COMMUNITY COMMENTS

SCHOOLS AND SCHOOL TEACHERS

School days start again in Lubbock Monday and with the advent of the beginning of a new school term come to Lubbock some one hundred school teachers...

But because they are young people these school teachers present problems to any community. That problem is the problem of sociability.

Which gives rise to the question, "What are we going to do about it?" In years gone by very little has been done about it.

In the past someone or other has sponsored a reception and all of the teachers and patrons of the schools were invited.

But they set a bad example for the children, you'll hear it said. Yet, if children of school age are kept at their books in the evening...

And looking back on your own life and your own experiences, you'll have to admit that if no one set a worse example for the children than the average school teacher...

social life of this city — picked out the corner at the Citizens National bank to harshly criticize his chief competitor yesterday morning. A half dozen other men, also high in the councils of the city, listened, more or less interestedly, because his knocking carried a hint of scandal.

Yet, it is a safe bet that all of the listeners took what they heard with a grain—and possibly a fist-full—of salt, because he was talking about a competitor.

All of us slip a knock at our competitors once in a while, probably because it is human nature to take the aggressive. Yet there is none of us who listens to a man knock his competitor who does not feel at least a slight disdain for the man who is doing the knocking without necessity and without giving the competitor an opportunity to defend himself.

posed of union men of the city, will oppose a picked team from the Rethillers and Rix-Baker teams of the city league. This game will be held at Merrill park. Throughout the evening and night free picture show will be thrown open to the public at the municipal auditorium.

Directors Chosen.
Felix O. Kelley, secretary of the Central Trades Federation and high in the councils of state labor circles, will have charge of the day's events. Henry H. Jones has been chosen as marshal of the day and he will be aided by Frank Robinson, carpenters union; George Wilson, painters union; W. E. Ellis, barbers union; Roy Burte, plumbers union; H. E. Shook, electricians union; Joe Siroud, cooks and waiters union; T. T. Fisher, plasterers union; and F. Drake, bricklayers union.

Although Labor Day this year came upon the regular monthly trades day that bargain event was moved up by the merchants and local business men are cooperating with the unions in making the day a gala event. Word from Littlefield, Claude, Amberst, Mileshee, Brownfield, Slaton, Lamesa, Malou, Ralls, Lorenzo, Plainview, Levelland, Morton and Crosbyton has been received to the effect that those cities would be represented in the celebration and it is not unlikely that other towns in the territory will also be represented, Mr. Kelley said.

PLANS COMPLETE ON NEW EVENING NEWSPAPER HERE

H. Goodnight, formerly of Gainesville and until last week circulation manager for the Gainesville Herald, arrived today to take over the circulation department of the Journal. Mr. Goodnight has been engaged in newspaper circulation work for the past five years. D. D. Roderick, manager, Charles A. Guy, editor, and Miss Floy Pryor make up the remainder of the business and editorial forces.

To supplement the local and foreign news services the NEA feature and news pictorial service will appear exclusively in the Daily Journal in the Lubbock trade territory. The NEA service furnishes the latest and best in newspaper serial stories, up-to-the-minute news pictures of all big events and personalities in addition to other appealing and highly interested features, which will be announced with the opening edition Tuesday, will be supplied.

The announcement that the Plains Journal company was to publish an afternoon newspaper made in the last issue of this publication, was greeted with great interest throughout the city and county and the Plains Journal staff has been besieged with questions concerning the opening issue and fifty-a score of persons have requested that their names be placed first on the circulation list.

For a short period after its initial appearance the Daily Journal will be distributed free to every home in the city and every citizen will be given an opportunity to see just what a high class newspaper it is before they are asked to subscribe. Names and addresses of subscribers will be taken at the office of the Plains Journal at any time but no money will be accepted until the paper appears and the people of the city are given a chance to judge it on its merits.

Plains Journal To Continue.
The Plains Journal, which has been serving the people of Lubbock, Lubbock county and the South Plains in a more complete fashion than any other newspaper published in the territory, will, as announced, be continued in its present form and will be improved rather than neglected by the addition of the Daily Journal. Inquiries concerning the Plains Journal's future by many of its large group of readers, have been pouring into the office and the management announces that even a bi-weekly paper will be published as a result of the change.

SUGGEST CHANGE FOR PAYMENT OF LUBBOCK PAVING

termin following the last charter change will be up in the next few weeks. The special vote on paving payments will probably be called at the same time voters are asked to express themselves concerning the supporting of the present Chamber of Commerce through taxation, and changing it to a board of city development, as is the practice of several nearby cities.

All petitions from property owners concerning the new paving areas are being held up until a decision on the special election is made, authorities say.

The River
FROM the Great Lakes to the Gulf, America's greatest river flows majestically. Through the heart of the country it takes its course, broadening and deepening as lesser rivers empty their flow into its current. Farms and cities on its banks find it a source of industry and a means of supply.
Through the country runs another river, as continuous as the Mississippi in its flow. It is the river of thought which, day and night, moves through the land and vitalizes the national life. Its source lies in the people's knowledge that communication with all parts of the country is possible. It is a stream that deepens and broadens and grows stronger as thought is added to thought, as the mind of one community joins the mind of another.
America's national telephone system is a channel for this river, for Bell System service unites all sections of the country. It leaves no gap in the pathway of communication. It knows no off-duty hours, nor any corner of the nation that is too remote to be reached.

EXPLANATION IS MADE OF NEW LAW ON AUTO LIGHTING WHICH IS NOW BEING ENFORCED HERE

EXACT STATUS OF TEXAS LAW WHICH REQUIRES MOTORISTS TO HAVE LIGHTS ADJUSTED IS FULLY GIVEN OUT

There seems to be some confusion among motorists as to the requirements of the new Texas highway headlight law, some believing it to be a dimming law, while others are under the impression that the law does not apply to a car equipped with special lenses which diffuse the light.

As a matter of fact the law requires that every automobile operating in Texas shall have the headlights tested and focused at an authorized testing station. When the test is made a certificate will be given the owner of the car, and this certificate should be carried in the car at all times, as a proof that the lights have been tested. This certificate is also necessary before an automobile license will be issued after the law becomes operative.

The law does not permit dimming of headlights on the highways. It requires among other things, a light at all times sufficient to distinguish an object in the road 200 feet away. It requires that lights shall be so focused as to not glare into the eyes of drivers of other cars that are met on the highway. This focus is made by the testing station, but it is up to the driver to not let them get out of focus.

The law provides that spotlights must be focused on the ground not more than 20 feet in front when meeting another car on the road at night. The penalty for violation of the headlight law is a fine of from $5 to $25 for the first offense, and for subsequent offenses the fine is not less than $25 nor more than $200.

This law has been adopted by 21 other states, and it is only a question of time until every state will adopt it. Where it has been in force for any length of time, observers say there has been a decrease in the number of night automobile accidents. A majority of night accidents is said to be traceable to defective lights.

COTTON PICKERS AVAILABLE FROM ABILENE OFFICE

Government Employment Bureau Is Busy Supplying the Needs of Cotton Growers

ABILENE - Farmers may obtain cotton pickers early and get the kind they want if they will cooperate with the West Texas Free Employment Bureau which is operating from the offices of the chamber of commerce, J. Free Tarpley, manager, said Thursday.

Many calls for work are coming into the office, with 65 calls received on Tuesday, and almost as many Thursday. Twenty of the 65 applicants were wired Tuesday, and the remainder are rapidly being cared for. Several of this number consisted of cotton pickers who wished work. Mr. Tarpley has already placed a few families of pickers with Taylor county farmers.

Cotton can be harvested early if the farmers will communicate with Mr. Tarpley, informing him as to the kind of pickers they want, the price to be paid, whether or not they have rent houses, or will board the pickers. In this way each farmer may be supplied with the pickers he desires, and by letting the Employment Bureau know in advance, these may be supplied early.

Many calls have been from people wishing clerical or office work, too, Mr. Tarpley said.

TO MINERAL WELLS

Edwin D. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Martin, of this city, has left for Mineral Wells, where he will begin his fourth year as principal of a grade school in that city. Mr. Martin has been vacationing here with his parents and is a graduate of the Lubbock high school. Prior to leaving he ordered the Plains Journal to be sent him so he could keep up with Lubbock while in the other parking dropped in 30 and 50 cents. Some families that made the trip were in desperate circumstances.

Three new special agents have been appointed to the farm labor employment service in Texas, and they met in the conference in Fort Worth. These new men are: R. W. Roach with headquarters at Longview; G. T. Adams, headquarters at Waco, and J. H. Fallon, headquarters at Wills Point.

Sweetwater Shows Big Gain When New Directory Appears

Sweetwater has a population of 7,100 at this time, according to W. L. Hunter, compiler of a new directory of this city.

This is an increase of twenty per cent over the former directory of Sweetwater printed three years ago.

While the new directory does not contain the names of those below a certain age, the number of members of each family was ascertained when the data for the new directory was secured and from the totals thus obtained the population estimate prepared. The new directory has a general directory, wherein are listed the names of inhabitants of the city in alphabetical order, a street directory giving the number of the street and the name of the householder, a list of the taxpayers of the county, a classified business directory and much general information concerning this section.

Milt Goode Is Now At Bronte At Side Of An Ill Brother

Milt Goode, who is serving a 25-year term in the penitentiary after conviction with Tom Ross and Abilene for the killing of H. L. Robertson and Allison, cattle inspectors at Seminole in Gaines county, was granted a furlough to visit his brother, Tom Goode, who is ill at Bronte, according to a dispatch from Sweetwater.

Goode was found guilty of the murder of H. L. Robertson as charged in 1922, and the punishment was assessed at twenty-five years in the penitentiary. The sentence was filed by District Judge W. R. Ely on October 1.

The trials of Ross and Goode here and at Abilene held the attention of the state for several weeks and a jail delivery was narrowly averted at Abilene.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS ARE EXPLAINED BY MEMBERS OF BOARD AND MUST BE FOLLOWED

CHILDREN MUST ATTEND SCHOOLS IN THEIR PARTS OF CITY; TO COMPLETE ENROLLMENT IN ALL GRADES ON MONDAY MORNING

To better facilitate the problems of school enrollment, members of the city school board have designated the various school districts of the city and all pupils residing in the individual districts must adhere to the zoning rules. It was announced yesterday.

In the past pupils have been largely permitted to attend whatever schools their parents chose for them, in spite of the fact that the districting process has been used here for some time. Various school districts, and their territories, have been announced by the school board as follows:

The Lubbock public schools will open next Monday morning at 9 o'clock. High school pupils who were not enrolled on Thursday and Friday, September 2nd and 4th, will be enrolled

Monday, September 7th, at the high school building and work in the high school will begin in earnest on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Grade pupils will report for enrollment at their respective buildings on Monday morning at 9 o'clock. At that time teachers will take the names of the pupils, receive their credentials, hand out enrollment cards, give out textbooks, and assign lessons for the next day. After this the pupils will be dismissed to report Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock, when work in earnest will begin.

Pupils of the kindergarten age (six years of age or before September first) and pupils in grades one to four inclusive, residing north of a line running from the west on 13th street to Avenue N, north on N to Broadway, and east on Broadway to the city limits, will go to the K. C. Carter school. Pupils of the kindergarten age, residing south of a line running from the west on 13th street to Avenue N, north on N to Broadway and east on Broadway to the city limits, will go to the Geo. M. Hunt school. Pupils in grades one to three, inclusive, east of Ave. U and south of the line named above, will go to the Geo. M. Hunt school. Pupils in grades one to three, inclusive, south of Broadway and west of Avenue U will go to the Junior high school. Pupils in the fourth grade south of a line running from the west on 13th street to Avenue N, north on N to Broadway, and east on Broadway to the city limits, and 21st grade pupils all over the city, will go to the Central Ward building. Pupils in grades six to eight, inclusive, will go to the Junior high school, and those in grades nine to eleven, inclusive, will go to the high school.

Parents are requested to see that their children bring with them, to school on the first day, their prescription cards and other necessary credentials. This will insure their prompt enrollment.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clayton and children of Gail, Texas, have returned to their home after spending the week end visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Rush.

Conditions In West Texas Are Aided By Recent Heavy Rains

Conditions all over West Texas are better at this time than they have been in the past several weeks. Heavy rains of late week, which covered the territory from Pecos to Sweetwater and from the Nolan county east-north to Lubbock. Particularly heavy rains were noted between Big Spring and Pecos and from Lamesa to Big Spring.

Dawson county people were particularly pleased at the rains, especially the southern part of the county was in need of moisture. They expect to have a larger cotton crop in the southern part of the county as a result.

NEW WHOLESALE HOUSE WILL BE OPENED IN CITY

Building Which Will House a Big Branch of Harkrider, Keith Cook Co. Progresses

Regarding the addition to Lubbock's wholesale section of the Harkrider-Keith-Cook company being constructed at Lubbock will be opened about November 15.

It will be one of the most up-to-date fruit and produce establishments in the United States, according to Ben E. Keith, Fort Worth, head of the firm.

The combined cold storage and dry storage capacity of the plant will be between 75 and 100 cars. The building, which is on Santa Fe truckage, is 75x100 feet and two stories high. It is of brick.

"Our West Texas business is now the largest in years and is unusually good," Keith stated. "We expect an unusually large business this fall and winter. We are very optimistic regarding the Lubbock territory and know we did a good thing in deciding to open a branch there. We are in a position to enlarge the plant if necessary."

The company, which is the largest of its kind in the Southwest, has two houses in Fort Worth, where headquarters are; two houses in Dallas, one in Abilene, one in Corsicana and one in Wichita Falls.

W. H. Leahy, who is the manager of the house here, states that he is pleased with the progress being made on the building, which is being erected on Avenue G and Teah street. Mr. Leahy has been in the city for several months and is representing his company not only in Lubbock, but all over the Plains. He has made many friends in the city and territory since coming here.

Here's One Way You Can Estimate Yield

There are various and sundry methods of estimating a yield of cotton but here's one method which although rarely attempted, should be about as good as any at this stage of the game.

A Lubbock county land owner who has slightly more than 140 acres set in cotton had an insatiable desire to find out just what his ultimate yield would be. The more he eyed at the acreage and the more he looked at the sky the more undecided he grew. So on a recent visit to Dallas he consulted a fortune teller. The question must have been easy for the fortune teller who immediately told him his yield would be ninety-two bales and would bring twenty-four cents per pound. The land owner returned satisfied.

Miss Marguerite Hussey, daughter of Mrs. Maggie Hussey, transacted business in Ralls on Monday.

Texas Tech Is Talk Of Importance Over Lubbock Territory

"What's the Tech going to do this year?" That is a question which seems to be on the lips of everyone in West Texas at the opening of the new school draws near. In the line cars, the railroad trains and on the streets of West Texas towns the Tech is getting more than its share of publicity. People all over the West Texas territory are rallying to the new school and a large number of students from all parts of the territory will enroll in the college.

ABILENE'S FAIR THIS YEAR WILL SMASH RECORDS

Two New Buildings Will Be In Readiness When Gates are Opened September 21

Abilene, Texas, Sept. 2.—(Special)—All sectional bounds and precedents are slated for a break-down at the West Texas Fair this year, according to advance indications in practically every exhibit department of this all-West exposition. Contract has been let here for the erection of a new poultry exhibit building, which will be ready by the opening of the fair, Sept. 21-28. This building to be constructed of stucco at a cost of $3,000 is a part of the $25,000 improvement and enlargement program being put over by the Fair Association following the great demand created by last year's overflow exhibits and crowds. The new Merchant's Exhibit building which has been under construction for some time, is rapidly taking shape. While the enlargement of the grandstand to a 3,000 capacity gives promise of record-smashing throngs at the automobile races and the popular football contests.

Six community exhibits from Taylor County alone, with the added distinction that this will be the first time Taylor County has ever made community exhibits in competition with the community displays of other counties, will feature this year's fair. Indications are that community exhibits will occupy as much space and offer the quantity and quality displayed in the entire agricultural show last year. In addition by far the largest number of county exhibits on record at the West Texas exposition will be viewed by the 1925 fair visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Bagwell and family were in El Paso last week end.

West Texas Shows Open 12 Day Stand With New Features

The West Texas shows, owned and managed by E. Simmons, veteran showman and widely known in this section of the country, opened a twelve day stand in Lubbock Tuesday night, at Merrill park.

Included in the attractions offered by the show company is a bronco busting show, operated by J. M. Dugan, veteran West Texas bronco rider, who is on hand with his string of bad horses and bucking steers. A reward of twenty-five dollars is offered by the management to anyone who brings in a horse which cannot be ridden in the bronco show.

Other attractions are a $5,200 Merry-go-round, a "Merry-Mix-up," a brand new ride, and various other shows. "Whirlwind Bill" is in charge of the athletic show and will box and wrestle all comers. The West Texas shows will play a number of fairs in this territory, including the fair at Ralls, Sudan, Muleshoe, Hale Center, Abernathy and others.

FACULTY ON HAND AND STAGE SET FOR OPENING OF SCHOOLS MONDAY NEW SUPERINTENDENT ANNOUNCES

M. H. DUNCAN ISSUES STATEMENT AS HE PREPARES TO GUIDE SYSTEM FOR FIRST TIME; WILL GIVE HIS BEST TO CHILDREN

With everything in readiness and the largest faculty in the history of Lubbock marshalled to open their duties for the first, the Lubbock Public Schools will be opened for another term of nine months, beginning on Monday morning. The forming of classes and the assignment of lessons will be completed by the first day of school, and the pupils will then be excited until Tuesday morning, when the school year will be formally opened with the meeting of all classes.

In connection with the opening of school this year, Superintendent M. H. Duncan issues the following statement relative to his position:

"On next Monday morning your city public schools will open with a new Superintendent. I realize that it is always with more or less fear and trembling that parents approach such a situation. However, I want to assure the patrons of the Lubbock schools that it shall be my purpose to take hold of the work in a conservative way and endeavor to carry it on as nearly as possible as it has been carried on, making only such changes as are evidently necessary to the best educational interests of your children. I recognize the merits of your splendid educational system and realize the difficult task ahead of me in maintaining its standards. However, I feel that, with the fine educational atmosphere that prevails here and with the splendid spirit of co-operation that is manifest in every phase of your life, we should not be satisfied with what has been attained, but should strive for better things. Lubbock should have as good an educational system as is found in the Southwest and she must have it not only to give her children the very best educational advantages, but to keep pace with her splendid reputation as the home of what is to be one of the greatest colleges in the country. The Lubbock boys and girls are as deserving as there are in the world. The parents of these boys and girls are going to demand for them the very best educational advantages and they are not going to hesitate to spend their money for school buildings, for equipment, and for trained teachers if they know that that money is to be spent to good advantage.

"It shall be my purpose to carry on the schools as economically as can be done with a view to efficiency and I feel that is what you want. I shall do my best to see that your children are not hampered in their school work because of congested conditions, inadequate equipment, or poor instruction, and I do not think you will ever find me asleep at my post of duty or sacrificing the interests of the children to my own personal interests. Some people may sometimes regard me a little too enthusiastic for the schools, but when I see the meaning of the right kind of training in the lives of men and women, I do not believe one can be too enthusiastic for it.

"I said before that I wanted the schools to have adequate buildings and equipment; however, I do not believe that these are the most important things. In fact, I have visited some cities and towns over the country recently where it seemed to me that they had gone to the extreme in this direction. Buildings and equipment are necessary, but they do not make the school. The most important factor in the school is the teacher and the trained teacher with a heart for the children can do a thousand times more in poor buildings and with insufficient equipment than the untrained, cold-hearted teacher can do with the best. Our schools must have teachers who are trained for the work and who have their hearts in it. The teacher who is teaching merely for the money there is in it, or for other considerations than an abiding interest in the growing lives of the children had better seek another task, for he commits a crime every day he remains in the school room.

"It shall be my purpose to seek for you the very best teachers to be had for the salaries you are able to pay, to give such teachers the work they can do best and in which they will be happiest, and to create around them those conditions conducive to their doing their best for the schools. As much as I can I want to remove from them every care that might lower their efficiency and do everything possible to enable them to concentrate on the work of the school room. I want to give them every help and create every condition necessary to their doing their best for the children under their care.

"There are two things that I believe are necessary to the success of any school and that I am going to insist upon in your schools—work and discipline. Hard work is the greatest and really the only educator in the world, and it is going to be my purpose to create such conditions in the schools that the children will enjoy their work and enter into it with enthusiasm, for the child is being educated only when he enters into his work with zeal and puts the best there is in him into it. The home of the present-day school is that too many of the boys and girls have no real interest in their work. They are just 'sent to school.' The schools must offer them a program that vitally touches their lives and slant will arouse in them a real interest. "No teacher can succeed in the school room unless he knows how to organize his work with a view to good order. Discipline is one of the chief aims of education and the teacher who fails to control his pupils renders impossible the right kind of work. In order in the school room I do not mean silence, but I would have in the school the kind of order that prevails where every one is intent on his task, knows what he is about, and where there is no wasted energy. The teacher who cannot lend his room to that kind of order had better go into some other kind of business.

"It is my purpose to do my best to give you an educational system that will equip your children in the best possible way for the problems of every day life. I want you to leave off in many of the 'fills and furbelows' as we can and get down to plain simple business. Personally I am entering upon the work with a great deal of enthusiasm. I am glad I am here and can rejoice in the opportunity I have to help you lead your children to better things educationally. I like the attitude of the people of Lubbock towards their schools, their progressiveness, their fine spirit of co-operation in all the things among them that are worth while, and am sure I shall have the support of every citizen in my efforts to give you a school system in keeping with your splendid city and the spirit you always manifest."
M. H. Duncan, Superintendent.

Big Crops Assured In Midland County

MIDLAND.—Copious rains in Midland county and surrounding counties this week have insured a big cotton crop. Several farmers say they have a bale per acre, in sight and many farms will average a half bale, the county as a whole, however, will likely not average over a third of a bale. Late grain sorghums promise a big yield while fall gardens, truck patches and melon patches were never before known to be in better condition at this time of year.

BETTER POULTRY CAMPAIGN TO BE HELD IN COUNTY

County Agents, Aided by A. & M. Experts, Will Hold School in September

With interest in poultry raising at its highest pitch in the history of Lubbock county a county-wide culling and poultry school is being planned for September by county agent D. F. Eaton and Home Demonstration Agent Lela B. DuBoise. The campaign will be carried on by communities and experts from the extension department of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College will be here to aid in the work.

According to statements issued yesterday by D. F. Eaton, there is an alarming scarcity of good chickens in Lubbock county and the scarcity of them is noticeable even to strangers who drive across the county in automobiles. The culling campaign and the school will stimulate higher interest in poultry and will remedy this situation, the agents believe.

Teachers To Help.
In the campaign the agents and experts from College Station will cooperate with members of the agricultural faculty of the Texas Technological College, while Ray C. Mowery, director of vocational training in Lubbock high school, will also lend his assistance to the work. The time for a poultry campaign was never better and the agents believe that it is a success even before it is started.

Eaton Gives Plans.
In announcing his plans for the campaign County Agent Eaton issued the following explanation of his work: "I urge cooperation on the part of all farmers who are interested in more and higher class poultry in the county."

"Recognizing the fact that this country has not made the progress in poultry production that she normally should, we are planning a county-wide culling campaign during the month of September as the first step in this improvement program. "This will be followed with a week's movable poultry and dairy school in various communities of the county at which time the various phases of these questions will be discussed in detail by various members of the Extension staff and other persons interested.

"In this culling work we will be able to get rid of some of the poorest producers, the first step in any farm animal or fowl improvement. This will be followed by introducing pure or standard bred poultry or dairy cows in place of the culls.

"Then as the program proceeds the question of housing, feeding, insects, diseases and equipment in general and the disposition of the culls by culling and the production of and marketing infertile eggs will in turn be emphasized.

"We will be forced to work communities as it will be impossible for us to cull every flock of the two thousand in the county individually, but we give sufficient demonstrations in the county as will enable the community leaders interested in poultry growing to assist his neighbor in doing this work themselves.

"Remember our office days are Saturday and Monday so that if you are interested please call at office, write or telephone us about your needs in this respect. We are ready to begin work as soon as an itinerary can be arranged. Talk this over with your neighbor and if interest is sufficient to get a group who want this work we will arrange to work with you until

"In order to carry out the work more satisfactory and systematic we are asking that all poultry growers who are interested in putting this program and in any further development of the industry, meet with us here in the office next Saturday, August 29, at 2 p. m. for the purpose of organizing a poultry association.

"This association will have two immediate functions, one the putting over of the poultry improvement program and the second, the fostering of the poultry exhibit at the Fair this fall.

"It is our work in cooperation with all other organizations in the county which have as their purpose the development of the poultry industry."

FARMERS BUSY KILLING OFF FEW LEAF WORMS WHICH HAVE PUT IN APPEARANCES IN SEVERAL PLACES

A. & M. COLLEGE GIVES OUT FORMULA WHICH, IF MIXED RIGHTLY, WILL EXTERMINATE BUGS, SAYS COUNTY AGENT EATON

The appearance in Lubbock county of the leaf worm that is causing a great deal of loss to cotton farmers, has been met with by drastic efforts on the part of farmers to exterminate them.

County Agent David P. Eaton stated Tuesday that since the leaf worm has not had time to spread into all sections of the county, efforts to kill them out on first appearances will prove most economical and effective, and has already directed a number of farmers about how to battle against the pest.

The following directions for poisoning the leaf worm has just been issued by the extension service of the A. and M. College:

The insect can be controlled by dusting with arsenical, preferably while the plants are wet with dew. Calcium arsenate thus applied is effective and ordinarily is cheaper than any other poison. It should be used undiluted. If arsenate of lead is used, it should be mixed with one-fourth its weight of hydrated lime. Paris Green should be mixed with five or six parts of hydrated lime. The addition of the lime is partly for the purpose of dilution and cheap flour may be substituted in its place.

With Paris Green, however, at least an equal part of hydrated lime should be included.

The dry poison may be applied in any manner that will create a slight dust cloud. Not a great deal of the poison is required. It is not necessary to have a thick covering of it on the foliage. A dusting machine is advised for making the application, but the old pole and bag method will answer. One application of the poison, as soon as the damage from the worm becomes noticeable, will suffice for the control of that brood, though another application may be necessary to control the next brood to appear three or four weeks later.

Postal Workers Are To Hold Session In Crosbyton Monday

The annual meeting of the Eighteenth District Postal Workers' Association will convene in Crosbyton on September 7th, which is Labor Day, and postoffice employees of fifty-three counties will be represented, according to reports issued from the office of the Crosbyton Chamber of Commerce, by Secretary S. W. Cooper. As Lubbock is in the District the Crosbyton men are inviting those interested to attend the meeting from here.

It is estimated that at least one hundred postal employees will be on hand for the event and Crosbyton is to take care of the crowd and at the same time see that an enjoyable day is had by those present.

Trading Is Brisk In Colorado Territory

COLORADO.—$2,000,000 annually represents the volume of property trading in Colorado and Mitchell county, according to an estimate made by Joe Y. Frasier, assistant postmaster. Frasier states that revenue stamps are being purchased at the local postoffice at the rate of $250 per month. When it is seen that for every $100 represented in property transfers, the government exacts a tax of $1 the total property trading activities are averaging $250,000 a month. This would represent $3,000,000 a year.

QUEER STORY IS TOLD ON COTTON PLANTING START

Midland Rancher, Plus Salesman and Booze, Paves Way For Present Condition

MIDLAND.—Here's how come cotton to be raised in the Midland country, according to local legend.

In the fall of 1905 one of the biggest ranchers in the Midland country was riding home from Fort Worth on the train drunk. A Georgia cotton seed salesman was taking orders for seed and approached the happy cattleman. Nobody knows what the regular price of seed was but the prosperous Midland paid $5 for a peck. When the prosperous Hereford raiser got sober he was ashamed to have it known he had bought such a thing as cotton seed, so he promptly gave them to a neighbor.

The neighbor was B. W. Floyd, himself a rancher who had never raised a lock of cotton in his life, but to experiment he planted the seed on one acre. That acre produced one bale and 800 pounds over of seed cotton.

It was the first ever seen in that part of the county. Floyd paid $250 a hundred to get it picked, and the last was picked one year from the date it was planted. The last of the acre was gathered in April. The cowpunchers would usually quit disgusted after picking one day, and the rancher finally had to waylay a family traveling to California and inveigle them into gathering his cotton crop.

From that lowly beginning Midland is rapidly developing into a big cotton country. Three gins are ready for this year's big crop, two of them having been built this year. Many of the farmers here will average a half bale per acre, while some estimate they will gather a bale.

Mrs. V. T. Swanson spent last week end visiting relatives in El Paso.

EXCUSES VARIED FOR VIOLATIONS OF TRAFFIC LAW

Everybody Who Gets Red Tag Is Certain That There Must Be Some Mistake

Excuses of all kinds are offered members of the Lubbock police department when motorists, who have broken the various and sundry traffic regulations, are brought before the authorities, but "I don't do much good," according to Desk Sergeant Metcalf, who is generally the man who listens to the tales of woe.

The officers have a system of checking up on motor tickets, which are handed to offenders or tied on the steering wheels of the automobiles, and it is virtually impossible for the law violators to get by without reporting to the station after they are given one of the red tags. If they fail to report they are sent a card and when they do get to the office of the police department are dealt with more strictly than if they put in an appearance in the first place.

Everyone who is arrested has some excuse to offer. Some of them claim that their cars were left on the hour parking limit by friends or relatives; others claim that it couldn't have been their cars because they were out of town or because the machines were in the garage, but the most popular excuse is "ignorance of the law."

The officials have been very patient in traffic law violations and fines have been held to the minimum, but in a short time, when everyone gets used to the laws, the fines will become heavier and the officers will grow more strict on the enforcement of the various statutes.

114 FARMS SOLD BY R. C. HOPPING IN RECORD TIME

Pioneer Lamb Co. Man Hangs Up Impressive Record of Farm Sales

LITTLEFIELD.—One hundred and fourteen farms, averaging 160 acres each within five weeks time is a pretty good sales record, yet that is the number of sales actually closed by Judge R. C. Hopping's office at Littlefield, 15 miles northeast of Littlefield, this week, checked up on his map and contracts, verifying the Judge's statement of sales.

This is probably a record for land selling in this section of country, as it was only five weeks ago that the second sub-division of 50,000 acres of the well known Spade ranch was put on the market and offered to the home-hungry people coming this way.

It will be remembered that the first sub-division of this ranch, consisting of 63,000 acres, was closed out in about 90 days time, and this second body bids fair to rival the time selling of the first.

MORTON VOTES BONDS

An election has been held at Morton, in Cochran county, for the issuance of $50,000 bonds to build a high school structure at that place. At the same time a maintenance tax of $1.00 per $100 valuation was voted. Both measures carried 7-0.

Editorially Speaking

New Citizens

"There'll be a lot of these fellows from the drouth-stricken areas of East and Central Texas coming out here this fall. Why our population is sure gonna jump if for no other reason than getting them."

That's getting to be quite a popular phrase in Lubbock and over the Plains generally now-a-days and no doubt it is true.

But stop a minute and think it over. Will it be a good thing for the Plains to get this type of newcomer?

The men who will be scared out by one year's drouth are the men who are not heavily involved in land ownership. They are the ones who are unstable citizens, generally speaking, and men who in order to make a crop anywhere have to borrow money to buy the seed, borrow money to gather the crop—and then pay it all back if the crop is large enough—without enough money to start another the next year without borrowing some more.

Then some year the Plains section may have a bad crop yield and they'll leave here, like they will leave their homes in East and Central Texas this year.

Are they the kind of men to whom the Plains should look expectantly for an increased citizenship? Most assuredly not.

By taking this stand the Plains Journal does not mean that a man must be financially independent to come to the Plains to make his home. It does not mean that every man, whose hopes and pocketbook have been blasted by a bad crop year, is this type of man.

But generally speaking the Plains needs the type of farmer who can come out and make a crop on his own hook, or with very little help, and the type of man who will not be scared away should a bad year come.

Bookkeeping

Farmers, as a whole, do not keep books. Consequently they do not know just what or where their losses and gains are nor where to plug up the leaks or to increase the profits. That's a brick-bat frequently flung at agriculture. It's a missile that can be shot right back to town. More than half the businesses of this country do not have adequate accounting systems. They keep books, it is true, after a fashion, but so poorly that they do not know the leaks in various processes or steps of the business and consequently do not know how to stop those losses or turn them into profits.

When you buy stock in a company you become a part owner of the company. The company takes your money and operates property of which you are a part owner. If it hasn't an adequate accounting system it is very probably wasting your money and your property. Isn't it urgent common sense to get the history of the company in which you buy stock to see if your money and property will be wasted?

Labor Day

Next Monday will be Labor Day. To many people Labor Day merely means another holiday. To others, who think more deeply, it is an institution of America—the upholder of a tradition which first had its real understanding in this country.

Labor Day is the day when everyone pauses to pay homage to the man who works with his hands, as well as with his brain. It is the day when all America honors the man who labors and in doing so upholds that standard of Democracy for which the world has been grasping ever since the dawning of civilization.

Like the Fourth of July, Labor Day is not just another day when the banks close and everybody has a good time. Labor Day stands for something.

Price Fixing

There is one place in the country where government price fixing is practiced, and it's a big success. At least, from the viewpoint of the thousands who visit Yellowstone National Park every year.

The Government fixes the price of everything sold in the park and with the exception of gasoline, which must be transported many miles over narrow mountain roads, the prices are no higher than in other parts of the country.

It would be a grand place for profiteers were it not for the watchful eye of the Government. Price fixing there makes it possible for thousands to see the park who otherwise couldn't afford it.

Automobiles

The rapid progress America makes is vividly illustrated by the automobile industry.

Twenty years ago everyone thought the "horseless carriage" was a joke. Now the motor industry in one form or another pays taxes totaling the huge sum of $500,000,000 a year. It's certainly no longer an infant industry.

The Great American Home

Friends of Long Ago
What has become of Jim and Bill and Harry, the boys of long ago, with whom you went to school and who shared the many joys and few sorrows of your youth? And where is Mary, where are Mamie, Alice, Ruth and Dorothy, the more or less fair members of the "old gang"? They're scattered to the four winds. Mamie and Bill are married to each other. Have you seen their kids?

Mary, Alice and Dorothy are married too, but they went out of the old gang when they chose a husband, as Henry did when he took a wife. Mary and her husband live in Seattle, while Henry and his family are residing in Florida, where Henry is reputed to have "cleaned up" in real estate. Jim's the bachelor of the bunch and after going to Honolulu, Shanghai and everywhere else romantic on the globe, has settled down in California and is practicing law. And the rest of them you've rather lost track of. Dorothy and her husband are supposed to have been in Minnesota but just where you're not sure, and Ruth, who never married, is still teaching school, you suppose, somewhere.

You didn't realize when you finished high school together, and the first parting of the ways came, that you would soon drift far, far apart, leaving the happiness of comradeship mere dreams to be indulged in when the fire glows low in the grate. But you did—and all of you have made other friends, nearer if not dearer—and now you rarely ever think of the old home town crowd.

Yet, what would you give to turn back the shades of time and once again be seventeen? Your all, probably, at times, when romance crowds business into the back ground and the mellowness of friendship grips your soul.

But that can never be. The years which separate you from childhood can never be bridged except through memory. And the friends of long ago—where are they?

They're gone and no matter how hard you may wish it they'll never be gathered together again for, like the chaff before the wind, they have scattered.

Farming

Secretary Jardine is telling the farmer that "it is not the function of the government, nor is it possible, to bring prosperity by legislation to the farmer or the banker." The message Mr. Jardine has for the farmer is that, aside from the natural conditions over which there is no human control, the prosperity of farmers depends largely upon themselves.

Most agriculturists now realize the fact. The politicians who are after the farmer vote may not, or may pretend that they do not, but the farmer does. He was quick to sense the economic fallacy of the suggestion that the government, among other things, corner the wheat crop and hold it for a high price for his benefit. That is a two-edged sword. The farmer is not unfair. He was hard-pressed and willing to listen to most any proposal of relief. It is evident now that the cure for economic ills is not to be taken from the legislative bottle.

Year by year the business of farming is being done more efficiently, both as concerns production and marketing, cooperatively, with a resultant improvement in farm prosperity. The department of agriculture has computed the farm income for 1924 at $12,000,000,000, an increase of $848,000,000 over the preceding year. The farmer can handle his own affairs if the politicians will let him alone.

Two Homes

Out in the barren sagebrush country of the West sits a tiny home. There is no other house in sight. In fact, there isn't another house within a radius of 30 miles. In the two small rooms of the shack with its "lean-to" kitchen lives a family of six.

"What a terrible place to live!" says the auto tourist as he passes by.

But is it any worse or as bad as the crowded tenement sections of Eastern cities, where large families are crowded into one or two rooms?

The West at least has fresh air, and plenty of it.

The Panhandle's Candidate

Hon. Lee Satterwhite, of Panhandle, up in Carson county, who distinguished himself as speaker of the house of representatives in the last session of the Texas legislature, may run for Governor.

Although Mr. Satterwhite comes from a thinly settled portion of Texas his political strength cannot be estimated from this standpoint, as his friends are legion over Texas—and which is not to be sneezed at—are some of the most influential men in Texas.

If Mr. Satterwhite runs, and he hasn't yet decided definitely, he will be the Panhandle's candidate. While the fact that he is a newspaper publisher (he owns the Panhandle Herald) may be held against him, it will behoove the citizenry of the South Plains to look into Mr. Satterwhite's record in the house of representatives, and see if he cannot be accorded the support from his native part of the state.

With Our Contemporaries

POSTOFFICES—
Reports the Fort Worth Star-Telegram:

"Fort Worth's prospects for obtaining the relief in the way of increased postal facilities, overdue 20 years, appear to brighten with the announced intention of President Coolidge to insist upon a 10-year public building program in the next session of Congress."

All we can say is that it's just too bad the same thing cannot be said of Lubbock's chances for better postal facilities. Of course, we haven't been trying to get a postoffice for twenty years, but the way the situation looks at the present time we will probably have to wait about that long before getting one.

SLATON—

When the editor of the McLean News commented on the two Chambers of Commerce at Slaton, the editor of the Slaton Times, as usual, explained the situation. In regard to Slaton's most unusual situation, both scribes say:

"Slaton now has two Chambers of Commerce. We are at a loss to understand how two organizations of this character can function better than one. It will certainly take some close co-operation to accomplish anything for their town. We would hate to have to contribute to two organizations to duplicate each other's work in McLean."—McLean News.

"You see Slaton is an exceptional town, and has exceptional people."

"New York and Paris have only one Chamber of Commerce. Slaton has one Chamber of Commerce in course of re-organization and a rousing Commercial Club functioning properly. The two organizations, it's true will prove waste of energy, but Slaton that keeps the people separated and one side won't work with the other, hence they have each an organization of their own. It's better for us to have two organizations than for a part of the people to be idle all the time. Well, funny things happen, and it can no longer be said that there is nothing new under the sun. There are new issues in Slaton all the time."—Slaton Times.

MURDERS—

"Most people just remark, 'Did you hear about the shooting at Blanksburg today? Pretty bad, just shot a fellow down who was unarmed and with no apparent cause.' And then someone remarks, 'Well, you know it's easier to get away with murder in Texas than it is with stealing a cow.'"—San Angelo Standard.

It shouldn't be, but it is. And the sooner direct and relentless punishment is meted out to slayers, the sooner the murder crop will shrink.

Best Editorial of the Week

We Must Admit It

Texas people are confronted with a situation that demands immediate action. There are about 30 counties, containing three-quarters of a million people, where the drought has borne heavily. Those counties are thickly populated and many thousands of renters are in a desperate condition.

There are entire counties where the fields are as bare of vegetation as the paved public square in our city. The crops planted in the dry dust of the spring have not germinated. The forest trees are leafless, and many of them dead. For a year there has been no rain of sufficient amount to even start the grass to grow. It is one barren waste.

These people must have help. The editor of this paper was told yesterday by a perfectly trustworthy man that in the city where he lived that people searched the slop cans for small pieces of bread or meat, that the gaunt forms of children could be seen on every hand among the poor, that the unfortunate renters had forsaken the farms and were crowding the cities. There is no work for them, they live in tents or in the open, they have nothing between them and starvation—except, thank God, the generous people of Texas.

Soon a movement must be made to meet this condition. In this land of plenty this situation must not exist. Texas is too big, too rich, too generous to allow hungry women and children within her borders.

Remember, this is not a famine in India or China. It's within a hundred and fifty miles of where you and I live in plenty. It is time some public notice of the disaster that has overtaken thousands of our own people was taken. Every visitor who returned from the famine stricken section tells the same story.

This must not continue.—Marshall News.

Dr. W. T. Read, who will be in charge of the chemistry department of the Texas Technological college, has arrived in the city and with Mrs. Read will make his home here. Doctor Read has just finished some additional study work in Yale university, and enroute to Lubbock stopped off at Norman, Oklahoma, at the University of Oklahoma, and visited with his old friend, Dr. W. Long Gain Is Made On Plainview Farm

Two thousand dollars off four acres of land in one season, $500.00 an acre, sounds like fiction, but the trick was actually turned on the Texas Land and Development company's demonstration farm east of Plainview. The production of this four-acre peach orchard this year will be approximately 1,500 bushels according to Capt. Winfield Holbrook, general manager of the Texas Land and Development company. The price has been around $2.50 per bushel.

First Potash Test Now On At Midland

What is believed to be the first exclusive test for potash to be made in West Texas has been spudded in on the O. P. Jones ranch in the southern part of Midland county. The well is being drilled by the Standard Potash company of Dallas. The hole is being put down with a diamond point drill. A geologist of the University of Texas is maintaining a field laboratory at the well to analyze the cuttings when any potash salts are penetrated by the drill. A complete test for potash will be made. M. Agrees of Dallas is actively managing the company.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Buckner and son returned to their home here the first of the week after a vacation spent in New Mexico. Mr. Buckner is employed at the First National Bank.

INJUNCTION FILED AGAINST SLATON OFFICIALS IS DISMISSED BY PROCESS OF LAW

SLATON.—The injunction suit filed by S. S. Torrest against Mayor S. F. King and Commissioners J. I. Bradley and John T. Lokey, seeking to restrain the officers from closing certain pieces of streets and alleys in blocks of school property occupied by the West Ward school, in pursuance of an election held on April 7th last, at which time the people voted by more than a two to one majority to effect the closing, was dismissed in district court at Lubbock recently, when the case was called for trial.

It was disclosed in the answer filed by the Slaton officers that the ordinance closing the streets and alleys had already been passed more than a month before the suit was filed, and that no alley or part of a street abutting on property privately owned had been closed, and the respondents averred in their answer that they had no intention of closing any such. The dismissal of the suit therefore leaves the ordinance as originally passed by the city authorities unchanged and unimpaired in any particular.

It was further disclosed by ordinance and answer of the city officers that the election had been called and the streets and alleys closed on the express request of the trustees of the Slaton Independent School District in order to throw the school playgrounds together and to reduce to a minimum the danger to little children from an ever increasing growth of traffic through the school grounds, with the rapid growth Slaton is making and the constant need for additional school buildings and grounds, it is certain that further instances will arise in the future when it will be necessary for the schools to expand and the closing of portions of streets and alleys become necessary. The city government and school authorities feel that the outcome of the present litigation leaves the way clear for the taking of such action in the future, as necessarily arises, as will be calculated to conserve the interests of the public schools and promote the welfare of the public generally.—Slatonite.

LATE FEED WILL BE A SALVATION SAYS A. K. SHORT

Former A. & M. Man Says the Drouth Stricken Areas Will Save Half of Feed Bill

That small grain crops planted in the drought stricken areas of Texas between now and early December will save at least half of the livestock feed bill on the average farm is the statement of A. K. Short, formerly of A. and M. College. Mr. Short also points out that in addition to the feeding value of small grain crops, they add materially to the productive capacity of the soil.

"Oats and barley may be grown extensively in the drought areas as emergency feed crops," states Mr. Short. "Wheat is commonly grown also. It is the best winter crop for the poorer types of soil, including both clay and deep sand."

From San Antonio south, Mr. Short says that Sudan grass, sorghum and millet are well adapted for providing winter feed, when cut before killing frosts. These crops should be planted before September 1st, but may be sown a little later in the extreme southern section of the state.

Mr. Short recommends that about twice the amount of small grain should be sown in planting for winter grazing or cover crops as is planted for grain. "Sow the small grains broadcast or with a drill," he says. "If broadcast, they may be covered with light sweeps or harrow, or even disced under. For wheat or rye, sow from two to two and a half bushels per acre. For oats or barley, three or four bushels should be sown."

In regard to sowing Sudan grass, sorghum or millet, Mr. Short recommends that they be sown broadcast. He states that Sudan grass may be sown at the rate of 20 to 25 pounds per acre; sorghum, one-half to one and a half bushels; millet, 30 to 40 pounds. Millet is the fastest maturing of the feed crops suitable for southern Texas, 45 to 50 days being the average time required to make it ready for feed.

T. C. Anderson and Ray Kelley, of the Fulton Brick and Tile office spent last week end in Abilene as the guests of friends and relatives.

Row Crops Are Good In Both Castro and Swisher Localities

Row crops in Swisher and Castro counties are unusually good. In Castro county especially there will be much maize, sorghum and other feed harvested. There is a good acreage of red top cane and the crops are fine. Most of the sorghum grain will make with no other rain.

Cotton is generally in good condition, although there are some large fields in which weeds and grass have taken the crop to such an extent as to cut down the yield. However, there is a very small acreage that will be abandoned on this account.

A large acreage is ready for wheat in Castro county, many farms having tracts of summer tilled land ready for drilling. One Castro county farmer tells us that he plans to be drilling wheat on the last day of August.

O. D. Hargis has returned to Lubbock after a business trip to Southern Mexico and Guatemala.

SIR DUDLEY GLENISTER, suspected of murder when a crowd drops a skeleton finger on his lands, is further involved when a searching party finds the body of Sir Dudley's missing cousin, and...

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

As that the Harley Street specialist, sir? "Yes, do you know him?" "Not in the sense of his being known to the police. I consulted him once as a patient."

Mr. Colne laughed. "You with nerves, Wragge?" he said. "You forget, sir, an occasion on which they were somewhat highly tried," he replied with a certain dignity.

Mr. Colne regarded the speaker from under half-closed lids. "Oh, that," he said, as if with an effort recalling some bygone incident. "I was not aware that you were so hard hit as that, Wragge, but as you have referred to that little lapse I will take advantage of the opening to impress upon you that this Glenister case must be conducted along the line indicated."

"I am not likely to do anything detrimental to my career in the force, Mr. Colne. I gathered from the newspaper reports that Mr. George Glenister left England on bad terms with his father. It might help if you could throw any light on the cause of their quarrel. A woman at the bottom of it, possibly?"

Mr. Colne raised his eyebrows. "Really, Wragge, you jump too readily to conclusions," he replied. "Drop that line like a live coal. The cherries in femme whores doesn't hold here. Old Sir Philip Glenister and his young hopeful came to loggerheads over a much more prosaic matter—pounds, shillings and pence."

The inspector rose from the chair. "Thank you, Mr. Colne," he said. "You have saved me a lot of spade-work and I will get busy at once. I must go back to town this afternoon and start on Sir Dudley's record at his former City office, but first I can put in a useful hour or two at Beechwood. I should like to see the headkeeper who conducted the search party, and if I could run up against Doctor Willoughby Melville I might play on his sympathy for an ex-patient."

CHAPTER VII The Red-Nosed Blackmailer

THE same train which brought Inspector Wragge to Colbrook Towers deposited at the wayside station another passenger for whom no grand motor-car was waiting. Not a prepossessing person by any means was the middle-aged, freshly dressed individual bearing down on Sir Dudley Glenister's country seat.

Signs of dissipation on his bloated face culminated in one big red blob at the end of a prodigious nose. His gait as he trod the pebbly road in thin shoes bespoke him a town dweller, more used to pavements. He came at length to the scrolly iron gates giving access to Beechwood Grange. The gates were shut and he halted in his tracks. Just inside was the lodge-keeper's cottage, embowered in the shade of giant elms. In the distance the old mansion was partly visible.

"Not exactly! Chapel Court and Throckmorton Street. A trifle gloomy to my way of thinking," murmured Mr. Simon Trickey as he pushed open the small gate intended for pedestrians and proceeded up the drive.

AT THE FIRST SIGN OF TREACHERY I WILL KILL YOU

business connection of the firm had been sold to a new combination, with whom Mr. Trickey could have remained had he so desired. He elected, however, to retire from city life and live on his savings—a proposition which struck his intimates as strange.

The cronies of the wine bars and lunch counters had been surprised to find him, two years after his severance from ostensible work, still going strong. Once in a moment of bibulous confidence, he had impudently announced the startling fact that he was married to a film actress of amazing fame and beauty.

Mr. Simon Trickey meandered up the drive. He suddenly came face to face with two gentlemen who had sauntered out of a side-walk—Sir Dudley Glenister and Doctor Willoughby Melville. The baronet stopped short, glaring at the apparition with a rage that for a moment threatened to be ungovernable. Then he broke into a cackle of harsh laughter.

"Hullo, Simon," he exclaimed. "Not drunk yourself to death yet, then? I thought we had agreed that all communications between us should be by letter. The ex-clerk tried to induce a pained expression. "There are some things best not put on paper," he said with a side-glance at Doctor Melville. "All the same I expect you would have found at healthier to embody the object of your visit in a letter," rejoined Sir Dudley savagely. "Melville, you will excuse me, please, while I deal with this fellow. He won't take more than a few minutes."

Sir Dudley led his obviously unwelcome visitor into the dining room through an open French window. With studied brutality the baronet went to the sideboard, mixed himself a strong whisky and soda and drank it off.

"New, Simon, reel it out," he said. Mr. Trickey's parched tongue clove to the roof of his mouth at sight of that gurgling draught, but there were bigger things in view and he recovered his wits. A gleam in his bloodshot eyes even suggested that he saw the funny side of Mr. Simon Trickey being introduced to a whisky decanter merely as a bowing acquaintance.

"I've been reading the papers, Mr. Glenister—I beg pardon, Sir Dudley," he began. "There seemed to be—" "A damned good chance for black-mailing me, Sir Dudley cut him short. Mr. Trickey ignored the interruption. "There seemed to be," he persisted. "There was a chance that you might need my help."

"What for?" demanded Glenister roughly. The visitor glanced significantly at the closed door and the open French windows through which they had entered. "Unless you are prepared to talk on your fingers, sir, I should prefer to leave that to your imagination," he said. "Keyholes and garden paths harbor liars sometimes."

"There is nothing more that you can do to help me and you have been well paid for what you have done already," the baronet responded angrily. "No evidence that you could give would amount to a row of pins so far as easing the situation goes. Nobody ought to know that letter than you."

Mr. Trickey was thoughtful. "You were always one to catch on quickly," he said in a tone of real regret. "It must be the dull country life that's taken the edge off your understanding. I wasn't referring to evidence I could give, but to what I could withhold."

"You infernal scoundrel, now I've got you out in the open," retorted Sir Dudley. "I knew you were after blackmail. Just listen to me, Simon. Not one halfpenny more than the settled annuity will you ever get from me, and at the first sign of treachery I will kill you for the faithless dog you are."

The ex-clerk began to breathe heavily. "I don't doubt you'd try," he sneered. "Pretty good at killing people, ain't we? All the same—"

Mr. Trickey's speech was curtailed by the entry of the old butler. "I beg pardon, Sir Dudley," he announced. "The Rev. Mr. Branson has called to see you."

Inspector Wragge, still clerically camouflaged, stepped quickly into the room in Hinkley's wake, pretending all possibility of a refusal to receive him. At the same moment Inspector Willoughby Melville, entered by the French window, his impulsive countenance quite unmoved at finding his host doubly engaged. Slowly and very thoroughly, from the crown of his scantily covered head, all over the lead check suit and right down to the heels of Mr. Trickey's inadequate boots, the doctor's remorseless monocle searched with impudence rapidly yielding to craven fear, and finally bolted through the open window. Melville lifted his eyebrows towards the clerically-attired visitor. "I really beg your pardon, sir," said the baronet. "What can I have the pleasure of doing for you?"

784 MORE MILES OF HARDSURFACE ROADS IN TEXAS NOW THAN THERE WERE IN MONTH OF AUGUST, 1924

Texas farmers and tourists now enjoy 784 miles more of the Federal highways than they did a year ago. This mileage, completed in the year ending June 30, cost a total of $11,778,972, of which the federal government furnished $4,867,315.

This additional mileage, while a convenience to the tourist in the state, is a godsend to the farmer, according to the Foundation. It is estimated that each and every farmer in this section of the country averages 23 tons of farm products hauled to market and 5 tons of feed, fuel, fertilizer, machinery, supplies, etc., from town.

When good roads make trucks feasible this is not very burdensome, but it represents a good many hours' labor where horses and poor roads must be used. And so while the tourist finds the inter-city roads mighty comfortable, to the farmer a good serviceable road from his farm to the nearest market is a downright necessity.

The expansion of hard roads systems both in this and other states in recent years has given the farmer an added inducement for going into business for himself. That he has not been slow to take advantage of the opportunity is testified in the increasing number of roadside markets on the more frequented highways.

Figures show that each of these markets takes in fifteen to thirty dollars up to several hundred dollars a day, varying with the locality, the preponderance of buyers being tourists driving through the vicinity. Some of these are nothing more than stands of simple board construction while the more pretentious are housed in buildings which may be locked after the day's or the season's business.
