Pidcoke School Opens October 4; Students Asked to Enter Then

The Pidcoke School will begin its term of school Monday Oct. 4, and urges every student who possibly can to start at the beginning.

The building has been repaired and is all ready for the new term. The school has been standardized during the summer months. It is quite a coincidence that all the teachers attended the same college, N.T.S.T.C. at Denton this summer.

Members of the faculty are; Mr. and Mrs. S.M. Anderson, Miss Susie Caldwell, and Miss Gladys Rodway.

A new bus line has been added to the system this year. It starts at the Harmon school, goes over to the Georgetown road up past Spring Hill School, then back via the new road, where it makes connections with the Gatesville School bus. From there it goes to The Pidcoke School.

WHICH WAY DO PIG'S TAILS CURL? OR DO YOU CARE?

Which way do pig's tails curl? Maybe you don't care, but you'd better get interested, because you're going to help pay government officials for finding out "how".

J. H. Zeller of the bureau of animal husbandry's swine division has been "experimenting" so that he could find out this information. He went to the government's experimental farm at Beltsville, Md. and determined the answer. The total was:

- 98 rights;
 - 98 lefts;
 - 4 borderline cases.
- So the Government don't know yet. Wonder what Zeller gets a month. You're helping pay that or, something worse.

12c COTTON PAYMENTS EXPLAINED BY AGENT

Telegraphic information has been received by County Agent Guy Powell, regarding the Cotton Subsidy Payments (12c cotton), and the information has been outlined in letters to local farmers bringing out the salient points as follows:

1. Producers desiring to make application for Subsidy Payment must file sales certificates in the office of the county agent not later than September 30, on all cotton sold after September 15 the sales certificates must be filed within 15 days following the sale.
2. Each individual person interested in the cotton must file a separate application, and therefore, must file separate sales certificates. Thus, both landlord and tenant must make separate applications.

So far, no official forms have been received and the County Agent's office has prepared forms which they believe will be acceptable. They suggest that the buyer and seller secure these forms and make proper entries and signatures, and thus place the producer in line to make him eligible for the Subsidy Payment which will be made to those who prove compliance on the 1938 program.

Producers should file sales certificates in the County Agent's office on all the cotton sold, and thus place himself in line for the payment to which he is entitled. Keep in mind that the producer in filing these sales certificates is in no way obligating himself to cooperate or take part in any program at any time in the future. On the other hand should said producer decide that he wanted to take advantage of the Subsidy he would be in line and be eligible to receive same if the sales certificates were properly filed within the 15 day limit, and if in compliance with the 1938 program. Applicants should be made in writing or in person. Forms for use as sales certificates may be had at the Agent's office.

The News has received from official sources of the First Baptist Church of this city the following statement:

"This last Monday night the Deacons of the church met in special called session at the request of the pastor, Rev. Clarence A. Morton, who informed them that he had been called as pastor of the church at Ballinger, and that he would make known his decision probably at the 11 o'clock services this coming Sunday morning. Bro. Morton will also preach Sunday night at 7:45 o'clock."

NOTES FROM THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS OFFICE

Every school in the county is or will be eligible for State Aid, according to County Superintendent J. M. Witcher.

This aid comes in three forms: Salary Aid, Tuition, and Transportation. This makes it necessary for every school in the county except Gatesville to fill out Aid Applications.

These should be filled out by the principals and trustees, with the help of the County Superintendents office. After filling, they must be signed by the trustee, principal and County Superintendent, then sworn to before a notary public. The blanks must be completed and filed with the State Department of Education by October 1. At present, 6 out of 49 are ready to be filed.

FARMERS ARE STRONG FOR TRENCH SILOS

Winters Range Cattle

"I commenced to feed out of this silo the latter part of November, 1936 wintering 25 range cattle, 4 milk cows and 114 head of sheep, and six head of work stock.

"We hope to fill this silo to the full capacity this year. However before filling, we plan to wall the sides with concrete to keep them from falling in and keep them more smooth in wet weather."

L. Clark of Copperas Cove said his experience with a trench silo was a failure, "although it was caused from not knowing how to dig one."

"We dug it with a plow and scraper, which was O. K. but we made it too long for the amount of feed. The feed second crop hegarri was too ripe. "The silo was the same width at top and bottom, which caused to much air space and caused the feed to be badly damaged. We put too much dirt on top, which caused too much air space and caused the feed to be badly damaged. We put too much dirt on top which caused an extreme amount of trouble in removing the dirt.

Part of Feed Good

"With all of this failure, I found parts of feed which were good and the stock relished it. If I should make another, I am sure I could remedy those failures.

"First I would dig it in a hill side if available, for drainage, making the top three or four feet wider than the bottom. The feed should be cut at the right time and protected with a heavy cover to keep out dirt. I wouldn't put so much dirt on top.

"I still feel the trench silo is fine when made right and filled at the right stage for good feed, either bundle or chopped."

Mr. and Mrs. Joyce Ryan, Miss Tribble Campbell, and Clarence Shepherd visited in San Antonio Sunday.

Summertime Weather Still "On Tap" When Worst Winter Days Threaten

THE invigorating freshness of the ocean beach, the shaded woods and the running streams, once enjoyable only in the summer, can be had now at any time of year, even in the rawest, most "blizzardy" days of winter.

By marvels of science and manufacturing genius, weather is made to order now. Any variety of temperature and humidity can be created by operating a few simple controls, and the system can be installed in any structure, whether it be a home, a store, an office or a factory.

Air conditioning equipment built to produce any kind of weather indoors at any time of year gives the same relief from discomfort and fatigue, for home makers, office workers and factory employees, as does summer recreation under the most favorable conditions.

The ideal condition for winter air conditioning, in fact, is described as the same as is felt on a pleasant summer day, just after a cooling rain.

Interest in winter air conditioning never has been so strong as it is this year, according to the Air Conditioning Manufacturers' Association, in Washington.

"There is every reason why this should be so," it was declared.

"The average person consumes 35 pounds of air each day, compared to 4 pounds of food and 3 pounds of water. How important it is, then, that this air be purified and properly humidified and warmed!"

Methodist Church

Extends Courtesy to Bride-Elect
As a compliment to Miss Beulah Gamblin, bride-elect of Leon Anderson of Humble, a reception was held Wednesday evening in the banquet hall of the Methodist Church.

While guests were assembling in the auditorium of the church, organ selections were rendered by Miss Mamie Sue Halbrook. When the honoree arrived she was invited by Mrs. H. B. Franks to go with her to the basement of the church.

Hanging over the entrance were the words, "Here Comes the Bride", and as the bride-elect entered, Miss Orpa Mayo at the piano, played "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin. Brooms, mops, dish pans, wash tubs and scrub boards adorned the walls with a hint slogan over each article. Finally the honoree was led to her future home, a miniature colored home with a sign, "Apartment for Rent", hanging over the door.

A delightful program was presented the group which included two vocal solos entitled, "Little Lish Girl" and "The Wedding of Jack and Jill" given by Mrs. Byrom Leaird Jr. accompanied at the piano by Miss Mamie Sue Halbrook. Miss Nona Diltz then read "Poor Doodles" which was followed by a musical contest, directed by Mrs. Pearl White with Miss Mayo at the Piano.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. White presented the honoree a key to the back door of the miniature home and upon trying the key discovered many lovely and useful gifts.

Misses Waldine Wharton and Ruth Jones presided over the Brides Book, and Misses Minnie Lou Witt, Dolly Farmer, Bernice Gamblin and Dorothy Culbertson passed punch. Assisting in the serving were: Mesdames W. E. Lasseter, Guy Powell, H. B. Franks, E. G. Beerwinkle, and Pearl White. About one hundred guests registered in the Bride's Book.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story
By WILL ROGERS

THIS story was first told to me by a Scotchman who is now in this country but used to be a railroad conductor, and he used to run between Glasgow and Edinburgh, in Scotland. Well, he had lots of times a lot of trouble about getting tickets from Scotchmen that was trying to ride free or at a reduced rate, but he said the worst he ever got stung was by a fellow with a very red face, when the train stopped at Larbert Junction for collecting tickets. This red-faced fellow couldn't find his ticket, and kept ransacking his pockets and stewing around in awful excitement. Finally, the conductor saw that the fellow was holding the ticket in his mouth. "There it is, you fool, in your mouth," he said, and grabbed the ticket. He was told, after the Scot got off, that the guy had turned to one of the other passengers and said: "Awm nae sich a fule as I looked like to you collecter. 'Twas an auld ticket, an' I was suckin' the date off."

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

ONE school teacher was pretty hard-boiled with the kids. That's the reason why I think maybe this story ain't true. Teachers ain't hard-boiled any more, are they?

But when Henry was late for school the third time, and he hadn't any excuse, the teacher sent him home.

"Remember to tell your mother that you must have a written excuse. And don't forget to tell her that it mustn't happen again. She must give me the cause for you being late, and whatever the cause is, it mustn't happen again."

So Henry came back in a couple of hours with an excuse. It read: "I have a new pair of twins. It won't happen again, and I hope you'll let Henry keep on going to school."

HAVE "THE TIME OF YOUR LIFE" ON NEW ALL-STAR RADIO PROGRAM

Sheila Barrett, upper left, "the mad empress of mimicry," will be starred on the new nationwide program, "The Time of Your Life," to be broadcast over N.B.C. beginning Oct. 3 at 5:30 p.m. E.S.T. In the group, the Roy Campbell Royalists, are the Middlewestern singers who represent seven hometowners making good in the Big City. They are, left to right: George Watkins, Dorian Gale, Frank Baker, Eloise Bradford, Bill Thorne, Jean Yewell and George Pettit. Joe Rines, upper right, comedian and orchestra leader, will lead the "Timekeepers." Graham McNamee, one of the biggest names in radio since its inception, is shown in the center. He will be the master of ceremonies.

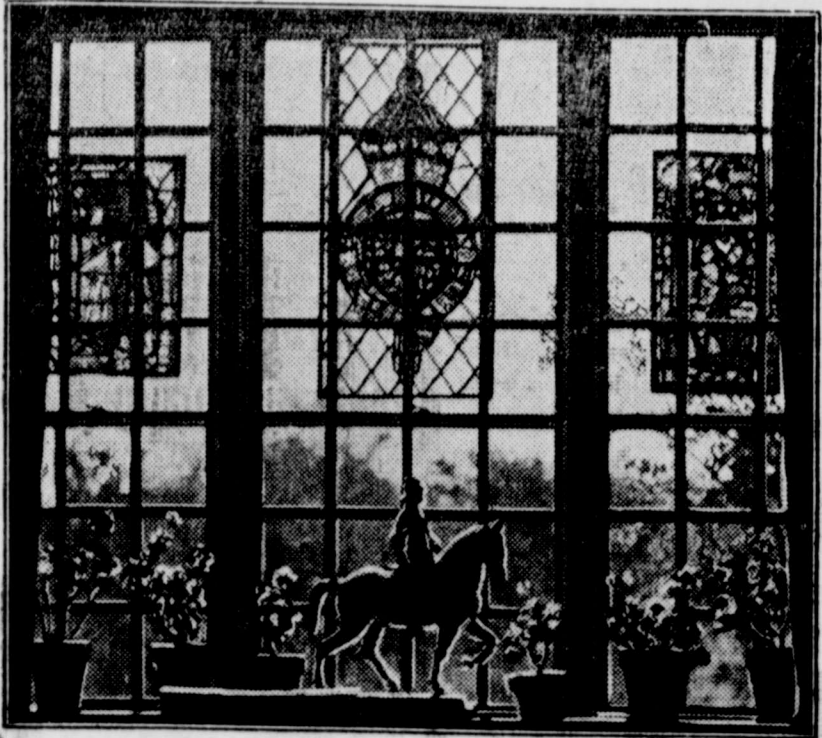

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 00— "The Time of Your Life" is in store for you, beginning Sunday, October 3 at 5:30 P.M. Eastern Standard Time over a nation-wide N.B.C. red network.
For the half hour before six on each Sunday afternoon Joe Rines and his "Timekeepers" will swing into action on a program starring the world-famous mimic, Sheila Barrett, and Graham McNamee, veteran of the air.

Singing, both sweet and hot, will be provided by the Roy Campbell "Royalists," seven youngsters from out of the West who are making their first appearance on a commercially sponsored program.
Since Roy Campbell, then dean of music in Friends University, Wichita, Kan., discovered these singing kids, their careers have been bright. In 1932 they walked off with the honors in a Mid-western musical contest at which twenty seven colleges were represented.
Such was Campbell's faith in them that he gave up the security of an assured income to train them for bigger things. Only one substitution has been made. When John Howard Payne, one of the tenors, was lured to Hollywood by observant film executives, an NBC page boy, fresh from winning a Fred Allen amateur contest, took his place.

In contrast with these fledglings of the air, Joe Rines, widely known as an accomplished comedian as well as an orchestra leader par excellence, can boast more years of radio service than almost any one in the game. Graham McNamee too is an old-timer whose voice has long been familiar in every household of America.
Sheila Barrett, in spite of her widespread popularity she has enjoyed, has never before had a program of her very own. She has plenty of new tricks up her sleeve, along with some of the old favorites that are always requested of her.
From time to time guest artists will be invited to increase the glitter of this constellation of stars. This winter is one you'll remember because you're going to have "The Time of Your Life."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

HOW UNUSUAL!

A picture snapped from inside the house and through a window often proves to be a fascinating bit of work.

IT'S almost unbelievable but it is true that many amateur photographers have the notion that it is only the unusual that is worthwhile snapping. When they travel, a camera is taken along to get pictures of new scenes and new faces but they use it around their homes only on special occasions.

"But," you may say, "I've already made good snaps around the house. What else is there to shoot?"

Nobody can answer that question for you directly. But it's dollars to doughnuts that there are dozens of untouched picture possibilities. And all of them interesting as the ones already in your album.

The secret of finding them is simply a matter of keeping your eyes open. Get the habit of looking at things—everything—as though you had never seen them before. It's amazing the way this habit will sharpen your interest—now dulled by sheer familiarity—in even the most commonplace things.

Some of the finest pieces of photographic art have been results of appreciative eyes in the heads of stay-at-homes. The pattern of sun and shade on the front steps, the fascinating interplay of roof lines, tree portraits—are typical of pictures that may be made at home—unusual pictures of usual subjects.

Don't be afraid of doing things differently. It's a tonic to tackle old subjects from new points of view. If, to get a shot that appeals to you, you have to upset the "laws" of safe-and-sane snapping, don't hesitate. If your eye enjoys the scene, whatever it is, the chances are that your camera will enjoy it too.

With such helps as the inexpensive photo-flood bulbs (for which efficient reflectors are available) you can do your snapping indoors as well as out: Present-day cameras, films and lights give you unlimited scope for your snapping. Today almost any picture is possible—and at any time.

Of all words of praise for the snapper, the sweetest are these, spoken by a friend:—"Well, would you look at that! I've seen that spot every day for the last fifteen years and I never dreamed it had the makings of a picture like this."

Maybe you've heard these words already! Congratulations!
John van Guilder

GILT-EDGED CAST IN "THE LIFE OF THE PARTY"

Bringing six film celebrities in the stellar cast, "The Life of the Party" will be shown at the Regal Theatre next Sat Nite 10:30 also Sunday and Monday.

Gene Raymond and Harriet Hilliard depict the romantic roles, and Joe Penner, Helen Broderick, Victor Moore and Parkyakarkus comprise the rest of the sextette of popular favorites who contribute their unique talents to this sparkling melody of romance.

With most of the scenes laid in a fashionable hotel in Santa Barbara, Calif., "The Life of the Party" is a gay romance between Raymond, a susceptible young heir, and Harriet Hilliard, an aspiring songstress. The young man forfeits his inheritance if he marries before he is thirty, while the girl endeavors to continue her career despite her mother's efforts to marry her off to an eccentric, wealthy suitor.

The romance is further hampered by the collective efforts of the heir's mother, who, knowing her son's weakness, assigns a private investigator to guard him from feminine wiles, the girl's business agent who naturally opposes any love affair for her client, and the hotel's detective who does his best to break up the affair.

As a result of all these complications, the girl is forced into a situation where she has to pretend to be married and the young man promptly takes advantage of this and declares himself the happy bridegroom.

Victor Moore plays the role of Raymond's fidgety guardian, and Miss Broderick that of Miss Hilliard's agent, with Penner as the suitor and Parkyakarkus as the detective. Billy Gilbert as a temperamental orchestra leader, Franklin Pangborn as his manager and Ann Miller are also in the cast.

1. All Bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with amendments as on other bills.

2. Every Bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the President of the United States; if he approves he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it with his objections to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of that House shall agree to pass the bill it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of that House, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each House respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, and in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return in which case it shall not be a law.

3. Every order, resolution, or vote to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be re-passed by two-thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

To establish a uniform rule of naturalization, and uniform laws on the subject of bankruptcies.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

TEXAS AND 1938

The eyes of Texas are focused upon the forthcoming special session of Legislature for more than fiscal reasons. For the lineup of candidates for the major state offices will definitely be determined by the results of this session.

Governor Jimmie Allred will be afforded his last opportunity to put over his tax program before making a final decision as to whether he will run for third term next year. Political quidnuncs say defeat of the state executive's program will put him in the gubernatorial race for a certainty, but that if the program is approved in the next month are so he will have little excuse for breaking precedent and seeking two more years in the governor's mansion.

Another personality long potent in Texas gubernatorial calculations is watching the outcome of the special session with equal interest. Former Gov. James E. Ferguson is said by friends to be anxious and willing to inject the name of his wife, likewise a former governor, into the race next year.

Mrs. Ferguson, should she enter the lists, would be running for a third term having served from 1926 to 1928 and from 1932 to 1934.

The Ferguson candidacy is contingent upon several possibilities. "Farmer Jim" wants the Legislature to enact a sales tax to pay the old age pensions, and also wants to extend the pensions over a greater proportion of the aged population of the State. The sales tax proposal proved to be a poor one last year when Senator Roy Sanderford of Belton ran against Governor Allred on a platform based chiefly on the sales tax method of raising revenue and was badly defeated. There is a possibility, however, that the people regard the sales tax more favorably than they did last year.

Likewise, if Jimmie Allred runs for a third term, Mr. Ferguson will run Mrs. Ferguson and in doing so avoid much of the criticism which might otherwise be forthcoming from those opposed to a third term for a chief executive.

In his political column, which appears in some of the smaller Texas weeklies, "Farmer Jim" states that his wife is prepared to run if the people demand that she announce. Do the people want Mrs. Ferguson to announce for governor?

Another figure who has been a rising star on the Texas political horizon during the last four years is definitely committed as a candidate for governor against whomsoever may run for the governorship. Attorney General William McCraw, the "miracle man" of the 1936 campaign, will be in the race even should Governor Allred and Mrs. Ferguson cast their lots for a third term. McCraw is recognized as one of the best vote getters ever to stump the State. It would be interesting for McCraw, Allred and Mrs. Ferguson to line up in opposition.

No certainty but a definite possibility as a gubernatorial candidate is Railroad Commissioner E. O. Thomson. Thomson will run if Allred decides to retire at the end of his second term. The affect of a Ferguson entrance into the campaign upon Thompson's candidacy is not known.

Not quite in some time have the lists of candidates for governor and the other important state offices shaped up in such form as to appear nearly complete at such an early date. The first primary is about ten months away, but the announcements for the candidates will be forthcoming early in January.

Former House Speaker Coke R. Stevenson has announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor to succeed Walter Woodul of Houston. Stevenson's home is at Junction. He will be opposed by Senators Wilbourne Collier and Will D. Pace.

Governor Woodul has announced for attorney general, declining to enter the free-for-all which generally characterized the governor's race. But as conditions stand now, he is due for opposition.

Speaker Robert Calvert has announced for attorney general against Woodul. Four others regarded as definite entrants in the race are District Judge Ralph Yarborough, Everett L. Looney, Gerald C. Mann, and District Attorney Lewis Goodrich of Shamrock.

Usual interest is expected to center upon the race for railroad commissioner next year, with the fight for control of the commission between the Thomson-Terrell and Lon Smith factions being renewed. Commissioner Ernest Thomson and C. V. Terrell have constituted a voting majority of the three-man commission and have consistently differed with and overridden the objections of Commissioner Smith.

Last year, with Mr. Thomson standing for re-election for a six year term, Commissioner Smith actively supported the incumbent commissioner's opponent, Attorney Frank Norris of

Farmers in Coryell County Write About Silo Methods They Use

Coryell County farmers have found in the trench silo an economical and satisfactory way of storing feed.

County Agent Guy Powell recently sent out a questionnaire to a number of Coryell farmers, asking them to give the advantages and disadvantages of trench silos as they've found them within their own experience.

Alvin Wolfe, farming near Gatesville replied that he dug a trench silo in July 1935 when the ground was dry and hard, but I made good headway after all. If I had dug it while the ground was moist, I could have dug it so much quicker.

Uses Plan

"I used a turning plow to loosen the dirt, and a four-foot fresno to move dirt, until it began to get so deep and narrow I could not get three head of horses through it. Then I used two to a slip to finish.

"August 15, 1936, I refilled with immature bagari, and with some Johnson grass I did not realize as good results with this as I did with the first. I had this silage tramped and it was tramped on the side more than in the middle. So it settled in the middle more than on the sides. This caused what water that soaked in to feed to make its way to the center of the feed, which damaged it."

A. T. Quicksall of Ames also found that silage increased his milk production. He replied: "The boys and I made us a small trench silo last summer. It was 50 feet long, 4 feet deep, 6 feet wide at the top, and 4 feet at the bottom.

"We filled it with bundle hegari the first week in August and opened it the first week in March, 1937. Our cows gave more milk after we started feeding this than they did while running on oats pasture.

"We are planning to make our silo larger by increasing the width to 6 feet at the bottom and 8 feet at the top. This will make it wide enough to drive a wagon through as you unload and will keep it packed down good. We want to try some corn in it this year, with hegari.

"This is the best way to put up feed we have ever tried. The rats do not bother this feed and you can keep it over for another year if you do not need it."

"Many Advantages

A. L. Freeman of Ireland said, "Personally, the disadvantages (of a trench silo) are so small as comparison with the gain received there will be little comparison.

"My brother and I dug our silo in the spring of 1934. Total time to dig it was one and one-half days, this being done at odd times. It was 50 feet long, 7 feet wide at the top and sloping to 5 feet wide at the bottom, and 5 feet deep.

"The only equipment necessary is a plow and fresno, keeping in mind the walls must be fairly smooth, there being no difficulty in this* if properly started.

"We filled this silo in the early part of August, 1934, with grass, corn stalk and all cutting the bind after the bundle is properly placed lengthwise in the silo.

"I dug it 80 feet long, 7 ft. deep and 8 feet wide at the top, and sloped to 6 1/2 feet at the bottom, or an average of 7 feet wide.

"I filled this silo the last of August with chopped Hegari. The seeds were practically all ripe. I failed to make my silo large enough, so had some bundles left to feed dry. As long as I fed this dry feed my cows dropped off in milk production.

"About the last of October I opened my silo and began to feed it. In about 10 days my cows doubled in milk production and increased in butterfat.

Immature Feed

"August 15, 1936, I refilled with immature bagari, and with some Johnson grass I did not realize as good results with this as I did with the first. I had this silage tramped and it was tramped on the side more than in the middle. So it settled in the middle more than on the sides. This caused what water that soaked in to feed to make its way to the center of the feed, which damaged it."

BUILDINGS FOR RENT

The depression is over! During the depression there were few buildings in Gatesville for rent, both business buildings and houses. There are still hardly any houses for rent. But the buildings—

There are at present, if you count them, something over ten buildings in Gatesville that need occupants. There is enough legitimate business here for all of these to have tenants. Just recently one more vacancy was added to the list and a needed business was forced to close its doors. You say, "so what?"

That's what we say also, but since we have a Chamber of Commerce, it seems "it's down their alley" to try to induce businesses to open here and also, incidentally, to do all in their power to keep those here that are starting or have started.

With any business here, there are legal expenses, light, gas, water bills and installations, bank accounts, clothing bills, advertising, sign making, and all the expenses you and we have in running our public and private business.

So, it seems to us that more businesses would make more business. Ain't that what we're ALL here for?

SCHOOL PILGRIMAGE

School pilgrimage to the Pan-American Exposition at Dallas, has been okeh'd by State Superintendent L. A. Woods, as shown by a news picture carried in the News Tuesday, Sept. 21.

During 1937 at intervals we have urged this pilgrimage, which also would have been expanded to take all those who could go. It was done in 1936, and a good-profitable time was had by all, and it would be a good job for some civic club in 1937. Who'll take the job?

YOU CAN'T SAY, "CHARGE IT!" AT COLLEGE

And that's the very very reason we know the depression is over. Colleges and universities thruout the state are recording larger enrollments than ever before, and a greater part of these students did not come from the cities and towns. They're from the farms and ranches of the state.

Besides, showing that the country is in good shape, (college has been luxury item heretofore) it also shows people are gradually realizing that college does pay, and are taking it off their luxury list.

At any rate we are glad to see the girls and boys from the rural communities waking up to the fact that a college education would help put over farming and ranching problems as well as those which confront people in other businesses of life. With this new trend, there will be more and more head work on the farm, which added to the back work will do more to get the farmers of the nation out of their predicament than anything Uncle Sam and his henchmen can ever do.

If a total of the college students from this county could be gotten, we'll wager that it would be between 125 and 150 who are now registered in some institution of higher education.

Hornets to Tussle Moody Tonite at Seven O'clock in Season's Opener

SPORTS AS SEEN

By Hazen Ament

Tonite's Probable Lineup

When the Hornets meet the Moody boys tonite, we look for the starting lineup to read like this: Cotton Davis (64) left guard; Adams (71) left tackle; Bruce Jones (70) left end; Wallace (69) center; Blankenship (65) right guard; Williams (63) right tackle; Gilbreath (68) right end; Weaver (67) right half; Fore (77) left half; Joe Brown (75) quarter; Voss (73) fullback.

Tuesday night marked the first time the Hornets have worked under the lights this season. Coach Worley showed them off to the local fans and by the way, the west side stands were almost half full of eager, enthusiastic fans waiting and hoping to see a powerful, fast, hardworking nest of Hornets ready for action. They did just that and more I can be truthful in stating that most of the fans went home feeling good after viewing the boys in light action.

Voss has improved greatly since last year, he carries the ball accurately with lots of power.

Joe Ned Brown at the throttle position looks mighty good. He's fast and uses that old bean.

If Fore keeps going as he has these last few days, he will give the foes a wall-eyed-fit. He is a much better broken field runner than he was last year. We believe that is due to his track work last season.

Although Hinsley's left arm is still giving him trouble, it hasn't affected his right, one iota. His accuracy is improving right along, and he will see lots of service.

In Gregory the fans saw some real punting Tuesday nite. That toe is going to mean business this season.

COACH MORLEY JENNINGS

Waco, Sept. 24, Southwestern University broadcasts a warning to Golden Bruins of Baylor University saying that Saturday nite they will bring to the Waco Municipal stadium a heavy football team that will defeat the Southwest conference eleven.

A heavy experienced line is the main reason why the Pirates send out a pre-battle warning to Coach Morley Jennings and his boys. Local scouts who went to Georgetown Saturday night saw a stubborn Southwestern club—the strongest for that school in many years—as they defeated Jacksonville's Lon Morris aggregation, 13 to 0.

The Pirates several years ago had a habit of upsetting South-west elevens in early games, but whether their club of 1937 is of the calibre of the elevens when Carl Reynolds and the other great Pirates roamed the gridiron is yet to be seen.

Bears have this week been put through strenuous scrimmage sessions in preparation for the tilt and Coaches Jennings and Bill Henderson are taking no chances.

Two practice games are on tap for the bears before they tackle their first circuit opponent, the University of Arkansas Razorbacks, and the Baylor coaching staff hopes to iron out the wrinkles in their team during the time. They hope to find in the Southwestern and the Oklahoma City University battles a capable center from the sophomore candidates. They will also be on the lookout for the most dependable back on the roster to fit into the fourth position of their combination.

S. W. CONFERENCE GAMES BROADCAST BY HUMBLE OIL COMPANY

The Southwest Conference football season will begin on the air as well as on the ground on September 25. The Humble Oil & Refining Company, sponsor of radio broadcasts of Conference games, today announced that the radio football season would break with a broadcast of the Texas-Texas Tech football game from Austin Saturday afternoon. The game begins at 2:30 p. m. and the Humble broadcast will take the air at 2:20 p. m.

Kern Tips, well known sports announcer of Houston, will handle the play-by-play description of the game, and Gene Wyatt will handle color.

The game will be put on the air over stations KNOW, Austin, KPRC, Houston, WOAI, San Antonio, KRBC, Abilene, KGKL, San Angelo, and, KBST Big Springs.

Learning that the Columbia Broadcastin System will put the Texas Christian University-Ohio State game on a national hookup, the Humble Company has made no attempt to bring this game to Texas listeners. In addition to the Columbia hookup, the game at Columbus will also be broadcast over stations WBAP-WFFA, Dallas-FT. Worth.

Announcers for Football Broadcasts

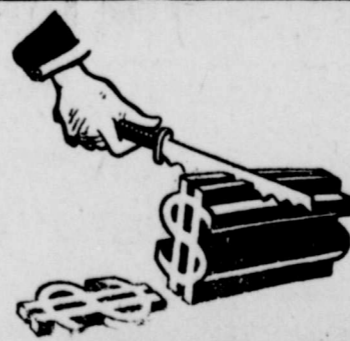

Kern Tips and Cy Leland, outstanding sports commentators of the Southwest, have been retained to handle play-by-play descriptions of the Southwest Conference football games on the radio broadcasts sponsored by the Humble Oil & Refining Company. Both announcers have been broadcasting football games for the past two years and have established numerous fans among radio adherents of football. Tips, left, is manager of Radio Station KPRC, Houston, and Leland, right, is on the announcing staff of Radio Station WBAP, Fort Worth.

Once Served—Often Repeated

Served Hot or Cold, Sour Cream Peach Pie Will Win A Warm Welcome In Every Home

SINCE Autumn brings to market a splendid variety of fresh fruits, homemakers will be getting out their favorite recipes to use in serving them to the family. Even the most languid appetite will respond to the many dishes which can be prepared with fresh peaches, apples, pears, plums, and the many other harvest time fruits and vegetables.

Many of these fresh fruits will no doubt find their way into delicious pies, cakes, dumplings, and other tasty dishes. One of the most popular uses for peaches and apples is in pies. An open faced pie of either apples or peaches, dressed with dairy made sour cream, is a combination you will never forget. The sour cream and brown sugar combine to add a delicate flavor to these fruits that is hard to define, yet so delicious it will leave everyone begging for more.

These pies make either a hot or cold dessert, and when combined with ice cream or whipped cream fill a place in the menu that will surely be called "tops" in any language. The richness of dairy made sour cream, as well as its consistency, is carefully controlled, and comes as a standard product to every home. Thus it is possible to give definite proportions to be followed in making this fruit pie that will insure accurate results and a quality product each time it is prepared. Ask your dairyman to leave you a jar of dairy made sour cream tomorrow and try one of these delicious fruit pies.

Sour Cream Peach Pie

7 or 8 peaches 1/2 cup granulated sugar
 1 cup thick sour cream 2 tsp. flour
 1 cup brown sugar 2 tsp. quick cooking tapioca

Wash, pare, and halve peaches. Combine flour, granulated sugar, and tapioca. Spread this on the bottom and sides of an unbaked pie shell. Combine the sour cream and brown sugar and dip each peach section in this mixture and arrange in pie shell. After the pie shell is filled, pour the remaining sour cream mixture over the peach sections and place in a preheated oven of 400 degrees. After 15 minutes, reduce temperature to 250 degrees and continue baking for one hour, or until peaches are tender.

This Sour Cream Peach Pie may be served hot or cold. The amounts listed are sufficient to fill an 8 1/4 inch pie pan.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

THE DAY CAMP

Enjoy camping by the day; enjoy your own bed at night. Such is the day camp. Of course children prefer the real thing staying away overnight and rousing it. But for one reason or another, real camping is not yet available to every child. To offset this someone started the day camp and so far as I know it has been very popular.

My chief purpose here is to pass the idea along, for it has some real merit both from the educational and health point of view. And it is economical, so much so that in a town or city every child can participate, at least for a portion of each summer.

While many things must be taken into account, here are a few of the essentials. Of course, adult leadership of a high order is important. The camp site must be safe and sanitary, with particular attention paid to the water supply, sewage disposal, and swimming safety. The program must be balanced so that rest, and quite activities, will counteract the tendency to over exertion. Naturally, the food store must be selected with the thought of the needs of the growing child. Thus an opportunity arises for helping the child to form habits and likes with respect to milk, fruits, and vegetables. Out in the open, where the appetite expands, a hungry child will eat what is given him and like it. But let's give him what he needs.

Stella Dallas

BARBARA STANWYCK
JOHN BOLES • ANNE SHIRLEY
AND Alan Hale • Barbara O'Neil
Directed by KING VIDOR

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
Stephen Dallas, alone in the world, marries the beautiful but untutored Stella. After their daughter Laurel is born, Stephen is driven to leave his home by Stella's crude tastes and her fondness for the company of Ed Munn, race-track habitue. Years later, a thriving businessman, he meets Helen Morrison, his early love, now a beautiful widow. Meanwhile Laurel, grown up to be a lovely young girl, divides her time between her estranged parents, but her mother, who lavishes all her affection on her, comes first. Stephen, wishing to marry Helen, asks Stella for a divorce, but in vain. Stephen, who has introduced Laurel to the Morrises, sends her and Stella to a fashionable summer hotel where young Richard Grosvenor falls in love with her. But Stella disgraces her daughter by dressing loudly and acting with absurd elegance.

Chapter Six

When Stella returned to their hotel suite, she found Laurel frantically packing.

"Why, Lollie! What on earth!"

"Mother, we're going home!"

Stella was at a loss what to make of it. Had Laurel had a quarrel with her "young man"? She would fix that, she announced lightly. She would invite the Grosvenors to din-might marry. All this she was willing to do, she told Helen haltingly and with obvious agony, in order that she might be relieved of the "burden" of caring further for Laurel.

Helen was profoundly touched. Herself a mother, she saw through Stella's self-effacing pretense and recognized the tremendous sacrifice this woman was making so that the daughter who was all she had loved in the world might have the advantages which Helen could give her.

"Please — Mrs. — Stella... Please — I didn't know anyone could be so unselfish —" was all she could say.

And so Laurel went to live with the Morrises — just for a visit, Stella told her, for she knew that Laurel would never consent to leave her permanently. And she was right; for as soon as Laurel was informed by Stephen and Helen that her home was henceforth to be with them, she rebelled, and fled back to Stella, heartsick with the knowledge that her mother had, after all, heard those disdainful voices on the train.

But Stella had cast her die, and was prepared to stand by the sacrifice she had made. She was not surprised to receive Helen's warning telegram that her daughter was coming back to her; and she quickly made her preparations. When Laurel burst into the little house, aglow with love and joy at seeing her mother again, she found a strange Stella — a Stella loudly and ner, as though nothing had happened, and "clear the atmosphere." She picked up the telephone — but Laurel, with a cry of horror, made her put it down, and brought home to her the realization that there was something much more serious than a mere lovers' quarrel. And at last Stella submitted.

But Laurel, in seeking refuge for herself and her unhappy mother from public disgrace and shame, was to find that they had only leapt from one cauldron of misery into another. That night, as they lay in their Pullman berths waiting for the train to start — Stella in the lower and Laurel above her — they heard excited young voices from the adjoining drawing room.

"Did you see that funny looking woman this afternoon?... No — but Joan told me... If you didn't see her she can't be described... Dresses up to here... Paint an inch thick... And do you know who she was? Laurel Dallas' mother!... I bet Laurel won't be wearing Dick Grosvenor's frat pin very long..."

Terror gripped Laurel's heart — not for herself, but for her mother, lest she had heard. Stealthily the girl looked down over the edge of her berth. But Stella's eyes were tight shut — for, having heard the twittering young things spreading her ignominy, and realized for the first time what she had done to her daughter, she quickly feigned sleep to hide her suffering from Laurel. And Laurel climbed down to the lower berth to cuddle in her mother's arms — and both lay there, each with her secret tears welling out for the other.

Mrs. Stephen Dallas was calling on Mrs. Helen Morrison at the latter's palatial home. It was a meeting that Helen dreaded; but she found Stella all humility and good will.

Stella, it seemed, had changed her mind about Laurel. The girl was growing up, was becoming a greater responsibility than she cared to have. So Stella would be glad to let her daughter make her home permanently with Helen; and furthermore, she would give Stephen his divorce so that he and Helen flashily gotten up, playing and singing coarse jazz tunes on the piano; a Stella who seemed scarcely to have time to notice her daughter. It was a heart-breaking bit of play-acting, but Stella went through with it.

Laurel was horrified, then repelled. And when Stella jauntily announced that she had been "step-pin' out" with Ed Munn again, and that he was coming over that night, Laurel could bear no more. Convinced that her mother was a completely changed woman, Laurel left her for the last time — to return gratefully to the sanctuary of her father and Helen. And she never knew how bitterly Stella Dallas sobbed out her heart when her daughter went away forever.

Sad months passed by before Laurel recovered from that shock. But, helped by the tender solicitude of the Morrison family and distracted from her sorrow by the attractive people she came to know, she became in time her natural sweet, bubbling, joyful self. Stephen in the meantime had quietly married Helen, his first love; and in due course of time the society columns carried the announcement that Laurel Dallas, the recent debutante, had become engaged to Richard Grosvenor.

The wedding was one of the events of the social season. For Stephen and Helen, as well as for the young bridegroom, it was an occasion of unalloyed happiness; and it was happiness too, tinged only with a passing sigh of regret for the mother she had so dearly loved, for Laurel. But none of them knew, nor ever could know, of the worn, shabby figure that stood outside in the drizzling rain and watched the beautiful young couple seal their compact with a kiss — watched with a joyful glow on her face and with happiness in her heart that would warm her through all the chilly years to come. For now in truth triumph had come to Stella Dallas.

THE END.

World Comment—

Dallas, Morris was defeated by a decisive majority.

Although Smith has promised to keep hands off the race this year, his friends are expected to support one of the numerous candidates certain to announce against Terrell.

Frank Morris announced his candidacy immediately after his defeat last year. Jerry Sadler of Kilgore, oil operator, has announced his candidacy. Other possibilities for the race include Bailey Sheppard, former assistant attorney general, Senator Will Martin of Hillsboro, Roy Hofheinz, county judge of Harris County, R. A. Stuart of Fort Worth, and John Wood, member of the Texas Highway commission.
