Poll: Security more valuable than liberty

NEW YORK (AP) — A majority of Americans want the government to try to prevent more Oklahoma City-style terrorism even if it means intruding on some people's rights and privacy, according to an Associated Press poll.

Fifty-four percent put public security ahead of people's civil liberties. Among the rest of respondents, there is a split between 21 percent who say treading on rights and privacy is unacceptable and 19 percent who say it is fruitless because the government can't stop determined terrorists.

Many surveys have found

Americans skeptical of the federal government's effectiveness and resentful of its reach. But the 1,009 adults polled Friday through Tuesday give widespread support to broader government powers for domestic security investigations.

— 58 percent support government power to quickly expel any foreigner suspected of planning terrorism, even a person who committed no crime.

This proposal by President Clinton has bipartisan support in Congress, but civil rights groups such as the American Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee say immigrants who are falsely accused could be unjustly deported.

— 63 percent favor FBI power to infiltrate and spy on organizations in this country that the government thinks might be planning terrorism, even if the groups has not committed any crimes.

Attorney General Janet Reno supports current guidelines allowing undercover operations only when there is strong evidence a crime is about to be committed. Looser restrictions on surveillance could give the FBI a better chance to head off bombings.

Organizers plan festivities to mark Cinco de Mayo observance

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Cinco De Mayo, the Fifth of May, is at hand, and thousands are preparing for the annual three-day event celebrating Mexico's battle for independence.

In Big Spring, two celebrations will highlight Cinco De Mayo festivities.

The Airpark celebration, sponsored by La Favorita and the League of United Latin American Citizens, will occur

Friday-Sunday at Airpark Hanger 44, with the carnival, which began Wednesday, continuing through Sunday.

Food, games, music and several booths featuring different items will be included with the celebration.

Friday's events will feature a kickoff fiesta at 8 p.m. and a dance from 8:05 p.m.-midnight featuring Sangre Tejana.

The celebration will continue Saturday with a kickoff fiesta at 1 p.m. followed by Ballet Foricos with Mrs. Ortiz at 2 p.m. and music by Los Nortenos - De Elias Soto from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Saturday's dance will feature Popo and Company and Frank Guerra Y Los Godfathers from 8 p.m.-1 a.m.

Sunday's fiesta will begin at 1 p.m. and the music of Los Navegantes Del bravo De Chihuahua will be featured from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Ballet Foricos will be featured from 6-7 p.m. and Los Gallitos De Larry Hilario will entertain from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Big Spring's other Cinco De

Mayo celebration, also scheduled for Friday-Sunday, is sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, Low Image, Hispanic Women for Progress, Chicano Golf Association, the Alsa Club, and Amigos Del Barrio, and will be on the north side of town on the grounds of the La Vadera Club.

The theme of this celebration, according to Amigos Del Barrio member Libby Uribe is "Promoting Cultural Awareness."

The celebration is taking place on 3.5 acres of land next to the La Vadera Club, which Uribe says will be turned into a park in the near future for other events like Cinco De Mayo.

Approximately 35 booths featuring flags, food, toys, and more have been committed for the celebration.

Remembering the fight for Mexico's independence is easy and is the focus of the celebration, according to Uribe.

She said, "We're doing this simply for the celebration of Cinco De Mayo."

Friday's events will feature booths and games from 5 p.m. to midnight, Pepe Franco "Cantante E Imitador" from 5:30-7:30 p.m., and live music by "Cintymto" from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Opening ceremonies, featuring several guest speakers, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

On Saturday, booths and games will resume at noon and run until 1 a.m., with live music by Los Gallitos from 1-3 p.m.

A Washer Tournament, sponsored by Willie's Bar, will begin

Despite truce, tensions mount between factions

ZAGREB, Croatia (AP) — Ballet dancers and children were among the nearly 200 people wounded after Serb rockets hit Zagreb for two straight days. Still, neither Croats nor Serbs were backing down, even as a wider war loomed.

The Children's Hospital and a rehearsal room full of dancers were struck Wednesday when Serbs, avenging a surprise Croatian offensive this week, sent 11 surface-to-surface missiles hurtling into downtown Zagreb.

Attacking the capital during lunch "was intended with one sole, single purpose: to kill as many people as possible," said Peter Galbraith, the U.S. ambassador to Croatia.

The U.N. Security Council, meanwhile, warned Wednesday that Croat troops might be broadening their attacks, noting Croat incursions in eastern and southern Serb-held parts of the country.

U.N. spokesmen spoke of extreme tension in those areas. In addition, Croat troops have seized nine U.N. observation posts manned by Czech peacekeepers about 90 miles south of Zagreb.

Thousands of Serb civilians in lands recaptured by Croatia are to start leaving today if they wish, and hundreds of Serb soldiers are to surrender their weapons today to U.N. peacekeepers.

The United Nations, however, has only a verbal promise of a truce, and leaders on both sides are talking retaliation.

Croatian President Franjo Tudjman warned Serbs will have to stay in territory taken this week if there are more deadly missile attacks on Zagreb.

One policeman was killed Wednesday and 64 people, including 21 rehearsing ballet dancers, were injured when 11 missiles hit. A day earlier, five people died and 121 were wounded.

"If such a criminal attack is conducted only once again, Croatia will undertake most decisive steps," Tudjman announced on national television Wednesday night.

Croatian Serb leader Milan Martić admitted that "we have avenged dead Serb civilians by bombing Croatian cities," and threatened to attack Zagreb again if the Croats strike at Serbs.

Martić spoke before holding talks in cooperation with his Serb counterpart in Bosnia, Radovan Karadzic. The two leaders were expected in Knin today, Serb sources said, a move that may indicate the separate Serb rebellions in Bosnia and Croatia could merge into one war.

A Croatian militiaman carries a shrouded cross as the funeral procession for policeman Zdravko Malnar, 33, who was killed during fighting for Okucani on Monday winds its way through the streets of Kriz. A successful Croatian army offensive seized Okucani and the surrounding territory but was met with Serbian rockets falling on the Croatian capital Zagreb.

Report notes Chinese human rights violations

BEIJING (AP) — Zhao Fengping was arrested 14 years ago because he supported the 1978-79 democracy movement, for which China's most famous dissident, Wei Jingsheng, was also imprisoned.

But unlike Wei, who is reportedly a nominee for this year's Nobel Peace Prize, Zhao has languished virtually unknown in a prison in northeast China where he is serving a life sentence.

An American human rights activist released a report today telling about Zhao and 18 other relatively unknown prisoners of conscience. Many are facing sentences longer than previously known, some running into the next century.

John Kamm, an American businessman based in Hong Kong, has been pressing Chinese government officials for five years to release or at least provide information about political prisoners.

He said today the government has agreed to investigate every three months a new list of 25 prisoners.

In the first list Kamm submitted, 19 prisoners were convicted of anti-government crimes and 15 were serving sentences of 10 or more years.

Among them are Zhao and Zhang Yansheng, who were sentenced to life imprisonment but had their sentences commuted. Zhao is now due for release in 2002, and Zhang in 2004.

Robin Munro of the New York-based Human Rights Watch/Asia said human rights groups knew of Zhao's existence for more than a decade, but only recently learned that he was arrested for publishing an underground pro-democracy magazine and for publicly posting the text of Wei's defense at his trial.

His continued imprisonment contradicts the government's assertion in 1993 that it had released all the activists from that earlier democracy movement, known as Democracy Wall, Munro said.

Wei's sentence of 15 years for posting long essays advocating democracy put him at the top of human rights lists, but Zhao's trial and sentencing went unnoticed.

American back in jail after hospitalization

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — One of two Americans imprisoned in Iraq was briefly hospitalized for medical tests, then returned to his cell when no problems were found, an Iraqi official said Wednesday.

The statement by Information Minister Hamed Yousef Humadi contradicted a U.S. State Department announcement Tuesday that both David Daliberti and William Barloon had been hospitalized with chest pains.

"Only one of the prisoners was admitted to the hospital for medical tests and not two,"

Humadi said. "He is receiving very good medical care. He has been taken back from the hospital in very good condition and the doctors have found no problem."

There is no need to "exaggerate and sensationalize" reports on the prisoners' health, Humadi added.

Humadi did not say which of the two men was hospitalized or give the exact nature of his ailment. But informed sources in Baghdad said Barloon's health was worse than Daliberti's, even though Daliberti is known to have a heart condition. Humadi added that the men's wives, Linda Barloon and Kathy Daliberti, who have been in Iraq since Saturday to plead for their freedom, "can visit the prisoners any time and daily as long as they stay in Baghdad." He gave no further details.

It was not clear whether the decision to let the wives visit freely was because of the men's health or if it was to counter criticism they are not being cared for properly.

The two men are imprisoned in a cellblock with 200 Arab prisoners, some of them convicted murderers.

Barloon, 39, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Daliberti, 41, of New Hampton, Iowa, were arrested March 13 after crossing into Iraq from Kuwait.

The men, who work for U.S. defense contractors in Kuwait, said they wandered across the border inadvertently. But Iraq said they may have been inside Iraq for espionage purposes. They were convicted of illegal entry March 25 by a Baghdad court and sentenced to eight years' imprisonment.

Help coalition reduce waste by recycling

The catchwords for this generation are: Reduce, Reuse, Recycle. The Howard County Coalition for the Environment is putting that slogan to good use on the first Saturday of each month with a recycling drive.

The coalition collects smashed and clean steel and aluminum, boxed, bagged or bundled newspaper, and flattened corrugated cardboard from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the parking lot of the Big Spring Herald.

important.

It's our world. As it stands, there is no other we can turn to. Give the scientist the time, maybe they will find another world where we can live, but that's still science fiction, not science fact.

Recycling is a good way to keep our city clean, to extend the life of our landfill, to do our part to ensure a good world for our children and our future.

Jury system blind about justice

This hasn't been a very good period for those who believe that there is something sacred about the American jury system.

In the O.J. Simpson trial, another juror has been tossed out for violating the judge's instructions on how they should behave.

At the rate jurors are being replaced, Judge Lance Ito could run out of warm bodies before the trial is over, and they'll have to start over again. If that happens, even animal lovers will begin hating the legendary barking dog.

Also in California, another juror just blew his cork when he learned that jurors in the trial of Heidi Fleiss, the enterprising young woman who provided horny guys with female companions, made up their own rules.

To get the case over and go home - the primary goal of most juries - some of the Fleiss jurors have admitted swapping votes and voting guilty when they thought Fleiss was innocent. So this trial might have to be repeated.

But the most educational insight into how juries operate was provided in Chicago by a juror in the original trial of three men for the rape-murder of Jeanine Nicarico, a Chicago-area child.

Two of the men, Rolando Cruz and Alejandro Hernandez, were convicted and sentenced to die. The jury couldn't decide on the third man, and charges against him were dropped.

After 12 years, the case is still bouncing around the courts. It's a legal mess, and third trials are going to be held.

And after 12 years, this is what the juror had to say about his deliberations in a message he posted on a computer bulletin board where a discussion of the case was being held:

"My group was the first to find two of the three guilty. ... I was never totally satisfied (even while we were deliberating) that Cruz and Hernandez were the culprits.

"All I could hope for was that the truth would eventually come out during the appeal process, because even though I voted to convict the two, I was far from convinced that Cruz and Hernandez were really guilty and I knew I would never have voted to give them the death penalty based on the 'evidence' heard at the time.

"Most of the jurors felt that the authorities would not have arrested the three if they did not commit the crime. Most of the jurors were convinced of the guilt before the trial started and the procedure was a mere formality.

"The first day of the trial ... the person who was ultimately selected as jury foreman said, 'Well, these guys are here, so they must be guilty of something.'

"... If I had more guts, I would have followed what I really believed, which was that there was not enough quality evidence to send Cruz and Hernandez to the electric chair.

"... I voted to convict only because I did not want to be the only juror who would hold out. Actually there might have been two or three more jurors ... who were not convinced. However, the pressure of the situation was something that is hard to describe.

"During the course of the trial, I kept thinking that it would end in a 'Perry Mason' type of ending, where the guilty person would just come forward and admit to the crime.

"When this did not happen, I got sick to my stomach. 'Again, I felt I could live with myself knowing that sooner or later the real person or persons would be found, and I rationalized this in my decision-making process."

So here we have a man who flatly admits voting to convict two men he thought had not been proved guilty.

Why?

"I live in DuPage County, have a family in the county, and I felt I did not want to be the person who would go down in history as the one who let ... murderers go free. I really felt that the appeal process would ultimately get to the truth."

If that shocks you, it shouldn't. Most trial lawyers will tell you this kind of wishy-washy thinking goes on in most juries. The lawyers don't mind. They don't want jurors who are a threat to think clearly and with total fairness. They prefer people who can be swayed and prodded.

That's why jury selection is often a demonstration in the dumbing down of the legal system. Anyone with an impressive education, a high I.Q. or a professional job is usually given the boot. Just the other day, a high-ranking White House official was called for jury duty. The lawyers rejected her.

And that's why people often get angry at the wrong people when they read about a woman being awarded more than $1 million because she had spilled her hot coffee on her lap. It was a jury of allegedly average people who decided that a person is not responsible for her coffee and her lap.

Back in the simpler times when a jury of farm neighbors would decide on which pig farmer owned a stray pig, the jury system might have worked.

But today, with civil and criminal trials becoming more complex, jurors can't absorb all the information. Especially when the brightest people are shunned.

There has to be a better system. But I can say that because I'm not a lawyer with a high regard for stupidity.

COMIC STRIP CLASSICS

Postmaster General Marvin Runyon today unveiled 20 designs of 32-cent comic strip classic stamps. The stamps include Dick Tracy, Popeye and Brenda Starr.

Postal Service to honor classic comics with stamp

WASHINGTON (AP) - From the Yellow Kid to the Katzenjammer Kids to Brenda Starr, the funny pages are many Americans' first encounter with the newspaper. Soon, those colorful memories will take up residence on their mail.

The U.S. Postal Service announced today it would produce a new set of 20 32-cent stamps featuring some of the most popular, original and classic comic strips.

The stamps help celebrate the 100th anniversary of the appearance of the Yellow Kid in the New York World newspaper, the first color feature comic.

The new issues are the latest "pop" culture stamps to be announced, joining Elvis Presley, other rock 'n' roll singers and Marilyn Monroe among other popular subjects that are expected to generate large sales to people who save stamps - a high-profit area for the post office.

Mike Kilian, who writes "Dick Tracy," said he thinks the decision to issue comic-strip stamps was probably driven by the profit motive, but added that his hero deserves a stamp

"every bit as much as Elvis."

"The make-believe characters on the comic strips have helped us keep our sanity for the last 100 years in a world that is all too real and often scary," commented Dean Young, who draws "Blondie."

Chester Gould started "Dick Tracy" as a topical satire and kept moving with the times, Kilian said. The strip is still trying to do that with stories on hate crimes, computer hackers and white-collar crime.

On Friday, the Library of Congress joins the fun, opening a new exhibit: "Featuring the Funnies: 100 Years of the Comic Strip."

"Hogan's Alley" in the New York World became the first comic strip in 1895, drawn by R.F. Outcault and featuring Mickey Dugan, a gap-toothed boy in a smudged nightshirt.

Dugan was the Bart Simpson of his day, reports Stefan Kanfer in the magazine Civilization. After experiments in various colors for his shirt, the Yellow Kid was born - a youngster who eventually gave his name to a rather shoddy form of journalism.

The lad became so popular that the New York Journal and World wound up in a bidding war for Outcault's services. After a court battle the Kid ran in both papers at the same time, with Outcault using the title "McFadden's Flats" in the Journal while another artist drew "Hogan's Alley" for the World.

Rudolph Dirks' "Katzenjammer Kids" went through a similar phase when Dirks left the Journal for more money. He set up shop under the name "Captain and the Kids" while another artist took over his old title.

"Katzenjammer Kids," launched in 1897, is the oldest strip still in syndication and pioneered the use of sequential panels and balloons for dialogue.

"Little Nemo in Slumberland" has been called an art nouveau masterpiece. The strip, which ended in 1927, was a little boy's weekly trip to dreamland, and featured surrealistic nonsense and biting social criticism.

"Bringing Up Father," featuring Jiggs and Maggie and launched in 1913, is part of the new stamp set, as is "Krazy Kat."

'Stroke Belt' snaps its buckle

DALLAS (AP) - Now that new research has shown the South no longer is the nation's "Stroke Belt," researchers want to determine the reason for the phenomenon.

For decades, Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas showed the densest concentration of areas reporting fatal strokes.

But the May issue of the American Heart Association journal Stroke contains research that shows that as stroke mortality rates have declined nationwide, the Stroke Belt has disintegrated.

Two leading neurologists - Dr. Michael Moskowitz and Dr. Lewis Caplan - said they are not surprised by the findings and are encouraged that the researchers now plan to search for the patterns behind the geographical trends.

"The cluster may have disappeared, but stroke is still the No. 3 cause of death in the nation," said Moskowitz, a neurology professor at Boston's Harvard School of Medicine. "The problem is a major one, just no more major (in the Southeast) than anywhere else."

Caplan speculated that better education, health care and economic development contributed to the death of the Stroke Belt.

"People are becoming far more aware of those factors that can lead to stroke," said Caplan, neurology chairman at the Tufts University New England Medical Center in Boston.

The new study was based on two years of computer analysis of all death certificates filed nationwide from 1962 to 1988. Comparisons were drawn from year to year, region to region and people to people.

For example, for black women, 72 percent of the Stroke Belt regions were among the riskiest 20 percent nationwide in 1962.

The patterns were similar for other ethnic and gender groups. The explanation is anybody's guess, the top researcher said.

"There are no clear and easy answers to that," said Michele Casper, an epidemiologist with the national Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta. "They (high-risk individuals) may be moving out the area. Lower stroke risk people may be moving into the area. The findings come together in a whole constellation of issues," she said Wednesday.

Since the 1950s, researchers had found high stroke-related death rates to be most densely concentrated in the Southeast, between the Appalachians and the Atlantic.

Theories had varied on the reasons, from the inadequate levels of the trace element selenium in the soil to soft water and the muggy climate.

But since the trends were similar for black and white men and women in the Southeast, no dietary or socioeconomic conclusions have ever been drawn for the Stroke Belt's existence, Dr. Casper said.

There still haven't been conclusions made. But the study raises new questions, she said.

The most compelling is: What happened to the Stroke Belt? Researchers suggest the economic development of the South during the 1970s and '80s helped.

'It's almost over'

Weary rescuers close to ending search for Oklahoma bombing victims

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Bone-weary after a frustrating two weeks of work, crews are close to ending the search for bodies in the ruins of the bombed federal building.

When they leave, relatives of the victims will be allowed to have a last, private remembrance at the site.

"It's almost over," said police Sgt. Lynn McCumber, one of just a half-dozen workers who dug through rubble Wednesday. They found the body of two adults and one young child Wednesday, bringing the death toll to 146.

About 25 people, including three infants, were missing today.

Investigators continued to pursue thousands of tips in the deadliest terrorist attack in this country, but the hunt for a second bombing suspect, John Doe 2, remained unsuccessful.

Authorities were trying to enhance the image of a pickup truck license plate captured on videotape by a camera in the car of the state trooper who arrested bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh. The Dallas Morning News reported. The truck

All those Amorons had to do ... was call that room. ... Had me walk outside the room, have Gary walk out there and they could have restrained us. Instead, we got shotguns staring us in the face. We haven't done anything, you know. And I don't feel, I don't feel too good about this.

Robert Jacks pulled over when McVeigh was stopped for a traffic violation, the paper said. Authorities released two drifters whose travels had seemed to connect them to McVeigh, the only person charged so far. Gary Alan Land and Robert Jacks were taken into custody Tuesday in a dawn raid on a Missouri motel, then released 18 hours later.

Jacks, 60, initially told reporters he didn't blame the FBI, but later criticized the agency in a television interview.

"All those morons had to do ... was call that room. ... Had me walk outside the room, have Gary walk out there and they could have restrained us.

"Instead, we got shotguns staring us in the face. We haven't done anything, you know. And I don't feel, I don't feel too good about this," he told ABC News.

Asked why his attitude had changed, Jacks said, "You know the more I got to thinking about this ... I shouldn't as a citizen have guns pointed at me. They had no proper evidence, they had no type of an arrest warrant. ... I hadn't done nothing."

The men confirmed that they have been subpoenaed to testify before a federal grand jury hearing evidence at Tinker Air Force base outside Oklahoma City.

Foster fires back; confirmation chances improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Henry Foster's chances of becoming surgeon general seem to be rising rapidly following a two-day confirmation hearing at which he bluntly confronted critics' charges on subjects such as abortion and the sterilization of retarded women.

By the end of the hearing, a moderate Republican, Sen. James Jeffords of Vermont, had declared his support — convinced that his concerns about Foster had been addressed.

Senate Labor and Human Resources Chairwoman Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., who has not announced how she'll vote, said she thought Foster deserved a vote on the Senate floor — despite Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole's earlier suggestions that he might stand in the way.

"I certainly will want to see this nomination go to the floor," Kassebaum said. "There probably are votes to overcome a filibuster, because my guess is that most people at that juncture would feel there should be a vote."

But she hedged slightly, saying she hadn't yet spoken with Dole, R-Kan., and shouldn't forecast his plans.

The committee of nine Republicans and seven Democrats is expected to vote on Foster within three weeks. It has four options: to send the nomination to the floor with a favorable recommendation, with an unfavorable recommendation or with no recommendation, or to send the nomination back to the president, effectively killing it.

Foster's nomination raised the ire of conservative groups and lawmakers soon after President Clinton put his name forward to replace Dr. Joycelyn Elders, whom Clinton fired. Recently, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a Republican presidential candidate, threatened to filibuster.

The first problem was the fact that Foster had performed abortions. The second was that he and the White House gave different answers about how many.

On Tuesday and Wednesday before the Senate committee, Foster explained that he initially relied on memory to say how many abortions he had performed, and later checked his records to determine that he had been the physician of record on 38 cases, some of which may have been done by residents.

On other key issues of concern: —He repeatedly denied allegations that he had been informed before 1972 of a government study in Tuskegee, Ala., in which poor black men with syphilis were left untreated.

—He asserted that it was within the norms of medical practice when he performed hysterectomies on severely retarded women in the 1960s and 1970s. "I still believe there are unresolved questions, and a lot of it comes down to Dr. Foster's words versus a number of documents that have been submitted to the committee, particularly in reference to the syphilis experiment," said Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind.

After Jefford's announcement, which portends an 8-8 vote, supporters were looking to Kassebaum and Sen. Bill Frist, a fellow Tennessean and doctor, as the best Republican bets for a Foster victory on the panel.

Both were under pressure to vote against Foster.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Senate OKs lawsuit bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — After eight days of debate and votes on scores of amendments aimed at overhauling the nation's civil legal system, the Senate is moving toward a possible final vote on the contentious legislation.

The senators on Wednesday narrowly approved a wide-ranging proposal by Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., to limit punitive damage awards in all civil lawsuits in federal and state courts.

Opponents said Dole's provision, which resembles a House version passed in March, could scuttle Senate passage of the overall product-liability bill written by Sens. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., and Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va. Some senators have been pushing proposals to revamp faulty-product laws for 13 years.

Pressure mounts on prosecutors

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — With President Clinton demanding the death penalty for the bombers of the federal building, government prosecutors are under tremendous pressure not to make any mistakes.

Although some evidence may tie brothers James and Terry Nichols to the attack, legal experts say there is no hurry to charge them as long as they remain in jail.

The government doesn't want to embarrass itself by filing charges that won't stick or making deals with defendants who turn out to play bigger roles than initially believed, lawyers say.

"In a case like this the government isn't going to jump out and do anything until it's got its ducks in order," said Joseph J. Aronica, a former federal prosecutor who won more than 60 convictions in a huge bribery and conspiracy probe of defense contractors.

Murdoch clears FCC hurdle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rupert Murdoch appears to have emerged a winner in his battle with federal regulators to preserve a Fox Television network that brought the world "The Simpsons" and "Married With Children," sources say.

The Federal Communications Commission today plans to rule that Fox did not mislead the commission a decade ago about its ownership structure when seeking permission to acquire six TV stations that made up the backbone of the network, according to FCC officials who spoke Wednesday only on condition of anonymity.

Hormone may help AIDS-related condition

NEW YORK (AP) — A hormone found in pregnant women may be useful for treating Kaposi's sarcoma, an AIDS-related condition that causes disfiguring skin lesions.

The hormone killed Kaposi's sarcoma cells in the laboratory, and in mice it shrank tumors caused by injections of Kaposi's sarcoma cells, Dr. Robert Gallo said.

Gallo, chief of the Laboratory of Tumor Cell Biology at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., reports a series of experiments in Thursday's issue of the journal Nature with colleague Dr. Yanto Lunardi-Iskandar and others at the National Institutes of Health and elsewhere.

Kaposi's sarcoma, once seen mainly in elderly men, now appears most frequently in homosexual men infected with the AIDS virus, affecting more than 30 percent of them in the United States. Researchers don't know why gay men are more likely to get Kaposi's.

Senate rejects changes to handgun legislation

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislation to allow Texans to carry concealed guns is ricocheting toward a conference committee after the Senate rejected numerous changes made by the House.

In voting Wednesday to send the bill to a special negotiating panel to resolve those differences, senators also overwhelmingly rejected a move to require a voter referendum on the question.

"You do not have arbitrary popularity votes on fundamental elements of the U.S. and Texas constitutions," said Sen. Jerry Patterson, R-Pasadena, the bill's author.

He called the ballot requirement added by the House "a cruel hoax on the voters." The referendum would not affect the bill's implementation and would be held on Nov. 7, even though the new law is scheduled to take effect on Sept. 1 if approved by the Legislature.

The vote would be "kind of a silly, nonbinding referendum that would occur two months after the effective date of the bill," Patterson said.

"The voters are of the opinion that what was added in the House gives them a say in the matter, and it doesn't," he said. "I don't want to be a part of having that egg on my face."

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, sought to order Senate negotiators to agree to the voter referendum.

"There's been an impression that everybody thinks it's a good idea (to allow concealed guns). It isn't," Leedom said.

"If we trust the people, even if (a referendum) doesn't bind us at that moment, it gives us direction for the future," he said.

But the Senate disagreed, defeating his motion 23-8.

An effort to delay the bill's effective date until after a referendum also failed.

In addition, senators rejected a bid by Sen. Mario Gallegos, D-Houston, to accept a House proposal requiring 15 to 30 hours of training before obtaining a permit. The Senate bill called for 10 to 15 hours, and Patterson said the cost of extra instruction "makes this a rich man's privilege."

Patterson and four other senators will serve on the negotiating committee.

Under the pending legislation, Texans would be eligible for a concealed handgun permit if they meet certain requirements, including: being a legal resident for the six months preceding their application; age 21 or older; have never been convicted of a felony; and not chemically dependent or of unsound mind.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Means testing plan dusted off

WASHINGTON (AP) — People who earn more than $100,000 from off-farm activities will have to make do without government farm payments, if the Clinton administration has its way.

Although no formal announcement has been made, Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said Wednesday he expects an income cap to be part of the administration's recommendations next week for the 1995 farm bill.

If the proposal sounds familiar, it should. Clinton tried it in 1993. So did the Republican Bush administration the year before and bipartisan farm program critics pushed it during the 1990 farm bill debate.

D.A. misconduct suspected in trial

KOUNTZE (AP) — A judge has granted a defense attorney a five-week delay in a capital murder trial so he can pursue evidence of misconduct by Hardin County District Attorney R.F. Horka.

The trial of Robble Bourque in the 1985 shooting death of John Guillory Jr., 42, of Lumberton was scheduled to begin June 5. But state District Judge Britt Plunk on Wednesday delayed the trial to July 11.

Defense attorney Joseph C. Hawthorn of Beaumont argued that based upon an FBI investigation of Horka's relationship with informant Eric Marroquin, a key witness against Bourque, he plans to seek to have all charges dropped against his client.

House to take up education bill

AUSTIN (AP) — More than 400 amendments awaited consideration by House lawmakers today as they turned their attention to an education overhaul bill that would loosen state control over local school districts.

Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, has blocked out three days for the House to debate the measure. He earlier sent a memo to lawmakers detailing deadlines that must be met so the education bill can be completed before the regular session ends on May 29.

"As you can see from the schedule, there remains a great deal of work to be done in very little time," he said.

TEA drawn into school battle

EL PASO (AP) — The Texas Education Agency has again been pulled into a management dispute involving the El Paso school district.

TEA auditors visited the El Paso Independent School District this week to intervene in a quarrel fueled by a trustee's accusations that the superintendent has spent thousands on expensive dinners and other questionable expenses.

This is in addition to an even older complaint that board members are interfering with school administrators, a contentious issue that surfaced last year and forced the agency to step in to mediate.

James Vasquez, a top TEA administrator who made the trip, said that of the approximately 300 annual complaints from from the state's 1,000 districts, about 10 to 15 percent are related to governance problems in El Paso.

"It seems disproportional," Vasquez said.

Whistleblower says he will reject $5 million settlement

AUSTIN (AP) — A former state employee who was fired after reporting alleged wrongdoing at his agency would receive a $5 million settlement under legislation approved by a House committee.

But George Green, who has been battling since 1991 to collect a $13.5 million court judgment awarded to him, condemned the offer and said he would not accept.

"I'm not going to give up. I'm not going to accept this injustice," Green said. "I ask nothing more than what everybody else deserves, which is fair and equitable treatment under the law."

The Texas Department of Human Services fired Green, 47, in December 1989 from his $36,000-a-year safety officer job overseeing renovation projects.

His dismissal came after he told supervisors about alleged kickbacks and other violations involving agency contracts, then threatened to report the problems to outside authorities.

Green sued the agency under the Texas Whistleblower Act, which prohibits a state agency from terminating an employee for reporting violations to law enforcement agencies.

In 1991, a Travis County jury ordered the state to pay Green $13.5 million in damages. The Texas Supreme Court upheld the award in 1994, but the state has yet to pay.

Green contends he is now owed $19 million, due to interest.

Under the bill approved Wednesday by the House Appropriations Committee, Green would get about $5 million.

Committee Chairman Rob Junell, D-San Angelo, said the amount includes the $3.6 million Green was awarded in actual damages, plus interest.

"I think this is more than fair," Junell said. "The Supreme Court decided that it is up to the Legislature to appropriate whatever sum it finds is applicable, and that's what we're doing."

Rockets pushed to the brink

HOUSTON (AP) — Karl Malone is not satisfied with the way he played and neither is Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich.

Malone expected more, Tomjanovich hoped for less Wednesday night after Malone scored 32 points, 21 in the second half, and got 19 rebounds in leading Utah to a 95-82 victory and a 2-1 lead in their first-round playoff series.

The victory left the Rockets, defending NBA champions, one loss from being eliminated from the playoffs.

"I made some baskets, but I didn't go a good job of reading," Malone said. "I didn't change anything for this game. I slept the same and I ate the same. It's just about adjusting and we were able to do that tonight."

The Jazz lost to the Rockets in last season's Western Conference finals, but they could move to the second round with a victory in The Summit on Friday night. A fifth game, if necessary, would be in Salt Lake City on Sunday.

John Stockton had 11 points and 13 assists for Utah and Jeff Hornacek and David Benoit added 14 points each, with Benoit pulling down 10 rebounds.

Hakeem Olajuwon led the Rockets with 30 points and 10 rebounds and Kenny Smith, after a slow start, scored 20 points and was a key figure in a second-half charge.

The Rockets weren't able to show the firepower they displayed in Saturday's 140-126 victory in Game 2, when they shot 60 percent for the game. They finished at 41 percent Wednesday night.

Houston Rocket coach Rudy Tomjanovich, left, disputes an out-of-bounds call against guard Sam Cassell (10) Wednesday. Utah beat Houston 95-82 to take a 2-1 lead in the first-round NBA playoff series.

played in Saturday's 140-126 victory in Game 2, when they shot 60 percent for the game. They finished at 41 percent Wednesday night.

"We had the shots, but we just missed them," Robert Horry said. "I really don't feel there is any extra pressure on the next game. We just have to be prepared and come out and be focused. Our confidence is always there."

A boring first half turned exciting in the third quarter when the Jazz started fast and built a 69-54 lead with 3:28 to go in the quarter. Houston then used a 10-1 spurt to cut their deficit to 90-86 to start the final period. Houston trailed 79-74 with 7:56 left in the game, then went cold and scored only two points over the final 5:52.

After sinking 19 3-point baskets in Game 2, the Rockets managed 7 of 17, while the Jazz hit 5 of 8 from 3-point range, led by Benoit, who was 3-for-4. The Jazz were limited to 58 percent shooting from the line.

"You're not going to have a chance to win if you don't play defense," Jazz coach Jerry Sloan said. "We played good defense at key times and gave ourselves a good chance to win. I thought we were a lot more active defensively."

Relay holds youth, talent in surplus

The Big Spring girls' track team saved its loudest statement for last in San Angelo.

Big Spring already had a fine showing going at the Region 1-4A track meet Saturday, but the Lady Steers finished with a fabulous run in the 1,600-meter relay. The first three legs - freshmen Rita Casillas, Mari Carnero and Keesha Lott - built a huge lead for sophomore anchor leg Kandi Cline. Cline maintained the edge.

"We're still really surprised we're going to state," Cline said Wednesday following practice, "but we've lowered our times a lot."

The team flew the track in a

All roads lead to season-best time of 4 minutes and 1.17 seconds, 1.74 seconds ahead of runner-up Cedar Hill.

What can the team do before state to lower that time?

"There's a lot more at stake now," Casillas said. "Each of us is going to have to take one-and-a-half seconds off our times, maybe. We can get it, if we just set our minds to it."

"I'm just going to imagine the track like it's at Monahans, because that's where I had my best time," Carnero said.

Carnero is referring to the district meet, where the team won with a time of 4:13.4. The team's times during the year weren't much better than that until the regional qualifiers meet April 21 in Odessa. That meet brought a breakthrough time of 4:02.68.

"Just the competition we had made us better," Lott said. "The practice meet before regionals in Odessa, that did a lot for us."

This time, there won't be a practice meet. The prescription is rest.

"We're pretty much doing the same workouts," Cline said. "Coach Kennedy just lowered them a little bit to give us some rest."

Cline has come back from a week-long battle with bronchitis, a condition made worse by her asthma. She's over that, and so is the team that could make noise in Austin.

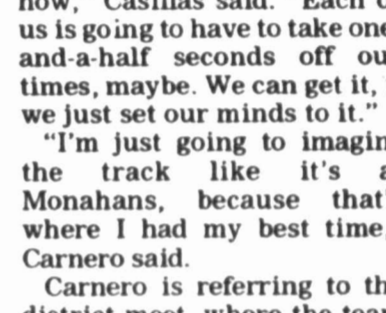

"We're not going to lose anyone next year," Cline said. "Maybe we can win state."

Jeremy Stallings, sophomore from Stanton, running for the University of Florida, ran the 800-meter leg on the Gators' distance medley relay team at the Penn Relays in Philadelphia Saturday.

Stallings' split was 1:47.9 as the Gators finished fifth out of 30 teams in a time of 9:36. Arkansas won the Relay in a world-best time of 9:23.

Stallings will run at the Twilight Invitational on Sunday at the University of Florida.

Same story: M's beat Rangers, Astros win

ARLINGTON (AP) — There's no place like The Ballpark in Arlington for the Seattle Mariners.

They swept a three-game series in the home of the Texas Rangers with a 5-1 victory Wednesday night as Chris Bosio scattered four hits and Edgar Martinez delivered a two-run double.

Seattle is 6-1, matching the franchise's best record after seven games by the 1984 and 1985 teams. Texas is now 1-12 in its last 13 games against Seattle. Texas has dropped eight consecutive games to Seattle at The Ballpark.

A crowd of 17,375 fans, smallest in the two-year history of the new stadium, watched the game. Bosio (2-0) lasted 5 1-3 innings, giving up only four hits and walking two. The Rangers only run off Bosio came on a 408-foot homer by rookie Benji Gil in the third inning.

Reliever Jeff Nelson got two outs in the sixth, Bill Risley pitched 1 2-3 innings and Bobby Ayala got the final four outs.

The Mariners roughed up Roger Pavlik (0-1) for four runs in the first. Darren Bragg singled, Joey Cora walked and Ken Griffey Jr. beat out an infield single, loading the bases. Jay Buhner got a broken-bat single to left to score one run, and Martinez doubled in two more before Tino Martinez scored a fourth on a sacrifice fly.

Pavlik left after seven innings. He yielded four runs on 10 hits.

Astros 11, Cubs 2

CHICAGO (AP) — When a starting pitcher and five relievers combine to throw 188 pitches, you know the team's in trouble.

"That's a lot of pitches," Cubs catcher Rick Wilkins said after the Houston Astros rocked Chicago 11-2 Wednesday.

The Astros hit just about whatever they wanted to in completing a two-game sweep. They had 14 hits, including homers by Luis Gonzalez, Craig Shipley and Craig Biggio, who was hitting .095.

"We came here and we were not swinging the bats well, but we got going. This is the kind of place where some of our guys like to hit," Houston manager Terry Collins said.

Sims isn't just happy to be there

By STEVE REAGAN

FORSAN — As far as Shane Sims is concerned, this "just happy to be here" stuff is for the birds.

Don't get Sims wrong — he's thrilled to be going back to the state tennis meet in Austin May 12. It's just that he really won't be happy unless he comes back with a medal this time.

The Forsan High School senior made his first trip to Austin last year and was ousted in the first round.

"Last year, I was just glad to get there," he said. "This year, I want to bring back a medal. Last year, I was scared. Hopefully, I won't be quite as nervous this time."

Sims' confidence has been bolstered by a few factors: He's a year older, he's going to state as the regional champion instead of the runner-up, he knows what to expect in Austin and his all-around game has improved.

Shane Sims, shown above at practice Wednesday, is making his second appearance in the state tennis finals. He is the Region 1-2A boys' singles' champion.

Forsan tennis coach Brian Stringer adds one more thing to the list.

"Last year, he went as a runner-up in Class 1A. This year, he's going as the regional champ in Class 2A," Stringer said. "That's equally impressive — he's stepped up a conference and he still did better at regionals."

Sims stands a good chance to medal down in Austin. As a regional champion, he's guaranteed at least one match against a regional runner-up. One win puts him into the semifinals and guarantees him a medal.

Stringer, for one, thinks Sims can do better than just medal.

"I think he can definitely medal. Why go down there and not have any hardware to show for it?" Stringer said. "I also feel confident that he can make the finals, and if he gets that far, why not win it?"

Sims, a serve-and-volley power player, won regional with a 6-1, 1-6, 6-1 win in the finals over Michael Paul Martinez of Stanton, who's more of a ground-stroke player. Despite his preference for playing near the net, Sims feels confident he can adjust his style to match any opponent.

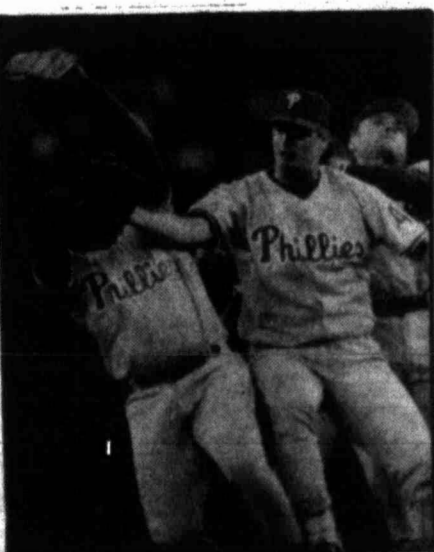

"You have to be able to do everything to get out of district and regional," Sims said. "Obviously, I would like to come to the net ... but I play an awkward game. I don't necessarily have to come into the net on my serve every time."

Regardless of the style he has to play, Sims knows he's in for some tough matches next week.

Sims said: "Everyone at state is going to be good." Including the guy from Forsan.

IN SEARCH OF...
Little League results

Are you trying to say you don't want your children's names in the paper?

Maybe you are. The Herald has asked for Little League results. All youth baseball and softball results are welcome - we'll print them in the paper. Still, few people take us up on our offer, so here's another gentle reminder. The more children appear in the paper, the better the paper is.

It's simple. Children read papers when they think their names or names of friends will be there. In a world where reading a book is often a lost art, wouldn't it be nice to have a child here and there flipping through the pages of a newspaper?

Some people clip their names out of the paper and save the articles in scrapbooks. For years. And years.

Till the paper turns yellow. We'd like to make that possible, and we can't make it much simpler. We have results forms here at the Herald. Drop by, make some copies if you like, complete them after each game and send them back. Drop completed forms in our drop box on the corner of Eighth and Scurry streets, or walk in and leave them with the sports department.

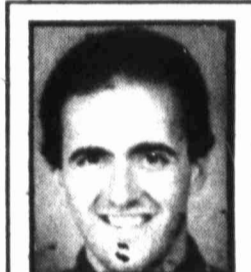

Heck, you can make your own form - it's not too tough. Just let us know the league you're reporting from, the teams, the score, top hitters, defensive stars, winning pitcher and a number where we can contact you if we have any questions. If you have any questions now, call the Herald sports department at 263-7331.

Try to keep it as short as you can - we reserve full play-by-play for high school and junior college sports. Write on just one side of the paper, cause we don't turn the forms over to see if anything's on the back. And, most of all, INCLUDE LAST NAMES!

We've received forms with reports like this: "Lions 4, Bears 3. Lions singles by Bobby, Joey, Timmy, Jake and Blake. Doubles by Johnny, Jeffrey and Tommy."

That one didn't get printed. We couldn't call the coach to get the last names, because no phone number was on the form. We had no idea where it came from.

If you don't like putting the names of Little Leaguers in the paper, that's fine. Don't send us anything. If you want your team's games in the Herald, though, please realize you're welcome and encouraged to give us the details of your game. Tell other coaches this opportunity is available. You can never have enough children's names in the paper.

Area bands become UIL sweeps winners

Stanton gets A in class AA...

By MARY McATEER

Stanton High School's band achieved sweepstakes ranking in UIL Class AA competition April 6 in Crane, with band members receiving first division ratings from all judges for their performance on stage and sight reading, and one first division rating in marching competition.

Eleven students received first division ratings in solo and ensemble performance, and will compete in the State Solo and Ensemble Contest May 29 in San Marcos. Four band members going to the state competition are All-State Players.

Seventy-three band members will travel to Austin May 5 to participate in the state contest May 6, competing for the State Wind Ensemble Trophy, according to Band Director Robert Tucker.

Tucker, completing his first season as Stanton High band director after four years as middle school and assistant director, says he and assistant director Kirke McKenzie are pleased with the band's performance and that the students have every reason to be proud of their achievement.

Band member Stacy Cole played his alto saxophone in performance with the Big Spring Symphony at the Symphony's season finale Saturday, April 29.

Goliad band wins at UIL

It may not be Publisher's Clearing House, but it's sweepstakes just the same

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

For the first time in Goliad Middle School's history, the seventh grade honor band has won a sweepstakes award at the University Interscholastic League competition.

The UIL concert and sight reading contest consists of the band playing three selections on stage then another selection they have never seen, thus playing it by sight for the first time.

In order to win a sweepstakes, the three judges must award the band all first division ratings in both the concert and sight reading contests.

During the sight reading portion, the band director is given seven minutes to explain the music to the students but they are not allowed to play it.

Brian Weatherman is the band director at Goliad and this is his first year at the school and says he is very proud of his students.

Steve Hankins, head band director for BSISD, agrees. "Yours was the only sweepstakes given to any seventh grade band at the contest. Our greatest competition, the Monahans band, earned a division three on the stage, which should tell you straight away the judge's regard for the strength of your performance," commented Hankins in a letter to Weatherman.

Only 17 percent of bands earn a sweepstakes distinction at UIL contests and only 36 percent of the state's band directors can say they have received this award.

Some comments from the judges included Cathy Teltschik from Leander who said, "Some nice sounds. Good clarinet and trumpet sounds especially. Great attention to detail, good attacks and most releases together. This is a good group that has been carefully rehearsed. Congratulations!"

Another judge, Danny Morris of Lubbock, added in his comment sheet, "Nice looking group of students. Y'all finger along very well while your director gives instructions! Good! Congratulations to you all and I enjoyed hearing you - wow! The future of the Big Spring band is very bright because of y'all. Keep improving to become your very best."

Goliad's competition included Monahans who received a three in concert and a one in sight reading; Andrews received a two in concert and one in sight reading; Pecos had a four in concert and two in sight reading.

Meanwhile, Runnels Junior High Band did well in competition with a second division in concert and a one in sight reading.

Former Big Spring band director Tommy Fry was one of the judges at the contest and gave the band a one rating in the concert division.

He made the following statements on his comment sheet, "Well rehearsed ensemble. A good musical performance. Nice style and good performance today and very musical."

The other two judges gave the band a division two rating in concert thus the overall rating of two.

The Monahans and Andrews bands received ones in both categories while Fort Stockton received twos in both divisions and Pecos received a four in concert and a three in sight reading.

The local school bands will perform a free concert 7 p.m. May 18 at Goliad Middle School.

COAHOMA BAND

...while Coahoma ends five-year empty streak by winning same honor

By MARY McATEER
Staff Writer

The 71 members of the Coahoma High School Band can attest to the truth of the saying "practice makes perfect." In Hamlin at the UIL Region II band competition for Class AA schools April 26, they were awarded first division marks by all judges in every area of group and individual competition.

"We finally did it," said Band Sweetheart Linda Harmon, a graduating senior. The last time the Coahoma High School Band achieved the Sweepstakes rating was in 1990.

The band, under the direction of John Ivey, consists of students in grades nine through 12.

Asked if they are a concert or marching band, Ivey responded they do it all - marching, concert, ensemble, solo - "you name it."

The band prepared "Zacatecas," "Blue Ridge Saga," and "The Headless Horseman" for their performance in the concert competition. In the sight reading competition, a piece of music was passed out and band members had seven minutes to look through it while the band director coached and offered suggestions. They were then graded on their performance of the piece.

Band members are preparing for a trip to the New Braunfels Concert Festival May 5, 6 and 7. At this point, 27 bands are entered in the competition. The largest is from Santa Fe, N.M., and the two smallest will be Coahoma and Post.

Poster contest winners celebrate 'living waters'

Special to the Herald

"The Living Waters" was the subject of the poster contest conducted by the Soil and Water Conservation District for Howard County school children in the fourth through the sixth grades.

Grand Prize winners from participating schools were honored by the district during the Annual Awards Dinner April 25. The Howard SWCD furnishes participating schools every year with educational cartoon booklets and teacher's guides on various topics relating to conservation education.

The booklets help children understand the importance of our natural resources to all living things. Teacher's guides are adaptable to a variety of subject areas and, in addition to science studies, can be effectively used in health, math, social studies, and language arts classes.

Message in a Bottle
Test your reading comprehension by reading the story below and answering the questions that follow.

Girl Who Put Her Message in a Bottle Receives Reply from Micronesia

CHINO, Calif. (AP) — Amy Takeuchi didn't expect much to come of her letter. After all, she put it in a glass bottle and dropped it in the Pacific Ocean. Although the note didn't travel fast, it traveled far.

Nearly three years later, Amy got a reply from a 7-year-old boy in Micronesia in the Western Pacific Ocean. The nation of 607 islands is about 6,000 miles from Dana Point, southwest of Los Angeles, where Amy tossed her bottled message into the surf.

"I was surprised," the 12-year-old said. "I thought no one was ever going to find it, or if someone did, it would only be in Dana Point."

Amy's new pen pal is Loyola Mallamai, whose airmail letter was postmarked March 17.

"Greetings from the island of Mogmog," Loyola wrote with the help of his mother, Jacinta. "I found your letter, which drifted from California or Chino to the island of Song, last weekend."

"I went with my daddy net fishing around the small island, and I found your letter," the first grader wrote.

Loyola also wrote about his siblings and included a picture of himself sitting in his room next to a portable stereo.

"He's a cute little guy," said Amy's mother, Linda.

In September, a 14-year-old New Jersey girl joined five of her friends in attaching their names to a note that was bottled and heaved into the Atlantic Ocean off Cape Hatteras, N.C. Last month, she received a reply from an 11-year-old boy in northwest France.

Use information from the story to answer the following questions:

1. Why do you think Amy Takeuchi tossed a letter into the ocean?
2. Did Takeuchi expect anyone from another country to find her letter?
3. How long was the sealed note floating in the Pacific Ocean? How far did it travel?
4. List two facts about the nation of Micronesia.
5. What was Loyola Mallamai doing when he found the glass bottle?
6. Do you think it was a good idea for the first-grader's mother to help him write his letter? Tell why or why not.
7. According to the article, what information did the boy include in his reply?

- ANSWER KEY:
1. Answers will vary.
 2. Takeuchi didn't expect a reply from another country.
 3. The sealed note floated in the ocean for three years. It traveled about 6,000 miles.
 4. Micronesia is located in the Western Pacific Ocean and consists of 607 islands.
 5. Loyola Mallamai found the bottle while net fishing with his father around the island of Song.
 6. Answers will vary.
 7. The boy wrote about how he found the message, described his family, and sent a picture of himself.

A Painting Folks Love

Whistler's Mother

From Paris, Whistler's Mom is on its way! At the National Gallery it will go on display. For a three-month stay beginning in late May. Because it's in the capital of our U.S.A., You won't have to travel so far away To see a great symbol of Mother's Day!

The painting

One day, more than 100 years ago, a son asked his mom to pose for a portrait. The American painter, James McNeill Whistler, painted a simple picture, using only a few colors. This was his style, which was quite different from what other painters were doing.

The art critics didn't think much of the painting. Some people even laughed.

But as years went by, this outlook changed. Art experts began to comment on how good it was. People everywhere fell in love with it, though some could not exactly explain why it also became a symbol of motherhood.

"Whistler's Mother" (the name we know it by) became the first painting by an American to be purchased by the Louvre. Every year thousands of fans flock to this famous museum in Paris to see it.

The painting is "Arrangement in Gray and Black: Portrait of the Artist's Mother." Whistler named his paintings after the main colors he used. His mother's portrait became so beloved.

Whistler

Anna Whistler was 67 years old when this was painted in 1871. Her son had planned to paint her standing, but she got tired so he had her pose sitting down. At that time he was a struggling artist. He sold the painting for about $800. Anna did not live to see her son become a big success.

Mother Whistler's Son

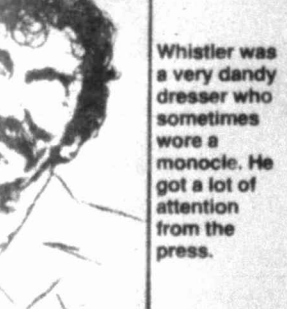

His life
Whistler was born in Lowell, Mass., in 1834. When he was about 10 years old, the family moved to Russia. His father was an engineer who built railroads. James studied drawing while he was there. His father died when James was 15. The family returned to the United States. Later, he went to West Point Military Academy. He was expelled after three years because he spent so little time studying and so much time drawing. When he was 21, he left this country for Paris and later moved to London. He never returned home. However, he always kept his U.S. citizenship. He was poor most of his life. He did not become successful until the last 10 years of his life. He died in 1903 at the age of 69.

His art
While he is known mainly for his portraits, he was skilled in many types of art.

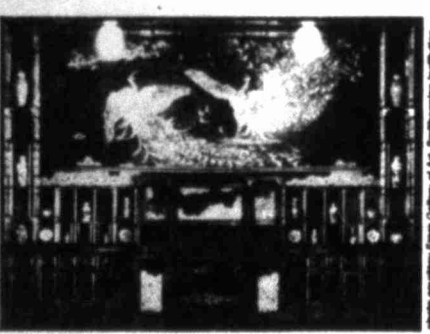

Japanese style: Whistler was one of the first people in Europe to see and appreciate Japanese art. He learned a lot from it. He painted "Princess in the Land of Porcelain" for a friend who collected porcelain, or fine china.

Meet Whistler

Whistler was a very dandy dresser who sometimes wore a monocle. He got a lot of attention from the press.

Decorating: While one of his friends was out of town, he decorated the dining room in the man's house. His friend was very angry because Whistler had not gotten permission to do it. They quarreled, and Whistler never saw the room again. The whole room, called "The Peacock Room," has been moved to the Freer Gallery in Washington, D.C.

To do: Look through your newspaper for ads or stories about Mother's Day.

YOU CAN HELP YOUR HEART

Dear Jason,
My dad just had a bypass operation. What is going on?
Jason Wilcox
Alameda, California

Clogged Plumbing
Check out the drawing of the heart. All those veins and arteries on the outside of the heart carry the blood that the heart muscles need. But they can get clogged with this junk called plaque (PLAK) which contains cholesterol (co-LES-ter-ol). Cholesterol is stuff that's in things from animals, like meat, eggs, milk or cheese.

Over years and years, this stuff can build up and form a plug in the pipes. A bypass is when a surgeon sews in a piece of vein that passes by the clog. It brings in blood from the aorta.

Not everyone gets clogged. (People who are addicted to tobacco do get more clogs.)

the main squeeze

Your heart is a ball of muscles that pumps blood by squeezing. The muscles of the heart need blood to do their work, too. It flows there through veins and arteries that must stay free of clogs. If the heart muscles don't get the blood they need, they get damaged. We call that a heart attack.

Mirror Message: Arteries are the pipes that carry blood away from the heart. Veins are the pipes that carry blood back to the heart. Bypass is a new pipe that goes around a clog in an artery.

Help your child make new friends

By MIA B. MOODY Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO — Remember the shy kid who never talked to anyone on the playground? Or the bossy girl everybody hated?

For most children, friendships usually come naturally, but some children never quite catch on to the art of making friends.

This inability to make friends may stem from personality types, said Kristi SoRelle, a clinical social worker with Waco Psychological Associates. For example, children who talk too much or too loudly often have trouble making friends.

On the opposite end of the spectrum, children who don't talk enough or are socially withdrawn may have trouble making friends. These children are often mistaken for being snobs, said SoRelle.

Parents may really have to watch children who are meek because they may be drawn into negative activities because they don't feel comfortable speaking up for themselves, she said. They may lose their own sense of self in relationships with other people.

Members of the "in crowd" also have certain characteristics, according to Richard Lavoie, executive director of Riverview School in East Sandwich, Mass. They include:

- Children who are friendly and smile and laugh a lot.
- Children who take part in give and take relationships.
- Appearance also plays a role, but children don't have to be the best-looking kid in the class to make friends.

Chickenpox vaccine: Too good to be true?

By JOHN G. CARLTON Thomson News Service

For many parents walking into doctor's offices across the country, it seems almost too good to be true.

One quick needle jab in their child's arm; one moment of discomfort, and junior will become immune to chickenpox.

But as the vaccine, called Varivax, becomes available, it is sparking a debate — not about its effectiveness, but about whether staying off a relatively harmless illness is worth the effort and the cost.

Other doctors, however, are skeptical. They point out that, at $60 or more for a shot in a private doctor's office, the vaccine is expensive.

And although there are few serious side-effects, questions remain about how long patients will remain immune.

"The major difference between this and other kinds of childhood immunizations is that, by and large, (chickenpox) is a benign disease," Chessin says.

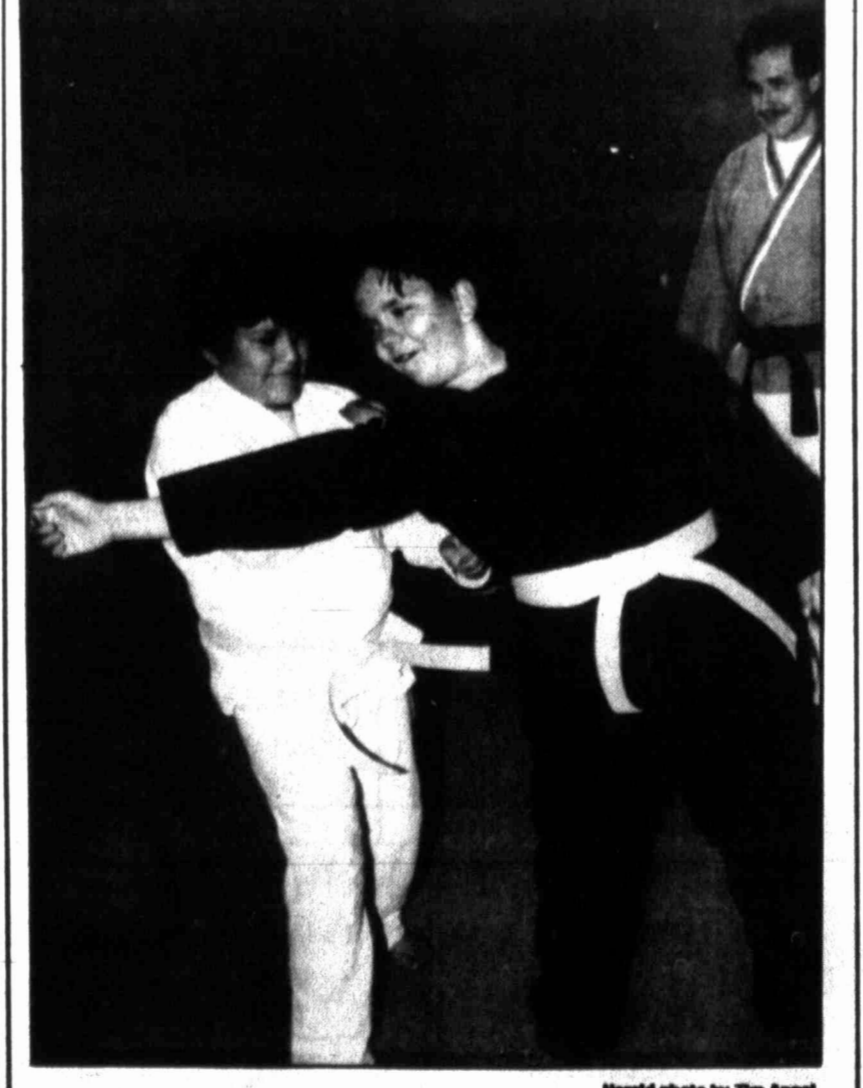

"As you look at the risk versus benefits ratio, it probably tips toward allowing people to contract the illness naturally," instead of giving the vaccine, says Dr. Richard Young, chief of pediatrics at the Hospital of St. Raphael in New Haven, Conn.

Young sees some beneficial uses for the vaccine against the contagious disease whose most pronounced symptom is blister-like eruptions on the skin.

Backers of the new vaccine, Chessin among them, say it will save hundreds of millions

"I would say that an adult who has no (history of chickenpox) should get it," he says.

Choose the right camp

Scrrips Howard News Service

The National Camp Association suggests families planning to send children to camp ask the following questions:

- What is the camp philosophy? Is the focus specialized — on sports, the arts, computers — or does it have a diverse program?
- Is the camp accredited by an overseeing organization or the state?
- How long has the camp director held his or her job? Look for someone who has been in the position for at least four years.
- What percentage of campers return each year? If most kids are not coming back, there are probably good reasons.

Dating is best basis for commitment

DEAR ABBY: It has been said that you don't really know people until you've lived with them, but that's like putting the cart before the horse.

The process of dating is for the purpose of getting to know a person. It is a time for sharing likes and dislikes,

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the person who received an invitation to a wedding, and later learned that the bridal couple had sent out two sets of invitations --one for a church ceremony followed by a dinner, the other for a dance with cake, punch and a cash bar. You agreed with the writer in assuming that the newlyweds wanted as many gifts as possible.

I disagree. I am being married next year, and I come from a very religious family. They'd be upset attending an affair where alcohol is served.

However, my fiancé and his family enjoy alcohol, and they would be very disappointed if alcohol was NOT served. Most of our friends also drink alcohol, so I can understand why a couple might have two receptions.

Here's my solution: I will have two receptions, and I'll leave it to my guests to decide which one they want to attend -- and if I end up with a lot of gifts, all the better for me! --PROBLEM SOLVED IN YORK, PA.

DEAR ABBY: After seeing the items in your column about names that fit occupations, I took a quick glance through the directory of the Veterinary Medical Association. I found veterinarians with these last names: Batz, Beaver, Bird, Catt, Hogg, Lamb and Wolf, to name a few.

As for my own last name, I just tell people it's a good thing I don't work with pigs. --LYNDA BACON, D.V.M., LAWRENCEVILLE, GA.

beliefs, habits and faults, as well as good characteristics.

Each situation, whether a dinner date, movie date, sporting event, picnic, church service, a game of cards, a day at the beach or amusement park, cooking together, presents a different "atmosphere."

The longer the relationship endures, the more opportunities to detect characteristics of honesty (or dishonesty), jealousy, possessiveness, tenderness, cruelty, etc.

All of this can be done without a sexual relationship.

When and if both parties arrive at the conclusion that this is a lasting love -- not lust or infatuation -- then a marriage commitment can be made.

I do not want someone's rejected lover after they have lived together -- and then discovered it was no good. --WE'RE WAITING IN FLORIDA

DEAR WAITING: Congratulations. Obviously, the more exposure, the better the opportunity to observe the potential mate. I am reminded of the old saying, "If you want to know how a man will treat his wife, take careful notice of how he treats his mother and his sister." And the same can be said about women and how they treat the men in their lives.
