RIPLEY TO THE PEOPLE.

President of Santa Fe Issues Open Letter.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—President E. P. Ripley of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway has addressed an open letter to the people of Kansas in answer to a large number of communications from citizens of that state approving or criticising the conduct of the Santa Fe affairs. He divides his letter into four heads, as follows:

First, alleged over capitalization; second, the taxation of railway property; third, the issue of free passes; fourth, the alleged interference of the railroad in politics.

President Ripley says that the Santa Fe railroad is worth all it is capitalized for.

"I repeat," says Mr. Ripley, "that whether we consider what the property has cost (including in the cost the interest on the investment) or whether we consider its reproductive value, it is not over capitalized."

On the subject of taxation he says that his company will not be heard to murmur as long as its property is assessed at the same proportion of its real value as is the property of private citizens.

Referring to passes, Mr. Ripley says: "It is an almost universal custom in every part of the country to transport free of charge national, state and county officers. It was originally meant as a courtesy, and I have never felt that it gave the railroads any claim on the conscience of the official receiving it nor have I known of any case where a legislator has voted or been expected to vote against his convictions because of holding a pass. If the people of Kansas desire that this courtesy shall cease to be extended to their officers there will be no objections raised by this company. But the presentation of passes to others than employees will not materially affect the passenger receipts.

In regard to politics he says: "We have the same interest in good government as has any other citizen and the same right to display that interest. As the largest corporation in the state and the largest taxpayer, we have an actual interest in sane and conservative legislation, and when, as too often has been the case, there is danger that the state will be swept off its feet by appeal to passion and prejudice made by designing demagogues for their own personal ends, it becomes a duty to oppose those men by fair and legal means—in such cases, and in such cases only, will the Santa Fe be found in politics. I realize fully that such prosperity as the Santa Fe has enjoyed is due largely to the energy and thrift of the Kansas people, but they should also recognize that we have done our share."

RATES FOR AMERICAN ROYAL.

Railroads Have Extended Territory From Which Reduction Applies.

As the result of the efforts of H. W. Prickett, traffic manager of the Kansas City Stock Yards company, the territory from which reduced rates to the American Royal Live Stock Show will apply this year has been materially extended beyond that of last year. Last year the rates applied only to the territory within a radius of 200 miles of Kansas City. This made it necessary for many stockmen in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois to pay full fare to Kansas City. This year the rate applies to all points in these states from which the local one way fare to Kansas City is $9.00 or less, which includes practically all stations within 300 miles of Kansas City. This will take in a large part of Illinois and practically all of Iowa.

The rate this year from Western Passenger association territory is as follows: One lowest regular first class fare plus $2 from all Trans-Missouri territory; also from points in Illinois, Missouri and Iowa, from which the local one way fare to Kansas City is $9.00 or less, except where open rate of one fare and one-third makes less. The open rate of one fare and one-third applies from all points where the fare and a third is less than one fare plus $2.00.

From points from which the local one-way fare to Kansas City is $6 or less, tickets will be on sale October 5-15, and from other points October 5-9. The return limit will be October 15, but by depositing ticket with joint agent at Kansas City on or before October 15, and paying a fee of fifty cents, the return limit may be extended to October 31.

From points in Southwestern Missouri from which the local one-way fare to Kansas City is $6 or less, and from southern Kansas, Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Arkansas and Texas, the rate will be one fare plus $2, except where the open rate of one fare and one-third makes less, when that rate will apply. The dates of sale, return limit and conditions of extension are the same as in Western Passenger association territory given in detail above.

NO ENTRIES AFTER MONDAY.

September 10 the Final Day for Entering in Breeder Classes.

Entries in the breeding classes of the American Royal Live Stock show to be held at Kansas City, October 6-13, will close Monday, September 10. This includes breeding cattle, horses and swine. Entries of carlots of cattle will be received up to October 5. It is stated that the entries will positively close on the dates advertised, and it behooves those who expect to exhibit at the American Royal this year, and who have not made their entries, to do so at once.

The reason for closing the entries so far in advance of the opening of the show is to enable the management to get the entries in the official catalogue. It is very unsatisfactory to both exhibitors and visitors to have exhibits omitted from the catalogue, which is necessary when they are received only a few days preceding the show. Entries should be made with the following: Herefords, C. R. Thomas, 221 West Twelfth street, Kansas City, Mo.; shorthorns, John W. Groves, 17 Exchange Ave., Chicago; aberdeen-angus, Thos. McEarlane, 17 Exchange Ave., Chicago; galloways, Chas. Gray, 17 Exchange Ave., Chicago; horses and mules, H. A. Heath, Topeka, Kas.; Berkshire swine, Frank S. Springer, Springfield, Ill.; poland chinas, Arch T. Grimes, Greenwood, Mo.; Duroc Jerseys, Thos. L. Williams, Dawn, Mo.; O. I. C swine, L. L. Frost, Mirabile, Mo.

The opening day of the show, Saturday, October 6, will be devoted to the students' judging contest. The awarding of prizes will be begun Monday afternoon, October 8, and exhibits must be in place by noon of that day.

EDITORS TO VISIT THE RANCH AGAIN.

Many Newspapers to be Represented at the Celebration of the Opening of the Cherokee Strip.

Bliss, Okla., Sept.—Advice received by the Miller Brothers, owners of the 101 ranch, show that nearly every newspaper in Oklahoma, Indian Territory and the southern part of Kansas will be represented on the ranch at the time of the celebration of the opening of the Cherokee Strip, which will occur Sept. 15, and 16th. They have all been invited and it will be the occasion of a sort of an editorial meeting. All of the newspaper men in the district mentioned have mutual interests and their getting together in this way will prove beneficial to all. The Miller Brothers are sparing no trouble to make the visit of the editors a pleasant one and one that will be long remembered by everyone who attends. Many of these editors visited the ranch last year when the Miller Brothers entertained the National Editorial Association and are coming back to enjoy another day on this great ranch.

Have Drilled Wells.

Bliss, Okla., Sept.—One of the things promised by the Miller Brothers, owners of the 101 Ranch, where will occur the biggest celebration ever attempted on Sept. 15th and 16th, at which time the people from all over the new state, and Kansas, will come to the ranch to witness the entertainment provided in honor of the thirtieth anniversary of the opening of the Cherokee Strip, is a supply of good clean water that will be ample for all. They have drilled ten wells which are conveniently located and which will be for the use of all the visitors. The people contemplating a visit to the ranch at the time of this celebration need have no fear of a shortage of pure water.

GETTING RID OF THE TICKS.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The work of exterminating the cattle tick in the Southern and some of the Western states is progressing satisfactorily, according to a statement made by Secretary Wilson today. It began in Virginia and North Carolina, where it was stated, cordial co-operation is being given the department both in money and the extension of state authority to the department's officials.

The appropriation for this work was $82,500. Some of the states have not enacted laws extending financial and other aid to the government, but Secretary Wilson said that even with the sum available much progress will be made. From California, Nevada, Oklahoma and Texas, he said, the reports received are encouraging.

An experiment was made by Welby Cunningham of Chapman, which is of interest to wheat growers and grain buyers. He found that sixty-one ounces of wheat lost about three ounces in thirty days. This was new wheat. In other words, 100 bushels shrank about 4.9 bushels; 100,000 bushels at that rate would represent a loss of 4,900 bushels to the purchaser. Notwithstanding this showing, many Kansas farmers will hold their wheat for higher prices. The advance in price, they say, will more than offset any shrinkage.—Kansas City Journal.

telling what it is made of, how it is made and why we can absolutely guarantee its uniformity of flavor, purity and wholesomeness.

There are many good reasons for its superiority and we want you to know them all.

Here are a few:

We use the finest hops grown in Bohemia, selected by our own experts and specially imported for "Luxus" Beer. The Malt is made from the best barley in the world—that grown in the Northwest. The Rice is imported from India where it is grown and then stored until it becomes perfectly conditioned, which cannot be accomplished in less than one year. The water used is from our wonderful Artesian Spring, the purest, healthiest, most sparkling of nature's waters. And It's Made Just Right. Not a sticky, heavy beer but a light nutritious beverage of a pale amber color, something that you will enjoy with your meals as well as for refreshment.

FOR RECLAIMING THE LAND

National Irrigation Congress Invited to Jamestown Exposition and Advocates of Swamp-Land Reclamation May Also have Their Day.

Norfolk, Va.—It is probable that the session of the National Irrigation Congress for 1907 will be held at the Jamestown Exposition. Should the invitation which the exposition officials have extended be accepted, for the first time this important and highly interesting body will meet in the east. The congress meets this year at Boise, the capital of the state of Idaho, October 10 to 15. President Harry St. George Tucker of the Jamestown Exposition will go to Boise to urge acceptance of the invitation. It is understood that many of the expert irrigationists desire to have the next session at the Jamestown celebration.

In the event of acceptance, the vitally important problem of irrigation, so well known to the west, will be presented to the people of the east and south in a manner calculated to arouse general interest. Out of irrigation empires grow. Irrigation created the ancient civilizations of Egypt, along the Nile. Irrigation is making room and realm for millions of Americans in the semi-arid regions of the great west and the southwest. The present west irrigation movement is but a few years old, having been made possible and practicable by the reclamation act passed by congress, which provides that the money received from the sale of public lands shall be used in reclaiming, through irrigation, the great areas heretofore considered worthless for farming purposes.

Already there is a fund of approximately $33,000,000 for this purpose, and the government is working on a score of immense projects. Millions of acres will be made fertile within a few years by the introduction of water where there is practically no rainfall. This work will add to the wealth of the nation untold sums annually.

Since the passage of the land reclamation act, the citizens of some of the southern and middle western states have started a movement for the reclamation of swamp lands, and they believe that a portion of the public money should be used for this purpose. Too much water is just as bad as none at all, and by the digging of drainage canals and feeders it is feasible to run off the surplus water and turn the swamps into splendid farms. It has been done on a considerable scale already in southeast Missouri and in other sections. It is probable that the swamp land reclamation advocates will have their say at the Jamestown Exposition when the National Irrigation Congress convenes. In this event the congress will have the most interesting session ever held.

Gave Miller a Suit.

Bliss, Okla., Aug.—Last fall when Horse Chief Eagle, the chief of the Poncas, visited the Sioux Indians, in Dakota, he brought back a handsome suit of buckskin which was sent by the Sioux chief to J. C. Miller, of the 101 Ranch. The suit is worth very close to $250 and is highly prized by its present owner. When the Sioux chief comes to visit the Poncas and take part in the celebration of the opening of the Cherokee Strip, which is to be held on 101 Ranch on September 15th and 16th, he will come prepared to receive a present from Mr. Miller. Just what this is to be has not been decided but it will have to be something of an equal value to the suit.

The Sioux will send a large delegation to the ranch. This will consist of the chief and head men of the tribe and they will make it the time for visiting other Oklahoma Indians as well as the Poncas.

HOW TO CURE ALFALFA.

This is the subject uppermost now in the minds of all alfalfa growers. Alfalfa is a great feed and commercial crop. It is a crop of general interest and a crop of great value. It is, in fact, the greatest money making crop on the farm when properly handled and taken care of. It is a crop that is destined to have its just proportional acreage on every well regulated farm, with as much accuracy as the corn acreage is provided. Its feeding value as a hay crop and the ease and cheapness of producing it is the evidence of its ultimate supremacy as the hay feed of the farm.

For many years the whole concern with farmers and experimenters in the alfalfa belt was to prove that it could be grown. This feature has been demonstrated fully and to the entire satisfaction of the public by the alfalfa seed scattered along the roadways, railroads and out of the way places which rivalled in growth even the common weeds of the country, until this is no longer a question.

The matter now of most interest to alfalfa growers is how can the crop be harvested to best save the natural feeding value of the hay? The alfalfa crop is not the lazy man's crop, not by any means. It grows easily; it grows quickly; it is a pusher. Through sunshine and shower it makes hay and the alfalfa grower must not only be prepared to make hay while the sun shines, but very often he is compelled to make hay while the shower falls in order to get the matured crop out of the way. Four crops of hay for a single harvest season means much more to the farmer than the ordinary hay harvest of timothy, red clover or the native hay grasses. There is no common fixed principle that there is no disagreement on and that is the importance of getting the alfalfa cut moderately green, safely cured and in the stack or mow without rain on it. All alfalfa growers concede the damage that a soaking rain does this crop, either while in the mow, windrow or cock. The more rain the worse, and especially if it is rained on two or three times before it can be properly dried out for stacking, and no special instructions can be more valuable than that of going cautiously at the work, cut a little each day and try to get some cured and into the stack each day. Under such conditions the hay will not be as good and the labor in getting it into the stack will be much greater than when good weather prevails. The putting into cock in the afternoon of the wilted alfalfa cut in the forenoon, and the opening of these cocks for the sun and air to dry them out the next morning, and the storing of the hay in stack or mow the same day, or the recocking until the day following is the usual plan of getting through will the first cutting of alfalfa. There is nothing more in the handling of alfalfa harvest than common sense, which means good judgment, and even then Providence will occasionally head off the best intended plans.

Various systems of stack ventilation are used by stackers who adhere to being claimed that the degree of maturity influences largely in the yield of hay for the season and also the value of the hay per pound. The general practice now among the experienced alfalfa growers is to commence cutting when about one-tenth of the alfalfa field is in bloom. The importance of early cutting cannot be successfully refuted but to those who are not disposed to be influenced by the experience of others it is an easy matter to test an acre or two and be convincee. So positive are some growers on the matter of early cutting that they will cut when one tenth of the blossom is present, no matter what the conditions of weather, in view of getting better after results, even if the entire first crop be lost in the effort.

Late cutting of the first crop in any season is not practiced by the best alfalfa authorities. When alfalfa has made a slow growth and at the time of the cutting both the ground and the weather are dry there is no difficulty in curing. Under such conditions the main thing is to get the crop in the stack without losing the leaves and stems by letting it dry out too much. Such conditions demand almost as much attention as when rains are in prospect: quick work from the stack is needed to evade the too rapid drying of the hay when the weather conditions are free from moisture.

It is estimated that the foliage of the alfalfa plant is worth in feed value, four times that of the stalks or stems, pound for pound. This plainly points out the importance of conducting the harvesting and storing of the crop so as to preserve the leaves and retain the high feeding value of the crop.

The proper time for cutting alfalfa is one of the divisions of this subject that is quite important from the theoretical standpoint of experimenters, it is the theory of stack firing, spontaneous combustion, etc. Some use poles set in the ground where the center of the stack is to be and the stack built around this, the pole to be the means of the heat that may arise from the moisture in the hay. Others use an empty barrel and keep pulling it up as the stack is built, thus leaving in the center of the stack hole for the heat to escape. That there is a great deal of "hot air" in the alfalfa business, from the beginning to the practical alfalfa grower would have little reason to question or doubt. But as to the needs of stack ventilation the thousands of alfalfa stacks standing over the country without chimneys or other means of getting rid of the hot air would seem to be sufficient argument to quiet all fears of great need in this direction.

The matter of good haying machinery to quickly handle the alfalfa crop cannot be too forcibly impressed upon the grower. A barnyard full of old machinery is not a sight that carries with it a favorable impression of thrift and good management. It does not necessarily impress a visitor that the owner is an up-to-date farmer. The old machines should be got rid of and new modern machines provided. A good machine will soon pay its cost in the saving of time and labor: especially is this true in harvesting machines. The importance of a good mower, a good rake, a good sweep, a good loader and a good stacker can not be passed unheeded by the alfalfa grower. The sweep is not universally endorsed among the careful growers, but it is a haying implement that should be on every farm where hay is made a part of the harvest. The growing of alfalfa means plenty of harvesting tools and machinery to rush the work when the weather demands it.

The greatest possible improvement in prospect for the taking care of the alfalfa hay crop is the baling of the product before it goes into the stack. The baling of alfalfa from the swath or windrows is now being successfully conducted by modern baling machines, which promise to revolutionize, in a measure, the alfalfa harvesting work. It has been determined that alfalfa may be baled from the swath, retaining all its green appearance, its foliage complete, thus saving all its feeding properties, and putting it into a form of storage that has no comparison in the weather-beaten stack. There is no gain in the quality of hay after it is ready to go into permanent storage in stack or bale, except the influence of the sweating process, which will go in either case.

The advantage of baling this crop as soon as it is sufficiently cured to go in storage cannot be successfully opposed. Sheds for storing the baled product may be cheaply constructed. The roof is all that is needed; a free circulation of air is an advantage. The ease and convenience in handling the hay, either as feed or for shipment for commercial purposes, makes it doubly advantageous in the baled form. Besides these many desirable conditions which the baling lends to the harvesting of this crop is a matter of saving in time and expense in the heavy part of the hay harvest, hauling and stacking the risk of stack damage, which practically exceeds all other risks in actual loss.

Alfalfa is acquiring a commercial value and demand which formerly it did not have. The manufacture of alfalfa hay into feed products of various kinds, in which it is used to form the body of these feed mixtures, is now calling for large orders of baled alfalfa and of best quality. The increased demand for good quality of alfalfa in the city markets is also a feature that means that there's a brighter outlook commercially for this kind of hay. It means that more baled alfalfa will be finding an outlet through commercial channels and that the weather beaten stacked alfalfa of bad color will not be accepted in this trade.

Purification,

The greatest evil of today is impurity, which is largely due to a false modesty which prevents teaching the most sacred and important truths to the young. The movement founded on the above fact is to be located on the Purityfarm, one mile out from Guthrie, where students are to be given a home and allowed to work for their board. They are required to pledge for life against whisky and tobacco, read books and attend lectures on purity.

A friend gave an $8,000 farm, most beautifully located and we are buying 30 acres more lying in front of same for a building site, we want to erect a beautiful $10,000 home for the boys at once and later a school building. Temporarily the boys will attend the Logan county high school at Guthrie.

OUR NEW CONSTITUTION.

Woodward, Okla. Sept. 10, 1906.

Editor, Woodward News:

My Dear Sir: Since you have kindly given your consent to the publication of any article of news that any subscriber saw fit to publish, I desire to express to the public through your paper, some ideas I have in regard to the framing of the constitution for our great and glorious state.

We all feel that Oklahoma coming into the union at the time that it does we should not have any great amount of trouble in adopting a number one constitution, as we have before us the constitutions of forty five states with the construction that has been placed on them by the courts of last resort.

Such things as are usual in the constitution of other states will not be difficult to agree upon so we will not discuss them here, however, there will be some new things to be regulated, so the different political parties will have to draft a platform for their respective nominees to make the campaign upon.

In our opinion the most salient features in the platform will be: First: The School Land Question; Second: A Board of Commerce and Labor; Third: The Initiative and Referendum; Fourth: Separate Schools; Fifth: The Liquor question.

These we will discuss briefly in order. We think that there should be a provision in the constitution submitting to the qualified electors of the state of Oklahoma, the question whether or not the state shall sell the school lands and if a majority of the qualified electors vote to sell the school lands let them be sold and provide that the principal derived from the sale shall be held in trust for the use and benefit of the public school fund and the interest only shall be used for the support of the common schools and that the principal shall not be spent on any account or under any circumstances. If the electors vote to sell then the legislature will have to arrange the manner of sale and provide in regard to the Lessees.

A Board of Commerce and Labor shall have supervision over all corporations, make rules and regulations governing freight and passenger rates, providing what qualifications fire, life and other insurance companies shall have to do business in Oklahoma, also bonding companies, and providing that where any insurance company shall fail, without good cause shown, to pay the insured his loss within sixty days after proof of loss is furnished said company shall forfeit and pay the the insured one third of the amount of the insurance as damages and all expense the insured is to in collecting said policy.

The Initiative and Referendum: We do not want a government by the people without representatives, nor a government by representatives without the people; but a government by the people with the aid and advice of representatives, or what is essentially the same thing, a government by representatives acting as the people's agents, subject at all times to the orders and instructions of the people, and to total revocation of authority at their will. This secures the economy and value of representation without sacrificing justice, liberty, and self government. It uses the legislator, like the architect, to draw up the best plans his knowledge permits; it gives him the right, like the architect's in cases of extreme emergency, to act upon his own unaided judgment; but requires him at all other times to submit his ideas to his principal before putting them in practice, and holds him at all times subject to the orders and suggestions of his principal.

Such is clearly the ideal management of political affairs as well as of business affairs. In this state if we wish to avert the evils flowing from the "Unguarded System" we must adopt the "Guarded System" the Initiative and Referendum.

We believe that the constitution should declare for a separate school for white and colored children with equal facilities for each.

We favor a local option law that gives any vicinity, say six miles square the right to vote on the question as to whether or not intoxicants can be sold in said district or not.

This may appear to be lengthy but a magazine could be written on either of the five topics. They are simply outlined here for the purpose of getting them before the people for discussion and investigation.

There are a number of other subjects that should be discussed by the public regardless of party affiliation before the first legislature convenes but I am only dealing with questions here that are likely to arise before the constitutional convention.

A constitution should be as brief as possible. It should only throw safeguards around the legislative assembly and stop there.

As one of my law professors once stated a crime is "a punishable violation of law." That is a good definition of a crime. When we have made a good constitution let us quit and not turn the constitutional convention into a legislature.

Yours very truly,

CHARLES SWINDALL.

Secretary Coburn Writes.

The world famed secretary of Department of Agriculture of Kansas, Hon. F. D. Coburn, in a personal letter to the publisher of this paper regarding delay in issue of his latest and best book on "alfalfa" says: "Striking printers have retarded the composition of the book, but it is promised by the publishers, say by Oct. 1st, and they have your name as I have their promise to send you an early copy. I am sure you will like it and hope each of your million subscribers will buy one as they will need it in their business."

Mr. Coburn is certainly qualified to prepare such a book and when it is issued our readers will be duly notified.

FEEDING SKIM MILK.

Skim milk is the most valuable adjunct of the dairy but many feeders do not seem to know just how to feed it for best results, says the Wisconsin Agriculturist. Not infrequently it is poured into the trough clear. That will do for very young pigs, provided it is sweet, but for growing shoats much better results will obtain if the milk is mixed with some kind of grain feed. Corn meal and skim milk, at the rate of three or four pound of milk to one pound of meal, makes one of the best balanced and most complete combinations for shoats that can be formulated. The meal is quite heavy and inclined to settle. It should be ground rather fine.

We have fed tons of skim milk to hogs with most excellent results and have used several combinations. One that gave excellent results in making pork fast was wheat shorts and sweet skim milk mixed just so it would run. In connection with this protein stop we fed all the soaked corn the pigs would eat. We have been able on this kind of feeding, with pure bred hogs, to make about 15 pounds of gain from a bushel of corn, or rather from the price of a bushel of corn invested in milk, shorts and corn. The shoats had in addition to the above the run of clover pasture. Such results are rarely accomplished by swine feeders, but they show the possibility and value of combining feed coupled with good blood and careful feeding.

Unless plenty of corn is allowed the mixture of shorts and milk would not be as good as the corn meal and milk mixture, because both the milk and shorts are highly protein in character. There would not be sufficient carbohydrates and fat in the ration to properly balance it. But with plenty of corn in such condition that shoats can use it without getting sore teeth it makes a great combination.

With the advent of the farm separator farmers are enabled to get fine results from the best by-product of the dairy. They may feed the milk warm and sweet, almost fresh from the cow, and if mixed as indicated above will make money for the feeder, provided he has well-bred hogs, feeds skillfully and keeps everything clean and wholesome.

TUBERCULOSIS IN HOGS.

Has the great American hog been so delicately bred that he is degenerating in physical stamina and threatened with extinction by the advance of tuberculosis? This is the question which many western breeders have been asking lately says a press dispatch from Sioux City, Iowa, and it has suddenly been forced into prominence by the investigation of porcine tuberculosis made by John J. Murphy hog buyer for the Cudahy Packing company and one of the hog experts of the country.

Mr. Murphy warns farmers of the danger of tuberculosis in their hogs and declares there is need of an immediate inquiry into the increase in this disease. There is no way of knowing whether a hog has tuberculosis except to kill the animal, so far as Mr. Murphy knows.

"My own belief is that the tubercular tendency results from the hogs being fed with skimmed milk from tubercular cows," says Mr. Murphy.

HOGGING CORN.

Fencing in a part of the cornfield and turning in the hogs is what is called "hogging corn". At the first glance it looks like a slouchy practice. After you have studied it a little it looks different. Hogging corn saves a lot of cutting and feeding. It fattens and finishes the hogs cheaper, and it puts the manure back onto the land with the least possible outlay of labor. It must be practiced judiciously. Leave the hogs in a short time each day at the start. This can gradually be lengthened until finally they are in the corn all the time. A portable fence that is strong enough not to be portable as far as the hogs are concerned is a practical necessity if you are going to hog the corn.

HOG NOTES.

Keep the wallow holes filled—but not with mud.

Avoid muddy yards. Draining will prevent them.

Many feeders fail to recognize the difference between developing and attending.

Disinfectants are more necessary in the hog pen than in any other place on the farm.

A veteran breeder says of ideal hog: "You can cut off his head and legs and put him in a box and he will fit."

A pig should never be allowed to stop growing from birth to maturity. Sufficient food must be provided to maintain a steady growth.

One of the principal items in making cheap pork is to get the hog to market in the shortest time possible.

Whether the hogs are confined in pens or allowed the run of a pasture, it is absolutely necessary that the eating and sleeping quarters be kept clean.

With common stock, the animal possessing the largest amount of vitality will usually mark their offspring. If a mistake is made with the first litter the effects will show for some time after.

Decide Against Saloons.

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 5.—The decision of Judge Burford in a saloon case from Payne county that a newspaper cannot be compelled to publish notices of application for saloon licenses practically puts Payne county in the "dry" list. There are now but two saloons in Stillwater and six in Payne county, and these will be closed up as fast as their licenses expire.

In the case just decided Charles A. Eppler sought to compel the Stillwater Advance-Democrat, one of the two papers of largest circulation in the county, to publish his notice. His attorneys, C. L. Burdick of Stillwater, and Cotteral & Hornor of Guthrie, based their application on the ground that the newspaper business was of a quasi-public nature, like railroads, telegraphs, etc., and that as a railroad could be compelled to accept any shipment tendered to it, so a newspaper could be compelled to accept any advertising.

Freeman E. Miller of Stillwater, who represented the Advance-Democrat, contended that the cases were not parallel, and his contention was sustained by Judge Burford, who said that if he granted the writ asked for in this case any saloon man could in a similar manner force Mrs. Carrie A. Nation to accept a saloon advertisement for the Hatchet and that any religious publication could be compelled to accept similar advertising or a republican newspaper be forced to print democratic campaign literature if paid for at advertising rates. He therefore refused the writ of peremptory mandamus asked for by Eppler's attorneys at a hearing in chambers.

The Oklahoma statute makes it mandatory that a liquor notice must be published in the two papers of largest circulation in a county, and if one of them refuses to publish the notice no license can be obtained under this decision. This is the third time the question has come before the Oklahoma courts in the last few months. Judge C. F. Irwin in the district court at Kingfisher decided it in the same way that Judge Burford did here. Later another Kingfisher county saloon man brought mandamus proceedings in the supreme court and Chief Justice Burford issued an alternative writ on the strength of his application. The newspaper man against whom the suit was brought then "laid down" and did not appear to contest the case on the date set for final hearing.

The Payne county case just decided may be appealed to the supreme court but the chance would seem to be rather against the appellant, as two of the judges have already expressed themselves on the point at issue, both unfavorable to the saloon men. Meantime the temperance people are in the saddle and will continue there in case of an appeal until the matter is finally decided.—Wichita Eagle.

The Cannon boom has no echo in Oklahoma. It's a dead one!

Woodward county is wonderfully blessed with opportunity this year.

That constitutional convention demands immediate attention. Have you been thinking it over?

Prohibitionists in their campaign for a "dry" clause in the new state constitution are holding meetings in nearly every town in the territory.

Frank Greer wants it understood that he is not a candidate for any state office. Certainly. The newspaper editor only lives to do good to other people.

Woodward is assured of at least one new rail road. On Monday night the city passed ordinance vacating 4th street to be used as right of way through the city by the north west line.

Bryan, the private citizen, received the greatest ovation ever given to any man, public or private, in this country. The personality of that man with his sturdy honesty and integrity has won the world for him.

A word to you, sonny—you little twelve or thirteen-year-old boy who is smoking cigarettes on the sly. What do you want to be when you grow up—a stalwart healthy, vigorous, broadshouldered man, or a little, puny measly no'count, weak-minded dude? If you want to be a man, with hair on your face, brains in your head, and muscles in your limbs, you just let those cigarettes alone. If you want to be a thing, pitied by the girls, and held in contempt by your fellows, keep right on smoking and end your days in the insane asylum.

If everyone could at once be convinced of the great truth that real happiness consists in making others happy, what a change there would be. If every man tried as hard to make his business associate prosper as he does to make money for himself what a world this would be. But some one says this is impossible and can never be. Perhaps not, we don't know, but we do know that kind words do more to promote happiness than does money, and if we are not prepared to look after our brother's interests in a financial way we can at least cheer him with a kind word or smile. They cost nothing and should be given freely.

The Perils of Women.

A Kansas City physician has discovered that high collars worn by women produce cancer of the throat, and the Hopkins Journal adds that lownecked dresses produce pneumonia, corsets cause heart disease and shortness of breath, and long skirts gather up all sorts of infectious diseases, thick soles produce consumption, and tight shoes cause the toes to grow together; and looking at bright millinery causes sore eyes. Women should be very careful about these things.—Journal.

Mr. Hoe's Motto.

Robert Hoe, the famous builder of printing presses, has this for his favorite maxim: "It is better to get behind a thing and push it along than to get in front of it and drag it after you. In other words, it is the work, not the man, who should attract attention." This expression of reserve helps explain why it is that Mr. Hoe is never interviewed in the newspapers. He has an air of elegant leisure but works as hard as any of his employees, thoroughly understanding every detail of his vast business.—Kansas City Journal.

Model Neighborhood.

There is a neighborhood in North Atchison, says the Globe, where the neighbors keep chickens, cows, have pianos, organs and children, and yet they never have had a neighborhood fuss. The neighbors are particularly "congenial" but they observe each other's rights. One neighbor, who had a good many chickens, found they got out of the chicken yard and became a nuisance. Instead of waiting for complaints she had the top of the chicken yard covered with poultry netting. The women with children take pains to keep them "up" instead of allowing them to run to the neighbor's. The neighbors never borrow of each other. If one of them is in a great hurry for something she is out of, she takes a nickle or a dime and buys it of one of her neighbors, instead of borrowing. If one of the neighbor women imposes on her husband, or if her husband imposes on her, the other neighbors say "its their own business" instead of talking until a row is brought on. The pianos and organs in the neighborhood are hushed after bedtime, and there is not a dog in the vicinity. There is not a hired girl or even a laundress in the entire neighborhood. The women do their own work and do not have time to make trouble.—K. C. Journal.

John Ryan of Speermore has just returned from a trip to Nebraska and South Dakota, and while passing through here stopped off a few days with friends.

A. J. Viets and wife bought the Bonfield property in the east part of town last week and moved there the first of this week.

Dick T. Morgan and wife, also their son, Porter and wife left Monday to attend a Christian convention at El Reno. From there they go to Indiana for a short vacation.

Flo Tandy came home last Thursday evening from Texas, where she has been visiting her sisters during the summer. One of her sisters, Mrs. Morrison came back with her.

E. R. Linn went to Chicago the latter part of last week to spend a few days with his wife, who is ill at that place. An operation was performed on her Saturday, and the report is, she is recovering slowly.

Will Moore traded his farm north of town for a hotel at Hunter, Okla., the first of the week. He will not go there at once, but his brother, Ed. and family, left Monday to take charge of it until his arrival.

Mrs. Joseph Nichols of Northfield, Minn., who has been here visiting her brothers' J. M. and W. F. Sherpey near Rawdon, has returned to her home. Mrs. Nickols had much to say in praise of sunny Oklahoma and that the people had accomplished a great deal in the short time they had been here.

At the "Home Coming" at Medicine Lodge, Kas., Wednesday of this week, Woodward was represented by Luther Patton and wife, W. H. O'Brian and wife, H. C. Thompson and wife, F. L. O'Bryan and wife, Mrs. Hewens and son, Mrs. W. W. Standiford and son Don, and Mrs. Ida M. Dohrer.

Munsey-Newton.

This whole country unites with the NEWS in showering congratulations on Rev. J. D. Z. Munsey, pastor of the South Methodist church in Woodward, and builder of its beautiful edifice here. Mr. Munsey was married last Sunday evening at the St Elmo Hotel to Mrs. Mary C. Newton of Bemis, Washington. Rev. A. C. Briggs tied the nuptial knot and all were happy in the celebration of the event. The children of both were present and smiled approval upon the action which merged the two wide separated streams of life into a smoothly flowing confluence and may the usefulness of each be extended for many years.

Angora Goat Association.

Owners of Angora goats who contemplate exhibiting their animals at any of the fairs this fall will be interested to know that the American Angora Goat Breeders' association offers a special award to the successful exhibitor of the best group or flock of Angora goats exhibited at any of the State, County and other fairs. The American Angora Goat Breeders association was organized in 1900 and maintains the only record of thoroughbred Angora Goats in America. It is the national organization representing and championing this breed of live stock in the United States. It has 500 members representing nearly every state and territory in the union and has over 58,000 animals recorded on its Pedigree Register. It is the purpose of the association to encourage the breeding of Angora goats, to improve and perfect the breed and to protect and promote the interests of this breed of live stock. The Association obtains and diffuses information regarding the history character, care and raising of Angora goats; it holds a national competitive exhibit of animals annually at Kansas City at which liberal premiums are provided and also patronizes and supports other Angora goat exhibits throughout the country to the encouragement and benefit of the Angora goat breeders of the United States. The headquarters of the Association is at Kansas City, Missouri, though the resident office of the secretary, John W. Fulton, is at Helena, Mont. Many inquiries concerning Angora husbandry are reported as having been received at the home of the association from this state which has led to the conclusion that the subject is one of considerable interest here and especially so among owners of waste brushy land as Angora goats, due to being natural browsers, are very successful in clearing and reclaiming such tracts. The poorer pastures and and range lands, inexpensive locations, are well adapted to Angora goat raising and for this reason Angoras are quite aptly styled "The Poor Man's Friend." Much interesting literature on Angora husbandry is now available. A list of the various publications and free bulletins on this subject may be had by addressing the Secretary of the Association.

A Handsome Poster.

The posters issued, advertising the Inter-State Live Stock and Horse Show, St. Joseph, Mo., September 24-29, in addition to being a handsome example of the lithographer's art, has in connection with it several interesting facts. The original painting cost $150.00 and was made by the celebrated equine artist, Frank Whitney, of Winnetka, Ill. Usually when a poster is to be made, some stock illustration of any animal which happens to be on hand at the lithographers is used. When the director of the Inter-State Live Stock and Horse Show decided to issue a hanger advertising the show, it was suggested that illustration of some specific horse be used. After searching for a perfect type, it was decided to use "Lampion," Percheron, register No. 40309, a thoroughbred Percheron stallion, imported by Messrs J. Crouch & Son in 1905 for Mr. Louis F. Swift, for betterment of draft horse breeds in St. Joseph and adjacent territory. "Lampion" was born in Dance, Noe Co., State of Orne, France, and is a splendid type of thoroughbred Percheron, for which that particular section of France is famous, the strain being sired by "Blotocq". Some of his ancestors are "Chatillon", "Louis de Orr" and "Jules". For those not familiar with the preparation of a poster of this nature the mode of procedure may be interesting. First, photographs were made of "Lampion" in four different poses in order that all of the points of conformation might be shown. The photographs were forwarded to Mr. Whitney at his Winnetka home, where after a week's work, the finished sketch in oil was submitted and approved. The lithographer then proceeded to have the drawing put on stone—it being necessary to use eight separate stones, putting the poster through the press eight different times. The hanger must then be allowed to dry sufficiently for shipment and the result is an attractive picture as well as an advertisement for the first stock and horse show to be held in St. Joseph, Mo. The show in itself is attracting considerable attention among exhibitors on account of the large list of premiums offered in the various classes. A premium list with entry cards will gladly be sent in return for postal card request, addressed to the Inter-State Live Stock and Horse Show, South St. Joseph, Mo.

Big Prizes For Subscribers.

The Daily Oklahoma has started the biggest prize voting contest ever conducted by a newspaper in any part of the southwest. The first prize consists of a $3,000.00 house and lots, and there are 75 prizes aggregating altogether a value of $7,500.00. Oklahoma and Indian Territory are divided into districts, and handsome prizes offered to the most popular man and woman in each district, in addition to the grand prizes which will be given to the men and women getting the highest popular vote from all districts. A great deal of interest has already been aroused throughout the territories and there are a good many candidates working in this district. A certain number of votes are given with each six months or year's subscription to the Oklahoman, and any man or woman, married or single, is free to enter the contest or to nominate any of their friends.

The prizes are so numerous and so costly that it is a very tempting contest for prominent business people or popular young ladies to enter. The second prize is a $750.00 self playing Kimtail piano; the third a horse, buggy and harness, worth $400.00 and the fourth prize is a $250.00 diamond ring. Other prizes range in value from $300.00 down to $15.00. The winners of these prizes ought certainly to feel well repaid for their efforts in securing subscribers for the biggest paper in Oklahoma.

When to Quit.

An English journal requested a number of its largest advertisers to give their opinions concerning the best time to stop advertising, and the following replies were received: When the population ceases to multiply and the generations that crowd on after you and never heard of you stop coming on. When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than they can get anywhere else. When you stop making fortunes right in your sight solely through the direct use of the mighty agent. When you forget the words of the shrewdest and most successful men concerning the main cause of their prosperity. When younger and fresher houses in your line cease starting up and using the trade journals in telling people how much better they can do for them than you can. When you would rather have your own way and fail than to take advice and win.

A great many boys go to ball games on Sunday who would go to better places if were provided for them. A boy will have company and if he can't get one kind he will another. He will go where the greatest attract on is. A boy cannot be driven but must be led; consequently if you want him to go to the place where the influence tend to uplift him and strengthen his moral character you and not the boy must provide the attractive place. Lectures and long sermons tend to increase the distance between the boy and home or the church, but good music at home or a song service in which the congregation take the leading part in church will increase the attendance of the boys as well as men. The place for a church choir is among the congregation and not in a little pen by themselves. Try it.—Gage Banner.

The Markets.

St. Joseph Markets.

So. St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 5 1906. Cattle receipts have been very liberal at this point this week, in fact up to today the total is larger than for the entire six days of last week, but the trade has been using the supplies quite readily, and aside from stockers there is no been limited at this as well as at other points, and prices have been maintained on a fully steady level for all offerings regardless of weight that carried quality and finish sufficient to sell at $5.25 or over. There have been no strictly prime cattle here, the having been some 1450 pound averages on choice order that sold at $5.85. Below cattle good enough to sell at $5.25, the supplies of natives have not been large, but with westerns coming very freely buyers have not been disposed to take the medium and common grades of steers except at declines of 10c@15. Western steers are 10c@15 lower for the week, but have been selling freely, and the decline is about the same as that noted at other points. Steers have been largely from Western Kansas and the southwest, and are of the grade to sell between $3.50@ $3.80, western cows show about the same decline as steers; this decline also applies to quarantine cattle. Cows and heifers have been in light supply as to natives, and prices are 10c@15c lower for the week, but show a strong turn on the close. Calves were a half dollar earlier in the week, but have gained most of the decline. Good heavy feeding cattle have been in limited supply and with demand unsatisfied prices are now strong at about $4.65@ $4.50 for fair to choice feeders. Stock cattle of light weight are in big supply and quality good, but with limited demand, prices have been working lower and the close of the week find many really attractive light weight cattle on the bargain counter with a very good class of yearlings selling around $3.00.

The hog market has been in a nervous condition, and the general tendency in prices has been towards level and now show declines of 15c@ 20c as compared with the opening of the week. This decline has been brought about on receipts that at five markets are running short of last week and there is a growing opinion in trade circles that packers have now got the market in hand and will force prices still lower. It remains to be seen however whether the country will continue to market hogs freely on declining prices. This has not been the policy during the past couple of years and it remains to be seen whether they are to be shaken from their tactics of curtailing shipments on breaks. The bulk of hogs today sold at $5.90@ $6.15 with a top of $9.25. There is considerable discrimination arising against heavy packing hogs. This is a usual condition at this season of the year, and it is not at all surprising that the range in prices is spreading out sharply.

A Complete Backdown.

Seeing the overwhelming popularity of the Byrne simplified shorthand and practical book-keeping, a few of our would be competitors, using some of the old moss back systems have yelled themselves hoarse about what can't be done with the Byrne; but are as silent as the tomb about what can be done with the old systems they teach. To all of these we have made for the past two years and still make the following standing offer, which they have absolutely declined to accept: They to select five students from their school who have not studied any system of shorthand more than five months, and we will select an equal number of Byrne writers from our school who have not studied any system more than three months; they to select one judge; we select one; these to select a third; these to test the speed and accuracy of their students and ours in new and unfamiliar matter, court reporting, legal briefs, and business letters, five consecutive minutes on each class of matter.

If their students make a better record than ours, we pay all the expenses of the contest; if our students make a better record than theirs they pay all expenses of the contest. The fact that their students have two months more preparation than ours is not to be considered in the contest.

Since the other schools have admitted that we can give a better course in two months less time than they, and since we secure good positions free of charge for every graduate, would it not be complimentary to your good judgment to make your arrangements to enter the Capital City Business College of Guthrie, Okla., at the earliest possible date? Large illustrated catalogue free for the asking.

When to Quit.

An English journal requested a number of its largest advertisers to give their opinions concerning the best time to stop advertising, and the following replies were received:

When the population ceases to multiply and the generations that crowd on after you and never heard of you stop coming on.

When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than they can get anywhere else.

When you stop making fortunes right in your sight solely through the direct use of the mighty agent.

When you forget the words of the shrewdest and most successful men concerning the main cause of their prosperity.

When younger and fresher houses in your line cease starting up and using the trade journals in telling people how much better they can do for them than you can.

When you would rather have your own way and fail than to take advice and win.

A Drawing Feature.

Undoubtedly the greatest achievement in the way of special Features for the Interstate Live Stock and Horse Show to be held in St. Joseph, September 24th to 29th, is the securing of a string of horses from the stables of King Edward VII of England, and Lord Rothschild. These horses were sent over for exhibition at fairs in the Dominion of Canada and through much diplomatic solicitation, consent has been secured for exhibiting them in at least two of the big fall shows to be held in the United States. Their first appearance will be in the Interstate Live Stock Show as they will be brought direct from Toronto to St. Joseph.

Declared to be absolutely the finest Shires in England, the lot contains three mares belonging to King Edward VII, two stallions, a yearling colt, a brood mare and filly foal, the property of Lord Rothschild, and two geldings owned jointly by the nobleman and king.

The entire collection came from the royal stud of Hartfordshire, and the object of King Edward and the nobleman in sending them to America is said to be, to show what a genuine shire is like.

St. Joseph and her immediate territory are greatly interested in the development of good horses right now. Great strides have been made during the past year in stimulating interest in the production of horses that get the "high dollar" in the markets of the country. Horsemen have talked "shires" and now comes a chance to see what real shire from the royal stables of England is like.

The securing of the King's horses should be one of the greatest drawing cards of the Interstate which is replete with the best there is in live stock.—Stock Yard Journal.

Largest in the History of the Institution.

Capital City Business College, Guthrie, Okla., is entering into its fall business with the heaviest enrollment in the history of the college. The employment department is over-taxed with calls for book-keepers and stenographers to accept good positions. This is conclusive proof that the business men appreciate the thorough, practical training given the graduates of this famous institution. Its thorough, modern courses have made for it a national reputation. Hundreds of students have enrolled during the past twelve months from many different states.

Just as sure as a student enters this college, applies himself, and finishes his course, just so sure will he be thoroughly competent to hold a first class position, and if he does not secure it himself, the college will secure it for him free of charge.

Young man, young woman, if you want a position, paying from $50 to $75 per month within the next six months, make your arrangements to enter the Capital City Business College at once and your wants will be gratified. When you reach the city of Guthrie, report directly to the college where a nice boarding place will be secured for you and all necessary arrangements made without any embarrassment to you.

YOU TAKE NO RISK.

Any student not satisfied at the completion of a course in the Capital City Business College that the Byrne simplified shorthand and practical book-keeping are all that we claim for them; can get every cent of his tuition back simply by presenting to the college a written statement to that effect.

If on arriving and seeing our work you doubt our claims, deposit money for the course in any bank, payable only when we do what we claim. *

When He's Missing.

I guess you know this fellow—
He's found in every place—
Who favors all improvements
To benefit the race;
He with the loudest shouters
Is always to be found,
But somehow he is missing
When the list goes round.
On Sunday morning early
To church he always goes,
And listens to the sermon
From start until the close;
He looks up at the preacher
With gaze that's most profound,
But his eyes are on the ceiling
When the plate goes round.
He'll go to an excursion
And listen to the bands;
He thinks the music charming,
And loudly claps his hands,
He keeps his ears wide open,
He does not miss a sound,
But he's gazing at the ocean
When the hat goes round.
When his days are ended
And he reaches Peters' gate,
He'll find that he's been selfish
To let others pay the freight.
If Peter lets him enter,
And in Heaven he is found,
I'll bet he's disappointed
When the crowns come round.

WHY DOES A HEN MOLT?

We get a new suit of clothes because the old one has worn out. A hen gets a new suit for the same reason. We buy a suit simply because we cannot grow one and a hen grows one simply because she cannot buy it. Were it not for the fact that old clothes wear out we would be under the necessity of only owning one suit so long as we did not outgrow it. The suit of a hen wears out and has to be exchanged for a new one.

The changing of the new plumage for the old is called moulting. It consists in shedding the old and at the same time of growing a new set of feathers. This process does not take place suddenly, but is extended over several weeks of time. The old feathers come out gradually and the new ones come in slowly.

When moulting takes place the hen has all her powers occupied in growing a new coat. She does not lay eggs simply because the draft on her is all she can stand. There is another reason why moulting has been arranged for by nature. In winter a heavier coat is needed than in summer, hence the business of growing the new coat comes in the fall of the year so the well worn suit can be used for a summer suit.

Feeding for molt means to keep the fowl healthy and well fed. Of course the elements needed for producing feathers should be provided in the kind of feed given.—J. M. B., in California Cultivator.

MARK THE CHICKENS.

Get out of the habit of raising common barnyard fowls. They do not pay as egg producers, they do not make large carcasses; and they have pesky dispositions. If you can't lay out money enough to buy a new stock of good birds, suppose you buy a few sittings of eggs in the spring and mark the chickens that come from these. Keep them for breeding stock and mark their young. If you don't mark chickens it is difficult to tell one year's hatch from another. The first thing you know you will be keeping old hens beyond their period of usefulness. One breeder marks his chickens by putting leg bands on one year and leaving them off the next. Or you might alternate the bands, putting them on the right leg one year and on the left the next. Another good way to mark them is to use a punch. But the bands are easier to use and more readily seen.

GREEN FOOD FOR POULTRY.

It is necessary for the health and best growth of all fowls that they have access to plenty of green, succulent food, and now is the time to make provision for that needed during the all months. For this purpose, nothing is better than rape, it being a very rapid grower and remaining tender for a longer period than most any other plant. Any vacant lots around the premises may be utilized, and if not in immediate proximity to the poultry house so much the better, for the fowls must not be permitted to range over the patches until the plants have made some growth and are well rooted, else they nip the tender leaves so closely that the stalk is denuded and the plants die. If the soil is rich and loose, as it should be, rape makes a very luxuriant growth, and a few square rods will furnish pasture for a big flock. A piece of ground on which an early crop has been grown can be well used for this purpose, thus preventing the unsightly growth of weeds which is sure to spring up unless the surface is occupied by some growing crop. The Dwarf Essex is the best to use and as the seed is cheap, the expense is small in growing a patch of rape.

Chinese mustard is very good, too, as a source of green food, and a few stalks left standing in the bed of spring greens will furnish seed, for unlike rape, it goes to seed the first season. If sown in the late summer or early fall in this latitude, it does not mature seed before a killing frost, so it can be planted without fear of self seeding and becoming a nuisance.

DISEASES OF POULTRY.

Lice soon reduce the vitality of fowl and invite disease.

Cleanliness is a death blow to disease germs.

Keep a lookout for the feather pullers. When you are sure you have the guilty one, it is best to kill it and have a chicken dinner.

It has been said that common baking soda, mixed in water, using plenty of it, is an excellent remedy for severe dysentery or cholera in fowls. The dose is a table spoonful three times a day until the fowl recovers. From three to six doses should effect a cure.

Here is a formula for a cheap and effective insect powder: Two pounds of tobacco dust, two pounds of sulphur, one ounce of carbolic acid. Mix and allow to stand for twenty-four hours, when it can be pulverized and is ready for use.

Ailments are not really diseases. They are more of an indisposition.

Lice by debilitating the fowl, very often cause diarrhoea.

See that the drinking vessels are kept clean. Do not allow the scum to accumulate on them, as that in itself will cause sickness.

The principal causes for diseases are poor houses, dampness, filth and improper feeding.

Turn Backward Revised.

Backward, turn backward, oh, time in your flight; make me a boy again just tonight. Give me the bliss of rapturous time when I would go swimming, say half of the time; give me the blister that followed the bliss, on the part of my back that the sun didn't miss; give me the beating that followed it then, make me a jubilant urchin again. Backward turn, oh time in your flight, give me one chance at the teacher tonight; the teacher who larruped me five times a day. Oh give me one chance at the teacher. I say! And give me the woodpile as long as a hill, let the pleasure of splitting it cheer me still, while the boys gaily jeer me from over the fence. Oh give me that bliss again—darn the expense! The small reservation just over the hill, where the thought of hoeing would give me a chill; the cow that caressed me each eve with her tail, as I tried to draw milk for a twenty quart pail; the hens that for ever wanted to set, the pig with a stomach man never filled yet; the measles that hit me; colicky pain, oh give me the bliss of my boyhood again. It you'd fill me with rapture and cheerful delight, backward, turn backward, oh, time in your flight.—Ex.

CARE OF FALL CALVES.

The young calves which are coming and are to come for the next few months should have special care lest they suffer during the busy season.

They will need watching especially for the first three weeks, when they are being weaned and started on skim milk. I have found it a good plan to allow the calf to remain with its dam until her milk is fit to use or for two or three days, when it may be taken away and put in a pen or yard. If the calf is weak it should remain with its dam until strong, as a weak calf is a hard thing to raise by hand. Until the calf can drink well and has forgotten about its dam it will be best to keep it in the barn in a box stall with plenty of bedding, and, if possible in a darkened place so the flies will not bother it.

A pasture is good for calves on skim milk, as it tends to regulate them and keep them in a healthy condition. As a rule calves may be changed from whole milk to skim milk in two or three weeks. The change should be made gradually and linseed meal added at the time of changing in small quantities, a tablespoonful at a feeding. As soon as the calf is on a skim milk ration it should be taught to eat grain, and if kept in the barn will need a little hay. The third or fourth cutting of alfalfa makes very good calf hay, also upland prairie, the latter is the best if the calves are inclined to sour.

Fall calves require skim milk feeding during the winter and early spring if they are expected to make the best growth. As soon as grass comes they can be turned out and will shift for themselves. It is a good way to grow excellent animals by having them come in the fall and if heifers they will then make the very best of winter milkers, as they can freshen at two years old and once a year from then on.

CREAM TROUBLES IN IOWA.

"In the inspection of cream, both at the station and the local creamery," reports the Iowa dairy commissioner, "I am finding considerable trouble from the water separator, which is of a very inferior quality compared with the cream from centrifugal machines. Parties have admitted to me that they could not make good enough butter from this cream for use at home, but that there had been no objection raised to it by the station man or the manager of the local plant. What to do with this kind of cream is a serious problem and it would be a Godsend if every water separator was condemned. Another bad feature of this cream is its flavor. I find that this cream has a flat, nauseating taste which is disgusting and causes a man to spit it out at once to keep from throwing up his boots. This flavor can be traced very readily to the finished product, and the butter judge's criticism would be flat, dis-agreeable flavor, very unclean, etc. A single can of this cream is liable to spoil a whole churning. Another kind of cream that is causing a lot of trouble is that which has been kept too long or been kept in a damp musty cellar for two or three days. Most of this either has a musty smell or a rotten vegetable flavor, and in some cases shows signs of mold. Butter made from this kind of cream is criticised for its musty flavor and called very unclean, due to the use of poor milk or cream. The third very undesirable kind of cream is from separators that have not been properly cleaned or which has been delivered in unclean cans. This butter has a rancid taste and smell, showing decomposition, rot or putrefaction."

DAIRY NOTES.

A stunted calf cannot make a free milker.

It's a poor excuse of a farm paper that does not boost the dairy business now days.

"Vitality" is what they claim for Holstein milk.

The best way to improve the test is to better the cow.

Are the cows going to freshen in the next two months?

It is hard to make the hired man see the necessity of cleanliness.

The successful development of a cow rests largely on the breeder's equipment.

The dairy products of Iowa rank second in importance of all her manufactures.

It is just as illegal to sell adulterated milk on the hotel table as from the milk wagon.

Every heifer raised from an unprofitable cow will make one more unprofitable cow.

There are better Jerseys and Holsteins in this country than were ever produced in Europe.

The dual purpose cow may do for the average farmer, but the dairy farmer wants a profitable cow.

The cow appropriates a certain amount of food to sustain life. What you give her above this is clear profit.

Shivering on the warm side of a strawpile and suffocating in a dark, poorly ventilated stable are two extremes. Avoid both next winter.

It's hard to imagine, but according to the best of human knowledge, the Hereford and Jersey came from the same original stock.

Corporations.

Thomas Speed Mosby in Watson's Magazine: The attribute of perpetual succession is the chief utility of a corporation. This, also, was the chief advantage of primogeniture and entails. That was the object of this feature of the old common-law land system. An estate is only the right one has in or to a thing. If wrong to tie up real estate in perpetuity in a single family, through the medium of entails, why is it not just as wrong to tie up certain rights and privileges with their accruing profits, in perpetuity, when clothed in the garb of a corporation? It is an ancient maxim that "the law abhors perpetuities," but the law does not abhor corporations—not to any great extent, at any rate. In this country they are usually on speaking terms and get on quite amicably and unanimously together.

And yet, the essence of the corporation is its perpetuity. The one form of perpetuity would seem to be as hurtful as the other. The reason which condemns entails cannot justify the corporation.

The law may grant special privileges, but it cannot bestow natural rights. Natural rights are not the subject of legislative grant. If the right to perpetual succession belongs to a few men, it belongs to all, and they should not be required to apply to the state for authority to exercise it. But it is not, and in the nature of things cannot be, an individual right or a natural right, and it has never been so considered, either by text-writers in the law or by the courts. Perpetual succession is the inherent, natural and exclusive right of government alone. It belongs to a society, to the social state. It is a supreme attribute of sovereignty. The political nature of the corporation has always been recognized by courts and law writers generally. The question as to the ultimate advisability of granting charters or franchises is therefore political in its nature and not legal. It is plainly a question of politics.

When the people have solved this question they will have solved, to a great extent, the question of trusts and the monopolies, the majority of which could not have been formed but for the corporate privileges granted by the state.

The Who of Socialism.

"Socialism is a doctrine born of the intense longing of philanthropists to liberate the people from intolerable conditions in the cities," says Tom Watson, in his Magazine.

"The doctrine has no considerable foothold anywhere outside of the cities. Its arguments are based upon city conditions. In our rural communities it makes no headway, simply because conditions which encourage it in the cities do not exist in the country.

"If the overcrowding in the cities could be counteracted, if the surplus population could be induced to scatter out and go to work, building up the waste places in rural communities, responding to the earnest demand for laborers in the less populous portions of the Union, creating homes and farms upon the millions of square miles of unappropriated or easily accessible land which impatiently awaits the beneficent touch of human industry—Socialism would at once cease to be a factor in politics, and would once more become, what it has so long been, a cult of the studio."

County Clerks are not to get Rakeoff

Special:
The Oklahoma supreme court today decided that under the laws of Oklahoma a county clerk cannot recover extra compensation for his services in reporting the proceedings of the board of county commissioners and transmitting the same to the official county paper. This decision is of great interest to all the county clerks of Oklahoma.

In rendering the opinion, Judge Burwell states that compensation of a county clerk in Oklahoma is limited to his annual salary plus a sum not exceeding $300 for making out tax roll as may be allowed by the board of county commissioners. The case is styled the board of county commissioners of Garfield county against John F. Danley, and the lower court decided that the clerk might receive extra compensation. The supreme court reverses this decision upon appeal made by the county board. Oklahoman.

To Foreigners

By the terms of an act recently passed by Congress and which takes effect from and after Sept. 27, 1906, it becomes necessary for all aliens who have taken out their first papers and seven years shall have elapsed since that time and Sept. 27, 1906, to complete their citizenship before the above mentioned date and failure to do so will lose them their citizenship.

These parties can get their second papers at the following times and places: Taloga, Dewey county, Sept. 17, and at Grand, Day county, Sept. 24th.

Court does not meet at Woodward until Nov. 5th, and these parties will be too late for that court.

Others who have not taken their first papers would do well to do so before said date while the old law is in force and effect.

Deputy District Clerk.

New Oklahoma Railway.

Another northwest railway line was granted a charter yesterday at Guthrie by Secretary Chas. H. Filson. It is to be known as the Canadian River Railway company, with headquarters at Woodward and is capitalised at $5,500,000. The proposed line runs southeast from Woodward, Dewey and Blaine counties, to Watonga, and there diverges, one line going through Blaine, Kingfisher and Logan counties to Guthrie, and the other through Blaine, Kingfisher, Canadian and Oklahoma counties, to Oklahoma City, a total distance of 220 miles. The incorporators are F. E. Jemison of New York; Jesse G. Northcutt of Raton, N. M.; B. W. Key, W. P. Halliday and A. M. Appleget of Woodward.

The Farmer Boy of Today is
The Business Man of Tomorrow

It's an undisputed fact that the men at the head of the largest mercantile businesses in the United States are men who were "boys from the farm." The boy on the farm has greater opportunities to become great in the business world than the boy in the large cities, if he will but grasp them. A business college education is the passport to success. If obtained at the proper school it can be easily, quickly, economically acquired. We have graduated thousands from and they are making both fame and fortune. We give you an actual, practical business education that fits you to step right into the business world and go right ahead. Our college is a typical big mercantile house. You learn to transact business just as it is actually transacted. It is not a mere book knowledge we teach. Our students come in actual contact with actual business conditions and methods so that when they have qualified for a position they step out of our business house (college) into the real business office, ready and capable for the work they have chosen. Our course comprises Bookkeeping, Banking, Shorthand, Rapid Calculation, Penmanship, Business Management, Accounting, in fact every phase of business work. Personal instruction. A $100,000 College Building. Twenty expert business teachers. Good home boarding places at reasonable rates. Just write for 64-page illustrated free catalogue; mention the line you wish to study and let us convince you that we offer the most practical business education at modern cost obtainable.
