20 ACCREDITED SCHOOLS IN CORYELL COUNTY

County Supt. Witcher Receives Letter From State Dept. Education

Following is a letter received by County Superintendent J. M. Witcher, from Edgar Allen Woods, Second Assistant to the State Superintendent of Public Education:

Dear Mr. Witcher: I was pleased to have your letter of August 26. It has been a real pleasure to have the opportunity to try to assist in your program of standardization in Coryell County. You know that Mr. Woods, your Deputy, and I have been interested in this and it is our desire to help in every way possible.

I think you will understand what I am going to say and will know that I am truly interested or I would not say it. I hope it will be possible for you to get the teachers in your schools to do better teaching in the fundamentals. I believe that you now have a set-up such that will allow the teachers to give some real time, work, and consideration to the first seven grades. You and I both know that the standards in the first seven grades are not as high as they should be. Some time during the early part of the school year when you are having a meeting, I would like to have the opportunity of talking some thirty or forty minutes to your elementary teachers about raising these standards of classroom work, if it is convenient for you to have me attend the meeting. There are some things I would like to have the opportunity of emphasizing to what particular group, and I believe that by working together improvements can be made. Assuring you that I appreciate your splendid cooperation and with best wishes, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Edgar Ellen Wilson.

Second Assistant State Superintendent.

"DIGGING" IN CORYELL NETS WELLS FARGO EXPRESS STRONG BOX

Waco's No. 1 treasure hunter, W. A. Matheny, unearthed a Wells Fargo Express Co. strong box in an Indian mound in the southeastern part of this county near Sugar Loaf, and says he can "tell you so many stories about Coryell County caves you could write a book, and all of it true."

This box was found wedged in a niche 500 feet from the entrance to a cave in Coryell County. They pulled the copper handle off the box when they hitched a horse to it and tried to pull the box out.

The box was left, however, because as they claim it would require a month or so to dig it out. Measurements of the box are 18 inches by 24 long and about 10 inches deep.

Matheny, Waco's treasure hunter, has this story in Sunday's Waco News-Tribune.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. McCoy motored to Waco Sunday where they met their daughter, who has been attending the Waco district camp held at Valley Mills. They were accompanied home by Miss Frances Lemons of Waco who will be their guest this week.

J. R. SAUNDERS "TAKES PEN IN HAND" TO WRITE SPORTS

J. R. Saunders, part time city carrier, and ex-sports writer and columnist for the "Yellow Jacket" Howard Payne College publication, has signed on the dotted line with the News to take his "pen in hand" and bring forth the news of the day in the local sport field.

J. R. will be seen this year around the green sward, chewing a favorite brand of "plug" or even on Saturdays maybe he'll have a "toofer" in his head. He is replacing one Truman Blanton, who will spend the majority of his time on "busting soda," at a local emporium.

Miss Arline Bates of Ewing was a visitor here Monday.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

DON'T INCLUDE TOO MUCH
IN ONE PICTURE

This picture, while striking, is really two pictures in one.

ONE of the faults often seen in the work of an amateur photographer, especially of a beginner, is the inclusion of too much in one picture. He tries to "hog the whole show," as it were, with results that are uninteresting or distracting.

For example, from the top of a mountain or other eminence, he is impressed by a vast panorama of country—several hundred square miles of it spreading to the horizon in a great semi-circle—and promptly tries to compress it into a few square inches of film. The result on the film is little more than a wavy or jagged line—the horizon line—separating a white space from a dark space. He failed to note how all the interesting detail was swallowed up in the vastness of the scene.

Such a panorama may be saved by beautiful cloud effects obtained by using a color filter and, of course, it can serve, and may well be treasured, as a "record" picture of a visit, but vastness unrelieved by nearby detail generally makes a poor picture. Better to let the panorama be a background for something worth looking at in the foreground. A foreground object—a single tree, a human being, a grazing cow, a nearby cottage on the mountain slope, often will make all the difference in a scenic picture between something interesting to look at and little or nothing.

Again, in nearby scenes, there is frequently material for two or even more complete pictures that the picture taker has crowded into one, with the result that the eye wanders from one point to another, producing a sense of irritation rather than of pleasure. All right in a three-ring circus, if you like, but not for a good photograph. Selection, leaving out what is not really required, is a lesson to be learned. The viewpoint should be chosen carefully, remembering that much that is extraneous may be eliminated, or at least made unobtrusive, by moving the camera to the right or left, up or down, nearer or farther away, by focusing from different planes, or by using different diaphragm openings in the lens.

But sometimes, you say, how can you help getting in several objects of competing interest when Nature or circumstance has them in the picture you want to take. It is true that this situation cannot always be easily avoided but, when you are confronted with it, you may find yourself lucky after all. Go ahead and shoot and then examine your print. Imagine a scene on a river. Your point of interest is a girl in a bathing suit about to dive from a row-boat in mid-stream. You have to snap the picture from the river bank fifty feet distant. You find when the print is finished that interest in the girl is rivalled by that in a small boy in the foreground at the right, fishing from the bank. Beyond, diagonally across the river on the left is a dam and picturesque old mill in a setting of willows. You have three pictures in one. What do you do? You take your print and mask each one of these interesting pictures from the two others, mark them and have the corresponding sections on the negative separately enlarged.

Many a fine picture is made by enlarging a selected portion of a miscellaneous composition.

JOHN VAN GUILDER

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

Great Britain's answer to the threat of Italian domination in the Mediterranean is the treaty of mutual assistance with the Egyptian kingdom, by which the empire's military might in the blue sea will be increased while its former vassal state will again complete independence within a decade.

Marking the end of a half century of direct and indirect control of the ancient land of the Pharaohs, the treaty gives Great Britain a clear-cut right to maintain its naval base at Alexandria, for which it will pay rent, and the British air force in Egypt will be vastly increased. Egyptians will undertake to construct strategic roads, assuring rapid transportation of troops between the Suez Canal Zone and Alexandria.

In addition to eventual independence, Egypt will receive British aid in building up its own army and London's sponsorship for membership in the League of Nations. As a concession to Egyptian nationalist sentiment, the British agreed to remove their army from Egypt on the "installment plan" and principal British garrison will be shifted to the Suez Canal zone, but strategic roads will make it highly mobile if it is forced to protect Egypt.

To Italy, the treaty sounded a warning that Britain was preparing to fight to maintain the "life line" to the East—China, India, Austria. A huge concentration of troops, battleships and planes at Alexandria will upplant Malta as the chief British naval base in the Mediterranean. Egypt, in cooperation with Britain, will resist every attempt of Italian aggrandizement and encroachment on the countries of the Mediterranean.

The first returns of a presidential straw poll being conducted by 3,000 weekly newspapers co-operating with the publishers autocaster service and the American Press give Gov. Alfred M. Landon a substantial majority over President Roosevelt.

Tabulation of Votes in eighteen states gave the following percentages:

Landon (Rep.)	50.8
Roosevelt (Dem.)	42.3
Lemke (Union)	4.7
Thomas (Soc.)	1.0
Colvin (Pro.)	0.5
Browder (Com.)	0.7

On the basis of 45,000,000 votes expected to go cast in November, these percentages would give Landon approximately 22,500,000, or 300,000 short of Roosevelt's 1932 total, Roosevelt 18,900,000, and Lemke 2,000,000.

Of the eighteen States reported on Florida, Kentucky, Michigan, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio and Texas were placed in the Democratic column—the latter by a 5 to 1 majority, and Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maryland, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Virginia in the G. O. P. column.

Interesting are such polls as that reported on above, but the presidential poll which the entire nation eagerly awaits—Democrats, Republicans, Independence and all—is that by The Literary Digest, which has accurately forecast the results of every presidential election since 1920.

As an oracle of election results, the Digest's polls are uncanny. In 1924 the poll predicted the Electoral College result within three votes—more than 99 per cent right—and the popular vote of Coolidge within 1 per cent—99 per cent correct.

In 1929 the poll predicted the Republican landslide and indicated that Alfred E. Smith would lose such states of the "Solid South" as Virginia, Texas, North Carolina and Florida. The election showed that for the first time since 1860 a Republican had carried a Southern State. In 1932 the landslide vote for Roosevelt was accurately forecast in October shortly before the election.

Next week the first results of the 1936 Digest poll will be released for publication and from then until the last release in October this column will carry condensed reports on the poll.

Unique in the election annals of the Nation was the ruling by Attorney General William McCraw authorizing the Secretary of State to certify the names of candidates for President and Vice President instead of electors to be placed on the general election ballot.

According to McCraw, "It was plainly the purpose and intent to the Legislature in the enactment of chapter 186, acts regular session of the Forty-Second Legislature, to make provision for the shortening of the official ballot for general elections in this State by providing that the names of the candidates for President and Vice-President, respectively of each political party shall be placed upon the official ballot for such election in this State in lieu of the names of electors for President and Vice-President."

McCraw cited the Federal Constitution which authorized State Legislatures to provide for the appointment of presidential electors in such manner as they may deem proper.

SEVENTY-FIVE YOUNG MEN HAVE OPPORTUNITY OF JOINING ARMY

Between September 5th and 15, 1936, seventy-five young men from this district will not only have the opportunity of being assigned to one of the most desirable posts in the army, namely, Fort Bliss, Texas, but also of becoming a very important part of mobilization plans for reserve officers at that post, according to Major Sidney J. Cutter, in charge of the Dallas recruiting district with headquarters at 462 Federal Building, Dallas, Texas.

Fort Bliss is located approximately six miles from the center of El Paso, at the foot of the majestic and historic old Mount Franklin range. Just across the Rio Grande river from El Paso is the city of Juarez, Mexico. Every convenience obtains here, both as to the Post proper and regards travel between the Post and the city. A line of the city trolley company runs to the main gate of the Post at regular intervals. Due to the fact that this is considered one of the greatest all year-round climates in the world, sports abound throughout the year such as baseball, tennis, track, football and basketball. A first class gymnasium and swimming pool is also available for members of the Post. The Post is equipped with a Post theatre which has pictures nightly. Dances and other entertainments are held at frequent intervals.

According to Major Cutter the efforts of the army recruiting service to convince the public of the unusual opportunities open to enlisted men of the army are invariably met by this erroneous conception of "Why, I did not know an enlisted man could become an officer." That the above is untrue, state Major Cutter, a recent issue of a letter from the Adjutant General of the army shows that only 25 per cent of the officers are graduated from West Point, 8 per cent promoted from the ranks, and we infer, that 67 per cent are young heroes of the World War. Also, we observe from the list of distinguished officers promoted from the ranks, that the opportunities for advancement of an enlisted man is only limited by his own demerits and lack of perseverance and initiative. Under existing regulations, says Major Cutter, the regular army is allocated each year approximately 90 vacancies at West Point-cadetships, they are termed. These vacancies are filled competitively by men who have served faithfully and honorably for at least one year and who at time of entrance are less than twenty-two years of age. This, states Major Cutter, is an opportunity that should appeal to any young man with red blood in his veins.

Recruiting stations, in addition to the main station at Dallas, are located at Fort Worth, Waco, Tyler, Paris, and Denison. Anyone desiring information may contact any of the above offices where the government has placed a member of the recruiting service for your convenience.

The Reunion will be held four days, Sept. 10 through the 13th. Each of the Divisions of the Army as set up in the National Defense Act will have special days. September 10th being regular Army Day honoring the 1st thru the 7th division AEF; Sept. 11th will be National Guard Day honoring the 26th thru the 42nd division; Sept. 12th will be National Army Day honoring the 76th thru the 92nd divisions, and Sept. 13th will be combined Army, Navy, and Marine Day, with Memorial Services that night.

Many of the life time friendships formed on the field of battle and the training areas of France will be revived at this first Reunion. Many Last Man Clubs formed around the Vin Rouge tables in France will hold their first meeting here 18 years after. Inquiries have been pouring in asking about Buddies of the old outfit and already small Battery and Company Luncheons are being arranged. The daily programs have been so co-ordinated that each morning Company, Battery, Regiment and Naval Ships will meet and many a happy hour will be spent when these veterans fight over again those long marches between polar trees, the dangers of the front, and the long wait to return home. Eighteen years have passed and again the Veteran wants to see that Buddy of yesterday who shared a common danger while in the service of our beloved America. Every AEF Veteran should make every effort to attend this first National Reunion of their Buddies. Special rates on all railroads and Busses.

legiate and high school games will focus the nations attention on the fastest, most thrilling football section in the country. Follow Texas football this year. It is one of the greatest publicity agents the state could possibly have.

The season will start the night of September 7 when the Chicago Bears, crack professional club, meets a stellar All-American eleven in the Cotton Bowl at the Centennial Exposition, Dallas. A "meetin of the mastodons" for both clubs possess the biggest names in current football history. Nagurski, Feathers, and Hewitt of the Bears will match brains and brawn with such college stars as McCauley, Lutz, and Wetzel. Such a game will be well worth seeing.

The season has not advanced enough to forecast the fate of the local club, the high school Hornets. Conditions surrounding the actual caliber of the team, however, are ideal. If a larger school, the best football stadium in Central Texas Class B football, and an intelligent and belligerent coach mean a good season, then Gatesville should make its mark this year. A schedule of formidable opponents, including several traditional rivals, looms in the offing. Win, loss, or draw—it is a new era in football for Texas and Gatesville, especially.

DOC'S IS SOFTBALL CHAMP TO END SEASON

Thursday night saw the climax of the local softball league when Docs Sandwich Shop burned up the Firemen to the tune of 14 to 3. Showing impressive stickwork and base-running the Hamburg Hounds made short work of Doc Ray's famous fast ball, and galloped home to an easy victory.

On Monday night of last week the Fireboys beat the CCC Camp and Docs won out over the Merchants, leaving the title in deadlock between Docs and the Camp. The results of Thursdays games with the Firemen's defeat and the Merchants victory over the Camp 6 to 5 gave Doc's undisputed right to title. Having won the first half championship this gave Docs the season's title.

FANS TO CHOOSE ALL-STAR TEAMS

For your convenience to help select the first and second all-

These teams after being selected by the fans, will meet sometime next week in a three game series. Men must be picked for the position they actually played during the season:

SCREW WORM CONTROL
By W. E. Dove

How to Treat Screw Worm-Infested Wounds

Use only benzol and pine tar oil. These are the only materials recommended by the Bureau of Entomology and plant Quarantine. Benzol is used to kill the screw worms. Pine tar is used as a dressing for wounds and for repelling flies.

Before these materials are applied, the portions of the animal covered with discharges from the wounds should be cleaned carefully. Wounds containing blood and serum must be carefully swabbed with cotton, because benzol does not readily kill scaw worms protected by fluids in the wound. Immediately following the swabbing, a light application of commercial benzol is made to the wound with an oil can or syringe, which retards the flow of blood. Three or four minutes should be allowed for the benzol to reach the screw worms. A light application is then made, and dry cotton is inserted in the wound. This cotton plug should remain in the wound so that the screw worms can have sufficient time to breathe and be killed by the gas of the benzol. It is recommended that stockmen leave the cotton plugs and screw worms in the wounds.

Pine tar oil (specific gravity is then applied over the cotton plug and on the skin around the injured parts. It may be spread with cotton wrapped around a clean stick. The pine tar oil repels flies and aids in healing. Following the first treatment, the reappearance of a bloody discharge from the wound indicates that living larvae are present. In such cases treatment with benzol should be repeated. If there is no further discharge, the condition suggests that the screw worms were killed and that only pine tar oil should be applied. It is necessary to apply pine tar oil every day or two until the wound is healed.

How To Prevent Screw Worm Flies

Screw worms must be prevented from breeding in living animals. This is the only method at present for the control of the screw worm fly. They can be prevented from infesting animals by setting out ordinary fly traps or by burning dead animals. These methods are useful in combating the common blow flies and are good sanitary practices. The immediate burning of carcasses of animals which die from screw worm attack is important in order to prevent the screw worms present from completing their development.

If the true screw worm fly can be kept from breathing in living animals, it is believed that there will be little trouble from screw worms.

YELLOW

The color yellow is coming into its own. It is fashionable; in style, so to speak. I'm not referring to clothes, but to something more permanent. Clothing styles and colors are fickle.

They change with the seasons. But the yellow of science will no doubt be with us for a long time. In short science has discovered by means of experimentation and trial that yellow is the color with greatest visibility. That is, under conditions tending to obscure other colors, we see yellow the longest, or we see it first, as the case may be.

Yellow is being used increasingly for buses, trolley cars, crossing lanes, curb markings, road signs, and airplane guides. In several states it is the legal color of school buses. Standing out as it does in twilight, snow, fog, and similar conditions, it is contributing prominently to the growing causes of safety.

In the class room we find the use of yellow chalk on the increase. The reason is the same, that is it is easier to see. Thus on dark days, in poorly lighted rooms, and on poor blackboards yellow chalk is a safeguard against eyestrain. It is the only kind used in sight-saving classes, and gradually it is replacing white chalk in the regular schools.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

IT AIN'T always fair to see ourselves as others see us, because sometimes the others see wrong.

Now, for instance, this here Mrs. Ackey was at a card party at Mrs. Bugg's house, and Mrs. Bugg says, "I hear, Mrs. Ackey, that you been telling around that Mr. Bugg beats me."
"My goodness, Mrs. Bugg," says Mrs. Ackey, "who told you that?"
"Why, Mrs. Hanger tells me you told her and all the other neighbors in the block."
"Well, well, Mrs. Bugg, I'd never a-thought it of Mrs. Hanger! Why, the woman can't keep anything to herself, can she?"

NUMBER 73

"GIVE YOUR HOUSE AND STREET NUMBER" WHEN CALLING FIRE DEPT.

Firemen say, people have moved so much in Gatesville the last few years, they don't know where you live when you say "Fire at Jones' who live next door to Smith's"

Instead when you call the operator, just say, "Fire at 106 North 5th, or 203 South Lutterloh Avenue".

It is not necessary to call the City Hall or the fire department, just call the operator, as the fire siren is operated by the telephone operator.

DR. ELIZABETH GREEN IN "COOL COLORADO" WRITES TO FRIENDS HERE

Dr. Elizabeth Green, vacationing in Grand Junction Colorado has the following to say in regards to her vacation in "cool Colorado", in part:

"The Royal Gorge, on the trip up, is one of the most beautiful places I have ever seen. The railroad tracks run along the side of the river, which looks as if it were running up hill. Swinging from one wall of solid, straight up and down solid rock is the highest bridge in the world. It is hung on great cables which are fastened on either side of the great "crack" in the earth. There is a large sight-seeing house on the outer rim of the canyon where one may view the sights at the bottom.

I also saw a great lot of snow on the mountain peaks which indeed looked cold. The endless canyons which we went thru were fascinating to watch.

I am here in sight of the largest flat top mountain in the world, called Grand Mesa. I can also see Colorado National Monument from where I am staying.

Dr. Green is also to be envied on being able to be in a cool place, and see the "high" sights and the "cracks" which she is enjoying.

MISS FRANCES CRIST TO TEACH EXPRESSION; H.S. CREDIT GIVEN

Miss Frances Crist, of Waco, and who has been studying in New York for the summer, is to open an accredited school of expression, dramatics, and personality here during the school term.

Miss Crist who has been in the east for the summer, also spent considerable time in Rhode Island, and from one of the papers in that state, we read as follows: Miss Frances Crist of Waco, Texas, will direct the presentation of the religious drama, "The First Commandment" by Odd Fellows Hall, Anthony, on the Quindick Baptist Church on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week. Her visit in Pawtuxet Valley is the first that a daughter of the largest state in the union has made to the smallest commonwealth, and she said yesterday that during her stay she hopes to visit the many places of historic interest in Rhode Island.

Miss Christ holds a B. L. I. degree from the University of Tennessee. She is a graduate of the Haun School of Expression and Public Speaking at Waco; was a student at Baylor University in that city, and did graduate work in the Universities of Tennessee at Knoxville, and if Arkansas at Fayetteville. She has studied at the Morse School of Expression in St. Louis, and in the Modern School of The Theatre in Carnegie Hall, New York City.

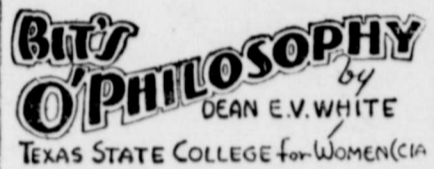

LION'S ENTERTAINED BY JACQUELYN WEST AND MAMIE SUE HALBROOK

Miss West gave two violin numbers, "Hejre Kati" by Hubay and "Chanson Indove" arranged by Fritz Kriesler, Miss Halbrook's offering on the piano was "Prelude" by Chopin.

Visitors for the luncheon, was Hon. R. W. (Bob) Polage, Congressman-Elect from the Eleventh District, who is now State Senator.

COUNTY SCHOOL NOTES

Good interest is shown by all concerned with the Coryell County schools. School boards, in conjunction with the County Board and the County Superintendent have worked zealously through the summer to be ready for school opening in the fall.

New Buildings

With the last few months Flat No. 93 has erected a New High School Building. Longview No. 48 is just completing a new two room building which will be well equipped for elementary work when finished. The Grove No. 30 is beginning a well planned building which, when finished will be equipped for seven grades of elementary work and two years of high school work. New Olive No. 31 built a new Auditorium near the close of School in May. Evant Independent has recently completed a gymnasium and auditorium combined. This rank with the best in the County Turnersville Rural High School will have its new gymnasium completed and ready for service by the opening of school this year. White Hall No. 17, Levita No. 77, and Murrell No. 52 are each building, or have recently completed teacherages. Antelope No. 47 in building an additional room on its teacherage. The building program should be watched and not allowed to over-step, but needed buildings are indications of a general wholesome school interest.

Scholastics

A letter signed by Mr. Jno. Olsen approves 6295 scholastics for Coryell County for school year 1936-1937. These were enumerated as Rural 4314 and 1, 918 in Independent districts. However the transfers of between 600 and 700 students will place a greater number in the Independent district.

COUNTY BOARD

The Coryell County School Board met on the 10th of August and again on the 21st of August. At those two meetings the transfers of high school pupils and the transportation of same to convenient high schools was given thoughtful consideration. Bus lines were established for 1936-37 school year as they were for the school year just closing. Some of the minor changes are as follows: Copperas Cove will run its bus directly from Harmon by Topsey to Copperas Cove and then to Antelope. Antelope will run its bus across the bridge on the Cow House near Stampede. Ireland bus will go up the west side of the Leon River from Murrell to Rabon Balche's place, then to Levita and Ireland as before. This bus begins its work in the Okaton district. Plainview will run a local bus beginning at King and connecting with the other bus lines for advanced high school students.

Jonesboro bus will run down the east side of the Leon River to a turning point near the bridge at Murrell.

White Hall has a local bus that will serve its own district and connect with Turnersville bus lines for advanced high school students.

COUNTY RECREATION ASSC. HELD REGULAR MEETING AT CAMP THURS. NITE

The Coryell County Recreation Association held its regular meeting Thursday nite, August 27, at the Recreational Hall of the CCC Camp at Gatesville.

Mrs. Rodway, the president called the meeting to order and a brief business session was held. That concluded, those present enjoyed a variety of games directed by Mrs. Rodway and Mrs. Lovejoy.

Delegates were elected to attend the agricultural Leaders meeting in Temple, Sept. 2, 1936.

The next meeting will be at the CCC Hall Thursday nite, Sept. 24.

Milton O. Thomson, Sec.

INSURANCE FEATURES OF PROGRAM ARE DISCUSSED

College Station- "Insurance features of the Agricultural Conservation program are proving of value to farmers in Texas because of unusual weather conditions in 1936," A.L. Smith, executive secretary of the State Agricultural Conservation Committee, pointed out.

"Interest is being manifested in these features by many farmers of this region," he added "so the recent statement of C. A. Cobb, director of the Southern Region of the AAA, is particularly appropriate at this time."

Cobb says, "Each producer who meets the requirements of the Agricultural Conservation program is sure of receiving some cash income even though his crops may be destroyed by drought or other causes."

No program can prevent suffering and hardship if a farmer's labor and cash investment in crops are completely lost because of unfavorable weather conditions. The present program will partly relieve the distress of cooperating producers by making a cash payment to those who have used approved farming practices on their land.

"The soil-conserving crops, grown on land that would otherwise be planted to soil depleting crops, protect the cooperating producer against losses of plant food and soil caused by leaching and erosion.

"Improved soils mean better stands, fewer crop failures, low-production cost to producers, and over a long period a more staple and less expensive supply of foods, feeds, and fibers for consumers than would be available if soils should continue to be wasted at the present rate."

"It's A Small World"

THE U. S. SUPREME COURT is again split in a 5-4 decision, this time on the question of summer vacations. Four favor the seashore; five have gone to the country or mountains. Of course it's every man for his own constitution in this case—summer happy in salt air and summer not. The Justices will convene again in October if they can agree on the calendar.

AT THE END of 1935 there were twenty-six business firms in the U. S. with assets of one billion dollars or more. At the end of 1929 there were only twenty such firms. Three new additions to this "Billion Dollar Club" were made last year. America is still the richest nation on earth, even if a few of our millionaires are down to their last million.

THE National Association of Manufacturers is sending a lecturer around the country, and you can't throw eggs at this lecturer with any chance of success, because it's a mechanical robot that goes right on talking in spite of heckling from the gallery. So save your breath—and if you don't want to go and listen to this machine talk, here's what it says: In 1870, when there were many less machines than today, 324 people out of every 1,000 were gainfully employed. Today with the machine age full upon us, there are 400 people out of every 1,000 gainfully employed. According to this, we ought to have less unemployed today than in 1870—but one thing's sure—in those days lecturers were human beings and if you heckled 'em they'd talk back.

THERE ARE 22 voters all told in Pointe Aux Barques township, Michigan, and the town treasurer's ambition in life just now is to round up all these votes by 9:20 a. m. on November 3, so the community will be the first in the U.S. to report its Presidential election. Some people certainly work mighty hard for their communities, but after all what can you do with a town with a name like that? Its Barque is worse than its bite.

OUR DOLLAR has gone down so much in comparison with French money that endowments and foundations which were established to send American artists to Paris to study, don't any longer provide enough to support the students there, and the trustees have appealed to the courts for permission to devote the funds to making awards to students in the United States. Most of the students have long since taken French leave of France and come home, anyway. The famous Latin Quarter in Paris isn't worth a dime anymore.

EVER HEAR of Maurice Denning. He's America's new public enemy No. 1. The bottom's dropped out of the public enemy business—the Men've done such a good job that these days they have a hard time finding somebody to look for.

DOWN IN Connecticut, the Society for Preservation of American Antiquities lost its fight for funds to save Noah Webster's house, where he completed his dictionary. They wanted to restore the old landmark, but Yale University said "Noah" and will tear the place down—probably to make room for more dictionaries.

Interesting Facts of Texas as Told in Odd Texas Printed Book

Texas rightfully belongs to Spain, was once larger than the United States, has had at least 19 flags, and at one time duped the American Government to the extent of $10,000,000.00 by selling it a big tract of land over which Texas had never maintained any control.

These and a thousand more queer facts about Texas are included, and explained, in a unique new 128-page cartoon book, ODD TEXAS, written and compiled by Jack Harper and John Newborn of Dallas.

"All the queer and amazing facts about wild and woolly Texas" screams the red, white, and blue jacket of this cloth bound volume. Wild and woolly, queer and amazing it is.

According to Harper and Newborn, who boast in their preface that canards are loathsome to them, you'll find in Texas horses with hoofs as big around as dinner plates, islands on top of mountains, a river in which cattle stand up to their necks and bay for water, houses of cactus plants, rattlesnake steaks, streaks of lightning made of sand, five pound hail stones.

If you had been there when it happened, you could have seen 1,000 horses shot down in U.S. soldiers, turkeys roasted with the feathers on, roads full of stumps a foot high, trains on wooden rails, humans ears as gifts, quinine served like salt and pepper, or you could have gotten a wagon load of steaks free!

The Texas Indians come in for full attention in this Texas hodge-podge of fancy illustrations. They had some peculiar habits, such as killing girl babies, traveling a hundred miles or more to get the right kind of cactus for eating purposes, selling Indian beauties for a bow and two arrows and cutting off the noses of unfaithful wives. America's only cannibal Indians lived in Texas.

Sugar-coated Texas history is the forte of ODD TEXAS. Some thing unusual has been squeezed from every important event in Texas history, engagingly illustrated and tantalizingly worded.

For instance: The battle of San Jacinto lasted just 18 minutes and the only artillery used by the Texans were two cannons donated by the citizens of Cincinnati, Ohio. The first official act of the Texas Rangers after organization was the capturing of a Mexican boat anchored on a Texas coast. The defenders of the Alamo fought under a Mexican flag and James Bowie fought the battle from his bed.

At Goliad Fannin requested (before he was shot) that his watch be sent to his wife, that he be shot in the breast and that he be given a christian burial. A Mexican lieutenant stole his watch, he was shot in the head, and his body was left where it fell.

The capital of Texas has been located in thirteen different places, two of them in Mexico and one in Louisiana.

To impress you the size of the state and its resources, you are told, by ODD TEXAS that 14 other states could be put inside of Texas with room to spare, that the state is larger than the entire Japanese empire.

Texas produces 97 per cent of the nation's sulphur, 90 per cent of America's polo ponies, nearly one third of the cotton and oil of the United States, and practically all of the helium in the world.

There are literally hundreds of such items as the cow that gave birth to a heifer calf each February 4 for three consecutive years (this ain't no bull either!) the cowboy who beheaded himself with his own lariat trying to rope a steer, and the bird that is half duck and half buzzard.

For further information, you will have to see the book. We warn you, ODD TEXAS is a volume you can't put down, once you pick it up, so after you start looking you'll have to shell out your dollar and take it home with you.

EARL HUDDLESTON THANKS VOTERS FOR THEIR SUPPORT

Now that the election is over and the returns show that the people of the 94th District by a substantial majority elected me as their Representative for a third term, I wish to take this method of thanking each of my friends who supported me in the recent election. To those who saw fit to vote otherwise I have no ill will.

I made this campaign as I have all others before, refusing to engage in personalities, notwithstanding some reports were circulated which were not true in my home town and district. I wish to call the people's attention to the fact that I received around Ninety Percent of the votes at my home box, Oglesby and of the surrounding territory. I invite any one who may have heard any of these reports to come to my home town and investigate for yourself these charges. I feel that the people in general have expressed their confidence in me, however I have heard that some have been misled and therefore this is my reason for referring to this matter.

I want to assure the people of this district that I intend to represent every person in the district without fear or favor to the best of my ability. I am not under any obligation to any special group and invite the counsel of every person to this end.

Respectfully,
EARL HUDDLESTON

Spare the Spinach and Spoil the Child

Combination of Spinach and Cottage Cheese Makes a Tasty Dish That Even the Most Fussy Eater Will Enjoy

DO you have the problem of your children refusing to eat the type of foods that are best for them? How often has your son or daughter left untouched a plate of food, which no amount of coaxing would cause them to eat?

Mothers, who are firm believers in the old adage, "Spare the rod and spoil the child" may have found a partial solution to this child feeding problem. There is a much simpler solution than forced feeding under threat of a good sound spanking.

A good example of a food which is frequently disliked by children is spinach. Yet scientists and health authorities tell us that it is an especially valuable food, because of its iron and vitamin content.

If your children dislike spinach, have you ever given thought to preparing it in a different manner? There are many ways to prepare spinach so that even the most "fussy eaters" will enjoy it. Most children like cottage cheese, so why not combine the two?

Incidentally children will find an added incentive to eat these new dishes because many leading dairies are now packing their cottage cheese in attractively decorated genuine safedge tumblers on which various designs are reproduced in applied color lettering. Letters of the alphabet, dogs, cats, elephants, football and baseball players are only a few of the many designs to be found on these new sanitary containers for cottage cheese, which incidentally have a very definite reuse value in every home. They are especially useful as the glass in which to serve the children's milk.

The first spinach recipe, which you will wish to remember, utilize the cottage cheese in the form of a dumpling. The recipe is very simple to prepare but the results are truly delicious.

Spinach with Cottage Cheese Dumplings

- 3 tablespoons butter
- 4 egg yolks
- 1 cup cottage cheese
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
- 4 egg whites (beaten stiff)
- 1 teaspoon salt

Cream butter, add egg yolks, one by one, stirring to make a creamy mixture. Add salt, cottage cheese (pressed through a sieve or strainer), flour, bread crumbs and mix well. Fold in egg whites. Form medium sized dumplings and drop into rapidly boiling salted water. Cover tightly and let boil for ten minutes. Remove with strainer or slotted spoon. Place hot chopped cooked spinach or serving platter, surround with the dumplings and serve with a cream sauce. Garnish with strips of pimiento and paprika. Serves 8.

Here is a second spinach recipe which is equally delicious:

Cottage Cheese Spinach Casserole

- 2 cups cooked spinach
- 1 cup creamed cottage cheese
- 2 eggs slightly beaten
- 2 tablespoons butter
- Salt and pepper to taste

Combine all ingredients, place in well buttered casserole, sprinkle lightly with grated American cheese. Bake 30 minutes at 350° F. Serves 6.

JAMES KNOX KELLEY

Although of failing health the past several months, the sudden death of Mr. James Knox Kelley Saturday noon came as a great shock to his immediate family and near relatives, and brought grief and sadness to them and to his many friends and acquaintances.

Suffering from a cardiac weakness the past few months, he was stricken down at 12:10 p. m. Saturday, August 29, on his return home from town, and passed away before a physician could arrive.

Funeral services were conducted in the presence of a large assemblage in the First Baptist Church this city by Rev. A. Loper, chaplain at the State Training School Interment was made in the City Cemetery immediately following, amid a profuse floral offering, Morton Scott, funeral director in charge. Active pall bearers were Edgar Franks, Jeff Bates, R. B. Faris, Earle Worley, Duward Morgan and Charles Livingston. Honorary pall bearers, Dr. Dermot Jones, Burney Bradford, Otis Morgan, Talbert Scott, and S. F. Bethel.

Deceased, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kelley, 1603 Saunders street, was born in Gatesville April 21 1896, and has lived here all his life. He was married to Miss Alma Herring in 1915, and to them were born two children, Mrs. Treva Prady and Knox Jr.

Besides his wife and two children, there survive his little granddaughter, Bevely Ann Frady; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kelley; his aged Grandmother, Mrs. Katherine Weaver; and four sisters, Mrs. Dick Bond and Miss Lillie Kelley of Gatesville, Mrs. C. P. Baker of Abilene, and Mrs. Frank Poole of Dallas, all of whom were present for the last sad rites.

Mr. Kelley professed Christian Faith and joined the First Baptist Church this city May 9, 1926, and has been true to the Faith and Church ever since. He made friends in his life, which was manifested by the large attendance at the funeral and burial.

The stricken family and bereaved near relatives have the deepest sincere sympathy of a host of true friends, and as the minister expressed consolation, "the sadness of loved ones should be made less sad when they remember he is relieved of his own earthly suffering and is gone to await their coming in a land where grief and pain are not known." As a presentment, or some way, Mr. Kelley felt his time was drawing nigh and had expressed on several occasions that he was not afraid of the future and was ready to go whenever the call came.

SYNOPSIS
 Jeff Hawkins and Wahoo Jones, outlaws, join the Texas Rangers to procure inside information about payrolls and gold shipments. Seeking a band of rustlers, Hawkins and Jones find that the leader of the band is their former pal, Polka Dot McGee, whom they have been seeking for months. Hawkins and Jones agree to supply Polka Dot inside information, the proceeds of Polka Dot's depredations to be split between the three. Hawkins and Jones, returning to Ranger headquarters, report failure to find the cattle rustlers.

CHAPTER IV

"We're very happy to have you with us, Davie. You know that, don't you?" Mrs. Bailey asked as she smiled gently at the orphan boy who sat on a horse-hair sofa in the living room of the Major's home and bit his lips to keep back his tears.

"Why, in no time at all, you'll feel different about things," interjected Jeff uncomfortably. "This is goin' to be your home. . . ."

"If I do say it myself, you're

"I wish you would stay," Mrs. Bailey realized the weakness of Jeff's alibi and decided to try again. "It's rather a special occasion—having David here—and the Major home with us for dinner."

"Don't coax them. Mother," Amanda spoke up firmly. "If they want to stay, they'll stay!"

"You mustn't mind Amanda being so outspoken," interrupted the Major as he saw his two new men flush with embarrassment. "She's what you call one of the new generation: a modern girl."

"Oh . . . is she?" smiled Jeff as he thought to himself that he'd like to take this girl and spank her so she wouldn't be so "modern." Then to Davie he added: "Be a good boy an' chop a lot of fire wood. You know you got to help Mrs. Bailey all you can. Well goodbye, Mrs. Bailey. . . . Thanks again for that invitation. Come on Wahoo." He was firm.

"Say, what's the idea of makin' har out of me—sayin' maybe then cattle did get across?"

"There's only one way we'll go those big jobs. We'll have to take the oneriest, dirtiest jobs that come along an' clean 'em out like good Rangers. Then we can write our own tickets with the Major." Suddenly Jeff stopped dumbfounded as he looked toward his cabin. "Hey!" he shouted when he recovered, "Wh told you to move our stuff out in the street?"

"What your place needs is a good fire," answered Amanda firmly as she and a Mexican woman appeared at the doorway with armfuls of bedding and other household articles. "It's like sleeping in a pig pen, so thought. . . ."

"Lady, we're much obliged, but we're used to sleeping in pig pens if you don't mind," was Jeff's reply. "All right, then," the girl flared

"Think we'll be going," said Jeff

"You sure know how to make yourself unpopular," grumbled his friend when they had left the house. "D'you mind tellin' me why you traded ham for beans?"

"Couldn't you see what was back of that invitation?" demanded Jeff a trifle pompously. "I've steered clear of her kind this long, an' I'm satisfied."

"You mean Amanda?" A light dawned on Wahoo. "What's the matter with her kind?"

"Oh, she's the home-buildin' settle-down-for-life kind. You know how it is with me . . . it's always here today, gone tomorrow. Once a gal like her gets apron strings 'round a man, that's his finish."

The next morning at breakfast Jeff's determination to steer clear of apron strings seemed a little more logical, even to Jeff, as he listened to the scraps of conversation around the big table in the mess hall.

"Hey, Pete—did ya hear 'bout Colonel Drake?" one Ranger shouted to another above the rattle of dishes. "He collected him twelve thousand gold fer them long-horns he sold to Mexico."

"Whe-e-e," Pete whistled through his teeth. "An' I heard Drake's gittin' another herd together."

"The Major's sendin' a couple of boys to guard a paymaster for that new railroad they're startin' to build up around Dallas," interrupted another Ranger.

Jeff and Wahoo put down their coffee cups, wiped their lips with the back of their hands and wandered outside.

"I don't see the Major givin' us any of them big jobs," grumbled Wahoo.

"Not after that masterpiece you told him—about drinking the Rio Grande dry," grinned Jeff as he rolled a cigarette with one hand.

"These, move the gentlemen's stuff right back. I'll help you."

"You know, women are gettin' out of hand," Jeff remarked loudly to Wahoo as he mounted the corral fence and calmly watched the two furious women moving their stuff back into the cabin. "The modern girl today talks right back to a man—like she was his equal. Suppose I stood by an' submitted to this lady's whim? The next step she'll bring over a pie she baked with her own little hands. That's to sell you the idea what you're missin' bein' single. . . ."

"Wal, you can always eat the pie and tell her it give you indigestion," answered Wahoo softly as Amanda came out of the cabin and marched toward her home. "Besides, you got a lot of license to be thinkin' of that gal at all. We got ourselves to think about—an' Sam."

Amanda stormed into the living room to find a telegrapher from the small town adjacent to the Ranger camp in the act of handing a telegram to her father.

"Hmm . . . From the Attorney-General at Austin," muttered the Major. "Must be . . ." He drew in his breath sharply as he read the message. "I thought the Indian trouble was settled once and for all," he continued after a long pause. "But apparently it's to break out again. I hate to think of it. Pillage . . . depredation." He snatched up his hat and ran out of the house and toward battalion headquarters. The telegrapher followed.

Alone in the big room, Amanda stood staring at the message. It read: COMANCHES READY TO GO ON WARPATh ALL OVER STATE RANGER COMPANIES A B C D STAND BY FOR ORDERS

DANIEL GILPIN.

"a lucky kid," Wahoo joined in. "Why can't I live with you fellers?" pleaded the boy. "You promised we'd be together all the time."

"Shucks," Wahoo soothed him. "We're quartered only about a hundred yards from this house an' you can see us all the time . . . except when we're out on tough jobs . . . like the last one. . . ." The ex-stage coach driver stopped short as he saw the Major glance at him and realized that he had put his foot in it.

"I still don't see how that herd got across the river," said the officer after clearing his throat sharply. "Lopez said they did. They were sold on the other side."

"Major, I'll drink all the water in the Rio Grande if them steers crossed within twenty miles of us. . . ." Wahoo began righteously.

"I know we didn't look so good on that job, Major," Jeff interrupted him with a sheepish grin. "But it was our first. Won't happen again." Then to ease the tension he turned to Davie and added abruptly, "You come over an' see us in the morning."

"But aren't you going to stay for supper?" cried Mrs. Bailey.

"It's kind of you, but . . ." It was plain that Jeff wanted to go.

"No 'buts' at all—you will stay," interrupted a clear, cool voice. They looked up and saw Amanda. Major Bailey's charming daughter, standing at the entrance to the dining room. "We're having baked Virginia ham. . . ."

"Think we'll be goin', Mrs. Bailey," Jeff responded awkwardly as he fought to tear his eyes away from the golden-haired young woman in the doorway. "We've got to fix up our quarters a little . . . so we can sleep there tonight. . . ."

"Sure smells mighty fine, that ham does," Wahoo sighed forlornly.

CENTENNIAL CITIES BOOSTING COMFORT

Dallas, Aug. 21—Wooing gate attendance with comfort, the two major Texas Centennial celebrations at Dallas and Fort Worth are attracting their share of visitors with two distinct features. Dallas, with its Centennial Exposition, is playing up its spacious air-conditioned buildings. It is estimated that seventy-five per cent of all its buildings are equipped with mechanical atmosphere. Fort Worth, with its Frontier Centennial, boasts of a show that "you can sit down and enjoy." The three main attractions at Ft. Worth—Casa Marana, The Lost Frontier and Jumbo were planned with the idea of making comfort foremost and with that in mind sponsors of Frontier Centennial have made it possible for visitors to see its various attractions "sitting down."

Both Fort Worth and Dallas continue to enjoy an increase in gate attendance. Apparently one is equally as alluring as the other.
