30 Years Is A Long Time: Camp Fire Girls That Old

No, the girls themselves are not 30 years old—they're in their teens.

It's the organization, which is celebrating its 30th Anniversary this week.

The activity here, as far as we have been informed has been confined to selling donuts, and the girls have been passing these out in numbers in the business section of town.

Enough to say, any organization that lasts 30 years ought to be pretty good.

Scholastic Census To Be Taken During March: Blanks Here

Enumerators have already started work Monday taking the school census for the county, and will have until March 31 to complete the job. All children who were six years of age before September 1 and those who are not 18 will be included in the count.

All enumerators are urged by County Superintendent Ollie Little to make a careful count so as not to miss a single person within the age. Since so many families are moving during this month on account of the evacuation in the army camp area, the work will require a more painstaking effort. Children missed by the enumerators means that the money which the school district should receive for that pupil is lost to the district. In some years there are quite a few children that are missed entirely which means that much money is lost by the schools which they are rightfully entitled to.

While in most districts of the county, blanks for this work have been secured, there are a few delinquencies. At this time, these are Hubbard, Leon, Bee House, Woodward, Spring Valley, Harmon, Davidson, Brown's Creek, Coryell Valley, Hay Valley and Peabody.

TIRE QUOTA FOR MARCH IS NAMED FROM OFFICE

Coryell county's tire quota for March has been set as follows: 24 standard tires, 20 tubes, 59 truck tires, 25 retreads, and 66 tubes.

Those are the figures, and what they cover remains to be seen, that is, if you can get one of those papers.

Hornets Drop To Van 56-30: Waco Loses To Houston

Gatesville High School Hornet basketball team dropped their opening game in the State Tournament in Austin yesterday to Van High School 56-30. Waco, the other central Texas entry (Class AA) lost to Houston's Jeff Davis High School 31-26.

Van's Vandals breezed thru to an easy 56-30 victory over Gatesville to open the 1942 state high school basketball tournament. At the half, Van held a 37-11 advantage.

The decision was not surprising, for Van's record this season includes victories over two teams that are competing in Class AA—Dallas Tech and Denton.

Lanky Ribert Stringer set the pace for Van by scoring 22 points in the first 20 minutes, after which a substitute was sent in. Van's other forward George Beggs was run-ner-up with 14.

GHS Hornets in Hillsboro met Avinger of Cass county in the opener in that tournament.

CHARLES F. ROESER IS NAMED GEN. CHAIRMAN DIST. 3 OIL COORD'TOR

Charles F. Roeser of Fort Worth general chairman for District 3 of the national petroleum co-ordination set-up, today was named chairman of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association drive for collection of scrap metal and rubber in the oil industry.

Mr. Roeser, in accepting the chairmanship, extended the drive to cover not only Texas, but also all other States of District Three, including Louisiana, New Mexico, Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama.

"The collection of the scrap of the oil industry is too important to confine merely to Texas," Mr. Roeser said. "I am therefore enlarging our drive to cover all six States of District Three, and am asking the Texas Mid-Continent to co-ordinate the campaign over this entire area through its affiliated organizations."

The collection of oil field scrap iron, steel, aluminum and rubber was undertaken by the association at the request of the Federal Government through its Bureau of Industrial Conservation.

"Federal conservation authorities have asked us to get together for re-processing all the scrap metal and rubber now on the leases, in the yards and at the plants of the oil industry," Mr. Roeser said. "It is a patriotic duty which the oilmen gladly assume as part of our industry's program of war-time co-ordination."

"Also, it can prove to be of benefit to our industry in its efforts to drill new wells and make the other expansions which the increased demands upon our industry make necessary. Some of this scrap doubtless will be re-used in making oil field goods which are vitally needed to supply the additional oil and find the new reserves called for by the nation's victory program."

Chairmen and committees to supervise collection of the scrap will be appointed at once in each large producing area of the six States, Mr. Roeser said. At the request of the Federal authorities, the scrap will be sorted and bought by regular scrap dealers for shipment to furnaces needing it. Co-operating in the campaign will be local and field representatives of oil field equipment manufacturers who'll serve as members of the committees.

HANN HARDING LOVE FROM A STRANGER

BASIL RATHBONE

Chapter One

On sunny mornings Carol Howard lingered to watch the smoke curling from the chimney pots of the London roofs, visible from the window of the little flat she shared with her Aunt Lou and her friend, Kate.

Glimpsed between bath and breakfast, the scene had a feeling of magic as if she could see the vast beast of the city break the bonds of its slumber and come gently alive. It was the only thing that relieved her momentarily of the feeling of intolerable humdrum that filled her life, that could assuage the longing to fly away to distant lands. Aunt Lou and her liver complaints; dear, sweet, dejected Kate and the sticky children who labored through their scales under her ministrations; the days of her life filed away on prim, white sheets in her office. Those were the things Carol wanted to escape. In simple fact, Carol was hungry for romance.

But rainy mornings were intolerable. And this was a rainy morning. And Kate was talking about the thing that was uppermost in their minds, the fact that Ronnie Bruce, who had been away from Carol five vaguely aware of her jumping to her feet and rining past his desk, could just raise his voice in an ineffectual "Miss Howard! Miss Howard..." as she disappeared through the door, forever.

Kate saw her coming through the door of their apartment like some mad, breathless apparition covered with bundles, rakishly sporting a gorgeous new hat.

"I'm rich! I've won a fortune!" Carol shrieked, "nine million pennies. So many dollars, so many dollars!"

"Come on, sit down," Kate ordered her. "I knew Aunt Lou would drive you crazy."

"You don't understand, Kate. I've won the Sweepstakes!"

"Go on. I'm listening."

"That book of tickets did it, the one you didn't want me to buy."

"I can't believe it," spoke Kate suddenly catching the infection of Carol's gaiety.

"I couldn't either," Carol said and suddenly hugged her. "Oh, think of it, thousands of thousands of pounds."

"You don't understand, Kate. I've won the Sweepstakes!"

long years in the Sudan, was returning to marry her.

"I suppose Aunt Lou will be hanging around your neck even after you marry Ronnie," spoke Kate, vigorously buttering a piece of toast.

"I can't throw her in the dust bin," Carol replied with an amused glance.

"Why not? Don't let her muss up your married life. You don't know how lucky you are to get married!"

"I know, Kate. I do appreciate Ronnie," Carol answered, then glanced up at the clock. "Oh, heavens! I'll be late," she cried, jumping up and gathering her things.

Kate followed her to the door. "What'll I bring home for dinner," Carol asked. There was a hurried conference and a hasty decision on either liver or mutton, and Carol disappeared from sight running quickly down the stairs.

At her office, Carol quickly hung her things, praying that her lateness would escape the detection of Mr. Tuttle. But Mr. Tuttle, who was as dry and impersonal as his name, spoke to her in his unadorned voice saying, "Why were you late, Miss Howard?"

"Because I was looking at a hat, Mr. Tuttle," she answered glibly and turned to the letter that was on the top of the desk. As she unfolded the contents of the letter a crumpled newspaper clipping fell out. She smoothed the clipping, then read hastily through the letter, then caught her breath in astonishment. Then she hunted feverishly through her handbag and bringing out a pasteboard ticket, laid it beside the clipping with trembling hands.

Mr. Tuttle heard her little-girl squeal of astonished delight, was alone.

Aunt Lou fell in with their plans. When they ushered her through the door, clasping her hot water bag and her nostrums in a package, with all her luggage about her, she dabbed at an imaginary tear and said, "I really believe you are glad to see me go." Carol laughed happily and kissed her. "You're a silly dear," she said.

Then Aunt Lou was gone and Carol wheeled about and said, "Now to prepare for the prodigal's return."

For the next few minutes Kate and Carol busied themselves setting the apartment in order. Then Kate noticed there was no tea, and left to buy some, shouting "See you later!"

Two minutes after she left, there was a tentative knock on the door, and Carol giving herself one last glimpse in the mirror and patting her hair into place, flew to open it.

"Ronnie, Ronnie, darling," she cried, halted in dismay and put her hand up to her mouth. "Oh, oh, I'm sorry," she spoke weakly, "I thought..."

"Your flat is to let?" the man in the shadow spoke in a pleasant, controlled voice.

"The what?" Kate spoke still amazed, "Oh yes...but the agent didn't tell me anyone was coming."

"Oh, I'm sorry," he said, his voice gently tinged with regret. "It was entirely my fault. I was to have let him know. If it's any inconvenience..." and he paused for her answer.

Kate was recovering her composure. "Oh no, not at all," she answered, stepping aside so he could enter. "Please do come in."

For three days the House has been considering what is known as a War Powers Bill. This bill in effect suspends for the period of the war a great number of rights and privileges that the American people has enjoyed. It confers vast new and additional powers on the President. We all regret that the safety of the nation makes this type of legislation necessary, but practically all groups of Americans recognize that they must give up for the time being many of their most cherished rights if they are to enjoy any rights in the future. In fact, this seems to be the sentiment of practically all of the members of the House in regard to nearly every provision of the bill, and while the consideration of the bill will not be completed until tomorrow, I am confident that it will pass with an overwhelming majority.

The one item where a sizeable group of American citizens and many members of Congress seem to be utterly unwilling to make any sacrifices no matter how important such sacrifices may be to our national existence, is in the matter of labor relations. Most everyone agrees that we must have uninterrupted production in our factories, and that our machines must be kept running twenty-four hours per day. Obviously this cannot be accomplished if workers continue to strike as they have been doing in increasing numbers recently. Obviously we cannot work simply when it is convenient and whip a group of nations where everybody works just as long as they can efficiently labor. General McArthur's men have not held on by fighting 40 hours per week, and we won't whip anybody by confining our industrial effort to 40 hours per week. With a 40 hour week limitation even three shifts per day can't keep a plant running 24 hrs. per day. Most labor leaders have said that their men were ready and anxious to do their utmost to help win the war. I believe this is true as to 95 per cent of the workers of America.

It therefore seems to me that the one simple, direct and practical thing to do would be to suspend the 40 hour week for the duration of the war. Labor is protected by minimum wage laws so that no employer could take advantage of such a suspension to reduce the worker's regular hourly wage. It would definitely assure a substantial increase in the output of war materials in American factories. Representative Smith of Virginia offered an amendment to the pending bill suspending the 40 hour week for the duration of the war. After two days of debate the House killed the amendment by a vote of 226 against to only 62 for. I voted for the amendment. I simply can't see how we can expect our brave boys to continue their magnificent work in our armed services and yet receive absolutely no cooperation from those working in industry. As I see it, our industrial workers who are receiving good wages working at safe jobs near home should surely be willing to temporarily forgo some of the advantages they enjoy to help win this war, and as I have pointed out, most of them would actually make more money for themselves by so doing. In spite of this, most of the representatives of the industrial areas refuse to vote to break the bottleneck that is holding back industrial production.

Some members of the House have simply taken the position that inasmuch as the House passed a bill to prohibit strikes in defense industries almost 3 months ago, and the Senate refuses to even consider it, that they will not vote for any further labor legislation of any kind until the Administration asks the Senate Committee to report the bill which we have already passed. Up to this time the President has not only refused to ask that this bill be reported, but on the contrary, he has appeared to oppose its passage and has suggested that we could rely on the promises of labor organizations that there would be no strikes in defense industries. I don't question anybody's good faith, but the unfortunate fact is that serious strikes continue in important war industries. I have always voted for every measure to stop strikes in war industries. I voted today to speed-up our war production, and while the results so far have been most discouraging, I shall continue to do all I can to get the needed war materials produced as rapidly as possible.

THE BROWN ABSTRACT COMPANY WANTS YOUR ABSTRACT WORK

I have heard of at least one friend of mine stating that I had so much work for the army that he didn't see how I could give good service. The large amount of work I have for the War Department enables me to employ plenty of efficient help and to turn out my regular work faster than ever before. In fact I need all the work I can get to keep my typists busy. Ask any lawyer in town if I am not rendering prompt and efficient service.

I have five typists and I would like to have at least five orders on hand at all times.

Bring on your abstract business, I will attend to it, and I will DO IT NOW! In making a land trade, the abstract is the most important thing. If you have your land advertised for sale, bring me your abstract, let me bring it down to date, so you will be ready to close your deal when you make one.

CORYELL COUNTY QUINT TO ENTER STATE T.A.A.F. TOURNEY

Coryell County, long the hotbed of basketball enthusiasm in Central Texas, is striving to have an entry in this year's Texas Amateur Athletic Federation state cage tournament, to be held in the Dalhi gym in Dallas March 13 and 14.

The team will be made up of a galaxy of the present high school stars, including Lemmer and Russell of Ireland, Box, Weaver, Pruitt, and Drake of Jonesboro, Manning and Blanchard of Gatesville.

Grady Carson, teacher in the Jonesboro school system and manager of the club, persuaded Waco officials to let his quintet represent the Central Texas section as a rural team, thus eliminating the necessity of the boys' winning a district tournament to compete in the Dallas meet.

Back in 1936, a club sponsored by Painter's, ably coached by Rabon Balch, and composed of such court luminaries as Hazen Ward, Cullen Walsh, Jack Thornton, and Johnny Edwards brushed aside all competition to win the state title and earn reams of publicity for this little city and their sponsoring firm. Because of their great play in the tournament, the four boys mentioned above were given scholarships to TWC, where they found cage fame and glory, winning the Texas Conference title the three years they performed.

Carson tells us that as yet he has found no sponsor or group of sponsors for his club. The expense incurred will not be much, but the boys will have to stay in Dallas two days in order to compete.

All the players are in great shape, having come through strenuous campaigns with their various high school quints. Box and Pruitt were ineligible at Jonesboro, but have been working out with the Eagles all season and should be ready to go.

Purmela To Hold Boxing Meet For Defense

School officials at Purmela, headed by the popular Earl Hite, are arranging a big amateur boxing show in cooperation with the government Physical Fitness Program, which is a part of the huge National Defense program.

Any hopeful young pugilist who is anxious to show his wares in the ring should drop a card or letter to Earl H. Hite, Purmela Principal, Gatesville Route 3, giving his name, age and weight. If the various schools should like to enter teams, the team coach should send in all entrants' names, ages, and weights. Deadline for entries has been set for March 12, so those interested should give the matter their immediate attention. The scheduled date for the opening night is March 20, but should weather conditions be unfavorable, the first round events will be staged the following Monday night, March 23. The admission charge will be a defense stamp.

Prospects for a big tournament are bright. For the past four or five years, Gatesville has had two or three years every spring and these have all been well attended.

Awards for the winners in each division will be presented after the champion finals, which will be held at a later date. Weight classifications are as follows:

- 80-95 lbs.—Paperweights.
- 96-111—Flyweights
- 112-124—Featherweights
- 125-136—Bantamweights
- 137-147—Welterweights
- 148-160—Lightweights
- 161-175—Middleweights
- 176 and up—Heavyweights.

Both the local high school basketball teams encountered opposition in their respective state tournaments yesterday.

The Hornets, after winning from a great Nocona team despite the loss of their star center through injuries, tackled Van, pre-tournament favorites, in the state curtain raiser yesterday morning. By the time you read these lines, the outcome of that contest will be known. The Hornets are in great shape, as Thornton's knee is completely healed. Wilkinson, stellar guard, was feeling bad Tuesday, but Mentor Pruitt dosed him up with some "effective medicine" and put him to bed, so he should be ready to go Thursday.

The Hornettes engaged a northeast sextette, Avinger, yesterday at Hillsboro. The Hornettes were favored to win that one and enter into the second round of play.

In a conversation with Coach Pruitt, he stated that immediately after the state basketball tournament this week end, he and his athletes will start track and field practice session. Since the tire rationing forbids the various schools over the county to use school buses for transportation to various athletic events, there will be no county meet this year. The local thinly-clad will probably have meets with other surrounding schools of its class, and may enter into district competition.

If the opportunity presents itself, the high school will have a softball team operated under the Interscholastic League, who added this to their statewide athletic program for the first time this year in cooperation with the government Physical Fitness program. If the surrounding schools have teams then Gatesville will have one too, but it would be useless to work up a club and then be unable to match games.

Purmela is staging a county-wide boxing show March 20, the first thing of its kind to be held in the county this year. The tournament officials are anxious to have a big entry list, so everyone interested should write Earl Hite, Purmela principal, Gatesville Rt. 3, Mr. Hite is handling the tournament, and if the various schools are interested in entering teams, they should contact him.

Roundballers from over the county are attempting to enter a team in the big TAAF cage tournament at Dallas. With such stars as Lemmer, Box, Drake, Blanchard and Manning on their roster this club could go far in the meet.

Hornettes Strong Entry In State Tournament

The fourth annual State High School Girls' Basketball Tournament got underway yesterday in the Hillsboro gym, and action will continue until Saturday night, when the new state champion will be crowned.

Gatesville's Golden Hornettes, champions in 1939 and quarter-finalists in 1940 and 1941, are one of the favored entries in the meet for the fourth successive year. They played Avinger, northeast Texas entry, in their 1st game yesterday. Not much is known of the strength of the Avinger sextette, but the local lassies were favored to win.

All sixteen teams met first round opponents yesterday, with the second round contests due to be played Friday, the semi-final Saturday afternoon, and the finals Saturday night. There will be a consolation round also to afford the cage fanatics more of their favorite entertainment.

Director L. C. McKamie of the Abbott school system, has listed the following entries: Gatesville and Aquilla, central Texas; Quail, Panhandle district; Tenaha, east Texas; Silsbee, southeastern section; Mesquite, north Texas; Sundown, northwest district; Brock, Weatherford district; Emory, northeast Texas, Mayfield, central Texas; Avinger, northeast Texas; La Poynar, west Texas; Lingleville, De Leon district; Borger, Panhandle district; and Tyrone, Lubbock district.

Trophies will be given the winning teams and awards will go to the individual performers on these clubs. Awards will also be given to members of the All-State team, which will be picked by a committee headed by Tom Stell of Irene.

CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL OF HONOR

This, the highest decoration awarded by the U. S. Government, can be given to any officer or enlisted man of the United States Army who shall "in action involving actual conflict with an enemy distinguish himself conspicuously by his gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life, above and beyond the call to duty." It was first authorized by act of Congress in 1862, and presented "in the name of Congress"; hence the frequent allusion to it as the "Congressional Medal."

The present design was adopted in 1904. A bronze five-pointed star, surrounded by a laurel wreath in green enamel, suspended by two links from a bronze bar bearing the inscription "Valor," and surmounted by an eagle. In the center of the star is the head of Minerva surrounded by the inscription "United States of America." Each ray of the star bears an oak leaf in green enamel. On the reverse of the medal is engraved the name of the recipient. It may be worn with a neck band. The ribbon is of light blue watered silk. Midway between the neckband and on the ribbon supporting the medal are 18 white stars arranged in the form of a triple chevron.
