BRAVES TAKE SECOND GAME IN WORLD'S SERIES

BATTLE OF PITCHERS

WONDERFUL PITCHING ENABLES BOSTON TO WIN IN DRAMATIC CLIMAX

A REMARKABLE GAME

Plank's Pitching As Well As That of James Unsurpassed in World's Series

By Associated Press. Oct. 10.—In a pitcher's battle with a dramatic climax usually reserved for baseball fiction, the Boston Nationals defeated the Philadelphia Athletics here today in the second game of the world's series by a score of five to nothing. As a result of the victory the Braves left for Boston tonight with a two game lead over the Athletics and the added advantage of playing the next two contests on their home grounds when the series is resumed on Monday.

Although the American League champions were forced to bow for the second time in two days to the superior play of their National League rivals, they offered a far more determined opposition than was the case Friday. For eight innings the two clubs battled behind the pitching of James and Plank without the semblance of an advantage. Then came the break in the game and once more the Mackmen saw another world's series contest slip away.

JAMES' PITCHING UNHITTABLE. James had been pitching unhittable ball and Plank, while not quite so effective had, with the aid of his remarkable infield support, held Boston scoreless. The Athletics' veteran twirler was working as smoothly as at the beginning of the game when Maranville faced him at the opening of the ninth inning. The phenomenal shortstop went out. Barry to McInnis and Deal, substitute third baseman in place of "Red" Smith stepped to the plate. The Athletic followers already were figuring on what chance their players had to win out in the ninth. Deal and James appeared to be easy outs.

The Boston third-sacker who had hit into three double plays on Friday and forced three team-mates in today's game was not considered a batting factor. It was Deal, however, who upset Plank's expectations and the Athletics' chances. He drove a long double over Strunk's head and a moment later stole third when Schang threw low to Barry to catch Deal off the base. Barry turned to throw to third but held the ball and Deal was safe. Whether Baker was not close enough to the bag or Barry believed it was too late to head off the runner, is not known. James fanned, but Mann lifted a low puzzling Texas Leaguer over Collins' head. Although the latter made a great try for the ball he just touched it with his fingers and sprawled in the turf. Deal dashed across the plate with the solitary run of the game.

ATHLETICS' FUTILE RALLY. The Athletics replied with a great rally in their half of the ninth and James who had carried the game on his shoulders alone up to this point, began to totter. The thousand of rosters for the home club were stamping, cheering and clapping in unison and Barry waited patiently until James passed him to first. Schang fanned, but Walsh, batting for Plank, also was walked by the rattled pitcher. With two on and one out, the fans felt the Mackmen were about to break through and win. The uproar was deafening.

Eddie Murphy lead off man for the Athletics, stepped to the plate, and catching one of James' curves full on the end of his bat drove a leaping grounder to the left of second base. Maranville sprang with the crack of the bat and with a catlike bound clutched the ball and with another leap touched the bag, forcing Walsh. With almost the same motion he snatched the ball to Schmidt at first for a double on Murphy and a second later went down in a cloud of dust as Walsh dashed into him at top speed. When he scrambled to his feet the other players were running for the club house and the game was saved.

PITCHING UNSURPASSED. This play came at a most opportune and dramatic moment for James was beginning to falter after pitching a game which for skill and control never has been surpassed in a world's series in this city or even in the twirlers' duels in which Christy Mathewson, Bender and Plank figured. The Boston boxman had perfect control, change of pace and a splitter that broke like lightning. He fanned eight of the heavy hitting Athletics and when the batters did connect with his delivery the usual result was a weak fly or roller. This is best demonstrated by the fact that twenty-four of the twenty-seven put-outs made by Boston were credited to the infield or batteries. James gave three passes, two coming in the eighth inning when the Athletics came near scoring.

The Mackmen got but two players safe past first and had but one left on bases. Of the two hits charged against James, the one of Collins would have been an easy out for Evers but for the fact that it bounded so high that the batter beat the throw by a step. Plank, while he pitched a splendid game for his club was forced to divide more honors with his team-mates than James. The veteran's pitching was not quite the sigma of the Boston outters that James was to the white elephants. Plank several times was saved by the sensational fielding of Baker, Barry, Collins and McInnis. He fanned six Braves. Pitcher James striking out four times in succession. He gave four bases on balls and hit one batter. Of the twenty-seven put-outs made by the Mackmen the battery and infield accounted for twenty-one. Plank had to watch the bases closer than James for eleven Bostonians were stranded to the Athletics' side.

REMARKABLE PLAYING. Considering the closeness and strain of the game both teams played remarkable baseball. There were errors of commission and omission but all were excusable under the conditions. Maranville and Deal got mixed on McInnis' first foul in the eighth inning and the shortstop was hardly prepared for the chance. The Athletics' error was charged to McInnis who failed to hold a wide throw from Barry although he stretched until he fell over, trying to get a clutch on the ball. Schang appeared to have difficulty in holding Plank's delivery at times but escaped without a black mark.

THE GAME IN DETAIL.
FIRST INNING. Boston—Mann, who replaced Moran in Boston's lineup for today's game, was first up and went out on a grounder to Collins. Evers laid down a slow infield roller and was able to beat it to first. Plank struck Cather out. Whitted led four wide ones go by and took his base. Schmidt went a high fly to center and the side was retired. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Philadelphia—Murphy was cheated out of his usual lead-off hit when James issued him four wide ones. He soon got in a chase between first and second and was put out. Oldring was an easy out, third to first. Eddie Collins met his fate by the same route. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SECOND INNING. Boston—Gowdy drew a pass and walked. Maranville sacrificed him to second, the play being from third to first. Deal sent a short one to Plank and Gowdy was run down between the bases, Plank to Collins to Baker; Deal reached first on the play, and Claver base running put him on second. James struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Philadelphia—Baker sent a pop foul to Schmidt and was out. McInnis could not solve James' delivery and struck out and Strunk met the same disagreeable fate. No runs, no hits, no errors.

THIRD INNING. Boston—Mann sent a grounder to Barry and was thrown out at first. Evers drew two strikes and then shot a single to center field. Cather's pop fly to third retired him. While Whitted was at bat, Evers tried to steal second and was thrown out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Philadelphia—Barr was retired on a high fly to left field. Schang went down the same way. Plank was struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors. James seemed to be going strong, only nine men facing him in three innings.

FOURTH INNING. Boston—Whitted was out on a fly to center field. Schmidt drew three and two, then singled cleanly to right field. Gowdy sent a fly to right field and was out. Maranville got the second single of the inning, to right field, advancing Schmidt to second. Deal ended the agony by forcing Maranville at second with a grounder to Barry. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Philadelphia—Murphy went out to first on a grounder. Oldring struck out and Collins was retired, James to Schmidt. No runs, no hits, no errors. The Boston contingent sang "Tessie" and cheered James heartily.

FIFTH INNING. Boston—Plank struck James out. Mann singled to center and there were great hopes for Boston when Evers came up, but his best was a fly to center, Mann being held at first. Evers was thrown out trying to pilfer second. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Philadelphia—Baker was retired on a fly to center field. James struck McInnis out and followed suit with Strunk, making just fifteen batters who faced him in five innings. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SIXTH INNING. Boston—Whitted went out on a pop fly to Collins. Schmidt stopped a Brief Announcements From Europe Lead To Suspicion of Assassination

KING CHARLES DIED SATURDAY

London, Oct. 10.—The death of King Charles of Rumania occurred at 6:30 a. m., at his country home.

Petrograd via London, Oct. 10.—King Charles of Rumania is dead.

No details of the death of King Charles were obtainable up to a late hour last night, leaving room for the suspicion that he had been assassinated. Recent dispatches from Bucharest via Rome told of an open rupture between the king and his council over the question of participating in the war. The Rumanians are in sympathy with the allies in the present war, while King Charles, a Hohenzollern

CHANNEL PORTS GERMAN OBJECTIVE

PARIS CORRESPONDENT SAYS NORTHERN FRANCE MARKED FOR DESOLATION

BLOW IS AIMED AT ENGLAND

First Blow Aimed at Paris Having Failed Germans Now Change Their Plans

By Associated Press. London, Oct. 10.—The correspondent of the Express in Paris telegraphs: "The immediate objective of the German army no longer is Paris but the channel ports. To sum up the German plan, the first blow on Paris having failed, the second blow must be aimed at England. The new line-up of the opposing forces means that Northern France is destined to suffer a desolation similar to that already experienced in Belgium. All of France's rich cities in the north have been marked for destruction. The French general staff still is confident of success but it is recognized there can be no decisive victory while the masses engaged are so enormous." The Times military correspondent says: "Permanent forts in an exposed position stand no chance. If the German force holds Antwerp later and we attack it the result will be the same. The capture of Antwerp by the Germans will have an effect on opinion which cannot be denied, but the city, even if converted into a military base will bring the Germans little advantage, for the Scheldt cannot be used for naval purposes. Germany doubtless hopes to retain Antwerp for herself when peace comes but there is no possibility of that."

REPORT DECLARED TRUE KING ALBERT WOUNDED

By Associated Press. London, Oct. 10.—The reports that King Albert of Belgium has been slightly wounded are true, according to the Amsterdam correspondent of the Daily Mail. Persons who saw the king with his troops on Friday state that he had one arm in a sling.

ANTWERP HAS SURRENDERED; ITS DEFENDERS MAKE ESCAPE

ALLIES' AND GERMAN CAVALRY FORCES CLASH

By Associated Press. On the Battlefront, via Paris, Oct. 10.—11:51 p. m. Saber and lance came into play many times today. The French, British and German Hussars lancers and dragoons in enormous numbers came into contact near Lille. There were no brilliant charges by long lines of horsemen to record, but British squadron in khaki and the French in their light and dark blue uniforms often crossed swords with the blue-gray clad Germans.

There is not an inch of ground hereabouts which does not show traces of the awful character of the battle. The town of Albert is a mass of ruins. Roze has disappeared under constant bombardment. It was the center of the German effort to break through the allies' line. The German artillery had taken advantage of many quarries in the vicinity where they placed guns which were beyond the reach of the French artillery. The vicinity of Arras was the scene of vigorous encounter between infantrymen who engaged in close fighting with the bayonet after the artillery duel ceased. At some points along the line Germans offered to surrender if given food.

Beyond Roze where the fighting has been exceptionally severe for fifteen days as possession of the place means control of the railroad lines and also the road to Amiens, the allies continued their efforts to dislodge the Germans. It was necessary for the allies to conduct regular siege operations. Farther east the French made a considerable advance in Alsace and captured some territory on the heights of the Meuse where the Germans attacked them repeatedly but always were beaten back. Night attacks appear to have ceased for the present except in a few isolated places.

AUSTRIANS DRIVING RUSSIANS BEFORE THEM IN GALICIA THEY CLAIM

By Associated Press. New York, Oct. 10.—Dr. Alexander B. Luber, Austrian consul here, today made public the following wireless communication from Vienna which he said was forwarded him from Manchester, Massachusetts:

"Our advance in Galicia attained success everywhere. All the attacks of the Russians broke down under the fire of our heavy guns which inflicted great losses on the attacking columns. In the Carpathian mountains two groups of Russians were defeated near Marmaros, Sziget and the town is again in our hands. There are no more Russians west of Wyrskow. Russians stationed along the western road to Przemyśl have been repulsed toward the fortress. Kraszow has been retaken and many guns were captured. In the corner between the Vistula and the San we took many prisoners. The renewed fierce attack upon Przemyśl was splendidly repulsed. Many thousand Russians were killed and wounded. The Servians who broke into Bosnia unresisted have been thrown back over the Freina River. They lost one transport column. The Servian main force under command of Former War Minister Bozanovic having reached Rumania, took flight; they lost one battalion and several quick fliers." The communication was signed by Count Bethhold.

GERM OF PARIS CAPTURE IN FALL OF ANTWERP

London, Oct. 10.—"The capture of Antwerp carried the germ of the capture of Paris," said the Deutsche Tageblatt Zeitung, according to a letter dispatch from Berlin in "the fall of this fortress," adds the newspaper, "not only means the overthrow of the Belgians but it is a most serious blow to England."

GERMANS OCCUPIED CITY 2:30 FRIDAY AFTERNOON

By Associated Press. The Hague, via London, Oct. 10.—Antwerp surrendered to the Germans at 2:30 Friday afternoon, Oct. 9. The war flag was removed from the cathedral and a white flag raised in its place at 9 a. m. The actual surrender took place five and a half hours later. It is declared here that the cathedral of Notre Dame has escaped damages.

The Germans delivered one of their last furious assaults on the inner forts at seven o'clock in the morning. The Belgians resisted them valiantly in their trenches, and the desperate fighting resulted in heavy losses on both sides. During all Thursday night Zeppelin airships directed the firing of the Germans.

The German artillery forced its way across the river Nethe in which many of the artillerymen were drowned. The fighting has been indescribably sanguinary. The Belgians succeeded in blowing up two and possibly more of the enemy's batteries.

GERMAN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT. The official announcement of the capitulation of Antwerp given out at German headquarters late last night says:

"This forenoon several forts of the inner lines of the fortifications have fallen. The town since mid-day has been in our possession. The commander and the garrison evacuated the fortifications. Only a few forts are still occupied by the enemy and this is without military effect.

The siege of Antwerp which culminated in its fall began on September 29 so that the Germans took just ten days to reduce the formidable fortifications which surrounded the city. The Germans, however, for a long time previous had prepared the way for the attack by taking a number of towns in the vicinity.

COMBAT ON EAST PRUSSIAN FRONTIER CONTINUES OBSTINATELY

By Associated Press. Petrograd, Oct. 10.—The following communication under date of October 9 has been made public by the Russian general staff: "The combat on the East Prussian frontier continues with the same obstinacy. The German troops are retiring from Lyck and are blowing up bridges behind them. In passes between Ivanogrod and Sanomir artillery battles are occurring with the enemy, which is approaching the Vistula."

ENGLISH FORCES WERE ENGAGED IN THE DEFENSE OF ANTWERP

By Associated Press. London, Oct. 10.—The official admission that the British participated in the defense of Antwerp is contained in an admiralty announcement tonight and that three naval brigades with heavy guns had been sent there during the last week of the German attack.

The announcement adds that in the retreat from Antwerp two of the brigades reached Ostend safely; the other was cut off near a point in East Flanders near Ghent and 2000 of the men were interned in Holland. The retreat of the British army was accomplished successfully. The losses of the British naval brigade probably are less than 300 out of a total of 8000 men.

Both Villa and Carranza are buying from the United States all the arms and munitions of war they want or have the money to pay for. If the United States is in real earnest about wanting to stop this war in Mexico, why is this permitted? The gun makers and powder manufacturers suffer if the ban was put on, but that should not worry the people.

State Land Commissioner Robinson has written County Clerk E. P. Walsh to notify the banks and all those interested that he will not expect interest payments on State lands to be met this November on account of the financial stringency, and that before declaring foreclosures he will notify the people interested. Those interested may govern themselves accordingly.

In order to gain a majority in the next Congress, the Republicans in the November elections will have to elect eighty-seven Republicans to seats in Congress that are now filled by Democrats. In some of the States holding elections this year, the Republican party is more united than it was two years ago, which caused the election of several Democrats in districts that had always returned Republican majorities before. The coming together of the two factions of the Republican party is therefore bound to cause the defeat of several Democrats now in Congress, but it is extremely doubtful if the Republicans will be able to make good their forecast. The chances are the next Congress will be Democratic, but by a reduced majority. This is to be expected, and can hardly be avoided.

Thomas Jefferson is credited with having at one time said: "The government that governs least governs best." Governor Colquitt at one time endorsed that doctrine, but now it seems he is proposing that a law be enacted that will place in the penitentiary any man who violates it by planting too much cotton on a farm that he owns. But the farmers need not worry. No such law will ever be enacted unless they themselves sanction it. The cotton acreage should be cut down. There is no question about that. It might not be a bad idea for the National government to place a revenue tax on all cotton produced over a certain amount, and let that tax be high enough to almost cover the market price of the excess cotton produced. There would be some sense to such a law as that. But to legislate what a farmer shall plant and how much of a certain crop he can plant, is somewhat despotic.

As a general thing, The Times takes no stock in this agitation of exempting from taxation capital invested in any sort of manufacturing enterprise. In fact and in truth, The Times has always opposed that sort of business as class legislation. But The Times has changed its way of thinking along that line, and the cause of this change has been brought about by the present low price of cotton. If the cotton States could take the raw material and manufacture it into cloth of various kinds, there can hardly be a doubt that it would prove to great advantage to the cotton grower, and if the next Legislature could see its way clear to exempt from taxation for a period of say twenty-five years all cotton factories now in operation and to be constructed, the result would be that nearly every important cotton market in the State would have a cotton factory. Now is a very good time to look into the merits of such a proposition. In order to accomplish the desired legislation, as The Times understands it, it will be necessary to amend the constitution and the next regular session of the Legislature would cause to be submitted to the people such an amendment. It might not meet with favor at the hands of the people, but it is well worth what it will cost to get their verdict on such a matter.

EMPERORS AND SOCIALISTS.

Saturday Evening Post: For at least ten years all Europe has been steadily preparing for war, and the only large, organized, formal protest against such preparation has come from the Socialists. All other important political sections have with cheers voted for more battleships and battalions; but the Socialist party represents the workmen, who, with the peasants, must finally pay the war bill in blood and coin; and unfolding anti-militarism has always been a cardinal tenet in its creed.

With four and a quarter million votes, and with 111 members of the Reichstag, out of a total of 398 members, the Socialist party is stronger in Germany than in any other country; and there it has preached anti-militarism in the face of militarism and persecution.

Last year, however, the Kaiser demanded his extraordinary military contribution of a quarter of a billion dollars, on top of the ordinary military taxes. This ominously hinted war, but the Socialist members voted for it solidly. In order to inaugurate this European war, the Kaiser asked for an appropriation of five million marks, and the hundred and eleven Socialist members voted solidly for it.

In his explanatory speech the leader of the party referred feelingly to the Socialist protests against war, and to their other toilers in France, whom they were going to fight; but the real issue, as he saw it, was to prevent a "triumph of Russian despotism, weltering in the blood of Germany's noblest sons." Therefore, we must today justify what we have always said—in its hour of danger Germany may always rely on us.

Of course, the French Socialist, the Russian Socialist and the English Socialist can vote for war on Germany with exactly as good consciences. We will talk peace, but we will vote for war taxes; and when the bugle sounds we will fight.

In view of this action by the party that represents four million German workmen, why blame it on the Kaiser or look for any particular scapegoat?

LETTERS HOME TELL OF FRENCH BATTLES

ARE PUBLISHED IN GERMAN PAPERS—FROM OFFICERS AND PRIVATES

TELL OF MEN'S EXPERIENCE

One Written By German Officer Is Not Very Complimentary To French Troops

(Mail Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

Rotterdam, Sept. 19.—Much of the news of the war gets into the German press in the form of letters which officers and privates at the front send to their families. Written by men who describe what they actually see and feel, some strange mixtures of sensations experienced and actually encountered result—documents of strong appeal and wide human interest. One of these appears in the Koelnische Zeitung of September 14.

"I am from a wild French forest, on the anniversary of the battle of Spier (September 2) the best greetings. During the last two days we have again been at the extreme front, after we had been given a chance to rest up and get enough to eat. Our position is a dangerous one, being well advanced into the French lines, and we are obliged to fight off many attacks on the part of an enemy much superior in numbers.

"Yesterday we fought from early morning till late in the night, opposing Alpine chasseurs and negroes, whose courage it would be foolish to question. The woods here are very extended and cover a ground which is much broken up. They are so dense that very often you do not see the enemy until you are within 50, even 30, paces of him, and quite frequently we get so close to the blacks that we can look into their eyes.

"Colors Too Conspicuous. We are greatly indebted to the color of our uniform. The French are constantly at a disadvantage because of their red pants and blue coats. The Alpine chasseurs are fine fellows, and in German uniforms they would make a good appearance. In the French hotel porter nobody looks smart. The chasseur wear red or blue knee breeches, ribbon puttees, long cutaway and a blue cap. Pioneers without arms make an appearance of utter neglect. There are prisoners taken every day, because the ordinary French soldier is only too ready to throw away his arms, make hands up and shout 'paroon!'

"It is now one in the afternoon, and so far, we have not been disturbed. The dead are buried and we are lying under the trees enjoying a spell of quiet and take peace of the forest. I have just finished reading the newspapers to my worthies, and most of them are taking a little noon nap. Everything about us is peaceful. The forest is fragrant with the smell of foliage and pine needles, and the sky laughs in a wonderful blue. It is hard to believe that this is a scene on which men are butchered—the scene of what I saw yesterday. But the dull thud and hummer of artillery in the distance reminds me of this."

Two days later the letter is continued: "We are out of our position. Yesterday we began another advance and attack on the enemy's positions. We are still in the forest and so far as I can judge from the map there are several kilometers of it yet, part brush, part high growth.

"This is dangerous territory for us because of the alternating strips of high trees and new wood make it easy for our opponents to get the best of us. The greatest caution is necessary and our advance is a matter of taking one out of ground after another. We just dived 200 meters and then down for cover. Bullets begin to chirp the air, but the enemy's nothing is seen.

"When the trees are big enough fairly good cover is offered by them. Directly the fire opens the hands and halts and falls flat to the ground, every man waiting and looking for a target. There is no shooting done here with the German rifles except one has somebody on the sight. But often there is nothing to be done but to advance again, and to frighten the fellows with our 'hurrah's. Along the lines travel stentorian 'Fix Bayonets', then comes the command 'March, March, and the line springs to its feet, plunges forward and a nerve-racking 'hurrah' smashes through the woods. The enemy's fire begins a veritable hail of lead. Some fall, but onward crashes the German line.

"As soon as we reach the position of the enemy his fire ceases and all take to flight. Our bullets follow them and then many a 'Red pant' lies on the floor of the forest. But our bullets do not find a mark long—the enemy has disappeared, we after him—only to meet another terrific hail of lead. Again we fall to the ground for cover, and this time I felt a blow—a bullet had struck my cooking utensil. I owe my life to the 'quick fall to the ground'—for another second and I would have never risen again. Another bullet hits the ground just below me—but never mind that. Up and at them—at the very side of the fellows.

"We soon reach our goal—a trench of a slight elevation to the left from where a heavy fire has done so much damage in our line. Many of us are down, and others crawl to the rear to get their wounds attended to. Now, fire! The crest of the trench becomes our target. The rattle of musketry from both sides becomes deafening. One of us will have to give in. Fire! Fire! We have learned how to shoot straight—the fire in the trench weakens; the trench itself is veiled now by a cloud of dust raised by our bullets.

"How Allies Retreat. 'Advance' comes—the command again. We all are impelled forward by the mad desire to get at them. One hundred meters separate us from the enemy. Many sacrifices are demanded in the final charge. Again the enemy's fire weakens—then it almost ceases.

"Advance, shouts somebody. The fellows must be driven out of the trenches. Some of them already are leaving, but our bullets lay them low as they run. Another halt—another advance. Only fifty meters to the trench—barbed wire entanglements block our progress.

"But the fellows in the trenches have lost faith in themselves. They desert their position in masses—running, scrambling, stumbling, falling—some in a manner that shows they will never rise again. We forgot to take cover. Standing, we pour our fire into the groups of fleeing men. Good comrades fall—cry for help—bid you farewell with the last breath. Farwell, good friends, we must advance!

"Soon we have disposed of this enemy who has laid so low many of us. The barbed wire is hacked through with our bayonets. We reach the trench. It is filled with something, struggling bodies. We aimed well. In the ditch lies a kaleidoscopic mixture of bodies swathed in blue and red—and pale ones from which glassy eyes look into the azure sky.

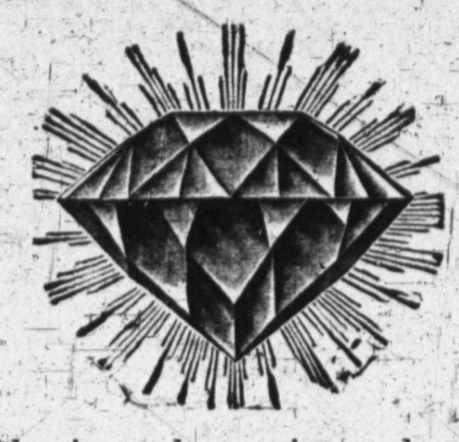

"But on with the pursuit. Some of us remain behind to disarm the wounded so that they cannot fire in our backs. Many another apraxia, falling on the soft forest floor. "The height is taken, but the day is not yet done. Everywhere the French have taken prisoners to stem the tide of retreat. There is yet many a bloody encounter, but we get the enemy out of the forest, and once they reach the open ground waiting artillery does the rest. Our share of the work is done, the gruesome forest and its experience are ours.

"Most of us had lost their comrades in the mad rush through the trees and brushwood. Indescribable were the horrors that we saw when we found one another still alive.

"So we take a rest, and while doing this listen to the humming and whistling of the shells as they go over us on their way to the village in which the French have sought refuge. Soon the buildings are aflame and the French again on their way.

"You have done well," said one corps commander. "With you fellows I'd fetch the devil out of hell."

800 BALES COTTON BURN AT SEYMOUR

FIRE ORIGINATING IN WAREHOUSE REACHES COMPRESS PLATFORM

HARVEY LOSES 300 BALES

Flames Extinguished, However, Before They Reached Compress

About eight hundred bales of cotton were destroyed at Seymour late Friday night, when the Farmers' Union warehouse and the compress were invaded by flames. About 500 bales in the warehouse and 300 in the compress were destroyed. The fire originating in the warehouse from unknown causes. The flames were extinguished before they reached the platform.

The K. O. Harvey Cotton Company of this city was a heavy loser in the fire, it having about 300 bales that were destroyed. The loss was fully covered by insurance. The Harvey Company was the heaviest loser, the remaining bales being owned by various individuals and cotton firms. The theory is advanced that a bale of cotton probably was aflame when stored in the warehouse, although this is only conjecture. The loss will reach nearly $20,000.

KING BAGGOT AT LYDIA MARGARET MONDAY

King Baggot and Arline Pretty will be seen Monday at the Lydia Margaret in "The Silent Valley." The story is as follows: Jonas Milbrook and his wife are a childless couple, living on a Western farm. To take the place of a son lost in infancy, they adopt a boy from the county poor farm, who turns out to be a veritable young savage. One day the farmer gives him a thrashing. The boy on being released runs away and that is the last that the old couple see of him.

Years afterward a small repertoire theatrical company come to play in a small backwood settlement. It is a poor company, as companies go, but there is one redeeming act, in its hodge-podge of vaudeville—a young girl dancer. The opening night of the company's engagement every one in the settlement attends. Among them is the local bully, Joe Peebles.

The first act was nearly finished when Joe strode down the center aisle, nonchalantly showing two citizens off the floor, to take their place.

The next number was Nellie's dance, and as the beautiful girl made her bow, she was greeted with a burst of applause. Hardly had she started her dance, however, when Joe, leaping on the low stage, picked her up as though she was a bag of meal, threw her over his shoulder and strode out into the night. Arriving at the shack he called his home, he placed Nellie (who, finding her puny efforts unavailing, had fainted) in a chair.

Nellie at length opened her eyes and when she had fully comprehended the situation, attempted to rush out. It was but a futile effort, however. Instead, she heaped on Joe all the vituperations of which a young girl is capable.

Joe listened and when she had finished, told her the story of his life, of his terrible loneliness.

Settlers had assembled outside the hut, eye-stricken; Joe came out, leading Nellie by the hand. With wild names and curses he told them what he thought of them, and after saying goodbye to this slip of a girl, started back to the hut. The flame of love, however, was kindled in her bosom and she promised to return in the spring.

In the meantime, Joe's nature was changed. Instead of the blackguard of the town, he became the leading spirit among the children. On a beautiful spring day as Joe was seated among the children, a vision appeared in the hills above the town. The vision came nearer; it was Nellie, who had returned to keep her promise to him.

AMERICAN PETROLEUM TO REPLACE EUROPEAN IMPORTS

Several medicinal articles of which petroleum forms a large percentage

were imported into the United States prior to the war, especially a carefully refined oil having about the consistency of a very light lubricating oil. This has been made, for convenience, in Baku, Russia, and some of it has been manufactured in the United States from petroleum distillates imported from Russia, and has been sold as "albolino," "petroleum oil," etc. The working up of the crude for these oils on the basis of Russian raw material was largely a matter of pure chance, but not of necessity, inasmuch as oils of the same character can be readily produced from American petroleum, and in fact have been produced in small quantities for many years. This vaseline oil is a by-product in the manufacture of vaseline, and has been used for the same medicinal purposes for many years. There is no other product of petroleum manufactured in the United States. Arrangements have been completed whereby American albolino will be on the United States market in quantity before the end of the present calendar year, whether hostilities cease or not.

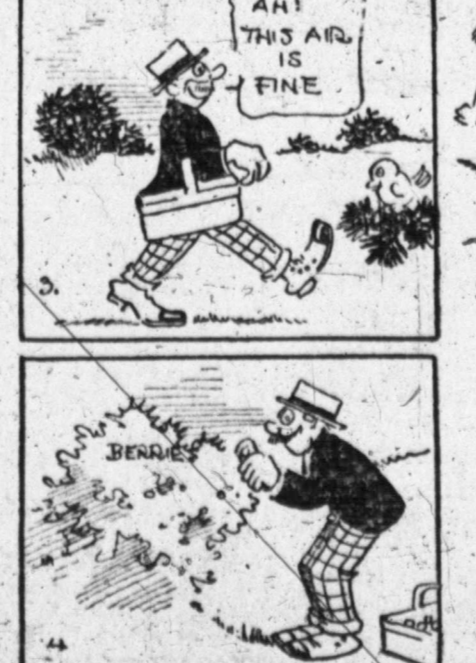

FORMAL OPENING OF BYERS BRIDGE CELEBRATED

A big celebration was held at Byers yesterday on the occasion of the formal opening of the recently completed bridge across Red River four miles west of Byers. Representatives from Henrietta, Bowie, Fort Worth, Alford, Decatur, Byers and a number of points in Oklahoma were in attendance and speeches were made by a number of citizens. Bowie, Henrietta and Oklahoma people are attempting to divert the Meridian route from Burk Burnett and Wichita Falls via Byers and Henrietta. It is believed here, however, even if the route were to be diverted that of the travel would come by way of Wichita Falls. The new bridge will open a new territory for Wichita Falls wholesale and retail houses.

The following are the officers of the bridge company: George W. Byers, Byers, president; L. J. Curtis, Byers, secretary-treasurer; W. E. Johnson, Temple, Okla.; J. W. Dowlen, Temple, Okla.; R. J. Brown, Henrietta; W. H. Myers, Henrietta; R. L. Ligon, Byers, and C. H. Boedecker, Bowie, are directors.

pitched ball with his shoulder but was not allowed to take his base and went on to fly to right field. Gowdy drew four wide ones and took his base. Maranville was hit by a pitched ball and took his base. Gowdy going to second. Deal forced Gowdy at third, retiring the side. Baker made the play unassisted. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Philadelphia—Barry was retired on a play from short to first, Maranville making a wonderful stop and throw. Schang broke James' strike with a two base crack to left field; Philadelphia's first hit of the game. Schang tried to reach third and was thrown out. Plank went out Maranville to first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

SEVENTH INNING. Boston—James struck out and Mann followed suit. Schang dropped the third one, but grabbed it in time to throw Mann out at first. Evers made the third out, Baker to McInnis. No runs, no hits, no errors. Philadelphia—Murphy met the fate of several of his team-mates and struck out. O'Driscoll was retired on a grounder to Evers and beat the latter's perfect throw to first. Collins was caught off first by a quick throw by James and the hopes for a rally were nipped. No runs, one hit, no errors.

EIGHTH INNING. Boston—Cather went back to the bench on a grounder to Barry. Barry's throw was bad but McInnis made a great stop and held it. Whitted sent a grounder to Barry who fumbled the ball and then threw poorly to McInnis who missed, Whitted being safe. Schmidt sent another grounder to Barry who forced McInnis at second. Schmidt was safe at first. Gowdy sent a fly to center field and the home fans heaved a long sigh of relief. No runs, no hits, one error. Philadelphia—Baker failed to deliver and went out, Evers to Schmidt. Maranville had a chance to retire McInnis when the latter lifted a high foul, but the short stop muffed it. McInnis went out, however, on another foul to Deal a minute later. Strunk made the third out, Evers to Schmidt. No runs, no hits, one error.

NINTH INNING. Boston—Maranville went out on a grounder to Barry. Deal struck out over Strunk's in center field and was safe on second by the time the horse hide was retrieved. Deal was caught napping off second and got in a chase between the bases, reaching third safely. Baker failed to cover the bag properly. The Boston fans were frantic with excitement and begged James hard to "win his own game."

A strikeout was his discouraging response. Mann brought Deal across the plate with a single past second; Collins' desperate effort to stop the drive failed by inches. Mann took second on a passed ball by Schang. Evers took his base on balls. Cather's grounder to Barry forced Evers at second and retired the side. One run, two hits, no errors. Philadelphia—Barry responded to Philadelphia fans' earnest pleading by drawing a base on balls, but Schang struck out; Gowdy dropped the ball throwing Schang out at first and sending Barry to second. Walsh, batting for Plank was given his base on balls. He was forced, short to second on a grounder by Murphy, the latter being thrown out at first and ending the game. No runs, no hits, no errors.

JAPANESE PAPERS INTEREST WOMEN

WESTERN SOCIETY JOURNALISM GAINING STRONG FOOT-HOLD IN JAPAN.

WOMEN BECOMING ACTIVE

Prominent Japanese Woman Condemns Kimono as Bringing About Inactivity

Tokio, Sept. 20.—(By mail)—What the Japanese call "western society journalism" is gaining a strong foothold in Japan. Both the newspapers and magazines are paying more attention to the women. Although the practice has not developed to the extent of the women's page as it is known in America, the newspapers make it a particular point to tell what women are doing, and like the magazines, make a specialty of their history, their fads and their future. Among the wives of the cabinet members, all of whom are found especially interesting, the Countess Okuma, consort of the Premier, is constantly held up as a model, possessing all the virtues for which Japanese women are famous. She not only presides over the most celebrated kitchen in Japan, which is capable of serving thousands of guests at one time, but she is known and respected for her noble character and fine womanly qualities. The Count and Countess have been married now for 45 years. She, before her marriage, was Ayako, the eldest daughter of a vassal of the Shogun. She was sought out by Count Okuma, who, unlike most of the young men of the turbulent Restoration days, was determined to find a woman of fine character and good home training. She has always devoted herself to her husband. A notable instance was when, 25 years ago, the Count was brought home wounded in the leg by a bomb. The physicians declared that the leg must be amputated. The Countess made a prompt decision when she was told it was the only way to save his life, and after the operation she became more devoted still.

The Baroness Kato, wife of the foreign minister, perhaps has had one of the widest social experiences of any Japanese woman. Daughter of the late Baron Iwasaki, she came from one of the wealthiest families in Japan, and as the wife of Baron Kato she has taken a prominent position, especially in London society, where Baron Kato was formerly ambassador. She is clever and entertaining and has complete mastery of English.

How Baron Got Bride.

A magazine account of how Baron Kato came to marry her is current just now. Young Kato, serving as head of a branch office of a banking concern of which Baron Iwasaki was president, made such an impression that Baron Iwasaki presented him with a gold watch. "Thank you very much," replied the young man, "but I am not yet in a position to wear such a valuable object. When I am worthy to have it, I shall ask for it. Would you keep it for me till that time comes?" The bank president agreed, and became still further impressed with his young protégé when the latter demanded a receipt for the watch. Some time later he invited young Kato to his house. "I took charge of your watch at Oturu a few years ago," he said. "Let me give it back to you now with its interest." Calling his daughter, Harujikosa, beside him, he continued: "By interest I mean my daughter. Would you marry her?" Thus Kato entered the Iwasaki family.

Mrs. Yukio Ozaki, wife of the minister of justice, and the daughter of Baron and Baroness Ozaki, who was an English woman, also has a romance. It was the postman who brought Miss Ozaki and Yukio Ozaki, then mayor of Tokio together. As the name was the same the postman frequently delivered the young lady's letters to the mayor and vice versa. They met at a dinner party and laughed over the postman's mistakes and shortly afterwards took the matter much more seriously, for they were married. As the wife of the mayor, Mrs. Ozaki has been hostess at many brilliant affairs. She has written several volumes and is now completing a collection of love stories and tragedies of old Japan.

Five Matrimonial Rules.

When Dr. Kitokuro Ichiki, minister of education was married Mr. Akada, the bride's father, gave the couple five rules of matrimonial life which are reproduced as follows: 1. Love is essential to matrimonial life, but familiarity harms it. 2. Indulgence in love is a cause of losing it. Modesty and respect to each other must not be forgotten even for a day. 3. Husband commands; the wife must obey, but the wife sometimes may command and the husband must obey. It is a secret of the sweet home. 4. Without fixed property, no one can have a settled mind; affection between husband and wife is kept complete with fixed property. 5. Home is, as it were, a boat; life is like a voyage on the sea. Rough waves will upset it, if it is not rowed by husband and wife with joint efforts.

Mrs. Yosano, one of the most popular Japanese women poets of the day, has come forth with some radical ideas about her country women's dress. She says: "The inactivity which the Japanese

The Reward of Persistency

By Joe Busche

"I was the idea of my being the only remnant at the bargain counter made me laugh," explained the young man apologetically, "not what you said, what's the objection to marrying me?" "Because I despise you." "I say, 'despise' is a bit thick, you know. Hang it all, I've never done anything to have 'despised' saved up for me, and you can't say I have."

"I'll whistle when I want you kind. It's just a matter of taste." "Anyhow," cried the girl heatedly, "nobody ever dreams about men of your type."

"I'M GOING HOME IN MY OWN PUNT, YOU GET IN YOUR BOAT."

"Not a lot," he corrected modestly. "But there's one thing you'll never, never know." "What's one among so many? What is it?" "You'll never know enough to make me marry you."

awaited her master; his code only permitted him to appear before her as a slave. Passing a sleepless night, he arose the next morning at an hour that caused him to shake his watch several times before he could credit it. Never having seen an English sunrise, it occurred to him that here was an admirable opportunity of bagging another country for an already large record. In the hall a group of maids scattered with surprised glances at his approach. Strolling into the grounds, he sought out the head gardener.

"Morning, Richards," he said briskly.

"Whereabouts does the sun rise, as a rule?" Richards, a taciturn man, returned his greeting with a touch of the cap, and silently extended his arm. "Good," said the young man, facing in the direction indicated. "That's the east—isn't it? Long to wait to see it?"

"Farrish time, Sir, it don't rise till a little after 3 about these parts." "The dickens!" ejaculated the young man blankly. He reflected a moment and then gave an embarrassed laugh. "But of course—what a fool I am! What time do you make it now—about 7?"

"That's right," affirmed the young man. "Remember saying this to me time that I might be smart, but I never be smart enough to make you marry me?"

"Yes; and I meant it."

"Of course you did. But then, you see, that was yesterday, and we were in the billiard room. Now it's today, and you're in a punt, and—be leaved back in his seat and regarded her with a pleasant smile—"and I've got your pole and paddle."

"Upon reflection he realized that her presence on the river in no way improved his position. Even assuming an accident his inability to swim deprived him of any better opportunity than of hauling her out at the end of a boathook or of jumping overboard himself and holding her up on a puntpole until somebody came along and fished them both out. Neither act seemed likely to compel her respectful love.

As he drifted slowly round the curve, he was startled to find the girl had disappeared, punt and all. For one horrified moment he thought that opportunity had forgotten to give him a call in time—and then he observed the punt drawn up against a small island. The girl, having landed, was busily engaged plucking wild flowers.

"Now's my chance," he murmured thoughtfully, "if I only jolly well knew what it was." An idea came to him. "By Jove!" he chuckled admiringly. "Smart—oh, jolly smart!" Paddling softly, he drew alongside the empty punt and carefully removed the pole and paddle. "Morning!" he called out, this accomplished.

"You horrible coward!" she cried "I suppose you were going to leave me on the island."

Without replying, the young man worked his pole until the two punts were end to end, and then skillfully pointed himself and the girl out into midstream.

"Yes," he admitted, when he had accomplished this feat, "that was the weak point of the scheme. If I'd let you one the island you could have hauled passers-by."

"You see," said the girl scornfully, "you admit yourself your idea was no good."

"Well," he admitted frankly, "I certainly hadn't planned how to get rid of your body. I was hoping you'd give in before it came to that. You see, our both disappearing like this, first thing in the morning, they'll think we've eloped."

"All right," she said at last, "I'll give you back your pole." "I'll give you back your pole," she said. "It doesn't matter," she said. "I've got a spare one. Didn't you see it?"

Feed Cottonseed Meal To Beef Cattle Says Uncle Sam

Washington, Oct. 10.—Because of the abundant supply of cottonseed meal there is likely to be in this country this year, specialists in the department believe that the farmer has a better opportunity to make money by feeding beef cattle than for some years past. The feeding value of cottonseed meal has been recognized by agricultural authorities for some time and large quantities of it are exported annually to Europe, where the farmers, especially those in Denmark, are also aware of its usefulness. It now seems likely that the price of cottonseed meal will continue to be considerably lower than in recent years and the American farmer should therefore utilize it to advantage to make cheap gains.

Two causes combine to lower the price of cottonseed by-products. In the first place, the cotton crop in the South this year is good, and in the next the foreign markets have been seriously interfered with by the European war. It is estimated that this year 15,000,000 bales of cotton will be produced in the United States. This should yield 6,850,000 tons of seed. All of this, of course, will not be crushed, but if last year's proportions hold good again about 3,200,000 tons of cottonseed meal will be available. Last year approximately 400,000 tons were sent abroad. Under present conditions it is not probable that anything like this quantity will be exported this year, and, as the cotton crop is larger than before, it is safe to assume that the quantity of cottonseed meal on the home market will be 500,000 tons more than last year. This situation has already resulted in a substantial drop in the price of cottonseed by-products. Cottonseed meal can now be bought in the South at prices ranging from $22 to $24 per ton instead of $27 to $32 demanded last year. An even greater decrease has taken place in the price of cottonseed hulls, which are now selling at from $4.50 to $5.50 a ton, instead of $7 to $9 a ton.

At these prices cottonseed meal is approximately $15 per ton cheaper than flaxseed meal, and in addition its feeding value is a trifle higher. It seems obvious, therefore, that the cotton feeder all over the country should utilize cottonseed meal to a far greater extent than he has done in the past. This meal is very rich in protein and it is usually considered that its feeding value is at least twice that of corn. In other words, one pound of cottonseed meal is equal to two pounds of corn for feeding cattle. A small notion of cottonseed meal has an even greater relative value where the ration would otherwise be composed entirely of feeds high in carbohydrates, such as corn, corn stover and timothy hay. This is extremely important to cattle feeders throughout the corn belt and other states where much corn is fed. In Indiana, for example, it was found that the addition of one pound of cottonseed meal to a ration of corn and clover hay resulted in a saving of 1.37 pounds of corn and 1.41 pounds of clover hay. This means that if corn was worth 70 cents a bushel and clover hay $15 a ton, each ton of cottonseed meal fed the cattle saved the farmer $55.40 worth of other feed. With cottonseed meal at $24 a ton this is a net saving of $31.40—a saving well worth while.

As a matter of fact, cottonseed meal has been the principal concentrate fed to cattle in the South for years. In experiments conducted by the Bureau of Animal Industry it was found that with this as the only concentrated feed gains could be made on steers very economically. 350 pounds of meal often produced as much as 100 pounds of gain. When fed judiciously six pounds of cottonseed meal a day for a period of 100 to 120 days does not prove harmful to mature steers. If the steers are to be fed for a longer period, however, the amount fed should not be more than four pounds a day. For wintering cattle it is hard to find a better or more economical ration than slilage combined with two or three pounds of cottonseed meal and a little fodder or stover. Mature cattle can be wintered on a ration of 30 pounds of slilage, two pounds of cottonseed meal and about five pounds of some dry roughage. On such a ration steers will pass through the winter in exceedingly good condition and even gain something in live weight.

But in addition to its feeding value the fertilizing value of cottonseed meal is very high—so high indeed that often the fertilizing constituents in the meal are alone worth as much or more than it now costs. When it is remembered that from 80 to 90 per cent of this fertilizing value remains in the manure the opportunities for profit that its use offers become even more obvious. To put the case in another way: When one includes in his calculations the enrichment of the land he finds that feeding cottonseed meal to cattle costs him only from 10 to 20 per cent of the market price of the meal.

In view of these facts, specialists in the department recommend cattle feeders in all parts of the country to secure prices on cottonseed by-products had to take advantage of the cheap foods that they provide. No other form of concentrated feed, the specialists say, will prove as profitable as cottonseed meal this year. In the South the feeders have an opportunity to get these by-products at lower prices than at any other time during the last ten years. Combined with farm-grown feeds, such as corn silage, they should be able to secure gains very cheaply; and with the present high prices for finished cattle make good profits. Incidentally, it may be said that if such a movement tends to strengthen and steady the market for cottonseed by-products, this will in itself be of considerable assistance to cotton growers in the South.

MORE LIGHT SHED ON INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Dr. Flexner Gets Proof of His Theory That Germ Causes Children's Disease

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 10.—Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, speaking at the John Hopkins hospital anniversary celebration here today, added to what he has already publicly said about his work on infantile paralysis.

A year ago Dr. Flexner said here that he believed he had cultivated the germ of the dread disease. Formerly this germ was believed to be invisible and it had been shown that it passes through filters which will hold back particles as large as the ordinary bacteria.

Germ Very Small One. Today Dr. Flexner reported that by cultivating the germ of a special kind of nourishing material it became visible with a high power microscope, and that it is at least one-fifth the size of any known form of bacteria.

When he made public his prior announcement he had not been successful in reproducing the disease in animals by injection of the culture of this germ. By his special methods he announced that he has now accomplished this purpose and that accordingly the proof is irrefragably brought that the disease is caused by a germ.

Respiratory Tract Medium. The doctor said he believed the disease was transmitted through the respiratory channels rather than by insects, as some have held.

He advanced the theory that perfectly healthy persons often carried the germ in their bodies and infected children; that there were "carriers" of infantile paralysis just as it is known that there are "carriers" of typhoid and diphtheria, who, while transmitting these diseases to others, do not suffer from them themselves.

Ed Reeves, aged thirty-one, died at a local sanitarium Friday, following an operation. The body was shipped to Petrolia, where his widow resides, for burial, the funeral taking place Saturday.

AUTOS COLLIDE ON IOWA PARK ROAD

A Ford service car, owned and driven by Tom Carter of this city and a Krii, owned by Bart McGee of Electric, who was driving, collided on the Iowa Park road about two miles out of the city at 9 o'clock last night. Both cars were badly damaged, the Ford being practically demolished in the wreck.

In the car with Mr. Carter was B. W. Moore, who sustained slight injuries when he was thrown over the windshield. There were six passengers in the Krii but none of the party was injured.

Mr. McGee and party were en route to Wichita Falls, while Mr. Carter and his passenger were en route to Iowa Park.

After the wreck those thus deprived of their conveyance came into the city on other cars that were passing this way.

SETTLEMENT LIKELY IN LAUNDRY STRIKE

NEGOTIATIONS IN PROGRESS BETWEEN PROPRIETORS AND UNION REPRESENTATIVES.

ACTION BY UNION MONDAY
Model Laundry Being Dismantled and Will Probably Be Moved to Dallas.

Events of the past few days in the laundry workers' strike point to an early settlement of the differences between the employers and employees and it now seems probable that by Tuesday the strike will have ended. Negotiations were in progress yesterday on the basis of a modified contract which the laundries had indicated their willingness to sign; its terms were not made public.

Organization of a laundry drivers' union as a separate organization from the laundry workers is also probable. An effort was made to include the drivers with the other union, but both the employers and drivers objected, saying they belonged in a separate organization. This matter will receive the attention of the Trades Council at a session to be held tomorrow night.

Robert H. Clark, proprietor of the Model Laundry, was preparing yesterday to move his plant to Dallas, as recently announced. Proprietors of the other two laundries here said they had all the business they could handle. On the other hand, the plan of sending laundry to Electric, adopted by the labor union, is said to have met with marked success, the business being so heavy that some of the work is to be sent this week to Chickasha, Okla. Between this plan and the operations of the Acme and Pond laundries, Wichitans have suffered "little inconvenience from the strike. The laundry workers announce they will continue to collect and deliver laundry until the strike is settled.

OVERMAN AND MARSHALL QUARREL OVER PICTURES

Vice President Wanted Movies Taken While Senator Overman Objected

By Associated Press.
Washington, Oct. 10.—Vice President Marshall and Senator Overman, chairman of the rules committee, had a war of words in the Senate today over the use of the Senate chamber yesterday to take moving pictures of the vice president and a number of senators. Mr. Marshall resented a criticism by Senator Overman and when other Democratic members attempted to smooth over the row, he refused to recognize them. He insisted that the good faith of the vice president of the United States had been questioned and declared he did not propose to be kicked about as a football. When it developed, however, that the rules committee had not given its approval to the picture taking, Mr. Marshall said he would see that the films were not made public. Later after a conference with the vice president, Senator Overman withdrew his criticism.

$150,000,000 LOAN PLAN APPROVED

RESERVE BOARD ANNOUNCES APPROVAL IN PRINCIPLE OF LOAN FUND

Believes Fund Would Be of Benefit and Hopes Banks Will Subscribe

By Associated Press.
Washington, Oct. 10.—The federal reserve board tonight announced its approval in principle of the plan for a $150,000,000 loan fund to take care of the surplus cotton crop.

Governor Hamblin of the board in a letter today to J. F. Wade of St. Louis, one of the backers of the plan, said that while the board could not express itself in detail, it was of the opinion that the just administration of such a fund would benefit those interested and the rest of the nation as well. He expressed hope that banks and merchants would subscribe. His letter says in part:

"I am directed by the board to state to you that while it cannot very naturally express itself upon the details of the plan as to personnel and management, commission, etc., it is of the opinion that the raising of such a fund of the amount indicated, and its administration justly and fairly on reasonable terms and conditions would go far toward the restoration of normal conditions and would redound to the benefit not only of those interested in the production movement and manufacture of cotton, but as well to the entire people of the country."

Gertrude Ewing & Company in "Camille" was the first offering of the season at the Wichita Theatre Saturday evening. The vehicle is "well known to need any comment as "La Dame aux Camellias" the masterpiece of Alexandre Dumas has brought fame to many actresses who are stars of the first magnitude. For an actress with the intense emotional powers of Miss Ewing "Camille" was intended and her portrayal of the "Dumas" heroine was excellent. She was supported by an able company and the old favorite proved again pleasing for the most part to the audience.

DEBATE INTERRUPTED BY LACK OF SPEAKERS

Washington, Oct. 10.—Lack of speakers interrupted the debate on the war revenue bill in the Senate today after Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, opened the discussion. Senator Simmons explained the measure in detail, asserting that on the basis of last year's statistics it was expected to approximate a revenue of $107,000,000. When Senator Simmons concluded other senators were not prepared to continue the discussion and further consideration of the measure was deferred until Monday.

The orphanage in the Rue Louise is afloat, but the inmates have been saved. At two o'clock this morning a train of refugees were prevented from reaching Ostend by the destruction of a bridge. ENGLISH SPINNER TALKS OF COTTON SITUATION

Says Solution of Difficulty Is of Supreme Importance—Running Half Time

By Associated Press.
Manchester, via London, Oct. 10.—Sir Charles Macara, president of the Master Spinners' Association of Great Britain had the following to say today on the cotton situation:

"The situation now to be dealt with not only concerns the American but the cotton crop of the world. The solution of the difficulty is of supreme importance. It is evident that even if the English mills are able to run on half time at least one-third of the world's cotton crop would not be wanted at a time when it pressed heavily on the market, although but for the war it would have been purchased between now and the end of the season by countries whose industries now are paralyzed."

ENGLAND WILL PURCHASE HER COTTON IN EGYPT

Washington, Oct. 10.—Sir Cecil Arthur Sprink Rice, Great Britain's ambassador, informed Secretary Bryan that England would purchase all her cotton in Egypt this year, owing to the crop of that country being distressed by the war. The secretary was further informed that England would deal similarly with all its colonies in the matter of both cotton and copper. Just how much this will reduce the exports from the United States can not be determined, but it is assumed that the Great Britain policy will be to take all the cotton her colonies have available.

The United States exports to England about three and a half million bales under ordinary times. This year's crop of Egypt is 1,600,000 bales, being slightly above the normal yield, there remaining from last year about two hundred thousand bales.

POLICY DEPENDS UPON CARRANZA

U. S. AWAITS FORMAL GUARANTEES RECENTLY ASKED FROM CHIEFTAIN

By Associated Press.
Washington, Oct. 10.—The United States government will make no further move in the Mexican situation and will reserve announcements of its future policy toward the government until General Carranza has given formal guarantees of full protection to aliens and Mexicans, irrespective of their political affiliations, and promises not to reimpose customs duties collected by Americans during the occupation of Vera Cruz. This was the positive declaration of state department officials tonight following the announcement that despite two attempts Carranza so far had refused to explain satisfactorily as to what steps he contemplates taking upon the withdrawal of the American forces from Vera Cruz.

GERMAN PREFERENCE FOR FOREIGN GOODS EXPOSED

Develops That "Made in England" Goods Really Manufactured in Germany

Berlin, Sept. 20.—(By mail)—Under the headline "Old Sins" the commercial supplement of the Berliner Tageblatt published the following: "In a recent issue we published a note, according to which a German manufacturer maintained his offers of 'Sheffield Steel' notwithstanding the war between Germany and England, disclosing the fact that for years he had sold in Germany under the name of Sheffield Steel a steel made in Germany. It now comes to light that in a similar way many other genuine English goods are sold on German markets. The smart English business man has long ago discovered the weak point of the Germans, and right away took advantage of their mania of giving everything foreign a preference. This applies especially to the sale of gloves. Big English houses received their English gloves made in Saxony by German hands after German methods and from German material. These gloves were shipped, whole cartloads full to England and after being stamped with English trade marks, with English labels attached, were re-shipped to Germany, where they were sold as 'genuine English' merchandise with an additional commission for the English manufacturer of course. "These manipulations swelled to great proportions in the cloth business. English firms would buy big quantities of German cloth at the textile centers in Silesia, import the cloth to England, and then re-export it to Germany. These goods, having thoroughly become English, as proved by the shipping documents and the higher prices, found then a ready market in foreign loving Germany, under this disguise."

FRENCH OFFICER PAYS TRIBUTE TO GERMAN ARTILLERY

London, Sept. 22.—(By mail)—Members of the German military air service are paid high tribute by a French officer whose letter dealing with them appeared in the Gazette de Lausanne. A translation reads: "Our enemies also have profited by the war by taking its lessons to heart. They maintain the best sort of field intelligence service and their general information department seems to be getting the news from all parts of the world. We did not think that the German flyers were so numerous. Whole swarms of them locate and survey our positions and when one of them is shot down five others put in appearance. "The flyers on the reconnaissance work throw red spheres to the ground. At first our soldiers thought these were bombs and promptly threw themselves on the ground. But they waited in vain for the explosion. Instead large clouds of smoke rose from the ball, and a few minutes afterward came a hail of shrapnel. "The German artillery, though inferior to ours, hits the mark. The plan to have aviators locate our positions by means of the smoke ball is a great idea. We are now familiar with the little trick, but while it worked it was valuable."

W. C. HONORS GUARDIAN WITH SURPRISE SHOWER

Friday afternoon Wichita Grove No. 1087 accorded their guardian, Mrs. Lee McDowell a most delightful surprise china shower, the occasion being her birthday. The Grove met at the hall for the regular business meeting and went from there to the home of Mrs. McDowell. So secretly had the plans been made that the honoree was taken quite by surprise, thus rendering the shower all the more enjoyable. The afternoon was spent in a manner pleasing to all and the ladies served lunch and refreshments. Those in the party were: Mesdames Eates, Beloit, Carter, Collins, Ellis, Johnson, Meek, Marshall, McConkey, Prang, Robinson, Taylor, Summers, Underwood, Wilks, the honoree, Mrs. McDowell, Miss Grace McDowell and Mr. McDowell.

CHORAL SOCIETY DEFINITELY ORGANIZED

On Tuesday last the Wichita Falls Choral Society met for rehearsal and general business. After a short practice, the society organized and elected officers. These were: President, J. W. Bradley; vice president, Mrs. Fred Thompson; secretary treasurer, Mrs. G. H. Carpenter; director, C. Barthold Maehlin. Dues were fixed at fifty cents a month, and Monday at 7:30 p. m. was chosen as the day and hour of meeting. By courtesy of the Christian church the society will hold its meetings in the rooms of the church. The following were present: Mesdames Burgess, Carpenter, Cook, Darnell, Robertson, Thompson, Thorburn, Walker and Misses Pitman and Ritchie; Messrs. Brady, Burgess, Cook, Datson (Rev.), Elchenberger, Hunter, Robertson, Strange, Woods. At least as many again as the above list have signified their intention of becoming identified with the society. This will make an even larger membership than was at first expected. The benefit and influence of such a body in any city cannot be overestimated, as it makes for the general cultural uplift of the community. And how true it is that the standing of any power or nation can be more accurately judged by its art than by its commerce, for if there is one thing more than another which both calls for and calls forth absolute genuineness and sincerity, it is the study of good music. Any person interested in joining this society either as active members or as associate members are cordially invited to give their names to any of the officers. Next rehearsal Monday, October 12, 7:30 p. m., Christian church.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS BELL AND MR. CLIFFORD ANNOUNCED

Tuesday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Old Maids it was the pleasure of the hostess, Miss Carrie Kell to announce the engagement and approaching marriage of one of the Old Maids, Miss Laura Bell. No hint of any thing out of the ordinary was given until late in the afternoon when the guests were invited into the dining room, the usual sewing and social chat making up the afternoon's diversions. When the prettily appointed luncheon table was surveyed, an inkling of the secret to be disclosed was gained, for the center decorative motif was a tiny Kewpie wedding party. Standing under an arch of pink roses, a Kewpie bride and groom faced a miniature minister, while the fascinating dolls in a smaller size were ribbon bears, thus completing the wedding. The luncheon table was festive with bridal tulle and at each plate was a card which revealed the secret that the Kewpie were striving to tell. "Miss Laura Bell to be married to Mr. N. M. Clifford, Wednesday, October 21, 1914." This was the inspiration of the conversation for the remainder of the afternoon and plans and arrangements were discussed over the dainty luncheon which was served to Misses Edith Carver, Jewell Kemp, Agnes Reid, Kathrine Hindman, Carrie Kell, Mrs. Livingston Fain and the honoree, Miss Laura Bell.

$2,846,117.54 FOR PERSONAL INJURIES

BIG SUM PAID OUT BY TEXAS RAILROADS IN SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS

SHIPERS PAY THE BILL

Estimated That Less Than Half of Sum Goes To the Persons Injured

Special to The Times. Austin, Texas, Oct. 10.—Thirty-five of the leading railroads of Texas during the fiscal year ending June 30 last paid out for personal injury claims the enormous sum of $2,846,117.54. This was an increase of $80,118.19 over the amounts paid out by the same roads for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, 1912.

This compilation has just been completed by Gen. H. G. Akeley, statistician for the railroads, and the figures used can be verified from sworn records now on file with the railroad commission of Texas.

Those who have given the subject of personal injury payments the closest study aver that not over one-half of the vast total paid by railroads in settlement of personal injury cases reaches those injured or the heirs of those who are victims of accidents incidental to transportation. The prevalent statement is to be accepted from the people and paid out $1,423,058.78, which amount under any system of economics having standing can be denominated only as waste.

At ten cents a pound this wasted sum would be sufficient to purchase over 56,922 bales of cotton. At the average yield of cotton in Texas during the present year it would require almost a hundred and seventy thousand acres to produce the cotton that could have been purchased by the waste incidental to methods that prevail under legislative sanction for the handling of personal injury cases.

This wastefulness is accounted for in many ways. It should be borne in mind that all expenses of railroads except legal expenses in handling personal injury cases are by law charged to operating expenses. The prevailing contingent fees charged by attorneys for claimant will run from one-fourth to one-half of the sums recovered. The court and the witness expenses of railroads and claimants will bring the total amount paid out by railroads to a figure that makes the estimate of fifty per cent reasonable—that is those who have suffered the injuries, in the long run, receive but half the sums paid out by the railroads.

Payment for personal injuries are by law made a part of the operating expenses of railroads. The higher these operating expenses are, necessarily the higher must be the freight rates, for railroads have but one way of collecting money that must be charged by them in payment of damages, and that is from the producers and consumers who pay the rates of freight that are fixed by agents of the people selected by the people. As long as this wasteful method of handling personal injury cases is permitted to prevail, in the end, the people must themselves bear the burden thereof, either in depreciated service or in other inconveniences that necessarily follow lack of sufficient funds.

While details of payments have not yet been compiled, former years indicate that at least forty per cent of the entire amounts paid out in settlement of personal injury cases is paid in twelve counties in Texas. There are 251 counties in Texas. This means that in 239 counties the damage suit payments are nominal, while in 12 counties damage suit payments have reached a point where they constitute a large if not a leading industry. The aggregate sums paid out by the railroads of Texas each year in settlement of personal injury suits is sufficient to run the entire state government, with the exception of the asylums and judiciary.

CIVILIZATION'S MARCH IN TROPICS REPORTED

Washington, Oct. 10.—Another year of American guardianship in the Philippines, Porto Rico and the Dominican Republic was summarized today in the annual report of the Bureau of Insular Affairs. Columns of figures tell the story of civilization's march in the tropics of the Far East and the West Indies.

Civil government succeeding the military in the remote Philippine districts, international prosperity in commerce and finance in the islands, extension of railroads in Luzon and more than a half million children in public schools tell of the progress on the borders of Asia.

Porto Rico's exports continued at high water mark with the exception of sugar. Irrigation, work and waterway improvements continue.

In the Dominican Republic, where the United States is charged with guardianship of customs receipts, notwithstanding the continued political unrest and revolutionary upheavals the customs receipts exceeded those of the previous year.

Germany Won First Round Of War; Allies The Second

(New York Sun)

Under the walls of the eastern forts of Liege the first shots of the Belgian campaign were fired on August 4. Yesterday then marked the close of the second month of the great war, supplied an appropriate calendar division at which to measure the progress of the several campaigns.

The honors of the first month undoubtedly rested with the Germans. Thirty days after the artillery of the Kaiser awakened echoes not merely of the hills above the Vesdre and Ourthe valleys but throughout the civilized world. His gray uniformed masses were on the Marne and the Seine, the roar of his cannon at Meaux and Lagny was plainly audible on the boulevards and along the quays of the French capital. Five weeks after Germany had despatched her first declaration of war, that to Petrograd, her massive military machine had overrun Belgium and reached the gates of Paris.

Looking eastward, if the success was less complete there was still little cause for German pessimism. It was true that about Lemberg the main Austrian army had been beaten, was falling back in a retreat which, as it turned out, was to become a rout, but north and east in Poland and before Lublin and in Lodz Austrian and German soldiers were still advancing. In East Prussia, too, on Sedan day Gen. Von Hindenburg had won the sweeping victory Tannenberg—the Sedan of the East. German journals named it. The destruction of Gen. Rennenkampf's force, the right wing of the Russian battle line from the Carpathians to the Baltic, seemed quite as probable as the rout of Austrian army corps on the San and the Vistula.

Plainly, indisputably, Germany had won the first round. On September 4—and to get a just appreciation of the situation on October 4 in its proper relation to that of a month before it is necessary to recall what the world expected on the earlier dates—the press of London and Berlin alike talked frankly of the possibility that in a few days Paris might fall, the French government had fled to Bordeaux, all the parallels and precedents of 1870 were on the lips and in the minds of men. For two weeks defeated French and English armies had retreated over the fields of Flanders, Picardy, Artois and Champagne—these provinces were lost and there existed the grave possibility that the morale of the allied armies had been shaken—possibly destroyed.

Change in Situation.

But on October 4 who could mistake the change? The battle of the Marne had been fought. The south, cramped foothold of the Germans, that on the Noyon Hills, was nearly seventy miles from Paris and eighty from Lagny, the high water mark of the advance of Von Kluck. Eastward the German line now ran straight across the plain of Chalons north of Verdun, no longer surrounded, the army of the Crown Prince was retreating from Vanes and the victors thrust through the barrier forts at St. Mihiel seemed to be frustrated.

More than this, after a week of retreat and three more weeks of desperate, tremendous, heroic efforts the German masses had been unable to get on foot again, to step out once more toward Paris. To Noyon and the Caronne plateau north of Soissons, Von Kluck had come. On Sept. 21, Von Bülow had been driven north of Rheims in the same general movement, and on October 4 neither the German right nor the center had regained a single mile of territory on this front.

Three weeks of the most confused and bloodiest fighting the Western world had known found the Germans, and the allies facing each other, deadlocked on lines swept by the heaviest artillery of three nations, cut and seamed with the trenches and intrenchments which were daily growing and more and more taking on the character of those lines below Richmond where Grant and Lee did battle from July, 1864 to April, 1865.

Meantime to the west and north new allied armies, gathered from every quarter of the globe, regiments of Sikhs and Gurkhas touching elbows with Moroccan ghoums and battalions of black soldiers from the Senegal and the Niger, British regulars recalled from Hindustan and Egypt, strengthened or about to be strengthened by Colonial troops from Canada and Australia, were moving upon the flank and rear of the German armies; Asia, Africa, America, and Australia were beginning to contribute the first levies from resources which should henceforth be inexhaustible.

As a result of this thrust all north-west France had been recovered. Amiens, Lille, Arras, cities and regions which had been occupied by Germans in early September, had returned to their conquerors, were now redeemed. All the main railroads from Paris to the channel were in allied hands once more and having been reconstructed were conveying fresh troops far northward as the campaign developed toward the Belgian line.

Germans on Defensive.

In all this time the main effort of the Germans had been defensive. The hope of a new thrust at Paris, made promptly when the armies defeated at the Marne had been refitted, rested, had vanished. Save for a desperate flank push toward the Verdun-Toul barrier, the whole concern of the German general staff was to protect its imperilled right—to guard the railroad from Laon and St. Quentin to Brussels and Liege, the life-line of the great armies in France. Even the vigorous drive at Antwerp was one more defensive move, to relieve pressure upon necessary communications.

Up to October 4 the Germans had succeeded in their efforts. French and British advances to Peronne and the suburbs of St. Quentin had been pushed back. Cavalry raids to Le Catelet and Holisel, were actually on the westernmost of the German supply lines, had been checked and flung back. Even to the south, beyond Noyon, impetuous drives at Lassigny and the Noyon Hills had been crushed down and ground lost, had been retaken.

But to do this troops had been collected from the whole extent of the battle line, from the interior garrisons of Germany—attack in Alsace, in Lorraine had been abandoned. The efforts to break the allied center had failed. Army corps in Belgium had been drawn down and the garrisoning of this captured kingdom left to the Landstrum, to middle aged men. Yet all this had not served to relieve the pressure. Repeated at one point the allied flanking thrust moved always to the north. It had failed at Peronne and St. Quentin—it was renewed at Albert and Bapaume. Halted here, it was felt again east of Arras and was now mounting up to Douai. The battle of the Aisne had become the battle of the seven riv-

MAKES BACKACHE QUICKLY DISAPPEAR

A Few Doses Relieves All Such Miseries. Bladder Weakness, Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism Promptly Vanish

It is no longer necessary for any one to suffer with backaching, kidney trouble, headache, rheumatism, stiff joints, and all the other symptoms which accompany bladder weakness, kidney trouble and rheumatism. Croxone, quickly and surely relieves all such troubles.

Croxone is the most wonderful remedy yet devised for ridding the system of uric acid and driving out all the poisonous impurities which cause such troubles. It is entirely different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else ever used for the purpose. It acts on the principle of cleaning out the poisons and removing the cause.

It soaks right in through the walls, membranes and linings, like water in a sponge, neutralizes, dissolves, and makes the kidneys sift out and filter away, all the uric acid and poisons from the blood, and leaves the kidneys and urinary organs clean, strong, healthy and well.

It matters not how long you have suffered, how old you are, or what you have used, the very principle of Croxone is such, that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. There is nothing else on earth like it. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves you the first time you use it.

If you suffer with pains in your back and sides, or have any signs of kidney-bladder troubles, or rheumatism, such as puffy swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, if you are nervous, tired, and run down, or bothered with urinary disorders, Croxone will quickly relieve you of your misery. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trailing cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails in a single case.

The Royal Mineral Water. Acts directly on the digestive organs of the stomach, strengthening the kidneys and keeps the blood in fine condition. Good circulation is the only cure for constipation, rheumatism and all the ills that result therefrom. This water has taught us precaution during epidemics of loathsome diseases. THIRD INSTALLMENT OF 'TREY O' HEARTS' WEDNESDAY

"Sea Venture," the third of the series of the Gold Seal feature will be shown at the Majestic Wednesday. Beginning at the conclusion of part 2, "White Water," Alan and Rose make their way by forest trail to Black Beaver, a backwoods settlement, chiefly a general rural store, where they pick up guides and proceed by canoe to Northeast Carry at the upper end of Moosehead Lake. There they secure a change from woods clothing to civilized garments, and take a steamer down the lake to Kinoo Station.

Judith, meantime, proceeds by forced marches to cut them off. She arrives at Kinoo shortly before they do. The train is crowded. Alan, with Judith in masculine costume, travels unnoticed in a crowded compartment. Alan telegraphs from Kinoo for sleeping car reservations, a stateroom for Rose, a lower for himself, on the night express through New York. Judith finds this out.

Arriving at Oakland a boy poses through the coach where Judith is seated, calling "Telegram for Mr. Law." Judith manages to get hold of the telegram and read it before returning it to the boy. It says that reservations to New York will be impossible to get. She relieves the message to the messenger, she also gives him a second envelope.

Alan reads the message and then opening the second envelope finds it contains a tray o' hearts. Arriving in Portland, Alan and Rose are driven to a hotel. Judith secures the room adjoining that of Rose and picks the lock of the connecting door. With the aid of her confederates she chloroforms Rose and dons her clothing. Alan has proceeded to the water front and ensnared a yacht, "Sea Venture," to take Rose and himself to New York.

All Alan's plans are being reported to Judith by her confederates. She engages a fishing boat to intercept the "Sea Venture" on its voyage to New York. Passing herself off as Rose, Judith gets aboard with Alan. She opens the valves of the auxiliary gasoline tanks and allows gasoline to flood the hold. Later, she sights a fishing boat, and upon its approach she covers Barcus, the owner of the "Sea Venture" who is the only one left with her. Alan hearing the disturbance, hurries on deck. He succeeds in getting Judith below and explains to Barcus that the woman must be partly insane.

Calling Judith on deck, and being alarmed at the nearness of the fishing vessel, Alan asks if she has friends aboard the approaching boat. Judith affirms and Alan stipulates that she shall get over the side into the dory. She casts off and is picked up by the fishermen. Barcus, going below, learns the true state of affairs aboard the "Sea Venture," viz. that the gasoline tanks have been emptied into the bilge.

Then follows a race between the yacht and the fishermen, the latter pursuing full tilt. Towards sunset both are becalmed. The "Sea Venture" lies about one mile farther out. Barcus watches the fishing boat through his binoculars and observes a power launch lowered, into which Judith accompanies one companion.

Night falls. Judith and her assistant lash the wheel of the launch, and after lighting a fuse take to the dory and start the launch toward the "Sea Venture." Barcus sees the burning fuse in the approaching launch, and suspects what it means, and drags Alan to the farther rail. They kick off their shoes and dive overboard, just as the launch brings up smash against the side of the yacht. A moment later there is a terrific explosion—the yacht takes fire and sinks. Barcus and Alan swim to the shoals, and taking cover in the dunes, fall into the sleep of exhaustion.

VICTORIA MONDAY "THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY"

A race between a speedy motorboat and a hydroplane furnishes a thrill that contains more than the ordinary amount of suspense in the "Million Dollar Mystery." The speed attained by the crafts of the water and air is amazing, for in some of the scenes they seem to hurt themselves through space.

The conspirators again secure Florence by a ruse and this time her craft toward the open sea, intending to take her to a neighboring port. Through Susan, Florence's companion Jim learns of his sweetheart's abduction and at once sets out to rescue her. He learns that she has been taken to the boat landing and hurries there, only to find that the motorboat is already far out at sea.

A hydroplane has been giving exhibitions on the beach and Jim seeks the driver and asks him to pursue the motorboat, but the man refuses to have anything to do with the case. Jim, therefore, borrows the hydroplane without the driver's permission and pilots it himself. It requires but a short time to overtake the motorboat and, flying close to the craft, he calls to Florence to jump into the sea.

The girl pluckily leaps from the boat and Jim lands his machine before the conspirators can turn the motorboat about. He picks Florence up and flies to shore, replacing the machine before the driver reports the loss to the police. The lovers return home and arrive just in time to show them where the Haffreaves' fortune is concealed. Jim rushes to the butler's assistance and when two policemen arrive the conspirators are arrested despite their desperate attempt to escape.

'PERILS OF PAULINE' AT EMPRESS WEDNESDAY

Small wonder is it that this recurrent picture has gained such popular and widespread interest, as the feats of daring allotted to Pearl White and Crane Wilbur are most thrilling and unusual.

One would think that after continuing for 14 installments, the supply of spine tinglers would be exhausted, but this is not the case. Each episode offers scenes that are distinctly vivid and realistic, and that vie in regard to the effect created with those that have gone before.

Something else, which no doubt accounts for the popularity of Pauline and her aides, is the vigorous, whole-hearted way and finished manner with which they go about every scene, giving the appearance of real people in real life more than actors assuming the parts.

At the end of these two reels Owen so sure that Pauline and Harry are out of his way forever that he starts to run over the books of the estate and assume the general attitude of master of the domain, but his plans and hopes are dashed to pieces when he discovers that the lovers have not yet been destroyed, as he so thought.

At the outset Owen again employs the gypsy leader (Clifford Bruce) to aid him. They set Harry's factory on fire and call him to the scene. He comes, accompanied by Pauline; the fire has gained headway and threatens the whole village, but this matters little to the plans of the plotters. The lovers are thrown into the cellar of an old mill, a bomb is then placed close to the wall, which, exploding, tears a hole in the wall and the water rushes in.

To make matters worse, a lot of rats are trapped in the cellar also. After the waters have risen considerably, Harry and Pauline dive beneath the water and come up in an old chimney. Coming to the roof they start across a cable, hand over hand, which bridges the river.

While they are many feet in the air the cable is cut by the gypsies, and the pair are precipitated into the river, many feet below. This ends the hair-raising series of scenes, as the two young people return home, where we leave them for two weeks.

ALICE JOYCE FEATURE AT GEM THEATRE MONDAY

Alice Joyce and Tom Moore are featured in a two part drama, "The Trail of the Vampire." With the birth of her son, Laura's affection for her husband is submerged in her mother-love for the child. Deprived of his wife's companionship, Horace drifts away from Rita. The man falls into the toils of Rita, an actress. The woman loves Dugan, a reporter on a yellow sheet. Dugan suggests that Rita elope with Horace as a means of getting publicity. The unscrupulous woman agrees. Horace falls into Rita's net and the two plan to elope upon the occasion of a reception given by Laura, which is to be held a few days later. Laura is amazed to find the notorious actress among her guests, upon the night of the affair. Shortly afterward, a frightened maid informs the hostess that her child is ill. All the guests depart, with the exception of Rita, who waits for Horace. A doctor declares that Laura's baby has a severe case of diphtheria and the house is quarantined.

Rita is furious when she discovers she cannot leave the house, incensed by the collapse of her nefarious scheme, the woman stalls her true self to Horace. Thinking of the little wife who is fighting for their child's life, Horace turns from Rita in disgust. Several nights later, Dugan, impatient for news, steals to the rear of the house. Evading the police on guard, he attracts Rita's attention. Laura comes upon the two and learns what her neglect of Horace has brought about. She confronts the actress, who shrinks in fear from the enraged wife. Thus Horace finds them, falling to his knees, the husband acknowledges his baseness and begs to be forgiven. But Laura, taking him in her arms, declares the fault to have been her own.

FRENCH SOLDIERS ARE NOT PLEASED WITH RED PANTS

(Correspondence Associated Press.) The Hague, September 22.—To other assertions that the French soldier is not particularly thankful for having to wear red pants and blue coats, when his adversary is "floated in a uniform of green is next to invisible, the correspondent of the Roman newspaper, Messagero, makes a slight and humorous contribution:

"The spirit of the French army is excellent," he wrote. "In spite of the hardships they have to endure, the French soldiers are in good humor, expressing this now and then in rather boisterous fashion. Their truculence is marvellous. Getting a cigarette is a big event with them. But they are not pleased with their red pants, which in times of peace they would not do without for anything."

In his dispatch the correspondent points out that the German medical service is far superior to the French, who, as he alleges, lack even some of the necessary surgical instruments and needed housing for the wounded. The effects of the German artillery fire are characterized by the correspondent as "indescribably terrible."

The Buick Line of Fours and Sixes For Nineteen Fifteen is the Greatest Line of Buick Cars our organization has ever built

Nineteen Fourteen BUICK success has been the talk of the motor world—a reputation merited by an abundance of power—faultless design—perfect performance and efficient BUICK SERVICE. The six splendid models comprising the BUICK line for nineteen fifteen constitutes our guarantee to all buyers of BUICK cars—a guarantee of continued satisfaction and an uninterrupted use of their investment.

BUICK MOTOR—Season after season of continued success has demonstrated the value and pre-eminence of the Buick Valve-in-head Motor, the motor that has been the keystone of Buick success for the past twelve years. Searching and exhaustive tests by the world's leading authorities on gas driven motors, supplemented by years of experience on Buick cars, have proven the superiority of the Valve-in-Head motor over all other types. That's why it's found-in Buicks. That's why all Buicks give complete satisfaction.

BUICK BEAUTY—The illustrations of the nineteen fifteen Buicks inadequately portray their beauty. Following closely the lines of their predecessors, each model has undergone many important refinements—remodeling the lines here and there, increasing the ease of operation and including every accepted motor refinement of the season that makes for increased efficiency, beauty, dependability and comfort for both operator and passengers and expedites the control of all parts of the car from the drivers seat.

WICHITA FALLS SCHOOL GROUNDS ARE PRETTIEST

Improvements are being made on the public school grounds of this city and when the grass with which the grounds have been sodded comes up each school will be surrounded by a green campus that will be pleasant for the young people to play upon, as well as to look at. This work has been started on the Austin, Alamo and high school grounds.

Prof. Carpenter received a letter from a man who visits most of the schools of Texas, saying that Wichita Falls has the prettiest school grounds of any city in the State. He also took occasion to pay a compliment to the inside work of life school, saying it was thoroughly organized.

NEW YORK COTTON EXCHANGE AMENDS ITS RULES
New York, Oct. 10.—The board of managers of the New York Cotton Exchange today approved amendments to the exchange's rules to make them conform to the requirements of the Lever law. These amendments will be effective on all contracts on and after November 1, next. One of the most important changes is that limiting trading in the current month to 25 days, this being made necessary by a new by-law which requires that transferable notices be issued five days prior of delivery. Under the new rule all trading in any current month shall cease at noon on the last business day on which transferable notices may be issued. A reduction in the amount of tare allowances is made in the maximum limit, including bands and bagging which is fixed at 25 pounds instead of 28 as heretofore.

The Unfortunate War

means increased demand for our farm products. "Back to the Land" is one of the popular slogans of the day. Land as the basis of all wealth makes the soundest basis for investment. The only security that is not affected by the fluctuations and uncertainties of business and industrial conditions is real estate.

WAR'S NEEDS are not men and munitions alone, but the products of the world's farms—which insures stability of values. Foreign wars cannot take the land away nor seriously affect its value.

INVEST men, in farming lands that produce standard crops needed the world over. We can sell you a farm and take in some of your city property as part payment.

ANTWERP WAS CROWDED WITH GERMAN SPIES

Writing to her cousin, Mrs. R. T. Bolyn of this city, Mrs. Louise Von Rossen, a resident of Antwerp, Belgium, which is now being bombarded by the Germans, tells of conditions there. The letter was written in the early part of the war when the danger of an attack on Antwerp was considered remote. The letter follows: "My Dear Cousin: No doubt you will know the awful experiences we are subjected to here. Germany has taken the most stringent measures to force Belgium to war and the brave little country has so far succeeded in keeping the great enemy at bay. On the border lies the important fortress Liege, which for two weeks has kept the Germans back. Weeks has the Belgian army and a great battle is pending. We hope after this Belgium will be relieved and Germans will proceed into France.

"It is believed the fighting will not extend as far north as Antwerp, nevertheless we must be prepared for any emergency. We have provisions to last for many weeks. Antwerp is surrounded by two tiers of fortifications with all the necessary equipment of ammunition and soldiers.

"All European nations are astonished at the action of the Kaiser, he leads his subjects to ruin as he can't possibly expect to defeat the whole world and there is fear lest the German soldiers revolt.

"My brother's two sons are in the battle. No Germans are allowed to remain in Belgium. Wealthy Germans in Antwerp have been found to be spies for the German government. Whole magazines of ammunition were found concealed in their homes. Among five of the German population were found secret telephone connection with Berlin, also a secret mail service and diagrams of the fortifications.

"We have no control over our property. My brother has been forced to run the mill day and night to supply flour for the troops. I am delighted my sons are in America. Your cousin, LOUISE VON-ROSSEN."

SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS COMING THURSDAY

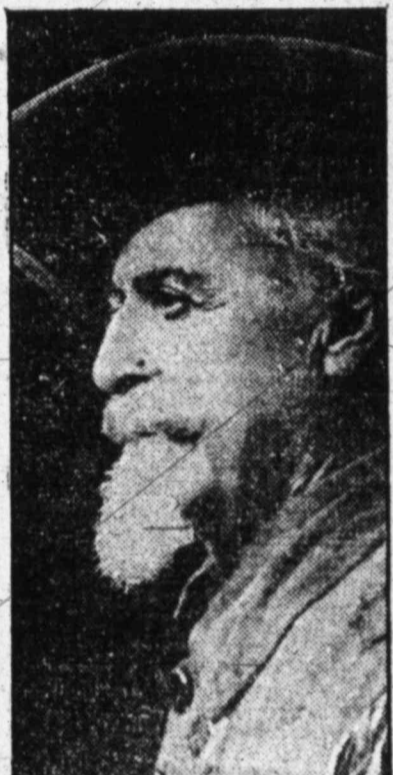

BIG CIRCUS WILL DISBAND FOR SEASON AFTER ENGAGEMENT HERE

BUFFALO BILL WITH SHOW

Old Scout Will Be One of Chief Features—His Partner Here Friday

When the Sells-Floto Circus closes its season here next Thursday, Wichita Falls can share with such places as Brussels, Strasbourg, Marseilles and Paris, the distinction of being chosen as the point at which the company disbands for the winter. Aside from this fact, there will be more material results, as practically everyone of the 500 employees will spend more or less of his last two weeks' wages.

The performance here will close a tour which began on March 28 and which has covered the States of New Mexico, California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, North Dakota, Minnesota, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Oklahoma, Missouri and Texas. Such places now in the throes of war, as Brussels and Paris, have been selected in previous years to end the season.

Major John M. Burke, old time partner of Buffalo Bill and now connected with him in the show business, was here yesterday and said he wanted to assure the public through The Times that it is William F. Cody himself who will appear here, despite rumors to the contrary.

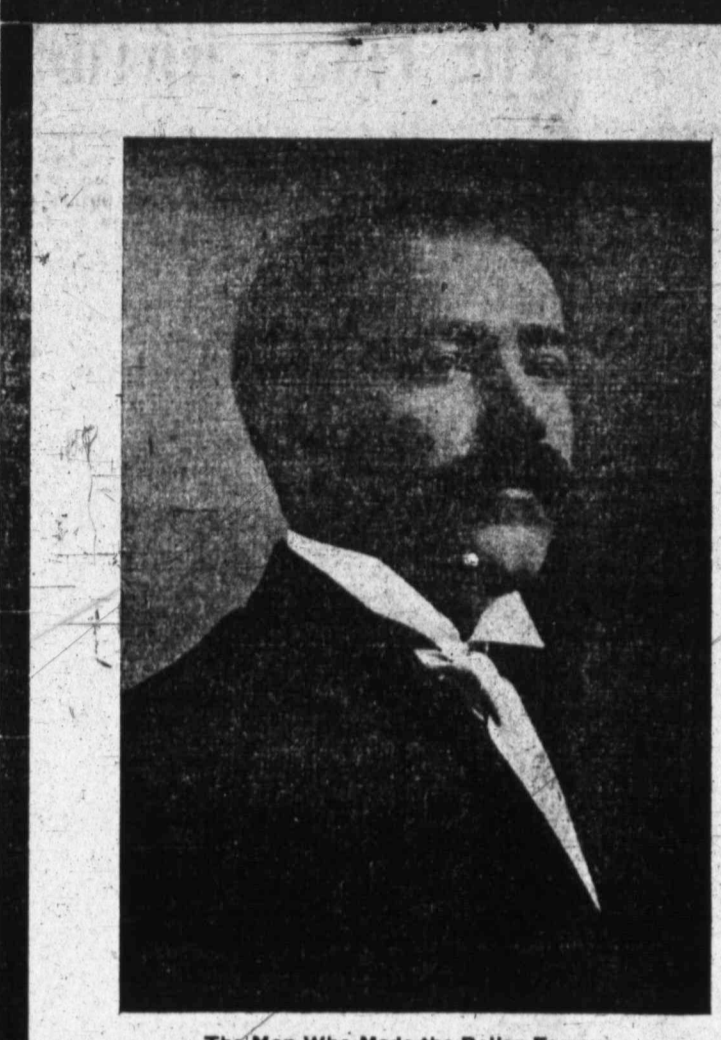

Fortune Smiles On Old Scout. All the hero worshipping youngsters and their fathers—the small boys of other days—will rejoice to hear the good news that Major John M. Burke, Colonel Cody's old plains partner has brought to town—that fortune still smiles generously on the old scout.

His scheme for moving picture history the stirring campaigns attendant on the opening of the great western empire in which he took part, has been launched with such tremendous success that Buffalo Bill will stand preeminently conspicuous in the "movies" forever.

"Yes, sir," chuckled Major yesterday, with the delight of an old partner in the two new prosperous undertakings of his life long comrade. "The old man has struck two new veins that assay high. He will be preserved and his personality perpetuated, also will be the old army of frontier fame, and the American Blanket Indian through one, the film art in the other; he and the red aborigine brought into closer touch with the general public, and especially the youngsters under the enjoyable conditions attending the festivities of a superbly equipped circus."

"Buffalo Bill will personally appear with the greatest of all, the enlarged Sells-Floto Circus, depicting scenes of Western life with Sioux Indians, cowboys, ranch girls and military, thus adding a variegated interest to the greatest circus bill ever offered the American public."

"The Sells-Floto show was a top notcher before the amalgamation and now with the prairie rangers dovetailed through the program it is absolutely the last gasp in arenic marvels."

WICHITA FALLS PROOF

Should Convince Every Wichita Falls Reader. The frank statement of a neighbor telling the merits of a remedy. Bids you pause and believe. The same endorsement. By some stranger far away. You are at liberty to command him to bring it. A Wichita Falls citizen testifies. Read and be convinced. C. C. Willard, 1922 Eighth street, Wichita Falls, Texas, says: "I suffered constantly from my back and kidneys. Every move I made sent sharp twinges through my back. I got Doan's Kidney Pills from Harrington's Drug Store and although other remedies had failed, they made a cure. We still use Doan's Kidney Pills when we need them and are always greatly benefited. You are at liberty to continue using my endorsement." Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Willard had. WAR REVENUE MEASURE AND THEN ADJOURNMENT

President Wilson Said Not to Favor Proposed Cotton Loan Measure

Washington, Oct. 8.—Official announcement was made at the White House today that President Wilson approved the plan to adjourn Congress as soon as the federal revenue bill is passed. The President is interested in the cotton situation, but the intimation that he opposed the plan agreed upon last night at a meeting of Southern members of Congress for a bill to have the federal government placed $250,000,000 through banks to cotton planters. The President is said to believe private bankers with the treasury department's aid will be able to handle the situation.

COST OF LIVING IS CHEAPER IN RUSSIA

CUTTING OFF OF EXPORTS REDUCES PRICES OF FOOD-STUFFS

NO DRUNKENNESS IS SEEN

Even From a German Viewpoint Conditions in Russia Are Not So Bad

The Hague, Sept. 24.—(By mail)—The situation in Petrograd is treated extensively in a letter appearing in the Berliner Tageblatt of September 25, which reads in part as follows:

"On the whole—the government does its best to protect the life and property of the foreigners—even the German. It has in this the support of the military authorities. During the days of the mobilization it was different, of course. But now one sees everywhere posters warning against the molestation of foreigners, and which call upon those who may have been mistaken to make prompt reports, promising severe punishment for the offenders. What is more the promises are strictly kept, and persons guilty of excesses against foreigners have been heavily punished."

German Names Removed. "In order to minimize the chances for trouble it was thought best that German firm names make place for inscriptions in Russian, and the German were asked to refrain as much as possible from speaking their language in public. But the best measure for the protection of the foreigners undoubtedly was the prohibition of the sale of strong alcoholic beverages. Petrograd today has the appearance of being a city of sober people. While formerly one beheld everywhere the repulsive, beastly state of intoxication of the hooligan—the mob with whom nobody was safe—today the street scenes of the capital are more inviting."

"The many extra editions of the newspapers speak constantly of victories of the Russians and French over the Germans, and it is asserted that the former are already near Berlin. Foreign papers are vigorously excluded and since even the many wounded are not permitted to come into contact with the public; or see even their relatives, there is no difficulty keeping the Russian public under the impression that the Russians are really near Berlin."

Food is Cheaper. "There are no more tourists and the hotels are empty. In the hotels, moreover, everything has become very dear. A bottle of beer which formerly cost from 20 to 25 kopeks, now costs 40, while a glass costs 25 instead of 15. Food, on the other hand, has become cheaper. The war has absolutely put a stop to exports, and prices, therefore, have gone down. Ten fresh eggs, for instance cost 30 kopeks, and fine fat geese, which formerly cost 3 1/2 to 4 roubles can now be had for 1.20 roubles. Coke can no longer be had at any price; the small supply on hand having been confiscated by the military. The heavy burden of the war has been arranged for English coal, and Russian coal, which it is not even possible to get in sufficient quantities, cannot be used by the navy without serious injury to the boilers. Most factories lack raw material, especially iron. There is also a serious shortage in medications and bandages of all sorts, which formerly were imported from Germany."

"Since none of the court ever comes to Petrograd one sees but seldom members of the best society who are mostly in mourning on account of the Russian elite troops having lost many officers in the fighting in East Prussia, the majority of whom belonged to the capital's best circles. "Only the casualties in the cam-

FRENCH SURGEON HAS 97 WOUNDS; WILL SURVIVE

Paris, Oct. 9.—A surgeon major now in a Paris hospital has ninety-seven officially counted wounds. He tells this story:

"After a hard day's fighting on August 30, I bandaged my last case and was recounting my horse when I heard a sound like thunder and a shell burst over my head. The horse was killed and I was thrown to the ground. An orderly carried me a mile and a quarter, when he found a stretcher, on which he carried me three miles further. No essential organ was touched. "I lost an ear and the sense of hearing, the right side of my head was scarred, my left arm was ripped to the bone, my back was riddled like a calendar, my loins were torn and my legs tattooed with highly artistic designs."
