

RELIABLE REPORT OF VILLA'S DEATH IS RECEIVED TODAY LACKS POSITIVE CONFIRMATION BUT IS BORNE OUT BY RECENT EVENTS

By Associated Press

Queretaro, Mexico, April 11--The war department announced today it had reason to believe Francisco Villa had been killed in action and that searching parties had been sent out to find his body.

"VILLA DEAD AND BURIED" SAY REPORTS REACHING GENERAL PERSHING

By Associated Press.

General Pershing's headquarters at the front April 10, via Mexican telegraph to Juarez, April 11.--Renewed reports have been received here by General Pershing that Francisco Villa is dead and buried. The reports are under investigation. Meanwhile hunt for the Villa bandits is proceeding with renewed vigor with the arrival at the front of General Pershing.

Mexicans who had seen Villa on his flight south said that the bandit looked thin and emaciated a week ago. Reports, however, are conflicting; one fairly good authority stated that Villa was able to walk the first day after he received his wound, which indicated that no bones were broken.

Aeroplanes today covered several hundred square miles of territory, scouting over a country heretofore unexplored by planes.

Injuries Sustained by Bandit Leader Declared to Have Been Serious and Such as Likely to Cause Eventual Death

By Associated Press.

Columbus, N. M., April 11.--Lieutenants H. A. Dargue and E. S. Correll of the aero corps returning here today in a long distance flight from San Antonio said that reports were current in the vicinity of Santa Anna, 70 miles west of Chihuahua. City that Villa was dead of blood poisoning because of his wound. Other reports indicate that Villa was in flight followed by American troops near the Durango border.

Military authorities recognize that reports of the bandit leader's death may be another ruse to throw the Americans off that what had been termed a "hot trail," but nevertheless no tendency is noted to belittle the report. "There is no doubt that Villa was wounded," said Lieut. Dargue. "Physicians have informed me that he was shot through both legs, one of them being broken by a bullet while another one lodged in his stomach. A man in that condition without medical attention could scarcely live long."

The aero corps planned to send a machine today to scout over the

Believed Dadd and Brown Forces Can Take Care of Selves, Despite Danger of Their Present Position Near Satevo

By Associated Press.

El Paso, Tex., April 11.--With no official advice for days of the whereabouts of the advance guard of an American cavalry pursuing Francisco Villa officials of the Carranza government in Juarez sought today to obtain information over the Mexican land lines of the position of the American troops. Apparently the march of the American cavalry southward has been so rapid that it has carried Colonel Dadd and Col. Brown with their troops far beyond all lines of communication.

Army officers at Fort Bliss believe that when the expeditionary volunteers get in touch with General Funston they will report that the American troops have engaged the Villa forces in battle. Reports that a battle has been fought with Villa bands south of Satevo were current early today but there was nothing to confirm them.

While the American cavalry is combing the country at the far end of the extended line of communication, there was little apprehension over their position for it was confidently felt at Fort Bliss that Dadd's men could fight themselves out of any uncomfortable position. Scouts and engineers with knowledge of the country south of Parral say the American troops will find it particularly difficult to operate in any manner against Villa in the district to which he is fleeing.

The Arrieta brothers are said to be fortifying the city of Durango but for what purpose has not been indicated.

In Texas, into Mexico to reinforce General Pershing's command. Such a plan was under consideration by the war department today as a result of the situation along the border which is said to be quieter than heretofore. For the present, however, patrols in New Mexico and Arizona will not be disturbed.

Senator Gallinger, republican leader in the Senate, has received from Senator Fall who is on the border, a report of conditions which contains the statement that the senator was informed on April 4, that unless the American army secured control of the Mexican Northwestern railroad within a week the troops would have to be withdrawn.

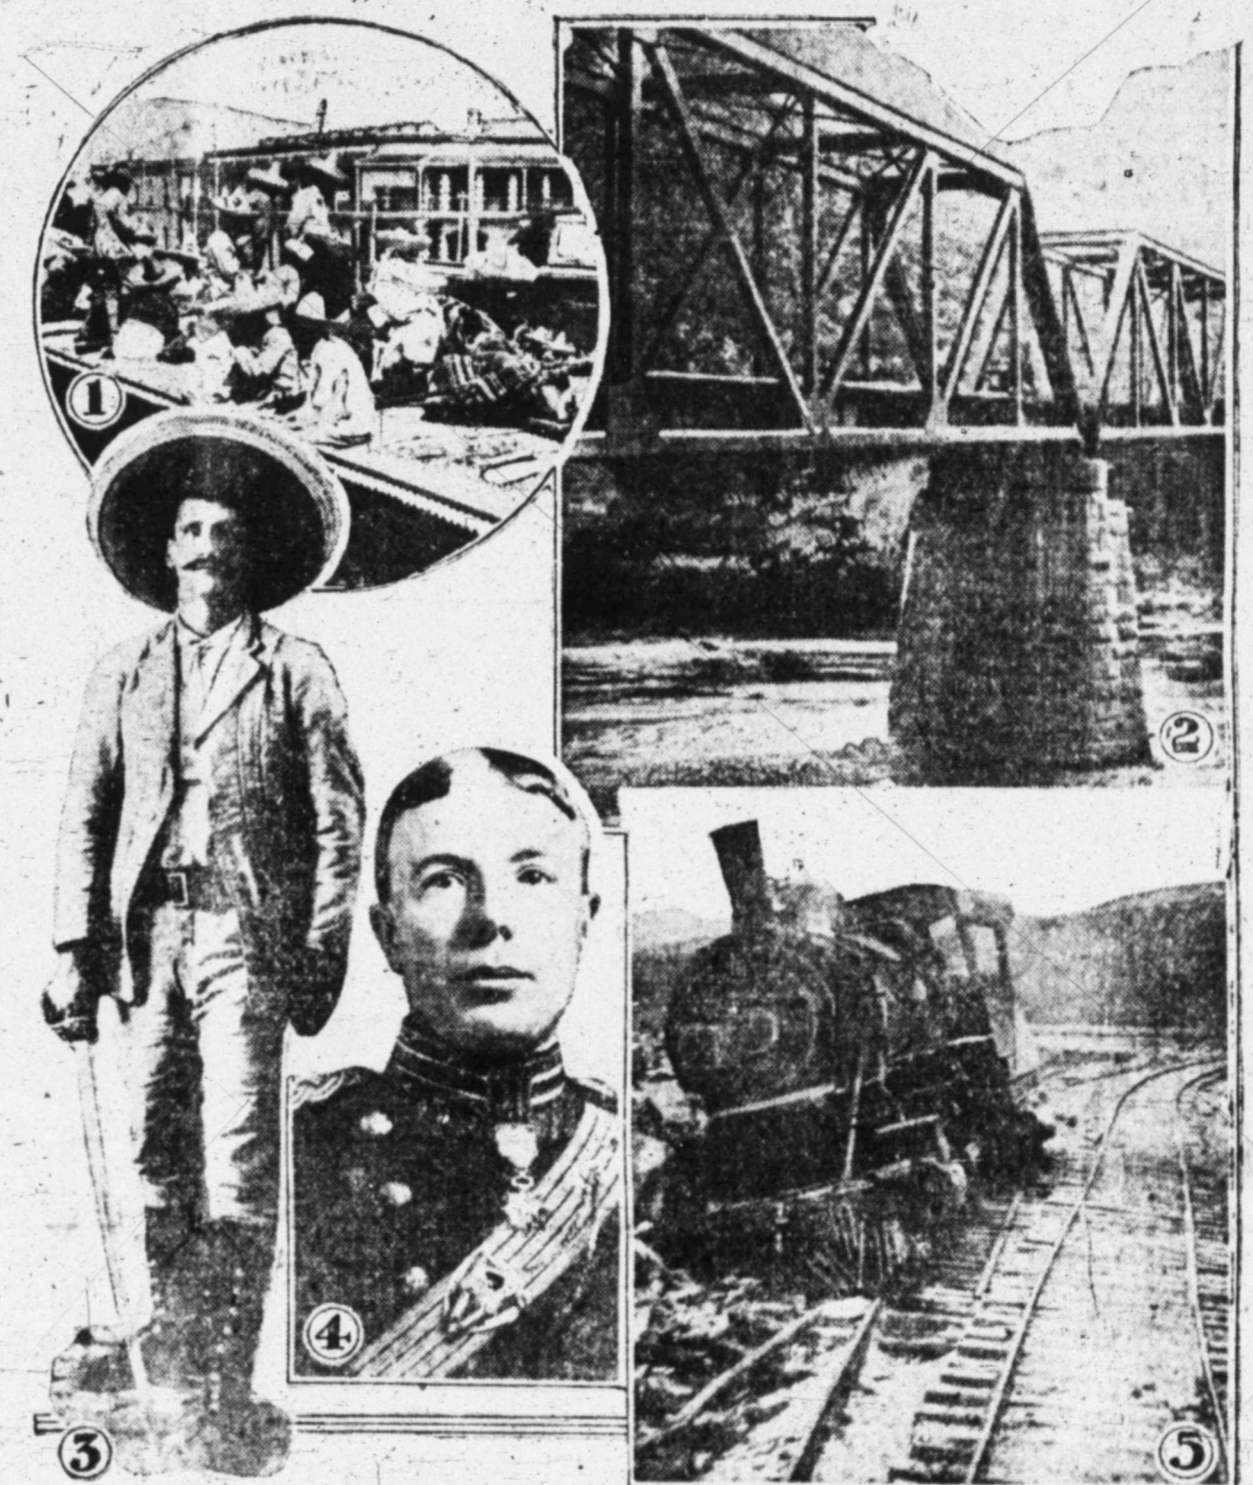

Today is the day fixed for the withdrawal by the senator's informant and officials point out that Secretary Lansing has announced that the railroad question is no longer a factor in the situation.

Soldiers' Requests For Candy Bringing Numerous Responses

By Associated Press.

Columbus, N. M., April 11.--Publication of reports that American soldiers in the Mexican field have asked for consignments of candy have brought responses from young women in almost every section of the United States. Every mail and almost every express train arriving in Columbus bring packages of candy addressed to the "soldiers at the front." Sixty pounds of candy received from a club of young women in Philadelphia was carried to Col. Dadd's forces at Guerrero by aeroplane while other packages have been sent forward by truck trains.

COLUMBUS' FEARS PROVE GROUNDFLESS

That General Funston is fully alive to the difficulties of army transport in the Mexican desert is evidenced by the elaborate arrangements being made for using the Mexican Northwestern railroad, and if Carranza grants the needed permission conductors, engineers, firemen and brakemen, most of whom have seen service on the Mexican national railways, will be pressed into service. All of the equipment in the El Paso yards has been inspected and enumerated and what exact information been obtained as to how many trains can be counted on with full American crews for each. Repeated failure of the wireless sets General Pershing has been using caused the dispatch from San Antonio, Texas, of Captain Charles de P. Chandler of the signal corps to supervise their operation. Army officers on the border expressed amazement over the rumors that the Arrieta brothers, commanders of a considerable force in the Mexican state of Durango, would join forces with Villa against the American troops. No. 1 in the accompanying pictures shows Mexicans traveling on top of a railroad train; No. 2, railroad bridge near Chihuahua; No. 3, General Domingo Arrieta; No. 4, Captain Chandler; No. 5, derailed locomotive on Mexican railroad.

Salazar's plans were not yet ripe when he learned that he was in danger of betrayal. He became alarmed and fled precipitately across the border Sunday, accompanied it is believed by only a handful of his most trusted adherents. "His exact plans at present, as well as his whereabouts, are unknown. He is expected to attempt to rally the Mexicans with a demand for an immediate withdrawal of the American troops."

Agents of the department of justice aided the police in making the arrests, the most important of which were General Marcelo Carvelo and General Morelos Cargosa who like Salazar were among the best known and trusted of the late Victoriano Huerta's lieutenants. The prisoners were gruffed throughout the night by police and secret service officials. The following story was pieced together from their admissions and believed by the authorities to be substantially correct. "The backers of Diaz, it is said, became disaffected because his own military reputation was small and he had no man with his movement in whose generalship the Mexican people had confidence. They were also anxious to reinforce the Diaz campaign in southern Mexico by a similar insurrection in the northern part of the republic. A soldier was wanted of proven ability and Salazar was selected. He was amply supplied with funds and proceeded to organize his followers from El Paso. Embassies were sent into Mexico to try out the sentiment of various Carranza garrisons and to stir up the people to opposing the reports that Carranza was in the pay of the United States, and that Col. Pershing's expeditionary force was really the advance guard of an army of occupation. There has been plenty of evidence that such reports have been circulated in Juarez and have caused a considerable impression on the people. "Salazar's plans were not yet ripe when he learned that he was in danger of betrayal. He became alarmed and fled precipitately across the border Sunday, accompanied it is believed by only a handful of his most trusted adherents. "His exact plans at present, as well as his whereabouts, are unknown. He is expected to attempt to rally the Mexicans with a demand for an immediate withdrawal of the American troops."

Additional information is filed against physician already tried three times. Kansas City, Mo., April 11.--A complaint charging Doctor B. Clark Hyde of Kansas City with the murder of Col. Thomas H. Swope an aged minister was filed in justice court here today and warrants for Dr. Hyde's arrest were issued. The action followed the filing yesterday by the prosecuting attorney of additional information against Dr. Hyde who has been tried three times for the alleged murder.

By Associated Press. Plans for the establishment of a combined army and navy aerodrome here, at which aviators of both services, will be trained have been formulated by officials of the United States signal corps aviation school at North Island. These plans, it was said authoritatively have been endorsed by Secretaries Baker and Daniels and would be placed before Congress soon.

By Associated Press. Dr. David Sherman, chiropractor arrested yesterday on a charge of murder, grew out of his professional practices today was placed on trial in county court on a charge of practicing medicine without a license. The court room was crowded. Dr. Sherman furnished $3000 bond on the murder charge yesterday and was released.

VERDUN BATTLE CENTERS AROUND DEAD MAN'S HILL

POSITION IS CONSIDERED OF GREAT IMPORTANCE--GERMANS REPORT SMALL GAINS, BUT WERE BEATEN BACK

HEAVY ATTACK MADE

Sunday's Offensive Along Thirteen Mile Front Said to Have Been Greatest of War--No News From Other Theatres

The Associated Press summarizes European war operations as follows: The German assault on the defense of Verdun is still centered on all important key position of Dead Man's Hill, west of the Meuse. Advancing from Carbeaux wood the Germans last night gained a few elements of French trenches. Otherwise, the French war office announces, they were beaten back with heavy losses.

In the sector between Duamont and Vaux, which has relatively the same strategic position as that of the Meuse Germans also renewed the attack. There, the French report says, they gained no success. Paris regards the present attack of the Germans as their supreme effort in this greatest of battles. French commentators say it may mark the close of the Verdun campaign whatever the outcome.

The general offensive launched on Sunday over a thirteen mile front is reported as being the heaviest blow struck by the Germans in the war. According to official French advice, the defenders of Verdun have held firm except at one point, near Dead Man's Hill, where the Germans gained 500 yards of French trenches. It is now reported from Paris that the main onslaught has diminished in extent, being limited to a front of about two miles between Commercy and Hill 304 west of the Meuse.

Berlin views the Verdun operations confidently, pointing to the ground gained in a difficult region and the losses inflicted on the French. The statement is made by the Overseas News Agency of Berlin that since the beginning of battle the German forces have been captured; it also is said about 25 square kilometers of soil have been occupied west of the Meuse.

With the exception of the Verdun sector no military operations of particular significance form any of the movements of battle. Italian and Mesopotamian fronts, although each of these lines show signs of activity which is expected to become more pronounced as the spring advances.

All the passengers and crew of the Spanish steamer Santissima appeared only were rescued with the exception of four persons believed to have drowned. Owners of the vessel have been notified after fifteen minutes had been allowed for the departure of those on board.

BOYS HEAR TALKS ON "SAFETY FIRST"

High School Club Is Addressed By Katy and Red Cross Officials.

A. A. Krause of the "Safety First" commission of the M. & T. Railroad, Dr. M. J. Shields of the American Red Cross Association and R. E. Farmer addressed the boys' club meeting Monday night in regular session at the high school.

Mr. Krause and Dr. Shields are members of the "Safety First" party which has been here for several days. Mr. Krause addressed the boys briefly on the "Safety First" movement and some phases of the preventives employed by the commissions in the saving of life and limb. Dr. Shields talk was about the lines of "first aid to the injured," and he had some illustrations of the work. Mr. Farmer in the course of his talk gave some interesting demonstrations of lightning calculations.

A short business session preceded the talks, during which time the coming Older Boys' Convention was discussed. There was the usual good attendance.

Proof of the success of safety first campaigns, according to the talks last night, is shown by the following statistics for the last three fiscal years of the casualties on the United States: 1913, killed, 19,364; 1914, killed, 19,394; 1915, killed, 8,621.

These figures speak volumes for safety," Dr. Shields said, "but they have another great significance. Nearly all accidental injuries occur when there is no doctor about, and in most instances some one without any knowledge of medicine or surgery undertakes to do something for the immediate relief, care and comfort of the injured person until a doctor can be summoned, and this is where first aid becomes valuable in teaching what is right and helpful, and also, what is wrong and harmful. It is surprising how many harmful things are incidentally done in an endeavor to render first aid treatment. With the vast number of industrial accidents we are still having it can be seen how important and necessary is a correct knowledge of those simple and effective methods of apply first aid to the injured which are in use in the U. S. Army and Navy, and which are sanctioned by the leading medical societies.

First aid and safety first are two movements that should go hand in hand. The former is first aid to the injured, the latter is first aid to the unprepared. With over 100,000 persons meeting with accidental death and over 2,500,000 receiving accidental injuries in the United States every year, there is presented a vast field for the activities of both of these movements.

MACKENSEN NOT GREAT FAVORITE

LESS POPULAR THAN HINDENBURG AND COMPARATIVELY A STRANGER.

CAREER AS SOLDIER

Came Very Near Choosing Farming as Life Work—Served in Franco-Prussian War.

By Associated Press. Berlin (By mail).—It is doubtful whether any popular national hero in Germany is in general as little known either in Germany or abroad, as General Field Marshal August von Mackensen, he who was instrumental in driving the Russians out of Galicia and to whose credit the conquest of Serbia lies.

Hindenburg, when the war began, was an unknown, but the public quickly familiarized itself with every detail of his life when his victories of Tannenberg and the Masurian Lakes made him an idol of all Germany. Mackensen, however, Hindenburg's rival for public affection at present, was only a name until the summer of 1915 and despite his great reputation, is little more now.

Countless streets all over Germany have been named after Hindenburg, statues already have been erected to him; he is weekly in receipt of requests to allow the use of his name in this or that connection. Mackensen, however, though a rival of Hindenburg insofar as military achievements are concerned, is still far behind him when it comes to popular esteem or idolatry.

Mackensen's pictures, however, are to be seen everywhere. They perhaps are responsible for an impression that seems to be almost universal that the field marshal is stern and unapproachable, whereas the opposite is the case. Scarcely any of his intimate personal characteristics, except that of unusual ability seem to be depicted on his strenuous features.

When Mackensen began to tower above the other German army leaders, by his achievements against the Russians and the Kaiser's frequent telegraphic messages conferred honor after honor on him, it was a matter of surprise to Germans unfamiliar with Mackensen's career that a warm personal note should manifest itself which had been lacking in earlier messages to Hindenburg.

The surprise came largely from the fact that the general public did not, and to a great extent still does not, know how long standing and cordial are the relations between the Emperor and Mackensen. The latter, surrendering the command of his body guard Hussars years ago, served a long period as the Kaiser's personal adjutant and in this position accompanied his chief on the noted trip to the Holy Land.

Few know either, how narrowly Germany missed having Mackensen as a great military leader. He is the son of a man who in America would be rated as a farmer when the opportunity to go back as a line officer into the "Death's Head Hussar" regiment with which he had served in France arrived one more, and his father reluctantly withdrew his objections to this career.

A number of characteristics possessed by Mackensen stand out prominently and have stood out ever since he joined the Second Body Guard Hussars on May 12, 1873. Some of them obviously have contributed to his military success; others belong to those peculiarities which successful men in general have. One of the most striking features of Mackensen's career comes first of all, an astonishing memory which enables him often times to direct operations without the aid of a map, provided of course that he has at some earlier time studied the territory in question, incidentally it might be remarked that he generally has done the studying for he is a prodigious worker at all times.

Mackensen rarely forgets a name or a face and years after meeting junior officers astonishes them by calling them by name when meeting them again. Few know, but Mackensen's knowledge of his native land, and has traveled and studied so extensively that he instantly recognizes any given place from its physical characteristics.

Contrary to general belief Mackensen is the best sort of a comrade and lacks the repelling sternness with which lesser men barricade themselves. Off and on since 1870 he has been connected with the Death's Head Hussars and today is their general in a suite. No officer has ever been more popular, and few more approachable. There are countless cases on record of financial and other aid that he has rendered, though not a man of wealth, to men of his company, brigade or regiment.

Mackensen's early training on a farm or country estate instilled in him a love of the open and for hunting that has always stayed by him. Though almost 67 years old he has never been ill a day and is so strenuous a worker that his younger officers often have hard work in keeping up to the pace that he sets.

His principal aversion is the shirk, including the one who, though not actually dodging work, likes to take things easy and perhaps over-indulge in the creature comforts of life. A soldier who is a shirker who is one to laze over his after dinner cigar or liqueur has not an easy time of it.

Mackensen himself does not smoke because, according to report, of an occurrence in the Franco-Prussian war. He was at the time a non-commissioned officer in one of the famous Black Hussar regiments, and was entrusted with important communications that had to be carried on a night march. The trip was long, hard and dangerous but important in proportion.

He arrived in time to find the great alder confidant of a dinner, and in a very peevish mood because there were no cigars on hand. Though Mackensen tried to impress on the officer the importance of his message, their primary thought was for something to smoke and they vainly searched the pockets of the messenger. As a matter of fact, Mackensen did happen to have a number but he was so angry at the action of his superior officers in putting personal comfort above military matters that he not only did not give away his smokes, but never thereafter smoked himself or tolerated smoking ways of time in this way by his later subordinates.

Another anecdote of Mackensen's early career is equally characteristic of the determination and the chivalry which his intimates know so well. He was a student at the University of Halle and the leader of his set. He and his fellow students came to know a talented young actress and her mother, and learned from the latter that the daughter was severely handicapped by the chicanery of the theatre manager, who not only repressed her every effort to advance, but insulted and bothered her as well.

Instead of making the matter a personal issue, he soon other hot blooded students might have done, Mackensen was far more diplomatic. He assembled the entire student body, which flower laden, went to the theatre and overcame the actress with applause and bouquets. The manager had to recede from his position and give the actress the opportunity she had sought.

Hardly an example of Mackensen, but can testify to some personal act of kindness, some help in an emergency that the latter has rendered.

The Home Fire.
The old home fire where the red sparks rose
Up the broad backed chimney, in the old home place!
How far we've wandered from its glowing gleam
From the home winds singing through the oak's still dream!
Wandered weary in the far, false light
Yearning vainly for the old home nights—
For the winter silence on the frost
And the broad backed chimney with the home fire's blaze!

The strange, thronged cities of the storming crowds;
The buildings climbing till they scar the clouds;
The street or toilers in the stern life-light
Of the days that die in the hush of night!
The tread of thousands on the thunderstreet,
With hearts far sighing for the still sweet
That fell in blessing on the friendly gleams
Of the old home fire where we read love's dreams!

The traveler listens where the lost lives roam;
The dark is calling to the Dark: "Come home!"
The loved lights twinkle over vale and hill
And the dreams are waiting in the bright still
The winter stillness that is falling deep
With healing sweetness—like the breath of Sleep;
From the dark—or gathered where the false light streams,
By the old home fire we shall read Love's dreams!"

ILLNESS FATAL TO M. N. CURRY

WELL KNOWN PIONEER RESIDENT KNOWN LATE MONDAY NIGHT.

HERE FOR 26 YEARS

One of First Settlers in County—Had Been in Failing Health for Year.

After a critical illness of two weeks, Martin Nixon Curry, 69, a resident of Wichita Falls, died Monday night at 12:40 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. E. Myles, 709 Travis. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Myles residence, Dr. A. L. Andrews to conduct the services.

Mr. Curry had been in failing health for the past year or more, the trouble being the cause of death. He was possessed of a wonderful vitality and up to two years ago was in the best of health and was very vigorous. At the time of death he was 85 years old being born in Greenup County, Kentucky, July 2, 1851. On February 22, 1877, he was married to Miss Jane Love of Hopewell, Kentucky and to this union four children were born. Mrs. T. A. Hunter of Wellington, Texas, Mrs. A. E. Myles of this city, Mrs. N. Sherman, who died about four years ago, and Mrs. J. O. Smith of Post City, Texas. His wife also survives him.

Mr. and Mrs. Curry moved to Texas in 1880, going to Dallas. The family came to Wichita Falls in 1890 and have been continual residents of this city since that time. Mr. Curry was engaged in the dairy and ranching business up to within a short time of his death. As one of the first settlers of Wichita Falls he had countless friends to whom the passing away of "Nick" Curry, as he was intimately known, will bring more than a passing sorrow. He was a member of the Elks Lodge.

The active pall bearers will be: P. P. Langford, J. W. Stone, M. J. Gardner, T. T. Hester, E. B. Gors, Fred J. M. Childers, T. W. Roberts and George Davis.

PASTOR MAKES PLEA FOR PERSONAL WORK

"No Man Cared for My Soul," Subject of Sermon by Dr. Andrews Monday Night.

"No man cared for my soul," the plaint of David, the sweet singer of Israel, as uttered in Psalm 142 was the text of a striking sermon last night spoken at the M. E. Church South by Dr. L. A. Andrews, in connection with the revival which began Sunday with the sermon by Bishop Hoos. There was a large throng present and though the pastor made no proposition there was much interest manifested in the service.

Dr. Andrews spoke first of the too great indifference of church members towards those outside the church and their lack of interest in the souls of their acquaintances and those with whom they may come in daily contact.

"You must feel a love for men's souls if you would be a true follower of Christ whose one great teaching was the salvation of souls," the speaker said.

Every Christian should feel an obligation towards others, Dr. Andrews said, when they consider what they themselves would be without Christ without the saving grace of God. The only difference between men is what God makes of them and what he has time for one he can do for all who will take him into their lives, he said.

Dr. Andrews closed his sermon with a strong appeal for more personal work, asking that all take a deeper interest in their neighbors and friends, so that they might not utter the words of David, "No man cared for my soul."

Christianity as well as olden days, Dr. Andrews addressed an interest of gathering this morning on "What It Means to Be a Christian" and this afternoon the meeting was especially for school children. Tonight the services will continue as usual. Mr. Ellis, the singer is providing excellent music at each service.

A farmer friend of the Times suggests a formula for killing English sparrows that is at once very simple and comparatively free from danger. Salt and corn meal are the ingredients. Make a dough of the meal and the salt, putting as much salt into it as possible. Place this on the roof or other elevated position where the sparrows will eat it. The dough should not be placed where chickens or other fowls can reach it as it is said to be as deadly to poultry as to sparrows. The reader who suggested this formula says he has used it and has found it very effective. He says he has learned at his own cost that it is just as deadly for chickens as for sparrows.

Former Senator Bailey is reported to have told Former Governor Colquitt in their recent conference in Dallas that he would vote for Senator Culbertson for re-nomination, but other reports indicate that Bailey will not take an active part in the campaign. Political signs indicate the presence of a good many Bailey adherents in the Colquitt camp and as the campaign advances it is likely more of them will be found there. Bailey is completely out of sympathy with President Wilson and the national administration. So is Colquitt, Colquitt is the only avowed opponent of the administration on the Senatorial contest. Therefore it is but natural that those who follow the leadership of Bailey should be found in the Colquitt camp, notwithstanding that Bailey himself, for sentimental or other reasons, will vote for Culbertson.

The report of the federal trade commission to Congress Monday shows that no nationwide conspiracy to raise the price of gasoline to an exorbitant figure has been discovered. On the other hand the report shows that there are some natural causes for a rise in the price of that product. Press reports do not show how far the commission went into the increase in the consumption of gasoline but the suggestion is made that increasing exports may have something to do with the increase in domestic prices. In 1913 the exports of gasoline were 188,000,000 gallons. In 1915 they had mounted to 284,500,000 gallons. A decrease in the production of the crude oils from which gasoline is derived is also cited in the report. For instance the Cushing field which in April, 1915, produced 9,000,000 barrels had dropped to 2,000,000 in December, 1915. But one of the most interesting facts shown in the report is that the Standard Oil Company has been charging less for gasoline than the independent companies. The commission collected reports showing that on January 1, 1915, the Standard Oil was selling gasoline in carload lots f. o. b. at their refineries at 7.82 cents a gallon while independent companies were receiving 8.32 cents for the same grade. The Standard Oil Company, the report shows, was still the largest producer of gasoline, being accredited with 681,000,000 gallons in 1915, while the independent refiners produced 400,000,000 gallons.

WHAT WE PAY FOR PIFFLE. Great publicity has been given to the statement that a motion picture actor is earning $50,000 a year by his ludicrous performances before the camera, that pictures may be made for the delectation of the American people. The very figures lead a doubt as to the truthfulness of the story. It sounds too much like the utterings of a press agent. But that is not the point. Considering the character of the productions brought forth by the payment of this vast sum in the enjoyment of this artist (?), they would be dear at any price.

It remained for Puck, a publication generally given to less serious questions than this, to call the attention of the people to what they are getting for their money. Telling how he earns this money, that paper says: "The chances are that he starts the day by falling out of a saloon door and causing a gray-haired pastry cook, from whose tray he seizes a lemon meringue pie and gleefully smears it over the old lady's countenance. In making his escape he shoves a one-legged veteran into a lime bed, cuts off the braided pigtail of two school-girls, squeezes the contents of an ice cream cone down the throat of an infant in long clothes, which he then seizes from a nurse maid's arms and throws into a passing delivery wagon full of scrap iron. After setting fire to the city hospital, pushing two young ladies down an open coal hole and steering a blind beggar into the path of a rapidly moving car, he blushing goes up to the cashier and pockets $175.00. Press-agent figures for the day are $25.00. It is what he is expected to do in return for the highest salary paid to any employe in the world."

This reaches the height of vulgar folly. Picture exhibitors place themselves behind the excuse screen of giving the public what it demands. To an extent this may be true, but it is also true that the producers of film should place some limit on their green when it goes to the extreme vulgar, as is the case with such pictures produced as Puck describes. The public must be saved from itself. Let the public go to at least half way and let the censors be equally liberal in passing on pictures of merit, not only those intended for enlightenment, and education, but for amusement as well, for the people can be amused by something less vulgar than these pictures referred to.

If it is the taste of the public that calls for this kind of pictures, it is pitiful to relate that the American people with all their educational and art institutions, their scholarship and civilization, have not risen above this. -Austin American

THE OLD SYSTEM AND THE NEW. Now that the big wigs of politics, reform and civic regeneration have decided upon a senatorial plan and defeated the wretches who are forever assailing popular rights, let us give a moment's attention to some dark charges that were heard a few years ago. It was said that somebody was trying to destroy the primary election

CHANGING NAVY FROM SOCIAL CLUB TO WAR MACHINE (J. C. Hemphill in Houston Post)

Joseph Daniels of North Carolina is secretary of the navy. North Carolina seems to run naturally to secretaries of the navy. There was John Breach under Jackson of South Carolina; Badger, under Harrison, "old Tippecanoe" and Tyler, too; Graham, under Fillmore; Dobbin, under Pierce, and now comes Daniels, under Wilson, who was brought up in South Carolina by the more of his college training in North Carolina and know something about the quality of the North Carolina output in men and resources.

Mr. Daniels is now serving his third year, and has been more abused than any of his predecessors since Gideon Welles, the Connecticut Yankee of Democratic faith, who had the confidence of Lincoln in time of the nation's sorest distress, just as Mr. Daniels now has the confidence of Mr. Wilson in the most trying period through which this country has passed in its relations to the rest of the world. George Creel has told in a late number of the New York World a more stirring story about Daniels and his administration of his office, and has given in the secretary's own words the first answer he has heard upon him by so many of the so-called "leaders of men."

One of Mr. Daniels' cabinet associates recently expressed his admiration of the fine courage displayed by Daniels in the bitter experiences through which he has passed and who, when reviled, has reviled not again, but has taken his punishment without complaining, confident that he will be justified by the event. The story Creel tells is the truth about Daniels.

When he became secretary of the navy he found that it was 5000 men short of the number allowed by law. He has added 6365 men to the service in three years. There are 700 men of the navy in prison now; there were 1800 when he went into office. Under the administration of George Von Meyer, his immediate predecessor, who has been one of the most unfair and persistent of Daniels' critics and defamers, there were over 10,000 desertions from the navy. There has been a reduction of 17 per cent in desertions under Daniels. Fifty-two per cent of the men discharged in good standing from the navy under Meyer re-enlisted, 85 per cent are re-enlisted under Daniels.

The United States navy is not as strong as the German navy today, not on account of Daniels' failure to do any of the things required of him, but because for nine years, from 1903 to 1912, when the Republicans were in charge of the government the recommendations of the general board of the navy, with Admiral Bevoey at its head, were disregarded, and the German navy, which was in the process of being built up in fighting strength three years before Daniels became secretary.

The board recommended a policy of continuing to build up the navy. There was not a single sea-going submarine when Daniels went into office; there are three now of the latest and latest type. There were four aviators then; there are 18 now. There were 1928 men on 14 ships to care for 25 submarines carrying 821 men then; there is a submarine flotilla now under the separate command of a rear admiral of the navy.

There was one mine laying ship then; there are three now, besides a fleet of torpedo boats with mine sweeping equipment. There was an inadequate and outworn system of wireless equipment for the ships of the navy then; there are 75 ships with radio equipment now, besides every submarine in the navy has been equipped with radio and three new shore stations have been added to the chain of such stations. The navy now has 31 mines where it had only two two years ago. There are two torpedoes now where there were only one then.

Under his administration Daniels has secured from Congress for the building of the navy $70,000,000, as compared with $26,000,000 secured by Meyer during the last two years of his inefficient service in the same office. Last October, according to the official reports of Admiral Fletcher, the scores made by the navy at long range practice was the highest ever made in the open sea, and 90 per cent of the shots fired at the longest range would have hit an enemy ship.

Removed from Office. The story that Daniels issued an order that the officers and men should meet together but upon reflecting that this might bring the black men and white men together dropped the matter is an "infamous falsehood," which is the next thing to being a deliberate lie. No such order was ever made or contemplated.

Dispensed With Useless Officers. When he went into office of secretary of the navy, Daniels found that the services were loaded with useless officers, an amazing amount of red tape and correspondence between the secretary and men in adjoining rooms—a system which Congress has repeatedly refused to sanction—and the said officers, aides and brought the heads of the bureaus into intimate and direct touch with the secretary.

He has been censured for recommending to Congress that promotion in the navy be made by merit and not by seniority. Instead of censure this action should have been received with the highest favor by the really deserving officers of the navy.

He has been criticized for refusing to permit naval officers to seek to influence legislation by making public addresses or otherwise; but this has been the unbroken policy of the navy for all time. In 1902, President Roosevelt and in 1909 President Taft "reaffirmed the rule by executive orders that established dismissal as a penalty for violation. "No one has been nonzed; simply the law has been enforced, that forbids officers from running about the country for purposes of propaganda, a practice in which 99 per cent had no desire to indulge."

Making Own Powder No. Under Mr. Daniels' administration the United States is making its own powder for 34 cents a pound; it used to pay from 50 to 80 cents. He saved the government $1,115,793 on this account last year. He cut out $1,077,219 on one bid alone of a manufacturer of projectiles and has asked Congress for money to build a projectile plant for the government. He reduced the bids of the armor plate people $1,110,654, and heartily favors the bill of Senator Tillman providing for the establishment of a government plant where armor can be made for $230 per ton as against $440 demanded by private concerns. In 1900 Congress appropriated $4,000,000—the Tillman bill provides for $1,000,000—for a government armor plant unless contracts could be made at "a reasonable and equitable figure." The plant was not established and under Moody, Morton, Donahay and Meyer, all Republican secretaries, the treasury was milked to the extent of over $76,000,000 in high prices.

Manifestly Mr. Daniels is not to be blamed for the general condition of the navy. He had to take it as it was turned over to him by his utterly incompetent predecessor, George Von L. Meyer. He found the establishment very much run down in men and material. He has greatly strengthened it in both respects.

Record Breaking Construction. According to Captain J. M. McKean of the service more progress has been made in building up the navy in the last two years than in any previous period of five years, and there was never a time when "everybody in the service was working as hard with their heads and hands." "The navy today," says Mr. Daniels, "is a finer, better balanced and more effective first arm of defense than ever before in its history." In the last 10 years of Republican administration the expenditures on account of the navy amounted in the aggregate to $1,123,013,802. This was at the rate of $112,301,380 the year, and when Mr. Daniels succeeded Mr. Meyer he found the navy without men to man the ships, without ships to meet the requirements of a modern navy, without aeroplanes or aviators, without wireless equipment of an adequate sort, a kind of snug harbor for officers of great distinction, a great institution possessing many of the delectful qualities of a well ordered club, but lacking in like proportion, as the social graces had been cultivated, the hardy elements of an effective fighting machine. What did the Republicans do with the money?

COURT HOUSE COST AFFECTED BY WAR. County Will Not Get as Fine a Building as Was Possible Two Years Ago. Wichita County's new court house, will cost $25,000 more than the same building would have cost two years ago, as a result of the advance in the cost of building material, according to local material men, some of whom estimate the disparity at a still higher figure. Steel has advanced considerably in price while other materials such as are used in construction of fire proof buildings have advanced heavily, the increase in most cases being charged to the European war. One contractor who is versed in such matters said recently that Wichita county, spending about $200,000 for the building proper, would get about the same value as that which could have gotten in 1914 for $150,000. "Cost of practically all metals used in buildings has gone up 10 to 50 per cent," said a building material man recently. "Two years ago the market was comparatively easy but since then the prices have gone up steadily. Nearly everything used in such a building as will be erected here will cost more than it would have in 1914."

Villa was last reported to General Pershing as having been in the vicinity of Bacaburiachio, west of Parral.

This would place him in the midst of the different detachments of American troops. If he is dead it may be that the end came while the various forces were preparing to close in on him.

Fire Sale Prices Make Them All Buy!

They came, they looked, they bought. Considering the size of the stock, there was never a fire sale in Wichita Falls that attracted a more enthusiastic crowd of buyers than attended our sale yesterday. And there was a good reason for it. Everybody understood that the goods could not be duplicated again at the original price. This in itself made them very attractive.

The Fire Sale Prices Were Doubly Attractive

Most of the goods were not damaged at all. Some only slightly soiled by smoke and water—But the prices were slaughtered on all alike, offering the men of Wichita Falls the greatest opportunity to buy Hats and Caps, Silk and Madras Shirts, Arrow Brand Collars, Hosiery, Ties, Garters, etc., all the best makes—at prices about half the regular cost.

ROBERT EDESCO in "THE CAVE MAN"

AT THE THEATRES

The Majestic. "Fighting Blood," a William Farnum feature, is one the program today at the Majestic.

"Fighting Blood," a William Fox production, in which William Farnum is starred, was made in California. Locations were used in widely remote parts of the state, and the company of players and helpers, under the supervision of Director Oscar C. Apfel, spent no little time in traveling from place to place.

The lumber camp scenes were made in the San Bernardino Mountains at Skyland, altitude 5,800 feet, the loftiest point in the entire range. The mining scenes were made in the Mojave Desert, miles from civilization. Street scenes were taken in Redlands, one of the wealthiest residential centers of the world.

A pack train of 15 burros was used to transport "properties" for use in the scenes of the lumber camp, and automobiles were employed in taking the players to the desert location.

There are some beautiful classic dancing scenes in the heart of a great forest and also some thrilling pictures of the woods on fire and heroic rescues in the new Fine Arts Triangle play "The Wood Nymph," starring Marie Doro, which showed at the Lydia Margaret Monday and is repeated today.

Miss Doro wears light filmy garments and has her long dark hair streaming lightly through the forest. She has the grace and abandon of the old Greek dancers. Her face is alight with the joy of life and her arms and limbs wave in rhythm to an old melody to which the fauns and satyrs might have tipped. The Keystone comedy also on the Triangle program, "Paris of the Park," is a reel full of entertainment.

The Empress. Today's picture is "Man and His Angel." Most emphatically Jane Grey is a success in screen performances. It is a genuine pleasure to watch her delicate shadings of expression and her consistent characterization in roles such as that of Sonia Demitri, the high-minded, wholly inspiring heroine of "Man and His Angel," a Triumph Equitable production made by Burton King for release through World Film, which will be seen at the Empress Tuesday.

Without reservation, this picture may be classed as clean, wholesome entertainment. The story generally remains within the limits of reason, and where there is danger of the incidents appearing forced, an adroit plot development prevents any glaring artificialities. In fact, the production, as a whole, carries a tone of sincerity and therein lies much of its charm. Two characters dominate the story—Sonia, the daughter of an exiled Russian nobleman who opens a second hand book store in New York, and David Tryne, a deformed misanthrope whose lonely life is utterly cheerless until a new spirit is born by the unprecedented kindness of the book dealer and his daughter. Henri Bergmann's portrayal of Tryne is a thoroughly artistic piece of work.

The Gem. Today the comedian Billy Reeves is starred in "Billy's Revenge" a Lubin comedy and the feature picture is a three part Essanay, "The Deserter." Bryant Washburn and Warda Howard are included in the cast. A story follows: Ben Cameron, a wealthy widower, is rejected by Mary Rodgers in favor of Richard Warner, a bookkeeper. Cameron's son associates with crooks and soon becomes a criminal. Warner cannot support his family, so Mary works as a clerk in a store. Cameron's son hides some lace in her dress, and threatens to expose her if she does not pay him.

When he comes around for another payment, he is shot by his father, who is calling on Mary. When Cameron discovers that it is his own son he has killed, he is in anguish.

The cast contains Bryant Washburn, Warda Howard and Darwin Karr.

The temporary building with cost about $2,000, the contract for demolishing the old building is to be awarded at the same time.

REWARDS OFFICERS WHO ANSWERED BANK'S CALL

C. W. Suter, member of the City National Bank, today presented a $250 gold piece to each of the five city and county officers who displayed bravery in entering the bank last Wednesday night when the burglar alarm sounded.

The alarm was set off automatically by about 10 o'clock as a result of the safe not having been properly closed. The officers, who received the sovereign coins from the bank first on the scene and each faced what might have meant instant death by entering the building. The greatest bravery was shown by Deputy Sheriff J. E. Glenn and Deputy Constable Ed Carnes, who entered the bank by forcing a window. Patrolmen Frank Burns and J. D. McIver and Constable Will Allen also were remembered by Mr. Suter.

PICTURE VIEWED BY LARGE CROWD

"BIRTH OF A NATION" IS PRESENTED AT WICHITA THEATER MONDAY NIGHT.

CHEERS AND TEARS

Spectators Run Gamut of Emotions as Stirring Scenes of South's Ordeal Are Presented.

The images of the fathers of the South, staked at the Wichita Theatre Monday night, by the agency of a narrow strip of celluloid they faced the bitter ordeal of unsuccessful secession and the bitter ordeal of reconstruction; history was visualized before the eyes of a great throng, giving thrills that no printed page or spoken word could ever give. Such in brief, was "The Birth of a Nation" described as the greatest moving picture ever completed and conceived to be that by the Americans who were literally swept from their feet by it.

Never before, probably, has the story of the struggle between the states been made so vividly and so directly to the younger generation. There were those among the spectators who needed no picture to reproduce the scenes of that day to tell them the story; they were the handful of Confederate veterans who both cheered and wept in the scenes of the North from being alone in either the cheering or the weeping. To the others who were not part of the picture it was a picture of the stirring presentation of the stories they had read and heard.

The production is based upon Thomas Dixon's "The Clansman" that story being made the vehicle for a historical picture of the secession and reconstruction days. One saw President Lincoln signing the call for the volunteers, while the North loudly believed would be enough; saw the volunteer legions gather for the struggle and ride away amid tears and cheers; saw the conflict at Gettysburg, typical of so many gallant battles of the war; saw the Confederacy fall and the ragged soldiers rowed to wrecked, battered homes; saw Lincoln struck down by the assassin's hand; saw the carpet baggers and their negro hirelings begin their reign of terror that featured the days of reconstruction; saw a negro legislator in South Carolina's halls of state; saw the first girl fall victim to the product of such system; saw the Klan, born of stern necessity, form and ride forth to restore supremacy to the Caucasian race.

The picture gripped the crowd at the start, but the spectators sat completely until there was a scene showing celebration of the victory of the Hoosiers, a lumberman's fraternity. Dallas lumbermen have arranged a program of education on Dallas industries for the visiting lumbermen

ACTION REQUESTED ON DAVIS' REMARKS

Letter Sent by U. C. V. Camp to Members of Texas Delegation in Congress.

As a result of the meeting of the John B. Forrest Camp, U. C. V., Sunday afternoon, the following letter has been sent members of the Texas delegation in Congress: "Dear Sir: The N. B. patriots, or to their memory, from the outrageous trade indulged in against them by this man Davis, but because we do not wish a man of this man Davis' character to misrepresent us and our views while holding the position of Congressman at large from Texas, without and suggest protest from us.

"The people of Texas love, revere and honor the names and memories of their heroes whom this man Davis has seen fit to falsely, maliciously and slanderously attack, and we do here and now enter our most solemn protest against his language, and against his misrepresentations and false slanders against our beloved president and other Southern leaders. Most respectfully, W. J. HOWARD, Secretary, "GEORGE SIMMONS, "Commander."
