defending champion Lou Graham, and Tom Kite and John Cook.

Graham, playing for the first time since June 22 because of a bad back, has 65-69-69. Kite, the one-time University of Texas phenom, 67-71-65, and Cook, the only rookie in contention, 67-70-76, all at 203.

Another stroke back are Ben Crenshaw, who has been second seven times in the last 12 months, David Graham, the transplanted Australian, and Jack Renner, a one-time tour winner from San Diego. Crenshaw has a 64-71-69 and Renner 65-68-71, each at 204.

Conner, whose best since qualifying for the tour in 1974 was a second at New Orleans last year, prepped for the tour in Asian events and mini tournaments in this country.

Conner, who admitted that he loved playing golf, even practice rounds, as long as there was a dollar at stake, came on Saturday with four straight birdies starting at the sixth hole. He capped putts in an inch, 15 feet and four feet.

On the back nine, Conner matched par until 14, when he rolled in a three-footer after a sand wedge and holed a four-footer at 16.

Ex-Olympic muscleman moving to real world here

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Writer

When the massive Sammy Walker began his new job here last week with American Petrofina, it was what could be considered a move into the real world. Walker, you see, is a former world record holder in the shot put and participant in the Montreal Olympics in the Superheavyweight Weightlifting competition. Sports, whether it be track, weightlifting or football, have been the bulk of Walker's 29 years of life thus far. And to say the least, it's been a successful 29 years of competition. Walker, who now carries 245-pounds on his well proportioned frame, first hit the global spotlight as a shot putter at Dallas Samuel High School, heaving the 12-pound shot 72-feet, 8-inches in 1968 for a world record for the high school age group. That record lasted for 11 years, and ironically, it was a student of Walker's, Michael Carter, that erased his mark. Carter, a legendary Dallas Thomas Jefferson High shot putter-defensive tackle, who now performs at SMU, had a best put of 81' during his high school career. Following high school graduation, Walker accepted an athletic scholarship to SMU. He played for two years under Hayden Fry in the grid program, but then decided to devote his maximum energies to his track career. The move was immediately successful, as he won the Southwest Conference shot put title in his final three campaigns. Walker was also successful at the NCAA Track and Field Meet, earning a pair of second places, one third and one fourth during the four national championships in his college career. With much of the training for both the shot put and football placing emphasis on weights, Walker was naturally introduced early to this field. He set his goals during his college career to compete in the Olympics in both the weightlifting competition and the shot put. In fact, Walker once shared the world record for the clean and jerk, muscling up 507 pounds in an exhibition. The U.S. record holder at that time was Ken Patera, who had jerked the same amount. But in 1972, the year of the Munich Olympics, Walker was involved in a biking accident on the SMU campus, injuring his shoulder and thus missing his golden shot on that occasion. In 1976, however, Walker was not to be denied. He qualified for the Montreal Olympics in the Super-heavyweight (242 pounds and over) Division of the weightlifting competition. Walker was one of the two men chosen to represent the United States through his performance in the USOC trials in Eugene, Oregon, the other being Bruce Wilhelm. Wilhelm, you may remember, is the weightlifter in the Lite Beer commercials. In Montreal, Walker finished a very respectable ninth, which is excellent in considering that only the strongest men in the world are competing. Weightlifting in the Olympics consists of two events, the snatch and the clean and jerk. He snatched 340 pounds and had a clean and jerk of 475 pounds in the Montreal games.

The winner in Montreal was the famous Vasily Alexeev of Russia. Through the USOC Job Opportunity program, Walker began working with Fina a few years back to help supplement his training, which he admits was nearly a full-time job. But Walker's hopes for returning to the 1980 Olympics were shattered, as were countless of our country's finest athletes, when President Jimmy Carter called for a boycott of the Moscow Games due to the Soviet's invasion into Afghanistan. He still travelled to Eugene for the trials, as did most of the others that trained for the last four years, in hopes of Olympic gold. It was following the meet in late June in Eugene that Walker decided to retire from international competition. And as Walker stated, and no doubt other top-name track and field performers will attest, the money is just not there in his sport, in contrast to such sports as football, basketball, baseball and others. "I guess what my parents have been telling me for these last few years is right," said Walker. "There were a lot better ways to make money in the world than what I was doing."

"But following the Olympic trials in Eugene last month," he continued, "I decided it was time for a change." "I've trained so hard for so long, it's become a way of life," Walker philosophized. "But I want to change. It's been kind of nice not having to work out six or seven days a week since I made my decision." And with the exorbitant pay structure in some of the professional sports, it doesn't seem quite fair that talented track and field performers have to work for beans, but Walker can attest to that. "I have some good friends

Local Olympian sees trouble for future games

By DON WOODS

Strong feelings surfaced when former Olympic participant Sam Walker learned the United States was boycotting the 1980 Moscow Olympics. It is appropriate that feelings would run strong in Walker, who lifted in the super-heavy class in Montreal in 1976 and held the high school shot put record for 11 years. "When the news first came out I felt it was completely wrong," he said, "but eventually a more realistic mentality prevailed." "I am idealistic toward politics that they should be kept out of Olympics but it is not out and never will be. Realistically, most athletes believe the president can do it (boycott) anytime and there is nothing they can do about it. Politicians can make mistakes," he said. He described politicians as "people of power." "Realism takes over idealism. It didn't have to happen. Carter and his aides decided since it would be a big, big news item they could use it for their own political aspirations. Carter seems like everything he does is for re-election purposes," said Walker. Walker said he felt that the Olympics should return to their original form. "The ancient ideals of the games was to get together with the countries regardless of the problems they were having, regardless of the wars they were having.

They stopped their wars to have the Olympics. It was the only thing that overrode the wars; athletes competing in the true spirit of sportsmanship." What about the future of the Olympic spirit? "I fear that the whole Olympic movement is going to be harmed a great deal from this. It's getting bigger every time and the bigger it becomes the more politics will be involved because politics involves everything. The more involved the more political it becomes," he said. Walker foresees a time when the athletes themselves will soapbox political issues during the games. The Olympics may even die out by the 1984 games, he said.

He proposed making it smaller and making Greece or a neutral country the permanent site. Walker said he doesn't think politicians really understand the Olympics, resulting in their use of the games for political purposes. He referred to the 1936 Berlin games where Adolph Hitler tried to use the games to prove Aryan superiority. Politicians, though, said Walker, are people that voters put in office, so voters have to go along with their decisions. Cosden, who had acted as financier for Walker for several years, came through with a crude oil purchasing job for Walker when he retired. He moved here last week.

Walker: "I am idealistic toward politics that they should be kept out of the Olympics, but it is not out and never will be."

Walker: "I fear that the whole Olympic movement is going to be harmed a great deal from this."

As East German sets new high jump mark in Friday's action

Coe gains revenge on Ovett in 1500

MOSCOW (AP) — Sebastian Coe beat fellow Briton Steve Ovett in their first 1,500-meter match-up, and after weeks of buildup and thousands of printed words about their supposed enmity, the two arch-rivals laughed together and shook hands. Coe won the gold medal in the Olympic 1,500 Friday, squaring their Moscow rivalry at 1-to-1. Ovett had won their 800-meter clash earlier in the week after Coe ran a dismal race. "You've seen an athlete literally come back from the grave," said Peter Coe, the gold medalist's father and coach. And on the final day of the Olympic track and field competition, unheralded Gerd Wessig of East Germany broke the men's high jump world record, providing a dramatic finale. That left the boxing finals today as the major event remaining in an Olympics that probably will be remembered most for its no-shows. The United States and 35 other countries did not send their athletes because of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. Heavyweight Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba was bidding for an unprecedented third gold medal, fighting Pyotr Zayev of the Soviet Union. Coe emerged from the final bend with a strong kick and won the race in 3 minutes, 38.4 seconds with no real challenge from Ovett, who was beaten out of second place by Gunther Straub of East Germany.

Straub set the pace early in the race and held on for the silver medal in 3:38.8 with Ovett a disappointing third in 3:39.0. Coe said that only after watching a videotape did he realize that Ovett was so far back at the finish.

Ovett, as is his style, failed to show up at a press conference for medal winners. British Olympians chose to flout the American-led Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia became the only track competitor to win two individual golds by dominating the final of the 5,000 meters in 13:21.0 minutes. Waldemar Cierpinski of East Germany came from behind to win the marathon in 2 hours 11.3 minutes. Evelyn Jahl of East Germany won the women's discus with an Olympic record of 229-6 and world record holder Tatyana Kazankina of the Soviet Union dominated the women's 1,500 meters in 3:56.6, all retaining their Montreal Olympic titles.

The Soviet Union, which has reaped a record harvest of medals — 76 golds and 180 total — in the face of the boycott, emerged as the No. 1 team in track with 41 medals — 15 golds, 14 silvers and 12 bronzes. East Germany had 11-8-10 in track. Other track gold medal winners were Britain 4, Italy 3, Poland and Ethiopia 2, Cuba 1.

VICTORY — Britain's Sebastian Coe spreads his arms as he wins the men's 1500-meter race at the Summer Olympics Friday in Moscow. At right is East Germany's Jürgen Straub who finished second and at left is Britain's Steve Ovett who finished third.

UPS AND DOWNS OF RECORD-SETTING — East Germany's Gerd Wessig falls off air cushion after clearing bar in world-record high jump, left, and then jumps up to discover his feat Friday at Moscow's Lenin Stadium during Olympic high jump finals. He won gold and set a world record of 2.36 meters (7 feet, 9 inches).

J.R. remains hospitalized

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard remained hospitalized in improved condition today, another chapter in a series of crises faced by the Astros pitching staff during its history. Richard underwent emergency surgery Wednesday night to remove a blood clot from the right side of his neck after he collapsed at a workout in the Astrodome.

The National League's 1960 starting All-Star pitcher had experienced weakness in his left arm and leg following the surgery but an Astros official said Friday that condition was improving.

Team spokesman Rick Rivers said the Astros were telling all who called about Richard's condition that he was in improved condition. Rivers said the assessment was made after talking with Astros team physician Dr. Harold Brelsford.

Richard was placed on the team's 21-day disabled list on July 16 after repeatedly complaining of a tired arm and other ailments. He underwent a battery of tests last week, including an arteriogram, which traces the flow of blood through the arteries.

Brelsford said the arteriogram indicated impaired circulation but there was no indication of a clot at that time. "There are a lot of factors in this case that are strange medically," Brelsford said. "Before this is over, this is going to be a fascinating case."

The Astros pitching staff already had experienced its share of tragedies before Richard's hospitalization in the midst of an outstanding season.

Don Wilson, who pitched two no-hitters for the Astros against Cincinnati in 1968 and 1969 and narrowly missed a third, was found dead in his car in the garage of his southwest Houston home in 1975.

The body of Wilson's five-year-old son Alexander was found in a bedroom above the garage. Police said the deaths were accidental and the medical examiner ruled Wilson and his son died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Jim Umbricht acquired by the team when it was called the Colt .45s in the 1961 expansion draft, underwent surgery for a malignant groin tumor in early 1963. Rejoining the team in late May, he compiled a 4-3 record. He died a year and a day after the surgery.

Will Doomsday return with Too Tall?

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — "Yes, we lost Roger Staubach, Cliff Harris and Tom Henderson," said Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett. "But we got 'Too Tall' Jones back."

Dorsett seemed to express the feelings of the Cowboys when defensive end Jones reported to the Dallas training camp at California Lutheran College after a year's fling as a heavyweight boxer.

"I had a warm welcome when I returned, from coaches and players alike," said the smiling Jones.

He will reclaim his left end slot in Coach Tom Landry's "Doomsday Defense" in 1980, joining John Dutton (shifted from end to tackle), Randy White and Harvey Martin in what may be the most punishing front four in the National Football League.

"I figure we at least will be one of the best," Jones said. "I'm excited about our defense."

Jones, who stands 6-foot-9, is reluctant to talk about his decision to come back to professional football.

"I consider my boxing career a success," he snapped when it was suggested he failed in the ring. "I had a 6-0 record and I was showing improvement. I was beating people who had far more experience than I had."

So why did he abandon the ring? "Let's just say the decision was based on a lot of personal reasons," he said.

Jones hopes to bolster the Cowboys in a needed area this season. In 1979, the Dallas defense created only four turnovers in the final eight regular-season games.

"That's terrible," said Jones, who is starting his sixth season with the Cowboys. "The front four has put pressure on the offense and create turnovers, otherwise the opponents will dictate the course of the game."

Jones is back up to 268 pounds after slimming down to 236 as a boxer.

"No way I could play at 236 pounds in this league," he chuckled. "Why, they'd double-team me and wipe me out."

Jones said he doesn't expect to be rusty after the layoff.

"That might be true if I were an offensive lineman," he said. "Timing is much more important on offense. But I'll be just like new before long."

He actually trained harder to be a boxer than he ever has to play football, Jones said. For instance, he ran six and eight miles on alternate days last year, but now it's down to three miles.

The Cowboys require all players to run 1½ miles in less than 12 minutes.

"Sure I did it," Jones said. "But I wasn't trying to set any records. I just ducked under 12 minutes, that's all I had to do."

MOSCOW (AP) — Britain's Daley Thompson, currently the world's best all-around athlete, isn't sure he wants to trade his Olympic gold medal for his picture on a cereal box.

"It's funny you asked," the new decathlon champion of the Olympic Games, said while relaxing with middle distance ace Sebastian Coe and other teammates on the Village Mall.

"After I set the world record in Austria last May, I received a telegram from Bruce Jenner. He told me his Wheaties contract would be running out in a year and, if I wished, he would put in a word for me."

Perhaps it was only half in jest.

No kid in America can eat his Wheaties without seeing the grinning face of the Hollywood-handsome 1976 decathlon king grinning at him. Jenner has become the living symbol of what an Olympic gold medal can bring in cold commercial cash.

"If somebody came up to me and said, 'Here is a chance to make a million dollars,' I would be tempted to take it," Thompson said. "Instead, all I've had is about 30 scholarship offers from American colleges (Southern Cal, UCLA, Oregon, San Diego State, Washington, BYU, etc.)."

"What do they give you? Enough money to pay for your education, books and laundry. That's about all. It would not help me as a decathlon athlete. I prefer to stay with my sport until one of those fabulous chances comes along."

"I plan to compete at Los Angeles in 1984. I will be much better. I will win it. Then I will review my options."

Thompson is a striking black man, son of a Nigerian father and Scottish mother. He has a slight resemblance to the Pittsburgh Steelers' Franco Harris, although slimmer at 6-foot-1 and 182 pounds, and less fearsome.

Outgoing, articulate, sharp-witted, he could easily — with proper promotion — parlay his gold medal into a tidy sum, either in Britain or the United States, although he notes that any windfall would have to come from America.

"In America, in discussing money, they talk in telephone numbers," he said. "In England, we speak in single digits."

Thompson already has strong American ties, having spent three months in each of the last four years training at San Diego State University in California.

He said he had done little but sleep since his victory, adding: "It was a very tough decathlon because of the heavy, soggy weather."

Thompson, strong in the 100 meters, 400, long jump and hurdles, had the world and Olympic records within his sights until the climactic 1,500-meter run in which he finished last.

"Because of the weather, I was beat," he said. "I have

"If I needed, I could beat the world record tomorrow," Thompson shattered Jenner's world mark with 8,622 points on May 17-18 in Goetzis, Austria, only to have West Germany's Guido Kratschmer better it a month later with 8,649.

They are not "City of Champions" in Dave Parker case

Pittsburgh's fans ruining image

Nice gang, Pittsburgh Pete. Here you are, blessed with one of the very best baseball players of our time in Dave Parker. But instead of sitting back and enjoying his home run swing, you boo him. Instead of marveling at his ability in the field, you throw things at him. And instead of celebrating his considerable skills in this demanding, difficult game, you are driving him out of town. Nice going, indeed. Pittsburgh likes to call itself the City of Champions. But Pete, you and your buddies never really grew up from the mills and the blue collar, beer chaser image. You live in a union town but you resent Dave Parker because he makes an outrageous salary, a salary which his own union and his own abilities have helped him achieve. His contract haunts him. In an interview with Penthouse Magazine, Parker acknowledged the resentment it has caused. "You're dealing with playing out of a basically blue collar city where you're dealing with the coal industry and steel, and you got people going from nine to five, sweating under those furnaces, going into the coal mines at the risk of getting black lung," he said. "Yeah, it's hard for them to identify with what I do and how much I get paid for doing it." This is an outrageous time in the economics of baseball and don't blame Dave Parker for that. If Dave Parker makes an error, boo him. You're entitled. If he strikes out with the bases loaded, boo him. You buy that right when you purchase a ticket. But don't get on him because you don't like his style. Don't penalize him for being Dave Parker. You want his home runs and RBIs, you take his ear lobe jewelry, too. You buy the whole package. Pittsburgh Pete and some of his bleacher pals don't like Dave Parker. It has nothing to do with home runs and RBIs, either. But instead of just booing, they take their discontent a step farther. They throw things at him. Once, on bat day a couple of years ago, somebody threw one of the gift bats at Parker. Last year he was the target for the gas valve from a pellet gun. His car has been vandalized in the parking lot outside Three Rivers Stadium. Earlier this year some intellectual lightweight pegged a bag full of nuts and bolts at him. Then, in the Pirates' last game at home a week ago, the piece de resistance came. It was Willie Stargell Day and one peanut brain celebrated by firing a nine-volt radio battery at Parker, barely missing the right fielder's skull. That, decided Parker, was that. He removed himself from the game, sat out the second game of the doubleheader and now has asked Pirate management to trade him. "It is in the best interests of both parties — the city of Pittsburgh and myself — to complete my career without bodily harm," he said. "I'm dead serious about this. Get me out of Pittsburgh." The sad part of all this is that Parker is one of those 100 percent guys, who plays every game to the hilt. City of Champions? Are you kidding? Shame on you, Pittsburgh Pete.

Giant rally stops Cubs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Run-scoring singles by Rennie Stennett and Terry Whitfield and a two-run double by rookie Joe Pettini sparked a four-run seventh-inning rally that lifted the San Francisco Giants to an 8-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Trailing 5-2, the Giants started their comeback with two runs in the sixth on a two-out single by Mike Sadek, Whitfield's ground-rule double and a two-run single by Billy North.

A one-out walk by pinch-hitter Roger Metzger off loser Dick Tidrow, 2-2, started the Giants' winning rally in the seventh.

Male executive files discrimination suit against Miami Dolphins for cheerleading

MIAMI (AP) — A male electronics executive has filed suit against the Miami Dolphins alleging sex discrimination because the National Football League team rejected him as a cheerleader.

With a figure of 39-29 and unknown hip measurement, 32-year-old Glenn Welt says he deserves a chance to try out for the all-female Starbrite cheerleaders, especially after his former girlfriend made the team with his dance instruction.

"Roberta made the team, and I was the one who taught her to dance," Welt said. "I felt if I was good enough to teach her to dance, then I deserved a tryout too."

But Starbrite choreographer, June Taylor, thinks otherwise.

"He just wouldn't fit in with the girls," she said. "He's just not built like a girl. I was not about to put him in panty hose, leotards and have him waving hankies and pompons. The Starbrites have all-American girl appeal." But, Welt counters, "I think the Dolphins need a man to stimulate the lady fans." Welt's suit, argued Monday before U.S. District Court Judge Edward Davis in Miami, charges the Dolphins with violating the Equal Employment Opportunity Act.

Welt's lawyers gave as examples of non-discriminating teams the San Diego Chargers and their Big Chicken, the Los Angeles Rams and their Little Old Lady and the New England Patriots' male cheerleader.

According to one of Welt's lawyers, Eleanor Shockett, "June Taylor's routines are just plain old bump-and-grinds and the lady fans don't get their moneys worth."

But Taylor took the stand and argued that her dancers "help stimulate the audience."

PARTICIPANTS IN BIG COUNTRY CHEERLEADING CAMP — The pretty Sands High School cheerleaders were among 250 women that participated in the Big Country Cheerleading Camp on the campus of Hardin-Simmons University earlier this summer, learning new cheers and spirit techniques that will no doubt help increase school spirit for the upcoming football season. On the ground is D'Ann Hall. Standing from left to right Wendy Taylor, Darla Smith and Norina De Los Santos. Airborne is Cindy Brasher.

DOWN MEMORY LANE — When Howard County residents took part in rodeo festivities here in 1939, they really dressed the part. Some of these old timers on the first row, waiting for the rodeo parade to swing by on West Third between Main and Scurry Streets, wore guns to promote the idea of the old west. The man in the front row at the left is John Wolcott, then county tax assessor-collector. The building in the background is the city fire station, long since torn down.

Marfa lights baffle young and old

MARFA, Texas (AP) — Progress is threatening to spoil one of the oldest and most talked-about mysteries in the territory west of the Pecos River.

Ever since a pioneer cattleman, Robert R. Ellison, reported seeing weird luminous spheres at night on the southern horizon during an 1883 cattle drive, the "Marfa Lights" have been mystifying local residents, delighting tourists and baffling scientists.

But Julia Plumley, 74, Ellison's daughter, says the sightseers who still gather almost nightly 8 miles east of this ranching town are probably not seeing what her father saw nearly 100 years ago.

"It's because there are so many other lights nowadays," she said. "In those early days when my father drove cattle down through Antelope Springs to the flatlands, there weren't any other lights around here."

Non-believers say the lights they see are simply guard lights on ranches or headlights of cars on U.S. 87 that leads south to Presidio, and Mrs. Plumley agrees.

"The actual light is very dim and way off," she said. "I just think it's many people see these other lights and very few people ever see what we think is the Marfa mystery light."

What Ellison saw in 1883 obviously could not have been car headlights or the mercury vapor lights used by present-day ranchers, and Mrs. Plumley said there are even documents on a "wagon train that went through here in the 1600s that recorded seeing the lights."

Her description of the erie lights matched that of most other Marfa residents. "It's usually only one light. But sometimes it will divide and you'll see two. I have seen three, but that's very unusual," she said. "It's a little, dim light. I have seen it move."

In recent years the town's Junior Historians have documented early sightings by pioneers, but several scientific expeditions have tried, and failed, to explain the Marfa Lights.

"I once flew at night trying to find the lights," said Fritz Kahl, who came here from Iowa in 1943 to help train World War II pilots at the old Marfa Army Air Base and decided to stay after the base was closed in 1945. Today, the old base east of town is a cattle ranch where the lights are usually seen, and Kahl is the manager of the Marfa Airport.

"I could see them from the plane. It's a low glow from the air, yellow and red — the color varies. They move around," he said.

"They're nothing to be scared of. It's a local phenomenon. It could be a low grade form of Saint Elmo's fire — static electricity. Geologists say it's mineralization of phosphorus-bearing material."

Kahl said whenever you approach one of the lights, they disappear. He said it is "like trying to catch a rainbow."

In 1966, a group of students took sightings from two points along the highway and calculated the location of a mysterious light using the principle of triangulation. They said it was 36 miles north of Runway 32 of the old air base in the foothills of the Chinati Mountains.

When they went to that location they found nothing that could be a source of light.

Nine years later Don Witt, then a physics teacher at Alpine's Sul Ross State University, launched a more sophisticated, although no more successful, attempt to solve the puzzle of the elusive lights.

Witt used airplanes, four-wheel drive vehicles, survey instruments, two-way radios and several search teams in his 1975 expedition. Afterward he said he thought the mystery light was a mercury vapor light on Kenne'h Mellard's ranch, a theory previously dismissed because of the pioneer sightings.

That was five years ago. There have been no major scientific investigations since then, and the lights are still unexplained. Ellison's cowboys thought they were seeing Apache campfires when they drove their cattle through Paisano Pass into the Mitchell Flats nearly a century ago. They were mystified when at daybreak they found no trace of the Indians or their fires, the Junior Historians report.

On a recent summer evening, nine out of towners in four separate groups stopped at the white masonry gates of the old air base between Marfa and Alpine to gaze southward in hopes of seeing the fabled lights.

After the sun set, four or five tiny points of light, twinkling like stars, appeared just below the faint line of mountains in the southern horizon. As it got darker the horizon itself disappeared from view.

"We think they're supposed to be over by the foot of that mountain," said Sharr Laidley, one of four schoolteachers from Midland who arrived together.

"Those are not the lights," said teacher Essie Haisler. "I think we'll know it when we see them."

"Those have to be ranchers' lights," said Preston Chappell, who owns a gift shop in Fort Davis. He brought his wife, Laura, to see the phenomenon they had heard so much about.

About 11 p.m. several persons in the group noticed a yellow light that looked like the flame of a natural gas flare far in the distance. Its intensity varied as if it were being blown by the wind.

"Look right there. There's a flash of light. See it? It got real bright," said Darlene Kissinger, a Midland teacher.

"I see it. Now it's disappeared completely," said Miss Haisler.

"That light must have been a car," Miss Kissinger said.

"But there's no road out there," said Miss Laidley.

"There's absolutely nothing out there," said Everitt Newman of El Paso, a State Health Department employee. "That's the whole point."

Rock star Buddy Holly's writer remains active

EDITOR'S NOTE — Clovis' Norman Petty was producer and writer for the late rock star Buddy Holly in the 1950s. But Petty still is active in the business, 21 years after Holly's death, producing and writing for upcoming artists.

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — Tuck Tucker's friends in Los Angeles thought he was crazy when he drove nonstop 1,200 miles with his "Good Time Band" to record an album in Clovis, even if Norman Petty, writer for the late '50s rock star Buddy Holly, would be his producer.

"In Los Angeles, we're surrounded by studios," Tucker said during a break in the recording session at Petty's studio on Main Street. But nodding toward Petty in the control booth above his head, Tucker added, "This guy gets the best sound. Nobody gets sound like he does."

And, Tucker says, Petty "lets you sing it the way you want to and makes little suggestions for improvement. In Los Angeles, they tell you to do it their way or not at all."

Singers and musicians from throughout the country and Canada travel to this city of 34,500 on the New Mexico Texas border to work with Petty, hoping that some of the magic that was his when he managed Holly's career will rub off on them.

The songs Petty wrote with Holly in the late 1950s, before the singer died in a plane crash in Iowa in 1959, play a large role in today's music scene.

Mickey Gilley's version of "True Love Ways" was No. 1 on Billboard Magazine's country singles chart in July. Linda Ronstadt hit the top of the pop music charts in recent years with "It's So Easy" and "That'll Be the Day," songs that Petty helped write for Holly.

And for Petty, who at 52 is old enough to be the father of most of the young musicians with whom he works, the beat goes on, even though the nostalgia of his three-year association with Holly remains an important part of his life.

The memories are revived whenever he hears a Holly oldie or listens to someone like Gilley or Ms. Ronstadt singing a Holly song.

"It's like an old friend coming back," Petty said at his studio in an old theater he renovated and equipped with recording and production equipment that rivals anything New York or Los Angeles studios could offer.

"It's a nice warm feeling to have been a part of it. It was a very exciting time in the music industry."

The association between Holly and Petty began in 1956 when Holly, having heard that Petty operated a recording studio, traveled to Clovis from his home in nearby Lubbock, Texas, to cut some demonstration tapes. Petty became the producer for all of the young Texan's records, as well as his personal manager.

Petty, Holly and Jerry Allison, a drummer with Holly's group called "The Crickets," collaborated on the writing during the mercurial rise of the group during the early, pre-Beatles days of rock and roll. "It was like one big picnic," Petty said of their writing efforts.

Almost all of the hits were produced and recorded in Petty's old studio on Seventh Street, although the haunting "True Love Ways" was done in New York because a full orchestra was needed.

"That'll Be the Day" and "Peggy Sue" were million sellers and Holly remains popular today, especially in England where his birthday, Sept. 7, is commemorated by a celebration called "Every Day is a Holly Day."

Dallas-Fort Worth voters to consider transit plan

DALLAS (AP) — Residents of the Dallas-Fort Worth area vote next week on a multi-million dollar transportation scheme that planners say is essential if the region hopes to avoid strangling itself in traffic.

Voters will be asked to approve creation of the Lone Star Transportation Authority.

The authority would define and direct the transportation future of this area, which has gained 211,000 new residents in the past five years.

The growth is due in part to migration to Sunbelt cities such as Fort Worth, Dallas, and Houston — which is cited by the authority's supporters as a city with a non-existent transportation system and an example of what Dallas and Fort Worth should avoid.

Proponents say the need for regional mass transit is obvious after one look at local roads. Four-hour traffic jams on Dallas' busiest freeways are not uncommon, according to city police studies. A 30-mile commuter trip from North Dallas to downtown frequently takes as long as an hour.

State highway engineers recently surveyed a busy highway link between Fort Worth and Dallas, and found more than half the autos more than half the autos using the roadway carried just one person — the driver.

City officials admit their efforts to encourage carpools and vanpools have met with public apathy, and the bus systems in both Dallas and Fort Worth need city subsidies to break even.

If the LSTA plan passes it would use a combination of a one-cent special sales tax, fares and government funds to operate, with an estimated first-year budget of $140 million. It would take over all city bus service, upgrading current routes and expanding into areas not currently served.

It would also assume responsibility for all aspects of future transportation growth. In Tarrant County, it would even supervise general aviation airports and emergency ambulance service.

But debate on the proposed LSTA has brought out special interest groups in droves and has polarized opinion along every conceivable dividing line.

Inner-city blacks are afraid their interests will be neglected for those of suburban whites; suburbs fear cities will dominate the agency; Fort Worth claims Dallas will run things to the detriment of everybody else and proponents of rail systems think the LSTA will be "committed to concrete" and further highway expansion.

"I'm aware of the criticism and the things that have been criticized are all things we have talked about," said Dick Smith, a Dallas businessman and former city council member who has been active on the interim Regional Transit Agency during two years of planning for LSTA.

"I'm comfortable with the decisions we made even though I didn't agree with all of them."

Those decisions go to the voters Aug. 9. However, a recent public opinion poll found that fewer than 30 percent of those people surveyed had ever heard of the LSTA.

"This isn't the kind of thing that generates a lot of sex appeal and it's difficult kind of thing to publicize," Smith said, adding that he hopes the widespread ignorance of the approaching election does not foreshadow its failure.

The Lambert's daughter, Kate, and her husband, Charlie, live in the same house with the Lambert's.

Doctor James Kimbrough and his wife, Grace, are family friends and consultants.

As the plot unfolds, Harry, a strong-minded pillar of the community, becomes the talk of the town and then, himself on the receiving end of numerous practical jokes.

Further sweetening the romance of Harry and Kate, and it is a foregone conclusion, is the fact that they are both housekeepers.

Despite his obvious disinterest in the plot, Harry, a marauding father-in-law, Charlie always smiling the full grin in any situation.

This delightful comedy is an entertainment for the entire family.

The cast includes one of the "Lambert's" daughters, Kent Womack, as Harry Lambert. The versatile actor performs the fabled role as an "Elwood P. Dowd" in "Harvey."

Cecile Hubbard plays the debut in the riotous comedy as Edith Lambert.

Mike Brooks characterizes Charlie and Kate as only performed by Elaine Fugate.

Doctor James Kimbrough is portrayed by Jim Millington and Grace Kimbrough is characterized by Lisa Wilkerson.

The cameo role of Mr. Foley, a carpenter who remodels the Lambert's living room, is portrayed by Playhouse favorite, Porter Richardson.

The role of Mayor Crane is acted out by Greg Chaney and a policeman thrown into the middle of this crazy situation comedy is characterized by Tommy Baker.

Independent businessmen to discuss organization

By ANDREA COHEN
An organizational meeting to form an association for local independent businessmen will be held Monday at the Chamber of Commerce at 7:30 p.m.

Ray Weir and John Bennett are starting the group to cover different facets of the most sought after problems of the businessmen.

The group is also being formed to keep members informed about legislation and to learn various business practices.

"I'm a member of the National Federation of Independent Business

Plans take shape for Roundup

Plans for the fall Roundup — a Scouting membership recruiting project — were mapped at a meeting of the Lone Star District committee Thursday evening.

The Roundup likely will be held during the second week of September, according to Larry Speck, district chairman. There will be rallies at various elementary schools.

The initial effort will be to give boys 8, 9 and 10 years of age an opportunity to join in the adventure of Cubbing. Boys 11 years and up interested in joining Scouting will have opportunity to affiliate at the same time.

There likely will also be a separate sign up night for Scouts, Speck added. Explorer units, for senior boys and girls, will conduct their own recruiting.

Units will be asked to accept goals at the Aug. 14 Roundtable, Speck added. Unique patches will be given to each boy for every other boy he recruits during the Roundup. There also will be special awards to units that meet or exceed goals. Speck said it is hoped that the district boy membership can almost be doubled as a result of the Roundup.

District committee members also heard reports of the Cub field day planned for the Scout Roundup grounds Aug. 15.

Kids invited to crusade

The Apostolic Faith Chapel, located at 14th and South Goliad, is inviting kids between the ages of four and 12 to come to the crusade Friday through Aug. 8 at 6:30 p.m.

Puppet shows, games, contests, songs, memory quizzes, prizes refreshments and fun in store for the youngsters.
For more information, call 3-7144.

Donna Lee elected chairman of Women's Demo organization

The Women's Democratic Organization of Howard County met Sunday at La Posada Restaurant to select officers for the organization.

Donna Lee will serve as chairman and Linda Arsiaga as secretary. The purpose of the organization is to organize women Democrats and raise money for the Democrat party. County Democratic chairman C.V. Riordan will provide Emily Elrod with a list of registered voters from precinct 10. She will organize the Forsan women.

The next meeting is set for noon Aug. 8 at La Posada.

owners and I was sitting around having coffee with some men and they said they didn't know this and that," said Weir. "I thought if we had a local independent business association, we could take the most sought after problems and cover different facets. The independent businessman is going to have to work harder. Competition is so hard because they work on a smaller margin of profit."

"It needs to be an unbiased thing," he continued. "The independent businessmen need to be in control with a board of directors and officers. This is for the needs of the businessmen. For instance, what type of capital is needed, what type of insurance and cost control. We can't keep our doors open without a profit. A group like this could get the message across to a person better than anyone else. Most could donate time and give whatever they could. We would meet on a monthly type basis."

"This type of organization wouldn't cost a lot," said Johnnie Lou Avery, immediate past president of the Chamber of Commerce.

"Through a group like this we could get things like Small Business Administration seminars."

According to Avery, there is a need for this type of organization along with the Chamber of Commerce, because "when the Chamber does something it's for all businesses, not just the independent business."

According to Avery, this organization would be an extended arm of the Chamber, "not just a committee."

"The main thing is just to share," Weir said. "We could share things like employee problems, the bad check season and book-

Dr. Carlos McLeod, Texas Southern Baptist Convention president, will speak Monday in the Big Spring Baptist Association which consists of 31 Baptist Churches in the area.

Several thousand Baptists in the area are association members, said Sam Robertson, local Big Spring Baptist Association president.

The Texas Southern Baptist Convention has the largest group of members in the United States. There are over 4,000 churches with 438 missions, 118 local associations, a total membership of 2,272,284, and an income of $382 million. There were over 60,000 conversions in 1979.

All records for water consumption are broken

Cities served by the Colorado River Municipal Water District shattered records for a single month's consumption during July. Total deliveries to municipalities amounted to 2,113,902,000 gallons, said O.H. Ivie, general manager.

The aggregate of all deliveries will not set a record, however, for in 1974 oil companies, which since have been cut off surface water and otherwise curtailed, were using half a billion gallons a month. Now that figure is under 150,000,000 gallons.

Odessa eclipsed its old record of 983,612,000 gallons by using a total of 1,074,728,000 gallons, the first time a city had taken a billion gallons in a month from the district.

Big Spring used 414,256,000 gallons, only five million short of its record of 419,000,000 in 1974, when Wells, AFB, and Cabot

Carbon were customers. Snyder soared past its old record of 131,395,000 gallons by using 170,942,000 gallons.

Midland, which is restricted to a contract quantity, used 425,919,000 gallons. Stanton also established a record with its 16,579,000, and Robert Lee, the other municipal customer, used 10,495,000 gallons.

Ivie had high praise for the CRMW's production and maintenance workers who made the record possible despite one substantial supply line break. In order to protect Odessa reserves, CRMW went to on-peak pumping electric power rates in July at an additional cost of $50,000 for the year, but this enabled it to recover some 30,000,000 of lost reserves by the end of the month.

The district, he said, is in excellent condition to meet all demands in August despite the continued heat, wind and drought.

keeping. Through a collective group like this we could get people to teach us things that can't be afforded independently."

They are also hoping to form a SCORE group, a federally funded program where retired business executives offer their expertise.

"I read somewhere that 85 percent of businesses fail in a certain length of time because of poor business management," Weir said.

"Anybody who starts a new business from scratch has a battle on his hands."

Bids sought to build unit

SAN ANGELO — The U.S. Postal Service is asking for construction bids to build a new Vehicle Maintenance Facility building in San Angelo. Postmaster Longino Monreal III said here.

Bids are to be sent to Leonard C. Wilson, Field Real Estate and Buildings Office, U.S. Postal Service, P.O. Drawer 226, Dallas, TX 75221.

Bids will be opened at 2:00 p.m. Aug. 19, in Room 536, Downtown Station, corner of Bryan and Ervay Streets, in Dallas.

The proposed new postal-owned building will have approximately 7,000 square feet of interior floor space. It will be located on the same site as the new General Mail Facility on West Harris Ave. and Bryan Blvd.

Preservation cost range for the new building is estimated at $200,000 to $300,000.

Project architect is Charles Zentler Merco, Architects, AIA, 125 South Washington, San Antonio.

Slugs slug it out

ELMA, Wash. (AP) — When Elma throws a slugfest, it's not a prize fight. It's a race, the 2nd Annual International Slug Race.

The oddsmakers' favorite is Grant Miller, who squirmed past Ick and Super Slick last year.

Police are cordoning off the main street in this southern Washington community for today's race. And the slimy slug without a shell separates that slither across the finish line first will get the city's Derby trophy.

Eight slugs in the center of a 3-foot circle of mistletoe slithered and competed, and after five minutes, it was declared the winner, even if some of the competitors had completed the entire course.

A cluster of 300 protesters from Save Our Slugs (SOS) was planning to march around with pre-arranged

BOYS RANCH, Texas (AP) — Illegitimacy suddenly was the least of Kirk's concerns. He had developed an annoying habit of stealing and, worse, he was getting caught.

At age 12, Kirk was headed for reform school.

That was about all he and Jackie had in common, except a broken home. Jackie did have a father, at least until a rainy August night in 1967.

That's when Jackie removed a shotgun from a closet and blew the old man into oblivion.

He was 17 years old and up to his scared ears with parental abuse. The court was sympathetic, but its options were limited and not at all pleasant.

Then there were five young brothers who were building a remarkable reputation as incorrigibles, the collective scourge of a small Detroit suburb.

All but abandoned by their mother, their father was in jail and it seemed a good bet the boys would soon be joining him there.

Finally there was Mark, 6, whose only crime to date was being born. His mother celebrated his second birthday by giving him a relative.

He lived now with an uncle in Houston, where he was no more loved than welcome, which was not at all.

As fate would have it, this star-crossed group wound up in the Texas Panhandle, at a former desert town, a place called Cal Farley's Boys Ranch.

Farley, a wrecker by profession and a humanitarian at heart, is dead, but his unique legacy is alive and well and growing still by the Kirk and Jackie and Marks of the world.

The boys' names and hometowns have been changed and the time sequence has been altered, but it is safe and almost accurate to report that all but one of the group are now "successful graduates" of Boys Ranch.

The exception, one of the five brothers from Detroit, distinguished himself by running off and killing a cop.

From the elegant Amarillo Club, one can look out a 30th floor window and see, for miles, although not quite to the Boys Ranch 40 miles northwest of town.

Cal Farley was a damn good swimmer, chuckled Virgil Patterson during an interview at the club, a swimmer in the kindest sort of way. Patterson is a retired bank executive and current unpaid president of Boys Ranch.

"He never went out and asked for money. He'd let it be known what the boys needed and somebody would come forward and fill that need.

Despite a career one rarely identifies with gentleness, Farley was both gentle and a gentleman, recalled Patterson, cigar in hand.

Patterson said that Farley was concerned about the youngsters hanging around Amarillo's baseball parks by day, the wrestling arenas at night.

"They should be in school or at home," he remembered Farley saying.

Retiring from wrestling in the early 1930s, Farley and a few friends formed the Maverick Club, a move designed to lure neglected boys of the streets through athletics.

It worked, and today the Maverick Club is recognized as one of the outstanding youth clubs in America.

But Farley fretted that he was missing the "bottom 10 percent," those boys from broken homes whose contact with church and school was routinely a rock through the window.

From this concern sprung the idea of Boys Ranch, which, in 1939, became a reality. A rancher named Julian Bivins donated 120 acres on the site of a ghost town called Tascosa.

With his wife Mimi, Farley took a span of mules, six sheep, a flock of geese, a handful of homeless boys, a cook and a supervisor and chased the ghosts from Tascosa.

He moved his group into the best remaining structure in town, the old stone courthouse, and put his dream in motion.

"He was trying to do a job that nobody else was doing," said Patterson. "Nobody had ever tried to take these recalcitrant kids from a home life that was unbelievably bad, and try to make something out of them."

Farley's folly was not an overnight success. But the word spread and the ranch grew and in time he sold off his auto parts company in Amarillo and devoted his life solely to the project.

"With Daddy, it was just raising kids by using common sense," his only child, a daughter named Gene, would say years later. "You just love them, so that one day they can grow up to be decent citizens."

Farley's reputation for benevolence was no better illustrated than by an incident in the mid-1940s. One day three brothers arrived at the ranch by bus. They were 5, 10 and 14 and each wore a tag around his neck. They read:

"Deliver to Boys Ranch, Amarillo, Texas."

On a Sunday morning in 1967, Farley, then 72, collapsed and died during non-sectarian services at the ranch chapel. At the time, Boys Ranch was still relatively small but widely known and respected.

Not long before his death, Farley had told friends, "When I die, make old Pat president."

They did.

Now, 13 years later, Virgil Patterson is still carrying the torch for Cal Farley's Boys Ranch.

It is mid-morning on a fiercely hot summer day as Sherman Harriman, Farley's son-in-law, guides his station wagon across the cactus, sage and mesquite-covered rangeland northwest of Amarillo.

"We're not an institution, we're a home," he told a visitor as they crossed the Canadian River and approached a ranch now grown to 4,100 acres.

"Like Cal insisted we try to be fair, positive and consistent."

He said the reigning philosophy revolves around two words: "Affectionate discipline."

Spankings are not uncommon, Harriman said, but punishment usually involves work details and loss of playtime privileges.

One is reminded that these are "troubled, confused, delinquent or problem boys," chosen by their need but only if administrators are convinced they can be helped here. Roughly 80 to 100 of the 1,000-plus referrals are accepted each year.

The professionals occasionally are wrong.

"We lose about 8 percent," said Harriman.

In short order, the station wagon wheels past the Boot Hill Cemetery, through a mini-forest of cottonwoods, around a real zoo and into the ranch compound.

At the Farley Memorial

Gardens, the visitor spots a gravestone tribute, composed long ago by a sixth-grader. It reads:

"If you want to know what Cal and Mimi did, just look around."

There are nearly 100 youngsters here, ranging in age from 4 to 18, and they are uniformly polite, friendly, smiling, well-groomed and busy.

Most of those not working are splashing around the indoor pool or engaged in what appears to be life-or-death baseball games.

School is out, of course, but Boys Ranch, by legislative edict, is its own independent school district, thus entitled to state funds.

Besides a standard high school education, the boys here also are exposed to a variety of vocational courses, ranging from cattle feedlot management to landscaping and horticulture.

Ranchers, as the boys are called, butcher their own, home-grown beefs and hogs, raise much of their own vegetables, service their own vehicles, process their own milk, build most of their own housing and perform all their own landscaping chores.

A ranch employee says he once watched the boys build a staff residence from the ground up, including the plumbing, masonry, carpentry and electrical wiring.

"I wouldn't believe it if I hadn't seen them do it," he said.

The boys live 24 to a home, four to a room, and each building has two sets of "dorm parents." The homes are clean, spacious and comfortable and include a recreation room complete with wood-burning fireplace.

There are no bars on the windows or locks on the gates, and the emphasis definitely is on a family atmosphere, something few of the boys ever encounter.

There is a dining hall that seats 500, a chapel that seats 800, a gymnasium, hospital, dental office, rodeo arena, schools and a full range of sports facilities.

Youngsters pay nothing to live here, and in fact earn money through various jobs to buy essentials like clothing and non-essentials like fishing gear for the ponds scattered about the ranch.

The ranch is supported largely by contributions.

Even though much of the food is raised here, the cost of keeping a boy at the ranch is more than $12,000 annually, which seems staggering.

"It's a lot of money," Patterson conceded. "But it's cheaper than reform school."

Pastor Pugh preaching

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Rev. Dr. W. Leslie Pugh, the pastor who preaches about polysyllabic and preposterous words, is preaching again.

Last summer, Pugh gave sermons at Mayflower Community Church, United Church of Christ, on "diphthong," "oxymoron," "sarcasm," "quintilian" and "heliocentric."

Another year, "flocinaucophiliplication" was a sermon topic.

Pugh says summer sermons should be relaxed and easy, so he preaches sermons that bring a smile to parishioners. He gathers unusual words from his readings, saves them in a notebook and draws out a few for summer sermons.

This month he's preaching a sermon series on "Letting Strange Words Lead Us." The topics are four "unusual and preposterous words" — "flocinaucophiliplication" and "chiaroscuro."

Farm Bollworms strike back

By DAVID G. FOSTER
 Extension Agent Entomology-Plant Mgt. Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Upton and Reagan Counties

Bollworms this year have taken their share and everyone else's share. Rain earlier this year set the stage by keeping rangeland and alternate hosts green during the June bollworm cycle. As the July bollworm cycle approached, hot and dry conditions existed and coupled with a drop in beneficial activity, bollworms began egg laying on the terminals, squares as well as bolls in area fields. As the result, beneficials nor the extreme daily high temperatures were detrimental to the bollworm egg hatch.

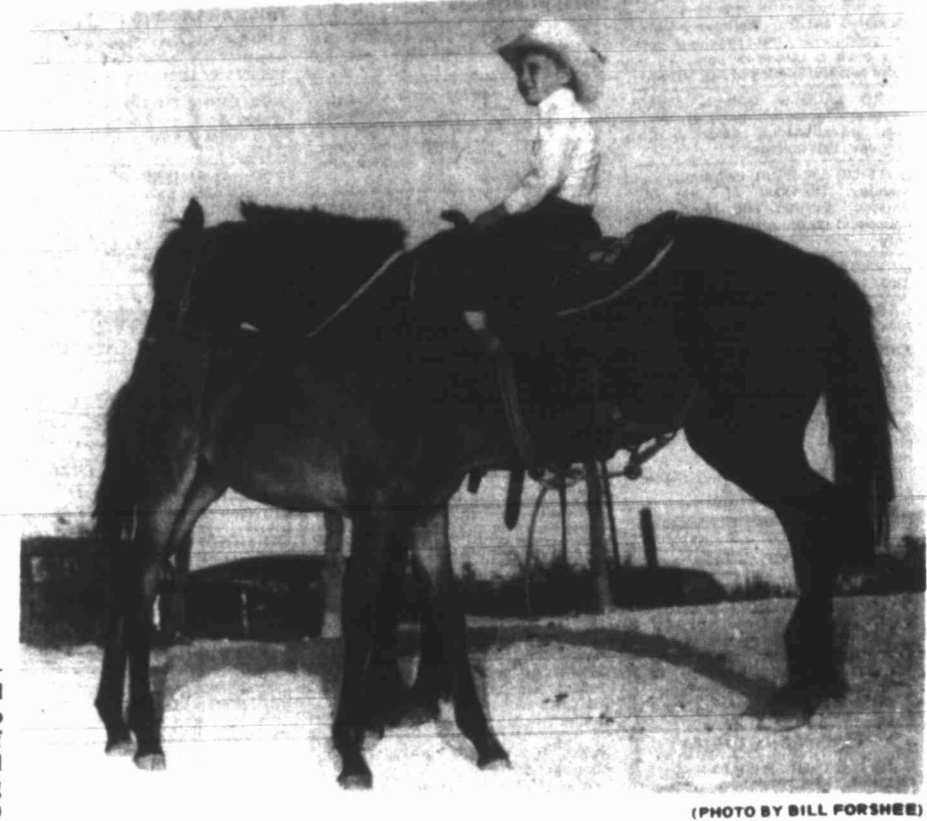

Bollworm eggs are pearly white to cream and about the size of a pinhead. They are characteristically taller than their base width and resemble a small, finely inverted cup. Each egg is white when first laid but within 24-36 hours a purplish brown band appears around the upper third of the egg. Newly hatched larvae are generally cream to tan colored with conspicuous black dots. Larger worms, up to 2 inches in length, vary in color from dark brown to cream to pale green and have light and dark bands extend along the sides and back. The bollworm moth varies in color from a light tan to reddish brown. Wing spread is approximately 1 1/2 inches across.

Bollworm eggs are deposited primarily in the terminal area, square bracts, and bolls of the plant. Ordinarily the egg hatches in 2-4 days, depending on the temperature. Newly hatched worms feed predominately in the terminal area and on small squares. Larger larvae will feed on larger squares, blooms and enter bolls. Most economic loss is a result of boll feeding, not square or bloom feeding. The pupal stage is the overwintering form, and is found in the soil at a depth of 1-4 inches. The larval period is approximately 14-18 days long. The pupal stage lasts about 14 days. Total egg to adult time is approximately 30-35 days, there are several generations a year (about 3 for bollworm and 1-2 for budworm) in Howard County.

Bollworms feed on squares, blooms and bolls. Except for some terminal feeding by newly hatched larvae, all feeding is concentrated on fruit. Damaged squares usually turn yellow, flare, and fall off. When infestations are severe, terminal feeding can "top off" the plants. Holes made by bollworms are jagged.

Careful scouting is crucial to a successful timely application. Here are some scouting pointers to consider:

- Check 100 plants throughout the field looking for eggs, worms, and square damage.
  - Keep track of white eggs, brown eggs, and small, medium, and large larvae.
  - Check primarily in the terminal growth, but some whole plant inspections should be made. Eggs have been found in rather uncharacteristic places all year such as stems, on lower leaves, and inside square bracts.
  - Small worms (less than 1/4 inch) are the most controllable size, but are difficult to find. You have to search for them.
  - Keep track of the number of key predators.
- In most situations, bollworm control will not pay in pre-bloom cotton. While square damage is an important factor to consider in any management decision, worm populations are most important. When 10 percent of the plants examined are infested with one or more 1/4

WORKS TO BE DISPLAYED — Tom Notestine, the reknown artist from San Antonio, has a unique art style that has won him numerous awards and international acclaim. He will be displaying some of his most recent works August 10-15 at Citizens Federal Credit Union.

Famed artist will offer workshop, exhibit here

Tom Notestine, the noted watercolor artist from San Antonio, will be in Big Spring Aug. 10-15 for a workshop and exhibit. The exhibit will be held at Citizens Federal Credit Union beginning Sunday, Aug. 10, from 1:30 to 5 p.m., and during the week from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The workshop, which will be held at the Treasure Chest, will get under way Monday, Aug. 11.

Notestine began his career as an architect in his home state of Kansas in 1958. During the years that followed, he did work in Architecture for the governments of Nicaragua, Honduras, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala and for private individuals there and in Jamaica, as well as work for the United States. Since his beginning in art, Notestine has revisited many of these countries for the subjects used in his watercolors.

The winner of numerous awards and prizes, Notestine won both the Best of Show and the First Place in Category A of The International Art Show in 1977, winning the awards over many excellent artists from throughout Europe, South America and the Northern Hemisphere of the Americas. He also won first in water color at the World Wide Air Force Art Show in 1977 in San Francisco and won blue ribbons in the distinguished Coppini Academy of Fine arts in 1976 and 1977.

He has also had many honors associated with his unique and individual art work. He was selected to create the original painting that was used as a basis for the official Bi-Centennial 12'x36' mural that now spans the San Antonio River in San Antonio, Texas. He was later commissioned to produce a painting for the President of Mexico, Lopez-Portillo, to be presented to him by a group of individuals invited to Mexico to meet with the President.

Notestine is a member of the Coppini Academy of Fine Arts in San Antonio, of which he is first vice president; a member of the Southwestern Watercolor Society of Dallas; the Watercolor Art Society of Houston; the San Antonio Watercolor Group; and the Hill Country Arts Foundation.

Following the workshop in Big Spring, Notestine will be doing workshops in Costa Rica, Central America; Rockport, Tex.; McAllen, Tex.; Puerto Vallarta and Cabo San Lucas, Baja; Spain and Portugal; San Miguel de Allende; and Bali. Individuals interested in taking classes from this reknown artist should contact the Treasure Chest as soon as possible since the class is limited in size.

Kids are going back to class in style

By ROBBI CROW
Family News Editor

Soon those almost-forgotten smells of paste, chalk and textbooks will once again be familiar aromas when area students resume classes this month.

For some freckle-faced little boys and girls, it will be their first year at the corner schoolhouse as they embark upon a new world of reading writing and arithmetic.

For others way past their initial experience as first-time students, the first day back to school after a fun-filled summer of water and fun will be highlighted with details of each others vacation-time experiences.

Right now is the time variety stores, department stores and specialty shops are filled with moms and kids grabbing Big Chief Tablets, paste and crayons in preparation for the big day.

Another familiar scene is that of hustling and bustling moms coraling rowdy kids into dressing rooms to try on and re-try on clothes for back-to-school.

What will be the hit of the fall and winter season for grade schoolers? What about the junior high and high schoolers? And let's don't forget the fashion-conscious college crowd.

Marceline Yeats, manager at the Kid's Shop says, fashion jeans, as always, will be the main theme this fall.

"Jeans matched with knit shirts and the new button-type, cut and sewn shirts in plaids will be real good for young girls going back to school," the store manager revealed.

Mrs. Yeats says the first day of school will see little girls in dresses trimmed with ruffles and lace.

"The look for fall will be more feminine," she explained. "Little lace collars will be popular on dresses and blouses."

The latest reports from fashion experts reveal that rabbit coats and fake furs will also play prominent parts in the back-to-school scene this fall and winter.

always been popular with grade school girls, Mrs. Yeats says roll-type anklets will have their place in fashion this fall.

The 'preppy look' will lead the parade of the junior high and high school wardrobe this coming school year.

Preppy shirts and blouses coordinated with fashion denim jeans will dominate styles when these teenagers go back to school in class.

"Wool and wool-look plaid shirts are coming on real strong," stressed Sam Shultz, manager of the local J.C. Penney's Store.

High school girls will spot their favorite guys on campus in classy fashion jeans coordinated with terry cloth pull-overs or knit-style sport shirts.

"The athletic look is real strong in young men's fashions," Shultz commented.

When college coeds leave home for their first day at the university, you can bet they'll have with them fall and winter wardrobes complete with stylish corduroy blazers and fashionable pleated pants.

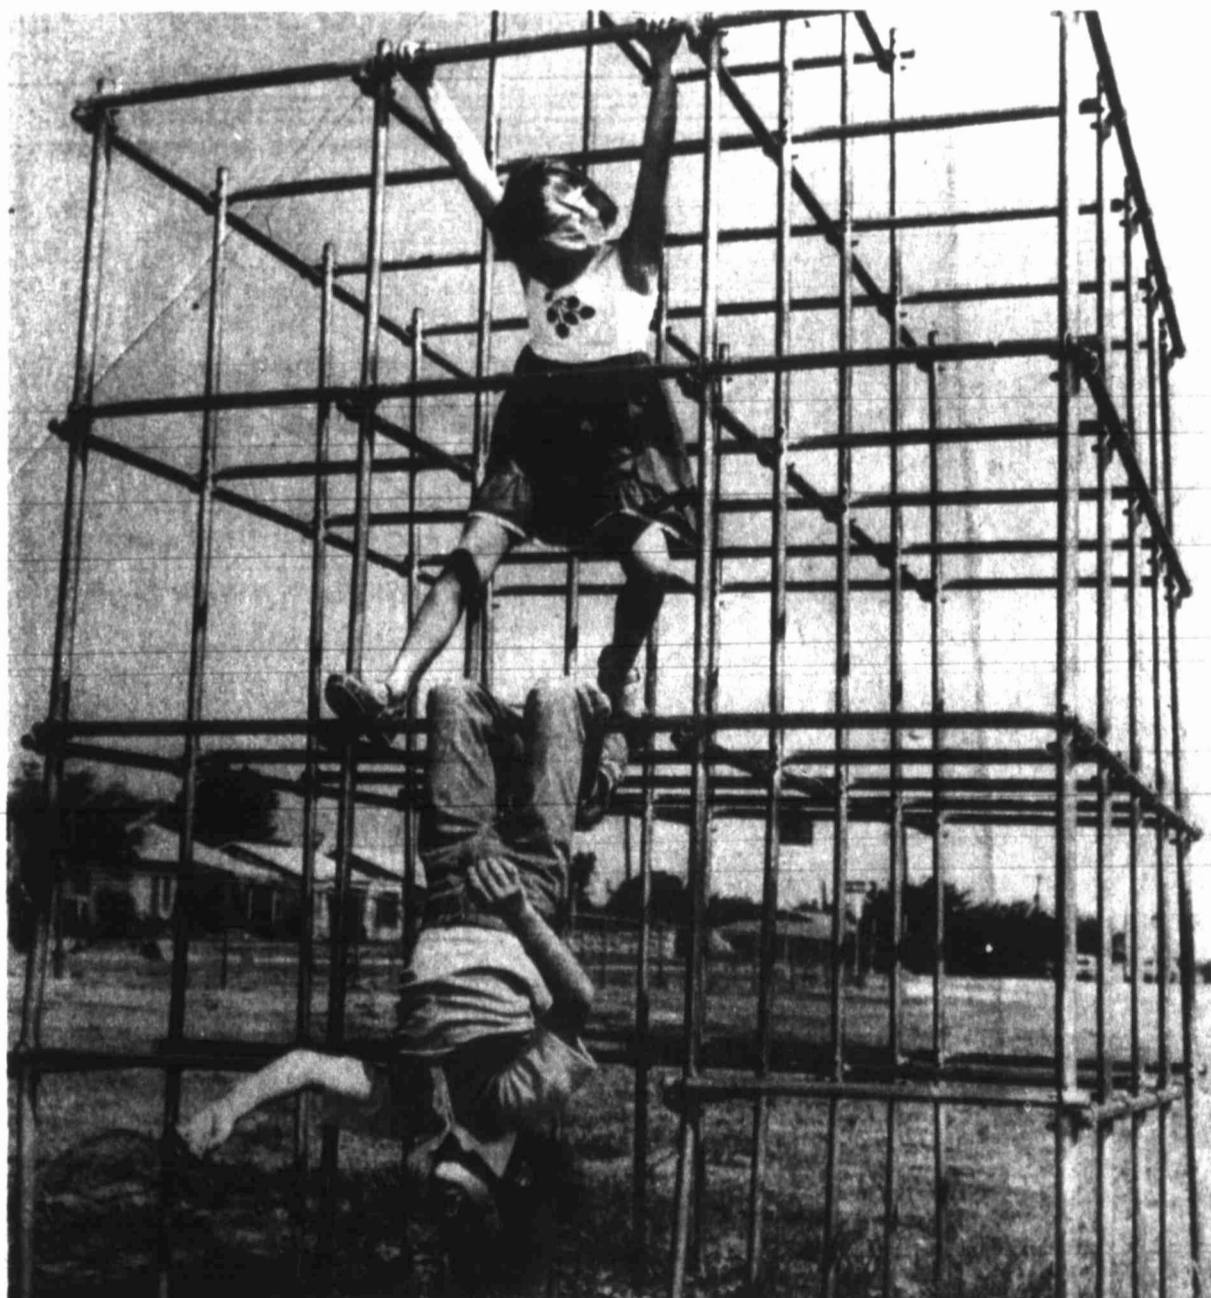

Dresses should be smooth and swanky in velours and sweater knits.

"Hemlines for back-to-school this year won't be as long as they were last year," revealed Casual Shoppe employee Sue Lamb. "They won't be much shorter, but a little." As for the total back to class scene, school buses will be carrying colorful loads of students clad in brilliant rainbows of burgundy, maroon, plum and wine, beige, bright golds and turquoise as well as the heather looks.

Teachers, get ready. This year's group of students are going back to class in style.

READING, WRITING AND FUN — Yes, school is hard work, especially after a fun-filled summer vacation. But always mixed in with reading, writing and arithmetic is hours and hours of fun playing and being with friends.

IT'S PERFECT — Pretty little freckled-faced Tina can't wait until the first day of class so she can wear this new dress she and her mom has picked out. But one dress isn't going to get it. So it's back out into the store to pick some more.

Vows solemnized Saturday

Palms of emerald foliage and baskets of white mums, carnations and gladiolus enhanced the altar setting of the First United Methodist Church Saturday evening as Vienna Arencibia became the bride of Bryon Pope.

Massive arrangements of mixed white flowers marked the bridal aisle which led to a multi-branch tree candelabrum as Dr. Edwin Chappell, pastor, read the 7 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aramis Arencibia, 2508 Lynn. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Pope, Rt. 1, Box 490.

Wedding music was provided by Charles Parham, organist, who accompanied Murry Vise, vocalist.

The bride was escorted down the aisle attired in a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie. The molded bodice, embellished with Chantilly lace, was designed to form a square neckline.

Lace also accentuated the full lantern sleeves. An inset of accordion pleats decorated the front of the A-line skirt from which fell a semi-cathedral train of solid Chantilly lace. Seed pearls highlighted the gown.

She chose to wear a bridal veil edged in coordinating lace which was attached to a headpiece sprinkled with pearls.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of white stephanotis and miniature white carnations arranged in an asares and tied with white picot satin.

Elizabeth Arencibia attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Wanda Brewer, Laura Moore, Midland, and Robbie Pope, sister of the groom.

The groom was attended by Donald Ray Luce of Stanton, who served as best man. Groomsmen included Wayne Jacobs, John Wayne Metcalf and Bill Arencibia, brother of the bride.

Guests were seated by Gary Goswick, Daryl Brunson, Tony Reidy and Kerry Denson.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds were feted with a reception and buffet at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

The bride's table was covered with silver satin cloth overlaid with white lace. Silver appointments complemented the setting.

Burlap cloth set with copper appointments decorated the groom's table.

A dance followed in the ballroom. Music was provided by John and Dino Spires.

Members of the houseparty included Mr. and Mrs. George Amos, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Amos, Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Russell, Mr. and Mrs. John Preston, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Aciri and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hughes.

Other houseparty members were Mr. and Mrs. Don Spence, Mr. and Mrs. C.O. Cross, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Bres, Mr. and Mrs. Alpha Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Whatley and Mr. and Mrs. David Hanson.

Also serving were Mr. and Mrs. Manny Junce, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Renshaw, Laura Bearden, Wayne Gorum, Tracy Brady, Sally Bunn, Mrs. Dewey Crow, and Diane Denson.

The bride is a Big Spring High School graduate and attended Howard College. She graduated from Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in education. She will work for the Texas Employment Commission.

The groom is a Coahoma High School graduate and attended Howard College for two years. He is a self-employed horse trainer.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to an undisclosed location, Mr. and Mrs. Pope will make their home at the Ponderosa Apartments.

Caroline Kramer becomes bride of Kenneth Smith

Caroline Kramer became the bride of Kenneth Smith in a candlelight ceremony solemnized Friday evening at the Holy Family Catholic Church, Fort Worth.

Father Martin Brophy read the 7:30 p.m. rite before an altar decorated with arrangements of chrysanthemums and gladiolus. Candles illuminated the setting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lous E. Kramer Jr., Fort Worth. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard E. Smith, Big Spring.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Sammie Whitten, organist, who accompanied John Farrell, vocalist.

The bride chose to wear a traditional wedding gown of white organza embellished with lace and seed pearls.

The bodice was designed with a Queen Anne neckline and full bishop sleeves which ended in deep lace-trimmed cuffs. Falling gracefully from the empire waistline was a chapel-length train. A matching veil completed the ensemble.

She carried a cascading bouquet of sonia rosebuds and small white carnations sprinkled with baby's breath.

Coleen Wells, Fort Worth, attended the bride as maid of honor. Kathy Carstarphn, Fort Worth, served as bridesmaid.

The groom was attended by Dale Kolden, best man, and Mike McReary, groomsman. Guests were seated by John, Philip, Robert and Louis Kramer.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds were feted with a reception in the Hospitality Room of the church.

The bride is a graduate of Arlington Heights High School and is currently employed at the Fort Worth Osteopathic Hospital.

The groom graduated from Big Spring High School and attended Howard College. He works for General Dynamics.

The couple now make their home in the Seville Square Apartments, Fort Worth.

MRS. KENNETH SMITH

College Baptist Church is scene of ceremony

A large tree candelabrum holding cathedral tapers enhanced the sanctuary setting of the College Baptist church as Debbie Lynn Bonner became the bride of Noel Wayne Hull.

Dr. Jimmy Law, Midland, read the Saturday evening rite before sunburst arrangements of gladiolus, carnations and daisies. Palms, jade foliage and arched candelabrum completed the scene.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaror Bonner, Leesville, La. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Noel Hull, 2611 E. 25th.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Myrna Richardson, organist, Malinda Milam, Lubbock, cousin of the groom, pianist, and Roger Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Powell, vocalists.

The bride was given in marriage wearing a formal gown of white dacron organza embellished with silk Venice lace.

The empire bodice featured a lace-edged Queen Anne neckline sprinkled with pearls. The long sheer sleeves, trimmed with lace at the wrists, ended with self ruffles.

The A-line skirt, falling to triple flounces at the hemline, extended to a chapel-length train. A fingertip-length Mantilla edged with coordinating lace completed her bridal ensemble.

She carried a cascading bouquet of yellow roses, white orchids, lily of the valley and stephanotis touched with baby's breath.

Karen Halfmann, St. Lawrence Rt., attended the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Pennie Bonner, Orlando, Fla., sister of the bride; Janet Hull, sister of the groom; and Helen Hicks.

Mike Lebowski, Odessa, served the groom as best man. Jim Law, Colorado City; Tim Cain, and David Bonner, brother of the bride, Leesville, La., were groomsmen.

Guests were seated by Primo Pelopero, Wesley Milam, Lubbock, and Marcus Phillips.

The bride's cousin, April Lynn, served as flower girl. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Hull were feted with a reception in the church activity building.

The bride's table was draped with white floor length cloth and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake. A silver candelabrum entwined with flowers in the bride's chosen colors of yellow and blue enhanced the setting as centerpiece.

Blue cloth covered the groom's table on which sat a horseshoe shaped chocolate cake. China appointments were used.

Servers included Mrs. Betty Lynn, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Myrtle Burns, Mrs. Tim Cain, Mrs. Sibel Horne, grandmother of the groom; and Mrs. Jimmy Law.

Members of the houseparty included Mr. and Mrs. Joe B. Neel, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy A. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. John Weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Draper, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cain and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Carlie.

The bride is a graduate of Leesville High School, Leesville, La., and is currently employed at the Coahoma State Bank in the Bookkeeping Department.

The groom graduated from Big Spring High School and is employed at Hester's Office Supply Co.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Grand Cayman Island in the British West Indies, the newlyweds will be at home in Big Spring.

Clayton is honored at family reunion

Four generations were represented when 85 family members of the late Reuben and Josephine Clayton gathered this weekend for a reunion.

The setting for the three-day affair was the Muleshoe Ranch of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Anderson in Borden County.

Honored on the occasion was Jerry Clayton, 79, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Clayton Sr., and the only living family member of his generation.

Jerry Clayton was one of 10 children born to the couple. He married Mary Pearl Dickinson Dec. 31, 1924 and they raised two daughters, Jere Clayton Hubbard III, and Barbara Clayton Anderson.

Mary Pearl Clayton died in 1956. Clayton later married the former Daisy Chambers. He is the grandfather of six and the great-grandfather of three.

In 1945, Clayton bought the original Muleshoe Ranch. His daughters acquired it in 1959.

"Incidentally," said Clayton, "I believe this is the only ranch in Borden County that is still in lack."

He was named Cattleman of the Year in 1979.

Early reunion arrivals on Friday were treated to a pot luck meal. Following a noon luncheon Saturday, family members enjoyed an afternoon of visiting and steer roping. The evening was highlighted with dancing and a chuck wagon supper.

AARP will meet Tuesday

The American Association of Retired Persons will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Kentwood Older Adult Center, 2805 Lynn.

A covered dish luncheon will be held, followed by a business meeting. All members are urged to be present.

WEDDING PLANS — B.J. Arnold, 3901 Connally and Mrs. Jean Grantham, Big Spring, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lana Jo, to Craig Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chuck L. Richardson, 2508 Cindy Lane. The couple will exchange vows Aug. 22 in the home of the prospective groom's parents with the Rev. Ben Neel, pastor of the Vincent Baptist Church, officiating.

Afternoon rite performed

MRS. RANDY CRAIG BARBER

Karen Elizabeth Fortson and Randy Craig Barber were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at the College Baptist Church.

Dr. Jimmy Law, Midland, read the 2:30 p.m. rite before an altar dressed with palm of caladium leaves and jade foliage.

Two small tree candelabras were decorated in high style with sonia and white mixed flowers with peach color. Candles accented the sanctuary setting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Fortson, Big Spring. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Barber, Big Spring.

Providing wedding music during the ceremony were the groom's sister, Mrs. James Matthews, Casper, Wyo., pianist; Mrs. Jerry Helmer, Midland, aunt of the groom, organist; and James Rhodes, Farmington, N.M., vocalist.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her father wearing a gown of white tulle featuring a molded bodice of Venice lace.

The A-line skirt fell gracefully into a chapel train. A chapel-length veil edged in matching lace was held with a headpiece adorned with lace and pearls.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white lilies and stephanotis sprinkled with sweetheart roses.

Cynthia Upton, Lubbock, attended the bride as maid of honor. Mrs. James Rhodes, Farmington, N.M., was bridesmaid.

Both wore gowns of taffeta overlaid with apricot chiffon print and carried garden bouquets of sonia rubium lilies and roses accented with tangerine miniature carnations.

Dr. Robert Ford, Dallas, served the groom as best man. The groom's cousin, Sandy Helmer of Midland, was groomsman.

Ushers included David Fortson, Kermit and Dwight Fortson, Fort Worth, both brothers of the bride.

Candles were lit by Theresa Ray and Shanette Johnson, cousins of the bride.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds were feted with a reception in the home of the bride's parents. Cathy Hicks, Midland, registered vocalist.

The bride's table was laid with white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of mixed white and sonia flowers. The three-tiered white cake was decorated with a cascade of apricot flowers.

The groom's table centerpiece was made of white and sonia flowers arranged in a crystal pitcher. A hand-crocheted lace cloth draped the table which featured an apple cake topped with marzipan fruit.

Serving were Mrs. Wayne Roberts, Mrs. Larry Ray,

Mrs. Dwight Fortson, Mrs. David Fortson, Lori Schroeder, Denton; Joanie Gelmeyer, Fort Worth; and Melanie Helmer, Midland.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Big Spring High School and received a B.S. degree in elementary education from North Texas State University. She is now employed by Farmington Schools as a kindergarten teacher.

The groom graduated from Big Spring High in 1973 and received a B.S. in chemical engineering from Texas A&M University. He is employed by Halliburton Services in Farmington as Field Engineer.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Cloudercroft and Santa Fe, N.M., Mr. and Mrs. Barber will reside in Farmington, N.M.

Carla Hale weds Kerry Simpkins

The Hillcrest Baptist Church was the setting for the Saturday evening wedding ceremony uniting Carla J. Hale and Kerry F. Simpkins.

Dr. Phillip McClendon, pastor, officiated the 6:30 p.m. rite. Wedding selections were performed by Carrie White, pianist.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Barbara Justice and Donnie Hale, both of Big Spring. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Simpkins, Big Spring.

The bride was escorted down the aisle wearing a floor-length gown of off-white satin overlaid with off-white lace. A lace and ribbon cape complemented her attire.

She chose to wear a matching hat of off-white lace decorated with ribbons and carried an arrangement of rosebuds, carnations and daisies.

Diana Lewis served as matron of honor. Mrs. Jim Sevey, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid.

Lester R. Pruitt, Big Lake, attended the groom as best man. Jim Sevey, brother-in-law of the groom, was groomsman.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Simpkins left for a wedding trip to Carlsbad, N.M.

The bride will be a sophomore at Forsan High School this fall. The groom is a Big Spring High School graduate and works for Geophysical Service Inc.

The couple will reside in Big Spring.

Extension Homemakers Hotline

Fairview was the only extension homemakers club meeting in July, and they met twice.

The home of Mrs. W.N. Wood was the meeting site when members met July 1 at 2 p.m.

The devotional, Psalms 12:4, was given by the hostess, Mrs. C. A. Smauley, president, presided.

"If you think education is expensive, try ignorance," was the thought for the day. Roll call was answered by seven members and one guest, Pam Wood of Albuquerque, N.M., naming their favorite dish they like to serve.

Mrs. Vern Vigar presented the program, demonstrating how to make Indian dolls from yarn. Each member completed a doll. Mrs. Vigar won the door prize.

The Fairview club gathered again on July 15 at 2 p.m. in the home of Mrs. D. F. Bigony, with Mrs. Smauley presiding.

The hostess read the devotional from John 16:25-31. The thought for the day was "Today one bag of groceries produces two bags of trash." Members answered roll call naming a vacation they would like to take.

Mrs. Vigar again presented the program, demonstrating how to make puddles from coat hangers and yard.

It was decided that cookies will be taken to the Big Spring State Hospital in the future.

Members voted to disband during the month of August. The next meeting will be held Sept. 2 in the home of Mrs. Frank Micallef.

Friendships renewed at recent luncheon

A group of women met in the home of Mary Mathis, Lubbock, recently for a salad luncheon and fellowship.

Friendships were renewed that started 43 years ago at the John N. Garner Consolidated School in Knott.

At that time they were associated as patrons, principal, teachers and pupils.

Guests included Mrs. Effie Allred, Knott; Mrs. Floyd McGregor Burns, Coolidge, Ariz.; Mrs. Allene Salsar Davis, Antioch, Calif.; and Edna Weed, Edna Earl Week Jacobs, Jo McGregor Davis and Jo Harland Fuller, all of Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecial Allred also visited with the group.

Lamesa Baptist church setting for wedding

MRS. RONDY FERGUSON

Couple marry at Hillcrest

Hillcrest Baptist Church was the scene for the July 19 wedding ceremony uniting Sandra Wall and James Robert Bair.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Wall, 2606 Larry. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Bair, 1308 Monmouth.

Dr. Phillip McClendon, pastor, officiated the 1 p.m. rite before a 12-branch arched candelabrum flanked on either side by baskets of yellow, brown and white carnations.

Susan Joslin, organist, accompanied Mona Lisa Portillo, vocalist, on the wedding selections.

The bride was given in marriage wearing a formal-length gown of dacron organza featuring an embroidered yoke. Silk Venice lace adorned the sheer bishop sleeves. From the waistline, the skirt fell into an embroidered flounce.

To accent her attire, she wore a white picture hat decorated with a tulle band. She carried a small silk bouquet of yellow and brown roses and carnations touched with baby's breath. Yellow and brown streamers tied the arrangement.

Mrs. Richard Templeton attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jim Sevey and Valerie Wilson.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids were attired in similar A-line gowns of qiana designed with printed chiffon overlays.

Their attire was enhanced with picture hats complemented by satin bows and flowers. They carried long-stemmed silk carnations.

Richard Templeton served the groom as best man. Groomsmen included Jerome Phifer and Jim Sevey. Guests were seated by John Walker and Larry Feaster.

Immediately following the exchange of rings and vows, Mr. and Mrs. Bair were honored with a reception in the church fellowship hall.

Servers were Brenda Harwood, Virginia Collins and Jackie McClendon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bair are both graduates of Big Spring High School. The groom is employed by Clyde McMahon Concrete Co.

Following a wedding trip to Lubbock, the newlyweds now make their home in Big Spring.

The First Baptist Church of Lamesa was the site for the July 26 wedding ceremony uniting Sharalyn Gwyn Holcomb and Rondy Ferguson.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Holcomb, Klondike; and Mr. and Mrs. Doy Ferguson, Sparenberg.

The Rev. A. E. Burns, pastor of the Klondike Baptist Church, performed the 8:30 p.m. rite before an archway of greenery decorated with blue satin bows.

Flanking either side of the setting were two sunburst floor candelabrum holding 30 blue tapers. Also complementing the scene were two heart-shaped candelabrum decorated with greenery. A unity candle completed the sanctuary setting.

Wedding selections were performed by Alfrida Sterling, pianist; Brenda Vogler, organist; Kenny Ferguson, bass guitarist and vocalist; Gary Jones, lead guitarist; Doy Ferguson, father of the groom, mandolinist; and Susan Holcomb, sister of the bride, vocalist.

When presented down the hurricane lamp-lit aisle, the bride was wearing a gown of white luster sheer designed in empire style. The bodice featured a princess neckline and bishop shadow sleeves gathered to pointed lace cuffs. Re-embroidered Venice lace embellished the fitted under sleeve as well as the bodice and trimmed the cathedral-length train.

She wore a fingertip-length veil which fell from a headpiece of satin, re-embroidered with matching lace.

As an accent to her ensemble, the bride carried a cascading bouquet of mystery gardenias, stephanotis and gypsophila atop a white Bible.

Susan Holcomb, Klondike, attended her sister as maid of honor. Junior bridesmaid was Shelby Airhart, Klondike.

Serving as bridesmaids were Suzi Caldwell, Arlington; Pepper Echols, Lubbock; Dawnelle Phillips, Austin; Manda Horton, Lamesa; Elonna Moore, Welch; and Kim Shipman, Graham.

Flower girl was Kayla Vogler, cousin of the bride.

Kenny Ferguson, brother of the groom, served as best man during the ceremony. Cody Vogler, Klondike, was junior groomsman.

Other groomsmen included Clay Holcomb, brother of the bride and Brian Harris, both of Klondike; Steve Wade, Randy Airhart and Marty Phillips, Lamesa.

Guests were seated by Ricky Barkowsky, Randy Holcomb and Mike Holcomb. Chad Montgomery, cousin of the groom, served as ring bearer.

Following the exchanging of vows, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson were feted with a reception in the church parlor. Guests were registered by Kelly Holcomb.

Blue cloth overlaid with white draped the bride's table which was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake separated by Grecian columns.

Brass appointments were used by servers Darla Holcomb, Roxanne Airhart and Laurie Foster.

Brown linen cloth decorated the groom's table which was enhanced by a miniature brass cotton trailer and bale of cotton. Guests were served German chocolate cake by Traci Airhart, cousin of the groom; and Dawna Montgomery.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Klondike High School and has attended Texas Tech University. The groom graduated from Klondike High in 1977 and attended Angelo State University.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, the newlyweds will be at home in Ackerly where the groom is engaged in farming in Martin and Dawson counties.

Dear Abby

"Living Will" Depends On Where You Live

DEAR ABBY: My beloved wife of 42 years recently died after a long and painful terminal illness. I feel that she was kept alive much too long after it became obvious that there was no hope for her recovery. If you had ever watched a beautiful 130-pound woman reduced to a 79-pound skeleton, you would understand my feelings. She begged for months to die, and we who loved her suffered with her. Her hospital bill alone was over $28,000. Thank God we could afford it, but what do poor people do?

How I wish my dear wife had signed the Living Will you mentioned in your column. When I told my doctor I wanted to obtain a Living Will instructing all those who loved me that they were not to keep me alive should I fall victim to a terminal illness and there was no reasonable hope for my recovery, he said, "You don't need one because California is one of the 10 states that have the Natural Death Act."

Is this true?

PLANNING AHEAD IN MODESTO

DEAR PLANNING: No. You need a document specifically prepared for the state in which you live because the law in each state differs slightly.

The 10 states that have the Natural Death Act are: Arkansas, California, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon, Texas and Washington.

The Society for the Right to Die, 250 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019, has prepared forms and guidelines specifically designed for each of the above states. It will send you the proper form on request. There is no charge for the document, but the society is a non-profit organization, so please send a few dollars to cover the cost of the document and mailing.

If you live in one of the other 40 states (many of which now have bills pending), you will be sent a Living Will declaration to sign as evidence of your wishes. Meanwhile your name will be recorded and the society will send you a proper form if and when the law is enacted in your state.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How To Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will do well in any practical field of endeavor and can be most successful, provided you give the best education you can afford. Teach ethics and morality early in life and don't neglect spiritual training. "The Stars Impel," they do not compel! "What you make of your life is largely up to you!"

FORECAST FOR MONDAY,
 AUGUST 4, 1980
GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to work out a better financial arrangement early in the day. Later you become more interested in the social side of life. Make sure your activities are well organized.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Tackle every angle of a difficult problem in the morning and get excellent results. Cut down on expenses where you can.
Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what your true aims are and then go after them in a positive way. Show more interest in activities where you can.
Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Get together with associates and make plans to be more productive in the future. Improve your appearance.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You need a more worldly viewpoint if you wish to expand in career activities at this time. Be alert!
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact good friends who can assist to gain your most cherished wishes. Be wise and careful in spending your money.
Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Morning is best for widening your vistas and gaining your aims. Later center with influential persons for support you need.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle important business affairs early in the day. You'll have time to study new plans to be more productive in the future. Keep commitments you have made.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy at work ahead of you and gain benefits. You are able to make rapid progress at this time. Be wise.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Talk with associates who can produce excellent results at this time. Exercise more patience in handling a civic matter.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't neglect to look into new interests that are appealing in life. Show more affection for family members.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have more talks with allies and plan how to become more successful in the days ahead. Make this a most productive day.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can easily gain the right perspective in business matters and go to the right schools and this can become a successful and happy life. Teach early in life to be more understanding of others. "The Stars Impel," they do not compel! "What you make of your life is largely up to you!"

Wild entertainment, monumental production

Although it features lots of acts which were gonged by the censors, "The Gong Show Movie," is more than a bonanza of bizarre novelty acts.

The R-rated comedy is the story of a man's drive and ability to succeed in the wild and woolly world of entertainment.

The scene is Hollywood. This is not the idyllic Hollywood of elegant parties, Polo Lounge chatter, or superstar trauma-drama. This is the workaday Hollywood of a television producer, director, and performer. Complications arise when the madness of the auditions, rehearsals, and the shows themselves drive the program's host into flight.

The Universal Picture focuses in a hilarious and outrageous manner on the whirlwind daily schedule of one of Hollywood's most successful television personalities, Chuck Barris.

Barris not only co-wrote the script with Robert Downey, he also directed and stars in "The Gong Show Movie." This marks his feature film directorial debut. Budd Granoff is the producer.

Barris says his film is

OUTRAGEOUS COMEDY — As Chuck (Chuck Barris) tries to relax in the desert, a swarm of people descend on him, including his daughter Della (Della Barris), in Universal's outrageous R-rated comedy, "The Gong Show Movie," which opened Thursday at the Jet Drive-In on Wasson Road.

"more than The Gong Show sideways. We've got a 'Hellzapoppin' quasi-documentary feel that reflects just what happens when you deal with the lunatic fringe. Interwoven in the film is the feeling that dealing with these people can be a little scary and a little dangerous. Much of the film is based on fact."

A hit songwriter ("Palisades Park") and best-selling novelist ("You And Me, Babe"), Barris is the creative force behind a dozen television game shows, including The Dating Game, The Newlywed Game, Treasure Hunt, The $1.98 Beauty Show, and Three's A Crowd. Barris also composed five songs for the film: "Sometimes It Just Don't Pay To Get Up," "Why Me Oh Lord," "I'm The Cook," "Don't Get Up," and "Robin's Song." An accomplished musician, Barris is an excellent guitarist, plays the drums acceptably well and is learning to master the trumpet. On a regular basis he has jam sessions with a group of musicians, "The Hollywood Cowboys." There are five in the group, including Barris, and they are featured in the film.

Although it is not well known, Chuck Barris has composed the theme songs for most of his game shows. His first success in show business was the record, "Palisades Park," which he composed. "Palisades Park" sold 1,200,000 copies. He is an avid record collector and spends most of his limited leisure time listening to music.

The film is semi-factual and at times the action and zany characters seem too crazy to be real. Many of the incidents and novelty acts are pure fantasy, but they are in keeping with the Hellzapoppin' fast clip in which the film was shot and edited. Through the film Barris is pursued by ordinary people from all walks of life — including chefs, doctors, waitresses, derelicts, as well as nuts and freaks — who want to be on The Gong Show. Some of these people are off the wall, and all of them are unreservedly optimistic. They all want to be part of show business, if only for a moment. Their attitude is healthy and uninhibited and all they want is to entertain others.

The large cast of "The Gong Show Movie" includes Robin Altman in her film debut. She plays the role of Chuck Barris' roommate.

Mabel King appears as his secretary, a woman never seen without her Mama, played by Lillie Shelton.

Jaye P. Morgan, often justly described as irrepressible and inimitable, plays herself.

Rip Taylor is a hilarious and rattled Maitre D'.

James B. Douglas plays the role of a solemn TV vice president who's always on Barris' back about cleaning up the act.

The Unknown Comic, aka Murray Langston, appears (as always) with a paper bag on his head, and provides the film with some of its funniest and raunchiest bits.

Appearing as themselves are Pat McCormick, Patty Andrews, Rosey Grier, Bill Bridges, Tony Randall, Steve Garvey, and Barris' daughter, Della.

Also featured are such outrageous performers as Monsieur La Poof, The Vatican Four, the Siamese Connection, and Count Banjola. Better you should see them perform than ask what they do.

Also of interest is the fact that many of the featured players — including Chuck Barris — Production secretaries, bookers, and staff members portray themselves. It's a case of nature imitating art.

Another unusual aspect of the film is that it was shot by cinematographer Richard Glouner ("Payday," "The Man With Bogart's Face") on actual locations in Los Angeles — Century City Health Club, Matteo's Restaurant in Westwood, the Hollywood Hills, The Veterans' Hospital in West Los Angeles, the Ontario Airport, and the former Desilu lot in Hollywood. A crew of forty worked in unison and the film was completed on schedule in seven weeks.

Unit production manager Byron Roberts selected the crew and deserves credit for the smooth operation of all aspects of the filming. One of the most complicated sequences in the movie was shot at the dunes in Pismo Beach.

Mike Reid tackles songwriting career

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Former pro football player Mike Reid is tackling a songwriting career and learning it takes practice and teamwork just like on the gridiron.

Reid, a standout defensive tackle for the Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League from 1970 until his retirement in 1975, is writing pop music for ATV Music Group.

Two of his songs are being developed for a television movie, "Rodeo Girl." A year ago, singer Jerry Jeff Walker recorded another Reid song, "Eastern Avenue," on an album.

Reid, 33, who moved to Nashville from Cincinnati in July, recently took up songwriting full time, giving up a solo singing act he had tried after he abandoned his football career.

"In songwriting, you write what is most inspiring to you, then take the ego out of it to make it palatable for a great amount of people," the scholarly Reid said in an interview. "The main thing is to write quality songs appealing to a lot of people. It's merging commerce and creativity."

Reid, a 6-foot-3, 215-pounder, says his ambition is to write songs good enough to be recorded by stars like James Taylor, Tony Bennett, Barbra Streisand, Dionne Warwick, Ronnie Milsap, Emmylou Harris and Delbert McClintock.

To be a good songwriter, he said he has to do the same thing he did to become a stellar football player: practice, practice, practice. "You must learn technique," Reid said. "You've got to be pleased and please other people. I need considerable work as a songwriter. I'm very familiar with the pop song idiom, but songs were always a personal thing to me — personal statements.

Black powder gun replicas now on display at local library

By REBECCA TAYLOR
 Reference Librarian

Currently on display at the Howard County Library is a small collection of early black powder gun replicas. Black powder guns are defined by the use of a smoky propellant made of carbon, sulfur and saltpeter (potassium nitrate).

The earliest black powder guns used a fuse type firing mechanism. A lighted 'fuse,' similar to a burning rope, was laid on the powder in the pan ignited the powder in the barrel and propelled the ball through the barrel. One of the most familiar of these types is the matchlock.

The use of flint to ignite the powder in the pan created the flintlock and the wheellock. The wheellock was wound up with a crank. When fired, the firing mechanism whirled around striking sparks into the pan from the flint.

The cap and ball replaced the flint, firing block and open powder pan with a cap containing fulminate of mercury and an enclosed powder pan. The gun is loaded as usual with powder, patch and ball, then the cap is placed on an open nipple behind the closed powder pan. The hammer, striking the nipple, explodes the cap into the powder pan which explodes the powder in the barrel.

One of the pistols on display is a cap and ball revolver. The .44 caliber Navy Colt is of Confederate issue. The main difference in the appearance of the Confederate gun and the Union twin is that the rebel revolver was made with a soft brass back while the Union used the harder blue gun metal. The South did not have access to the industrial resources to produce the blue metal.

Another of the displays is a replica of an 1836 Hawkins Bear or Mountain Rifle, favored by old time trappers and mountain men. The big 50 caliber gun is a cap and ball model capable of bringing down large game,

Various types of paraphernalia are included in the display, such as a powder horn which holds a pound of powder and a Confederate Navy flask which holds 6 oz. of loading equipment, and some hand made knives with bone handles.

Black powder guns are not classified as weapons by the federal government. Most states have some laws regarding black powder, including some special hunting seasons.

Black powder hunting presents a challenge akin to that of archery. The killing range and the fact that you only get one shot, means that the hunter must acquire some skill and expend energy to make the kill.

For more information on antique guns and sport hunting, check it out, at your Howard County Library.

Bluegrass Festival is set Labor Day weekend

KERRVILLE, Texas — The 9th annual season of outdoor Kerrville Music Festivals will draw to a music-filled close on the four-day Labor Day weekend, Thursday through Sunday, August 28-31, at Rod Kennedy's Quiet Valley Ranch with the star-studded Kerrville Bluegrass Festival.

Filled with nationally-known stars and all of those Texas performers who have become bluegrass favorites through the years, the festival headlines Japanese fiddler Shoji Tabuchi on opening night, Peter Rowan on the first two nights, Mac Wiseman on Saturday night, and the now traditional closing jam session on Sunday night.

National stars fill the line-ups including the Sullivan Family, Buck White and the Downhome Folks with Jerry Douglas and Ricky Skaggs, Doyle Lawson and Quicksilver, the Pinnacle Boys with their twin fiddles, the McLain Family Band from Kentucky, Larry Sparks and the Lonesome Ramblers from Indiana, and 1979 International Mandolin Champion

David Harvey with his Reasonable Band.

Super-picker, composer David Grisman will be on hand both to play and to judge the second annual Buck White International Mandolin Championships during the day Friday and Saturday.

Oklahoma favorites Bill Grant and Delia Bell bring their strong traditional music from Hugo backed by Johnny Martin and the Bluegrass Ramblers from LaPorte, Texas. The House Brothers from Dallas, Pickin' Tymes from Irving, Grassfire from Austin, Shady Grove Ramblers from Irving, and the humorous Larkin Brothers from Tennessee complete the announced line-up.

Also expected are a dozen top mandolin competitors for the Buck White competition, a dozen aspiring banjo pickers for the Southwestern Banjo Championships, and nearly that many good bluegrass bands trying for the 1980 Bluegrass Band Championship cash, trophy and title.

Three previously announced performers have been deleted from the festival line-up including Bryan Bowers, John Hartford and the New Grass Revival. Joe Stuart has been added to the Sullivan Family appearances.

Couple speak wedding vows

MRS. JOE P. GUTIERREZ

Mary Lou P. Saldivar and Joe P. Gutierrez exchanged wedding vows the morning of July 26 at the Sacred Heart Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolfo G. Saldivar, 1108 N. Nolan. The groom is the son of Mrs. Fermin Gutierrez, 610 N. Gregg.

The Rev. James P. Delaney officiated the ceremony before an altar adorned with spiral candelabrum flanked by white wicker baskets of white gladiolus. A wedding arch entwined with mixed greenery completed the sanctuary setting.

Eva Rodriguez provided wedding music at the organ. Vocalist was Buster Green. Guests were registered by Esther Hernandez.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose to wear a formal-length gown of white sheer silk organza and Chantilly lace over taffeta she designed herself.

Alencon lace over French point d'esprit decorated with hand-embroidered flowers embellished the Queen Anne neckline which was dotted with seed pearls.

Falling gracefully from the fitted waistline was a full circle cathedral-length train. She chose to wear a chapel-length veil which was held by a pearl-encrusted Juliet cap of asares, cut glass and Alencon lace.

As an accent to her ensemble, the bride carried a bouquet of asares and cut glass tied with white satin ribbons.

Anna Gutierrez, sister of the groom, attended the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Louisa Porras, Irene Saldivar, sister of the bride; Gloria Rodriguez, and Janie Rodriguez, cousins of the bride.

Others were Rosie Romero, Mary Vela, Amelia Morales, Janie Lopez, Lupe Morales, Sylvia Del Bosque, Terry Villa, Mary Lou Hernandez, Diana Martinez, Josie Padron, Lupe Hernandez, Pat Mendoza, Pat Puga, Debbie Puga, Clara Brown, Luey Alvarez and Lizzy Flores.

Also serving as bridesmaids were Mary Helen Saldivar, Mary Elva Saldivar, cousins of the bride; Velma Florez, Sandra Espinoza, Lupe Garza, Rose Mary Garcia, Beatrice Deleon and Mary Ann Deleon.

Serving as cushion maids were Rosa Sandoval and Dianna Sandoval, cousins of the groom.

The groom was attended by Joe Porras, best man. Groomsmen included Louis Silva, cousin of the bride; Noe Flores, Bobby Stokes, Ricky Gutierrez, brother of the groom; Robert Vela, Thomas Hernandez, Amadeo Garza and Cruz Gonzales.

Others were Frankie Rubio, Tony Martinez, Tony Chavez, Raymond Martinez, Tony Padron, Oscar Rodriguez, Larry Mendoza, Ben Garcia, Pete Cerda, Robert Garcia, Richard Brito, Jamie Saldivar, Tony Saldivar and Adoll Saldivar, cousins of the bride.

Other groomsmen included Louis Florez, Manuel Deleon, Fernando Garza, Hisinio Moreno Jr., Danny Deleon and Benjamin Deleon.

Pete Perez and Pete Rodriguez were ushers. Flower girls included Laurie Hernandez and Mary Lou Porras. Fermin Gutierrez Jr. brother of the groom; and Connie Garcia carried the couple's rings.

Following the ceremony, the newlyweds were feted with a reception in the Sacred Heart Youth Center.

White lace draped the reception table which was decorated with daisies, gypsophila and greenery. Guests were served from an eight-tiered wedding cake accented with blue roses, white daisies, greenery and baby's breath. A blue fountain flowed beneath.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and attended Howard College. She is presently employed at T.G.&Y.

The groom graduated from Big Spring High and attended Howard College also. He works for Pan American Oil Field Service, Inc.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso and Carlsbad, N.M., Mr. and Mrs. Gutierrez will make their home in Big Spring.

Although the Bridal Gift Registry is one of the most helpful services for both the bride and her wedding guests, we here at Accent Shoppe find couples still have questions about the registry concept. We are sometimes asked when they should register. The answer is as soon as you can. We have a minimum of 3 to 4 months before the wedding. This gives the store enough time to select the things you've selected. All your choices will be in stock when your friends come to purchase gifts. They'll be glad to buy from the thought registry.

Miss Minchew becomes Mrs. Terry S. Howard

Wedding vows and rings were exchanged July 19 in a candlelight ceremony performed at the Baptist Temple Church between Delynn Minchew and Terry Shain Howard.

The Rev. Allen McHam, pastor, solemnized the 7:30 p.m. rite before a spiral candelabrum flanked on either side by two seven-branch candelabrum. Massive arrangements of flowers and ferns enhanced the setting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Minchew, 3212 Drexel Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Truman Howard, Rt. 2, Box 134.

Wedding music was provided by Lila Atkins, Groomsmen included Jay pianist, who accompanied Calvin and Larson Lloyd Jr. vocalists. Farley Hayworth and Cay Leudecke.

The bride chose to wear a white satin gown adorned with lace. The bodice was designed with a soft ruffle of lace which fell gently off the shoulders. Pink ribbon defined the natural waistline.

As an accent to her ensemble, the bride carried a bouquet of honeysuckle and carnations touched with pink and red roses.

Donna Reynolds, Port Neches, attended the bride as maid of honor. Danita Minchew and Kama Minchew, both sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Farley Hayworth served as best man for the groom. Groomsmen included Jay Calvin and Larson Lloyd Jr. vocalists. Farley Hayworth

Alvarado and Jack Howard.

Flower girl was Pattie Howard. Ring bearers included Kent Minchew and Shay Howard.

Immediately following the ceremony, the newlyweds were feted with a reception in the church fellowship hall.

The bride's table was draped with pink cloth and centered with the bridal bouquet. Colors of burgundy decorated the groom's table.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Howard are graduates of Big Spring High School. The groom is employed by Cottingham Bearing Co., and his wife works for Professional Pharmacy.

Following a wedding trip to San Angelo, the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Q: I seem to have a hodge-podge of cosmetics, is this okay?

A: My advice to you is to decide which line you feel works best for you and begin collecting treatment preparations of that particular line. Cosmetic companies design their products to work with their products. You will certainly get more benefit from the treatment as they are designed to work together.

You need not be as concerned with eye makeup, lipstick, cheek color, etc. as most of these items are not considered treatment. Although many cosmetic lines do offer color treatment.
