GOLF.

What do you know about golf? It is not the "foulness" you may think it is. Those who ridicule the game will have an opportunity this week to witness play in the Sweetwater tournament, and find out why golf is well established as one of the most popular amusements in America. It gives those who spend their days in offices an opportunity for wholesome recreation in the outdoors. It is a game of skill, and fascinating in the extreme. The man who "blows up" when things go wrong doesn't get anywhere in golf, any more than he does in business.

If you have never witnessed a game, you are invited by members of the Country Club to attend the tournament, put on your wide brimmed hat, and follow two of the local golfers as they wind their way over the three miles of links that must be covered before the little white ball shall be sunk for the last time in the home green—number nine.

The tournament begins Tuesday. Get posted on the good points of the game, and you will soon be an enthusiastic golf fan yourself.

FLOWERS

Commenting on the rapid progress being made in Sweetwater, the editor of the Blackwell Times says:

"Perhaps no other town in this section of the State is making such rapid strides as Sweetwater. New buildings are going up on all sides. We were told by a prominent Sweetwater man that the building program for the next few months will total a tremendous sum.

"Besides the new buildings that are nearing completion, many more will soon be under construction. It is said that one man will erect 46 new homes on a town site addition that is being added to the city.

"We believe that Sweetwater is destined to make a real city in the near future, for the citizens, as a majority are continually landing enterprises that tend to develop and add to the city's growth."

In this case, the flowers sent by our neighbor are not presented in memory of the dead. The rapid strides evident to citizens of other communities are the result of the efforts of real live Sweetwater residents, who are working together to make the gracious prediction of the Blackwell editor a reality.

"The citizens, as a majority," are working for the development of greater and better Sweetwater. The knockers, of course, are still sure that the town will never make any further headway, mostly because of the heat, high taxes, and the neighbor's chickens. Such have we always with us.

AMUSEMENTS

Tully Marshall, whose notorious character work in "The Covered Wagon" won for him gratifying praise wherever that picture was shown, plays a prominent part in "Thundergate," a pretentious Chinese-American play, which is shown at the R & A Palace play and Tuesday.

"Thundergate" which was directed by Joseph De Guessa, is a participation of "The Lord of Thundergate," a popular current novel, of which Sidney Borechel Small is author. It is interpreted for the screen by an all-star cast, including such well-known players as Owen Moore, Sylvia Stromer, Virginia Brown Fulton, Robert McKim, Richard Cummings, Edwin Booth Wilson and Ynez Seabury.

At The Lyric.

The residents of Visalia, a prosperous Northern California town of one thousand population, assisted in the filming of "A Noise in Newboro," Viola Dana's new Metro starring picture, produced by Harry Beaumont, at the R and R Lyric Theater.

Visalia was selected as the location for many of the exterior scenes of this Edgar Franklin story. Miss Dana and her company of twenty people spent ten days in the town and found everyone so cordial that it was decided to stage the big scenes for the picture there instead of doing them in and about Los Angeles.

One of the main episodes for "A Noise in Newboro" called for a spectacular mob scene. The town officials called a half holiday on Saturday so everyone who cared to do so could appear before the camera.

Long before one o'clock the people of Visalia and of all the towns around that had heard that they would have an opportunity to work in a picture started pouring into the main street. Mr. Beaumont had secured a magnavox which was set up on an automobile so that he could dash about with instructions. At two o'clock in the afternoon it was estimated that there were more than nine thousand people along the main and side streets to participate and watch the special parade and mob scene which was arranged for the picture.

BREVVIQUES

"I have a candidate for the nicest man in the world," said M. J. Vaughan on his return trip from a fishing trip with Fred Scudguy and George Sheppard to the Devils River last week. The man he named for that position is Mr. Sheppard and he told the story thusly:

"I was standing on the edge of the river and reached down in the narrow bucket for some bait. George Sheppard had put some crawfish there and one caught me. The next minute I fell into the river."

Mr. Sheppard had caught the crawfish for trout line bait and a little later that day, forgetting their presence, had a similar experience to that of Mr. Vaughan.

John F. Johnson can't figure out what the world is coming to. He said he went into a barber shop the other day and every chair was occupied by a lady getting her hair bobbed.

A young lady from Sweetwater, visiting recently in Corpus Christi, had a narrow escape from nationwide publicity when an experience she had in that city slipped unnoticed through the hands of the gentlemen of the press. As she tells the story on herself, there's no harm in passing it along:

Going to visit an uncle she had never seen, the young lady arrived in Corpus Christi, alighted from the train, and looked around for her male relative. The only unattached man in sight advanced to meet her, indulged in the customary family affection, and the two started for his home.

Perhaps Uncle was a bit enthusiastic in his greeting, for it was obvious that he was extremely glad to see her. She remarked that she was not as big as he had expected her to be, but her answer, "I'm big enough," settled that question.

When they arrived at Uncle's residence, the young lady asked a question that brought the situation to a sudden climax. "Where are Aunt and the children?" she queried. Uncle, slightly embarrassed, explained that there was no Aunt, and positively no children. The silence thickened rapidly. When it broke the coach shook the neighborhood.

When the young lady had gotten out of the house, the truth of the situation dawned on her. She didn't stop to ask "Uncle" if he had seen the light. She had mistaken him for her uncle, while he had believed her to be his bride, whom he had never seen.

The utmost in co-operation was practiced by a party of young folks from Sweetwater who motored to a neighboring city one evening last week.

Two automobiles were necessary to accommodate the party. On the return trip, the driver of the leading car deided to wait until the other caught up with him, just to make sure that everything was all right.

Soon the second section of the motor caravan approached slowly thru the darkness, making its way as well as it could without any lights. The driver of the leading car, fell in, behind the crippled member, lighting the road, and while the car that took the lead scowled off long and loud, all curves and crossings, the party completed the journey home.

MANX TOURISTS REGISTER

Long Distance Motor Trips Are Popular.

Twenty-eight cars totaling over 100 people was the result of the first three days of the registration of tourists at the City Tourist Camp by G. B. Bred, keeper of the City Lake. The register was opened Wednesday night with a total of 12 cars registered, while there were 8 cars Thursday and Friday night.

In addition to giving the home and destination of travelers, the register also tells the number of persons in each party and gives the license numbers of the car.

Long distance trips are proving popular with the majority of the tourists, and among the first to sign the new register were E. T. Brown and party of three from Washington, D. C., to San Diego, Cal.; Curran J. Christian and family of five, on route to Los Angeles from Boston; Earl Kuzacka and party of four, from Minneapolis to Denver; and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wells enroute to Phoenix, Ariz. from Harper, Mich.

Texas Lady Says Her Family Has Been Taking Theford's Black-Draught When Needed for Many Years.

Alto, Texas.—"We inherited the use of Black-Draught in our family," says Mrs. Mary Cunningham, who lives near here on R. F. D. 2. "My grandmother was an old woman when she died about ten years ago, and she had been using it literally ever since I can remember. She gave it to her children and grandchildren for biliousness and stomach complaints, so when I went to housewifery, we just naturally used it, too."

"I give it to my children for a purgative whenever they need one, and we are never without it. Made into tea it surely is fine. It's the best home remedy for headache and constipation I know of."

"During over 50 years of its continued popularity, Black-Draught has become the standard liver medicine in many thousands of homes, where it has been found of great benefit in the treatment of constipation, biliousness, indigestion and other common liver, stomach and bowel complaints. Ten million packages of Black-Draught are now sold a year, as more and more people are learning of the value of this well-known remedy."

FACE HUNGER IN HOLLYWOOD.

Girl Invaders of Movie Capital Even Sleep on Park Benches.

From the New York Times.
Sleeping on a park bench and washing motor cars in a garage for barely enough money to keep from starving is not a rosy path to cinema fame, one would say. But would-be movie queens are going through with such experiences and refusing to quit, despite the hardships, according to Miss Marjorie Williams, director of the Hollywood Studio Club of the Y. W. C. A.
The Hollywood "Y" and the chamber of commerce of the motion picture settlement are co-operating in a campaign to keep girls from coming to Hollywood. Miss Williams said in New York the other day. They are distributing placards to many cities and towns advising young women of the difficulties of getting work in the motion picture capital.

"And yet I would not say that no girls should come to Hollywood," says Miss Williams. "It is a great industry in which a large number of women are employed and the right sort of girl may legitimately aspire to enter it."
"I don't think there are any more girls coming to Hollywood just now than usual. It is just a steady flow. And so far I don't think we have succeeded in our campaign to keep girls from coming nor to send them back when they find they can't get work. They stick on and go through almost anything. Some one has said that a girl who wants to get in the pictures will even stand partial starvation and only faints in her heroic adventure when she has no more money left to buy her favorite face cream. No girl ought to come to Hollywood unless she has money enough to live for six months without a job."—From the New York Sun.

Coleman Lake Is Alligator Home; Origin Is Mystery

Special to The Reporter.
COLEMAN, Texas, June 14.—Some thing as rare as a Democratic postmaster has been found in this section of Texas. There is an alligator in the Coleman city lake.
Where the reptile came from is a mystery. The pumper at the lake has seen it several times, and reports that it is at least four and a half feet long. One report is that a number of years ago a gruggist had a baby alligator in his show window, and that he or some one else turned it loose in the lake.
