COOLIDGE ASKS FOR TOLERATION

President Declares Result of World War Will Be Lost if Intolerance Continues

ADDRESS LEGION CONVENTION

Takes Indirect Crack at Mitchell by Saying Military Should Not Coerce Civil Action

By United Press.

OMAHA, Oct. 6.—Amid boom-massed thousands, President Calvin Coolidge arrived here at 8:30 p. m. today to address the annual convention of the American Legion.

A cold, drizzling rain fell from a bleak sky, but failed to dampen the enthusiasm of thousands of Legionnaires and residents of Omaha who crowded the union station to greet the presidential party.

President Coolidge arrived at the auditorium at 10:25 a. m. He was escorted immediately to the platform where he was greeted with thunderous cheers.

Crowds blocked the streets for several blocks, and the mammoth building was filled to the rafters as the president entered. Crowds outside heard the address through loudspeakers which were installed at almost every corner.

Scores Intolerance

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 6.—President Coolidge, addressing the American Legion convention here today, declared that the result of the World War will be lost and the nations of the world will prepare for another conflict unless racial antagonisms are demobilized and a universal attitude of toleration is created.

"If our country is to have any position of leadership," he said, "I trust it may be in that direction, and I believe that the place where it should begin is at home."

Asserting that no nation ever had or ever will have an army large enough to guarantee it against attack in time of peace or to insure its victory in war, the President said that "peace and security are more likely to result from fair and honorable dealings and mutual agreements for a limitation of armaments among the nations than by any attempt at competition in squadrons and battalions."

"No doubt this country," he continued, "could, if it wished to spend more money, make a better military force, but that is only part of the problem that confronts the government. The real question is whether spending more money to make a better military force would really make a better country."

"I would be the last to disparage the military art. It is an honorable and patriotic calling of the highest rank. But I can see no merit in any unnecessary expenditure of money to hire men to build fleets and carry muskets when international relations and agreements permit the turning of such resources into the making of good roads, the building of better homes, the promotion of education and all the other arts of peace which minister to the advancement of human welfare."

Avoiding direct reference to any specific situation, Mr. Coolidge expressed the opinion that military power should be subordinated to and governed by civil authority, and continued:

"It is for this reason that any organization of men in the military service bent on inflaming the public mind for the purpose of forcing government action through the pressure of public opinion is an exceedingly dangerous undertaking and precedent. This is so whatever form it might take, whether it be for the purpose of influencing the executive, the legislative or the heads of departments."

"It is for the civil authority to determine what appropriations shall be granted, what appointments shall be made and what rules shall be adopted for the conduct of its armed forces. Whenever the military power starts dictating to the civil authority, by whatsoever means adopted, the liberties of the country are beginning to end. National defense should at all times be supported, but any form of militarism should be resisted."

Advocating a selective act which would authorize broad mobilization in emergencies of all the country's resources, both persons and materials.

CATCH PRISONER WHO BROKE JAIL

Mile Chase Results When Man Escapes from County Jail Early Today—Recaptured

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS AID

Start Pursuit of A. Duncan—Joined by Grand Jury Foreman and District Clerk

An early morning dash for liberty by a prisoner in the county jail was thwarted today when the man was recaptured at the end of a mile chase in which a group of high school students, the district clerk and foreman of the grand jury figured.

Jerking a ring of keys from a negro trusty who had brought his breakfast, A. Duncan, held on liquor charges, escaped from his cell in the county jail and unlocked doors that stood between him and his hopes for liberty.

On the ground floor of the three-story jail, he brushed by Mrs. Jack Yarbrough and raced out into the street. Mrs. Yarbrough quickly gave the alarm which was first heard by a group of high school boys who were passing the jail. The youths immediately gave chase to the fleeing prisoner who headed north from the jail. Other passers-by were attracted and joined in the chase. Among them were Charles Lewis, who is foreman of the grand jury that went into session Monday morning, and district clerk Dan Childress.

Chief of Police Gordon Hendrick who was nearby when the chase commenced, joined in the pursuit of Duncan. After running a few blocks, the chief halted a car driven by a woman, climbed aboard, and resumed the chase in his automobile.

Weeks behind the bars in a narrow cell told on the fugitive who gradually slowed down and was captured near the Gulf gasoline tanks in the Santa Fe yards. Charles Lewis, Chief Hendrick and the high school students had a part in the capture, while others who had joined in the chase arrived a few minutes after Duncan was taken.

No other prisoners attempted to make a break for freedom when Duncan took the keys from the negro, although another prisoner is said to have helped him get the keys.

Legion to Meet

Will Hold Regular Session Tonight to Discuss Convention, Fair and Trades Day

A regular meeting of the Oscar McDonald Post, American Legion, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the court house at which time plans will be made for attending the district convention at Brownwood Sunday.

The Legionnaires will also discuss their participation in the Nolan County Fair, the fair parade, and make preliminary plans for an Armistice Day program.

Discussion of the series of trades days which the Legion is sponsoring will also be made. The dates for the next trades days have been announced as October 30 and 31, the last two days of the fair.

The resignation of Post Commander R. C. Scadday will probably be offered at tonight's meeting, and accepted. Scadday, who has been head of the legion here during a very active and successful year, is to leave this week for El Paso where he will make his home.

ASK FOR MEETING WITH ROAD BODY

County Judge Mauzey Dispatches Request to Highway Commission for Austin Session

WANT ROAD WORK SPEEDED

Will Ask for Definite and Immediate Action in Connection With Delayed Road Projects

Stressing the need for definite and immediate action in connection with the highway situation in Nolan county, county judge A. S. Mauzey dispatched a letter to Eugene Smith, secretary of the State Highway Commission, Tuesday, requesting that arrangement be made at once for a meeting of the commission and the commissioners court of this county.

It is the intention of county officials to go before the commission at once and lay the situation before them, it was announced.

"The county is ready and has been ready for a long time, to carry on to completion the road work in the county," Judge Mauzey said. "All that is holding us up now, and that has been delaying us for weeks, is the delay of the highway commission in advertising for bids and letting contracts for surfacing work."

This routine but important matter is now left in the hands of the highway commission, and the county is powerless to speed construction work. It was pointed out. Mauzey outlined in his letter the conditions of highways. He pointed out that the Bank head west has long been in condition for the final surfacing and it is probable that the commission, if the requested meeting is arranged, will be asked to let paving contracts immediately.

If the letter has its desired effect and the meeting is arranged, Judge Mauzey and members of the commissioners court will go to Austin for a conference with highway commission members.

A strip of highway on south Highway No. 70 is also ready for construction work, which, like the project west is being held up until the road body at Austin receives bids and lets contracts.

Work is progressing rapidly on projects engineered by the county before the receiving bids and contract powers passed into the hands of the highway commission. Paving work is proceeding on a portion of the highway east. Workmen are now engaged in constructing the overpass across the Texas and Pacific each, while work on the large bridge over the creek east of town is progressing rapidly.

C. I. A. Regent Board Calls off Austin Session Account Capps Death—Owsley to Stick

By United Press.

AUSTIN, Oct. 6.—Out of respect for Mrs. William Capps of Fort Worth a member of the board whose husband died in Fort Worth last night, the board of regents of the College of Industrial Arts postponed the meeting which was scheduled to be held in Austin today, until October 26.

I. A., as urging the removal of Dr. Lindsey Blayney from the presidency of the institution.

Some of the regents expressed themselves as having considered the fight against Blayney closed but Col. Owsley openly declared it would be renewed until the board takes action or Blayney resigns.

Program Comes in Clear on All Sets in City—Local Artists Furnish Entertainment

The program broadcast by Sweetwater artists over station WSAX Zenith Portable broadcaster, from the First Presbyterian church here Monday evening, brought applause and praise in the form of telegrams and telephone calls from hundreds of listeners throughout this section. Sweetwater's night "on the air" is considered a splendid success by those in charge of the program and the many fans who tuned in to catch the splendid numbers broadcast from 8 to 10 o'clock.

Over 100 telephone calls, representing in excess of 500 persons listening to the program were received at the Quast Music Store, which presented the program, and a number of telegrams were received from neighboring cities. The microphones were located on the stage in the First Presbyterian church here while the truck on which the Zenith broadcasting equipment is mounted was parked near the church. The aerial was swung from the Masonic hall.

Every number of the carefully arranged program pleased the hundreds of listeners, reports indicate, and in every instance the numbers "broadcast clear and audible. The program was varied to include a number of vocal numbers, pipe organ and piano solos, and cornet and saxophone numbers.

An address by James Henry Beall, Jr., in which he gave a detailed and accurate description of Nolan county and Sweetwater, was one of the features of the entertainment.

Demands Mandates Over Former German Territory and Concessions in Saar Valley

By United Press.

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 6.—Although a Rhineland Security pact seems definitely assured, German signature to arbitration treaties with Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia may be difficult to obtain, delegates to the Security Conference learned today.

Germany intends to demand large concessions in the secondary phases of the agreement.

This came as a shock since yesterday's session indicated a willingness on the part of Germany to continue negotiations along the line of the international note of February 9. This imparted a spirit of optimism to the situation that was lacking today.

Germany intends to demand mandates over her former colonies, and additional concessions in the Saar Valley, Danzig and along the eastern frontier. Withdrawal of the right of foreign troops to cross German soil and entrance in the League of Nations are other German demands.

TAKE FIGHT TO FEDERAL COURT

Fort Worth Chiropractor Sees Injunction Restraining State from Filing Complaints

INVOLVES LOCAL CHIROS

Drs. Canfil, Dan and Elliott, Recently Indicted, Effected by Ruling of Federal Judge

Possibility that the impending cases against Drs. Canfil, Dan and Elliott on charges of violation of the State Medical Practice Act will be held up pending a hearing on an injunction proceeding in Federal Court brought by a Fort Worth chiropractor, is expressed by Edwin Bolte, attorney for a Fort Worth chiropractor.

H. C. Allison of Fort Worth brought an injunction suit in Federal Court to restrain Attorney General Dan Moody and District Attorney Hanger from bringing action against them in the state courts. This case is pending and until it is decided, Bolte declares that all similar cases in the state will be held up, according to a news item in the Fort Worth Star Telegram, which says in part:

Prosecutions of chiropractors in other parts of the state for alleged violation of the state medical practice act, if they persist, pending the final settlement of the H. C. Allison injunction suit in Federal Court, will be complained of to Judge James C. Wilson, it was declared by Edwin Bolte, attorney for Allison.

Several chiropractors from other Texas towns were in Federal Court room when Judge Wilson accepted additional briefs from both sides in the suit Allison is bringing to enjoin the State Attorney General Dan Moody and District Attorney Robert Hanger from attempt to arrest and prosecute him for violation of the medical practice act.

Among them was A. W. Canfil, head of a chiropractic sanitarium at Sweetwater, who with his two assistants, have been indicted on charges of violation of the medical practice act and whose trial has been set for November. Bolte said that since Judge Wilson has assumed jurisdiction in the injunction suit he believed the prosecution of the Sweetwater chiropractor would be an act of contempt on the part of the county attorney at Sweetwater.

Judge Wilson stated that he had decided in favor of Allison on certain points and asked for briefs from the State Attorney General and district attorney, and also the plaintiff on the contentions by Allison that the state medical practice act is unconstitutional. District Attorney Hanger submitted briefs for the defendants, Attorney General Moody being absent.

The hearing to determine whether the injunction shall be made permanent has not yet been held. When it was first called nearly two weeks ago Attorney General Dan Moody made a motion that the suit be dismissed on the grounds that Allison had a remedy in a court of law and that he should depend upon that remedy, if and when he was arrested and tried, instead of seeking relief in a court of equity. At the time Judge Wilson accepted the motion and ordered the suit dismissed.

Allison's attorneys gave notice of intention to file a motion for rehearing and Judge Wilson delayed signing his decree until he had seen the brief of the plaintiff. This was taken to him at Abilene several days ago by Bolte, and after reading it, Judge Wilson reversed his previous ruling and held that Allison did not have adequate remedy in a court of law, and thereby assumed jurisdiction in the suit.

Lines are being drawn by chiropractors all over the state to make this a test case, ultimately for decision by the Supreme Court of the United States if Judge Wilson's final decree is not in Allison's favor.

On the other hand, according to the state officers admission in court, the state prefers a fact case in a court of law as a beginning point in the test.

PROGRESS

Another step in the forward progress of Sweetwater, its growth and development, is seen in the announcement of the West Texas Electric Co. and allied interests of their expensive development plans here.

An expenditure of more than a quarter million dollars in this immediate vicinity is the answer to their belief in the growth, progress and development of this territory immediately contiguous to Sweetwater.

A quarter of a million dollars is a lot of money. Large corporations do not scatter sums like this around careless like nor does sentiment play much part in their decisions for improvements.

Sweetwater is selected as the place in which to centralize the ice manufacturing for the territory served by these companies because officials believe the said territory can be served more efficiently and more economically from this point than from any other.

The example set by the West Texas Electric Co. will in time be followed by other large corporations with business in West Texas, who too, will realize that their West Texas interests can be more efficiently and economically served from Sweetwater.

The most important thing Sweetwater can do at this time is to drive home the obvious truth of these facts. Selling Sweetwater to new business is one, and taking care and lending every possible aid to business that we already have is another. If our local business interests are prosperous, then the argument to the prospect we are endeavoring to interest in Sweetwater will be that much more effective.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—You may have a fortune hidden in your attic. Some day you may go rummaging through all the odds and ends stored there and throw the fortune away or burn it up. Don't destroy an old stamp until you determine its value. One stamp may mean a life pension to you.

I always have considered stamp collecting as pretty much of an idle hobby for the rich, but last night I met Frank Sekula, who earns his livelihood, and a comfortable one, in buying and selling stamps.

He tells me that when Hettie Green died the stamp collection she left to her son was appraised at three million dollars. Steinway, the piano man, has a collection valued at more than a million dollars. All of the rich Rothschilds of Europe are stamp collectors and one of them has a collection valued at two million dollars.

Among the royalists the most enthusiastic stamp collectors are the King of England and Fuad of Egypt. Sekula tells of an incident which happened several years ago to the King of England. His royal nibs coveted one certain stamp very much, but was unable to buy it because a broker outbid him. "I'm too poor to bid any higher," the sovereign signed, "I'm only a king."

Sekula tells of a stockbroker who collects stamps as an investment and not as a hobby. He has failed in business several times, but has recouped through his stamps. He can not dispose of stamps in a day. It takes months to get full value out of a collection. This prevents the broker from throwing all of his assets into one wild plunge on the market. The most famous stamp personality is Queen Victoria. Her features adorn 259 different species of stamps.

You probably have heard stage comedians joke about sailors spending their shore leave in a row boat. Many of them really do that. One day after the fleet came into the Hudson River recently I saw twenty sailors in rowboats on Central Park lake.

Yes, and I know a young New York newspaperman who has passed his two-week vacation periods for the past six years in acting as a reporter, without salary, for his old home town semi-weekly.

—JAMES W. DEAN.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON

The appointment of the special air service investigating committee will serve, among other things, the important purpose of separating the investigation of General Mitchell from the investigation of aviation.

From the military standpoint, it was necessary to demote him in the first place, and it may be necessary to accommodate him now with the martyrdom which he is so ostentatiously seeking. But, if so, the result must not be, or even seem to be, the hushing up of what may be serious questions in regard to aviation itself.

A separate board, conspicuous, competent, and at the same time in dependent, will not only find out the truth—an army or navy board might do that—but will close the mouths of any who would lunge at the good faith of any less disinterested body. Now we shall have the truth—and know we have it.

"Constitution Week" is a fine thing—provided it is the constitution that you celebrate.

It may help revive loyalty to our institutions and familiarity with the document in which they were first embodied.

It could also arouse us to face our problems with the courage, foresight and resourceful open-mindedness which the fathers of the constitution showed in meeting theirs.

It would be well worth a week's holiday for the whole population, every year.

But cherish no illusions. This may be what "constitution week" should be for, but it is by no means what some of its most vociferous agitators want to use it for.

They want to "re-establish the constitution in the minds and hearts of the people," not as a great milestone of human progress, but as a latching-post, to prevent farther progress.

To this end, they seek first to make an emotional cult of the text of the constitution, and then to use this emotion as atmosphere for their propaganda against the direct primary, direct legislation, public ownership and labor unions.

They put out popular commentaries, in simplified lawyerese, on the legalistic rather than the institutional and historic aspect of the constitution.

They are interested, not so much in what is in the constitution as in the fact that certain things are not in it—not in the great steps of popular government and individual liberty which it took forward, but in the other steps which its farmers wisely refrained from including in the first effort.

Not the constitution's trust in the people, but the limits beyond which it was not willing to risk the first trial of that trust, must be our guide.

The most sacred dogma is that nothing which the fathers were not yet ready to venture in 1798 shall ever be ventured thereafter.

Eighteenth-century politics and nineteenth-century economics shall forever be the last word in human progress, and the constitution shall be their barricade.

It shall be the Aristotles and the Timund of scholastic text-fetichism; nothing which it omits shall be permissible even to think. By making doubt of the inferracy of the fathers, especially in their omissions, wickedly unpatriotic, we set our consciences to guard the portals of the intellect against the intrusion of ideas.

If this is to be the spirit of constitution week—and there are very busy agitators trying to make it so—then the sooner we make it a real constitution week, to study the constitution as a living institution rather than as a Byzantine parchment, the better it will be for the constitution, for the country, and for us.

Variety in Food Is Held Essential For Needs of Body

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING, Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service.

It is a common fallacy in many minds that there exists somewhere in the world an ideal food—some one material that will satisfy all the needs of the body and that could be material be found we would be able cases, however, and the great refinement of certain foods which are prepared for the market, some of the most important substances are frequently overlooked. Vitamin is "lost" in some of the processes.

The digestive system is subject to individual peculiarities, but there are some foods that are more easily digested than others.

Milk contains fats, carbohydrates, proteins and salts in a very easily digested form. Meat proteins and fats of all kinds are digested with relative ease but the proteins and fats of meat are included within cell walls.

Here are two picturesque clumps of wheat, separated divisions in other words, meet Jack Dempsey, King of the heavyweights and Fidel LaBarba, flyweight crown-wearer. Today, showing a few stunts with Fido out in Los Angeles, where both are keeping in training.

There is in old superstition that has a long and natural evidence. You probably have heard it said that "Every part feeds a part," that is, that certain foods should be eaten for the benefit of special parts of the body.

If you stop to consider that in the process of digestion all carbohydrates all fats to simple emulsions and proteins and all proteins to simple nitrogenous compounds, you will see how absurd it is to claim a special value for one kind of food in connection with the building up of any special part or tissue.

Ordinary food materials contain an abundance of salts in their natural condition and except in gaitrous districts it used to be unusual to see a person suffering from lack of minerals in the diet. With the development of manufacturing processes thrown off from the body by the action of the liver and kidneys, however, the body has to store up a surplus of salts. If we take too much fat or carbohydrates we carbohydrates into fat, but this is undesirable and overweight is dangerous after forty.

body, however, have taught us that there are few substances that contain the proportions of protein and fuel foods necessary to meet our needs.

If, for instance, you eat enough beef to satisfy the protein needs of the body and eat nothing else, you will have an insufficient supply of fuel. If you eat enough beef to supply the fuel needs of the body you will take in too much protein.

On the other hand, if you try to live on fruit you will have to eat about the equivalent of thirty-five supply the necessary protein, whereas nine pounds would supply sufficient energy but there would be a shortage of protein.

Baked potatoes, onions, corn, almonds and bread approach a balanced diet, but even these fall far short. Potatoes and corn alone would have to be consumed in large quantities to meet the needs.

Taken by itself, good bread, made of whole grain, comes the nearest, perhaps, of all food articles to furnishing a balanced food diet of satisfactory bulk.

With bread is included a variety of flour preparations such as macaroni, biscuits, Vienna rolls and crackers, but to try to live on these alone would be manifestly absurd.

Nut Croquettes

A quick luncheon dish recommended by Mrs. Ed. Chitwood who was in charge of the Reporters Cooking School last week.

- 3 cups hot rice
- 1/2 pint cream
- 1/2 lb. butter
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 teaspoon Celery
- 3 tablespoons cream
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans
- 1 egg

To the hot rice potatoes add the salt, pepper and onion. Add the cream and pecans, and last, the Celery. Mix all together thoroughly. Roll in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg and then in bread crumbs again. Deep in deep Crisco at 350 degrees F., or when a bread crumb browns in thirty seconds, and cook until brown. Serve hot with any desired sauce. This makes ten croquettes.

Mrs. Chitwood Says:

When you want something new for luncheon make these Nut Croquettes. They are easy to make and very good. When fried in Crisco they will keep their shape, brown evenly all over and not be greasy. No smoke, either. You can shape them into pyramids, oblong shapes or balls.

FARRELL PICKS NATS IN SERIES

United Press Sports Writer Compares Paper Strength of World Series Contenders

ADMITS ALL GUESSWORK

Experience and Team Work of Senators Will Play Large Part in Their Games, Says

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor) — By United Press.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6.—After considering the relative pitching, fielding and batting strength of the principals in the world's series starting tomorrow, and the mental morale of the two champions, it is our guess that the Washington Senators will win the series from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

It is only a guess and it is no better than the opinion of any one who thinks and is willing to wager that the flashy Pittsburgh club will defeat the Washington veterans.

The Pirates are considered stronger than the Senators because of more quantity of good pitching, heavier hitting from eight men in the line up who are .300 or better and greater speed afoot, —but a close analysis of the figures will show that these advantages are not so heavy.

Coming into the last stretch the Pirates were leading the National League in team batting with an average of .306, but the Senators were leading the American League with a mark of .305. The Pirates had stolen 142 bases and the veteran Senators had stolen 132. There isn't any great difference in those figures.

When it comes to pitching it does seem that the Pirates have more good pitchers than the Senators, but the Pirate staff isn't as flexible as the Washington staff and no manager in baseball can handle and mix up his pitchers as well as young Bucky Harris did in the series last year.

Harris, in beating the Giants last year, knew almost exactly how many innings his pitchers were good for and he made his plans accordingly. He had in Marberry—and he still has in him—the greatest relief pitcher in baseball and he ought to be of invaluable service again this year.

"Money playing" The most important factor in a series where there is so much money at stake to the individual players is experience. Ball players call this experience "money playing," and in this respect the Senators will have a tremendous advantage over the National League champions.

The difference between the winners and the losers' share in the world's series last year was more than $2,000 to each player and it ought to be just as much this year. Every ball hit in the series will be tagged with $2,000 and the Pirates will think more of that than the Senators, who have been through one terrific series and two hard pennant races.

With the exception of the grand old veteran, Babe Adams, none of the Pirates have been in a world's series and their path to the National League championship didn't test their game-ness to any great extent. The injuries that the Giants suffered all season helped the Pittsburgh team to win the pennant more than any particular brilliance on their part.

TIN PAN ALLEY HOME OF COMPOSER

The Pirates have depended all season on hitting and speed on the bases although their defense was helped by some very good pitching. The hitting strength should not be over emphasized in the series, however, as the Pirates did not have to knock down any infield strength in the National League like the Senators will present to them.

No National League team played the smart baseball that the Pirates will have to oppose against the Senators and the combination of brains, experience and the brilliant defense with which the American League champions are equipped is almost invincible.

The President declared that in time of war, power should be lodged some where for the stabilization of prices as far as that might be possible in justice to the country and its defenders.

"But it will always be impossible to harmonize justice and war," he continued. "It is always possible to purchase materials with money, but patriotism can not be purchased. Unless the people are willing to defend their country because of their belief in it, because of their affection for it, and because it is representative of their home, their country can not be defended."

"If we are looking for a more complete reign of justice, a more complete supremacy of law, a more complete social harmony, we must seek it in the paths of peace. Progress in these directions under the present order of the world is not likely to be made except during a state of domestic and international tranquility. One of the great questions before the nation today is how to promote such tranquility."

Declaring that one of the most natural reactions during the war was intolerance, the necessity for a common purpose and a united intellectual front becoming paramount, Mr. Coolidge

BY GENE COHN
NBA Service Writer.
NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—In "Tin Pan Alley," where banging pianos grind out the daily jazz grist of now for the long-forgotten compositions of a song writer named J. J. Walker.

These songs—some of which never lived to wear a cover—are about to take on a value the exact extent of which can not be reckoned, for it seems that this Walker person is likely to be the next mayor of New York. He has captured the Democratic nomination, and New York is notoriously fond of Democrats.

Also it is fond of music, whether this be from the hard-oreans of Pietro Fucazi, the jazz stick of Whiteman said that when the need for such solidarity is past there should be a "quick and generous readiness to revert to the old and normal habits of thought."

"There should be an intellectual demobilization," he declared. "Progress depends very largely on the encouragement of variety. Whatever tends to standardize the community, to establish fixed and rigid modes of thought, tends to fossilize society. If we all believed the same thing and thought the same thoughts and applied the same valuations to all the occurrences about us, we should reach a state of equilibrium closely akin to an intellectual and spiritual paralysis. It is the ferment of ideas, the clash of disagreeing judgments, the privilege of the individual to develop his own thoughts and shape his own character, that makes progress possible."

"In this period of after war rigidity, suspicion, and intolerance our own country has not been exempt from our comparative isolation, we have known less of the international frictions and rivalries than some other countries less fortunately situated. But among some of the varying racial, religious and social groups of our people there have been manifestations of an intolerance of opinion, a narrowness of outlook, a fidity of judgment, against which we may well be warned."

or the baton of a Metropolitan concert mistress.

And that's where the romantic story comes in of the rise of the greatest city's prospective mayor. Sentimental strains of old ballads wait through his life story; love tunes of yesterday gave him his start in life, introduced him to the wife of along and happy marriage and launched him on a political career that grows steadily brighter.

It was in "Will You Love Me in December As You Will in May" on which Jimmy Walker picked up royalties that gave him a good boost through college.

But he will tell you that the song that means most of his life was the first "Sally" son—"In the Valley Where My Sally Said Good-Bye"—although his names does not appear on it. The name that does appear is Janet Allen, who today is Mrs. James J. Walker. Together they wrote the song, when Jimmy was a college boy and Janet was "playing his pieces" on the piano to see how they sounded. It was the prelude to their wedding march. Also Janet sang some of his songs from the stage.

One there is on "Tin Pan Alley" who remembers all this very clearly. He is E. B. Marks, of the Marks Music Company, the man who "discovered" Jimmy Walker.

"Yes, sir, I guess Jimmy would have gone a long ways as a song writer—probably would have been one of the biggest had he stayed." recalls Marks, into whose office floats the discordant bangings of a dozen pianos. Just outside the office criers a throng of present day Jimmy Walkers with songs in their pockets and hope in their hearts.

"I remember when he first came in with his song. There was a quality of alertness and intelligence about him that unfortunately isn't always found in young song writers. He told me he was going to college and I heard that he hoped to help pay his way through—though he didn't tell me that.
"There was nothing timid about him. He left a half dozen songs. Some of them are still tucked away in the back room—never used. One day he brought in a fine number, "Rambling Rose." I always thought if by his best, thought it didn't have the biggest run. After a time he got to writing specials for some of our stage features.
"His romance? Well, I remember Miss Allen introduced some of his songs to the public and they worked together on the Sally song. They fell in love—and that was that.
"I believe we had an argument one day over a song. I wanted some changes made, or something, and he left. Years passed and one day I picked up the paper and read that he had gone to the legislature. It didn't surprise me. It wouldn't surprise me if he became a might big figure. He would have gone to the top in the song game, too, I'm sure.

And now Marks is digging through dusty files, getting out all the old Walker songs. Now that Jimmy has hit high political fame they'll probably be broadcasted from coast to coast and the ballad may again have a temporary inning.
Ironically enough it makes little difference to Jimmy Walker's reputation or pocket book now whether his songs forever remained upon the shelves, but back in the days when the manuscripts were sold to the music publishers, the "author's percentage" would have looked might good.
