

PERSONNEL OF FIRST TANK DESTROYER SCHOOL IN U. S. A.

Here's the personnel of the First Tank Destroyer School in the United States, which was held in Gatesville and neighboring Camp Hood during the month of May.

This school is officially called the "First Orientation Course" of the Tank Destroyer School, and has been under the command of Col. Hugh T. Mayberry, now Commandant of the School.

The school, according to a Temple Daily Telegram story, is unusual, due to the fact that the school literally started under a tree, and was held on strict schedule despite bad weather and often impassable roads on Camp Hood reservation.

The men, all commissioned, and ranking from Second Lieutenant to and including Colonel, are from practically every branch of the U. S. Army, and from nearly every post and state in the United States. Among this array of "fighting Americans" are included two U. S. Marine officers, and three colored officers.

Colonel Mayberry personally supervised every hour of the 30-day instruction period, and the Tank Destroyer Command announced that "it was the impression of observers that the school was functioning about as smoothly as some schools of long standing, despite the fact that this course was being conducted for the FIRST time." All these men have been "billeted" in Gatesville homes during the past month, and it's been a rare pleasure for Gatesville citizens, one and all, to have the pleasure of being "hosts" to these "gentlemen and officers."

Allred's going to make O'Daniel Moody. Or is he. Well, we just wanted to get this one off chest.

What's Cookin'! Ask any officer of the Tank Destroyer School this week. It's a personal matter with them, and they're cookin' themselves. They've been lucky; this next bunch of officers are due to burn. It's gettin' summer, as is, "Deep in the Heart of Texas."

Finally found out which direction the new Swimming Pool is going to face. Somebody asked! It's going to face east-west, as before the "washout." 'N that's settled by difficulties in excavating.

In the "cutlines" under this 5 column picture of the First Tank Destroyer School personnel, we didn't mention the "sweeter" side of these newcomers—their wives. We're just equally as sorry to have them leave, as for their men. Good things usually come and go in "two" anyway. Or do they?

We layed ourselves wide open, and have no takers. We will give "hecklers," "grippers," or whatever you call yourself, or other people call you, write this column. If you've ever said to a newspaper man: "Why don't you write something about . . . ?" then you're eligible to write about it. Come on. We'll begin to really believe you didn't mean it!

"Rough 'n Tough" Rodeo Slogan for 1942's Celebration

From down Rio Grande way, down on the boundary of Texas and romantically rough Old Mexico, will come the rodeo stock 114 in number, for Gatesville's Sixth Annual Rodeo and Frontier Celebration for 1942.

Col. Earl Sellers, an old time man who has always been "West of the Pecos," brings the world's woolliest and horniest stock for the rodeo of the Nth degree.

And, folks, the "Canadian Kid" of Canadian, Texas, will clown the show, in addition to having that flavor of Old Spain and Mexico's Bull Fighting Arenas, of which, 'tis said, he's a past master.

But, we won't let you in on all of the coming big show at once. It's just too big, too colossal, too grand for any normal human being to digest at one sitting. Just follow the columns of the News and by rodeo time, June 25, 26, 27 and 28, you'll be cocked and primed for one of the best shows of this kind those hungry eyes of yours ever feasted on. This is no bull, as the bulls will be reserved, only for the riders.

USO Takes Over Here Monday; To Re-Do "Ford" Bldg.

You'll see this sign around here soon

Next week, a representative of the United Service Organization will take over the Compton (Ford) building with a USO man in charge.

A USO architect will be here and plans will be made to re-do the interior, and install new equipment. A personnel of three or more will be in charge of the new Soldier's Club.

USO officials who were here to look at the "lay-out" and the way it has been handled, complimented the handlers for the way things have been done for entertaining men of Camp Hood, the 893rd and the 753rd, as well as all men in this vicinity.

The WPA Recreation Council will remove its facilities to the Sadler building, and will continue operation as usual, until the USO takes over complete recreation facilities for service men here.

TIRES TAKEN OFF VEHICLES HERE THIS WEEK; WATCH 'EM

Somebody took a tire off Bert Davis's combine Monday night some time, and also appropriated three from Ed Melbern.

And, possibly to haul them, they took two from a trailer belonging to W. P. Hopson on the State road, and also one off his car.

Better be careful with these tires.

"PICK-UP" MEXICAN ABANDONS FIRST, GETS 2ND, AND LOOSE

He's still "at large," and he's no congressman.

We're talking about that Mexican who is alleged to have taken the pick-up.

He abandoned it four miles from Crawford on the Coryell road, and then from McGregor is said to have taken J. D. Mann's day, and was apprehended in San Antonio and Mann's car recovered, but the Mexican is still "at large."

The pick-up was overturned and bent up, with glass broken, etc. The other car was taken Monday night in McGregor.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Walker of Temple were visitors in Gatesville Thursday.

753rd TANK BAT'N TO HAVE BIRTHDAY PARTY JUNE MON. 1

June 1, the 753rd Tank Battalion will celebrate its first birthday.

Major Joseph G. Felber, commanding officer, has tentatively planned, according to Sgt. Charles W. Wherley, an open house for the day, interspersed with a parade of the entire battalion and appropriate band music.

A barbecue and street dance is planned for the evening and night of June 1, to be held in Gatesville.

The 753rd was activated June 1, 1941, at Camp Polk, Louisiana, from Texas and Oklahoma. The battalion stayed at Camp Polk, La., until April 13, 1942, when it was attached to the Tank Destroyer Command at Temple and moved into the Camp Hood reservation near Gatesville.

Gatesville's part in this entertainment will be to have the east side of the square cleared for the dance, and probably the barbecue. Other arrangements will be made, but have not been announced for publication yet.

NOTICE: Any erroneous reflection upon the character or standing of any person or firm appearing in its columns will be gladly and promptly corrected upon calling the attention of the management to the article in question.

Washington is a hotbed of rumors relative to the action that may be taken in regard to further rationing of various articles. Our economy is dependent upon so many different factors that any serious dislocation of any one of them is always most certain to involve others. At the moment the rubber shortage is by far the most serious shortage that confronts the country. There is a very real shortage of rubber, and there does not seem to be any remedy for it for a long time to come. We will next year produce a considerable quantity of synthetic rubber. We will import some rubber from Brazil, and we will be growing a relatively small amount of guayule rubber. But all of these sources will hardly meet the strictly military need. Nor need we fool ourselves. It will take several years to produce synthetic rubber in the quantities we will need. Even then we will need a substantial amount of natural rubber, and it will take even longer to rehabilitate the rubber production of the Amazon valley or to mature the guayule shrubs we are now planting. These sources are capable of producing a substantial amount of rubber over a stretch of years, although the costs will be enormous and much more important, it will take time.

The government is therefore properly alarmed over the rubber situation. I think the best way to handle such a situation is to give the people all the facts and then ask them to cooperate in any way that will aid our fighting men. For instance, if the government needs the tires off my car, it need only to say definitely and frankly that they are needed. If they are needed, I will be glad to let the government have them. I believe that practically all of our people feel the same way, but I don't want the government to say to me that it doesn't want to use my tires off my car or anything else that I own, but that it does not want to use such things. I think that all of our people are ready to give up anything they have if their sacrifice will aid the government to win the war. But I don't think they should be called upon to sacrifice anything simply to create what some of the "Bureaucrats" call "War Conscientiousness." Our people in Texas have been conscious of the seriousness of this for a long time.

I fear that the desire to exercise authority and create excitement has a great deal to do with the effort that so many here in Washington are making to bring about rationing of gasoline even in the oil fields of Oklahoma and probably justifies the rationing of gasoline on the East Coast. (Of course, this situation could be eased without the use of any new pipe whatsoever by moving some of the pipelines of the Southwest that are no longer needed and using them to construct a pipe line to the East Coast.) No such justification exists for gasoline rationing in Texas, but at this moment a most serious effort is being made to bring this about. Not only do the administrative officials, who thirst for power, see an opportunity to thus control our people, but the major oil companies can see that such a course would enable them to tighten their monopoly. Right now the independent producer of East Texas, the small refineries and home owned and operated stations offer the major companies their only competition. Practically all of the independents owe money. They must make an income from their business or lose it to their creditors. In addition, they must make a living for their families. The major oil companies can go for years without profit and still remain solvent. Therefore, if they can stop the sales of gasoline, they will be able to break practically all of their competitors. They, therefore, are doing all they can to bring about nation-wide gasoline rationing, and I am afraid that they have succeeded in getting many honest government officials to mistakenly agree with them.

For my part, I expect to continue to oppose any rationing order that is not directly needed to win the war. I do not think our war effort is strengthened by any regulations that weaken our internal economy or unnecessarily throw our people out of work. It is unfortunate that there is a shortage of transportation for gasoline to the East, but it is not right to weaken the Southwest simply because another section is not as fortunately located as we are. Let us strive to pull all sections of the nation up, not down to a common level. Let us strike at the enemy who seeks to cut our supply lines rather than to artificially extend the scope of his evil work. Let us devote our efforts to the destruction of German submarines, rather than the destruction of Texas business.

Quick Freezing Beans

Beans frozen and stored in the freezer lockers are important to the family's food supply because they are prescribed in a more natural state. They add variety and interest to other home conserved foods, retain more of the needed vitamins in the home supply, provide the needed food elements in a cheaper form, and enable families to conserve homegrown beans very easily by the following method:

Select snap, blue lake or tender green beans that are dark green, or bright yellow, tender, and full flavored, stringless, and free from disease, when the seeds are just beginning to form. Freeze them as soon as possible after gathering. Wash thoroughly, sort according to size, and cut or leave whole. Scald them two minutes in boiling water or steam if very tender, or four minutes if less tender. Cool rapidly by plunging into cold water. Use pint or quart jars, leaving one inch head space. Use rubber rings for sealing jars. If enamel tin cans are used, leave three-fourths inch head space to allow for expansion in freezing. Special sturdy cellophane-lined rectangular cardboard boxes are recommended if container must be purchased, because they keep the product perfectly and take up less space in the locker. The beans can be dry-packed or covered with a cold brine made by adding 1 tsp. salt to each cup of water.

Caution to Home Canners.

Process all non-acid vegetables in a pressure canner. If no pressure canner is available, it is recommended that methods of preservation other than canning be used, because a pressure cooker insures a higher degree of temperature necessary to kill botulism bacteria. Botulism is a food poisoning characterized by paralysis of the throat, severe pains, and death.

The water bath canner is used for fruits and acid vegetables. The acidity of fruits and tomatoes greatly lowers the needed temperature due to the type of bacteria that develops in acid foods. Such products can be canned by heating for a definite period of time in boiling water. This method is known as the water bath.

This year more glass jars will be used in home canning. If the jar company's name is on them, they may be used in the pressure canner. But if not, they should be used for preserves, pickles, jelly, and water bath canning. Glass jars should be placed in cold water and heated to "toughen" the glass. Do this, even though it takes longer.

Spiced Pickled Beets

Provided the beets are just now maturing in the garden and have reached a diameter of one and one-fourth to one and one-half inches, this is the time to be making spiced beet pickles. To prepare the beets for pickling, sort them according to size, cut the tops, saving about two inches of the stem and roots on until after cooking. Steam at 15 lbs. pressure 15 to 20 minutes. Or cook until tender. Peel, trim, and drop while hot in the following spice vinegar:

1 gal. 4 per cent vinegar, 5 c. sugar, 5 tsp. mixed spices.

The spices are tied in a bag and simmered half an hour in sugar and vinegar mixture.

Let beets boil three minutes in spiced vinegar, remove spice bag, pack in jars with beets and cover with hot spice strained vinegar. Seal immediately and place where they will cool quickly. Use only glass.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Viccy Gow, daughter of the Provost of Baitke, a little village in Scotland, has an amusing encounter with Frank Burdon, coming to Baitke to take a position on the Advertiser. Viccy, returned from finishing school, finds her father a considerably changed man, now running for Parliament. She also suspects a romance between him and Lisbet Skirving, widow wife of the publisher of the Advertiser. Burdon discovers that his first job is to get an interview from Gow. He goes to a council meeting, conceives a hearty dislike for Gow. Leaving the meeting, he witnesses Gow's harsh treatment of a poor Irishwoman who pleads to get back her dog, taken for failure to secure a license. He leaves the meeting with Gow in his car and is introduced to Viccy.

Chapter Two

"Stagnation of public life," the provost dictated. He struck a magnificent pose, his hand tucked in his coat front. Viccy had left Burdon alone with her father. The reporter concealed his dislike for Gow, who was dictating the interview. The provost was becoming intoxicated with the sound of his voice. "I have been instrumental in bringing about great changes in the Borough, but there is one change I shall never make. A change in the principles that guide me."

There was an interruption in the hallway. "I know he's busy righting wrongs, and here's another one for him." Both Burdon and the provost recognized Mrs. Hegarty's voice instantly. Viccy was trying to reason with her.

"It's a matter of life and death," Mrs. Hegarty wailed. The provost signalled for Burdon to wait for him, hurried out into the hall.

"How dare you burst in here?" he roared. "I warned you at the Town Hall and now you come bursting into my home. The case of your dog is finished once and for all."

Mrs. Hegarty fell to wailing. "Oh, now it's all over and they're going to kill him."

"Rubbish," Viccy objected. "Who's going to kill him?"

"The Borough and the police and the provost."

"Father," Viccy demanded in surprise. "Is it true what Mrs. Hegarty says about her dog?"

The provost seemed embarrassed. "She's been warned time and time again about her dog. She's persistently defied the law. The court passed judgment. You know, the town is full of dirty mongrels."

"But how much does she owe?" Viccy demanded.

"Five pounds and the tax."

"But surely someone could pay it for her."

"Oh, no!" the provost interrupted. "It's a matter of principle." He turned away to return to the room from which Burdon was interestedly watching the commotion. "Put her out, Viccy," he ordered.

Hardly had the provost resumed the interview when Mrs. Hegarty's wails rose louder than ever. "Blooming Irish tinkers!" he shouted and rushed out of the room again. There was a thud, a muffled scream, and the sound of a door being slammed. The provost returned to the room breathing hard. He took up the interview again.

"Where was I? Ah, yes — opportunity of applying those principles in a wider field. It is the realization that each unit in the state is a living, breathing soul. Each with his own intense perception of his rights and wrongs. A leader must have that sixth sense . . ."

"There's a whole page about me in the Advertiser," Mrs. Hegarty thrilled as she bustled into the library. A hotly agitated crowd of women were gathered about the newspaper rack. Mrs. Hegarty pushed her way to the front.

"Oh, oh," she gasped, "if that isn't me name all over the front page. Scandalous incident over a dog. Will you listen to this now . . . It's time our local bumbles learned to administer the law with decency. It was beneath the provost's dignity to put her mind at rest. It wasn't beneath his dignity to kick her out of doors."

"He took a boot to her and her a complete stranger!" one of the women about Mrs. Hegarty said. "Isn't that awful!" echoed her neighbor.

Viccy knew nothing about the newspaper story when she met Burdon for the fourth time — on the golf course. Returning to the town they met Lisbet Skirving, who could barely control her fury. When she was alone with Viccy, Lisbet told her what had happened.

"Poor Willie, what will happen when he finds out," she said. The provost was spending the day at the cattle show at Croy. He would return for the big meeting this evening.

Viccy was amazed when the maid announced Burdon. "How dare you come to see me?" she demanded furiously. "I suppose you know what you've done. You've slandered a perfectly fine man. Why did you stab him in the back like this?"

He looked at her quietly. "I suppose it's hard to explain. No decent action ever is easy."

"You mean that idiotic business about the dog?"

He had already begun his retreat. "No oppression is ever small," he pointed out. Viccy didn't argue that with him. He would lose his job, she pointed out. Why did he do it?

"They were out in the garden now. If you really want to know —" he began, and hesitated. He looked straight into her eyes. She knew she should hate him, but she couldn't.

Then he blurted the story out. How he had lived at the foot of the hill when he was a boy. How he had suffered watching carters beat their overloaded horses. How he had been knocked down for interceding in one case. And how he had sworn to strike back at cruelty when he was a grown man.

"And you've done that?" Viccy asked.

"Yes," he replied. Their eyes met again.

"Get in my car," she said. "We're going to the Town Hall."

The provost came directly to the Town Hall from Croy. It was already jammed with the townsfolk, who were in a holiday mood. He met Horace Skirving, who was shivering, but managed to conceal his terror. He missed the look of distress in Lisbet's eye. The crowd was already shouting "We want our Willie! We want our Willie!"

His chest swelled. "They shall have him."

Burdon sat on the platform, watching the crowd uneasily. There was a brief introduction of the provost. "We want our Willie," the crowd belted. He strode to the center of the platform, a handsome figure in tartan. He began to talk.

The storm broke as he reached a phrase that Burdon recalled hearing in the interview. "For what is friendship but the will to do and the power to do the best . . ."

"Bow — wow" came a voice from the audience. There was a roar of laughter. And suddenly a voice broke out in song.

"Where, oh where, has her little dog gone. Where, oh where, can he be?" (To be Continued)

Natural Gas Rates REDUCED!

NEW RATE TO SAVE RESIDENTIAL AND COMMERCIAL
CUSTOMERS $2,000,000 ANNUALLY

To Our Customers:

Through more than three decades of operating history it has been a fixed policy of the management of Lone Star Gas System to spare no effort to accomplish and maintain a dependable gas service for its customers at rates commensurate with the cost of rendering such service. The important reason for this basic policy springs from the very roots of a definite responsibility to our customers, most of whom depend exclusively upon natural gas service for their fuel requirements. The part that gas serves in protecting the health, comfort and welfare of more than a million men, women and children in homes served by Lone Star Gas System, is an assignment that we have accepted in its full seriousness.

To meet these requirements millions of dollars have been expended for materials, equipment, proven gas reserves, pipeline transportation and distribution facilities planned with careful foresight to safeguard a continuity of dependable service over a long period of years as well as for the present. In line with this policy of providing not only adequate but dependable gas service from our interconnected facilities, a substantial part of the System's earnings as well as considerable borrowed capital has been applied to this development program. At all times the System's thousands of stockholders have evidenced their cooperation in many ways in order that the utmost might be accomplished in this program of development. During this period, a large portion of which represented the depression years, neither the normal growth of individual towns served by Lone Star Gas System nor increases in residential, commercial and industrial customers kept pace with the expansion program which we were required to maintain in the interest of continued dependable service.

As the interests in good gas service of both Lone Star Gas System and its customers are interdependent, the rate charged for gas should be fair and reasonable for the customer and at the same time sufficiently adequate for the System to meet its responsibilities. In defense of this sound principle we have, on various occasions during our period of development, become engaged in rate controversies and litigation. In these instances we have had no choice except to diligently and firmly protect the mutual interests of the System and its customers against an ultimate downfall of service due to unwarranted and untimely rate reductions.

The area served by Lone Star Gas System has now reached an all-time high in industrial, commercial and residential expansion and this has resulted in an increase in the amount of gas normally used. Because of long preparation we are prepared to meet the requirements of these increased demands now being made upon our System. We are pleased that under present circumstances we are able to consent to a rate order which will give our customers a substantial reduction in the cost of their gas service and at the same time dispose of all pending rate controversies.

In announcing this rate reduction it is our earnest hope that, as we all adjust ourselves to the war effort, sufficient new peace-time uses for gas service can be developed for the future to justify this low rate indefinitely.

By agreement, the reduction of $2,000,000.00 annually has become effective to customers served by Lone Star Gas System.

SCHOOL NOTES

Today's Sad But True Story

Our T. D. School "stage director," Pvt. "Tony" Visota, had a rude awakening one recent night. Visota sleeps at the Provisional Truck Co. across the tracks, and some of Tony's "pals" decided to see if he could "take it."

It was late at night—it was dark inside and wet outside, and Tony had been lulled into a peaceful sleep by the pitter-patter of unusual Texas weather.

"Hey, Tony," they yelled softly as they pushed him, oh so gently, "Chow! You'll be late."

Tony pried open his eyelids. "Huh?" he asked sleepily, "huh?" and he peered at his watch. "Oh," he moaned, "Go away; it's only 12 o'clock!" and he promptly turned over and cuddled up.

"Twelve o'clock!" the dear boys replied in chorus. "Your watch stopped! It's six o'clock!"

"What!" Tony shouted, loud enough to wake up the camp—in fact, it did wake up the camp—"What!" and vaulted out of bed like a frog off a rock, and dived into his khakis.

When he was almost fully dressed his "buddies," muffling their laughter, reminded him of the rain, and suggested he put on his G. I. shoes. So Tony proceeded to change his shoes, shine them, make up his bunk, put on his raincoat, and grab his mess kit!

It was about this time that Captain Hilton, commanding officer, gently but firmly put a stop to the festivities, and almost everyone went back to sleep.

P. S.—Tony can take it—and did.

753RD TANK BATTALION
By Sgt. Charles W. Wherley

Efforts are under way to organize a drum and bugle corps within the ranks of the 753rd battalion. Capt. Fowler P. Johnson, service officer, is attempting to induce from 12 to 15 men to form the corps, with all equipment being furnished by the battalion.

Since the 753rd has no band, the drum and bugle corps would fill a long-felt need for ceremonial occasions. It is hoped Captain Johnston is successful in his efforts.

Maintenance men of the 753rd had a chance Thursday to try their prowess as underwater workers. A medium tank of Company "C," while on a tactical march, which included the fording of Cowhouse creek, was swept from its course by a strong current and ended up settling in about seven feet of muddy water. The tank was completely covered except for the turret. No one was injured and not much damage was done. The process of recovery of the tank was interesting to watch and much credit is due Service Company and Tech. Sgt. McInturff, who directed the work.

The 753rd is finally getting high class. The government is building mess halls for each company. The CCC camps in Oklahoma, which are being shipped in sections and set up here. The work is progressing rapidly on the first of the mess halls, which is on the Company "A" area.

No longer can we use the old slogan "a picnic every meal." Also we hope the days of having our chow diluted with freshly falling rain water are done with.

Softball Notes

Company "B" takes the lead this week in the softball league with two wins and no losses. The "B" boys took one from Co. "A," 20 to 13, in the first game of the spring season, and this week they struggled out with a 1 to 0 decision from Company "C," in a tight pitcher's duel. A home run by Corp. Etheridge, first man up for Company "B," in the first inning, Company "A" and officers are the only teams in the league which have not yet chalked up a win. "A" and Officers tangle this weekend and unless the game ends in a tie, one of the teams will be left holding the cellar position. Service Company took a 19 to 10 game from the Officers last Wednesday. The fracas was high-lighted by the energetic playing of the second baseman of the Officers, who tried to cover right, left, and center fields as well as his own No. 2 bag. Headquarters Company won from Service Company 5 to 2, and lost to Company "C," 8 to 5.

Announcement has been made to the effect that a genuine bus service is about to be inaugurated for the benefit of the battalion.

Sgt. Z. D. Peterson, Company "A" Supply Sergeant, in addition to his other duties, has taken on the task of subduing a swarm of bees. His luck varies from day to day, and at the last report the bees were about to give up in disgust.

T. D. SCHOOL NOTES

In case you didn't notice, it was singularly quiet in town on Wednesday evening and Thursday a. m. Student officers of the Tank Destroyer School were conspicuous by their absence.

But now the unexplained absence is explained. The school was on miniature maneuvers—an overnight problem out at Camp Hood conducted with the help of the 893rd Tank Destroyer Battalion and the 753rd Tank Battalion. And part of the problem, it seems, was how to get some sleep. So, if you didn't see any officers around on Thursday evening either—well, where would you be if you hadn't slept for two days?

And talking about sleep—one of the local grocers lost some of that in the wee small hours of Thursday when the Army collective appetite was growing by leaps and bounds—you know, an Army travels on its stomach!

C. of C. Gives "Remembrance" To Officers

By arrangement with H. K. Jackson, president of the Gatesville Chamber of Commerce, each officer of the First Class of the Tank Destroyer School is being presented a copy of this issue of the Coryell County News.

This issue carries a picture of the officers in the school, and with the American "Souvenir habit" so rampant, it was thought many of the officers would like this edition as a remembrance of the days of the First Orientation Course for officers, which was held this month in Gatesville and Camp Hood.

Additional copies may be secured at the News office if they are needed.

TDS OFFICERS WHO WERE PROMOTED WHILE IN GATESVILLE

There's one thing these officers can remember about Gatesville and Coryell county—they received additional bars and stuff, which also means more money, while here. These men are NOW:
