Derrick Ship To Hoist Submarine

Great Marine Derrick Monarch Arrives on Scene of S-51 Sinking; Attempts to Raise Submerged Hull Delayed by Storm.

NO SOUNDS FROM CRAFT

Divers Hammer Rescue Tidings on Sides of Wrecked Vessel on Ocean Bottom—Listen in Vain for Answering Taps.

By United Press.
NEW LONDON, Sept. 28.—Operations for the rescue of the men shut in the sunken submarine S-51 were halted this afternoon when the seas were running high in wake of stormy weather overnight. The great crane Monarch and Century, counted on to hoist the stern of the S-51, could not operate in the heavy swells. The smaller of the two enormous cranes, the Century, went back to shelter of the lee off Block Island, while the second giant derrick ship sailed out in the direction of another harbor where the running tide could not damage it.

Can Lift 250 Tons

By United Press.
NEW LONDON, Sept. 28.—The great marine derrick Monarch arrived this morning on the scene of the sinking of the submarine S-51. The huge vessel, which left New York Saturday night, is equipped with derricks capable of lifting 250 tons, and these derricks with the one already on the scene will be turned immediately for the second attempt to raise the submarine from the ocean bottom. The Monarch will be joined with the other derrick in a double lift of the sunken hull. Together the two have a lifting strength of 500 tons, believed sufficient to hoist the stern of the S-51 from the choppy waters.

In spite of pessimism, Admiral N. M. Christy aboard the U. S. S. Centurion in charge of operations, kept his men at their tasks today, less more than necessary time be lost. Divers have gone down repeatedly and tugged for hours on the wreck, but have failed to bring up any wreckage. The faintest answering taps from within the shell. No sound came from within to indicate life escaped inside. Telephones at the surface have been in use throughout the night, and relatives of the submerged men called to inquire of anything new. At the submarine base here it was explained that if the two derricks could haul the submarine—most folks now think of it as a tomb—that would mean there was some waterfree space in which the men could still exist.

BURIAL MONDAY

Services Held at City Cemetery for Mrs. T. E. Knapp—Husband's Condition Improved

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock for Mrs. T. E. Knapp who died Friday evening following a long illness. The services were held at the City Cemetery. Mrs. Knapp was an active member, had charge of the funeral, and Rev. J. R. Henson, pastor of the Methodist church of which Mrs. Knapp was a member, conducted the service.

Mrs. Knapp survived by her husband and four children. Many out of town relatives and friends of the deceased from the county attended the funeral service here. They included Mrs. Knapp's uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Eubanks of Stanton, and Mrs. and Mrs. W. A. Knapp of Lubbock, who at the bedside of the brother, the deceased's husband, who is critically ill.

Mr. Knapp was stricken with the same strange disease seven weeks ago and his recovery is considered doubtful. He is reported slightly improved however, Monday morning.

SCOPES CASE IS SHORN OF DRAMA

Original Glimmer of Sensationalism, Bitter Wrangling and Strife Gone from Evolution Trial

BEFORE SUPREME COURT

Atmosphere of Legal Calm Prevails When Case Brought Up Today—Proceedings Simple

By United Press.
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 28.—Shorn of its original passion and drama the famous Scopes evolution case was brought before the Tennessee Supreme Court here today for a final judicial determination of its legal aspects.

Gone were the dust and heat, the bitter wrangling, the religious strife, the passionate epiphany which marked the trial at Dayton. Here before Tennessee's highest court the case was tried in an atmosphere of legal calm.

All the figures that dominated the scene at Dayton were absent. William Jennings Bryan, the militant crusader against evolution, is dead. Clarence Darrow, the fiery standard-bearer for science, took no part in the formal appeal here today.

In the place of the evangelical Judge Raulston, who presided at Dayton, sat five distinguished justices, severe and unruffled by the popular interest in the case that had come before the bar of their court.

The proceedings today were simple and uneventful. The plain little court room, smaller even than that county court room at Dayton, was still. There was no crowd. It was the day the case regularly convened after the summer recess. There was no departure from the usual procedure.

Scopes Case Called
One of the first cases read off the docket by Col. Sam Cleage, handsome white haired clerk of the court, was "John Thomas Scopes vs. the State of Tennessee."

ARMY HAS ONLY 15 FIT FOR COMBAT

FIT FOR COMBAT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Only 15 airplanes fit for combat use should America suddenly be forced to go to war!

That's the fighting strength of the army air service, an official survey of all the military flying fields shows.

The remaining equipment is composed of training planes, messenger planes and obsolete heaps of junk.

Not a Chance
Scraping one of these obsolete planes into a battle against a modern aircraft "would be exactly like a river steamer going into a naval engagement against a first-class battleship," a high army officer says.

"It wouldn't even have a ghost of a chance."

The following data relative to equipment at the various fields is taken from War Department records:

At Brooks Field, Texas, are 60 training planes for "green" student flyers, and at Kelly Field, nearby, 27 training planes for more advanced students.

These can be used for training purposes only.

One Amphibian Plane
Mitchell Field, L. I., has 36 planes. All of them were built during the war and are obsolete.

The fifty planes at Langley Field

Virginia, include 16 obsolete war-time Martins and 35 training planes of various types. Of the latter, one is a new, up-to-date Loening amphibian. The others are old and worn out.

At Selfridge Field, Mich., there are 10 pursuit planes. Of these, 15 are modern, first-class Curtis and Boeing planes, which are not battle planes.

At Bolling Field, near Washington, there are 12 old DeHavillands, three of which have been rebuilt; two Sperry messengers; and one small Vought training plane.

Rockwell Field, near San Diego, has six old DeHavillands.

That sums up America's flying strength now in commission.

McCook Field, near Dayton, O., is simply an experimental station.

An army air service headquarters officer, who for obvious reasons, requested that his name be withheld, summed up the condition of the country's air forces as follows:

"General Mitchell stated that we have only 19 planes fit for combat use."

"When he made that statement about a year ago, it was undoubtedly true."

"Of the 19 planes he referred to, I know that at least four have been crashed and are now out of commission.

"Our entire combat strength in the air is represented by the 15 Curtis and Boeing pursuit planes at Selfridge Field—and there may not be that many now."

"The only other up to date plane we have is the Loening amphibian."

"The old planes, built during the war, are obsolete and absolutely unfit for combat."

Flaming Coffins
"Some of these are known as 'flaming coffins.' They have caused the death of many a good flyer. And yet we go on buying them!"

"The training planes and messenger planes serve their purpose well enough, but of course these are not combat planes."

"Beside the planes now in use there are a number of planes in storage. These, however, are all old war-time models, now entirely obsolete."

"Secretary Weeks has stated that we could purchase 1500 planes in the air in a pinch. Counting all the training planes and the planes in storage are probably 15."

"But we have 15, not 1500, first class fighting planes."

Officer Attacks Aviation System

Major W. G. Kilner Takes Stand in President's Air Service Inquiry and Makes Plea for Separate Aviation Unit.

PILOTS ARE DISSATISFIED

Fliers Believe They Will Never Get Anywhere Under Present System, Says Witness; Brooks Field Commander Testifies

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Army airmen are convinced that if the U. S. air defense is to be made effective it must be taken out of the hands of those now in control and operated by "actual flying men," Major W. G. Kilner, executive in the Army Air Service told the president's special aircraft board today.

Kilner, who had charge of all aviation training during the war, declared there was dissatisfaction among pilots in the present system. A reorganization to establish a separate air unit, as recommended by Major General Patrick, was advocated by Kilner, the first witness, when the hearing was resumed here today.

BRAND U S MOST CARELESS NATION

National Safety Congress Open Session Today, Charging This Nation as Most Careless

ACCIDENT RATE HIGH

Death from Accidents 76.3 Per Hundred Thousand Population—Automobiles Kill Many

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28.—The United States was branded as the most careless nation on earth at the opening here today of the fourteenth annual National Safety Congress.

The principal aim of the congress, which will be in session here until October 2 during which time 450 speakers will address ninety separate meetings, will be to impress upon the people of this country the fact that the American accident death rate is 76.3 per 100,000 of population, or almost two and one third times the accident rate for England, the world's second most careless nation.

The safest country in the world is Denmark, where only 20 persons out of each 100,000 are killed annually by accident, delegates said in pointing out the wide room for American improvement.

With its speed, flippers and gasoline, this country also leads the world in automobile accidents, it was pointed out.

Automobile fatalities here number 14.8 to every 100,000 population. Translated for impressiveness this means that the toll of human life taken by motor vehicles in this country is at the rate of more than two persons every hour of the day.

Prominent traffic authorities, city planning specialists and police officials, will tell the convention what methods have been and are to be adopted to combat this evil.

Accidents are also taking a terrific toll among children in this country, safety advocates said. They revealed that 21,000 boys and girls were killed during the past year and at least 500,000 were injured.

It was estimated that more than 7,000 youngsters were killed on streets and highways. Nearly 5,000 children were burned to death.

The remainder of the fatalities were the result of falls, poison, asphyxiation, drowning and miscellaneous causes.

Participating in the National Safety Congress will be the National Safety Council, National Civilian Rehabilitation Conference, National Organization of Public Health Nursing, American Society of Safety Engineers and trade groups representing every industry in the country.

"I make hundreds of recommendations and then never hear from them. But when some general inspectors our quarters and finds something he does not like we soon get orders to make some changes. Half the time we have already recommended the changes or improvements that some general suggests."

"I have commanded Brooks Field five years and I don't see why the war department doesn't place confidence in my ability to make improvements."

A picture of conditions was given by Royce when a member of the board conversed with him on the feasibility of giving temporary rank superiority over a major, etc.

"That wouldn't work. I wouldn't like to ask a man under me, that I outranked, to do something I knew he didn't want to do, when I realized he might be over me and return the compliment."

The crowd broke into applause.

Car Owner Wanted

That's what officers are asking about a deserted car that they have on hands; a car that they are anxious to dispose of and which no one will claim.

Night policemen took possession of the car, a Ford coupe, several days ago, after it had been parked downtown for several days. Evidently deserted by its driver, the car was taken to the city hall and now stands back of the fire station while officers are still searching for the owner.

General Bans Any Discussion U. S. Air Defense

EL PASO, Sept. 28.—Discussion of the air defense of the United States was placed on the forbidden list for officers at Fort Bliss here by Brigadier General Castner, commander of the First Cavalry Division here today.

"Any officer of my command who talks about the air controversy will be court martialed and put where he will never again be able to talk," Castner declared.

Discipline is the first thing a soldier should learn. As long as I'm officer no one will talk unless I tell them they may," the general said.

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The American debt funding commission today received from finance minister Joseph Caillaux of France his statement on the inability of the French government to consider the settlement of the four billion, 200 million dollar debt on the terms of the American proposal.

"In minutes of this morning Caillaux presented the American commission with the results of the analysis made by financial experts of the American plans, and made a short speech concerning France's ability to pay and her economic position."

The Fort Worth Panthers were leading 5 to 0 in the third inning of the fifth game of the Dixie Series played in Fort Worth today, according to radio reports of the game received by George Massey at the Magnolia Filling Station.

Halt Girl Hikers

A transcontinental stroll was interrupted here Sunday morning when police took into custody two Fort Worth girls enroute on a long hike.

Dressed in khaki breeches and shirts, the two girls could have passed for boys anywhere, except for their high heel shoes.

A boyish haircut completed the boy effect under which the two were hiking and "ride bumping" their way across the country.

A Fort Worth probation officer arrived last night to take the girls home.

THEFT IS CHARGED

Complaints have been filed in county court here charging Claude Rotan and Charles Howell, youths of south Nolan county, with theft in connection with the stealing of two auto casings from a farm garage several days ago.

The defendants made bonds of $300 each to appear before the fall term of county court.

The owner of the stolen tires is said to have traced the thieves' car tracks left by the four tires, all of which were a different tread, according to officers. The arrest of the youths followed.

WHAT IS IT?

Is it only the long arm of coincidence or is it something worse that is afflicting the United States Department of the Navy?

Ocean disaster is nothing new. It began when man first essayed to sail the seas and will continue until the end of time.

The submersible S-51 lies at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean off Block Island. She was rammed by the steamer City of Rome, and carried to the bottom 34 members of her crew, including her commander.

This follows closely the spectacular loss of the dirigible Shenandoah with some more of the navy personnel. The failure of the Hawaiian aerial non stop flight did not have the tragic ending that it might well have had. But it will also be recalled that not so very long ago the Navy piled up a whole squadron of destroyers on the rocks of the California shore.

Any one of these things might well have been an accident without contributory negligence. But taken all together they indicate an apparent slackness somewhere, a seeming lack of morale in the entire department. Where this condition prevails the place to begin straightening is at the top.

Col. Mitchell's stinging criticism of the Navy Department has been principally directed to its aerial activities, but it would seem that it could be also applied to the entire department.

For the good of this country, some hasty regulations are in order and if they be slow in coming, then executive action should be prompt and thorough.

PROVIDENCE AND PROVISION

The old English economist, Malthus, made himself famous through the setting down of one theory into law which was generally accepted in his day, wrong as he may have been.

The law or doctrine, bearing his name, claimed that population increases faster than the means of living, or population increases by geometric progression and sustenance by arithmetic progression; so that, unless population is checked, either a part of it must starve to death, or the whole of it be insufficiently fed.

Back at school, the first time we ran across old Malthus' law, we looked around us for signs of the end. Of course, we were always hungry in those days, most other boys are bootless pits; so it sounded logical and mathematics proved it to be right.

If it hadn't been for that last proof we might have not let it worry our mind, but we had learned that 2 plus 2 equal 4 and 2 times 4 equal 8. That was plain even to us, and we were never a whiz at mathematics. We'd always heard that "figures don't lie," and we were firmly convinced that terrible things were to happen.

But somehow we survived through that imaginative stage of youth, and we seldom missed our "three squares," although we often indulged between meals as growing boys are wont to do. Of course we soon forgot.

And in the time that passed the world has increased in millions of people, great cities have sprung up where there once were fields.

But man has not been idle; he was given hands, feet, eyes and brain and brawn to work and to progress. And by that work and progress he has made two ears of corn grow where only one grew before. And through the development of his mind he has devised machinery that he can culti-

HARRIS IS REAL TEAM MANAGER

His Management Important Factor in Championship Race of Washington Senators

HE NEVER STUTTERED

When Players Got Obstinate They Got the Aie—Incident in Which Goslin Figured

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—After Bucky Harris had surprised the baseball world last year by winning a pennant and the world's series in his first year as manager, some observers who were not awayed by the sentiment, said the leader of the Washington Senators won with the aid of luck and the counsel of Clark Griffith, owner of the club.

In the closing days of the pennant race, when the Senators were whipped into high speed to beat out the New York Yankees, Griffith occupied a box near the Washington dugout and it was thought that he was having an unofficial seat with the board of strategy.

"Harris did have some luck last year. Every champion team has to have some luck. But Bucky Harris ran the team the way he wanted it run and Griffith didn't have a word to say about it," a veteran official, who has been in active contact with the players for years, said recently.

"Harris is one of the smartest and gamiest managers I have seen in a career of 20 years," he continued. "I know, because I heard several controversies, that Harris is and has been manager of the team and on several occasions he did not save words in telling Griffith that he was the boss and that his word was the last word. The players all know that Harris is the field boss of the team and everyone knows it also who is in a place where he can see and hear what happens on the bench.

"It was a little incident in which Harris asserted himself last season that made a great manager of him and a great team of the Senators. It was along in mid-season and Washington was just a second division ball club. The team was enjoying a winning streak of four or five games—which was good for Washington—when Goose Goslin and 'Snark Plug' Matthews got into a fight on the bench.

"Goslin was playing his regular position in left field and Matthews was playing center field. Their hitting and fielding had been responsible largely to the winning streak and they got to thinking well of themselves. In this particular game, a fly ball dropped safely between Goslin and Matthews and they almost came to blows when they got to the bench. Harris listened to the talk until it got so loud and rough that he ordered them to sit down.

"You two let in two runs with that stunt," Harris said. "You can't get those runs back by talking. Go out there and knock in two runs and you'll make up for it."

"They kept on ragging at each other and Harris ordered them to keep quiet. Matthews closed up and sat down, but Goslin looked belligerently at Harris and said:

"Shut up yourself. You're not big enough to make me shut up."

"Harris walked over to him like he was ready to let one go and said in an ordinary voice:

"You pick up your little bat and your little glove and go to the club house. I'll show you that you're not so good we can't get along without you. I want you to be out of the club house with all your stuff when the game is over and I don't want to see you until you are ready to apologize in front of the whole team and until you have dug down in your pocket for a $100 fine."

"The players were open mouthed in awe when Goslin stalked to the club house and they were amazed the following day to see Goslin walk into the club house and hear him tell the bunch that he was sorry and that he was going to soldier for Harris.

"Walter Johnson told a friend after the incident had happened that he had had his doubts about Harris before that, but his strict way of handling Goslin had convinced him that the youngster was a great manager.

"I feel sure that it was that one act that made the Washington ball club. The players respected Harris from that time on. They knew that he was smart on the field and they learned then that he was in command of the bench.

"Griffith didn't know a thing about the row for weeks and that's one reason why I know that Harris is running the team on his own and I know that he is doing a mighty fine job of it."

The element of luck did not figure in Washington's success last year. The bad luck of the Philadelphia Athletics in falling into such a sensational losing streak late in the season could not be charged fairly as being a break in luck for Harris because his team had a slump at the same time and it was Bucky's skill in handling his pitchers that pulled his club out of it.

Tests by Domestic Science teachers over all the country have revealed in Crisco unique advantages:

In deep frying, they noticed that Crisco put a rich brown on croquettes and doughnuts.

They noticed, too, that an egg fried in Crisco looked as delicately delicious as a poached egg—the white unscorched and the edges of the yolk set like a full moon in an ivory circle.

Their Crisco cake layers came out of the pans whole, without any ragged little breaks to mar their beauty. Their cakes, too, had a wonderfully even texture, and stayed moist and fresh for days.

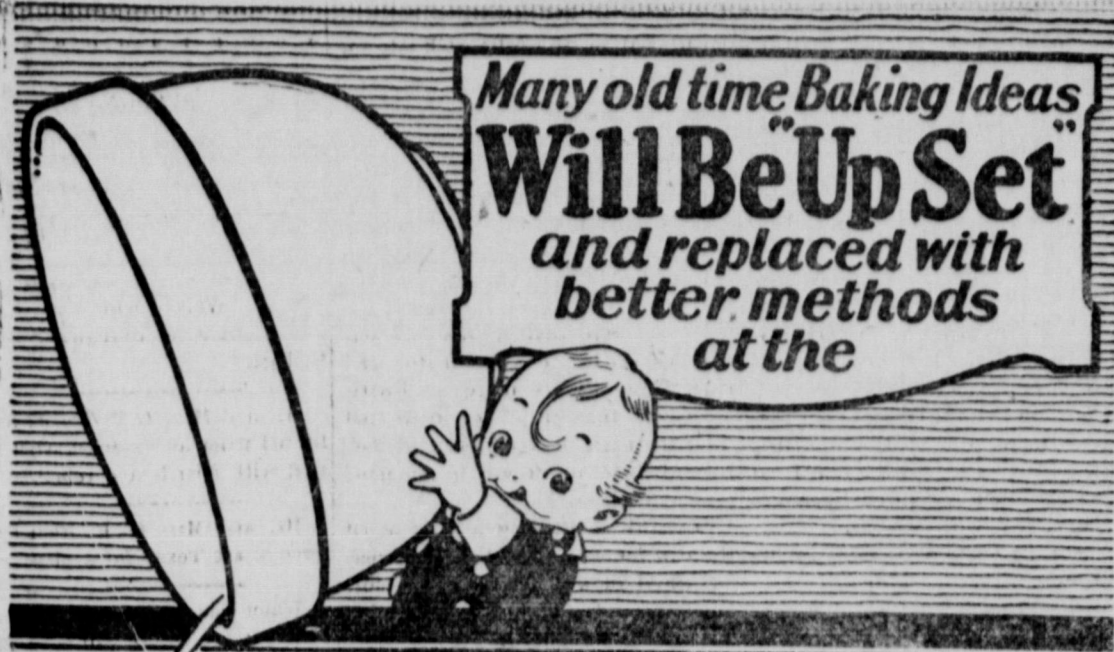

And pie-crusts made with Crisco were rich-brown, inviting—short and flaky.

So it is not surprising that Mrs. Ida Chitwood uses Crisco exclusively in the Cooking School now being conducted by this newspaper. She will be glad to show you how you, too, can serve—with the aid of Crisco—crisp, digestible fried foods; flaky, tender pastry; delicious, full-flavored cakes.

Insure Against This Loss Without Paying A Premium

When failure to receive materials is costing you money, service is of major importance.

Delays mean idle men, idle machinery—the job is held up. Both owner and contractor suffer loss.

Owning and operating two modern mills with a capacity of 9,000,000 sacks annually, the Texas Portland Cement Company is splendidly equipped to take care of the trade's requirements.

In addition, the mills' location on the network of railroads radiating from both Dallas and Houston assures delivery service that is unexcelled.

Along with this service, LONE STAR Cement offers quality that actually exceeds the requirements of the U. S. Standard Specifications. And with the International Wet-Blending Process used in the LONE STAR mills, uniform quality becomes a matter of habit—in fact, the chemist and superintendent can always come within 1/10 of 1% of the quality at which they aim.

Yet LONE STAR Cement costs no more.

It has our unqualified endorsement.

BILIOUSNESS

Retired Minister Tells How He Keeps in Good Form With the Assistance of Black-Draught.

West Graham, Va.—The Rev. Lewis Evans, a well-known retired minister, now past 80, living here, has a high opinion of Black-Draught, which he says he has taken when needed, for 25 years. "For years I had been suffering with my liver," he says. "Sometimes the pain would be very intense and my back would hurt all the time. Black-Draught was the first thing I found that would give me any relief."

"My liver has always been sluggish. Sometimes it gives me a lot of trouble. I have suffered a lot with it—pains in my side and back, and had headache, caused from extreme biliousness."

"After I found Black-Draught, I would begin to take it as soon as I felt a spell coming on and it relieved the cause at once. I can recommend it to anybody suffering from liver trouble. A dose or two now and then keeps me in good form."

Made from selected medicinal roots and herbs, and containing no dangerous mineral drugs, Black-Draught is nature's own remedy for a tired, lazy liver. NC-169

Aldredge & Hattox

THOU for the Reporter

Cooking School

The wellknown quality of meat from this market led Mrs. Chitwood in her selection as it has so many women of this city.

But Mrs. Chitwood looks beyond the market, to see where Aldredge and Hattox prepare their fresh meats. She found that they used Wade Brothers new sanitary killing plant, with a most rigid insistence on all sanitary requirements of the State Department of Health. Thus she knew, as other patrons of this market know, that only the choicest meats, prepared in the most sanitary manner are sold here.

WADE BROTHERS

new killing plant provides these sanitary facilities and Sweetwater is one of the very few cities in West Texas that has a plant of this high standard. Thus patrons of Aldredge and Hattox have a double guarantee of both Wade and Aldredge & Hattox in this highly important matter of sanitation.

USE WILSON PREPARED MEATS

Mrs. Chitwood will use Wilson's hams and bacon in her demonstration as a matter of course, making her selection on the basis of quality, as do so many other Sweetwater people.

Scarlet Fever Is Not Easy To Cure, Says Expert

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service.

Scarlet fever is a very contagious disease, easy to catch, but not so easy to cure. When the disease is mild it is sometimes called scarlet rash, but is none the less scarlet fever. The incubation period is from two to four days.

Scarlet fever begins with headache, vomiting, faintness and occasional convulsions, especially in children.

The child suddenly feels tired, listless and out of sorts. The mouth and throat are deeply congested. There is pain on swallowing or talking. The skin is very dry and hot.

The tongue is furred and under this white covering is red and swollen. The inflammation may extend from the throat to the ears. The glands of the neck often become swollen. In ordinary cases these early signs are followed in a day or two by a rash.

In mild cases this rash may be the first symptoms noticed. Little red points close together appear, first on the neck and chest.

These soon spread over most of the body. This rash is very brilliant in color. After four or five days the skin begins to shed. Sometimes it is cast off in large flakes.

Inflammation of many organs of the body may follow scarlet fever. There may be pneumonia, pleurisy, ulceration of the throat, abscess in the neck and inflammation of the lining membrane of the heart.

Nephritis or inflammation of the kidneys frequently occurs in the second to the fourth week.

Dangers of Complications.
In the complication puffiness in noticeable under the eyes, the hands and ankles swell, sometimes there is general dropsy.

There may be convulsions and the case may quickly end in death. In other cases the person either recovers entirely or complications may develop.

There may be pain, swelling and redness of the joints. Careful watch should be kept in cases of scarlet fever for symptoms of inflammation of the middle ear. These symptoms are pain in the ear, a tenderness over the bony prominence behind the ear and drowsiness. The patient may moan in sleep and be hard to arouse.

If the drum membrane breaks the pus escapes from the ear opening and if the inflammation is mild the symptoms abate, otherwise an abscess may form in the bony cells behind the ear. If this abscess is not opened it may produce serious (fatal) disease of the brain.

Mild cases of scarlet fever may not be recognized until some unusual occurrence such as a swelling in the neck, the shedding of skin, the onset of nephritis is noted. The rash may be absent or present on only a portion of the body. The mild form may give rise to a severe attack in another person.

In a severe case there may be high fever, delirium, coma, gangrene of the throat with a foul discharge from the nose and mouth. In these cases the patient usually dies within a few days.

Proper Care Necessary.

You should know that death from scarlet fever is infrequent in cases that receive proper care and attention, although many children succumb to the complications produced by scarlet fever and it is often the starting point of chronic disease of the head, ears and kidneys which latter may cause death in later life. It is more fatal to children under six years of age.

Persons suffering from scarlet fever should be isolated and should not be allowed to communicate with other people as long as there are any discharges from the mouth, throat, ears or other parts of the body. The person caring for the patient should not mingle with other persons and all dishes should be scalded before being again used.

The patient should have his own dishes, spoons, knives and forks. These dishes should be sterilized by washing in scalding water. All clothing worn by the patient should be disinfected. Milk bottles should be sterilized before being returned to the milk man. These precautions should be taken in the mildest cases.

The most careful supervision by a doctor is essential in scarlet fever.

Remember These Points.

Preventive measures:

1. Children who have had scarlet fever must not return to school for at least six weeks.
2. Children whose skin is peeling or whose nose or ear is discharging still have scarlet fever.
3. Treatment by a doctor is essential. The head, kidneys and ears are most seriously affected by scarlet fever and great care of the patient should be taken.
4. You should follow implicitly the doctor's directions and instructions as to food and clothing.
5. Careful nursing should be continued after the skin has peeled and the patient is apparently well.

If you have a corn on every toe, put on some tight shoes some damp day and you are doing the Charleston.

Hotpoint

The Electric Range that Stands the Test at

The Reporter
Cooking School

Afternoons this Week at the Hotel Wright

Mrs. Chitwood's Judgment Is Confirmed by
Hundreds of Ladies in this Section

There are more Hotpoint Ranges in use in Sweetwater homes than any other make. There is a reason for this. If there is not an electric range in your kitchen, attend Mrs. Chitwood's School and learn why she prefers the Hotpoint. Or visit your neighbor's kitchen and learn from the experience of actual users why the Hotpoint is best. So neat, so clean, with no smoke smell or soot to dirty the kitchen or utensils and with heat always under control. There is an automatic feature on the Hotpoint Range. You can put your dinner in the oven in the morning, set the switch at any hour you wish. The heat will automatically turn on. Then if you wish, the heat will be turned off at any time you set. And another automatic feature prevents the oven from overheating, so nothing can be harmed by too high a temperature. The heat is there when you want it, and off when you want it. There is nothing to get out of order, nothing uncertain.

Hotpoint Ranges are sold on easy terms. A small down payment, and the balance as you pay your light bill. Won't you come in tomorrow, select the model you desire and have it installed? Always glad to show you the fine points about the Hotpoint—and a call at our office will place you under no obligation whatever unless you wish.

SPENDS SUNDAY HERE

Cooper Brothers Circus Enjoy Day of Rest in Sweetwater

The Cooper Brothers Circus, showing in Sweetwater Monday for afternoon and night performances, arrived in this city early Sunday and enjoyed a day of rest here.

A large number of folks, especially children, discovered the show was in town and spent the afternoon watching proceedings.

Mrs. George Gray Jr.

moved. Wise young maids with generous men; women in limousines or taxis; casual window shoppers—all...

Fifth Avenue doesn't chew gum. If it does it is not in public. And the endless stream of well-dressed women just gaped—even as the man upon the temple stairs gaped back.

Not that Fifth Avenue is hard-hearted. But even its charity must conform with certain set conventions—and gum chewing charity is not to be condoned.

One of the current musical shows has an orchestra leader, who is a great clown. During several of the jazz numbers he has been cutting high didoes and in that manner becomes the center of attention.

A vaudeville orchestra has been all but disrupted by the pranks of men in the upper right boxes. Not long ago one of the newspaper humorists wrote concerning the fun to be had by dropping pennies on the kettle drums of the orchestra...

A few little chunks out of the crazy jigsaw puzzle in which New York is patterned: On an elevated platform a shabby artist drawing sketches of passengers in the passing trains. He scratches away industriously. Others become interested. He tells them he is an art student, selling his sketches to earn his way through school.

At Thirty-fourth and Broadway a wrinkled old woman is reading the inside pages between the rather infrequent rattling of pennies in her cap. What interests her so much? You look over her shoulder and see that with her bony finger she is tracing the stock market reports. Is she making enough with her newspaper sales and her appeal of infirmity to dabble in Wall Street? Or was she reduced to the necessity of reading papers for a living through some earlier catastrophe in speculation?

He is a young fellow with long hair, a bow tie and a dirty shirt and collar. You may see him on the Bowery carrying a violin case and going into a 25-cent lodging house for the night. Ah, you think, a struggling young musician who is willing to live with the gutter rats if he just can master his art! Some day he will be another Kreisler. And last night you could have seen him on Forty-second street in a dark doorway sawing out the most fearful tunes in the world, his violin out of tune, his multiplicity amounting to little or nothing. Yes, another slick way of panhandling.

And there is the man on Hester Street who sells eye-glasses from a push cart. He is himself blind in one eye and almost blind in the other, but he listens to his patrons detailing the symptoms of their ocular affliction—and, invisible around through his case, until he picks out a pair of glasses, which he is quite sure will remedy their trouble.

For three years the local papers have been printing the picture of a laundryman who is studying grand opera and who has been hailed at various times as another Caruso. But he is still a laundryman and insofar as the records show has yet to make a public appearance.

Over in Brooklyn there is a man who wears the best tailored clothes. They are always well pressed and he has about him the air of great influence and carries himself with much dignity. He is engaged in paying cash, and very little of it, for odd clothes. —JAMES W. DEAN.

Hedda Hoyt Talks About Things That Interest The Busy Woman Of 1926

By Hedda Hoyt (Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK.—One of the first fur-trimmed cloth dresses seen on Fifth Avenue is an example of what will be worn on the street this fall. This dress was made of tan kasha cloth in the popular two-piece jumper model. The V-shaped neckline was finished with a narrow collar of tan-dyed ermine and a patch pocket of this fur adorned one side of the jumper with a cluster of tan ermine tails acting as a pocket finish. Small turn-back cuffs which finished the slender sleeves were also of ermine.

The vogue for fringe trimming is seen in a chiffon evening gown of orchid shade where rows of silk fringe of six-inch width extend from hip to hemline. The fringe begins at the neckline in the exact orchid shade of the bodice and the rows deepen in color terminating in deep violet at the hem. This gown is straight-lined and unbelted, has rounded neckline and is sleeveless.

Rust, copper, reseda green and almond are among the lighter shades which Paris is sponsoring for dressy afternoon wear. Crepes, satins and velvets are materials featured in these colors.

A specialty shop in New York is showing rubber jewelry for bathing purposes. Earrings, bead chokers and bracelets of colorful rubber are among the items. The earrings are made of two round loops of brilliant rubber attached to the screw-on top.

To bring before the people the moving elements of the impelling story of the Exodus required the building of a special city known as Camp DeMille, California, covering an area of 24 miles of rolling sand dunes. To this location were transported 2,500 men and women and children and 3,000 animals.

To reproduce the City of Ramees required 550,000 feet of lumber, 300 tons of plaster, 25,000 lbs. of nails and 75 miles of cable and wire.

Four huge statues of the Pharaoh were 35 feet high each. To build them called for 15 tons of modeling clay and 100 tons of plaster.

Two giant pumps raising 100 gallons of water per minute were kept busy filling four tanks of 18,000 gallon capacity each.
