LARGEST PAID CIRCULATION IN CORYELL COUNTY THERE

"Fustest with the Mostest"

Local Rep. Associated Press Member Texas Press Assn.
Local Rep. Texas Election Bureau Member Nat'l Editorial Assn.
GATESVILLE, TEXAS 5c A COPY VOLUME X
TUESDAY, MAY 26, 1942 NUMBER 45

The statement, to us, that shows the utmost seriousness about World War II, is one that Nat Floyd, in a story from "News Week," last issue. He was amazed and embittered to hear people talking of what we can do in 1943 while the Japs help themselves to what they want in 1942.

"The idea of winning with production for 1943," he comments, "is a variation of the Maginot complex. To win, we have to kill Germans and Japs—plenty of them—and now."

He was only on Corregidor, Bataan and Mindanao. He ought to know.

Another first: Friday night the Company met "Red" White's Civies in the ice-breaker of the season. You ought to have been there, and when these, or other teams play, you ought to be there too. It's Recreation with a capital "R."

Clipped and worth clipping: "A newspaper never knows the strength of its popularity until campaign year. It is then that our mail begins to increase and letters arrive in every mail from people we never heard of asking to support this candidate or that, and many go so far as to ask you to give space for long winded articles they have written. Well, it at least gives the publisher a chance to contribute to the waste basket budget. If the country publisher gave just a few lines to each of these free publicity matters they receive in one week, they would not have room for the local news of their home town."—The Four County Press.

Uncle Sam, too, is quite generous in his "gifts" to the press. Most of these can be told effectively and efficiently in one paragraph but are released in pages—and lots of pages, and, are used to the limit of our ability.

If you agree with everything, you're a "yes" man or a nincompoop. If you disagree with a lot of things, you're a "griper," a reactionist, or worse. What's a fellow going to do? We can't answer that one.

Gene Alvis in "The Texas Parade" in "Faces of Month"

In The Texas Parade, May, 1942, published by the Texas Good Roads Association, C. E. (Gene) Alvis, Jr., former county attorney, is featured in "Faces of the Month."

Besides presenting Gene and his pipe, the publication has the following to say:

"Cleaning up the legal profession is the simple task which has been assigned to genial Gene Alvis of Gatesville. Employed by the State Bar to assist the grievance committees of the 21 congressional districts of Texas, he carries the title of attorney-investigator.

"It is Mr. Alvis's belief that almost all lawyers are honest, but that the shysters should be removed for the profession's sake, as well as for the good of the public. Quiet and unassuming, he carries on his work without the blustering aggressiveness often associated with investigators.

"He was christened Chambliss Eugene Alvis, Jr., in Cisco 34 years ago, and holds a bachelor of laws degree from the University of Texas. Mrs. Alvis is the former Virginia Frances Worthy of Roscoe.

"Admitted to the bar April 22, 1933, Mr. Alvis began his law practice in Gatesville and served for the next two years as city attorney."

"An avid amateur photographer, Mr. Alvis has used up countless flash bulbs and films on his brand new son, James Eugene, born March 28, a little more than a month after his father gave up the Coryell county attorney's job to move to Austin. He had served as county attorney since 1935.

"Other hobby weaknesses displayed by Mr. Alvis, in addition to photography, include a fondness for dogs and practical joking. Another hobby is proving its utility. He now rides a bicycle to work."

That, folks, is a nice compliment to one of Gatesville's young exes.

Oley Beard, formerly "head skeet" at the City Drug, and chief ticket seller, was a patient in a Waco hospital yesterday, where he underwent an operation.

Slone, Mary Margaret Holmes, Josephine McClellan, Grace Weigand, Vivian McKelvy, Camille Lester, Bobby Hudson, Ruth Franks, Patsy Walker, Cherry Clarry, Countess Pruner, Mary Allen Powell, Carolyn Stewart, Doris Jean Hudson, Emily Ruth Powell, Martha Ann Davidson and Mary Ruth Franks.

Soldiers' night will be Thursday, followed by a dance, afterwards.

Wonder how many bonds and war stamps were spent sending telegrams to every Chamber of Commerce in the United States, if they were sent? It doesn't happen either, until July 1, more than a month away. Looks like a "franked" letter would have done just as well.

..... The Indians of Texas caught Smithwick's fancy. His book, one of the most popular in the University of Texas Library's collection is full of curious and informative observations on their lives and misfortunes—more particularly those of the notorious Karankawas, who were probably the fiercest savages Texas has known in historic times.

Now, although later records prove otherwise, it seemed to Smithwick that these terrible "Cronks" disappeared about the time of the Texas Revolution, and he was puzzled. It wasn't that he regretted their disappearance, of course; it would have been a consummation devoutly to be wished. But he was just puzzled.

Dimmit's Hospitality
He found only one explanation to offer, and it came second-hand. It involves a certain Captain Dim-

SIDE GLANCES ON TEXAS HISTORY
By Charles O. Hucker

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE CRONKS
Among the many tales with which the literature of old Texas abounds, besides the hundreds that tell of adventure, heroism, and tragic disaster, there can be found quite a few which are humorous, whimsical, and even ridiculous. Many of them originated with old Noah Smithwick, who, in his "Evolution of Texas," reveals himself as having been not only a keen and intelligent observer, but fundamentally a humorist.

mit, who had a ranch near the mouth of the Lavaca river, and for whom the famous Dimmit Landing was named.

Captain Dimmit, Smithwick reported, had a great deal of trouble with the Cronks, his neighbors, and had come to learn that a policy of appeasement was wise on his part under the circumstances. So, whenever the tribe appeared at the ranch, as was their habit, Dimmit brought in a beef and had a barbecue for them.

When the Revolution broke out in earnest, the Captain dashed suddenly away to join the Texas army, and one day the Cronks rode up to his ranch and found the place deserted. Not knowing anything about the war and supposing that Dimmit would return at any moment, they calmly brought in a beef and helped themselves to it.

Their Signals Crossed

A company of Mexican soldiers surprised them at their little feast, Smithwick told, and demanded an explanation. The Indian chieftain smiled. "Oh, it's all right," he said; "we're Captain Dimmit's friends." Whereupon the Mexicans, with wild cries of "Viva Mexico!" chared and scattered them.

When the remnants of the Cronk tribe had reassembled and were escaping from the neighborhood as quickly as possible, they talked over the strange situation and decided that if they should be molested again they would also cry out "Viva Meyico!" It seemed to be the pass-word.

Well, it so happened that before very long they discovered a troop of cavalry riding along the prairie toward them. Immediately all the Cronks began to shout "Viva Meyico!" Unfortunately, however, this troop was a Texan one, and it now charged with as much ferocity as the Mexicans had shown earlier. As a result, the tribe was decimated, and the few survivors paddled sadly away into the Gulf.

Smithwick, of course, didn't vouch for the authenticity of this typically Smithwickian story, but inferred only that it might be true, inasmuch as the Cronks were known to have had many and curious misfortunes. "At any rate," he concluded, "I don't remember of ever hearing of them after the revolution."

Dear Chum:

Winter tried to stay a long time but when the politishuns start the hot air to rollin' it ain't got no chance.

I see where New York can't have no night baseball. Well, they got along all right fer 75 years without it, so I guess it won't be catasterfee. It took Larry McPhail ten years to convince New York they ought to play night ball, and it took defense chiefs a half a minute to convince 'em they could not.

They had to give Aunt Minnie gas twict on account of her operation—onct to get her appendix and again two weeks later to keep her from talkin' about it.

Imogen wanted to know if Uncle Tobe had read about them machines that can tell when a man is a-lyin'. Uncle Tobe said, "Hell, I married one of 'em."

I wonder if the rubber shortage is a-go'in' to keep the golfers from stretchin' their scores?

My girl friend always gets fired ever time she gets a job as a stenographer. She uses the touch-me-not system, that's why, I guess.

Uncle Tobe looked all night a Saturday night in San Antonio for a parkin' place. His car was in it.

Uncle Ezra is so dumb he thinks a umpire's mask is to keep 'em from bitin' the players. I told him the other day Aunt Minnie played Beethoven, and he wanted to know what the score was.

I'll be a-seein' you, Pal. Keep 'em Flyin'.

Yourn,

State School Nine Splits Twin Bill With Lev.-Jboro

The State Training School nine split a doubleheader with a mixed Jonesboro-Levita team Sunday, taking a thrilling 7-6 decision in the first game, to drop the second one.

Jack Barton and Bailey McAllister handled the hurling chores for the State team, while Tooter Hall worked on the mound for the losers. Although the score was tied once or twice, the State team was never behind and the issue was not in doubt as much as the score indicates.

The Jonesboro team won the second contest handily, although we were unable to learn the exact score.

SPORT SCRAPS

By POST

Gatesville's softball team won handily from the Provisional Truck Company Friday night to open the current season. Both teams were ragged at times, due probably to lack of practice, but both are sure to improve as the season progresses.

Only half the lights were turned on that night, and these shone directly into the outfielders' eyes. This made it exceptionally hard for them to handle long fly balls.

These two teams are due to meet for a return engagement soon, as the Truck Company seems anxious for revenge. It is doubtful that a suitable place to play can be found, as the city park can no longer be used since the rodeo pens and fences are already under construction.

Twilight softball seems to be the only hope for the locals. The old athletic field could probably be worked into shape for a diamond.

The Quartermaster Detachment ten of Temple, the leading club in that city's league, is trying to match a game with the local team. This will be arranged if suitable grounds and lights can be found.

The State Training School and Camp Hood baseball teams will meet for the second time this season Sunday on the Training School diamond. The army boys walked off with the second encounter, 9-4, but both teams have improved greatly since that opening fray.

The big game between the Training School and the Deaf School of Austin, scheduled for Saturday, was rained out, and will probably be played at some later date.

Waco's Dons, who are touted to have one of the best semi-pro clubs in the state, dropped both games of a Sunday twin bill to a hustling nine from Camp Wolters. The Wolters team overcame a 4-0 lead to cop the first tilt 7 to 5, and then hit Ash Hillin all the way to take the second game, 5 to 3.

The Dons open a five-game series with Cessna Aircraft team of Wichita, Kansas, Thursday night at Katy Park.

Mrs. Dwight Boyer of Oglesby, president of the local chapter, extended greetings, and Mrs. Lou Hatter introduced the guest speaker.

Out-of-county guests were Mrs. Percie Truett and Mrs. Eastland, mother of Mrs. Markham, both of Waco.

The party rooms were decorated with unusual arrangements of flowers, which carried out the color scheme of red, white and blue. Interesting "military" games were played, after which Mrs. Carroll was presented a lovely shower.

The hostesses served a delectable dessert plate, with miniature American flags as plate favors.

Presiding at the bride's book was Miss Wilma Earl Colvin, sister of the bride. Seventy-five guests registered.

Pick-up of New Pick-up and Law's Business Picks-up

A '41 pick-up was picked up by a nescapce of the Gatesville State School for Boys, and so far, the sheriff's department has not picked up this picker up.

It happens that this particular picker-up also was the pick-up artist that picked-up Curtis Maynard's car some time ago, and it was picked-up along with the picker-upper in San Antonio. This, all according to Deputy Sheriff Rufus Bureson, and the latter pick-up belonged to G. R. Williams of Pearl, who it is said was at a laundry "picking-up" some clean clothes. Looks like things are "picking up."

SHSTC "Alcalde" Dedicated to Armed Forces

Assembled in the auditorium at Sam Houston State Teachers College, C. H. Wallace, editor of this college annual, dedicated it:

"To those gallant men and women of our campus who have joined the colors:

"To you we dedicate The Alcalde of 1942. Whether you march, fly, or whether you go down to the sea in ships, we salute you and wish you well.

"Our hopes and prayers are with you in the training camp, battle camp, an on the front line. May you conduct yourselves with distinction, and may you all at no far distant day come back to us—our heroes!

"It has been our book up until the present, and now it is yours," stated the editor, speaking in behalf of his staff, just before unveiling the new book.

And, also in the SHSTC newspaper, is a brief sketch of C. H. Wallace, Jr.'s life:

"Altho C. H. was born in Olney, Texas, he is a graduate of Gatesville High School, '38, where he was active in athletics and a leader in school organizations. Unassuming in personality, C. H. has been an outstanding Sam Houston leader. His time has been well filled. He was a student announcer for 1938-39, editor of The Alcalde for '42; recognized in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges for '42; trainee in Civilian Pilot work; a member of several organizations. C. H. will go into the service upon his graduation.

SIDE GLANCES ON TEXAS HISTORY

By Charles O. Hucker
University of Texas Library

Texas Reaches Out For New Mexico

One hundred years ago public interest in Texas was centered upon a group of some 300 men who were wandering somewhere out in the West on an ambitious diplomatic mission which, if successful, would have extended the boundaries of Texas beyond Santa Fe, N. M.—but which, unsuccessful, ended in one of the major public disasters in the history of the Republic.

These men were the now famous Santa Fe Pioneers, who on June 20, 1841, had set out with President Lamar's personal blessing to take civilization to New Mexico—that is, to bring the far-northern Mexican province peacefully into their own Republic. With them went three representatives of the president and a host of merchants seeking to open up the rich old province to Texas trade. And for seven months no one in Texas knew what became of them.

For three of these months, actually, according to records in the University of Texas library's Texas collection, the Pioneers plodded across northwest Texas, most of the time on half rations and seldom if ever knowing precisely where they were. They were harassed by Indians. Their provisions ran out. Their scouts failed to return. But at last, early in September, a passing traveler told them they were only 80 or 90 miles from the New Mexico town of San Miguel.

the Pioneers sent a party under Captain William P. Lewis ahead to the town to bring back supplies. On September 15, however, Lewis's men were surrounded and disarmed by a Mexican army and politely escorted into town, where Lewis learned that the Texas scouts were prisoners and that Mexican officials had aroused the entire province to repel the "invaders."

The Mexican commandant, one Don Salezar, with Lewis as his interpreter, now set out to intercept the main force and soon came upon its advance guard which numbered about 100. Lewis told the Texans that they could enter Santa Fe for a week's peaceful trading, after which they would be allowed to return home safely; but that they must come disarmed. He pledged his own personal word to their safety, and the Texans agreed to the conditions.

Betrayal and Disaster

The following day, however, the provincial governor, Armijo, arrived. At his order, all the Texans were bound and marched off toward the Mexican interior, and he hastened to meet the main body under Brigadier General Hugh McLeod, which had suffered greatly from fatigue and lack of provisions. To McLeod the same promises were made; he, too, believed them, was betrayed, and was taken prisoner with all of his men. Thus by the middle of October the entire expedition had been lost. Its purpose had been defeated, and not a single shot had been fired in its defense.

The march into the interior was long and marked by ill-treatment and suffering, and in February, 1842, the Texans were locked up in the prisons of Santiago, Puebla and Perote. But in the meantime, on January 18, news of the disaster had reached the settlements of the Republic, and after the first shock of national disgrace had passed, work was begun to free the Pioneers. Primarily because of the intercession of the United States, where popular opinion quickly rose in behalf of the betrayed Texans, this task was successful in April except in the case of one man, Jose Antonio, Navarro, one of the president's commissioners, who was not released until two more years had passed.

The Nation's No. 1 Life Insurance Policy

BY INVESTING TEN PERCENT OF YOUR INCOME, YOU PROTECT YOUR LIFE, THE LIVES OF YOUR FAMILY, YOUR HOME, AND YOUR FUTURE... AND, LATER, GET ALL YOUR MONEY BACK... WITH INTEREST!

Sugar rationing is a challenge to every American housewife to do her part to help Uncle Sam and to show her ingenuity in still preparing tasty dishes with limited supplies. Your family will probably be more healthy as a reduction in the consumption of sugar and this is another reason for carrying it through in every phase of cooking. Turn to the natural sugars in food to satisfy that sweet tooth. Save syrup from canned fruit to sweeten other fruit, pudding sauces or beverages. Serve cooked fruits hot to enjoy their fullest flavor and sweetness. Here are timely recipes that will lead you into new adventures in wartime cookery.

Baked Custard

4 to 6 eggs, 1 quart milk, 6 tbsp. maple syrup or honey, 1/2 tsp. vanilla, butter, nutmeg, 1-4 tsp. salt. Heat the milk, maple syrup and salt. Stir the hot milk slowly into the lightly beaten eggs. Add the vanilla. Pour the mixture into custard cups, add a bit of butter to each and sprinkle lightly with nutmeg. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) on a rack in a pan of water until the custards are set. When the point of a thin knife comes out clean, the custard is done and should be removed at once from the hot water to keep it from cooking too much. Serve either hot or cold in the custard cups.

Coffee Chocolate Spice Frosting

3 tbsp. butter, 2 squares baking chocolate one-third cup strong coffee beverage, 3 cups sifted confectioner's sugar, 1 tsp. vanilla, one-eighth tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. cinnamon, one-eighth tsp. cloves. Melt chocolate and butter in double boiler. Stir well. Pour hot coffee into sugar, beat until smooth. Add ingredients and chocolate mixture, beat thoroughly.

Let stand five minutes, beat until creamy.

Vegetarian Loaf

Three-fourth cup dried bread crumbs, 1 cup peas, 1/4 cup walnuts, chopped, 1 egg, 1 tsp. salt, one-eighth tsp. pepper, 2 tbsp. butter, melted, three-fourths cup milk.

Drain peas and rub through strainer. Add other ingredients, mix well and put in small buttered bread pan. Cover with paper and bake 40 minutes in a slow oven.

Vegetable Charlotte

6 large raw potatoes, 3 large carrots, diced, 3 eggs, 3 tsp. salt, 1/4 cup flour, 1 tsp. sugar, 1 cup carrot liquid, pepper to taste.

Grate potatoes, add salt and pepper, and the eggs slightly beaten. Parboil carrots, adding sugar to the water, drain and reserve one cup carrot liquid. Mix potato mixture with carrots, add flour. Place in a well-greased pudding dish and let bake slowly about 1 1/2 hours until it is tender and golden brown.

Scalloped Mushrooms and Beans

1 pound fresh mushrooms, 2 cups white sauce, medium, 1 tsp. onion juice, 1 can green beans, 1 cup buttered crumbs.

Saute mushrooms and prepare white sauce, adding the onion juice to it. Into well-greased baking dish place a layer of mushrooms, layer of green beans, some sauce, and some crumbs. Continue this way until all ingredients are used up, sprinkling the remaining crumbs on top. Bake 15 to 20 minutes in a moderate oven until crumbs are browned.

Crabmeat Sandwiches

2 hard boiled yolks, 1 tsp. melted butter, 1/2 can crabmeat, 1 tsp. lemon juice.

Mash yolks to a smooth paste with the butter, add the lemon juice and the crabmeat chopped fine. Mix well and spread between thin slices of buttered brown bread.

Potted Cheese for Sandwiches

1 tsp. butter, 1/4 lb. American cheese, cut fine or grated, one-eighth tsp. cayenne pepper, yolk of 1 egg, beaten, 1/4 cup cream, 1 tsp. Worcester sauce.

Melt butter, add cheese and pepper. Stir until melted, then beat in gradually the yolk of egg, diluted with cream and Worcester sauce, and cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Pour in small jars and keep in refrigerator.

Some Sandwich Fillings

Mix orange marmalade with an equal amount of cream cheese. Thin slices of smoked salmon. Chopped or sliced cucumber and radishes with mayonnaise.

Vegetable Salad

1/2 head of cabbage put through food chopper, 1 Spanish onion, chopped. 2 or 3 apples. A little celery. 1 green onion.

Mix and serve with the recipe given for Inexpensive Salad Dressing.

Bowl Salad

3 tomatoes cut in eighths, 1 cucumber, sliced, 1 head lettuce, chopped, 1 Bermuda onion, sliced thin, separate into rings.

Mix with French dressing.

Inexpensive Salad Dressing

1 tsp. salt, 1 egg yolk, 1/4 cup sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1 tbsp. flour, 1 tsp. mustard, dash paprika.

Mix dry ingredients and rub any lumps out of them. Add milk, egg and vinegar. Beat with egg beater until it thickens or cook in a double boiler.

Nowadays when all of us are interested in reducing household expenditures the collection of recipes for hearty economical main dishes is of major importance. Here are several warranted to keep your menus interesting and healthful at moderate cost.

Cheese Souffle

1 cup bread crumbs, 1/2 lb. American cheese, 2 tbsp. butter, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, salt and pepper.

Cut cheese in small pieces and soak with bread crumbs and milk for 15 minutes. Add other ingredients. Bake 20 minutes in hot oven.

Spanish Rice

2 cups tomatoes, 1 chopped onion, 5 tbsp. uncooked rice, salt, pepper, butter, 1 cup cheese, cut fine, 1 chopped green pepper, 1 cup boiling water.

Bake one hour, stirring occasionally. Chopped meat may be added if desired.

Lamb Croquettes

2 cups cold meat, 1 tbsp. butter, 2 tbsp. flour, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 tsp. onion juice, 1 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. pepper.

Scald milk in double boiler, rub butter and flour together and stir on spoon in scalded milk until it dissolves. Add seasoning, remove from fire and add egg. Cook one minute. Add meat chopped fine. Chapter One Vickey met him for the first time at the quay, the day she came back to Baikie. Just off the boat with bags and luggage strewn all about her, she thought how odd, how tiny little Baikie seemed after the big world of London, Paris. He broke in on her reverie.

"Get up, please."

She was startled. "What do you mean?"

"Get up!" His hair was sandy. His eyes were no particular color, but they had a nice, warm light in them. He was lean and his mouth had the quirk of a man who laughs pleasantly.

She started to say, "Who are you?" but she got up. He bent down and carefully disentangled a half-eaten jelly apple that clung to her skirt. He bowed to the little girl who had been sitting next to her and sobbing, and presented the apple.

"Disgusting!" Vickey exclaimed and rubbed at the spot with her handkerchief.

"Would you like some spit?" he asked. She decided that she did not like him. But she told him he could help with the bags.

When he had struggled as far as the gate with the bags, her chauffeur appeared to relieve him. He waved his burdens up reluctantly.

with more than a trace of sullenness in her make-up, she was the wife of Horace Skirving, publisher of the Baikie Advertiser, Baikie's most important—and sole—newspaper.

Lisbet cast a glowing smile on the provost. "I've come to say goodbye," she said.

"Be back in time for the meeting," he urged and leaned toward her. "I couldn't do without you on the platform." He gave her a significant look and his eyes held hers for a second. Vickey could see things. She decided that Baikie had changed—very much.

He didn't like Lisbet Skirving either. He was Frank Burdon, come over from London to take a reporter's post on the Advertiser.

Horace Skirving had inducted him. He told him that the Advertiser published nothing sensational; that the paper was supporting Gow for Parliament; that the assistant editor was ill, and that Burdon would have to get an interview out of Gow, and that he would have to make up the paper and see it through the presses.

Lisbet had come in and he was introduced. She said, "How d'ye do" and ignored his outstretched hand. He knew he would never like Lisbet Skirving.

Then he went to the council meet-

His eyes had a warm, humorous light in them.

"What's her name?" he asked the chauffeur. And when he learned it, he said "Vickey, Vickey, Victoria, nice name!" as though he relished it.

The house was littered with political posters. There were new maids. The grand hall rang with the sound of her father's voice practicing a political speech. Tall, hawk-nosed and distinctly good-looking, he was on the flashy side. "Vickey! Darling!" he greeted her and threw his arms around her in exuberance. "I'm running for Parliament."

Baillie Callender turned surprised eyes on her. "Mon, but you've grown. Changed times since you fell in my pig-sty, hey?"

"Don't bother about pig-stys now. We've got to worry about council meeting," her father interrupted impatiently.

"Talking about meetings," Vickey retorted, "you might have met me down at the pier."

The provost waved her impatiently aside.

"Your father's a busy man. There's great events foreboding," Baillie told her with a knowing nod.

"Don't you see why I'm running," the provost explained to his daughter. "These are exceptional times and they call for exceptional men. Tomorrow I'm opening at the Croy cattle show, and I've got my big election meeting at night." He lowered his voice. "And this is confidential. Lord Skerryvore is coming—the leader of the party."

Vickey was more confused than ever. "Why did you get rid of Janet, the maid?" she asked.

The provost seemed embarrassed. "Why, she got impertinent and Lisbet disposed of her," he explained.

"Lisbet?" echoed Vickey. Suddenly a voice behind her said, "Who's mentioning my name?" Vickey wheeled to face Lisbet Skirving.

"Why Vickey!" she exclaimed, "How you've grown. I'd never recognize you."

Vickey remembered who Lisbet was now. A tall, willowy blonde

ing. Vickey met him for the second time. He was sitting beside her. The exchanged "Hello's." Provost Gow was presiding over the meeting.

"Isn't he a pompous fool," Burdon said, sizing him up very accurately.

Vickey looked startled again. The provost launched into a campaign speech, sweeping aside the meeting business of the meeting. "That fellow gives me a pain in the neck," Burdon muttered. Then he looked up to see that Vickey was gone.

"Oh, dear," he muttered.

Vickey met him for the third time in her father's car. There had been an interruption as the provost came out of the council meeting. A distressed Irishwoman had rushed to him, and began an outpour in her flavoured brogue.

"It's about me Patsy, your Honor," she began. "Ye know all about me, and I know what ye're going to say. Ye can't make any exceptions, but where would I be getting the money to pay a fine of five pounds, and I can't live without me Patsy."

The provost avoided her eye as he drew on his gloves. Burdon approached him.

"Oh, you're from the Advertiser, do you mind coming with me?"

"Yer Honour, it's not meself I'm thinking of. It's Patsy. Me little Patsy," Mrs. Hegarty continued. "He's the heart and soul of me."

"If you bother me any further, I'll have you arrested," the provost told her. "Come along," he spoke to Burdon.

The reporter hung back for an instant. "But . . ." he said, and hurried after the provost.

The car was waiting. The girl was sitting next to the provost. "This is my daughter, Victoria," the provost introduced him. "Move up."

She smiled coldly. He acknowledged the introduction. The car whirled away leaving a very agitated Mrs. Hegarty wringing her hands.

Red White's Ten Wins From Truck Company, 22-11

Bombarding two Provisional Truck Company hurlers for 20 hits and 22 runs, a motley crew of local softballers won their first engagement of the young season, 22-11, winning from the army team in a contest that was marked by long hits and numerous errors.

Swartz and Soulsak, the two army pitchers, seemed to have trouble with their control, walking several, while their support, especially in the outfield, was shaky at times.

Woody Wilson turned in a great performance for the town team, surviving a bad first round to set the army players down handily for the rest of the battle. He eased off in the last frame and the truck company garnered three more runs.

Chick McCallister and Slim Sullivan, two veterans, let the locals' attack with three hits each. White, Loer and O'Neal starred on the defensive.

Good evening, my friends, and all the others, too: This is your Provisional Sports Reporter, bringing the latest news to date, but don't worry; it will be moldy by tomorrow, for the world is traveling at a terrific clip, and Time does March on, sooooo.

Friday evening last, will be a memorable one for several, I'm sure, for the Provisional Sluggers with lots of Butter (no rationing here) on their hands, and their right arms tied up in slings, were slightly cuffed, shall we say—yes, I did say—the melody was to the tune of 21 to 13. Not bad for a football game.

Just to give you a few highlights of the bloody encounter—the initial inning was rosy for the khaki, but the local smoothies brought their own bats, too, and the evening turned out to be a game of give and take, with the Arnold Electric Co. taking all. Ed (on the line) Tiede drove a nice triple right over the first base line to score two runs. Then later on Howie (too soon) Le-Comte drilled a honey over second, and being on the beam as "Birddog" always is, he was caught stealing off the base—oh, dearie, was his face ever red. And Bill (I'm gone) Connors was nothing short of a sensation with his nifty snare at the initial sack—and Bill (heifer herder) Whelihan was no slouch around that hot corner—but the gardeners of the outfield were quite beside themselves, for they had a night mare on their hands with those lights which were like a new pair of G. I. Oh, yes, R. (I dood it) Raeburn amazed himself as well as the spectators with his hit into left field—it was the first time he ever played ball. Poor Kenneth Singer has the Convoy Hops, for he was attempting to field a fly ball and jumped into the the air frog style, and somewhat missed the bait.

Well, yours truly just about went on the Sick Book this morning along with a score of others who found out that their arms weren't made to that precious flexible rubber, Oh well, tomorrow notice.

Signed,
"Fillet" in here . . . . .
P. S.—Oh, yes, Flash! Sylvia's hair is like the gold, and so it is that he's gone—I don't mean for sure, do you Howie?

HOW TO MAKE YOUR Electric Iron LAST LONGER

An electric iron is a necessity in the modern home—but irons are no longer being manufactured and you may not be able to get a new one later on, so it's a good idea to take good care of the iron you have. Here are some maintenance hints that you will find helpful:

Keep bottom of iron clean. Wait until iron is cool, then wipe off with damp cloth. If necessary, use soapsuds or very mild scouring powder. Wipe off with clean damp cloth afterwards.

Never immerse your iron in water. Doing so may result in damage to heating elements next time you connect it.

Avoid scratching sole plate. Do not iron over buttons, zippers or other hard articles. Iron around them.

Be careful not to drop your iron. Dropping puts more irons out of commission than any other one thing.

Don't let iron cord touch the hot iron or rub continuously on edge of board. Either may wear off insulation. Replace the cord at the first sign of wear.

Rub the sole plate of your iron once a month or so with a good grade of paraffin or beeswax. Wipe off on paper or cloth.

If iron has become soiled or starch has stuck to it, sprinkle some salt on a newspaper and run the iron over it.

Don't disconnect iron by yanking on cord. Release by pulling plug at convenience outlet.

Always be sure the iron is perfectly cold before putting it away.

Remember this: It's the contact of heat with the dampened garment that removes wrinkles, not pressure or weight. So save your strength and let the heat do the job.

GET YOUR FREE COPY of 32-page Westinghouse Booklet on the care and use of appliances. Packed with helpful information and useful household hints, it's yours for the asking.
