Wright pledging humanitarian aid push

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright is pledging to work with the Republican leadership to produce a humanitarian aid package for the Contra rebels, saying the amount of money involved isn't "a serious stumbling block."

"Together, we'll work it out," the speaker said of his planned negotiations with House GOP leader Bob Michel, R-Ill.

Today's talks come in the wake of the preliminary cease-fire agreement last week between the Contras and the Sandinista government of Nicaragua, which allows the rebels to remain armed and in the field while entering political talks with the government.

Earlier this year, House Democrats beat back President Reagan's request for a package of weapons and ammunition for the Contras, saying it would interfere with the peace process. Then, Republicans sided with a few Democratic opponents of any Contra aid to defeat the House leadership's alternative plan for $30 million in strictly "humanitarian" assistance — food, clothing and the like.

As a result, U.S. aid to the rebels ended Feb. 29. Wright is still supporting humanitarian aid, and this time he wants to ensure GOP backing for the proposal.

The speaker, whose high-profile role in the Central American peace process has upset some administration officials, declined in an interview Sunday on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" to specify the amount of humanitarian aid he envisions.

"I have one, but I'm going to be amenable enough to listen to Bob Michel and others. I don't think the dollar figure is a serious stumbling block," he said.

The speaker did not express any opposition to a provision in the package guaranteeing a speedy vote on military aid if the peace process breaks down, but he said triggering such a vote should be a "collaborative" decision by both Congress and the White House.

Last week, Wright said the aid package should include food, clothing and medical assistance for the Contras. Also last week, Michel said he had discussed a $48 million, one-year aid package that provided an expedited vote on further aid in June.

Wright, reminded of Congress' refusal to send military aid to the rebels, was asked if the Soviets should be required to end their support to the Nicaraguan government.

"I think it's high time that we do sit down with the Soviet Union and hammer that out," Wright said. "I don't know any good reason why we shouldn't be doing that."

Wright was asked if he believed the Nicaraguan government should be allowed to receive "whatever foreign assistance... it deems fit in its own interest" in light of the regional peace accord that bars funds from foreign sources seeking to overthrow a government.

"I don't see anything wrong with their getting humanitarian assistance or economic assistance. God knows they need all the help they can get from every source with the state their economy is in," the speaker said.

"But I think it has to come to a point where there is a cessation of military weapons.... And now that's up to the Reagan administration."

Death under investigation

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Big Spring police are investigating whether the Monday morning death of a local man was suicide or homicide.

Frederico Morales, 39, of Big Spring, was declared dead at 1:20 a.m. today, according to Justice of the Peace Bill Shankles, who added that no cause of death has been determined, pending further investigation into the matter.

Police received a report at 11:50 p.m. Sunday that Morales had been found lying on the 300 block of Trades Street, the victim of a single gunshot wound to the chest, according to Police Lt. Juan Palacios, who is investigating the death.

Palacios added that Morales was transported by private vehicle to Scenic Mountain Medical Center, where he was declared dead early this morning.

Police are investigating today whether the death was a suicide or homicide, Palacios said, adding that no additional information on the matter could be released at this time.

Park demolished

Owner cites accident liability

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

Potential liability for accidents and compliance with city abatement notices prompted demolition of a Big Spring skateboard park, owner of the facility Keith Bristow of Midland said.

"If there were a death or a child were to be seriously injured on the property and vengeful parents were to sue, I would have been liable," Bristow said.

Bristow also said he had received a letter from the city of Big Spring ordering him to remove or improve the park within 60 days or the city would have the work done and send him the bill.

The skateboard park, located on FM 700 north of Wasson Road and east of Scenic Mountain State Park, was demolished Saturday.

Lee George Construction Company was contracted by Bristow to do the work, Bristow said.

Equipment from Price Construction Company, a firm sub-contracted by Leroy George arrived at the site early Saturday to accomplish the demolition.

A group of about 20 children who skate at the park and their parents were at the site to protest when the demolition equipment arrived.

One of those parents, Debbie Futrell, said she was upset by the skate park's destruction. Futrell said she had been negotiating with Bristow to make arrangements for continued use of the park by local youngsters.

However, the high cost of liability insurance and potential for a lawsuit in the event of an accident prevented him from keeping the park open, Bristow said.

"I could not handle the liability," Bristow said.

The skateboard park — which was officially closed to the public — was opened by Bristow as a commercial venture a few years ago.

"The park did not make money and it folded," Bristow said.

The park cost $150,000 to build and never yielded a return on his investment, Bristow said.

"I built that park for the kids in this town to get them out of the culverts. I wanted it open and kept it open. Not only did the community not support it commercially, but did not support it to the point where it was destroyed. It has become a liability," he said.

"There is no way a coalition of parents is going to take responsibility away from a property owner," Bristow said in response to the parents and youngsters who have expressed concern about the skate park's demolition.

Demos realize Jackson could be the nominee

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Jesse Jackson's win in Michigan has sent a message to the Democratic Party that it can no longer ignore — at the rate he's going, Jackson just might wind up as its presidential nominee this fall.

Political analysts say Jackson's almost 2-1 victory over erstwhile front-runner Michael Dukakis in Saturday's Michigan caucuses is a clear signal that the preacher-turned-politician is a very viable contender for the nomination.

Jackson, treated as an also-ran in 1984, has won in eight states so far this year — Michigan, Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Virginia, South Carolina, Alaska — and in Puerto Rico's non-binding contest.

The string of victories is forcing the party to re-examine the theory that a black cannot be nominated for president in 1988.

"The Democratic voters are sending a very strong message to the party," said Ann Lewis, a Democratic strategist and informal adviser to the Jackson campaign. "The quality of leadership is something they like and admire. This is a referendum on him and a referendum he's winning."

The campaign-watchers also said the Michigan win could translate into victories in other high-stakes contests, including the New York primary on April 19.

"I don't believe Dukakis can stop him," said David Garth, a New York media consultant who is working for Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore Jr.'s campaign, "unless something different happens."

New York, which has 255 delegates at stake, represents a serious challenge for Dukakis, who has failed in the major industrial states of Illinois and Michigan.

"The stakes could not be more critical," said Paul Maslin, pollster for Illinois Sen. Paul Simon's campaign. "He can't just finish second to Jesse Jackson. He can't say I'm the leading white candidate. It's not going to work this year."

"Dukakis has got to win big to even say 'This is the guy the party wants,'" Garth said.

A New York Daily News poll published Sunday showed Dukakis favored by 45 percent of the 528 Democrats surveyed, to 29 percent for Jackson. The poll, conducted between Monday, March 21 and Thursday, March 24, had a margin for error of plus or minus 4.5 percentage points.

However, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo has said that if two or three candidates are left in the County considers changes

Installation of a dry chemical fire extinguisher in the county jail kitchen and removal of combustibles from the heat and air conditioning closet at the county museum were authorized by Howard County Commissioners during a meeting this morning.

Placement of the fire extinguisher and cleaning of the closet were among recommendations from Trinity Insurance Company of Dallas, the county's insurer.

The insurance company also recommended that sheriff's department jailers be provided additional help while cooking meals for inmates.

"From a general liability standpoint, it would be well for the jailer to have additional help with cooking," the insurance company said in a written report to commissioners.

The company also suggested that the jailer's duty should "primarily be observing inmates."

Commissioners took no action on the recommendation to provide the jailer with help in preparing meals for prisoners. "It's been taken under advisement," said County Judge Milton Kirby.

The recommendations were based on a recent courthouse inspection conducted by the insurance company. The inspection was conducted to examine areas where the county might take measures to prevent accidents.

In other business, commissioners approved an appeal from an indigent health care patient for continued benefits.

Irene Rodriguez, county indigent health care program director, told commissioners the patient exceeded her maximum monthly income level by 17 cents. Commissioner approval was necessary for the

Custody of children by strangler raises questions

EAST DUBUQUE, Ill. (AP) — A judge's decision to reunite two girls with their father three years after they watched him strangle their mother has touched off a new custody fight and public outrage against the judge.

"I guess the bottom line is whether or not it's OK to kill your wife in front of your children," says Gene Tranel of Eldridge, Iowa, brother of the 26-year-old victim, Carol Lutgen.

Tranel, who took in his nieces, Tracy, 11, and Dana, 10, while James Lutgen served a 20-month prison term, is fighting to get them back.

But Lutgen's lawyer, William Schirger, says the case has been blown out of proportion in this small Mississippi River town.

"The kids are not in any danger. Jim loves the girls and they love him. They asked the judge to let them live with him," Schirger said.

Girls watched struggle

Lutgen, 33, pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter for the Dec. 21, 1984, death of his wife at the family home in tiny Menominee, in the northwest corner of Illinois.

Two original murder counts against Lutgen were reduced after the court ruled his daughters were too young to testify as witnesses to their mother's death.

The Lutgens were on the verge of a breakup as the 1984 holiday season approached. "She didn't love Jim no more," recalled Lutgen's mother, Grace. "They were separating the day after Christmas. He was broken up about it."

The couple's fatal battle was fueled by Lutgen's belief that his wife was seeing another man, his mother said, although the fight was sparked by a disagreement over whether to take the girls shopping and skating.

As the girls looked on, verbal attack became physical confrontation.

"I picked the girls up afterward and they told me ... they had seen part of the fight," Mrs. Lutgen said. "They said they were pushing and grabbing each other around the neck."

Lutgen was released from prison in October 1986 and regained custody of his daughters last Dec. 29.

The Jo Daviess County judge who made the custody decision, Eric DeMar of Galena, has borne the brunt of the public outcry since

Wright unaware of weapon sale effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright says he had no idea that one of his own advisers had tried to sell weapons to Lt. Col. Oliver North's secret Contra supply network three months before the Iran-Contra scandal began to unravel.

The speaker, who has long opposed military aid to the Nicaraguan rebels and has been a leader in trying to achieve a negotiated peace there, said he knew nothing of the 1986 arms offer by his associate, Richard M. Pena.

Pena, a former House Foreign Affairs Committee staff member, contacted North's associate Richard Miller just three months before disclosures about the Iran-Contra affair shut down North's operation in November 1986.

In an Aug. 15, 1986, letter to a front company set up by Miller, Pena offered grenades, bombs, mines and boots from two South American companies.

The letter went to World Affairs Counselors, a Cayman Islands front company formed by Miller and his partner Frank Gomez to handle their Contra transactions for North. A copy of the letter was obtained by The Associated Press.

Pena has been one of Wright's advisers on Central America over the past several years and as recently as January was the Texas Democrat's paid emissary to the region as the warring factions wrangled over starting cease-fire talks, said Wright aide Marshall Lynam. He said Pena was on the speaker's payroll for a few days on each of three occasions.

Wright, through Lynam, said he had no knowledge of the arms sale offer by Pena.

"Jim Wright was not aware of any of these activities. He knew Richard Pena as a Texan, a man who had extensive connections and acquaintances in Central America, a person who was acquainted with the Contra people in Central America," Lynam said. He said Wright "had confidence in his advice... and had no reason to think there was any reason why he should not use him in an eyes-and-ears capacity."

The special congressional committees that investigated the Iran-Contra affair took sworn depositions from Pena after finding his letter in Miller's documents, committee sources said. But one source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the committee staff decided not to pursue the Pena matter because it appeared to be an isolated incident, rather than an integral part of the North network.

Miller pleaded guilty in the Iran-Contra case, along with conservative fund-raiser Carl "Spitz" Channell, to conspiring with North to defraud the government by raising money through a tax-exempt foundation to purchase weapons for the Contras.

Attorneys said it appeared Pena's activity was not unlawful.

Pena could not be reached for comment. Lynam said Pena is on vacation in Central America, and he had been unable to reach him to ask about the matter. Pena's office said he did not check in for messages last week.

Miller worked with North, then a National Security Council aide, raising private money to help the Contras during the congressional ban on U.S. aid.

Gephardt expected to bow out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Gephardt decided the fate of his sputtering presidential campaign after failing to gain the "Michigan miracle" he so desperately needed and with time running out to file for re-election to his House seat.

Gephardt, who faced a Tuesday deadline to file as a candidate for re-election to Congress from his Missouri district, scheduled a Capitol Hill news conference today to announce his decision.

For several days, however, signs had pointed to a planned exit.

He spent Sunday at home in seclusion at his suburban Virginia with family and advisers. Aides were mum about what went on, but as early as last week they had said privately that he would drop out if he didn't make a strong showing in Michigan's Democratic caucuses. He finished a distant third in Saturday's contest.

Gephardt's last campaign speech was in Milwaukee, before Wisconsin Democrats who vote next Tuesday.

Democratic race prior to the primary, Jackson has a chance of winning.

A poll by the Marist College Institute for Public Opinion found that 57 percent of 459 Democratic voters surveyed in New York earlier this month gave Jackson a favorable rating, to 30 percent unfavorable. In a survey by the same group in January, only 44 percent had given Jackson a favorable rating, while 41 percent rated him unfavorably.

"New York is a fairly volatile state," Garth said. He noted that the state has a large Jewish vote, a group that has been skeptical of Jackson in the past.

In the most recent Marist College survey, 36 percent of the Jewish voters gave Jackson a favorable rating, an increase from 17 percent in January. Forty-three percent gave Jackson an unfavorable rating compared to 62 percent in January. The results had a margin of error of 5 percentage points.

The numbers suggest Jackson is mending fences with Jews whom he offended in 1984.

"There are still some in the political establishment who think 1988 is an inevitable replay of 1984," Ms. Lewis said. But, she added, "The day after Michigan a new world has dawned."

Lutgen regained his daughters.

DeMar has been attacked by mail, over the telephone and in newspaper articles and editorials.

"A judge can't always make a popular decision and that certainly is the truth in this case," he said.

"The law and the facts in the case left me no choice," he added, noting that the U.S. Supreme Court has placed a high priority on parental rights in custody cases.

Lutgen, a cement finisher in the construction business, has not responded to requests for comment.

But his mother says she believes there is no risk to the girls.

"I check on them several times a week. I'd never let anything happen to them. They love their Dad," she said.

Lutgen has continued to have family troubles. His mother said he and the girls moved out of her house to one of his two brothers' homes after an argument with her last month.

Meanwhile, Tranel has fought Lutgen's request for custody of the girls. He filed a wrongful death lawsuit against his former brother-in-law and is appealing DeMar's custody decision.

"It seems to me to be so basically, morally wrong for the children to go back to their parent in a case like this," said Tranel, who has visitation rights.

"Is that person a fit and proper parent?" Tranel asked. "How can you get your children back and go on like nothing happened?"

Schirger countered that Lutgen's criminal conviction did not strip him of his parental rights, and he has not been proved an unfit parent.

DANBURY — Larry Liscombe and his 11-month-old daughter Kristine, both of Wharton, found the warm spring weather ideal for a photo session and a bit of playground time during a festival in their former hometown last week.

Slum bailout Conditions bad despite subsidy

DALLAS (AP) — Government housing officials committed almost $10 million in federal funds to reopen an abandoned apartment complex whose residents now face problems such as backed-up sewage and rats, The Dallas Morning News reported in a copyright story.

The contract was authorized by the Dallas Housing Authority, approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and endorsed by the city of Dallas, even though all three agencies had documentation in their files that would have disqualified the complex from participation in any federal housing program, the newspaper said in the report published Sunday.

The complex's location — in a low-income, almost exclusively black neighborhood — violated federal regulations.

And the decision to subsidize Robin Square Apartments allowed Lomas & Nettleton Financial Corp. to turn a $600,000 defaulted apartment loan into a $2.3 million profit, The News said.

Previously, Lomas & Nettleton had received only a $75,000 offer for the complex near Fair Park, in one of Dallas' worst neighborhoods.

The decision, reached during a series of private meetings in 1980 and 1981, resulted in a $9.6 million contract, with lucrative tax benefits, for the apartments' eventual owner, Austin developer Alfred D. Hughes, who was appointed in 1985 to the Texas Board of Corrections.

Officials said the contract guaranteed rent payments over a 15-year period to cover the purchase of Robin Square, operating expenses and a $1 million renovation.

Investigation being sought

CLEVELAND (AP) — Residents angered by the recent death of a jail inmate want an expanded investigation of the case.

About 200 protesters rallied Saturday in Cleveland to protest the death of Kenneth Simpson. Black, white and Hispanic marchers walked from a mostly black neighborhood called the "quarters" to the city hall calling for further investigation into Simpson's death on March 16.

Protesters also want city officials to stop paying the salaries of seven police officers who were suspended in the wake of Simpson's death. Two of the officers are black.

MHMR post finalists drawing fire

AUSTIN (AP) — Some officials of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation are upset that none of the five finalists for the post of commissioner is a long-time agency employee.

Four of the finalists are from out of state.

The fifth finalist is Ron Jackson, executive director of the Texas Youth Commission.

When the $100,000-a-year job was posted last October, qualifications included "a minimum of 10 years experience in the administration of comprehensive mental health or mental retardation services."

Jackson earned an MBA degree last year, according to a partial resume released by the department.

Privately, several agency officials say the selection process is political, citing a letter campaign on Jackson's behalf waged by a former board member with close ties to Gov. Bill Clements, The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday.

Some of the department's 26,000 employees said they were surprised long-time department leaders were not among the finalists.

"It's become a political deal at a time when the department can ill afford a political decision," one source within the agency told The News.

The MHMR commissioner is responsible for a $750 million annual budget and heads the state's second-largest agency. The job is held by Dr. Gary Miller, whose resignation is effective at the end of this month.

The five finalists were culled from a list of 149 applicants by a Seattle-area search firm, Jensen-Oldani & Associates Inc., under the direction of the MHMR board's search committee.

Pattilou Dawkins, newly appointed chairwoman of the MHMR board, said the search attracted top applicants.

"The fact they're not from Texas is not relevant," she said. "The fact is, a good administrator can come from Texas or Timbuktu."

Charles Cooper, a board member from Dallas, said it is conceivable that other applicants will be considered. The five finalists are scheduled for interviews with the board Thursday.

Man knows transplant personally

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An attorney named to head the American Council on Transplantation has learned a great deal about organ transplants even though he has no medical degree.

Eric C. Sutton, 37, got his education on transplants in a personal and tragic way. His son, Richard, died at age two in 1986, partly because a donor organ could not be obtained in time for a liver transplant.

"Up until his illness I had no knowledge of liver disease or the particular problems associated with it," Sutton said.

But shortly after he and his wife, Sharon, 36, were told in mid-1983 that Richard, then just 12 weeks old, had the common liver birth defect biliary atresia and would need a liver transplant, Sutton became a founding member of the council — and the first member of its board who had a child needing a transplant.

"I was not happy with the lack of information people had regarding transplants and how they worked," Sutton said in his law office at 8400 Blanco Road.

Sutton was formally installed as president of the council Sunday in Dallas. Members of the council include the American Red Cross, the Children's Transplant Association, the American Society of Transplant Physicians and the North American Transplant Coordinators Organization.

Standoff ends in man's death

DALLAS (AP) — A murder suspect — mistakenly released from jail after trading ID bracelets with another jail inmate — fatally shot himself in the head, ending a standoff with police, authorities say.

Derrick Greene, 18, described by authorities as a hit man, was found dead in an apartment at 5:30 a.m. Saturday.

A police tactical squad surrounded the apartment about 1 a.m. Saturday after being tipped that Greene was inside, investigator D.A. Watts said.

Officers saw a man climbing out a back window of the apartment, but he went back inside after officers called to him with a bullhorn, Watts said. They continued calling but got no response and then threw a tear-gas canister into a window.

Watts said the tactical squad, which did not know if Greene was alive or if anyone else was in the apartment, broke through the door and found Greene lying dead on the floor just inside. A .45-caliber handgun was beside him.

SOME OF THE THINGS DISCUSSED HERE MIGHT SHOCK YOU.

But not if you follow these tips for working around power lines.

- Keep ladders and trimming tools away from overhead wires.
- Don't dig if you suspect there are underground wires—call us first!
- Make sure you're clear of all wires when installing or removing a TV antenna.

Please remember, think about where your power lines are before you work around the house. They may be above or below ground. Find out the exact location, or you might become just another statistic. And that's the shocking truth.

DON'T LET A POWER LINE BE THE END OF THE LINE.

Views of papers across the U.S.

This is a sampling of editorial opinion from across the country:

Argues Honduras is not Vietnam

Liberal congressmen are obsessively fond of comparing U.S. involvement in Central America with what later developed into the Vietnam War. The trouble is, their comparison is with the wrong war. Double-dealing by Nicaragua's Sandinista government along with House leaders' blindness to the reality of the Central American conflict is more reminiscent of the preliminaries to World War II. Like the Sandinistas now, Nazi Germany claimed it supported peace, while working feverishly for war and conquest. The United States is not facing "another Vietnam" by giving assistance to its Contra allies, it faces far worse if it doesn't.

Roswell (N.M.) Daily Record

Cost of troops high for Reagan

Keeping the Contras in the field, if not in Nicaragua, seems to be the basis for the $48 million emergency aid package introduced ... (March 18) in Congress. Only two weeks ago Congress couldn't even agree on a $30 million "humanitarian" aid bill. The Sandinista raid (into Honduras) will probably turn around that vote in short order. Daniel Ortega has a history of snatching diplomatic defeat from the jaws of victory. After a previous Contra aid vote, he flew off to Moscow; this time he decided on military action. ... But President Reagan won't get a free ride. Just by dispatching 3,200 troops to Honduras, 100 miles from the war zone, he ignited what may be the largest anti-war protests since Vietnam. ...

The Kennebec Journal, Augusta, Maine

Have you forgotten the hostages?

In vivid contrast to the situation in 1980 when 52 American hostages were being held in Iran, little is heard these days about the hostages being held in Lebanon. The hostages are rarely allowed to communicate with the outside world, and their captors, believed to be Moslem fundamentalists, rarely come out of the shadows. The hostages in Iran were freed after 444 days. But one of the Lebanon hostages — Associated Press newsman Terry Anderson — has now been held for a full three years. ... Anderson isn't the only victim of Lebanese kidnapers. But he is the longest held of about two dozen Westerners missing in Beirut. And he was there because his job was to tell U.S. newspaper readers what was happening in that tortured country.

Nashville (Tenn.) Banner

Says outlaw imitation toy guns

Handguns, both fake and real ones, are sources of concern in what still seems to be a trigger-happy society ... given the shocking homicide rate in this supposedly law-respecting country. San Francisco's city supervisors, following the lead of Los Angeles, have just banned the sale of toy guns not easily distinguishable from those they imitate. San Francisco's action came after police, fearing for their lives when a mentally retarded boy pointed a real-looking pistol at them, shot and killed the boy. ... There is no justification for the manufacturers to continue putting on the market accurate toy replicas of lethal weapons. It is folly ... to tolerate the manufacture and sale of toys that can easily be mistaken for real weapons, sometimes with tragic consequences.

Westerly (R.I.) Sun

Now we can sympathize with IRS

A horror story about the Internal Revenue Service assessing a $400 penalty against a small businessman who paid two cents less than he owed has rightly outraged the public. But the nation's chief tax collector, IRS Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs, offers a different perspective, one that clearly shows Congress to be the source of a lot of the troubles between the IRS and taxpayers. The tax code now includes 154 statutory penalties, he told Congressional investigators, noting that Congress has changed the tax code seven times in the last 10 years and enacted "a seemingly endless array of ad hoc penalties." Gibbs, in trying to carry out an unpopular job, knows that the whole system depends on public confidence ... and that wholesale stupidity on the part of Congress is quickly eroding that confidence. It's enough to make one sympathize with the IRS.

Tulsa (Okla.) World

Why don't intelligent people run?

It's time teacher-researchers, voter organizations and citizens in general tried to figure out why so many of the brightest Americans are refusing to run for office. Politics and politicians have picked up rotten reputations. That stems partly from the Watergate era, the trauma of the Vietnam era and various investigations and charges against public officials. And it results in part from journalists' digging, reporting and commentary on those cases. Lots of potentially strong public officials want to avoid putting themselves and their families in the glare of publicity.

Reagans' war on drugs brings mixed reviews

By MERRILL HARTSON Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The good-news, bad-news assessment that Ronald and Nancy Reagan gave of America's drug problem pretty much describes the administration's record in fighting it. While President Reagan and his wife have alerted people to the threat, the administration's war against drugs has produced only mixed results, and consequently a lot of arguing and finger-pointing. Nowhere was this more evident than at the White House Conference on a Drug-Free America last month, where administration drug-fighting strategy came in for a lot of second-guessing. Kicking off the conference Monday, Reagan claimed progress in attacking "the supply side of the crusade against drugs." Mrs. Reagan gave a more pessimistic report on the demand side, saying "we must face the fact that drugs are tearing our communities apart." Reagan said "we've strengthened the laws" and "drug seizures are at an all-time high." Seizures of cocaine and the confiscation of drug-related assets are at record levels, he said, and arrests are up by 66 percent. Yet, his drug-fighting performance came under attack because horror stories about abuse still abound — in cities and in the suburbs. Many drug-producing countries remain ambivalent about cooperative drug-fighting efforts, while traffickers skirt interdiction efforts. The conference turned into a critique of the administration's record. Several speakers, including a member of Reagan's Cabinet, barked that not enough is being done. "If we are winning the war on drugs, I wish the commanders would go out and tell it to the troops in the field," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control. "We need to get away from a policy of containment," said Rep. Clay Shaw, R-Fla. "We want you to come up with a plan for victory. Let's fight it like we fought World War II, not like Vietnam. Let's fight to win." While an administration becomes accustomed to attacks from Congress, sometimes from both the Democratic and Republican sides of the aisle, Reagan's policy was also questioned by Secretary of Education William Bennett. "We are in real danger of losing the war against drugs," Bennett told the conference. He called for direct U.S. military intervention in producing countries to destroy drug operations. Reagan has taken comfort in a Health and Human Services survey showing that for the first time in 13 years, a declining proportion of high school seniors admit having used cocaine. But a congressional report released March 1, while the conference was in progress, seemed to cast some doubt on that. A study by the General Accounting Office said some experts fear the decline from 16.9 percent to 15.2 percent among the respondents saying they used cocaine may not have taken into account the newly popular "crack" form of cocaine which is smoked. The administration's war on drugs faces other problems. For instance, legal problems have stalled Reagan's principal initiative aimed at attacking the demand side.

Somewhere over the rainbow solution may likely be found

By SARAH LUMAN Staff Writer

There's a rainbow in the oil floating in the mudpuddle in the parking lot. Somewhere over that rainbow you can see Texas' future.

Write from the heart

The spilled oil looks far more attractive afloat on the decaying remnant of a puddle than it would if it were still in the crankcase of someone's car. But the shine is all the oil has left now. Its value is gone; it is waste, refuse. So is much of the Texas economy, though you can find a forecaster who will pull $46 a barrel out of his hat at every turn. Right beside him is another, who swears oil will never be worth more than it is now. Maybe less. That's why staring at the oil floating on the puddle depresses me. Overnight last week the price of gas went up a nickel a gallon around town. Like the dry weather we've had and the soft brown skies over the South Plains the past few days, the price increase is a sign that summer's approaching. Gasoline prices always rise just before vacation season starts. How can oil prices tumble, and gasoline prices rise?

I still can't figure out how Texas could be one of the richest states in the nation 10 years ago when oil sold for $4 a barrel, yet one of the poorest today with oil selling for $16 per barrel. Sounds to me like someone, maybe overwhelmed by the avalanche of oil tax revenues, decided not to pay enough attention to the outgo and its relationship to the income in the state's coffers. Not everybody believes that everything that goes up has to come down, particularly when what's going up is the amount of revenue politicians can spend. Perhaps that's not the sole problem. I'm developing a theory: Voters get what they want, and nonvoters get what they ask for — but how Texas could put Bill Clements back in the governor's chair after what happened to the state during his first term, I'll never understand. Never mind the oil spill spewing raw crude into the Gulf of Mexico for a whole summer and the $1-billion surplus nobody could find in any of the state's actual bank accounts after he left. Think instead of the condition our schools were in and the piddling amounts our teachers made. Garbage collectors drew better wages than the sages of our educational system, which forms the front-line troops in our war on ignorance. Teachers are where the action is in the most fundamental part of the battle to revitalize our economy. Without workers who can do the job, we'll never attract any industry that could hope to pull us out of the boom-and-bust cycle of oil dependence. To have good workers, we must educate our children properly. But never mind. Clements got voted back into office — and things went from worse to genuinely awful. I'm talking about what happened to you and me when the famous Secret Plan came out of the closet — and turned out to be stalling on signing a badly-needed revenue resolution to such an extent that a special session costing even more money had to be called to draft an even bigger tax bill. I'm altering my theory about democracy: The vast majority of nonvoting citizens deserve what they get — and so does anybody who votes a straight Republican ticket. But there's beauty even in the ugliest of commonplaces. Bill Clements and Ronald Reagan are both in the last term of their offices that either of them can legally be elected to serve. Gee, I miss Mr. White. (And the pre-Reagan deficit never even threatened to touch a trillion dollars a year. Maybe President Carter wasn't doing such a bad job after all.) We need to quit moaning about the status quo and figure out a better system — like doing away with political parties and multimillion dollar campaign budgets financed by lobbyists buying ears to bend after the elections. We've got to do something to raise the average voter's interest to the point of caring and participation, before apathy overwhelms us all. Now, if somebody could figure a way to get Jesse Jackson and Oliver North on the same ticket, we might have some fireworks and action in Washington for a change. Who knows — it might even rain. And the best part about the rainbow in the mudhole is that my truck didn't leak the oil that made it.

Quitting is only solution

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

You can't smoke anymore on New York commuter trains and it probably won't be very long until you can't smoke anywhere. You probably can't smoke where you work now, and restaurants and planes also are becoming smoke-free. What happened is the anti-smokers, obnoxious though they can be, have won, and smokers have become outcasts and subjects of much derision. If you smoke, there is only one plausible thing left for you to do. You must quit. I know. This comes from a man who smoked his head off for years and loved every cigarette he ever had. Smoking was one of the great pleasures of my life. A cigarette was like a little reward I gave myself 25 to 40 times a day. But I quit. For several reasons:

- I've already had two heart-valve replacement surgeries and may one day face another. I need to smoke like I need getting poked in the eye with a sharp stick.
- Very few of my friends smoke anymore. I began to feel uncomfortable smoking in front of them.
- I fly 150 times a year. Airlines are turning off the smoking lights.
- Flying makes me nervous enough as it is without also craving a cigarette.
- None of my friends believed I really had the courage to stop smoking. I quit to prove them wrong.
- Here's how I did it, after smoking for 23 years:
 - I made a pact with three friends that we would stop smoking together.
 - I figured at least one of them wouldn't make it and I could start again, too. But they all stayed smokeless and I hung in there with them.
 - When the craving was at its worst, I kept telling myself, "Nobody ever died from stopping smoking."
 - I also relied on others who quit long ago who said to me, "I know it's hard for you to believe now, but there will come a time you won't even think of a cigarette anymore."
 - It took me three weeks to reach the point where I actually had a thought other than having a cigarette.
 - I substituted eating ice cream for smoking. I put on 15 quick pounds and made the Haagen-Daz people rich, but it still helped me quit smoking.
 - I became an obnoxious non-smoker myself. I berated a man (a small man) for lighting up in a non-smoking area of an Amtrak train and I bragged to friends who continued to smoke after I quit: "Well, all I can say is I'm glad I'm no longer a slave to tobacco."
 - If I ever start again I would have to face much finger-pointing and ridicule. That gives me strength to carry on.
 - I gave myself an out. I'm going to start smoking again on my 90th birthday.
 - Quit, dammit.

Men steal locomotive

CHICAGO (AP) — Two men stole a locomotive and took it on a three-mile joyride at speeds up to 50 mph before it derailed, Chicago & North Western Railroad officials said.

No injuries were reported in the derailment late Saturday on the city's North Side, railroad spokesman Fred Bloedorn said.

The unidentified men boarded the 1,500-horsepower, 112-ton freight locomotive at a rail yard and fled after a rail tower operator switched it to another rail yard and it jumped the tracks because of its speed, he said.

The 25-year-old locomotive, valued at $100,000 to $150,000, was badly dented when it fell on its side, but crews were not immediately able to determine how much repairs will cost, he said.

Leaders to decide fate

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The punishment of fallen TV evangelist Jimmy Swaggart was left to his church's key governing body today, in an effort to settle a dispute between state and national leaders of the Assemblies of God.

The Pentecostal denomination's 250-member General Presbytery opens a two-day meeting, with a decision on Swaggart's punishment expected Tuesday afternoon, church spokeswoman Julieen Turnage said.

The General Presbytery will have the final say on Swaggart's rehabilitation. Swaggart has been linked to a prostitute, but the exact nature of his transgression has not been disclosed since he tearfully stepped down from his pulpit Feb. 21.

The Louisiana Presbytery of the Assemblies of God had recommended that Swaggart undergo two years of rehabilitation and be suspended from his Baton Rouge, La., pulpit for three months.

But the Executive Presbytery, 13 men who serve as a national board of directors for the church, asked the state district to reconsider what some called an unprecedentedly lenient response to a minister's moral lapse.

Activist shot to death

WAKULLA, N.C. (AP) — Community leaders expressed fears of a violent reaction following the shotgun slaying of an activist who had sought to become the first Lumbee Indian judge in his racially troubled county.

Julian Pierce, 42, was shot to death in his home early Saturday, in what authorities called the first assassination of a candidate for political office in the state. No arrests have been made.

The Rev. Joy Johnson of the First Baptist Church said Sunday he hoped the crime could be solved "before the heat rises and before there is a war."

Political prisoners Freed before new talks

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista and Contra negotiators are heading back to the bargaining table to determine the areas where rebel fighters will gather during the cease-fire called for in the accord signed last week.

The talks, scheduled for today in the southern outpost of Sapoa, also may consider the issue of when the U.S.-supported Contras lay down their arms.

On Sunday, the leftist Sandinista government fulfilled the first part of the cease-fire accord by freeing 100 political prisoners under an amnesty program. Most of them are accused Contra rebels.

Afterward, Interior Minister Tomas Borge called the amnesty "possibly the beginning of the end of the (6-year-old) war," and he called for the Contras to release Nicaraguan peasants their troops had kidnapped.

After celebrating Palm Sunday Mass, Roman Catholic Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo called the prisoner release "very positive."

However, during his Homily the Managua archbishop warned the cease-fire agreement did not mean that "we have already reached peace."

"Let us not make a mistake," he told his parishioners. "Let us not confuse ourselves. They have only signed a cease-fire," he said, emphasizing the point by repeating the last sentence three times.

It was in Sapoa where leaders of the Contra umbrella organization, the Nicaraguan Resistance, met with the Sandinistas last week and agreed on a 60-day cease-fire beginning April 1. Further high-level negotiations are tentatively scheduled for April 6 in Managua to reach a more permanent truce.

No fighting between Sandinista and Contra forces has been reported since both sides signed the accord in Sapoa on the night of March 23.

Maj. Gen. Joaquin Cuadra, deputy defense minister and chief of staff of the Sandinista army, was to head the government delegation at today's talks. Deputy Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco and military intelligence chief Maj. Ricardo Wheelock Roman were to accompany Cuadra.

Under the Sapoa agreement, rebel forces are to gather without interference from Sandinista forces in specified zones inside Nicaragua during the first two weeks of April. Today's talks between special commissions of the two sides were to define "the localization, size and modus operandi" of those zones, according to the text of the Sapoa accord.

Protest march called

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Opposition leaders stepped up their campaign to oust strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega by calling on Panamanians to stage a protest march in the capital, despite a state of emergency.

The march, to be held this afternoon, comes at the start of the second week of a general strike that has shut down an estimated 90 percent of the nation's industry and commerce, further aggravating a critical cash shortage.

As the opposition planned the march Palm Sunday, Catholic church leaders said government authorities "fear this explosion of sentiments" and appealed to both sides to show restraint. The church leaders said in a statement they would send observers to today's march in Panama City to try to keep the peace.

Police and soldiers, under Noriega who heads the 15,000-member Defense Forces, have suppressed recent demonstrations with tear gas and shotguns.

Meeting is criticized

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir today sharply criticized a meeting in Washington between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and two Arab-Americans linked to the PLO.

In another development, authorities reportedly arrested more Arabs overnight in the occupied territories to head off further violence.

Also today, PLO chief Yasser Arafat's chief spokesman was quoted as saying Shultz will have more meetings with PLO-affiliated officials, possibly when the secretary of state visits the Middle East beginning April 3.

On Sunday, soldiers shot and killed four more Palestinians in clashes in the West Bank, raising to 118 the number killed in 15 weeks of violent protests against Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, according to U.N. figures. One Israeli soldier has been killed.

Shamir today told the Knesset, Israel's 120-member parliament: "We see as very grave the attempts of the Americans to initiate contacts with PLO members."

China reports overhaul

BEIJING (AP) — The Chinese government today announced a major overhaul of its bureaucracy to streamline operations, eliminate 10,000 jobs and reduce its role in the direct management of the economy.

Song Ping, State Councillor and head of the Communist Party Organization Department, outlined proposals under which 14 ministries under the State Council will be abolished, one redefined and 10 new ones set up.

It will mean a net reduction of five State Council organs from the current 45, Song told a session of the National People's Congress, China's parliament.

Hearing scheduled for today in Baby M case

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — Two years after her birth, the blue-eyed toddler once known as Baby M must undergo a last legal tug-of-war today between her father and the surrogate mother who refused to surrender her.

The court hearing, ordered in a landmark ruling by the New Jersey Supreme Court, is expected to determine how much time surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead-Gould should be allowed to spend with her child, now legally known as Melissa Stern.

Both sides in the dispute strongly disagree over what would be in the child's best interest, with the key issue centering on whether continued contact with Mrs. Whitehead-Gould would be harmful or healthy.

"The critical thing is that these adults can get on with their lives, put the conflicts of the past behind them and support one another," said Dr. David Brodzinsky, who acted as a court-appointed psychologist in the widely publicized 1986 trial that marked the first court ruling on a surrogacy contract.

The judge in that trial barred Mrs. Whitehead-Gould from seeing Melissa, but on Feb. 3 the state Supreme Court declared surrogacy for pay illegal and restored Mrs. Whitehead-Gould's parental rights, while granting custody to the Sterns.

The Supreme Court, in ordering today's visitation hearing, made no specific recommendations on visitation and gave the lower court the "broadest powers" to resolve the issue.

Melissa, a blond, dimpled toddler who turned 2 on Sunday, lives with her father, William Stern, and his wife, Elizabeth, in their Tenafly home. She visits Mrs. Whitehead-Gould once a week for two hours under the supervision of Bergen County sheriff's officers.

Mental health experts who have examined Melissa say she appears to be unaffected by the legal storm around her. She was described as friendly with adults, while being more attached to William Stern than to her mother.

In court papers filed last week, Mrs. Whitehead-Gould says she wants liberal, unsupervised visitation. The Sterns are seeking a halt to visitation for several years.

The session before Superior Court Judge Birger M. Sween is expected to last about three days. The high court ruled that the issue of visitation must be resolved by early May.

In court papers, Mrs. Whitehead-Gould says she wants visitation immediately expanded to eight hours twice a week, unsupervised at her home in East Brunswick. She says she wants the visits eventually to include half the summer and some holidays.

"Mrs. Whitehead-Gould has fashioned an excellent relationship with Melissa and is devoted to promoting an even more flourishing and productive relationship," according to papers filed by her attorney, Harold Cassidy.

But the Sterns' attorney, Gary Skoloff, argues in court papers that no contact would be better for the child because Mrs. Whitehead-Gould does not offer a healthy environment for her, particularly in the last year since the mother became pregnant out of wedlock, divorced her former husband and married Wall Street accountant Dean Gould.

Skoloff did not spell out in the court papers how long contact should be discontinued. In an interview, he said "as long as possible," and Mrs. Whitehead-Gould's attorneys say the Sterns are seeking a six-year moratorium on visits.

Mrs. Whitehead-Gould's attorneys see her divorce and remarriage in a positive light, arguing that she has a more stable relationship and financially secure lifestyle.

Vasectomy no answer for couple

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for "Angry," who feels that her husband is selfish for refusing to have a vasectomy. I was in the same situation after our second child was born. We had a boy and a girl and agreed that our family was complete, so I asked my husband to have a vasectomy.

He agreed, but his heart wasn't in it. The arrangements were made, and I prepped him for the operation the night before. When we arrived at the hospital, the nurse gave us reading material and consent forms to sign. We read about the surgery procedure, discomforts to be expected, the possible complications, follow-up visits, etc.

Ten minutes later, the nurse came in and said, "Mr. Smith, are you ready?" When my husband replied "Yes," I noticed that his voice was pitched about two octaves higher than normal. At this point I realized that he was doing this just for me, so I said, "What do you say we go get some breakfast and forget this whole thing?"

That did it! He bolted for the door, and with a look of undying gratitude in his eyes, kept saying, "Thank you, thank you" over and over. He didn't even care when he was itching to death while his hair grew back in!

Shortly after, I had a tubal ligation. There was no pain, no swelling, no loss of work, and best yet, no weekly sperm checks.

I would have advised "Angry" to have a tubal ligation, and leave the family jewels alone. A vasectomy is not for every man. Trust me.

BEEN THERE IN MICHIGAN

DEAR BEEN THERE: I think you are a living doll for standing by your man as you have, but I fear that your testimonial may have done for women's lib what Jimmy Bakker and Jimmy Swaggart have done for television ministries.

DEAR ABBY: Our teen-age daughter has been corresponding with a pen pal her age in England. We would like to invite the pen pal to come and visit us this summer.

My question: Would it be considered improper for us not to offer to pay her plane fare?

PENNSYLVANIA PARENTS DEAR PARENTS: No. An invitation to visit does not imply "paid transportation." Since these pen pals are teen-agers, I suggest that you either telephone or write to the girl's parents and make the invitation official.

Cumby man turns motel into haven for homeless

CUMBY, Texas (AP) — When Glenn Vincent began leasing the Duvall Motel in October, he didn't plan on opening a shelter for the needy.

The former fast-food manager was looking for a place to start a rural retirement center, but soon found that most area senior citizens preferred to stay at home and that the motel — which sits just off Interstate 30 in Cumby — was too far for many Dallas residents.

"After talking to most of the local churches, county agencies and the Red Cross, I found that there wasn't a shelter for families who lose their homes or jobs," said Vincent. "Where do they go when they lose everything? The street people in Dallas aren't the stereotypical winos. They're lower middle-class people who've lost their homes or their jobs or both."

Vincent had lost his own job as area supervisor for Taco Bell when the company was bought out. "I was making about $40,000 a year," he said. "I figured, maybe people who lose their jobs have to change their ways, like I did. "Instead of putting band-aids on the situations with a meal and one night's rest, we need to get these people back into the workforce."

Vincent started remodeling the vacant motel and restaurant in November, relying on donations and discounts from businesses and agencies in Sulphur Springs, Commerce and Greenville.

Today, his service — called The Vincent Foundation — houses and feeds a dozen people who are helping out with the renovation while Vincent tries to find them relief.

"Financially, we're not getting there," he said. "My biggest concern right now is whether I can pay a $522 electric bill by Thursday."

Along with the three dozen motel rooms, the Vincent Foundation includes a restaurant, lounge area and thrift store, where the needy can be fed and clothed regardless of how much they can pay.

Vincent has also encouraged local residents to stop in for a meal and to shop at the thrift store and "pay what you want."

Local volunteers have also joined Vincent in organizing Cumby's first Meals on Wheels program which currently benefits 13 households.

Vincent has also kept busy in looking for support from private businesses and governmental agencies. "People are waiting to see if we're here to stay," he said.

Final Four set for showdown

SEATTLE — Arizona's Joe Turner (center top) and Harvey Mason (center bottom) join teammate Ken Lofton (11) and other players reacting to a bucket in the final seconds of Sunday's NCAA Regional Championship game against North Carolina. Arizona clinched the regional crown and a berth in the Final Four with its 70-52 victory over the Tar Heels.

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS
It's final. The four are Arizona, Oklahoma, Duke and Kansas.

These four teams will battle for college basketball's national championship next Saturday and Monday at Kansas City.

Second-ranked Arizona brought the Pacific-10 Conference back to the Final Four for the first time since UCLA was there in 1980, while No. 4 Oklahoma and Kansas gave the Big Eight dual representation for the first time.

"We've said all year long we're not carrying the banner for anybody but Arizona," Wildcats Coach Lute Olson said, referring to frequent criticism that the Pac-10 has been weak since UCLA fell from national prominence.

The trip is the first for Arizona but second for Olson, who took Iowa to the Final Four in 1980, when it lost to Louisville in the semifinals. Fifth-ranked Duke has been to the Final Four six times, but has never won a national championship.

Arizona got to the Final Four by beating No. 7 North Carolina 70-52 for the West Regional championship Sunday, handing the Tar Heels their worst NCAA tournament loss since 1969. In the day's other game, Kansas beat No. 20 Kansas State 71-58 for the Midwest title.

On Saturday, Duke upset No. 1 Temple 63-53 to win the East Regional, and Oklahoma defeated Villanova 78-59 in the Southeast Regional. Arizona, 35-2, plays Oklahoma, 34-3, and Kansas, 25-11, meets Duke, 28-6, in next Saturday's semifinals.

WEST

Arizona, which failed for the first time in the tournament to win by at least 20 points, is the first Pacific-10 Conference team in the Final Four other than UCLA since Oregon State went in 1963.

"It was fun to be in the final five," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said. "We were the last team eliminated. But we don't feel very good, and maybe we should. We did better than anyone else. They only beat us by 18, not by 20."

Tom Tolbert scored 18 of his 21 points in the second half for Arizona, which has won 15 in a row.

Olson, now one victory short of 300 for his 20-year career, becomes the eighth coach to guide two different teams to the Final Four.

North Carolina, which hit only two field goals in the final 13 minutes, goes home with its worst tournament whipping since a 104-84 loss to Drake in the 1969 Final Four consolation game.

All-American forward Sean Elliott, voted the outstanding player of the regional, led Arizona with 24 points and

Howard's twin wins recapture Region V lead

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Although Howard College lost its share of the conference lead to McLennan Community College's Highlander baseball team Saturday, Sunday was the Hawks' day. They took both halves of a double bill — and regained the conference lead — by defeating MCC 8-7 and 11-5 at Jack Barber Field.

Howard's record improves to 28-7 for the season and to 9-3 in Region V play. McLennan falls one game back at 8-3.

MCC trailed from the start in the first game as lead batter Kelly Dickinson's bloop single received no assistance from Highlander bats.

Pitcher Al Benavides retired McLennan's next three hitters in order and the Hawks took their first shots at McLennan hurlers.

Howard's first batter, Ernesto Castro, hit a fly out in center field. Jose Rubiera followed with a double into left field and Geraldo Camara drew a walk.

Designated hitter Darren Glenn also walked, loading the bases with one gone in the bottom of the first.

Paul Spyhalski walked and Jose Rubiera scored on the forced run. Kenneth Frederick tapped out a single and brought Camara home to finish Hawk scoring for the inning.

In the third inning McLennan's Dickinson grounded out. Eddie Nocker's base hit up the middle was followed by Kevin Berry's rap into a fielder's choice in center field. The next Highlander hit a single into left center field, followed by J.J. Villarreal's single up the middle to bring home Berry.

The catcher struck out and the next batter popped up, ending McLennan's threat for the inning.

Howard's Castro popped a single and Jose Rubiera followed with a two-run home run.

Paul Spyhalski then hit a single to right center and Camara got on base as a result of a miscue at third. Frederick added a hit to load the bases with Hawks and Mike Bard hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Camara.

In the fourth Michael Monville struck out. Castro added the second Hawk out and Rubiera singled.

Camara followed with a walk and Glenn hit a double, scoring Rubiera and Camara, and Frederick singled into right field, scoring Glenn.

McLennan pulled the starting pitcher after four innings in which he surrendered five runs, four earned, on five hits and walked four batters. He struck out three before leaving the game en route to a 3-1 record.

The Highlanders' reliever fared scarcely better against the Hawks, giving up three runs on three hits and walking three during his three innings on the mound. He fanned four Howard batters.

The game ended with Howard tied for first place with McLennan in Region V, according to assistant coach Greg Henry, and the Hawks' efforts in the late game recaptured the lead.

Howard knocked off McLennan

11-5 in the second game; Jody Allen started and reliever Greg Kroeger earned the win.

McLennan's starter was evacuated from the mound after just one third of an inning, in which he surrendered three runs on two hits and walked three batters, striking out only one.

Reliever Lennis Ploeger spent two innings on the mound for the Highlanders, giving up three hits and three runs, all earned, walking one batter and striking out one more before leaving the game.

The third McLennan pitcher of the day was shelled for three earned runs, four total, on three hits with one walk and no strikeouts in one and two-thirds innings.

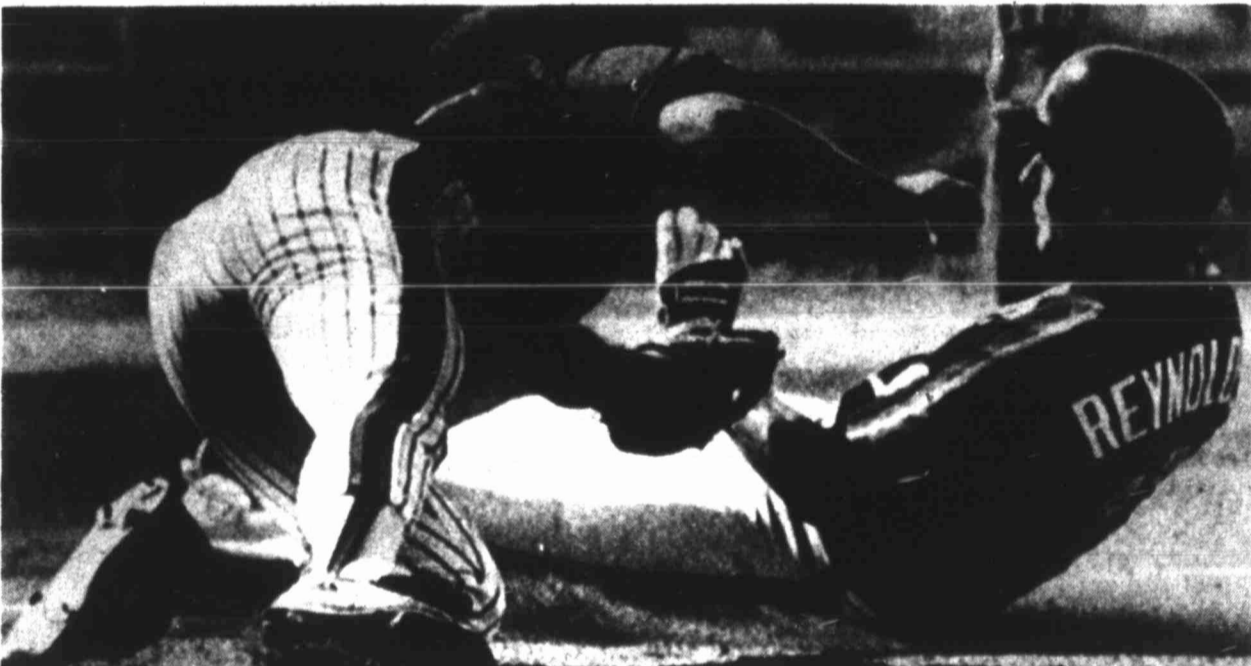

Phil Essex took the mound for the battered McLennan squad to finish the game, pitching two innings, giving up four hits and one earned run, allowing no walks and striking out two Hawks.

In the bottom of the first, Castro walked for Howard. Rubiera doubled and Camara singled up the middle, scoring Castro. Glenn was hit by a pitch and Deal walked, scoring Rubiera; Camara scored on a fielder's choice off Frederick's base-hit ball.

In the third, another pitch hit Glenn; Spyhalski struck out and Glenn stole second. Randy Deal hit a two-run homer and Frederick followed with a solo home run.

Howard added two runs in each of the next two innings and one in the sixth, but McLennan ran out of steam in the fourth and the Hawks salted away the second game, 11-5.

NIT roundball continues

NEW YORK (AP) — The cover of the Colorado State basketball media guide features a picture of Coach Boyd Grant and the exclamation, "Boyd's Back!"

The same slogan could apply to the National Invitation Tournament.

Grant, who won the NIT with Fresno State in 1983, will pit his Rams against Ohio State in the opener of Tuesday night's semifinals as the tournament reaches its Madison Square Garden stage. The other semifinal has Boston College and Connecticut in a matchup of the Big East's seventh- and ninth-place teams.

"It's the biggest thing that ever happened to our school," Grant said of the 64-49 victory over Arkansas State last Friday that brought the Rams to New York. "It's bigger than New Year's Eve."

Grant, 54, left Fresno State after the 1986 season and sat out a year before returning to his alma mater this season.

The Rams, 21-12, finished in a tie for fifth in the Western Athletic Conference but have outlasted the four WAC teams that made the NCAA Tournament field. The same is true of Ohio State, sixth in the Big Ten, and Connecticut and Boston College, who remain alive while the conference's six NCAA invitees have gone home.

Boston College, 18-13, was the last team to qualify, getting 24 points from Dana Barros and 17 points and 17 rebounds from Steve Benton to beat Middle Tennessee 78-69 Saturday night. Connecticut beat Virginia Commonwealth 71-62 and Ohio State beat New Mexico 68-65 Friday night.

Grant is the outsider among the four coaches, all of whom have ties to Boston.

Gary Williams of Ohio State, for example, left Boston College two years ago after leading the Eagles to post-season play in each of his four years there. Boston College's Jim O'Brien played at BC, then returned there from St. Bonaventure when Williams left. Jim Calhoun took over at Connecticut two years ago after 14 seasons at Northeastern in Boston.

"If I weren't playing Colorado State, I think I'd be back for the Big East tournament," Williams said. "But all four share one thing — the achievement of reaching Madison Square Garden."

"Nobody gave us a chance to do anything at the beginning of the season," O'Brien said. "They said we'd be lucky to win three games in the league and 10 for the season. Here we are with 18 wins."

"We were 15-14 at the end of the regular season and we were lucky enough to get a bid," said Calhoun, who starts two juniors, a sophomore and two freshmen at Connecticut. "But we were 13-1 outside the league and played in what I still think is the best conference in the country. I think we deserve to be here."

HC's rodeo team earns fourth place

CANYON — The Howard College men's rodeo team finished fourth overall here after Sunday's final go-round in the West Texas State University rodeo.

Western Texas College, Snyder, finished first with 290 total points, while Sul Ross State University captured second place with 280. Tarleton State University finished third with 155 points and Howard finished fourth with 145 total points.

Howard coach Dusty Johnston's team comes home to host the Howard College Rodeo Thursday through Sunday.

Third cup Zurbriggen skis to world title

SAALBACH, Austria (AP) — Pirmin Zurbriggen had already convinced himself that he'd have to be happy with just his two smaller World Cup trophies. Now he's going to have to find a place on the family mantle for his third big one.

Against the odds, Zurbriggen beat Italy's Alberto Tomba at his own game this weekend to win his third World Cup overall skiing title. It's a title the Swiss star surely didn't expect to be carrying home today. Zurbriggen, blowing scoring opportunities with each race, led Tomba only 283 points to 281 heading into the final races of the season — a giant slalom and a slalom, both events dominated by the 21-year-old Italian throughout this season.

But Tomba, who won three World Cup giant slaloms in addition to the Olympic gold medal, fell in Friday's race. No problem, really, because on Saturday was the slalom. Tomba had won six of the seven previous slaloms, finishing second in the other, and had also won Olympic gold in that event. But, amazingly, he fell on Saturday, as well.

As it turned out, Zurbriggen didn't even need to be here to add this overall title to those he won in 1984 and 1987. But as long as he was here, he took the opportunity that no one should ever count him out. He didn't win either of the decisive races, but he had a solid third in the GS and a surprising fourth in the slalom, an event in which he seldom excels simply because he can't find time to train.

Despite losing a title he seemed a shoo-in to win, Tomba dominated the season, with his personality as much as his racing. He won nine World Cup races, and each victory was greeted with an even bigger party than the previous one. The overall trophy was the only thing he didn't win, and the slalom and giant slalom titles and two Olympic golds no doubt will salvage some of the disappointment.

Saturday's Puzzle Solved:

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You will finally get the legal settlement or job agreement you have been seeking. Take care of deserving friends, but keep an eye out for your own financial interests as well. Polishing your communications skills will hasten success. Include older offspring in major family decisions. They will be much more cooperative if consulted. Travel, if that is the only way you can get the rest you need. Try to get your work associates to accept more responsibility.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Eileen Heckart, 10th President John Tyler, singer Pearl Bailey, pitching great Cy Young, former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, running back Earl Campbell.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You need to be more assertive at work. You will have to go full throttle to improve the bottom line in business. Your leadership qualities bring you richly deserved recognition. Heed mate's wishes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not start bossing the folks at home just because you do not have enough help at work. Travel brings good luck. A self-improvement project polishes your image. Keep your promises.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Push appointments ahead so you will have more planning time later today. Your luck holds out even when you risk a lot. A fascinating newcomer holds strong romantic appeal. Go slow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Financial affairs go your way. Play your cards closer to your chest. Banish your fears. Your guardian angel is smiling on you, especially at home. Make up your mind to move beyond an old heartbreak.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22): An emotional outburst could lead to a career setback. Let others lead the way until a difficult situation improves. Nothing but good lies ahead for you. Be patient. Consolidate recent gains.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Put your heart and soul into your work. Resist the urge to take shortcuts. A secret romance would be a big mistake. Postpone signing agreements, contracts. Better terms will be offered later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You receive unexpected praise from an influential person. A promotion or raise could be in the works. Contact with foreigners gives you a new perspective. A great time to cement new relationships.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Concentrate on an important work project early in the day. Constant interruptions are irritating but unavoidable. Refuse to get involved in your co-workers' private affairs. Taking a small risk pays off handsomely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not try to scale the highest peaks right now. Be content to make slow but steady progress. An important telephone call late today alerts you to a change. A close relationship benefits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep business overhead down; limit expense account bills. Do not allow a loved one to influence the way you do your work. Get involved in projects that offer new sources of revenue.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Show sympathy for any colleagues who are working under pressure. It is time to seek a discreet meeting with an influential person. Loved one shares a happy secret. Be a good listener.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Postpone changing jobs. A rash decision will be deeply regretted later on. Bigger and better opportunities are on the horizon! Smarten up your living quarters with new paint or wallpaper.

Houston fears losing super conducting scientist

HOUSTON (AP) — After suffering through an oil-price plunge, a troubled space program and the near exodus of its pro football team, Houston wants to avoid another hit: The departure of superconductivity superstar physicist Paul Chu.

"I think we need to be sure we don't drop the ball," says City Councilman Jim Greenwood. "It's probably more important to keep Paul Chu as it was to keep the Houston Oilers."

Superconductivity, the almost-mystical potential of some materials to carry electricity without loss, is one of the hottest areas in science today. And University of Houston physics professor Chu, 47, has become among the hottest researchers in superconductivity.

There is little disagreement that advances in superconductivity are likely to create a multitrillion-dollar industry, with applications in computers, transmission of electricity and transportation.

Last year, Chu announced that his experiments with materials showed evidence of superconductivity at temperatures warmer than ever before achieved. The discovery brought energy-saving practical applications within closer range.

The news spread quickly among scientific circles and made Chu an overnight science celebrity. Job offers began rolling in. One university has promised him a $20 million research package if he moves there, said Chu, who isn't naming the school.

The offer he has taken most seriously is from the University of California-Berkeley. On March 6, the San Francisco Examiner reported Chu had accepted a teaching and research post there, but Chu said that he was only considering it.

Berkeley officials continue to claim Chu has taken the job.

"We are expecting him to come to Berkeley this fall," said Geoffrey Chew, Berkeley's dean of physical sciences. "He came here last week, and confirmed that he had accepted the offer."

Chew said Chu would receive a joint appointment to the physics and material sciences departments, and be affiliated with the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory.

Through his secretary, Mike Albert, Chu says he has not made any decision, and is still considering the Berkeley offer. In recent weeks, he has not responded to numerous Associated Press requests for an interview.

"Paul has been agonizing over this decision for about a year now," said Roy Weinstein, dean of the University of Houston College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics.

Among the major attractions of Berkeley for Chu are the university's prestige, the favorable California weather and the proximity to family members who live in California, Weinstein said.

Since his major discovery, Chu has been appointed to the newly created T.L.L. Temple Chair at UH, funded by a $1.5 million endowment. His salary has been raised and he has been named director of the Texas Center of Superconductivity at UH, a $30 million research unit to be built there.

"I think that the superconductivity center is more important to him than anything else," said UH President Richard Van Horn. "We have perhaps more people working in superconductivity than anywhere else."

Houston's relatively undiversified energy-based economy was hit hard by the 1986 fall of oil prices. Operations of the nation's space program, and the nearby Johnson Space Center here, came to a virtual halt with the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger.

The city's confidence was further battered last year by the near departure of the Houston Oilers to Jacksonville, Fla.

For many Houstonians, Chu could be the goose who lays the golden egg, fostering the birthplace of a new generation of high technology.

"Wherever major discoveries are made, industry grows around it," says Houston businessman Tom Wright. "We should go out of our way to make sure he likes it here."

"In my mind, superconductivity will be bigger to this area than NASA ever was," Wright said. "The superconductivity stuff will have an unbelievable effect on the average person's life."

Wright has organized a letter-writing campaign, asking owners of small businesses to write Chu.

Weinstein says he believes Chu will split his time between California and Houston, but says the strain of such an arrangement may be difficult for the quiet researcher.

"It's a question of whether he can do it," Weinstein said. "He will have to confront it, test it and see."

Albert says Chu still spends most of his time in the laboratory, often on nights and weekends, although he now attends more conferences and meetings than in the past.

Search is on

WICHITA FALLS — Officials were combing Lake Wichita late Sunday for a Holliday, Texas boy who disappeared after he fell out of a capsized boat. The search was suspended when it became too dark to continue. The missing boy has been identified as Jason Ray Hoover, 13. By sundown, five boats had joined the search. Two other boys in the boat swam to shore.

Alice residents responding to above-average crime rate

ALICE (AP) — The crime rate in Alice is almost twice the statewide average for a city its size, prompting some residents to consider mounting their own fight against crime.

One in eight households in this community of 22,624 was burglarized last year, state figures show. According to FBI and Texas Department of Public Safety statistics, 723 burglaries and 1,361 larceny-theft cases were reported by the Alice Police Department in 1987.

"We've had pretty well enough of it," said Gary Lynd, whose drilling company has been burglarized repeatedly during recent months. His pickup truck has been broken into nine times while parked outside his home in an affluent neighborhood, he told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Alice is about 35 miles west of Corpus Christi. Charlene Cain of the DPS uniform crime reporting unit in Austin said the statewide average crime rate for a city the size of Alice is calculated at 5,940 total crimes a year.

Alice's crime rate, projected with a population of 100,000 and based on previously reported criminal activity in the city, is calculated at 9,746.6 total crimes a year, she said.

Lynd says his neighbors are so upset about their homes being repeatedly burglarized that they are considering patrolling their own streets to help stop break-ins. And some of the patrols could be armed, he said.

A group called Citizens in Action was formed in response to the crime, but members try to keep their identities secret for fear of reprisal.

Advertisements for the group, published in the Alice Echo-News, mention no names and statements from group members do not carry specific identities. They are attributed instead to a "concerned citizen" or "concerned merchant."

"Yes, we would defend ourselves," Lynd said. "You have the right to bear arms. And I will do whatever it takes to protect my property and my family. And I mean whatever it takes."

"I don't want to kill anybody... But I'll do whatever it takes to defend my family and property," Lynd said.

But Police Chief Pete Hinojosa says the department won't allow armed vigilantes to patrol the streets.

City officials acknowledge the crime rate in the city has been rising and say they welcome the formation of the citizens group.

Man attempts own mistaken defense

DALLAS (AP) — A man in court on charges of attempted capital murder fired his attorney midway through his trial because she wasn't making enough mistakes, the lawyer said.

Jerome Anthony Johnson, 23, then mounted his own defense against the charges, including aggravated robbery and capital murder.

Johnson, who studied criminal justice in college, fired Yung-Sung Choe because she "wasn't making enough reversible errors" that would help him get a new trial in an appeals court, Ms. Choe said.

"He said he planned it even before he was arrested," she said. "He told people, 'If they catch me, this is what I'm going to do.'"

Johnson was sentenced Friday to 47 years in prison, half what he could have received.

"It came out good then," Johnson told Ms. Choe after state District Judge Frances Maloney read the jury's verdict.

Johnson was charged with robbing a 53-year-old woman and her 80-year-old mother in November. Neither woman was injured, but prosecutors said Johnson accidentally shot an accomplice as he fired a gun at one of the women.

About noon Wednesday, Johnson interrupted Ms. Choe's cross-examination of a witness and asked Maloney to allow him to represent himself.

"He just exercised his constitutional rights. And I let him," Maloney said.

Dressed in a suit, Johnson questioned several witnesses and objected to actions by the prosecution before explaining to Ms. Choe what he had planned.

"I couldn't let him commit fraud upon the court," Ms. Choe said. So she told the judge.
