B. H. S. Dramatic Club To Buy New Stage Scenery

The Baird High School Dramatic Club is working extremely hard to put new stage scenery and a new velvet curtain on the Baird High School stage. Not only are they sponsoring plays and play tournaments but they have gone into the business of selling magazines to raise money for this worthy purpose. They have a list of the best magazines on the market which they are soliciting subscriptions too.

If you are thinking of subscribing to a magazine in the near future and will give your order to some member of the dramatic club, it will certainly help the club to equip the stage.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Earning scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Lesson for March 6

SERVING WITH WHAT WE HAVE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Such as I have give I thee.—Acts 3:6.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus went home to Nazareth. JUNIOR TOPIC—On a Journey for Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Serving With What We Have. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Serving With What We Have.

One of the difficulties we mortals face in dealing with spiritual things is that we interpret things in the realm of the spirit according to the principles and measurements of the physical world. We are quick to say "We cannot" on the basis of logical human reasoning, when an appreciation of the power of God operative on our behalf would enable us to say "We can," and having left God out of our thinking we find that indeed we cannot.

The lesson before us presents two pictures from our Lord's second visit to his home country, Nazareth. On His first visit he had tried to thrust Him over the precipice, and He in all the glory and poise of the Son of God had walked through their midst and gone His way. Now He comes again with His disciples. We then see how His home folk virtually made the power of the omnipotent God impotent because of their unbelief. On the other hand we see the weakness of men made mighty because of obedience to the command of God.

I. The Paralysis of Unbelief (vv. 1-6).

The world, the flesh, and the devil have brought forth a dark list of wicked things, but perhaps the most destructive and distressing of all is the foundation sin of unbelief. When we think back to the underlying reason for any sin or weakness in man it will be found that there is a failure to believe God. Men do not believe what He says about sin and its penalty, nor do they believe Him when He offers them grace and strength for victory.

At Nazareth the unbelief which limited the Son of God revealed itself in two questions—

1. "Whence hath this man these things?" (v. 2).

They could not deny His mighty works so they turn their attack on His person. "Is not this the carpenter?" (v. 3). Essentially this was envy, "the difficulty of acknowledging the superiority over themselves of one of their own number." (Morgan).

We are ashamed of the attitude of the men of Nazareth, but we follow in their footsteps. Heavy among the burdens a Christian worker must bear is the unbelief and ridicule of his own people. Because a man has sold us groceries, or painted our house or driven a taxi in our town we cannot see how he could ever be a preacher or a missionary. Well, he can, and it is such folk that God often calls.

2. "What is this wisdom?" (v. 2).

The wisdom of Jesus was the wisdom of God (John 7:16). But how could they know that? How can we know? In John 7:17 Jesus gave the answer: "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." We see then that the reason for their unbelief was really an unwillingness to do the will of God. The controlling motive of their life was wrong. Had they been moved by a desire to do God's will, and a purpose to live in accordance therewith (even though there might have been failure in that earnest effort), they would have known that Jesus had His wisdom from God.

The principle is just as true today; no man will long be in doubt who really wants to do God's will in his life.

II The Power of Divine Commission (vv. 7-13).

Just as unbelief hinders even the Son of God, so faith in God and obedience to His command makes of weak and poorly equipped men the mighty servants of God. In fact, their very dependence on Him for all things sets them free to devote themselves fully to the ministry of preaching and healing.

Note that they went "two by two." We have forgotten that divine plan, and often send men into remote and dangerous pioneer work—alone. Man needs fellowship; he needs counsel and control.

Consider also how they were to learn to trust God for their daily sustenance (vv. 8,9). They suffered no lack (see Luke 22:35). These rules for the life of religious workers were modified later (Luke 22:36), but the principle remains the same—the man or woman who is not ready to depend on God for everything had better not set out to follow Him. It is a blessed and delightful life!

The same is true of the power given the disciples. They ministered in the days of beginning of the Gospel and God gave them special powers which are not needed in our day. But it is still true that the power for service which we so much need today must come from God. All our labors are in vain without His blessing. "Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build it" (Ps. 127:1).

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"The Murdering Horde"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO, EVERYBODY: Here, boys and girls, is one of the strangest yarns I have seen in a long time—sent to me by Edward E. Kaplan of New York City. It is a story that takes us to India, the land of oddity and mystery—to the year 1928 when, as Ed says, wild animal films were coining money for their producers.

Ed is a movie cameraman, and that's how he happened to be in India with a crew that was taking animal pictures. They were in the Rajmahal hills, near Karbarbari, in Behar province—quartered at the edge of the jungle, not far from the tents of a semi-savage native tribe. The natives were friendly. Somebody had once built a mud and plaster house up there. So the movie crew moved into it.

Says Ed: "One of my first acts was to take out my girl's picture and nail it on the wall. A native boy frowned as I started, but I ignored his warning. As I drove in the first nail the plaster crumbled, leaving an inch wide hole. The boy drew back, and I soon knew why.

Black Bugs Came Out of the Hole.

"An ugly black bug came out of the hole—and dozens and scores more followed the first. I couldn't stop them until the boy brought a piece of wet paper to plug the hole and killed all those crawling around us. Then I understood why the natives lived in tents. Hordes of insects hollowed the walls of every house built in that locality."

Now let's leave those strange bugs till later. On the twelfth day, Ed came down with fever, and the crew went off leaving him behind. Ed tossed feverishly on his cot all day. In the evening they still hadn't returned, so Ed spent that first dreadful night alone.

At dawn, though, he was awakened by loud cries from the native tents. He lay still for a while, wondering what was wrong, for he felt too weak to get up and investigate. By raising himself on his elbows, Still They Came Mounting Up and Up.

though, he could see through the open doorway. The sun beat down with a bright, powerful heat, and the ground shimmered like lacquer.

Then, strangely enough, Ed saw a shadow—an immense black one, where no shadow should have been.

It was a long time before he realized what that shadow was. Then, suddenly, it came to him. Ants! Millions of them, moving in a great wave. Ed had seen vicious ants in small groups. They were long, and black, with vicious biting fangs. He had heard that they came in a great seasonal drove and that then they devoured everything that was before them.

Nothing Could Stop the Ant Horde.

The natives said they could kill a trapped elephant. No matter how you fought them they came on and on—millions of them to replace all that could be slain.

"My cot," says Ed, "offered me no safety from that oncoming horde. I was too weak to run. There was a half-barrel of boiled, purified water in one corner of the room. Also there were several film cans. I dragged myself over to them.

"The leading couriers of the ant pack were on the door sill as I filled four of the film cans with water and dragged them over to the table. In a few minutes I had each table leg resting in a can full of water. When I had finished, several ants were climbing my ankles. I staggered to my feet and crawled up on the table."

Ed had no sooner gotten himself set on that table than the ants began coming in droves. The floor became black—solid black—every inch of it. And still hordes of the insects came crawling on. They poured into a mouse hole in the wall. They scoured nests of other insects looking for eggs. They swarmed over the movie crew's food supply like one great, black blanket. An army of them tried to reach Ed. As fast as they mounted the water cans to reach the table legs, they drowned.

"But," says Ed, "the drowned ants floated. The live ones began crawling across over their bodies. They got to the table legs. I smashed them as fast as I could, but one table leg was covered with them, and still they came, mounting up and up."

They Fled From the Dreadful Bugs.

Ed began to think he was done for just about then—began to think he had come all the way to India just to furnish a meal to a flock of scavenger ants. But suddenly there was a crash. A wall, undermined by the ants, collapsed. Plaster fell all around. Then followed a strange spectacle.

"Out of the wall," says Ed, "came a shower of the ugly black bugs that I had seen the day before when I tried to tack up my girl's photo. At the sight of those bugs, the ants turned to flee. The black bugs went crawling after them. Death fought death!"

"The ants outnumbered the bugs, thousands to one. They could have slaughtered them easily. But they fled before the bugs as though they dreaded their very sight. Sicker than ever, I watched the shadowy wave move on. In half an hour not a single ant was in sight, but I stayed on the table until late that evening when the members of my party returned. If they hadn't taken my camera along with them what a picture I could have filmed. And all they got was a 'shot' of a swinging monkey!"

Dutch Olykoeks

Dutch olykoeks, or stuffed raised doughnuts, were made with great ceremony. The yeast was set to lighten a little after noon. Just before supper this was made into a rich dough by the addition of many eggs, much butter, and nutmeg flavoring. At bedtime the dough was kneaded. Next morning it was shaped into balls, each stuffed with a mixture of chopped apple, raisins, and candied peel. These were left to rise until after dinner, when they were cooked in hot fat and then rolled generously in sugar.

Seeds to the Pound

Seed dealers talk glibly of the numbers of seed to the pound; did you know that lobelias run 12,000,000 to a pound, and that there are more than 4,000,000 tiny potential red clover plants in one pound?

Birds Have Equal Rights

The female phalarope attained equal rights ages ago. Its plumage, contrary to general rule, is brighter than the male's and it runs at large while the male minds the eggs.

Genre Painting

Though practiced in early art, as Pompeian frescoes show, and in the Middle Ages, genre painting was not recognized independently until the Sixteenth century in Flanders, where it was popularized by Pieter Bruegel. It reached its heyday in Holland in the Seventeenth century with Gerard Dou, Ter Borch, Metsu, De Hooch, Vermeer and others of note and extended to France and England in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth centuries. Among its exponents were Watteau, Chardin, Morland, Vibert, Boughton and Wilkie.

Kolinski From Weasel Animal Kolinski fur is from a weasel animal, found on the Island of Kolin. It was a Russian who found the island, and also discovered the animal. The suffix "ski" in Russian is possessive; hence, the name Kolinski.

Artillery Ranges

Artillery of the period of 1800 was fired at a maximum range of 1,000 yards. The most effective range is at a point-blank range which is approximately 300 yards.

DORIS DENE'S COLUMN

Daughter's Sacrifice Won't Make Devoted Parents Happy.

DEAR DORIS DENE: I am nineteen and for two years have tried to help my parents who are in financial need. I have not been successful as my job just about supports me. Now I am offered marriage by a much older man. He seems to love me. I have nothing for him but respect and some affection. He can give me everything I need and also make life different for my father and mother. They are my chief worry in life. We are a very devoted family.—Anne H. F.

ANSWER—You can't make a devoted family happy and comfortable through your own unhappy marriage. And no girl of nineteen can marry an older man she does not love and escape much disillusionment and heart-ache before she is through.

Other girls have tried the experiment you propose to make. It's gone well for a while. The devoted daughter in a glow of gratitude to the man who is helping to give her family the comforts they need believes herself to be happy. For a few months she is contented merely to know that her people are being taken care of. Relief from an ever-present worry makes her spirits soar and causes her to believe that she has found life's truest happiness.

But in another few months some of her exultation dies down. Even the most self-sacrificing girl in the world begins to want a happiness more personal than that offered by the spectacle of her parents' well-being. As she learns to accept the fact that the wolf is now established permanently at a respectful distance from the door of the ancestral mansion so her joy in this fact diminishes and her demand for another kind of happiness begins.

It is then that she begins to criticize the man she has married; to realize that she can never love him—and that but for her first blind delight in sheer material comforts, she would never have been able to stand him. All his faults are magnified in her eyes. Even gratitude cannot keep her from expressing her unfavorable opinions bluntly. Because she is not in love she cannot make her benefactor happy. And he shortly comes to know the bitterness of being unwanted except for his money—while his young inexperienced wife struggles desperately to conceal her distaste for an unloved spouse.

The result is sordid domestic misery. And it is inconceivable that the parents of the self-sacrificing daughter can find pleasure or happiness in the comforts which have been given at the cost of their child's happiness.

DEAR MISS DENE: I am eighteen and am in love with a boy of whom my parents do not approve because of his nationality and religion. He is wealthy and gives me a very good time. Should I break off with him to please my parents? I now see him every day. I enjoy reading your column every day.—D. G.

ANSWER—No good running around with the boy if you have to do it on the sly. That kind of romance never made for permanent happiness. The sly date may give you a romantic thrill but it doesn't give you the faintest chance to know and understand the boy you're going with.

On the other hand it would be a pity if you broke up a nice friendship simply because your hero happened to be of a different race and creed from yourself.

Why not compromise with father and mother? Ask them for a square deal. Ask that you be allowed to entertain the unwelcome guest in your own home, under the parental eye. Perhaps if your fond parents had an opportunity to know your beau ideal they might appreciate some of his good points.

Dancing M.: It's not a question of ethics, my girl, just a case of plain bad manners.

Nobody has invented any laws yet to cover the conduct of a young lady who has been escorted to a dance by a beau she doesn't care a hang about. The whole question is just a matter of personal opinion—and personally I think you behaved very badly.

If you use a man as an entrance ticket to a dance, you might accord him the same courtesy you would show to the keeper of the zoo when he gives you the special privilege of going inside the monkey-house for a few minutes. That's all I claim.

It is simply good taste to show, occasionally during an evening, that you recognize the boy who brought you to the dance, and who paid for the taxi and who will probably have to take you home. It is definitely not unreasonable of the lad to demand one dance with the fair lady whom he mistakenly supposed wanted him to be her escort for the evening.

If you persist in your rather casual treatment of swains, Dancing M., you'll find that your popularity with the stag-line will be of no use to you, since no practical minded man will bear the expense of escorting you to the dance where the stags are at play.

Body Needs Plenty of Water

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

GENERALLY speaking most of us should drink about four to six glasses of water daily, in addition to the water in foods and in beverages such as tea and coffee.

Some idea of the great need of water in the body can be gathered if we remember that every cell is really like a tiny fish and must have water to nourish it, and to receive and carry away its wastes.

Fortunately Nature had this in mind because every foodstuff, no matter how dry in appearance or taste, contains some water—peanuts as low as 8 per cent and lettuce as high as 90 per cent. Thus even if one drank no water whatever he could get sufficient in foods such as tomatoes, string beans, cabbage, carrots, apples, oranges and other fruits. Lean beef contains almost 80 per cent of water.

Why It Is Necessary.
"Water is necessary to life for two main reasons—(1) because the chemical changes required to sustain life can take place only when the reacting substances are dissolved in water, and (2) because water is needed for flushing away the waste products formed from the various processes going on in the body." Thus the cells from a chick which Dr. Alexis Carrel has kept alive for nearly 20 years are enabled to grow and multiply only because they are kept in a tank of water containing a little salt which nourishes the tissues and allows the waste products to escape into it. The water is of course changed periodically.

Water also regulates the body temperature, retaining heat in cold weather and carrying the heat out of the body in the form of perspiration during hot weather.

There is no hard and fast rule as to how much water or liquid an individual should drink daily. If there is a tendency to cold, a rise in temperature, an attack of diarrhoea or vomiting, severe bleeding or other condition causing a loss of water from the body, more water should be taken to replace it. Water is also very helpful at the beginning and during an illness in carrying wastes from the body more rapidly. A little salt added to the water enables the tissues to hold more water.

Overweight individuals do not need as much water as those of average weight as fat tissue holds more water within it than do other tissues.

Leave the Normal Fat.
One of the leading heavyweight wrestlers has a beautiful physique and is a fast, strong, intelligent, good-looking fellow. Although his weight is announced as 202 to 205, it is likely that his real weight is 10 to 15 pounds less. His muscles stand out on all parts of the body—the abdomen like a "washboard," the upper back like a rectangle, and the arms and legs like whiplash. And he knows how to wrestle.

However as his wrestling engagements take him to all parts of the country, with a great amount of fast traveling—motor, train, and airplane—it is just a question how long his "nerves" will stand up under the strain.

Why?
Simply because he may not have enough fat on and in his body.

If he were a boxer, getting ready for an important bout, to be down as "fine" as he is at present would be wise because the boxer has to make a certain weight at a definite time. Also a boxer allows himself to accumulate a little fat between bouts.

Practically all the heavyweight wrestlers keep themselves comfortably overweight—a little layer of fat covering their muscles. They lose 5 to 10 pounds during a 30 to 60 minute bout, but have that 5 to 10 pounds back on the body for their bout the following night. Of course much of this 5 to 10 pounds that comes and goes is made up of liquids as wrestlers drink a great deal of water and sometimes beer; very few if any indulge in hard liquor. But to enable them to get rid of this weight, perspire properly during the bout, and have the weight back the next evening, there must be a comfortable layer of fat under the skin and throughout the body to hold this water. Every pound of fat can hold three pounds of water.

Another benefit to the athlete of a little fat on and in the body and also the use of a little fat daily in the diet, is that fat "spares" to some extent the muscle tissue which is burned up during the exercise. That is, fat on or in the body supplies the heat and energy during work or exercise and thus preserves the muscle tissue—the strength giving or strength part of the body. Of course when all the fat is used up and work continues then the muscles of the body have to supply the fuel for energy.

$25,000,000 Virgin Islands

Picture Parade

BECAUSE Senator Charles Sumner and President Andrew Johnson were political enemies in 1865, the United States lost $17,000,000 on its purchase of the Virgin Islands in 1917. Climaxing long negotiations, Denmark agreed to sell the three historic islands immediately after the Civil War for $5,000,000. Sumner's objection was forgotten by 1917, but by that time Denmark wanted $25,000,000, more money than the United States had paid for any territorial acquisition. But the Virgin Islands have long since established their value. Moreover, they are vastly interesting to the tourist, geographer or historian. For example, Charlotte Amalie (above) utilizes its sea water for sanitation and fire fighting through a new FWA pumping system, also using rain water to quench its inhabitants' thirst. At the left American property owners survey their lands from the ruins of the "great house," formerly occupied by Danish governors of the Virgin Islands.

Each March 31 the natives don ancient attire and celebrate "transfer day," marking the anniversary of America's purchase. Work is abandoned and jubilation rings up and down the three islands. Drums, tamborines and all available musical instruments are taken from the shelf and dusted. Jumble (ghost) dancers immortalize in measured dance rhythm the lives and deeds of renowned Biblical characters, the favorite impersonations being David and Goliath. Up and down twisting roads the jumble troupe repeats its performance.

Here are silent cannon in the courtyard of Fort Frederick, St. Croix island. Built in 1760 under the reign of good Danish King Christian V, its first administrator was Baron von Prock, then governor-general of the Virgin Islands. Most Americans believe the islands are barbaric, not realizing their history is far older than that of the United States. But today the American flag flies over Fort Frederick, on a staff which once supported the white crossed, red flag of Denmark.

Tourists visiting this ancient barracks and military barracks seldom recall that the Virgin Islands were once a cause of considerable international hard feeling, most of it resulting from Denmark's negotiations with the United States. Prussia resented the deal and Denmark was not in a position to incur such antagonism. Secondly, the British foreign office distrusted the plan, while a third stumbling block was Denmark's treaty with France in 1733, practically binding the Danes not to sell St. Croix without consent of France. Since Emperor Napoleon III disliked the United States, Denmark hardly knew which way to turn. These were only a few of the reasons why America spent 52 years bargaining for the islands before the sale was finally completed.

Virgin Islands attract larger tourist crowds each year.

UNCLE SAM is the producer of "The River," regarded by many as the greatest of current motion pictures, and one of the greatest motion pictures of all time. Specifically, "The River" was produced for the Farm Security Administration by Pare Lorentz, a former New York film reviewer, who for the past two years has been turning down big-money offers from Hollywood in favor of working for the government.

"This is the story of the Mississippi, where it comes from, where it goes, what it has meant to us, and what it has cost us," the beautiful voice of Thomas Chalmers intones as the picture starts. From then on in magnificently photographed scenes we are shown an epic. The Mississippi rising in rebellion is far more stirring and majestic than all the actors you have ever seen in imaginary crises.

Months ago David Selznick and Paulette Goddard, who sometimes answers to the name of Mrs. Charles Chaplin, indulged in a bitter argument. Friends reported that Paulette expected to play the role of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind." Mr. Selznick replied crisply that she was not even being considered for it, and Paulette was so upset she said she wouldn't play it even if he begged her to. Now they have patched up their troubles, she has signed a contract and both admit that if her tests are satisfactory she'll play the role.

Kate Smith had a guest star on her program who cost her almost as much as the sponsor. The guest star was Hortense Odum, who took over a failing store a few years ago and built it into one of the greatest sources of women's fashions. Kate doesn't have much time for shopping, and she was so impressed by Mrs. Odum's talk that she gave lavish orders for her spring wardrobe then and there.

Peter Lorre, the sinister "Mr. Moto" of Twentieth Century-Fox films is never the victim of practical jokes in Hollywood. Folks out there know he always strikes back. When he was leaving London for America, his director had a big dray horse delivered to him at the last minute as a parting gift. Mr. Lorre sent the horse to a friend's farm, then arranged to have three hundred singing canaries delivered to the director at three in the morning.

Norma Shearer has never forgotten the stars whose pictures thrilled her when she was just getting started in pictures fifteen years ago. She gave the names of some fifty players to the casting director of her "Marie Antoinette" and asked that they should be given roles. It was hard to locate many of them, for in recent years hard luck, poverty, and despondency had dogged their footsteps, but now they are all happily at work.

ODDS AND ENDS—Between scenes of "Ireland in the Sky" the cast serenaded Toby Doolan with "Nice Work if You Can Get It" because for two days he did nothing but lie still on the floor while a cinema coroner and his assistants pronounced Doolan dead. . . . Warner Brothers are going to feature Olivia de Havilland and Anita Louise in "Studio Club" which they hope will be as great a picture as R. K. O.'s "Stage Door" . . . Pick and Pat, radio comedians, are going to make motion pictures for Republic. . . . Although pretty busy conducting the Magic Key and Friday night concert hours, Frank Black found time to stock his one hundred and eighteen acre Pennsylvania farm and now he is actually making money from his prize live stock and chickens.

Three Frocks—a Wardrobe

IF YOU want to be all set for a full and gay Spring, have these three dresses in your wardrobe. Something for morning, something for street and a lovely frock for afternoon parties. All three are easy to make. And you can have the complete group for a fraction of what you would usually spend, if you make them at home.

Shirtwaist Style.

Trim and tailored, this is the favorite silhouette for Spring. The skirt with kick pleat back and front is fun to wear, very comfortable for walking and going about your daily work. Note the yoke top and inverted pleat in back of bodice to permit perfect freedom. It is a grand spectator sports dress and will make up beautifully in silk crepe, rayon print or cotton fabrics.

Princess for Morning.

You'll feel sweet as sixteen in this pretty square-necked princess dress with fitted lines. The silhouette is molded and slim. Note the pretty sleeves, puffed high, to make the waistline look even smaller. Choose a pretty cotton print or one of the new rayons to make a dress as charming as the one shown. You'll find the pattern complete with sew chart telling you exactly how to proceed.

Fitted Lines for Afternoon.

Look lovely and picturesque in this frock on molded lines with uplift at the waist and soft shirring in front of bodice. The roll collar and low V neckline is very slenderizing. You'll enjoy the good lines, the flattery of this dress and its grand wearability. Whether it is a luncheon for six or a dinner at eight, you'll be correctly dressed in this frock.

TIPS to Gardeners

Good Start Important

THE value of a garden plant, vegetable or flower, depends greatly upon the start it gets; so give your seedlings ample care. Begin cultivation as soon as rows are visible, if soil is not wet. Work close to the small plants, cultivating shallower as they grow, to avoid injury to root growth. Cultivate often.

Irrigating should not be necessary the first week or ten days after seeds have sprouted. Harold Coulter, vegetable expert, advises that if the ground is baked hard and sprouts do not appear, the surface of the soil may be disturbed slightly with a rake.

Small seedlings may be irrigated in two ways: Mark a shallow trench about four inches from the row and run it full of water; or, using a fine spray, apply water from directly above the plants. Watering is most effective when done shortly after cultivation. The best time for irrigation is late afternoon or evening.

Small plants should be thinned as directed on seed packets.

CUT WORMS

Several reports have been received stating that small grains and garden crop damage by cut worms this year is unusually heavy.

The warm days during the latter part of January and early part of February caused the unusual activity of the worms at this early date, and it is hoped the recent cold snap has checked the work and damage of the insect.

On large areas such as grain fields grasshopper poison bait sown at the rate of 5 pounds per acre over the whole field is recommended. The formula is as follows: Bran: 50 lbs., Paris Green or white arsenic 2 lbs., Molasses one gallon, water, 2 gal. Mix the bran and arsenic or Paris Green thoroughly, then pour the molasses into the water and thoroughly mix, adding more water if necessary, until the entire mash is moist (not wet) and crumbly.

For garden crops the above formula may be cut down to 5 pounds of bran, 1-4 pound of Paris Green or White arsenic, and one teacupful of molasses. Since chickens are fenced out of the gardens the poison bran mash may be put in piles about the size of a small pecan near each plant to be protected.

PUTNAM BOYS' 4-H CLUB

Sixteen boys attended the regular meeting of the Putnam boys' club last Monday, February 21.

After questions concerning the work of each boy were disposed of the group was shown that when the small embryo peach inside the bud was a dark color it had been damaged by cold while the undamaged bud was not discolored in any way.

EULA CLUB ORGANIZED

Twenty-two boys in a 4-H Club meeting at Eula Friday, February 18th elected the following officers for 1938: President, Mickie Johnson; Vice-president, Doyle Whitley; Secretary, Mack Kniffen; Reporter, David Archer.

Following the election of officers the group was shown how to make a cleft, whip graft, and bark graft. Mr. C. E. Bagwell, instructor of the Eula school was a welcome visitor.

OPLIN 4-H CLUB MEETING

Twenty-eight boys attended the Oplin boys' 4-H Club meeting Thursday, February 17th. The meeting was called to order by vice-president A. D. Correll. The club roll was called by Secretary Troy Mask. Each member responded by giving a report of his demonstration.

The group of boys voted unanimously to hold night meetings as was done in 1937, at the suggestion of the principal of the school and club sponsor, Mr. Edgar Taylor.

Then following the business meeting various types of pruning shears and saws were shown the group. In addition to the pruning equipment a model V-shape slop trough and flat bottomed water trough for hogs was shown.

R. D. Williams announces in this issue of the Putnam News for commissioner of precinct No 3 Mr. Williams is too well known to need any introduction from this office, having been born and reared in Putnam. Mr. Williams is rancher and stock farmer and is well qualified to fill any office that he might ask for as he has had varied experiences in business along different lines. He served as county commissioner one year, and has been on the city school board for a number of years and on the city council for about ten years, besides serving as administrator of Callahan county for quite a while, making a number of years experience along the line of work he aspires to do in the county commissioners work. See Mr. Williams' announcement in another column and give him your consideration when you go to the polls.

—Putnam News

To The Voters of Precinct No. 3 As a candidate for commissioner of Precinct No. 3 I need no introduction as I have been reared in this commissioners' precinct This is the first time I have asked for an office in the county, although I have served as your commissioner. In 1919 there was a vacancy in the commissioners' office. I was asked to accept an appointment as commissioner by several voters and tax payers. I was appointed and served until July 1920 when Mr. Yeager was elected. I resigned so he could assume the office.

You who recall when I served as commissioner remember I spent your tax money very economically. I did my utmost to get for you 100 cents out of every dollar that was spent. If you elect me as commissioner next July I shall continue to spend your tax money as economically as you spend your own money for your personal expenses.

With my past experience as commissioner, and having paid

3¢ a Day— to keep Sickness Away!

What Owners Say Is What Counts!

Here's what MRS. AUBREY KENNEDY, Brownwood, Texas, thinks about her kerosene-operated Servel Electrolux:

"Everything you told me about what my Servel Electrolux would be and do for us has proven true—only you didn't tell half the story. Its operation has been very economical, burning only about a half gallon of kerosene per day during the hottest weather last summer. It keeps food, milk, cream, butter, leftovers, etc., perfectly. It has never failed to give more than an ample supply of ice cubes. I would not part with my Servel Electrolux."

From MRS. J. L. BRUMBELOW, El Paso, Texas, comes this statement on her gas-operated Servel Electrolux:

"I don't believe anyone could invest money in anything that is more beneficial to the whole family than an Electrolux. It will save enough on the ice bill and the foods left over from day to day to pay its way. You can be assured that the foods will be kept wholesome and delicious."

"It provides ice at any time it is needed and it will keep foods for a long period of time without them spoiling. The operating cost is so small that it is hardly noticed on the meter. No home with growing children should be without an Electrolux because of the need of wholesome foods for children."

- Operates on—

SERVEL ELECTROLUX
THE Gas REFRIGERATOR (OR KEROSENE)

THE one piece of home equipment the whole family enjoys is a Servel Electrolux—the Gas or Kerosene refrigerator. It is the only one that more than pays for itself. Ice cream every day, if you like. Delicious ices, frozen salads, frozen desserts of all kinds—your Servel Electrolux operates for as little as 2 or 3 cents per day!

And even more important than the pleasure is the safety it provides. Did you know that 70 per cent of all sickness is caused by what you eat or drink? Maybe you can't taste or smell the spoilage—but that doesn't mean it's not there! Can you afford to take chances, when Servel Electrolux protection costs as little as 2 or 3 cents per day?

And while it protects, it saves. Saves leftovers. Lets you buy bargains. Lets you buy in quantity. Servel Electrolux is the different refrigerator—different from all others. Its freezing unit has no moving parts. Nothing to wear. Nothing to make noise.

That's what makes Servel Electrolux an investment—one that more than pays for itself. Or—put it this way: You're paying for a Servel Electrolux now—why not own one? Why not NOW?

Different From All Others—No Other Refrigerator Can Give You All These Advantages...

- (1) Any home, anywhere, can enjoy it—runs on gas or kerosene.
- (2) No moving parts—no wear, no noise, and constant, steady cold—no starting, stopping.
- (3) Defrosts automatically.
- (4) Plenty of ice—twice the average family's daily needs.
- (5) Ice tray grids of stainless steel—a flip of your thumb gets the ice cubes out.
- (6) One piece seamless shell—a box as good as the freezing unit.

HITLER'S AUSTRIA COUP

Forces Schuschnigg to Put Nazis in His Cabinet . . . Further Demands Expected. . . Other Nations Alarmed

Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina is here pictured as he expounded his views on the farm bill. "Cotton Ed," who is chairman of the senate agricultural committee, said congress should provide a billion and a half to finance the farm program, instead of the half billion to which the cost is now limited.

can be realized. A mighty effort will be made in the latter part of this session of congress to enact it into law. A wage-hour law is such an important factor in the whole scheme that if it isn't passed the New Deal must be considered as having failed to cross over to the land of milk and honey.

Unorganized Labor For after all, only a small percentage of American labor is organized and able to demand high wages through collective bargaining. The rest are scattered, helpless and unable to make themselves heard.

Why has the wage-hour bill made no progress? Because only the administration is fighting for it. Industry is against such a law because it fears the government, given an inch, would take a mile and clamp more irons to its leg.

Besides the administration, of course, the millions of common workers want a minimum wage. They can vote, and it would seem that congress would respond to them.

SYNOPSIS

In Spanish-governed California of 1783 a conflict between Church and State is represented by two friendly enemies, frail old Fray Junipero Serra, Franciscan missionary, and Don Pedro Fages, civil governor. After telling Serra he is sending to Mexico for his wife and son, whom he has not seen for eight years, he refuses his aid toward founding the Santa Barbara Mission. In Mexico City, Dona Eulalia, accompanied by her daughter, Angustias, arrives at the embassy in response to a letter from her husband, Don Pedro. She agrees to go to California. Don Pedro sends for Serra, telling him that two priests are on their way from Mexico with Eulalia and young Pedro and that he is leaving to meet them. Fages engages a young Indian girl, Indruela, as maid for Eulalia. Eulalia sails from San Blas. It is a desolate trip.

"Hal!" she said again. "So! This beautiful land sends a scourge of vermin to plague me! Very well. I shall not weep—I shall not weaken. I shall conquer this California—or I will die."

She summoned little Pedro to her, and all afternoon, to the accompaniment of a dismal sand-scattering breeze, beguiled his imagination and comforted her desolation with stories that began, "When I was a little girl in beautiful Barcelona—"

For several days the ancient capital of Baja California stirred from its sun-and-sand-smitten lethargy to prepare La Gobernadora, as they already called Dona Eulalia, for her long journey to Monterey in California Alta. But the troubles with stubborn Indians trying to dispose of more stubborn burros, the difficulty in finding and buying satisfactory riding and pack animals, the labor of packing and provisioning food, water and clothing for a trip that would endure for months, concentered the lady not at all.

When at last the long caravan left Loreto, Eulalia was fairly comfortable on a white Spanish jennet.

It was a strange assortment of pilgrims which rode away from Loreto that morning at sunrise: La Gobernadora herself, hiding her repugnance beneath a demeanor carefully calm, but unusually pale; small Pedro, triumphant on a burro almost as small as himself; Angustias, her brittle bones boring her flesh agonizingly before Loreto was a mile behind, holding Chichi, the monkey, who was as afraid of the mule as the mule was of him. At the head of the van rode one Captain Canete, serious, troubled by his responsibility, a seasoned traveler and admiring friend of Pedro Fages. There were cooks, muleteers, water-tenders, vaqueros, Indian runners and bearers, tortillamakers, wood-cutters, soldiers and stragglers.

A little to themselves, heads withdrawn into the cowls of their Franciscan robes, two priests rode, their presence in the expedition an answer to Junipero Serra's prayers.

In the northern reaches of California Alta a hurrying party of horsemen followed the flying horse of the Governor of the Californias, spurred and lashed by his rider as the rider was spurred and lashed by hot impatience.

CHAPTER V

Leagues of Eulalia's journey lay behind; many terrible leagues traversed doggedly, day and night, with heat, dust, thirst, weariness and an awful numbing fear of the unknown that robbed her of rest. When, at the end of a day's travel, Eulalia lay on her pallet and felt sleep must come, that the blessing of complete oblivion and release from suffering would at last requite her, the blessing was denied. Always at the moment when she seemed slipping into unconsciousness, a rude hand gripped her weary heart and shook it cruelly, until her whole body trembled and sweat coldly.

During the first nights she would cry out, and creep to little Pedro's side for comfort, or summon Angustias to her. Then she grew ashamed of her childishness, and only lay the quieter when her fear specter haunted her.

Sitting before her campfire one night at the end of a trying day, she questioned herself. Why had she been persuaded to come on this journey? She, who was born to luxury, soft cushions and luxurious coaches?

Lifting her face she stared at the fire.

"Queen of the Californias!" she muttered bitterly.

Angustias, bustling into the circle of light broke into her rebellious musings.

"The two priests are coming to call on you, Dona Eulalia," she announced.

Eulalia did not move.

"Yes?" she questioned dully.

"Yes, and I think it's about time. Do you know, nina, I think there is something queer about those two. I have heard—"

Eulalia sniffed as her duena, with Chichi in her arms, hunched closer to the

"You would hear gossip on a desert isle, and you the only soul on it," she remarked, bending her ear, nevertheless, closer to her companion. "I have heard," continued Angustias, "that there are two people on this journey who are being sent to California as a punishment for their sins, and I wondered . . ."

Eulalia flung out her arms dramatically. "A punishment for their sins! And I am sent to reap a reward for my virtues! A strange country, this California, to which, at the same time, people are sent for punishment and reward!"

Angustias nodded. "Yes, it is. I am wondering who will get what. Sh-h-h, here they come."

Into the light of the fire two brown-clad figures loomed out of the shadows.

"Greetings, Senora La Gobernadora," said a solemn voice. "I am Fray Mariano, and this is Fray Bartolome, two poor brothers of the pomegranates, peaches and dates beneath the clashing fronds of giant palms.

There was a halt at Santa Rosalia de Mulege, on the Vermillion sea, where there was another old stone mission and fruitful gardens. From there the cavalcade traveled over a horrible wilderness well-named Tierra del Inferno, Hell country, which quaked constantly as they traversed its barrenness.

By a broad flat camino, built many years before by Jesuit missionaries who had urged hundreds of Indian neophytes to the colossal task by flogging them when they lagged, they traveled to the Mission San Ignacio, which stood in a fertile arroyo that opened in a barren mesa.

Leaving there with water-skins and casks bulging for the desert travel ahead, they traveled northward, skirting the eastern edge of the Desert of Vizcaino, a treacherous terrain.

At Mission Santa Gertrudis, in a great mountain-girt amphitheater, all gave thanks that they had arrived in safety, though their water-skins were lean and dry.

At Santa Gertrudis, Eulalia heard first rumors of the approach of her husband. Indians coming from the north reported fires that burned by night, and a party of horsemen who traveled swiftly by day.

La Gobernadora still rode silently, uncomplainingly. It was only her pride that kept her from flinging herself from her horse on to the ground, and screaming until the tension that was holding her quivering nerves shattered in a satisfying hysteria. At night, in her tent or by the campfire, she was subject to changing moods; sometimes gloomy, silent, brooding, sometimes bright with febrile gaiety.

Angustias was watching her mistress doubtfully, gauging her temper, her experienced weather eye reading infallible signs that her lady's nerves were frayed to a breaking point, and that a hurricane was due to break.

"If she can only wait until we meet Don Pedro," she prayed. "She needs her husband at a time like this."

The hurricane arrived before the Governor.

One evening, just before nightfall, the storm broke.

They had been traveling for days among the lofty Calmali mountains, that stretch along the coast, or narrow part of the peninsula.

Eulalia, shivering as night came on, for now the nights were as cold as the days were hot, rode beside little Pedro. Behind came Angustias, cuddling her monkey as they both dozed. At the head of the van rode the Captain. Little Pedro leaned closer to his mother and whispered.

Eulalia frowned. "On my soul, child! We can not stop now! Control yourself."

But the child would not be controlled. He stopped his burro, threw the reins toward Angustias, and disappeared in the brush.

Angustias, startled from her nap, made a lunge at the reins, missed them and brought her hand sharply against Chichi's face. The terrified monkey, in turn awakened rudely from his little snoozing, leaped straight for Pedro's burro, and the burro bolted off the trail.

"Chichi!" screamed Angustias, trying to get from her clumsy side-saddle. "Chichi! Baby!"

But the little burro and his detested frightened burden went careening away in the dusk.

Captain Canete wheeled to Eulalia's side, just as Angustias slipped on to the dusty trail, screaming and crying.

"My Lady!" exclaimed the Captain. "What is the matter?"

But Eulalia only pointed after her fleeing companion.

"But we are resigned," he intoned. "Yes, we are resigned. It is God's will we should make this pilgrimage, so we do not complain. Do you think we are complaining?" he asked Eulalia anxiously.

"If you do I am sure it is with good cause," she replied.

Later, after the two priests departed and Angustias was brushing her mistress's hair, she remarked:

"I don't know how it appears to you, but those do not seem true religious men to me."

"They are strange. I can not understand them, Angustias. Their eyes! And how they stare. But they are Franciscans, after all, and must be . . . but I don't understand them. They make me feel uncomfortable, Angustias."

CHAPTER VI

In the Valley of Comondu, an oasis in the barren heart of Baja California, La Gobernadora was entertained at Mission San Jose de Comondu, beloved of all travelers, soldiers and priests, who made the dreary trip up and down the peninsula. For days they rested there, refreshed by the sparkling waters of an abundant stream, and by figs,

"Will you help her?" she asked, struggling for control. "Will you help her to catch that fool little Chichi? He has eloped with Pedro's burro!"

"Oh, damn that ape, and damn that ass! Oh, pardon me, Senora—but I—am you all right, my Lady?"

"Yes, yes, of course. Oh, here she comes!"

Out of the dusk came Angustias, trying to hold the monkey which struggled and clawed in furious panic. It had pulled the woman's gray hair in tatters over her face, and she looked like a witch emerging from the night.

"He doesn't know me! He is mad from fright! Oh, my little darling, my sugar-plum, you are safe in your mother's arms. There, there!"

The Captain exploded. "By the holy bones of Saint Bartholomew, woman! Why didn't you get the burro? Here you," to an Indian, "fetch back that animal."

Grinning, the Indian loped away. He hated and feared Chichi as the rest of the natives did.

Angustias climbed on to her horse again, soothing her weeping treasure.

The Captain heaved a sigh. "Well," he said, "are we all—"

But suddenly a piercing shriek came from somewhere, a long high wail that ended in, "Ma-a-ama!"

Eulalia slipped from her jennet. "Pedro, Pedro! What is it! My God—"

Before the Captain could reach her, she had met the child and had him clasped in her arms.

"Mama, look! Look, mama! Al, al! I am hurt! Al, al, al!"

"What has happened? What is it? Do no cry, speak to me!"

He held out his hands to her. "Look, cactus! All the needles ran in me! Ouch, al, al, al!"

The Captain took the child from his mother and set him on his own knee as he squatted on the trail.

"Yes, yes. What happened?"

"I was back there—in the bushes—a big black something came after me and I ran, and stumbled into the cholla—ouch, ouch!"

His face and arms were swelling from the hundreds of needles that had penetrated his skin, stinging him to agony as he strove to scratch them out. Canete took firm hold of his wrists.

"Don't scratch! Dona Angustias, let down your hair!"

Angustias put her hand to her scant gray locks in bewilderment. "But—why?" she stammered.

"Because you must help this suffering child. Only long hair will draw out cactus thorns. Quickly!"

But young Pedro was already enveloped in a flood of black tresses as his mother's hair tumbled about him, soothing his stings, and drawing, by some strange attraction, the needles from his flesh.

At last his cries dropped to sobs, and his sobs to whimpers. Then he sniveled softly in his mother's arms.

"Now, my brave little man, will you smile at Mother? Poor darling, poor little soldier!"

"I want a drink of water," whimpered Pedro.

"He wants a drink of water," said Eulalia to Angustias.

"He wants a drink of water," said Angustias to the Captain.

"He wants a—but, by my life, there is no water!"

"No water?" exploded Eulalia.

"No water, Senora. But we are not far from the Spring of Santa Marita. Come. Let us get on our way before it grows darker. Come, my Lady."

Eulalia grew very still. Canete leaned over her and touched her arm to assist her to arise.

"Don't touch me," she said dangerously.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

If You Are Making a Crazy Patch Quilt.

MAKING an old fashioned silk crazy patch quilt is a simply fascinating thing to do. From the moment you start collecting bits of silk and satin and velvet until the second you invent your last combination of embroidery stitches it holds your interest.

This type of quilt is not quilted after piecing, but tied like a comforter. No padding is needed if soft warm material is used for the foundation. The pieces are always in irregular shapes—often very tiny and the largest is seldom more than four or five inches long. They are pinned or basted to a foundation of soft muslin, flannel or an old wool blanket is good to use. One patch shown here is a piece of ribbon and the selvages are not turned or covered. It is best to arrange a number of patches before you start to sew them in place with the embroidery stitches.

The embroidery is really used to give balance and unity to the whole design. If a patch seems too light make it darker by embroidering it in dark thread. If it seems too plain you can trace the little forget-me-not design shown here onto it and embroider

Bejeweled Paints

Several oil painters in the Orient wanting their pictures to glow and scintillate for hundreds of years, use special paint whose pigments are made from the powder of precious stones and minerals. Favorite Recipe of the Week

For Winter Meals.
SCALLOPED dishes are favorites for cold weather because it is a pleasure to use the oven, and because the blended flavor of foods makes such delicious finished products. The tartness of tomatoes complements most any meat that is being served, and while there are almost unlimited ways of making the dish, you may enjoy trying the following recipe:

Scalloped Tomatoes.
1 No. 2½ can tomatoes 1 tsp sugar
2 cups bread crumbs 2 cups bread crumbs
1 tsp minced onion 4 tsp butter
1 tsp salt

Combine the tomatoes with the onion and arrange a layer in a baking dish. Mix the salt and sugar with the bread crumbs and blend with melted butter. Place a layer of crumbs over the tomatoes, add another layer of tomatoes, crumbs, and so on until the dish is filled and ingredients used. Leave crumbs on top. Bake about 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

Chemist Forecasts Man's Life Will Be Prolonged and Be Made More Comfortable

Man's workaday life has become increasingly dependent upon the ability of chemical research workers to convert new scientific discoveries into practical necessities. At the end of three centuries the chemical industry in the United States has reached major proportions. A Cressy Morrison, in a 292-page illustrated volume, "Man in a Chemical World," recently published by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, reviews the position of the chemical industry as it affects modern routine existence.

Morrison's account covers the effect of chemical progress on industry, medicine, food, transportation, television, home comforts and "the more abundant life." Looking forward Morrison believes that "it is quite unnecessary to be led astray by imagination's will-o'-the-wisp to feel that a very wonderful future lies just ahead for the human race through the continued progress of chemical industry." Some possible future developments seen by him include:

Further improvements in medicine, particularly in regard to the two childhood scourges, scarlet fever and infantile paralysis. Food habits should change sharply in coming years, with biologists leading the way in developing new species of edible plants and chemists synthesizing them to make them easily available to all classes.

Continued study of chemically controlled glands is apt to change medical technique to the extent that many surgical operations may in the future be obsolete because of the use of new synthetics.

Finally, Morrison forecasts, chemists not only will contribute substantially to the prolonging of man's life but will also aid in making his life richer, more comfortable and more secure.

"Houses of White Men"

The word "carioca" comes from the Brazilian Indian language and originally signified "houses of white men." It was applied by the aborigines to the huts of the French invaders who occupied the harbor of Rio de Janeiro in 1555. Nowadays it means a person born in Rio, or anything typical of that city.

We were delighted to have several visitors last Sunday, you know it always makes a fellow feel that the thing is picking up a little when he has some new faces in his congregation. Just take the hint friends and come around often to our services it will help us feel better and it will do you a lot of good to worship with us.

We are to start on the foundation of the house tomorrow (Wed.) and will be going right on now as the weather will permit. We are urging that just as many as can do so will make some contribution to this building fund. See some of the committee and give it to them or go to W. D. Boydston's store and give it to him, he is the treasurer and will give you credit for it and will apply it on the fund. George Jones is the foreman on the building job and he will have the supervision of the work and workers, if you want to work on the job see him, if he needs you it will be his job to give you work, if the work you do or any part of it is donated you will be given credit for it and the committee will pay you for the time not donated. We are hoping to use a good sized force all the time and to be sure all the donated help we can get will be appreciated.

I will preach at Dudley Sunday afternoon if the Lord is willing and all out that way are invited to attend.

I am to preach on Home Missions here Sunday morning and I invite all to come and let us study this question together. Sunday night I will preach two words the saddest and the gladdest words in the human language. Guess what they are and then come see if you have them right. We will look for you.

About Town

With Otto B. Great

Spring is just around the corner, only five days away, to be exact, and old man winter took a last chance to fling a final snowball at the home town (though confidentially, I don't think it was old man winter who put that snow pellet behind me the other night...if it was the old boy is a pretty good shot.)

Best news of this or any other week for Baird Cinema fans is that "The Walt Disney Review" is now being shown at your theatre. For years now Mr. Disney's brain children have been copping all honors at the annual Academy award and someone hit upon the plan of putting the winners for the last five years into one grand picture for theatre goers to see. The five will include: "Flowers and Trees", "Three Little Pigs", "The Tortoise and the Hare", "Three Orphan Kittens", and "The Country Cousin". The feature attraction with this parade is "The High Flyers" and even if the stars, Wheeler and Woolsey bore you stiff, you can't afford to miss the "Disney Review". From previous check ups however, I think you will like the Woolsey-Wheeler team, and if that's the case then tonight's your night. Coming Thursday and Friday is "The Perfect Specimen" (yeah, honest and truly its really here this time) and you don't need to be sold on that one.

And are they proud around the Paul Cook home these days? Its a boy and his name is Donald. Both Mrs. Cook and her son are reported doing nicely.

Spot light this week turns on Mr. Hugh W. Smith. Mr. Smith is one of those people who make good copy, because there is so darn (OOPS s'cuse it teacher) much to tell about him. He's a pal to every youngster in school, helping them over the rough spots and seeing that they don't coast too fast over the easier parts; all the time planting a little philosophy in each mind that will stay lon after they have forgotten what year Washington crossed the Delaware. When a teachers students praise him you can sometimes lay to diplomacy but when his ex-students and graduates out with the flowery phrases you can bet your bottom dollar ot really means something.
