WEATHER

About one-half inch rain fell in Friona, Monday afternoon, with considerably heavier fall reported immediately west of town, extending to the county line. The strip affected was rather narrow, however, and extending only to the county line eastward.

This brings total moisture for the last two weeks to five inches for some farms in the Friona vicinity.

Forecast is for continued scattered afternoon and evening showers.

Probably a majority of wells in the county are again in operation this week, with most everyone agreeing that the feed just can't have too much water. Both the grain and cotton crops are looking exceptionally good on irrigated land, and some few fields of dry-land have been saved by the rains.

Subscription Notice

How is your subscription to the Friona Star?

The expiration dates as are on file at the Star office are printed on the address of your paper, with month, day and year listed. For example, if your paper reads 6-14-54, your subscription was paid until June 14, 1954.

ABOUT THAT STUDENT

Is your daughter or son going off to college? The Star can be sent to any student for the 9-months period for a special rate of $1.00! Mighty cheap for a weekly letter from home telling of local sports events, school functions, and the community news of people at home.

Enrollment Is Heaviest in History; Added Classes and Teachers Begin Busy Schedule

With students still enrolling daily, the total to register to date has exceeded that of any term in the history of the Friona schools. High school registrations late yesterday added to 172, an increase from 147 at the beginning of the term last year. Grade school enrollment totaled heavier also, 580 through yesterday.

Principal Dillie Kelley stated that there were at present 30 seniors, 35 juniors, 51 sophomores and 56 freshmen in high school. The added grade school enrollment is being serviced by the addition of new sections in the 2nd and 7th grades, each having three divisions for the first time. With

The high school freshman English class has been expanded to three sections, and there is possibility of additions of other classes. In the high school, 14 of the increased enrollees are transfers from other areas.

More Finances Are Needed for Fair

Some booths still are available for use at the Parmer County Fair, now only one week away on September 13, 14, 15, according to Bill Sheehan, secretary-treasurer of the fair organization. Sheehan also requests that those who had booths last year, and desiring them this year, should contact him immediately, otherwise the booths will be released to other applicants.

Considerable funds also are still needed by the fair to insure adequate awards. Some $450 has been received to date.

A fair folder will be printed next week, ready for distribution to exhibitors and others the week-end before the fair, the officials add.

Funerals Held For Wreck Victims

Funeral services for Peggy Hardage, 17, of Farwell, were held Saturday afternoon. She was victim of a highway wreck Thursday afternoon that also took the life of Merle Woltman of Bovina.

The tragic wreck, second in as many months on the Bovina-Farwell stretch of Highway 60, occurred when Woltman attempted to pass another vehicle in his pick-up, hitting the Hardage car head-on, according to Sheriff Charles Lovelace.

Miss Hardage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hardage of Farwell, was most prominent in school and community affairs. She was Worthy Advisor of the Bovina Chapter of the Rainbow Girls at the time of her death. She was a school beauty at the Farwell High School, and was FFA sweetheart last year. Also she was runner-up last year for the County Farm Bureau Queen honors, and she had entered the competition for the contest this year.

Farm Bureau Report

Phyllis Jean Fairchild, Parmer County Farm Bureau's Queen for 1954, has a busy schedule before her as a result of having been judged number one of thirty-seven very fine contestants. She is to appear with other County Winners on Lubbock's KDUB-TV Thursday, September 9, as guest of District Director Hub King, and Texas Farm Bureau. Then, on September 18, she will participate in the district contest where we hope she will qualify for state participation.

The judges had an extremely tough job, picking three or four of the loveliest from so many comely entries. Clara Jean Jesko, of Lazbuddie, was second; Gay Cass, Friona, third; and LaMona Neff, Friona, fourth.

Mrs. Melba Miller and her assistants did a fine job in securing entries and lining them up. Joyce Miller provided some nice entertainment, though because of some back-stage confusion, she didn't have opportunity to present all of it. The stage was attractively decorated by Mrs. Ralph Smith and Mrs. J. Sanders.

Mr. Paul Revere, seed analyst, Mr. Roberts, seed and field inspector, and an assistant, Mr. Metcalf of the Lubbock, Texas, A. & M. office, spent a day last week in fields of Parmer County. To you certified seed planters, they give this bit of important advice: Always keep the tags from the sacks of seed you plant until harvest time. This is the only way all seed can be made out the source of faulty or impregnated seed when it appears in the field.

Tuesday night, members of the weed committee and County Agent Joe Jones, along with highway department officials, met to discuss methods of curtailing the progress of Dotter, a parasite type weed that has made its appearance in the county. It springs from the ground and leaches its life to other plants, deriving its livelihood from them at the expense of domestic plants.

Today, Thursday, Farm Bureau Directors and some other farmers are in Clayton, New Mexico, guests of the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau. Allan Kline, AFBB President, and an undersecretary of agriculture were to analyze the farm program as it now stands.

FRIONA FARMER COUNTY TEXAS

Monday Morning Musings

Paved Road North Meets Same Monotonous Obstacles

We've been pretty interested in the recent state primaries, and in the national and international politics. Much, much more has been stated on these subjects in side-walk conversations than regarding the pressing needs close at home.

ROADS—for instance:

Been up on Harrison Highway lately and observed the traffic head right on east, by-passing our community and county? And it won't be many days until grain trucks flow along that same route—likely many of them coming from farms and fields considerably nearer to Friona than to the Deaf Smith markets.

What is being done?

For one thing, some factions are very much at work to see that the Friona-Harrison tie-in is postponed as long as possible—as long as we lie asleep and take it.

Only last week a letter originating in the southwest corner of this county, and addressed to the district highway engineer, listed such a road as "Number 5" in a succession of county road projects, yes, away down the line to be considered in some future year.

AND, this letter was written, signed by the county judge and commissioners serving other precincts BEFORE it was discussed with or presented for signature to our own commissioner, Forrest Osborn!

It was brought to Mr. Osborn by a fellow stating he was representing the Farwell Chamber of Commerce.

Now, we don't begrudge any section of the county their present or proposed roads; we welcome every new mile of paving as a decided step toward progress, prosperity and better relationships with our neighbors. But the old story of sidetracking the logical, heavily-travelled, Friona-directed arteries is getting pretty familiar and a bit rancid.

We mark the highway northward to Harrison as the Number 1 need for this community and Farmer County. What about it fellow citizens, business men, farmers and Chamber of Commerce Roads committee?

Communists Direct Literature to Friona

This week we received literature through the mails sent by the Communist Party, postmarked at Beaumont, Texas, but of course conveniently mailed without return address or name of sender.

The pamphlets were printed in New York.

And what propaganda they spread!

The material of course is out and out Communistic right down the line, the same old story but doctored and prepared by clever writers so that just enough logic appears to misdirect and appeal to gullible readers. How we would like to throttle every one of those war-mongers, hate-mongers who distribute such junk.

Here are titles of some of the Communist tracts: New Opportunities in the Fight for Peace and Democracy. Next Steps in the Struggle for Negro Freedom. Thirteen Communist Speak to the Court (speeches of the defendants in the second Foley Square Smith act trial). The Communist Party, and Communists and the People.

We have read and studied one particular pamphlet, "The American Way to Jobs, Peace and Democracy." What hypocrisy is clothed within that name and in the pages of the leaflet!

Using cunning appeals, the Communist writer delves into such subjects as The Looming Depression—The Danger of Hard Times; The Crisis in U. S. Foreign Policy—The Danger of War; The Menace of McCarthyism—The Growing Danger of Fascism; Win Equal Rights for the Negro People, etc.

And note these random quotes, if you think that group is not picking on our weak spots, capitalizing on our desires for both peace and increased higher standards of living:

We advocate "an end to the policy of remilitarizing Germany and Japan. The lessons of World War II prove that a remilitarized Germany is a threat to world peace and to the security of the U. S. there can be no hope for a lasting peace and world disarmament without accepting the principle of peaceful coexistence between the capitalist U. S. A. and the socialist Soviet Union."

"We urge an end to the witch-hunting, the abolition of all Congressional witch-hunt committees, and a halt to the Gestapo-like political activities of the FBI. Political arrests and deportations must cease."

"Labor's right to organize and strike must be protected and all anti-labor legislation such as the infamous Taft-Hartley Act must be repealed and defeated. Strike-breaking by court injunctions or government decrees should be stopped."

"Academic freedom and freedom of inquiry should be restored for America's youth."

"If there were no poll-tax Dixiecrat congressmen in Washington there would be a better chance to get improved social security legislation, price and rent controls, more federal aid to education..."

"We call upon wage workers, working farmers, the Negro people, small business and professional people, upon the women and the youth, to join hands in a common fight against the ravages of economic depression, against the menace of McCarthyism..."

"The Communist Party advocates a peaceful path to socialism in the U. S."

"We deny that the Soviet Union or any country led and ruled by working people threatens our country, or could threaten our country."

From these quotes and the lengthy discussion they presented, we see without doubt that the Communist effort is to divide the American people within, playing one group against another, appealing to those who have suffered some inequalities or hardships, forever holding up the Communist banner as the supreme solution.

We are turning over the literature we received to Mr. John Ben Shepperd. We hope everyone else receiving such trash will do likewise, for only public repudiation of such practices can defeat them.

The American people need no Russian-directed counsel of solving our problems. That alien group does not even understand our way of life. They cannot comprehend you voting for Mr. Yarborough, ourselves supporting Governor Shivers, and after election still being the best of friends. We wouldn't change this privilege for all the Communist "benefits" that could be mustered.

The Man Across the Railroad says an automobile can help you see the world—but it's up to you to decide which world.

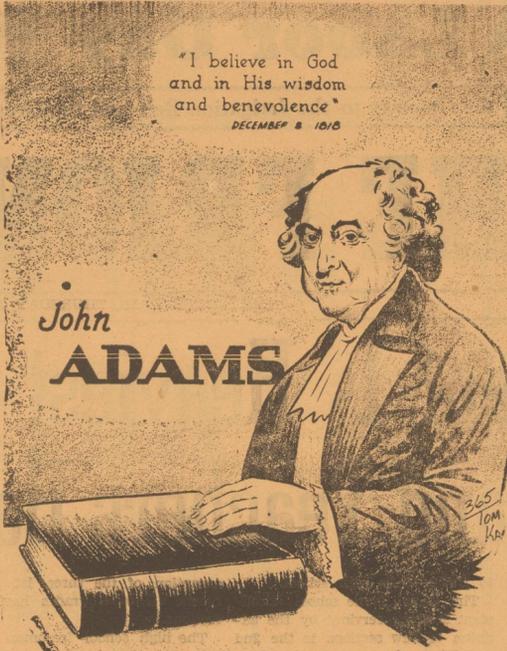

We can't figure who would want this information, but we have it that a dollar was once called a joachinsthaler, there are 378 large waterfalls in Brazil, and Texas is 620 miles wide!

What this world really needs is a system whereby those who climb highest are those who are on the level.

Read Mark 6:7-13.

So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel to you also that are in Rome. (Romans 1:15, A.S.V.)

Although there were already Christians in Rome, the Apostle Paul wanted to go there. He had something to give everywhere because he belonged to Christ. Since Christ had come into the world Paul wanted to keep going into the world.

"To be a Christian is to be a missionary"—this was the theme of a youth camp in South India. The Christian young people there were saying something to themselves and not merely framing a catch phrase for the headlines of a program. Because they realized the universal obligation that is in the Gospel of Christ, they were to be missionaries. During the camp, when the call was made for missionary work inland beyond their own state, fifteen young men and women responded.

Christ's mission for the Church always has new beginnings. It begins with anyone, wherever he may be, who realizes what it means to be a Christian.

Prayer

Eternal Father, whose love has called us to Thyself, enable us now in grateful obedience to know how Thy love in Christ sends us into the world. Give each of us this longing and desire that all men may know the glory and power of Thy coming in Jesus Christ Thy Son. In His name we pray. Amen.

Attention Cattlemen

Not long ago, a gentleman came into my office and wanted to discuss Alaska beef producing potentialities with me. He knew I was from Texas, and he saw the Hereford hide on the wall so, no doubt, he concluded that he would have a willing ear. About the time the conversation got started good, the bells rang, and I had to leave him in order to get to the House in time for that day's session. He promised to write me a letter about it, and sure enough he did. It is very interesting, and I wish I could put the entire letter in this paper, as I know you cattle people would enjoy it.

This man, his wife and four children, have been growing and marketing farm products since 1942. The father went up in 1941 to Alaska, and the family followed the next year. He tells me that they are meeting with great success and want to expand.

He tells me that there are several islands involved that are warmed by the Japanese current and sheltered by the Alaskan peninsula. That only occasional snowfalls occur and quickly disappear so that the cattle range out and thrive unsheltered in the wild state all the year around. WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

The tumult and the shouting dies, the Senators and Congressmen have departed, and the stifling, hazy heat of late summer settles along the Potomac.

In this reflective quiet, many things are being weighed. The once widely hailed Great Crusade appears to have developed into old-fashioned brawling. Opinions are shifting. Before Congress again convenes, talks with home folks may change opinions even more.

For example, "isolationist" is no longer a fighting epithet. It is not now necessary to smile when calling a man that.

Belief seems emerging black-mailing payments are no surety of peace, or friendship or a stopper of Communism. American people fail to see where giving dollars to nations not to go Communist is any more sensible than to give cash to average citizen to keep him from crime.

American taxpayers still pay huge sums for foreign aid, but January may bring changes.

Although much was made that session just ended voted less than $2 billion dollars in aid, fact remains that in the year just ended $5.7 billion was spent on aid, while in this fiscal year expenditures of $6 billion are planned.

But the disparity between appropriation and expenditures is due to fact money appropriated in past has yet to be spent. Altogether foreign aid bureaus have some $15 billion to spend.

There is deep thought on using this money to lighten burden on U. S. taxpayer. For example, U. S. poured around $3 billion in Indo-China war, but when chips were down, communists were handed victory.

Now Foreign Aid Administration is pouring millions into French North Africa supplying gasoline, copper, wood pulp, other items. At same time substantial share of aid being given Spain is bought by U. S. foreign aid in French North Africa.

In fact, biggest change in foreign aid seems to be diverting opportunity for American business and labor to benefit from these huge expenditures through buying give-away materials from foreign nations. For example, British Rhodesia is getting money for new locomotives from U. S. foreign aid, but U. S. builders must compete on bids with foreign producers for business.

Shipyards in Communist Yugoslavia are building ships for U. S. Navy. Yet when and if chips are down, there appears to be more uncertainty as to Yugoslavia's eventual course than there was over recent French decisions.

In meantime nation faces fact past bill given Europe developed their industrial machine to point where Europe slips into U. S. through non-existent or weak tariff protection, enough goods to idle at least 300,000 American workers. New tax measures, principally those expanding old New Deal principle of welfare state, have placed new burden on just started, or slowly expanding small business. Yes, it is very hot along the Potomac now, but many legislators are undoubtedly finding heat even more unbearable at home where there appears more concern over Main Street affairs than global affairs.

Dove Season Expected to be Best Of Recent Years, Says Commission Head

Opening of the north zone mourning dove season at noon September 1, marks what could be one of the best shoots in recent years, according to the Executive Secretary of the Game and Fish Commission. He said the showers that preceded the opener restored water tanks in many parts of the state at a time when the early migration of the fleet birds was underway. "Reports from scattered areas," said the Executive Secretary, "indicate there are plenty of native birds and that thousands of others have moved into the state enroute to their wintering grounds in Mexico and Central America. The Executive Secretary pointed out that roughly three-fourths of Texas will be open to mourning dove hunting at noon Wednesday. The North Zone season runs thru October 10. The South Zone season prevails from noon October 1 through November 9. The Executive Secretary said the best time to hunt mourning doves is late in the day when they are moving to and from feeding and watering areas. He said they "load" in the shade in the heat of the day and do not move about much. He explained the favorite feed of mourning doves is grass seed, weed seed, and seed of domestic grain such as red top cane, hegar, or any kind of small grain. The daily limit is ten doves. Possession limit is the same. Daily shooting ends at sunset. Shotguns must be plugged to three shots. Rifles are prohibited. The Executive Secretary suggested hunters obtain landowners' permission before hunting on their premises and added that persons doubtful about legal provisions should see their local game warden.

Lions Have Fire Program Thursday

Twenty-one members and five visitors were present at the regular meeting of the Friona Lions Club on Thursday night, August 26. One visitor, Sally Osborn, was the Lion Sweetheart last year and was pianist for the club in the absence of the regular Sweetheart. She was presented with a gift from the club by Boss Lion McFarland in appreciation of her service to the club last year. Dr. Loyd Shackelford was another visitor. He is the new dentist and the club hopes to enroll him as a member. Dillie Kelley, school principal, presented a film on classes in action at A. & M. College where a group from Friona went for schooling on fighting fires. He also explained in detail, with the assistance of Charles Bainum and Jim Cunningham, all phases of the different methods used to combat different types of fires. The program was impressive and the club members appeared to enjoy the pictures and explanations. The attendance was considered very good in view of the fact so many members were out of town vacationing. Regular meeting nights for the Lions Club is every second and fourth Thursday, and each member is urged to attend all meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Roberson and Marie, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Christian and family, Bettie Barnett, Dr. Barnett and family and Dr. and Mrs. Millard Noble and family are vacationing this week at Antonita, Colo. Visiting with Mrs. Nora Welch this week is her grandson, Guy Welch of Houston.

Money Crop for Farmers

Chances are the average American farmer doesn't give much thought to paper or the essential part it plays in his life. But, in various ways, paper is vitally important to him.

First, the demand for pulp-wood—from which paper is made—benefits the farmer. It gives him a chance to boost his income by becoming a tree farmer and raising pine as a money crop.

Pine trees grow rapidly in most parts of the United States—particularly in the Southeast. The trees grow faster when the tract is occasionally thinned-out—and the "thinings" can be sold as pulpwood. That is why pulpwood is a key crop for the tree farmer. He is actually paid for cultivating his woodland.

The farmer sells his wood to pulp mills, like that of the Union Bag & Paper Corporation, where it is converted into kraft paper bags. Again, the farmer benefits, for these bags serve him in many ways.

For example, the feed for his animals comes to his farm packaged in Multiwall paper bags; likewise the fertilizer he uses on his soil to bring forth better crops. And when his crops are finally harvested, other paper bags bring this produce to market—wet-strength paper bags filled with ice that help corn retain its natural sweetness—potato bags, onion bags, carrot bags and many others.

From its raw pulpwood stage to finished product, paper truly serves the American farmer well.

What is your land capable of doing?

The first step in conservation farming is to start using each acre of land according to its capabilities. Some land is best suited for cultivation; some is best suited for grass. On some of your land intense conservation measures may be needed; on other land you need nothing more than ordinary good farming methods. Each tract of land is different and is capable of doing certain things if properly treated. But each acre must be used for a job it is capable of doing and treated with conservation measures it needs to keep it productive.

The kind of soil, the slope, the degree of erosion, and the climate mainly determine what land is capable of doing. But there are other factors that may affect the capability of land, it may be rocky or it may be subject to overflow.

When a farmer makes a request to the Soil Conservation District board for assistance on conservation work, soil scientists, who make conservation surveys, study each tract of land. They consider all of the things that might affect its use and conservation. Then simple maps are made that show the capability of each acre. These maps divide land into eight classes. The first four classes are suited for cultivation and the last four, not suited for cultivation. The best land for farming is Class I. It is very good land that can be cultivated safely with good soil management practices only.

Class II is good land, but has some hazards in farming. It may have gentle slopes or moderate erosion.

Class III is suitable for cultivation but has several undesirable features and requires intensive treatment.

Class IV land is fairly good land that is best suited to pasture but can be cultivated occasionally if handled with great care.

Class V land should be kept in permanent vegetation. It is nearly level but is too wet or stony for cultivation.

Class VI land is too steep, eroded, or shallow for cultivation, and should be used for grass.

Class VII land includes the very steep eroded, or rough areas. This land should be used for grass with careful management.

Class VIII land is the land suited for wildlife or recreation. It is usually too steep and rocky for other productive use. With the use of these maps showing land classes, the Soil Conservation Service technician and the farmer are in a better position to decide what conservation practices are needed on the farm.

World Council of Churches Is Encouraging Movement

This month the World Council of Churches is meeting in Evanston, Ill.

It is encouraging to see this council, composed of 161 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox communions meet to consider some of the problems of this old world. Such a band of spiritual beliefs, combined with the physical energy members exert to accomplish their goals, will surely have an influence in bringing about better social conditions.

The council is strongly opposed to Communism, having declared itself against "such modern substitutes for the Gospel as Communism and other political messianisms."

But, we are glad that the council invited clergymen from Communist countries to attend the Evanston meeting. A problem cannot be overcome by ignoring it. By peaceful and considered discussion, many differences can be worked out.

Some of the clergymen from behind the Iron Curtain may not be sincere in their motives. But for those who are, the meeting in Evanston should give them renewed spiritual strength to meet official opposition to Christianity when they return to a Communist dominated country.

If anyone wants to go into the cattle business in Alaska, I will be glad to give you this man's name and address. I never saw him before he came into my office, but was impressed by his love for cattle and his apparent knowledge of Alaska.

Everyone seems to be getting water conscious. I was in company with several other members of Congress and a United States Senator recently surveying a project, the purpose of which is to create a means of reducing the salt content of water so that it can be used for human consumption or industrial or irrigation purposes. If such a process is perfected, it will not only be a boon to mankind, in so far as the use of sea water is concerned, but would be a tremendous benefit in the inland sections of all countries where you might have underground salt water. Certainly we have that in the Panhandle. The problem to solve is to develop the processes that are now known so that the cost of the sweet water produced will not be prohibitive. Of course, it is anticipated that other means of reducing the salt content may be discovered or accidentally stumbled upon. In any event, the project itself is in its infancy, and it may be some time before the fruits of this research will be realized. However, it is well to note that this program is closely kin to another program that was started and developed during World War II that provided fresh water from sea water for many of our boats.

The U. S. Navy is presently engaged in a Save Water Campaign that, I understand, is getting remarkable results. The August issue of the "Navy Conservationist" treats this problem at length and does a splendid work on it.

However, they did leave out one item that I think gives a clear picture of what a great resource water is. I have reference to an experience the Navy had in the Virgin Islands. These islands have no water supply other than rain water. In order to catch and conserve this, they concrete the sides of huge hills, and in many instances, mountains, and put a catch basin at the base of this concrete slab. Their underground water is all brackish and therefore, when it fails to rain, they just do not have any source from which they can obtain their needed water. Not many months ago, they were stricken by a drought, and the Navy put one of its warships in the harbor at Charlotte Amalie, St. Thomas Island, and proceeded to produce fresh water the supplement the reserve of the island. Without this supplement supply, the then Governor of the Virgin Islands advised me, the situation would have become very dangerous.

Capitol Hill has gotten very quiet for the moment. The few of us who are left are trying to catch up with our mail and other chores, but most of the members have de-

The council's stated purpose is "to stand for man, for his dignity, for human solidarity, for a decent human life on this planet."

POLICE COURTESY WIN FRIENDS

A short time ago the chief of the Miami, Fla., police department announced an interesting innovation. Posters and placards reading "Courtesy wins friends for Miami, the department, and you!" were placed where every member of the force would see them constantly—on desks, phones, motorcycles and patrol cars.

The material was supplied by a local company which had won widespread notice for the courtesy conducted among its employees during the past year. This campaign brought compliments and requests for samples of the material from business concerns all over the nation and in many foreign countries.

Making courtesy a guiding principle in the conduct of a police department is a fine thing. Nothing brings more ill will to a city than the "tough cop" who treats violators of traffic and other minor regulations as if they were on the FBI's "most wanted" list of criminals. Miami's move in this direction could well be emulated in parted. The newspaper people seem to be having quite a bit of trouble finding news. When Congress shuts down, the news correspondents up here have to dig about twice as hard for stories.

I hope to get loose here sometime around the first of September or shortly thereafter. The family was a little upset at me because we did not get to spend the summer in Texas, but they all understand that the late adjournment of Congress makes it almost impossible to get them down there and back before school starts. When the Rogers tribe starts across the country, what with having to stop at every other filling station, it takes about five to five and one-half days to make the trip each way. That doesn't leave much time to say hello to your friends when you only have about 15 days for the entire trip.

I was looking at the August 20 daily statement of the U. S. Treasury and thought of the old story about the fellow who asked the other one what he would do if he had all the money in the world. The reply was that he would pay it on his debts, as far as it would go. What made me think of this was, that the balance on that particular day was $5,954,371,980.02. I had just finished reading about the national debt being $274,000,000,000.00 and the debt ceiling being raised six additional billion. The fellow in the old story wasn't being funny, he just lived before his time.
