

ARRIVES FOR MEETINGS — President Ronald Reagan stands with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo after his arrival on the South Lawn of the White House today. The two will fly to Camp David, Md., later to begin the two days of meetings. At left is Vice President George Bush and Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

Reagan, president of Mexico plan to hold lengthy talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan welcomed Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo to the White House today, pledging a relationship of "mutual respect and cooperation" between their two countries.

"The good will between Mexico and the United States is a blossom whose beauty we meet here to cherish and protect," Reagan told Lopez Portillo.

The Mexican president told Reagan in an arrival statement that "we will talk things over without arrogance." This seemed to allude to Mexican sensitivity based on longstanding differences with the United States over Central America.

The two men met briefly in the White House before boarding helicopters en route to Camp David, Md., the presidential retreat where talks were scheduled today and Tuesday morning.

The welcoming ceremony on the White House South Lawn was scaled down from earlier official welcomes for foreign leaders. A U.S. Marine Corps band played the two nation's anthems, but a customary review of troops was eliminated.

Lopez Portillo left his limousine and met Reagan with an "abrazo," a traditional embrace afforded friends in Latin America. Lopez Portillo's failure to welcome President Carter with such an embrace several years ago in Mexico City reflected the difficulties of the U.S.-Mexican relationship in recent years.

Lopez Portillo, in an apparent reference to differences between the two nations over the conflict in El Salvador, said "we are ... immersed in a regional contest that shades our relationship."

"We want to be understood and in turn we want to understand you," the Mexican president said.

State Department officials said they could not recall any recent instance in which an American president has devoted as much time to a visiting foreign leader.

The lengthy discussions with Lopez Portillo are in recognition of Mexico's importance not only as a neighbor but as an emerging oil power and the No. 3 trading partner of the United States, U.S. officials said. Besides trade and energy questions, the issue of Mexicans who reside illegally in the United States was certain to come up, they added.

Reagan was not expected to make specific proposals to Lopez Portillo on illegal Mexican immigration to the United States.

Westbrook residents turn out en masse for parade

WESTBROOK (SC) — There was no circling of covered wagons in anticipation of the arrival of Indians Saturday in Westbrook, when both wagons and Indians as well as cowboys, joined together in the first Westbrook parade held as part of a two-day Mitchell County Centennial Celebration.

Floata, decorated bicycles and citizenry turned out en masse to participate in and view the first-time event, which included Mitchell County Centennial chairman Bobby Lemons and his burro friend.

Sunday's activities included a 4-H dress review, with Elizabeth Barnett capturing first prize and Tami Putman second.

In the style show, which featured fashions of early day pioneer women, Maggie Hamrick finished first with Lola Doss the second place winner.

Entries in the fiddlers' contest participated from Westbrook, Colorado City, Odessa, Snyder and Sweetwater, with first place going to Richard Beck of Snyder, Jim McDonald of Sweetwater finished second.

Conviction reversed

Admitted rapist seeks legal technicalities

HOUSTON (AP) — Like many convicts, John Lee Spinelli has turned from breaking the law to trying to practice it.

The balding 37-year-old has filed 30 lawsuits against various legal authorities.

From appearances, Spinelli could be a lawyer or preacher, for instance.

But actually, he is an admitted rapist, robber and kidnapper who faces several life prison sentences in California, 18 years in federal prison and who may eventually do a long stretch in a Texas prison.

About six weeks after he escaped from a California prison three years ago, he was arrested for a spree of rape, robbery, kidnappings and shootings in the Houston area.

"I did it — I was even on TV," he says.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed his conviction and life sentence last Wednesday. The reversal was based on a technicality — a single line was left out of the judge's charge to the jury.

On Monday, Spinelli will be transferred from his Harris County jail cell to federal prison to begin serving his 18-year term for bank robbery. After that, he'll be sent to California to continue serving his life sentences.

But Spinelli tries to look on the bright side.

"With all the technicalities I have on the case out there (in California), and if I am lucky, I might be out in 8½ years."

Spinelli, 37, has spent 14 years of his adult life behind bars.

"I am very comfortable in prison," he says. "I do get a charge out of taking them on."

He says Texas is violating state law by using inmates as building tenders and guards, a charge the prison system has consistently denied.

"I wrote the Walker County sheriff in Huntsville asking for an investigation," he says. "He wouldn't do it, so I sued him. I asked the district attorney for a grand jury investigation. He wouldn't do it, so I sued him."

"Let's just say I'm an advocate for justice."

Surprise attack Israeli planes destroy Iraq's nuclear reactor

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked and destroyed Iraq's nuclear reactor outside Baghdad on Sunday, the Israeli military command announced today.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report from Iraqi authorities in Baghdad.

The French-built, 70-megawatt research reactor, said to be ready for completion this summer, had stirred controversy because its fuel could be used to make nuclear weapons.

The Israeli military said it would not explain the reason for the extraordinary action, carried out by Israeli warplanes against a target 600 miles from Tel Aviv.

"We don't wait for the reactor to be completed to destroy it," a military spokesman said.

Some 100 to 150 foreign experts were working on the reactor and reportedly were on a Sunday day off when the Israeli planes struck, the command said. It said all the Israeli planes returned safely, but it did not say how many took part in the attack.

The surprise attack against the Arab nation came during a period of heightened tensions in the Middle East because of Israeli objections to the presence of Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon.

Last Sept. 30, a week after the outbreak of the Iran-Iraq war, the Baghdad atomic facility was attacked — but reportedly not damaged — by warplanes bearing Iranian markings. One report at the time said the planes were Israeli, but this was never confirmed, nor did Iran acknowledge that it staged the raid.

The Israelis said today the French reactor was scheduled to be completed in July or September.

If it was not yet operational and there was no fuel on the site, 12 miles east of Baghdad, Sunday's attack presumably did not spread radioactivity in the Iraqi capital. A smaller Soviet-built test reactor on the site was already in operation, but it could not be learned whether it was hit by the planes.

The $275-million, French-built Osirak reactor has been under construction since the mid-1970s at the Tammouz Nuclear Research Center. The Israelis have long demanded that France cease its nuclear aid to Iraq, and last summer an Israeli Defense Ministry official said that if diplomacy failed to block France's shipment of weapons-grade uranium shipments to Iraq, Israeli will be compelled to "consider its next step."

The French government countered that Iraq had ratified the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and that the entire reactor project was under the close control of the Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency.

In early 1979, saboteurs blew up major parts of the reactor awaiting shipment from a French warehouse on the Mediterranean coast. The saboteurs were never caught and suspicion was directed at the Israeli secret services.

Trumped-up charges Lad killed after dad gets custody

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Weiden fought for years to win custody of his son. And scarcely a year after he did, the boy was dead, killed by a shotgun blast fired by a stranger.

"I don't know what to think," says Weiden, a soft-spoken, bearded man who carries in his pickup a photo album filled with pictures of his son. "I guess I'm just confused."

As his attorney, Spencer Gardner, says, Weiden's story comes across like a "novel that hurts."

During the three years before his divorce was final, Weiden, 35, was arrested twice on what he says were trumped-up charges filed by a county attorney who was representing Weiden's wife in the divorce.

Weiden is suing Falls County, southeast of Waco, over the conduct of former County Attorney Elmo Parsons Jr.

The suit seeks $570,000 in damages and says Parsons should not have been allowed to conduct a private practice and be county attorney at the same time.

Falls County Sheriff Larry Pamplin says Parsons has "simply disappeared." Belton police say they have a warrant for his arrest on charges of illegally possessing a handgun and drugs.

Weiden's wife, Dora, left him in September 1978 and took their son, Brent, to Marlin in Falls County. She promptly filed suit there for divorce and custody of the boy.

About a month later, Weiden took Brent out of his wife's car and moved to California.

"I wanted to keep my son any legal way I could," Weiden said.

Parsons filed a felony assault charge against Weiden, who was jailed for a week in California and extradited to Texas. Weiden said he was never told the specific allegations against him.

FACES CHARGES — Donny Ray Biggs, far right, Slaton, was arrested in Sterling County after he allegedly left the scene of an accident on U.S. 87 three-quarters of a mile north of County Road No. 2, at 2 p.m. Saturday. Biggs, who was driving a Dodge van, reportedly was involved in an accident with a Cadillac driven by Mack Roberts of Houston. Reports show Biggs left the scene and headed into Sterling County, where he allegedly hit a Volkswagen.

He was later apprehended by a Sterling County official, and Highway Patrolman Bill Jennings, second from left. Assisting were Deputy Eddie Owens, of the Howard County Sheriff's department, and Bud Summers, center, Forsan constable. Biggs is in the Sterling County jail, facing arraignment on charges of driving while intoxicated and reckless conduct. Officials are unsure of what caused the cut above Biggs' left ear.

REACHING FOR THE SKY — Mrs. A.C. (Allie) Moore of 1907 Main Street stands beside a Century Plant in her yard which has grown to such proportions in the past few weeks it could serve the famed lack of Beanstalk fame. Mrs. Moore, whose talent for growing African Violets are well known here, says the Indians once used the teeth on the leaves of the plant as sewing needles. In reality, the Century Plant is a member of the Amaranth family. Contrary to belief, they bloom every ten to 50 years, after which they die leaving numerous offsets at the base.

'Hurricane babies' deluging hospitals

Lights went out last summer

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Local hospitals say Hurricane Allen's full effect is being felt now — nine months after the storm's winds and rain left the area in the dark.

Hospital births records for the week of May 17 were the highest in five years during the same period.

The date was 41 weeks after the major storm lashed at the South Texas coast before losing power and coming ashore on the sparsely populated rangelands of the King Ranch.

A normal pregnancy term is 38 to 42 weeks. "Just looking at it across the board, that would give some credence to a cause-and-effect relationship with the hurricane," said Dudley Stephens, obstetrics department supervisor at Brownsville Medical Center.

Stephens said hospital records showed a record high for deliveries during May 17-23 with 24 births.

City birth records for the period are incomplete. Brownsville Medical Center reported 52 births in May and Valley Community Hospital had 82 that month, but only 81 are listed on municipal records.

Midwives deliver a high percentage of local births and those may not be recorded for several months.

The following June and July showed 160 babies born.

During Hurricane Allen, an estimated 40,000 Rio Grande Valley residents stayed in emergency shelters and thousands more evacuated to San Antonio and other inland cities.

When dinosaurs had wanderlust

By THOMAS HARNEY
Smithsonian News Service

If Nicholas Hotton were rewriting the lyrics of that famous song from "Showboat," they might go something like this:

"Fish gotta swim, birds gotta fly... and dinosaurs gotta migrate."

Dinosaurs gotta migrate? Yes, indeed, according to Hotton, who, as you might have guessed, is not a songwriter but a paleobiologist (that's a scientist who studies fossils) at the Smithsonian's Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C.

GO NORTH YOUNG DINO — A scientist at the Smithsonian's Museum of Natural History believes that dinosaurs made annual migrations. In this scene, an artist has re-created how a herd of duck-billed dinosaurs might have looked 70 million years ago as they drifted north from present-day Montana to the Arctic Circle.

He also is one of the leading advocates of the theory that dinosaurs made annual seasonal migrations, comparable to the long-distance treks undertaken today by birds and whales. The possibility of dinosaur migrations bears directly on the mysteries of migrations as well as on the question of what sort of animal a dinosaur was and how it lived and behaved. All of which is a matter that is still very controversial today.

But first, imagine this scene as painted by Hotton: a herd of enormous dinosaurs striding 2,000 miles, from present-day Montana northward to well above the Arctic Circle.

The time is 70 million to 75 million years ago, a period that scientists call the late Cretaceous Era. The herd is made up of two-footed, plant-eating hadrosaurids — a group of dinosaurs that flourished in North America in great numbers and many forms during this period.

Towering 10 to 20 feet above the ground and weighing as much as 6,000 pounds, the elephant-sized creatures stood erect, with duck-like beaks and bizarre, helmet-like crests covering the tops of their heads. Small wonder they are also called "duckbill dinosaurs."

With their beaks, the hadrosaurids browsed on needles, twigs, fruits and seeds of the conifers and other trees that covered vast areas of continental North America. As they foraged, they moved steadily northward, their powerful legs taking them 10 to 20 miles a day.

Now, before you accuse Hotton of having an overly vivid imagination, make no mistake. The latest fossil evidence firmly supports Hotton's contention, that these awesome journeys actually took place.

Indeed, scientists first were tipped off to the possibility of annual Arctic migrations about eight years ago, Hotton says, when fossil remains of hadrosaurids were discovered in the Yukon Territory almost as far north as 70 degrees latitude, well above the Arctic Circle. Plentiful remains of the same animals had been found earlier in western North America.

There is good reason to doubt that hadrosaurids could have lived near the Arctic Circle year-round, Hotton says. Scientists have reconstructed what the climate was like during the late Cretaceous Era, and while it was warm and temperate that far north in the spring, summer and fall, the winters were certainly dark and cold. Under such inhospitable conditions, it seems all the more likely that the many fossils unearthed in the far north, from 60 degrees to 70 degrees latitude, reflect summer occupancy only.

To Hotton, the likelihood of these vast migrations gets to the heart of the dinosaur controversy, which centers around the newly espoused popular theory that dinosaurs were warm-blooded animals, like mammals or birds living today. Hotton disagrees.

In a recent scientific publication, he argues that dinosaurs were unique. They not only had an exotically different appearance from today's mammals and birds, but they also had a completely different internal physiology, he says.

Hotton believes that dinosaurs, over a period of some 100 million years, evolved a distinctive way to control the temperature of their bodies. In his view, this thermal mechanism determined the unique character and history of these prehistoric beasts — including their eventual extinction.

"Unlike mammals, dinosaurs had no special mechanism for the internal production of heat," Hotton explains. "rather, they kept warm with heat generated by muscle movements within their great bodies. In this respect, they resembled birds, but they lacked an insulating coat of feathers or hair."

This was a physiology, according to Hotton, that was highly advantageous in the arid age during which dinosaurs originated. By attaining increasingly large size, dinosaurs found it easy to reduce heat transfer, maintain a high constant temperature and conserve water.

Dinosaurs were not torpid and slow as was once commonly believed. Their distinctive physiology dictated a lifestyle of great activity. But, Hotton maintains, dinosaurs definitely did not have a "mammal-like gait," as advocates of the warm-blooded dinosaur theory have suggested.

His studies of dinosaur bone structure show that the dinosaur hip bone did not have a ball-joint like a mammal's hip bone. Thus, dinosaurs were not agile-footed like mountain goats or fast runners like horses or camels, he says.

Instead, the hip joint and the configuration of the rest of the dinosaur's leg structure — along with its thermal physiology — fit a view that dinosaurs walked "slowly and steadily" over long distances, gathering the food they needed along the way to keep themselves going.

BIG WALKERS — Dr. Nicholas Hotton of the Smithsonian's Museum of Natural History is a leading advocate of the theory that dinosaurs made annual seasonal migrations. The fossil evidence supports this view, he says. Here, Hotton displays a styrofoam cast of a dinosaur thighbone. The anatomical detail of this bone, he says, is evidence that dinosaurs were "competent walkers" and could easily have made the annual long-distance trips.

As Hotton envisions the scene, hadrosaurids and other migrating dinosaurs would have begun to drift northward in the spring as they became aware that rising temperatures, longer daylight hours and new plant growth were extending their foraging range.

Because of their physiology, dinosaurs were highly sensitive and dependent on stable environmental temperatures. Migrating would have made it possible for them to avoid temperature extremes.

Hotton speculates that drastic changes in world seasonal temperatures about 65 million years ago may, in the end, have been responsible for their extinction, though they reigned supreme for more than 140 million years.

Arab League diplomats seek peace in Lebanon

WASHINGTON (AP) — There was a mural to the story of a birthday greeting given by first lady Nancy Reagan.

Mrs. Reagan said "happy birthday" and presented a gift Friday to mural painter Allyn Cox of New York. Cox, 85, climbs scaffolding three days a week and spends five hours painting historic scenes on a ceiling in a Capitol corridor.

The party was held in a House dining room reserved for private gatherings. To reach it, the president's wife walked under Cox's painting of the burning of the White House by the British in 1814.

BEITEDDIN, Lebanon (AP) — With Saudi Arabia and Kuwait mediating, Syria and the Lebanese Christians and Moslems resumed negotiations today on a peace plan for Lebanon calling for a nationwide cease-fire and removal of heavy arms from the major cities.

The Arab League emergency committee, made up of the Saudi, Syrian and Kuwaiti foreign ministers and the league's secretary general, began the peacemaking effort Sunday at this Lebanese mountain resort in an attempt to end fighting between Syrian troops and Christian militiamen in which more than 644 Lebanese have been killed since April 1.

A lull in the fighting was reported Sunday as the peace Moslem, as saying the ministers were giving top priority to efforts to arrange a cease-fire so the talks could continue in "complete security and stability."

The Lebanon radio said a peace plan under discussion called for a cease-fire, the removal of heavy weapons from the major cities and discussion of Syria's role in Lebanon.

But reports from Lebanese sources said the Syrians posed a crucial problem for the Christians by demanding they publicly break their ties with Israel.

Bashir Gemayel, commander of the Christian Phalange Party's militia, made no mention of Israel after speaking with the mediators Sunday, but he did say he was optimistic.

The Jewish state has become a prime weapons supplier to Christian forces and has pledged to protect them against Syria's air force.

Astros hurler blames self

HOUSTON (AP) — Though the stat sheet may say otherwise, Houston pitcher Bob Knepper blames no one but himself for his first loss in six decisions this year.

Brooks and Howe tried to get Flynn at first, but the ball scooted wide of first baseman Cesar Cedeño, allowing a run to score and putting Flynn on third.

Terry Puhl and Craig Reynolds' sacrifice bunt threatened the Mets' lead, but Allen retired Cedeño and Jose Cruz on fly balls to preserve the win.

Houston catcher Ashby was injured in a second inning home plate collision with Alex Trevino. Ashby, taken from the game in the fifth inning, stayed behind Monday to have his bruised neck and right hand checked out as the Astros left for Philadelphia.

More varieties of fish were reported in catches at Lakes J.B. Thomas and El V. Spence during the past week, but catfish continued to be the dominate specie.

Crappie fishing was good to excellent in 8 to 12-ft. of water at Lake Thomas. Most yellow catfish were caught on trotlines, but channel catfish were biting both on rod and reels and trotlines with all kinds of bait.

Herzog said the departure of Scott means George Hendrick will shift to center field for the Cardinals, leaving Sixto Lezcano in left and Dane Iorg and Tito Landrum alternating in left.

"If I could have seen us signing Tony, we probably wouldn't have done it," General Manager Manager-Manager Whitey Herzog said, however. "We made an offer, and his agent (Dick Moss) didn't have the courtesy to get back to us."
