

Angry Coahoma residents question trash-hauling procedures

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — They came, they complained, but things stayed the same.

More than 35 Coahoma residents angrily questioned the city council — and each other — about trash-hauling last night during a marathon four-hour meeting.

The Coahoma city council, following months of discussion, began the city's first-ever trash-hauling service with a private contractor in July for a $7.50 monthly fee.

One man stalked out of last night's meeting saying he would never pay the fee. Another man nearly came to blows with the contractor over trash-hauling methods. A woman accused the contractor of illegally obtaining financial statements from townspeople.

Yet another man, seemingly oblivious to the others, continually asked the council to "clean up my place" which he said had been littered by players at the city baseball park.

After an hour of often hostile debate, the majority of the crowd left after councilmen agreed to study the issue further. The council later unanimously decided to approve the service through a city ordinance, saying the city could not back down.

Most complaints were voiced over the $7.50 cost of hauling trash in a town where residents had previously carried their own trash to a local landfill, which is now filled up.

"This city ain't big enough for $7.50 a month," Boyd Baker said. "I counted my cans last month and it cost me 20 cents apiece to have them hauled."

Baker said Gerald King of Coahoma, the man contracted to haul trash, was not picking up everything. King and Baker hotly argued with each other before councilmen asked for order. King telling Baker to be quiet and Baker replying he would have to make him.

Charles Seals said everyone he had talked to about the trash-hauling was "chapped about it." Seals said people felt the policy was forced on residents by an outsider.

"Can you force us to pay it?" Seals asked the council. "I would rather pay the city than an individual. I can haul it cheaper than $7.50."

Councilman Billy Sullivan said the city would not use the threat of cutting off water to force compliance.

Santo Arguello, who said he represented about 20 persons, asked if he could circulate a petition to put the issue to a vote by the people.

"I just can't afford it," Arguello said. "You're getting into people's pockets. Raise taxes, have a vote."

Arguello, who argued extensively with the council and King, later left the meeting after saying he would never pay the trash-hauling fee.

L.H. Aberegg also asked the council to have an election on the trash-hauling issue.

"I believe the best thing is ... to let the people vote on it," Aberegg said. "Why don't you vote on it and stop all this hollering?"

Making the hauling optional would not create enough work to keep contractor Gerald King in business, councilmen said.

Councilman Ronnie Dodson said the people elected the council to run the city and decide on issues like the trash-hauling policy.

"We all knew people would raise cane ... but we're not up here to rip anybody off," Dodson said.

Jim Rackley of the council asked questioners what difference it made paying an individual $7.50 or paying more in taxes for the city to haul trash. Spending $50,000 to lease more land for a landfill and purchasing a trash truck was considered too expensive, he said.

"We took the best bid for the city," New added.

Phone employees spend third day off job as strike continues

About 34 Big Spring workers are off their jobs for the third day in a row as they continue to participate in a nationwide strike by the Communications Workers of America against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and other former subsidiaries of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The strike, called at midnight Saturday, has affected about 1,000 workers in the Midland-Odessa area and more than 40,000 Bell workers in Texas.

The strike involves issues of wage increases, cost of living adjustments and job security, according to wire reports.

Local union president Larry Russell said today that "all inside and outside jobs" have been affected, including operators, cable splicers, cable repairmen, installers and equipment repairmen.

He said 10 supervisors are attempting to fill in for the workers. He also said two local non-union members were supporting the strike.

Russell said local union members are picketing from "about 7 a.m. to 6 p.m." and have not have any problems with continuing the strike.

This morning about 10 workers carried signs saying "CWA on strike against the Bell System."

"We're prepared to stick it out to the end, and I know of several (union members) that will," Russell said.

City opens bids for street work, finds bids lower than estimates

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

City officials Monday opened bids for major street work and found they could be paying some $300,000 below estimated costs.

Three companies bid on street work in Phase 2 of the city's capital improvements project, according to Public Works Director Tom Decell. Decell termed the bids "outstanding."

The work includes widening of Birdwell Lane, street repairs following water line work, and the reconstruction of Goliad Street and two other intersections.

Engineering consultants had estimated the total cost of the work at $1,369,241. The lowest bid — offered by Price Construction Co. of Big Spring — was for $1,031,863.

If the Price bid is accepted by city councilmen, it will mean a savings of $337,377, Decell said.

The council has called a special meeting for 1 p.m. next Tuesday to consider the bids.

The city's consulting engineers — Parkhill, Smith and Cooper of Lubbock — are examining the bids. If

Agent Orange convoy hits snag, plots future

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

A convoy of Vietnam veterans that left Houston Saturday on a 16-state tour to garner public support and government aid for veterans suffering from the effects of Agent Orange disbanded near Midland Sunday.

However, according to organizer Albert Reynolds of the Brotherhood of Vietnam Veterans, the convoy will reorganize this week and continue the campaign to New Mexico.

Reynolds, who was in Big Spring yesterday for a press conference, said the convoy was organized to gain grassroots support for House Bill 1961, a piece of legislation designed to provide compensation for veterans affected by the defoliant Agent Orange.

Reynolds said the convoy is scheduled to arrive Sept. 16 in Washington, D.C., for a rally and intensive lobbying efforts to make congressmen aware of the Agent Orange issue.

Agent Orange was sprayed by the military from 1962 to 1971 to destroy possible hiding places of enemy forces during the Vietnam War.

Vietnam veterans have blamed the defoliant for a variety of disorders, from cancer to birth defects in their children.

The veterans began the convoy in Texas because of Big Spring Rep. Larry Don Shaw's bills which have established laws providing legal aid and treatment for veterans who may be suffering from effects of the defoliant.

Reynolds said the convoy began well enough,

'We're trying to get help for these men. There is no reason why the government shouldn't recognize their problems and act on them.'

but most veterans could not afford to miss work or finance the trip so they turned back home after reaching Austin Saturday. Reynolds drove the lone car that reached Midland Sunday night.

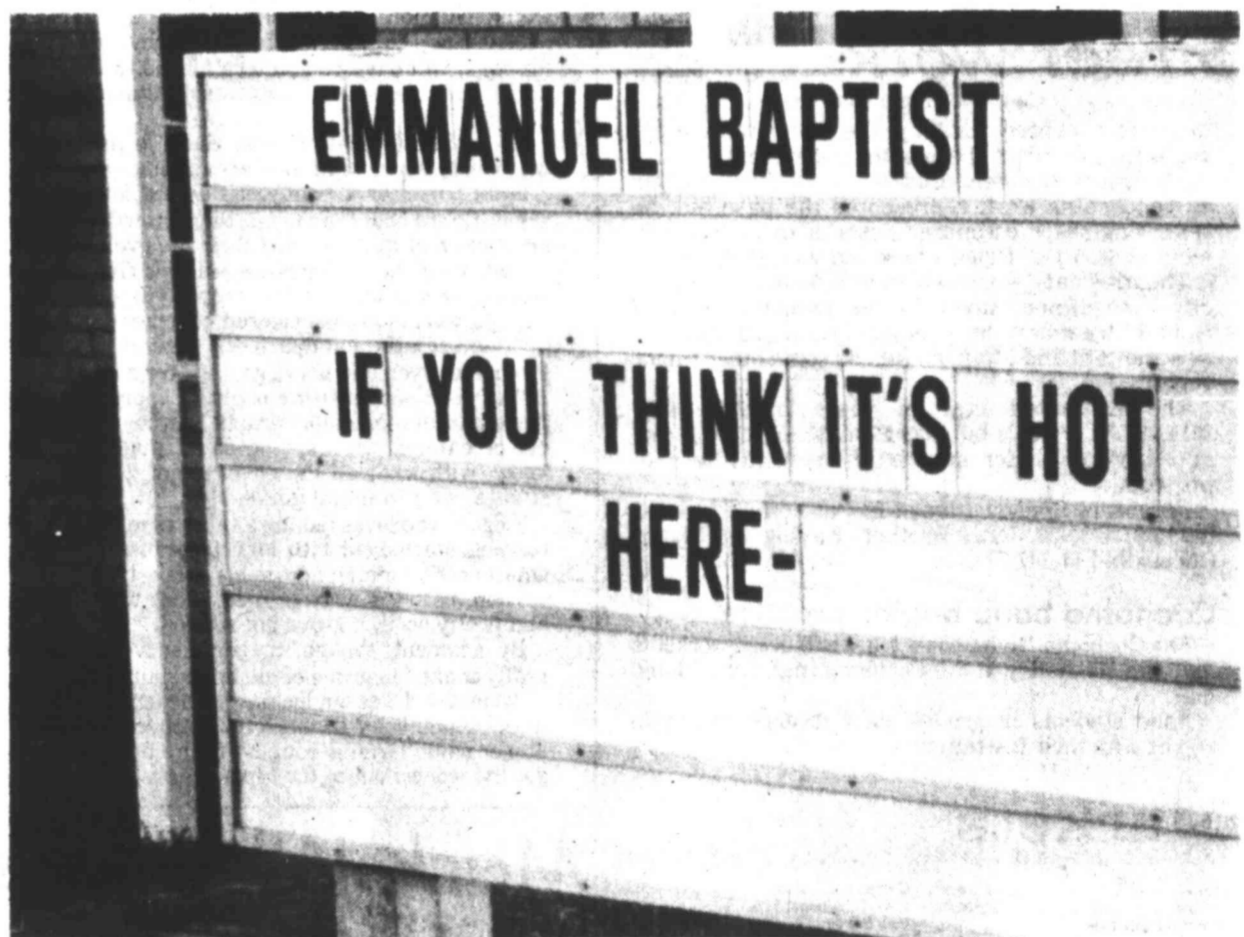

"I'm going to spend this week in detailed planning," Reynolds said. "It was poor organization that ended the convoy, but we will regroup and continue. Anyone who wants to come along is welcome."

Reynolds said he wants to reach Washington in September for a lobbying effort before Congress votes on House Bill 1961 in the fall.

The bill provides for limited compensation for Agent Orange-related cancer, liver disorder and skin problems.

Reynolds said veterans have received resistance from the Veterans Administration and President Reagan on passage of the bill. He said veterans were puzzled by the VA and

Police Beat

Man walks off with ring

Big Spring police say a man walked into Zales Jewelry at 100 E. 3rd yesterday, asked to see some rings, then ran off with a $950 man's ring. The theft occurred at 1:15 p.m., according to a clerk.

Police say they arrested Elizabeth Mindling, 26, of 1208 Ridgeroad yesterday for suspicion of driving while license suspended and expired license plates. Ms. Mindling posted $1,000 bond after arraignment before Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin to be released.

The Department of Public Safety arrested Pablo Chavez, 21, of Knott last night for suspicion of driving while intoxicated, according to police records.

James C. Smith of 1506 Sunset reported two burglaries of pistols on two different occasions. Smith said a $175 collector's pistol was taken sometimes in July, and a $150 automatic pistol was stolen this weekend.

Someone broke out a window at the Comanche Trail Park clubhouse with a piece of lumber sometime Sunday night. Damage was estimated at $150 to the window, but no entry was made because the windows are barred.

Sheriff's Log

Pecos man arrested

Howard County sheriff's deputies say they arrested George Wren, 39, of 1114 Mt. Vernon in connection with a Pecos County warrant for theft over $200 and under $10,000. Wren posted $10,000 bond to be released, records show.

Daniel Culverson, 34, of Bainbridge, Ga., is in county jail under $15,000 bond for suspicion of aggravated robbery after he was transferred from police custody. Culverson was arraigned before Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt.

Ernest Moreno, 48, of Coahoma posted $10,000 bond to be released from county jail where he has been since Friday. Moreno is charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, according to sheriff's office records. Bond was set by Heflin.

Reba I. Grisham, 66, of 604 Holbert posted $1,000 bond to be released after she was arrested for suspicion of revocation of probation on a DWI conviction. Bond was set by County Judge Milton Kirby.

Agent Orange

Reagan's inaction on the topic of Agent Orange. However, the VA maintains that the information on the effects of Agent Orange is still incomplete and more research is needed to ascertain whether the defoliant has caused death or long-term health defects in Vietnam veterans.

The VA says it offers a medical examination to veterans concerned about exposure to Agent Orange and treats veterans for conditions that may be Agent Orange-related.

"We're trying to get help for these men," Reynolds said. "There is no reason why the government shouldn't recognize their problems and act on them."

Reynolds said he will continue the convoy even if he is the sole member. "I've got to get someone to acknowledge the veteran's problem."

Street work

they are accepted Tuesday, the street work could begin by the end of the month, Decell said.

The Birdwell widening and the road repair behind current water work represented the base bid, he said. Engineers estimated costs of these two projects at $855,112. Price's base bid was $670,525.

The alternate work, which will be made final by city councilmen, involved the reconstruction of Goliad Street and the intersections of 11th and Settles and 15th and Main, as well as some other minor repairs.

The estimated cost of these projects was $514,128.75. Price's bid was $361,338. Price was the apparent low bidder on both the base and alternate projects.

Borsberry Construction of El Paso offered a total bid of $1,173,678. Jones Brothers Paving and Dirt of Odessa bid $1,147,744.

Coahoma band begins practice

The Coahoma High School band will begin workouts at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Coahoma High School band hall.

WORM STUDY — Bud Steger shows off three catalpa worms taken from a grove of trees in Pittsburg, Texas. What began as a hobby has turned into a semi-scientific study of the worms, their growth patterns, production and their life cycles. "In the 20 years they've been out there, I suppose we've had more than 100,000 worms," Steger said.

East Texan student of worms

PITTSBURG (AP) — East Texans are a hodge-podge of experts on topics ranging from possumology to waterwitching. Bud Steger, for instance, is a student of worms.

But Steger's crawlers aren't the plain-vanilla brand. His are plucked from trees.

"I guess a conservative estimate might be that we have almost 5,000 catalpa trees out there," said Steger, resident Pittsburg catalpa expert.

"In the 20 years they've been out there, I suppose we've had more than 100,000 worms," he said. Steger, a jocular man with a little boyish gleam in his eyes, will have you believe he knows very little about the green and black worms inhabiting his grove.

And that's typical of most East Texas experts, who really know what they are talking about. What began as a hobby has turned into a semi-scientific study of the worms, their growth patterns, production of the trees and their life cycles.

And, any fisherman who knows the difference between a bucketmouth and a crappie will tell you that catalpa worms are considered gourmet fish food. "I've seen the catalpa moth several times, but I've never seen one lay eggs," Steger said.

"A friend once said we ought to apply for one of those half-million dollar grants to study the life cycle of catalpa worms," he said, laughing. "You know, with what all the government gives out for studies, we just might get one."

Steger, who loves fishing almost as much as quail hunting, started out with a few trees planted along a small creek running across his property. Then, as trees were pruned, more were planted and pretty soon, a grove got started.

By accident, though, Steger discovered how to really make his grove come up to snuff. "One day, I was out looking at the top of one of the trees which was several feet above my head," Steger said. "Well, I couldn't figure out whether to get the worms out of the top or just lose them."

"So, I grabbed hold of the tree and bent it over and the tree, as I bent it, twisted," he said. "I just laid it over against the limb of another tree and left it there."

"Well, sir, about a week or so later, I looked out there and saw a whole bunch of new sprouts had sprung out of the bent-over limb," he said. "I started doing that to all the trees and that's how they got so thick. It kind of looks like a vineyard in there."

Catalpa moths lay eggs on the underside of catalpa tree leaves, the eggs hatch into worms, which gorge and grow on the leaves and later fall off and burrow into the ground, emerge a short time later as moths and repeat the process.

"I've spent hours down there watching the worms, and nature has a way of protecting them and helping them along," he said. "We might have thousands of worms, but in all these years, I've only seen maybe a half-dozen moths."

"I've got a sneakin' feeling that nature determines ahead of time which of the worms will become moths and I've noticed that every now and then some of the worms are colored differently," he said. "I've always wondered whether that had anything to do with it."

Steger isn't real keen about selling his worms, mainly because of the weird hours most fishermen keep.

Like a lot of the vegetables growing his his almost three-acre garden, the worms are just a pastime for Steger and he gives most of them away. Lots are frozen, though, for those times when catalpas aren't plentiful.

There's a selfish, but cagey, motive behind Steger's catalpa ranching enterprise, however.

"The way I figure it, since catalpa worms are real popular to fish with, then when I get really old — I'm only 65 now — and folks come around to get worms, then I can get them to take me fishing," Steger said, grinning.

Mark White discusses drought

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block could give West Texas farmers and ranchers drought relief with just "a nod of his head."

White commented shortly after he asked Block to reconsider his denial of federal drought relief for West Texas counties.

"Anybody who has witnessed the devastation in that area should recognize very quickly that this is a matter of grave concern, not only to those people there but to our nation," White said.

"Secretary Block could have by the nod of his head given some large measure of relief to those farmers and ranchers who are impacted so heavily by this drought," he said.

White told Block in a letter that the drought-stricken area — "which is not a great deal smaller than your home state of Illinois" — would normally have received 6.26 inches of rain in the last six months. However, Van Horn has had less than an inch, Fort Stockton only 1.26 inches, Pecos, 1.48 inches and Presidio only 1.3 inches.

White later told reporters that Block's farm in northwest Illinois has had more than 16 inches of rain this year, including two inches in June and another two inches in July.

"His farm has had more rain each month in the summer than our drought area has had all year," White said.

"It was an arbitrary decision on his part and it's one that he can change," the governor said.

White noted that Block and his family recently make a much-publicized effort to live on the average food stamp allotment.

"We have just seen him survive on $58 of food this past week, but we don't know that he could survive on the one inch rain that those farmers and ranchers in West Texas have received this year," White said.

"He would be a pretty dry secretary."

He said West Texas ranchers have been forced to buy expensive feed and, in some cases, even haul in water when cattle tanks dried up. "Now, ranchers are being forced to sell herds ahead of schedule, which will have a devastating effect on the economy of West Texas as well as a significant impact on the nation's consumers of beef," White said.

White suggested some relief might come from "the large stockpiles of corn stored by the USDA in the Texas Panhandle since the grain embargo of 1980."

"Much of that corn, I am told, is beginning to deteriorate and while it may not be appropriate for human consumption, it would be ideal feed for our West Texas livestock."

County rejects funding for area breath test plan

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners Monday rejected funding for the alcohol breath test program the county has used for 12 years.

Program director Harold Loveless of Midland asked the county to pay $9,250 a year to fund its portion of the three-county service.

Loveless has certified individuals and supplied the intoxilyzer for Howard, Midland and Ector counties under federal funding for several years. Federal money ends Oct. 1.

In order to keep the program, Loveless approached the counties in April to seek funds. Howard County commissioners indicated then they would probably not pay 19 percent — approximately $770 a month — to maintain the system.

In turning down Loveless's request, commissioners said they use the Department of Public Safety's intoxilyzer unit. DPS Trooper Bill Jennings told commissioners in April the state would probably provide the county with a unit if none existed.

In other action, commissioners awarded the bid for new carpet in the county library to Carpet Center of Big Spring. The company's bid of $6,470 was the apparent low bid of five companies.

Commissioners approved the revenue sharing budget of $173,359. The federal funds were allocated to the following: county clerk's office renovation, $121,459; ambulance service, $24,000; fire department expenses, $20,000; and Council on Aging, $5,400.

Other action included:
• Approval for an extra $1,000 for office supplies for the adult probation office. Chief Probation Officer Frank Martinez told commissioners the office would be getting another officer soon.

• Consenting to re-roof a portion of the Heritage Museum at $460.

• Okaying new employees for the courthouse.

Youth faces charges in motorcycle deaths

LAMESA (SC) — Charges of involuntary manslaughter are expected to be filed against a 16-year-old Lamesa youth following the Sunday night deaths of two West Texans killed when their motorcycle was hit from behind by a pickup truck.

The accident occurred 14 miles south of Lamesa on U.S. Highway 87.

Department of Public Safety officials said the motorcycle driver, Jackie Ausburn, 32, of Tahoka and 22-year passenger Rhonda McGregor of Lamesa were traveling north on Highway 87 when the accident occurred. The cyclists were pronounced dead at the scene by Dawson County Judge Glen White.

The pickup's driver, Mario Valtazar, was taken to Medical Arts Hospital and was treated for a cut lip and released.

He pleaded not guilty to driving while intoxicated at a juvenile hearing conducted by Justice of the Peace Fred Vera Monday morning.

Vera said involuntary manslaughter charges are planned against the youth.

C-City man, 37, found shot to death Monday

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A Colorado City man under indictment for attempted murder was shot to death just before midnight Monday, city and county officials said this morning.

John Frank Emerson, 37, of Colorado City was found dead at 720 E. First here.

A 29-year-old Colorado City man is being held in the Mitchell County jail for questioning in connection with the shooting. No charges have been filed, according to Assistant District Attorney Ralph Strother.

Emerson was indicted in January in the shooting of Daniel Zelasquez at a Mitchell County truck stop last December.

Strother said the case had not yet come to trial because Emerson had been committed to Big Spring State Hospital earlier this year.

Libyan warplanes bomb outpost

By The Associated Press
N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — The government says Libyan warplanes shattered a two-day lull and dived-bombed the rebel-besieged outpost of Faya-Largeau, and Libya is threatening to down U.S. surveillance planes sent to help Chad's army.

Information Minister Soumaila Mahamat said the Libyan planes raided the town 500 miles north of the capital N'Djamena in three waves Monday afternoon, blasting residential huts in support of Libyan-backed rebels ringing the town. He gave no casualty report.

It was the first reported bombing since Saturday of Faya-Largeau, a strategic desert oasis of 10,000 people in this destitute war-ravaged former French colony. The fighting has become a focal point of confrontation between Libya and the United States.

Faya-Largeau has been under siege since the end of July, when President Hissene Habre's forces chased out insurgents led by former President Goukouni Oueddei after the rebels started a new offensive.

Goukouni's men regrouped with Libyan air support and have repeatedly shelled and bombed the oasis to force the loyalists trapped there to surrender.

Libya's government has denied active military involvement in the insurgency, despite witnesses' accounts of Libyan bomb runs on Faya-Largeau and Western intelligence reports that suggest a heavy Libyan role in the fighting.

The U.S. State Department says 2,000 Libyan troops are with the rebels besieging Faya-Largeau.

In N'Djamena, Habre's men on Monday paraded before Western diplomats and reporters a Libyan pilot they claimed was captured over the weekend when a Soviet-built Sukhoi fighter-bomber was downed near Faya-Largeau. But the Libyan news agency JANA claimed Habre's troops had seized the man two years ago.

The pilot, Maj. Abdassalam Sharfadine, was handcuffed and guarded by soldiers with submachine guns as he told reporters he commanded a squadron of Sukhoi-22s and flew at least three missions over Faya-Largeau.

He also said his warplane was supplied with napalm and fragmentation bombs for use in the fighting.

JANA reported from the Libyan capital, Tripoli, that Col. Moammar Khadafy's gunners would shoot down two U.S. AWACS radar surveillance planes sent to the region "wherever they may be," if they "in any way have effect over Arab Libyan territories." The dispatch did not elaborate.

President Reagan dispatched the planes — accompanied by eight F-15 jet fighters, two KC-10 tankers and 550 support personnel — to Sudan, Chad's neighbor to the east, and told Congress they would monitor the Chad fighting. Reagan said they would remain a short time but did not specify a limit.

The U.S. government has earmarked $25 million in military aid for Habre and claims Khadafy supports Chad insurgents as part of a scheme to spread his influence through Africa.

Khadafy, whose relations with the Reagan administration have always been poor, claims the United States is using the Chad war as an excuse to intimidate Libya.

Habre has urged France to send combat planes to fight the insurgents. France, which granted independence to Chad 23 years ago, has agreed to send only arms and ammunition.

Zaire, which supports Habre's forces, announced Monday it was sending 700 more soldiers to Chad to help, raising to about 2,500 the number of Zaire troops dispatched to Chad since the rebel offensive began in June.

Heavy storms reported

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Austin residents were forced to leave their homes briefly as a line of heavy thunderstorms moved through Central Texas, dumped over four inches of rain on some communities and stranded vehicles in high water.

Flash flood warnings were issued for Travis, Comal and Guadalupe counties at the height of the afternoon storm Monday. The combination of upper-air low pressure over North Central Texas and moist unstable Gulf air was responsible for the storms, forecasters said.

Most of the showers, which fell over all but the Panhandle and South Texas, had ended by early today.

Austin police Lt. Roger Rountree said that several eastside homes were evacuated briefly Monday.

"The water did get up to the houses," said Rountree. "But they were more concerned about the possibility than an immediate problem."

Fire officials said that several children were evacuated from near a low-lying intersection on the city's southwest side.

A Travis County sheriff's dispatcher said several vehicles were stranded by high water on U.S. Highway 290 in Hays County and in North Austin. No injuries were reported, she said.

The storm also cut power to some homes in Seguin and lightning struck a tower used for law enforcement communications, authorities said. Some streets and highways were closed.

Reports of two inches of rain were common along a stationary trough that stretched from the northeast corner of the state into West Texas. Thornedale, about 35 miles northeast of Austin, was drenched with 4.25 inches.

Street flooding was reported in the Midland-Odessa area from the heavy thunderstorms that raked the West Texas cities.

Sagemont and Addicks, near Houston, also reported street flooding.

Showers and thunderstorms were also reported near San Angelo in West Texas, along the Red River at the Oklahoma border and in Southeast Texas, from Houston north to College Station.

A cool front headed for the Northeast today, as monsoon-like winds sent surf crashing into over 100 homes in Southern California, including 90 in the exclusive Malibu Colony.

Record-breaking heat seared the East on Monday, with a 96-degree high in Boston that broke the record of 95 set in 1949. But early morning storms today doused New England and parts of New York state.

West Texas — Fair to partly cloudy through Wednesday. Widely scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms south. Highs 86s mountains to 96s most other areas. Lows mostly in the 60s, except 72 extreme south.

Guatemalan defense minister seizes power

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Guatemala's new ruler has abolished the secret military courts of ousted President Efraim Rios Montt, but vowed to wipe out leftist rebels and end his predecessor's born-again Christian influence in this mostly Roman Catholic nation.

Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores, the defense minister and a 35-year military veteran, seized power Monday in a rapidly staged coup that ended Rios Montt's 17-month-old regime after a brief but bloody shootout at the presidential palace.

Mejia Victores' first act as president was to scrap the clandestine courts established by Rios Montt that had sentenced at least 15 people to death for leftist subversion.

The new ruler also vowed to end the "religious fanaticism" he said characterized the regime of Rios Montt, a general who was a minister in a California-based Protestant evangelist sect.

Rios Montt's loyalists at the National Palace had held out briefly during a shootout that Mejia Victores said ended with one soldier killed and three wounded. Local reporters said two soldiers were killed.

The abolition of secret courts was part of a nine-point program signed by the nation's military commanders which largely echoed the goals of Rios Montt's rightist regime. The most substantial difference between the ousted and new president appears to be their religion.

Mejia Victores, a 52-year-old Roman Catholic, promised to respect "the faith and traditions of the people of Guatemala" and to "keep out foreign influences that wound the feelings (of Guatemalans)."

A joint statement by the commanders said: "A fanatic and aggressive religious group, taking advantage of the power of its highest members, have used and abused the government for their benefit, ignoring the fundamental principle of the separation of church and state."

Rios Montt had promoted evangelical Protestantism in Guatemala, which is about 80 percent Catholic. He had appointed two elders from his Church of the Word as top aides.

Mejia Victores said Rios Montt was "at the disposition" of the army but refused to elaborate. A political source close to the army said security agents were holding Rios Montt at a house in the capital.

The new president pledged to "combat Marxist-Leninist subversion and the paramilitary group, to protect the people of Guatemala."

At least four leftist guerrilla groups operate in Guatemala. Paramilitary rightist death squads also have flourished and are blamed by human rights groups for hundreds of deaths.

Mejia Victores said he would maintain an electoral tribunal created last month and would "speed up" the electoral process. Rios Montt, who came to power in a March 23, 1982, military coup, had promised elections in July 1984.

The State Department reacted cautiously to the coup, saying it welcomed "any concrete step" to restore Guatemalan democracy. The coup came one day after Mejia Victores met in Honduras with Brig. Gen. Frederick Woerner, commander of U.S. forces in Panama, but there was no word whether U.S. officials knew about coup plans in advance.

Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government accused the Reagan administration of plotting the coup as part of what it called a scheme to "launch its aggression against Nicaragua."

Officials to study train station ceiling collapse

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) Officials pledged to look "at every angle" to learn why a commuter train station ceiling collapsed and killed two people, including whether the weight of workmen assigned to fix the sagging structure caused the accident.

Port Authority officials knew of problems with the 50-ton ceiling but thought added supports could be installed without closing the station off to commuter traffic, said Francis Gorman, general manager of PATH, the commuter railroad.

Three workers were preparing to reinforce the concrete-and-steel ceiling at the Journal Square Transportation Center's main concourse when it gave way shortly after morning rush hour Monday.

"I heard a loud cracking sound and then this ceiling started falling, one piece after another," said Lucille Crook, a Jersey City resident who was at a concourse shop when the ceiling fell. "I just ran out ... and looked back and I saw people screaming and yelling."

Two people were killed, one pinned in the rubble and the second from a heart attack, and eight others were injured.

Gorman said a worker from the Port Authority of

New York and New Jersey apparently climbed into the space between the ceiling and the floor above minutes before the collapse.

"We do not know if the weight of the workmen brought the ceiling down," said Gorman. "That is part of the investigation."

An April inspection of the ceiling showed a "sag" but "no danger of imminent failure," Gorman said.

"We're looking at everything, every possible angle," said John Hughes, a spokesman for the Port Authority, which runs the center. "We'll go from the architect's drawings to the engineer's drawings to the engineering of the ceiling."

The structure, described as a "square doughnut" — 200 feet long and 1 1/2 inches thick — was suspended by wires, and installed at the 10-year-old, $85-million center primarily for aesthetic purposes.

The 10,600-square-foot section peeled away from its supports just after rush-hour traffic ebbed on the Port Authority Trans-Hudson rail line between Newark to New York.

"There were about 50 people there when the collapse began; there had been hundreds a few minutes before," said Capt. James McCrohan of the Port Authority police.

Emergency crews rescued seven people who were then treated at the Jersey City Medical Center for bruises and abrasions and released.

One of the workmen, William Connors, 50, of Sayreville, was admitted to the medical center and later transferred to St. Peter's Medical Center in New Brunswick, where he was listed in stable condition today. Another worker was among those treated.

Killed were Joseph Hadevycz, 36, of Jersey City, a PATH motorman, and Galar Said El Taha, 26, whose residence was not known.

Gov. Thomas H. Kean visited the site and called for "an immediate and scrupulously thorough investigation."

The inquiry will be conducted by Port Authority engineers and Lev Zetlin Associates, the firm that examined the Hartford Civic Center after its collapse in January 1978. Officials said a records search was being conducted to determine who built the Jersey City structure.

Anchorwoman has 'no illusions' about verdict

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Anchorwoman Christine Craft, awarded $500,000 in a sex discrimination suit against her former employer, says she's glad she won but has no illusions "that this is going to make a huge difference in TV news."

A federal jury deliberated 8 1/2 hours over two days before finding Metromedia Inc. guilty Monday of fraud and awarding Ms. Craft $375,000 in actual damages and $125,000 in punitive damages.

The four-woman, two-man jury also recommended that U.S. District Judge Joseph E. Stevens Jr. find that Metromedia committed sex discrimination. If Stevens accepts that recommendation Ms. Craft could receive further damages, but he is not expected to rule on the issue for at least a week.

The jury found Metromedia innocent of violating equal-pay laws when it paid her less than the television station's male co-anchor.

The $1.2 million suit by the 38-year-old Ms. Craft accused Metromedia, former owner of KMBC-TV in Kansas City, of demoting her in 1981 for being "too old, unattractive and not deferential enough to men."

The suit charged the company with fraud for misrepresenting the job when it hired Ms. Craft as co-anchor in January 1981, with sex discrimination and with violating equal-pay laws.

Jury foreman Kenneth W. Green said the panel made its decision because "we didn't want to see anyone else put through what she went through."

But Ms. Craft seemed less sure of the verdict's effect. "I have no illusions, shall we say, that this is going to make a huge difference in TV news, but ... if it keeps one news director at one station someplace, somewhere, from doing the same thing, I hope it does that," she said.

Ms. Craft said she planned to return to her current anchoring job at KEY-TV in Santa Barbara. Because KMBC was sold to the Hearst Corp. in May 1982, she called the part of her suit seeking reinstatement to her KMBC post a "moot point."

Clipping the skyjacker's wings

The U.S. and Cuban governments and the commercial airlines still have not come up with an effective way to prevent disillusioned Cubans from hijacking commercial airlines and returning home on them.

Thus far, the Cuban hijackings have been merely inconvenient. The obedient pilot flies to Havana, the hijacker is arrested by the locals, the passengers buy Cuban rum and cigars in the airport lobby, and then the plane takes off for Miami. No sweat.

But one of these days, a real lunatic is apt to grab a plane, with disastrous results. That's why U.S. and Cuban authorities, plus airline officials, should intensify efforts to combat pirates.

Those efforts already have been considerable. Rather than indulge in diplomatic posturing and refuse to conduct any business with Fidel Castro until, say, he gets out of Nicaragua, U.S. officials have been level-headed. They realize that it's in the interest of the United States to cooperate with Castro to solve a common problem.

Castro has publicized the fact that hijackers will be, and have been, thrown in jail. The U.S. government has increased the number of air marshals who ride on commercial flights. The surveillance of passengers may be increased.

All these measures are useful. Probably, the most important single weapon is Castro's. When would-be hijackers realize there is a cold cell, not a warm welcome, on the other end of the line, they will be less inclined to grab headlines and airplanes. If hijackers were promptly returned to the United States disarmed and handcuffed, preferably on the same planes they commandeered, they would be even less inclined to mischief.

It's important to keep weirdos and weapons off the planes in the first place, but once pirates get aboard, the thing to do is deny them a safe haven. Anything that Castro can do to make his haven less safe should be encouraged.

Sorry, we don't return phone calls

A recent nationwide survey has just revealed that there were 789,345,678 unreturned telephone calls made last year, an increase of 10 percent over the year before. Phone experts believe at the present rate that the figure of 1 billion could be reached by 1984.

Mark Stampel is the head of a nonprofit organization named "The Unreturned Telephone Call Institute," whose main function is to try to investigate all unreturned calls, and to decide on the basis of this information whether there is life on earth.

He told me at the UTC Institute's plush estate in Middleburg, Va., the fact that someone does not return a telephone call doesn't mean that that person does not exist. "It only means that the person who made the call doesn't exist for the person who didn't call back."

It took me a few minutes to digest this.

Stampel tried to spell it out in layman's terms. "Let us assume Pledger calls Arragant to get a job. Arragant's secretary says that Arragant is in a meeting and will get back to Pledger as soon as possible."

"Arragant has no intention of calling back Pledger. Pledger waits by the phone — one hour, 24 hours, a week. No word from Arragant. He calls back again. This time Pledger can't get through the switchboard to even speak to Arragant's secretary." "Arragant's a cruel man," I said. "Aha," said Stampel. "You would think so. But the reason Arragant has not called Pledger is that he is waiting for a call from Byer. Arragant is trying to sell Byer a shipload of railroad ties. Arragant keeps asking his secretary if Byer has called."

"Byer hasn't?" I said. "Of course not. He doesn't want Arragant's railroad ties."

"Why doesn't he call and tell him so?"

"Because he doesn't want to tie up the phone, as he's waiting to hear from his girlfriend who hasn't returned his call for three days."

"Why?"

"Because Byer won't get a divorce from Mrs. Byer, and the girlfriend has decided that she has had it with him."

"That's reasonable."

"The girlfriend, having made the decision to give up on Byer, calls Altman, whom she met at a party, and leaves word she's available for dinner. Now she's waiting by her phone for Altman to call back."

"Why doesn't Altman call her back?"

"He can't remember what the girl looked like and he's afraid to take a chance that she may be a dog."

"Altman sounds like a male chauvinist."

"He is, except that he's afraid of his mother. He's particularly frightened because she hasn't answered his call."

"Why not?" I wanted to know.

"Because Altman didn't call her the week before, and his mother is going to make him pay for it. Besides, she's waiting to hear from the Board of Health to complain because the furnace in her apartment house is on the fritz."

"And of course they don't call her back."

"You have to be kidding. The health inspector for the Board of Health is sitting by his phone waiting to hear from the mayor's deputy assistant as to whether he can hire more people to handle telephone complaints."

"The mayor's deputy doesn't call him back?"

"No, because he's waiting for a call from Washington, which will never come, telling him whether the city can have the funds it needs, not only for the health inspector, but also for Pledger who still doesn't have a job because Arragant never answered his call."

"On the basis of what you just told me," I said to Stampel, "does your institute really believe there is life on earth?"

"Well, there's something out there," Stampel said. "And we have to believe they're trying to communicate with us, even if they refuse to do it by telephone."

Brotherly love needs God's help

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have a brother who is on drugs, and I am afraid he is going to get in deeper if somebody doesn't help him. I would like to help him, but I don't know how. What do you suggest? — P.G.

DEAR P.G.: I suppose one of the hardest things to do is to help someone who is near us and is in danger of damaging his life. The problem is that the person will often refuse our help or deny that he needs any help. I mention this because the first thing you need to do is to pray that God will give you (and others in your family and among his friends) wisdom in dealing with this. Remember the promise of God: "If any of you lacks wisdom, he should ask God, who gives generously to all without finding fault, and it will be given to him" (James 1:5).

At some time your brother needs to be confronted with the problem he is facing. Often a person in his situation may think his habits are hidden from others, and he may try to deny that he is having a problem with drugs. But if you are certain of this, you owe it to him to let your concern be known in an open and frank way. Before he will seek the help that he needs, he has to face the fact that he has a problem, and he also needs to sense that he has the support of those who love him so much that you will not stand by and allow him to destroy himself.

Then point your brother toward some professional help. You do not indicate his living situation, but if he is still at home, I believe your parents should insist on his getting help. Your pastor may be able to help you at this point and you and your parents should seek his counsel and the counsel of others who might be able to help.

Most of all, pray for your brother. Pray that he will find strength to fight this problem, and pray that he will come to grips with his need of God. God will not only help him, but Christ can give him the meaning and sense of direction in life that he will never find through drugs.

Briscoe needs a confrontation

Dear Editor, I, too, seethed with anger as I read Keith Briscoe's column in the Rim (July 28). But then I thought — I wouldn't be angry at a blind man who couldn't see a beautiful sunset that was described to him — or at a deaf person because he couldn't hear the strains of beautiful music. So why blame Mr. Briscoe for not understanding the Christian foundation that has made our Nation the greatest and freest Nation of our time?

Then I was reminded of a Jewish man who lived some 1900 years ago. He, too, hated all that Christianity stood for, until one day on the road to Damascus, he had a confrontation with the God-Man, Christ Jesus, a Jew by birth. And he was never the same again. He saw the reality of the Scripture: "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son" to die on the cross for the sin of the world, "that whosoever" would believe that it was for him and for his sin, and receive the now-living Christ as His own Savior "should not perish" or go to a place of eternal punishment, "but have everlasting life" here, and forever with God. I pray that Mr. Briscoe will have that confrontation.

Dead ringer

I talked to Alexander Graham Bell last night.

It was a mistake, of course. I was trying to dial time and temperature.

"ello? ello?" he kept repeating in his friendly Scottish brogue.

"Does this thing work?"

"Who are you?" I asked.

"Alexander Bell. I'm trying to call my assistant. And who might you be?"

"One of your customers. I'm trying to make a simple phone call to time and temperature."

"Oohhhhhhhhh," he moaned.

"Pardon us, please. We're still trying to work out some complications."

"You've had this thing since 1876, Mr. Bell," I said. "Aren't you making some headway?"

"HEADWAY?" he hollered.

"You bet. We've got computer billing, push-button phones, Mickey Mouse phones, Snoopy and Woodstock and we've even had Sandy Dennis doing commercials for long distance."

"But Mr. Bell, I'm trying to make a simple telephone call. Why do I always have trouble. I just want to know what the time and the temperature are."

"It's after midnight. It's really cold. See? It's easy. Reach out. Reach out and touch someone..."

"Mr. Bell," I said patiently. "I don't know how close you follow things, but you and the company that bears your name are very unpopular right now. I've heard people say they'd like to strangle you with a telephone cord."

I continued. It felt good to get these frustrations out.

"The service isn't that great, you know. And you ask for insane, insane rate increases. You get all huffy when there's competition — like you own the right to our conversations."

"You make mistakes like leaving out half the Yellow Pages, then call a press conference and calmly announce that you're going to raise our rates to cover for your mistake. Now what is the deal?"

There was a long silence on the other end of the line.

"You know..." he began slowly, "...you're a very rude boy. You shouldn't be allowed to use the phone, your manners are so bad."

"First of all," he said, "it's American Telephone and Telegraph. It's not me. Second, you have no idea how difficult and costly it is to maintain all those phone lines. We work hard, and you people have no conception of the good service you get. You complain, COMPLAIN, COMPLAIN!"

"Hold it right there bell brain," I yelled. "You helped start AT&T, which then bought up all the local companies. You started the company that took all that control because you guys were greedy. And now you're wanting these disgusting rate increases to try and keep this little empire alive."

"Don't deny it, Bell. You guys owe us!"

There was more silence on the other end of the line.

"ello? ello?" Bell began slowly.

"Does this thing work?"

"NOT VERY WELL!" I screamed and slammed down the receiver.

I can't describe how good that felt.

Powell still a guerrilla fighter

WASHINGTON — I have come to the sorrowful conclusion that Jimmy Carter doesn't like me.

Our relationship started off in the clouds but lost altitude rapidly. There was one bright moment in the White House when he said I was a careful and conscientious reporter "who always checks his facts."

But sometime before his mournful departure from Washington, Carter had a change of heart. He dumped on me three times on national television; little brother Billy assaulted me with barnyard epithets; and their mama, Miss Lillian, wrote me a hate letter.

Now that Jimmy is back among the peanuts, his faithful surrogate, Jody Powell, is carrying on the attacks. He admitted recently on a radio talk show that he still often speaks for Carter. He has assailed me on a succession of TV talk shows. And lately, he had made me the subject of a couple of discomfiting columns.

Jody has a gift for straightforward deviousness; he can make semi-facts and half-truths sound plausible and wrap political vilification in a press agent's smile.

He does not deny his role as a political guerrilla fighter. During one confessional, he admitted that he had spread scurrilous falsehoods against Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill. And the other day, he pleaded, nolo to a history of lies and deceit in behalf of the Carter cause.

For those of us hampered by the inconvenience of reporting facts, Jody's accusatory technique is difficult to cope with. He unloads grand accusations, stretching the thin fabric of fact to fit his exaggerations and distortions.

He falsely and flagrantly accused me, for example, of publishing "disinformation," based on "forged intelligence documents" and leaks from "operatives inside the government." He returned this astounding indictment without offering any evidence whatsoever.

When I pointed this out, his ingenuous response was "I must admit, he has me there." Proof? Jody has none. It was up to me, he argued, to disprove his allegations. Forged documents? He cannot cite a single one. Mysterious operatives? He has no idea who they are. Incredibly, he wants me to supply the forgeries and identify the falsifiers for him.

Then he wants the National News Council to step in. Fine. He made the accusations; he should prove them. That's an elementary principle of American justice. Let him present his evidence to any jury of editors. I await the verdict with bemusement.

A lesser impresario than Jody Powell, having unloosed accusations that he cannot possibly back up, would have retreated into silence. But Jody merely turned up the steam in his callopie.

In a subsequent grand accusation, he seized upon a single sentence buried deep in a November 1980 column of mine and announced that this, too, was "disinformation." It was taken, he declared triumphantly from still another "forged document." And this time, he wouldn't have to depend on me to produce the forgery. "I'll make a copy of the forged document available..." Jody boasted.

The incriminating sentence he cited mentioned a CIA estimate that 60 percent of the hostages would die in Jimmy Carter's attempt to rescue them from Ayatollah Khomeini.

Jody shrewdly deleted the first five words of the sentence, because these words made it clear that the information didn't come from any document, forged or otherwise. The words Jody left out describe the CIA as informal, and the next sentence added that other CIA analysts disagreed with the estimate.

As it happened, eight Americans died in the Iranian desert before the rescue attempt got off the ground. No one really can be sure how many hostages would have died if the mission had not been aborted.

But this much is now known: The hostages were held in two places in the center of Teheran — the U.S. Embassy and the foreign ministry. The commandos were supposed to be transported by vehicles through the teeming city and were then supposed to strike both places concurrently.

The guards were supposed to be overpowered and the hostages removed to a nearby stadium. Then U.S. helicopters would lift the surviving hostages and commandos to an airport near Teheran, which hopefully would have been seized, meanwhile, by other American troops.

Kristi Taylor vies for title

Kristi Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Taylor of 2800 S. Birdwell, is a candidate for the Miss American Junior Rodeo Association Pageant. The pageant will be held during the AJRA National Finals Rodeo at Scurry Co. Coliseum in Snyder, Aug. 16-20.

KRISTI TAYLOR
...tries for rodeo queen

Also participating in the rodeo will be rodeo clown Quail Dobbs of Coahoma. He will serve as barrel man and special entertainment.

The new rodeo queen will be crowned by the reigning Miss AJRA Jana Smith of Carlsbad, N.M. Miss Taylor will compete against five other horsewomen for the title.

Special awards to be presented to the winner include handmade chaps designed for Miss AJRA, a trophy buckle from the AJRA association, an awards jacket, and a pair of Adams Roper Boots.

Country Club sight of bridal coffee

Martha Rollins, bride of Jim Hunnicutt, was honored with a bridal coffee July 16 at Big Spring Country Club.

Hosting were Jan Foresyth, Dorothy Hall, Bonnie Long, Loraine Talbot, Ann Wilkins, Helen Green, Patti Horton, Polly Mays, Paula Talbot and Betty Wrinkle. The hostesses presented the honoree with a five-piece place setting of gold-plated flatware.

Corsages were presented to the bride-elect, her mother Mrs. George W. Rollins, and the prospective bridegroom's mother Mrs. Sam Hunnicutt.

Guests were served from a table covered with a white embroidered cloth and centered with a sterling silver champaign bowl, white spider mums, pink snap dragons, white daisies, pink carnations and hot pink Alstromeria.

The couple was married July 30 at First Christian Church in Midland.

Mickey Fletcher feted at shower, Thursday

The Joe Mac Gaskins home in Knott was the setting Thursday afternoon for a shower honoring Mickey Fletcher, bride-elect of Johnny McGregor.

The bride's colors of apricot and candlelight were used throughout the entertainment area. Corsages of apricot carnations were presented to the honoree, her mother Mrs. E.W. Fletcher Jr., and the prospective bridegroom's mother Mrs. J.D. McGregor of Knott.

Hostesses were Mmes. Mac Gaskins, V.L. Jones, Robert Nichols, Elgin Jones, Kelly Gaskins, Jerry Roman, Clarence Coldiron and John Jones. The hostesses presented the honoree with a bedspread and bathroom scales.

Refreshments were served from an oval table draped with a floor-length

Dr. Donohue

Vein pains

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have varicose veins. The only time they bother me is the first part of my period. I have to get off my feet and put on support stockings. Please tell me why this happens. Also, is my health in any danger? I mean danger of circulation problems or blood clots in my legs. — Mrs. C.B.

Here's why varicose veins form. Veins have valves in them. Those valves are needed because venous blood, unlike that in arteries which is propelled briskly by blood pressure, flows very slowly. The vein valves help blood moving toward the heart for recirculation. Without efficient valves the venous blood tends to pool and cause vein stretching (varicosity). Varicose veins form because the vein valves aren't the best in the world. They are incompetent.

In your case, your valve incompetence may be minor. They serve you adequately under ordinary circumstances, but at other times they are not up to their task. This becomes evident around the time of your menstrual period because fluid accumulates at such times due to hormones produced. As you retain fluid, blood flow becomes even more sluggish, and the veins distend.

This will not endanger your health, and clots will not form because of it. But you can help by watching the amount of salt you eat at these times. Salt makes you retain even more fluid.

Elevating legs above heart level and wearing your support stockings will help. Don't stand too long in one place. Use your leg muscles to squeeze on those veins so blood will keep moving. Your stockings should be fitted for you and should extend all the way to your upper thighs. You may find other hints in the booklet "How to Deal With Varicose Veins." Other readers may order by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A white back while undergoing colon surgery a hydatid cyst was removed. There was no further mention of it and there was no follow-up required. I would certainly appreciate an explanation of this particular type of cyst. Thanks for a good column. — P.F.

Without reference to your colon surgery itself, let me talk about two different kinds of hydatid cysts.

One kind is due to a parasite that develops in sheep and dogs. If at a certain developmental stage it is accidentally ingested by a human, the embryo proceeds to form a cyst. Such a cyst may be found in many organs, but especially in the liver and lungs. Most of the time these cysts cause no problems unless one enlarges to such a degree that it crowds out normal organ tissue. Then surgical removal takes care of things without further trouble.

Is that the kind of hydatid cyst to which you refer? The other kind is called "hydatid of Morgagni." These are small cysts that form in ligaments that support the uterus. They are not caused by parasites, and just why they form is not known.

But if either cyst, the parasite kind or the Morgagni kind, is removed, then you should fear no future trouble. Your physician will be able to tell you which kind you had removed.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 25 and about a year ago I was diagnosed as having ulcer colitis. Since that time I have heard that it is common to have cancer of the colon from ulcer colitis. What are the chances of this happening? Should I have surgery or wait for perhaps a better type of surgery to be developed for this disease? — R.W.

Cancer here depends on how long one has had the colitis and how extensive it was. When the entire colon is involved and when the condition has existed for more than 10 years, the chances of cancer developing rise to levels 10 to 20 times greater than for people with normal colons. Some physicians advocate colon removal. Others prefer to examine the colon on a regular basis. It's an important decision based on all the details of the individual case. It's not a decision to be delayed by any hoped-for new development in treatment of ulcerative colitis.

Dear Abby

Well-heeled couple argues about bill

DEAR ABBY: I am an elderly widower in good financial circumstances, as is my ladyfriend. I take her out to a fine restaurant once a week, and in turn she invites me to her home for dinner. We both enjoy our relationship, but we have one serious problem. If I invite her to go on a trip, she insists that I should pay her expenses, even though she has ample funds.

I try not to be smallish, but I resent having to pay for her company. The amount would not be insignificant if we went to Hawaii, for example. The money saved this way will eventually go to her children and grandchildren, who are not in need of it.

We are both stubborn and cannot find a compromise. For my part, it is not the money, it's the principle of the thing. I should like to learn your opinion.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: When someone says, "It's not the money, it's the principle of the thing," it's usually the money. Since you invited her to go on the trip, it should be your treat. (If she invited you, it should be her treat.) Because you are both stubborn, you are letting life pass you by without enjoying many of the pleasures you can well afford. The one thing you cannot buy is time. Make the most of your lives while you have the health to enjoy them.

DEAR ABBY: My wife's parents invited us to accompany them on a trip to visit some relatives who live in another state. It was a nice drive, but far enough away so we had to stop at a motel overnight.

As we were checking into the motel, it became evident that her parents expected us to share a room with them to save expenses. The room was large, with two double beds to accommodate four people, but I didn't feel comfortable with this kind of arrangement so I told my in-laws in a very nice way that I preferred a room of our own, which I would gladly pay for. (I did.)

My wife didn't say anything until we were in our room. Then she said she was very disappointed in me for not going along with her parents' wishes. And for me to insist on having my own way was "disrespectful" and I owe her parents an apology.

Abby, I just couldn't imagine my wife and me sleeping in the same room with my in-laws. (We'll be married a year next month.)

Was I "disrespectful"? And do I owe them an apology?

LIKES PRIVACY

DEAR LIKES: Disrespectful? No way. And no apologies are necessary.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

OUT OF CONTROL ROOM — A technician sits in the multi-million dollar control room of a nuclear fuel reprocessing plant in South Carolina that's being forced to shut down this summer because of no business.

Nuclear fuel plant goes out of business

BARNWELL, S.C. (AP) — George Stribling, public relations man, still takes the curious on tours of the imposing Barnwell Nuclear Fuels Plant.

He proudly points to the plutonium security system that reads voiceprints and measures fingertips.

What's happening to the plant, he says, is "a tragedy."

With a sophisticated computer room and hundreds of employees, Barnwell, a $250 million investment, was built to be the world's biggest and most sophisticated commercial plant for reprocessing nuclear fuel.

But there's no market for reprocessed nuclear fuel.

So the plant is shutting down and its untarnished and unscratched equipment, which hasn't reprocessed a single shipment of spent fuel from a commercial nuclear power plant, is being sold.

"One of the problems was that we got (too far) out in front in our thinking and perceived a more rapid implementation of nuclear energy than turned out to be necessary," said James A. Buckham, president of Allied-General Nuclear Services' reprocessing facility.

"There were grossly incorrect forecasts of the rate of growth of energy demand," he said.

If the Barnwell facility had been put into use, it would have been the nation's only commercial plant currently recycling spent nuclear fuel. When Buckham took on the job, the day Jimmy Carter was elected president, it looked like an exciting venture.

"I thought it would be nice to get out where you were doing this kind of business in a competitive market situation," said Buckham, who had previously managed a government fuel reprocessing plant. "We expected two or three other plants to be built right behind ours and we were going to be vying for business and making the most money."

At the time, the facility, a joint investment by Allied Corp., Gulf Oil Co. and Royal Dutch Shell, was only two years away from opening.

But in April 1977, Carter banned nuclear reprocessing by the private sector, out of fear that plutonium could be stolen and used to build nuclear weapons. The ban remained in effect until President Reagan lifted it in 1981.

The main problem since then has been the lack of a market for reprocessed plutonium, which isn't ready for use in a reactor. The Carter ban slowed development of facilities to convert reprocessed plutonium into fuel for commercial reactors.

In recent years, the nuclear industry has undergone a slowdown that left a glut of uranium. Prices dropped, and the urgent need for reprocessing dropped with them.

The owners have sued the federal government for $500 million, claiming they were seduced and abandoned by a government eager for nuclear progress, then frightened off by potential dangers.

Because the plutonium market would depend on federal decisions, plant officials say the federal government should be involved at Barnwell.

"Everybody realizes closing (the plant) is the wrong answer," Buckham said. "But our owners in good conscience cannot continue to pour money into the project."

The plant had 300 employees at the beginning of 1983 but has cut that number by a third and will terminate all but a few by the end of the year. The owners plan to sell any equipment that could be ruined or outmoded by the passage of time.

Cooling costs rise during July's heat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans spent $377 million more than normal for air conditioning costs during in the last three weeks of July, the federal weather service said Monday.

The hot humid weather still oppressing many areas first affected the Rocky Mountain region July 5, and spread over the eastern two-thirds of the country by July 11.

For the July 11-30 period, Americans spent $2.055 billion for electricity to run air conditioners, according to the report from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

That is 22 percent above normal for the period, the agency reported.

For the year to date, Americans have spent an estimated $5.17 billion on cooling. That is still 3 percent below normal because of large savings early in the summer.

While the current heat has been costly both in terms of lives and expense, it is not as severe as other heat waves in the past, including one in 1980 that cost an additional $1.5 billion in electrical bills, the weather service said.

The East North Central states were hit hardest in the current heat wave, with residents there spending 66 percent — or $433 million — more than normal, the report estimated. That area includes Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Cooling costs in other regions for the three weeks were estimated as:

—New England, $92 million, 34 percent above normal. Includes Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Hispanics criticize Reagan

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Republicans won't be able in the 1984 presidential election to get away with claims that they care about Hispanics' interests, representatives to two national conventions meeting were told.

Charles Manatt, the national Democratic chairman, said President Reagan "is going to have to do more than serve tacos and enchiladas to Queen Elizabeth" — a reference to a menu the president planned during the queen's recent visit to the United States.

Gov. Toney Anaya, D-New Mexico, said Reagan will be judged not by his promises but by "the higher unemployment levels, the cuts in food stamps, the cuts in education funds, the backtracking on 30 years of civil rights progress."

Manatt's criticism of Republicans' concern for Hispanics came during the National Conference of State Legislatures, which began here Monday.

Anaya addressed about 200 Hispanic leaders in San Antonio for a national Hispanic convention.

The Hispanic leaders prepared today for speeches by Vice President George Bush and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Anaya applauded a move to register a million Hispanic voters by the 1984 presidential election, which would raise the number of registered voters to more than 70 percent.

"The hands that historically have picked the lettuce in this country and the hands that historically have picked the cotton in this country are the hands that can pick the next president of this country," Anaya said.

The added voting clout could swing election results in Texas, California, New Mexico and New York — states with large numbers of Hispanics, the New Mexico governor said.

The support of Hispanics was crucial in the recent victories of Federico Pena as the mayor of Denver and Harold Washington, a black, as mayor of Chicago, Anaya said.

"Politicians of all kinds are courting us. We are the second-largest and fastest-growing minority in America," Anaya added.

"We are sending out the word that Hispanics are not going to be satisfied with a symbolic 'in-house Mexican' and that we're not going to be satisfied with a verbal commitment for a few more dollars for bilingual education," Anaya said.

At the National Conference of State Legislatures, Manatt said Reagan will find Hispanics demanding "that he replace his rhetoric with reality and make major shifts in budget priorities."

State Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, a Democrat from Austin, said Reagan's claims of economic recovery ring hollow in Hispanic communities.

Judge orders transfusion for baby

FORT WORTH (AP) — A state judge has turned down religious objections of a 16-year-old mother and given doctors permission to administer blood transfusions to a premature baby.

During an emergency hearing Monday, Civil District Judge Albert White Jr. rejected requests by the infant's mother and grandmother, who are both Jehovah's Witnesses, to honor their denomination's ban on transfusions.

White gave legal permission to doctors at John Peter Smith Hospital to give blood transfusions or "whatever is necessary" in attempt to save the life of Derek Salome.

The infant's mother, Phillippa Salome, and his grandmother, Henrietta McGruder, a secretary at the hospital, had refused permission earlier Monday for blood transfusions sought by doctors.

Both carried Bibles with them to court.

"We have accepted the fact that the baby will die if it doesn't receive the blood, but that's one of the things we want to stick with," Ms. McGruder said. "We're not saying take a baby's life, we're saying we have a reason not to give blood."

Dr. Burton Schwartz, who practices at the hospital, was born Saturday at Carswell Air Force Base, about 12 weeks premature and suffering from a common lung ailment of premature infants known as hyaline membrane disease.

Oilers cut 4-year veteran Vernon Perry

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Vernon Perry, a four-year Houston Oilers veteran who has been placed on waivers, says he will try to play for another National Football League team.

If he is not claimed by an NFL team, Perry will become a free agent and probably will "try with the Gamblers," Houston's United States Football League franchise, he said.

"I was kind of talking to them for a while," the 29-year-old strong safety said Monday.

"I've done a lot of thinking," Perry said, "and I know I can still play. I feel like I can go anywhere and play. I just need a shot to prove myself. Since I wasn't getting that chance here, I just felt like it was time for me to get out of here."

Oilers Coach Ed Biles said Perry was waived Monday because he was rated behind veteran Carter Hartwig and rookie Keith Bostic.

Perry is due to go on trial next month on a cocaine possession charge and three misdemeanor charges alleging violation of state liquor laws and resisting arrest. He was arrested during the off-season in a highly publicized incident at his nightclub in Jackson, Miss., his hometown.

Biles said Perry's arrest "had absolutely nothing to do" with the decision to put him on waivers.

"We'll only keep three safeties, and Vernon wasn't rated at the top of the group," Biles said. "There's an awful lot of competition among the defensive backs, and the coaches felt like the others were doing better."

"By waiving Vernon now, he'll have a better chance to catch on with another team than if we'd have waited until the final roster cut-down," Biles said.

Perry said he was "not bitter" about his release, but added, "I don't think I was given a chance to prove myself."

"I was knocked down from first- to third-team, so I felt it was best to go to Eddie (Biles) and tell him to put me on waivers so I'll have a chance to catch on with another team."

If Perry is claimed by another NFL team, he still faces a possible suspension by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Perry is trying to get the charges dropped. However, if he is convicted of possession of cocaine, he could face a penalty similar to that given to Pete Johnson, Ross Browner, Greg Stenrick and E.J. Junior. All four were suspended July 25 through the fourth game of the regular season because of their involvement with cocaine.

Injuries plague world track stars

ASHFORD EXITS WITH INJURY — Evelyn Ashford, U.S. world record holder in the 100-meter dash is helped from Helsinki's Olympic Stadium Monday after she fell and injured her leg in the finals of the women's 100-meter dash.

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Evelyn Ashford, the world record holder in the women's 100-meter dash, crumpled to the track, grabbing her right hamstring and writhing in pain.

She was the latest victim in a series of injuries that have robbed the inaugural World Track and Field Championships of some of their expected heroes and heroines.

With only two days of competition completed in the meet that ends Sunday, the growing injury list already contains some impressive names.

Ashford, who had reached a peak in her brilliant career last month by taking the world record (10.79 seconds) from her heated rival, Marlies Gohr of East Germany, broke down Monday in the 100-meter final.

"I'm very disappointed, but I will be back next year," Ashford promised after learning that she had suffered a torn hamstring muscle and her recovery period would be 8-10 weeks.

"I have a few scores to settle," she added.

World Games

One of the scores will be against Gohr. The former world record holder, capitalizing on Ashford's frightening fall, won the 100 in 10.97, leading a 1-2 East German sweep.

She was not very sympathetic after capturing the gold medal.

"That is her problem, not mine, that she couldn't make it," Gohr said about Ashford's injury.

"I know how to beat Ashford now," she added. "I let Ashford win yesterday (in Sunday's second-round heats)."

The injury to Ashford overshadowed a 1-2-3 American sweep in the men's 100, led by Carl Lewis, and a surprising victory by Zozislaw Hoffman of Poland in the triple jump.

Lewis, after a slow start, zipped past Calvin Smith near the 60-meter mark and went on to win in 10.07 seconds.

Smith, the world record holder, was second in 10.21 and Emmit King was third in 10.24, just ahead of 1980 Olympic champion Allan Wells of Scotland (10.27).

The little-known Hoffman equalled the eighth best jump in history, soaring 17.42 meters (57 feet, 2 inches). Willie Banks of the United States and Ajayi Agbekaku of Nigeria tied for second at 17.18 (56-4 1/2), but the popular American was awarded the silver medal on the basis of a better second jump.

Marita Koch of East Germany and Diane Williams of the United States won the day's other medals, placing second and third respectively, in the women's 100 in 11.02 and 11.06.

Afterward, Williams put the meet in perspective.

"This World Championship has been a very sad one," she said, reflecting on the injuries.

Ashford's breakdown followed by one day injuries to Cuba's Alberto Juantorena and Italy's Sara Simeoni, both Olympic gold medalists and former world record holders.

Juantorena, winner of the 400 and 800 meters in the 1976 Summer Games underwent surgery Monday after suffering torn ligaments and a broken bone in his right foot as he fell while crossing the finish line in an 800 heat.

Simeoni, the 1980 Olympic champion in the women's high jump, suffered a pulled leg muscle during Monday's qualifying and had to be carried off on a stretcher.

Britain's Keith Connor, the heavy favorite for the triple jump gold medal, also failed to get through the qualifying because of a heel injury.

Also Monday, Udo Beyer of East Germany, the world record holder in the men's shot put, wound up only sixth in the final after competing with a thigh bruise, and Julie Brown of the United States withdrew from the women's marathon about five miles from the finish Sunday after severely injuring her right Achilles' tendon. At the time, Brown was just behind the eventual winner, Grete Waitz of Norway.

In addition, Britain's Sebastian Coe, the 1980 Olympic 1,500-meter champion and world record holder in the 800 and 1,000 meters, is out of the World Championships with a glandular ailment; Pam Spencer, former American record holder in the women's high jump, withdrew after suffering a torn Achilles' tendon, and American sprinter Chandra Cheeseborough pulled out of the women's 100 and 200 because of a groin injury.

Another ailing star is Alberto Salazar of the United States. Salazar, the fastest marathoner in history, has been slowed by a severe case of bronchitis and barely survived the heats of the 10,000 meters, earning the last place in the final.

Ashford was running about even with Gohr when her dreams for a gold medal in the 100 ended.

"She felt it (the injury to the hamstring) at 60 meters and she felt it pop," said Dr. Tony Daly, the physician for the American team. "She was aware of it, but she wanted to try it anyway."

Meanwhile, Lewis' triumph in the men's 100 put him on his way toward his goal of three gold medals.

He also is the overwhelming favorite in the long jump and is to anchor the United States' 400-meter relay team that also is a prohibitive favorite.

BSHS boosters meet Tuesday

The Big Spring High booster club will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the school cafeteria.

Top item on the agenda is planning club activities for the 1983 season which begins with the Sept. 2 opener against Snyder in Memorial Stadium.

Spokesman Ben Bancroft encourages all Steer boosters to attend the preparatory meeting.

HC boxers collect more wins

The Howard County Boxing Club will be in San Antonio this weekend for a five-day tournament.

The team is fresh off top performances at the Senior Olympics in Fort Worth this past weekend and a six-win effort at the Austin Aqua Festival Boxing Tournament.

Gene Dukes, Dan Dukes, Jamie Baldwin and Martin Baldwin came away winners in Austin, all by unanimous decision.

Soccer clinic set Sept. 9-10

A North Texas State Soccer Association representative will direct a soccer coaches clinic Sept. 9-10 at the YMCA.

The sessions are scheduled from 6:30-9:30 p.m. Friday and again from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday. A $7.50 refundable deposit is due by Aug. 27. A minimum of 15 coaches are needed to present the clinic.

Call the Y at 267-8234 for more information.

All-star tryouts Wednesday

Tryouts are scheduled Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the YMCA for soccer players ages 12-13.

A team of all-stars will be selected to represent Big Spring in future competition.

Players are asked to bring their soccer ball.

'Fill the Stadium' meeting

An organizational meeting planning a "Fill the Stadium" night is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

Ten Big Spring civic clubs are involved in the project with hopes of bringing a large crowd to the Steers-Snyder football game Sept. 2 in Memorial Stadium.

Youth football registers

Registration begins Aug. 18 for the Big Spring Youth Football League.

The registration period covers Aug. 18-20 from 4:30-8 p.m. and Aug. 20 from 9 a.m.-12 noon at the Howard College student union building.

The league is designed for fifth and sixth grade students in the Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan school districts. Players must be accompanied by a parent or adult guardian, bring a copy of their birth certificate and a $10 registration fee.

For more information, call 263-1084.

C-City slates softball event

COLORADO CITY — The C-City "Low-rider" Class B softball tournament is scheduled this weekend at Hertenberger Field.

Entry fee is $95 per team, limited to the first 16 teams to enter. Trophies go to the first place team while 10-man all-tournament, most valuable player, golden glove and team sportsmanship awards will be presented.

Contact Ronny Arispe at 915-728-8679 or Light Rivera at 915-728-5120 to enter.

UH Coogs need consistency at quarterback position

HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Yeoman recognizes Lionel Wilson as a gifted quarterback but adds his senior field general must stop making gifts of the football.

The Cougars suffered through a disappointing 5-5-1 season in 1982, hampered by 34 turnovers — 17 fumbles and 17 interceptions.

Wilson threw 13 interceptions last season and 11 the year before.

That's got to change, Yeoman said.

"At the quarterback spot, and this doesn't come as a shock, we're going to have to get more careful play," Yeoman said. "We can't have the fumbles and the interceptions that we've had the last couple of years and still expect to play the way we should."

Wilson has established 12 UH records and has accounted for 3,766 total yards in the last two seasons, the second highest total in UH history. But fumbles and interceptions have checked his performance.

"Lionel Wilson is a very gifted athlete but he has to be more careful with the football to play," Yeoman said.

The Cougars face a major rebuilding problem with only one returning starter in the offensive line, guard Scott Marshall, who has started every UH game for the past two years.

Duane Losack a senior from East Bernard, at right tackle and Earl Jones, a 300-pound senior from Houston, at right guard.

Now that Audrey McMillian has moved to free safety, Wilson is the lone returning letterman at quarterback. Wilson's early fall practice will be critical because he missed spring drills because of arthroscopic knee surgery.

"Lionel definitely could have used the work in the spring," Yeoman said.

"He really needed to work on his timing with the receivers."

The Cougars will operate more out of the I formation this season with senior Dwayne Love a solid starter at fullback and Donald Jordan, returning from a knee operation, the likely tailback.

Houston returns a strong receiving corps including split end Larry Shepherd, flanker David Roberson and tight end Carl Hilton.

Defensively, Houston must replace all four members of the defensive secondary. Yeoman has installed McMillian at free safety and Greg Purcell at strong safety. The cornerbacks will be Dewayne Bowden and Orsby Crenshaw.

The Cougars open the season Sept. 1 at Rice Stadium against the Owls and close out Nov. 26 against Southern Methodist in the Mirage Bowl in Tokyo.

First in a series; coming next, a look at the Rice Owls.

Steer equipment to be issued

Big Spring football gets underway tomorrow for the varsity, junior varsity, sophomore and ninth-grade players. The following schedule details workout times for each group.

August 10, 11 & 12 — Issue equipment from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Varsity, JV and sophomores at the high school dressing room. Ninth-grade gets equipment at the practice field at Runnels Field House.

August 15, 16 & 17 — Varsity Workout from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. JV, sophomore and ninth-grade workout from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

August 18 — Varsity Workout from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m. JV, sophomore and ninth-grade workout from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

August 19 — Varsity Workout from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. (full pads). Varsity, JV and sophomore scrimmage at 4 p.m.

August 25 — Varsity, JV, sophomore and ninth-grade scrimmage at Sweetwater at 5 p.m.

Rivers runs Rangers to win

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox blamed umpire Tim Welke. They would have been as accurate pointing their fingers at Texas' Mickey Rivers and their own Mark Clear.

Rivers' aggressive running and Clear's poor pitching enabled the Rangers to snap a 7-7 tie with a five-run ninth inning that gave them a 12-7 win Monday night.

With the score tied, Rivers doubled, then was ruled safe by Welke when he slid into third on Billy Sample's bunt. Boston Manager Ralph Houk and reliever Bob Stanley were ejected in the argument that followed.

Yankees 8-11, Blue Jays 3-3

It seems now that the Toronto Blue Jays may be an endangered species.

"We were out for a little bit of revenge because of how we were treated in Toronto and we got it tonight," said Dave Winfield, whose hitting helped the New York Yankees to a doubleheader sweep of the faltering Blue Jays, 8-3 and 11-3 Monday night.

Indians 9, Orioles 4

In Baltimore, Broderick Perkins and George Vukovich drove in two runs apiece as Cleveland scored six times in the third inning to beat the Orioles.

Winner Rick Sutcliffe, 13-7, ending a three-game losing streak, allowed five hits, including a grand slam homer in the fourth by Joe Nolan. Sutcliffe struck out seven and walked five.

Storm Davis, 10-5, was the loser.

American League

White Sox 5-2, Tigers 4-7

In Detroit, Tom Paciorek belted a three-run homer to lead Chicago over Detroit in the first game of their doubleheader. Paciorek's homer highlighted a four-run Chicago third.

Larry Herndon's three-run homer backed the five-hit pitching of Jack Morris as the Tigers won the nightcap.

Royals 5-5, Brewers 2-8

In Kansas City, U.L. Washington singled home the go-ahead run in the seventh inning to lead the Royals to a comeback victory over Milwaukee in the opener of a doubleheader.

Roy Howell collected four hits to pace a 16-hit attack that carried the Brewers to victory in the second game.

Twins 4, Angels 2

In Anaheim, Gary Gaetti and Tom Brunansky led off the fifth inning with homers to spark Minnesota over California.

Gaetti, who initiated a triple play in the fourth inning, and Brunansky picked on consecutive pitches by Tommy John, 8-9, to erase California's 2-0 lead. It was the 16th homer for each.

Ron Washington and Tim Laidner then singled before Darrell Brown bounced into a double play as Washington scored the tiebreaking run.

A's 2, Mariners 1

In Seattle, Dwayne Murphy and Garry Hancock homered in the fourth inning off Jim Beattie to lead Oakland over the Mariners.

Tim Conroy, 5-4, pitched seven innings and notched his third straight victory. The surprising A's won for the 11th time in their last 15 games and moved into fourth place in the AL West, passing the Angels.

"They both hit sinkers that didn't sink — until they went over the fence," said Beattie, 8-8.

Mets sneak by Expos in 10 innings

MONTREAL (AP) — Even in defeat, Montreal Expos Manager Bill Virdon conceded he had watched a good baseball game.

"It was an exceptional game; it's too bad we had to come out of it on the losing end," said Virdon after the Expos bowed 6-5 in 10 innings to the New York Mets, who have won eight of their last nine games.

The defeat, which snapped Montreal's four-game winning streak and dropped the second place Expos two games behind Philadelphia — 14-5 winners over Pittsburgh in the only other National League game Monday night — in the East Division, was not among the easier ones for Virdon to handle.

The Expos trailed 5-1 after a five-run sixth inning by New York, but rallied to tie the score in the seventh.

In the 10th, Mets rookie Darryl Strawberry hit a one-out triple.

Montreal reliever Jeff Reardon, 5-6, threw a couple of pitchouts in case Bob Bailor, the next batter, planned to squeeze home Strawberry from third. He finally issued Bailor an intentional walk, which promptly played a prominent role in the outcome.

National League

National League

After making one attempt to pick Bailor off first, Reardon tried it again and fired the ball past first baseman Al Oliver, allowing Strawberry to score the winning run.

"I was really surprised he threw over to first," said Strawberry. "But you can't underestimate Bobby Bailor; he's a good base stealer, and you've got to hold him close, which is what Jeff was trying to do."

Reardon declined to discuss the play because he said he didn't see it clearly. He referred reporters to Oliver, who said: "The ball was low and it bounced into the runner's leg as he headed back into first base. But that one play didn't lose the game for us."

"You can't put the blame on one player. When you lose, you lose as a team."

Jesse Orosco, 10-5, got the victory with three innings of relief. He has five victories and two saves in the last eight days and hasn't allowed an earned run in the last 19 1-3 innings.

Phillies 14, Pirates 5

In Philadelphia, Mike Schmidt was a one-man wrecking crew, hitting two home runs, driving in five runs and scoring four. Schmidt, who moved into 25th place on the all-time home run list with 375, also took over the NL lead in homers with 26, one more than Dawson.

The Phillies overcame a three-run deficit with five runs in both the fourth and fifth innings.

Bonneau advances to face Lendl

MONTREAL (AP) — Canadian Stephane Bonneau doesn't figure to make it past his second-round opponent, second-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, but he certainly showed some character under the most annoying of conditions to advance beyond the first round of the Player's International tennis tournament.

The Quebec City native's 6-2, 7-6 victory Monday over fellow Canadian Dale Power of Ottawa was accomplished in the final match of the day, which was plagued by rain, wind and a power outage.

Bonneau, who took the first set 6-2, was trailing 5-1 in a second-set tiebreaker at 11:55 p.m. when the Jarry Park lights dimmed. Ten minutes later there was a total blackout, which induced many in the remaining crowd of about 400 fans in Jarry Park to leave.

After a 30-minute delay, Bonneau came back to win the tiebreaker 12-10.

Despite an afternoon thunderstorm that interrupted play for about 3½ hours, organizers had to reschedule just one match for today. That was the one between John Picken of Vancouver and 10th-seeded American Sandy Mayer.

Two rain delays didn't rattle 14th-seeded Wojtek Fibak of Poland, who defeated Christophe Roger-Vasselin of France 6-1, 6-7, 6-1.

"If you expect to play for this kind of money, you have to get used to anything — bad bounces on grass, thunder storms, bad calls," said Fibak, who wasn't about to play with a high net, however. "It was kind of a dumb thing ... I asked the umpire to check the net because I had a feeling it was too high. So he checked it and it was too high."

Also, Guy Forget of France beat American Todd Nelson 6-4, 6-3 and Gianni Ocleppo of Italy beat American Tim Wilkison 6-3, 6-4.

Mark Corwin: Distinguished 'graduate' of Big Spring Herald Carriers

Mark Corwin is a distinguished alumnus in the tradition of Big Spring Herald Carriers. Mark, a junior at Big Spring High School, has 'graduated' from the carrier ranks as school activities and plans for the future now take up more of his time. The record he leaves behind will be an inspiration to carriers for many years to come. In the almost four years that Mark delivered the Big Spring Herald, he was chosen Carrier of the Month several times, then was named 1982 Carrier of the Year, and went on to be chosen one of nine outstanding carriers in all of Texas last year, for which he received a $500.00 cash award. When he 'graduated' last month, the Herald presented him with a check for $1,523.10 which represented the money he had saved from his route plus interest earned in the Herald Cash Bond Savings plan. Chuck Benz, Herald Circulation Manager, commended Mark for his consistent excellent service to his customers. Mark, son of Tommy and Jo Beth Corwin, has developed sales and business skills that will provide a good foundation for his future. Congratulations, Mark! We wish you all the best.

Consumers spending more and saving less since recession

NEW YORK (AP) — If any rainy days lie ahead for the economy, American consumers apparently aren't saving for them.

Just a few months out of a long recession, they are spending far more and saving much less than most economists expected.

The savings rate, as calculated by the Commerce Department, fell in the second quarter of this year to its lowest level in more than 30 years. At the same time, personal consumption increased sharply.

Whether you view this behavior as heartening or worrisome depends on your point of view. It is, some say, an impressive sign of confidence in the future, as well as a welcome stimulus to the economy. But it also raises some troubling questions.

What has become of efforts to increase the savings rate in this country, in order to marshal funds for capital investment, research and development, improvements in productivity and future growth?

President Reagan's economic programs have stressed this objective. It was thought that extending eligibility for Individual Retirement Accounts to all working people in this country would be a major step in that direction.

It may yet prove to be. But a recent survey of more than 1,000 adults by R.H. Bruskin Associates, a New Brunswick, N.J., market research firm, found that just 15 percent had opened IRAs for 1982. That leaves a large proportion of the population who shrugged off a powerful tax incentive to saving.

Deposits into IRAs of up to $2,000 a year per individual can be deducted on current tax returns. Thus, for someone in the 33 percent tax bracket, the government is effectively chipping in $1 for every $2 the individual saves.

And dividends or interest earned on IRAs accumulate tax free until the account-holder withdraws money, typically after retirement.

A second nagging question: How long can consumers keep their spending up? At the recently depressed level of the savings rate, "it seems unlikely the consumer will dip further into savings to support spending," says Carol Brock Kenney, chief economist at the investment firm of Shearson-American Express.

"If the savings rate stabilizes or rises, then the recovery in consumer spending will be completely dependent on the outlook for disposable income," observes Edward Yardeni at Prudential-Bache Securities. "We think that consumer sentiment has peaked for a while and that the savings rate is more likely to rise than fall. We expect a less robust consumer recovery in the second half of the year."

A case can be made that the economy needs some extra saving, rather than spending, right now to help sustain the recovery. The money is needed in the bond markets, the reasoning goes, to help meet the heavy borrowing demands of the government to cover its budget deficit.

If the money is not there, interest rates would presumably have to keep rising until they reach levels high enough to attract it. High rates, in return, could slow or even reverse the economy's recent progress toward health.

A few years back, there was a handy explanation for consumers' penchant for spending. They were well aware of rapid inflation, and knew that it made sense to buy before the next price increase.

Inflation is down now, however, and many of the experts say they are confident it has been subdued. That brings us to one more question about consumer spending — do consumers, by continuing the spending pattern of recent inflationary times, know or sense something about future inflation trends that the experts have missed?

...Shirley Lee, of the art department, and Randy Simmons

Gamco has complete services for printing

Whatever your printing needs, check with Gamco Printing on the Snyder Highway. They are prepared to do what they can to meet those needs. They will design and create custom artwork in color or black and white for logos, business cards, letterheads, menus, brochures and annual reports.

No job is too big or small, says Randy Simmons, manager of the printing division. He and his staff are equipped to print for Gamco's educational development division, so they have the skills, equipment and experience to do your job right the first time.

Gamco has a Heidelberg offset printing press that can print full color up to 23" by 25" sheets.

They also do photography and layouts for presentations, advertising literature and magazine and newspaper advertising.

Gamco can print with quality. They can typeset or handletter club yearbooks, charts and posters, programs and bulletins.

They will also custom print promotional pieces, business forms, annual reports, newspaper inserts, programs, tickets, stickers, labels, business cards and numbered forms.

And Gamco can bind up to 68 pages. Their darkroom is equipped to halftone, do color separations, reverses, negatives, prints and enlargements or reductions.

Gamco offers free pick-up and delivery. They will give free consultations in your office to discuss your printing needs.

Through May 31, Gamco will offer 500 free business cards for every order of $75 or more.

Quite simply, Gamco offers the most complete printing in town. Give them a call today at 267-6327.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 10, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Lots of activity in the little things of everyday life is very good. You would be wise to concentrate upon the details of whatever you are interested in.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle your work more efficiently now so that you can gain more income and feel more secure in the days ahead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get your personal appearance improved and look and feel more magnetic. Then you can make a better impression on others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Fine day for getting your home just as you want it to be, and doing whatever will please kin, also. Socialize with friends.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A fine day for communicating and corresponding with others and getting shopping, errands done also.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Stop being so impulsive and find the best way of handling financial affairs. Study any property for possible improvements.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take those treatments you may need for better health and improve your appearance also. Buy new clothes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have secret maneuverings to handle and should get an early start on them to get right results. Persevere.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Ideal day to see good friends and renew acquaintanceships and deepening relationships. Enjoy personal amusements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into your vocational work and be most efficient at it. See that influential person about your ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get those ideas in motion now that you have been procrastinating about and be more successful in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although your mind is on friends, it is best to stick to business at hand and get much done and also set up a new budget.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Best time to confer with partners and exchange ideas for greater success in the future. Come to a meeting of the minds.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very good at organizational work and carrying through with plans in a most precise and accurate way. Teach early not to take so much time for unnecessary details that the big issues are ignored.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Keith Crawford strikes up a tune at the Old Settlers Reunion.

PLENTY OF THINGS TO SEE AND DO

Folks from all over the area flock to Big Spring for a calendar of events that would make any community proud.

The famous RCA Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo each June draws top name contenders from across the nation. A Western dance (often to the tune of our own Hoyle Nix and the West Texas Cowboys) rounds out the event.

Old Settlers Reunion is the popular annual meeting and dinner on the ground for pioneer men and women and their descendents who gather each year from far and near to reminisce and remember the way it was. The forbears of this clan began to settle here in 1877.

Each Autumn the Howard County Fair brings out spectators and participants alike to enjoy a weekend of exhibitions, booths, home and craft demonstrations, carnival rides.

The Arts & Crafts Festival in October features local and national artists and craftsmen.

The Rattlesnake Round-Up in the Spring is a unique event in which hunters round up and display these well-known reptiles.

This year we've added the annual Shriners Pro-Am Golf Tournament, featuring celebrity golfers from the entertainment and sports world.
