

WHAT'S COOKIN'
Jones

This is a re-hash of Gatesville's Sixth Annual Rodeo and Frontier Celebration: what happened that was unusual.

The "Bullscapade" is over. The Battle of "Bull Run" was put on the second evening (an un-called for performance) and then the last day of the show another "bull run" to the Leon River, we guess for a drink. It was a hot day.

One serious injury was to Herbert Frizzell, which happened the second night when a bull stepped on his back, and he was crushed vertebrae. Two others were injured less seriously, Darrell Cunningham had an injured shoulder, and another unknown man.

Nearly all the generals in the vicinity saw the show, including Brig. Gen. and Mrs. A. D. Bruce, Mjr. Gen. Dan I. Sutton, commander 8th Army Corps, Mjr. Gen. Bruce McGruder, CO of Camp Walters, Brig. Gen. G. B. Guenther, chief of staff, Third Army, Brig. Gen. Robert L. Spriggins and Brig. Gen. Ward R. Maris of Camp Swift, Brig. Gen. Robert C. Rogers of War Department General Staff, Brig. Gen. Hutchinson, division commander Camp Bowie. All were accompanied by their staffs.

Incidentally these men were here to observe work of the OOC No. 2, on their "long drag."

That Clown, Wiley McCrary, was the best one we've ever seen in Gatesville's six shows, bar none. We believe that's tribute enough.

Earl Sellers, Del Rio, had a grand show—we don't think he's holding a light for anybody. We haven't heard anyone say anything different.

Now, Uncle Bob, and Eiland, we're looking forward to the 7th Annual Rodeo and Frontier Celebration, since the sixth has already been "cooked!"

Mrs. A. D. Bruce, on opening night was presented with a red, white and blue corsage by Misses Mary Margaret Holmes and Sara Graham, which was given by the Gatesville Chamber of Commerce.

There were many notables present, and many of us, not so notables were there, but we all had a democratic time in one of the American Ways of Life!

JAMES V. ALLRED TO SPEAK HERE, 3 P. M. FRIDAY, ON SQUARE

Drawing first blood in what is likely to be the hottest race in the 1942 elections, the race for U. S. Senator, James V. Allred, heralded as a hard-hitting campaigner of old, will speak on the courthouse lawn at Gatesville at 3:00 p. m. Friday.

Allred is a former Governor and Attorney General, and has just resigned a Federal District Judgeship to make the race.

Robert W. Brown, local Allred chairman, is heading up the welcome for Allred's supporters.

Officer of OOC Kin of Tobacco Manufacturer

"27-27-27-28-30-33-33-33, Sold, American!" In the warehouses all over the land, wherever tobacco is sold, Luckies pay the highest, "2 to 1" or something like that.

And, 2nd Lt. Frank R. Penn of OOC No. 2 probably knows that better than anyone in Gatesville today.

Lt. Penn, who enlisted in the U. S. Army as a private, and has since been commissioned, is a son of the late Frank R. Penn, Sr., who was, before his death, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Tobacco Company.

The "old Gentleman," after the Civil War, lay wounded on a bed, and directed the building of a tobacco factory near Greensboro, S. C. (which he later sold to the "American.") He went to England for a while, to try the tobacco business there, but it didn't work out returned to Greensboro, where he again became connected with "American."

One year, Penn the younger, being the regular fellow he is, bought machinery and went into business himself during a summer, and netted considerable, proving to himself he could get on on his own.

TD School Ends Today: Moves Wednesday

Today marks the end of the 2nd, and last, Officers' Orientation Course conducted here at Gatesville. From here, Headquarters of the School will move to Temple until some time in the very near future, when School will open at Camp Hood.

Marked by an over-night problem, consisting of a mock battle between the 893rd Tank Destroyer Battalion and the 753rd Tank Battalion, the course was exactly as the name implies—it standardized and oriented methods and tactics of combating tanks. Classes were conducted at City Hall auditorium and out in the Camp Hood area. People of Gatesville are familiar with the "convoy", the long line of trucks and jeeps transporting the student officers out to the range.

Colonel Hugh T. Mayberry, Commandant of the School, was gratified and thankful for the cooperation and courtesy of Gatesville citizenry. Over 240 officers from all over the country made Gatesville homes their homes during their stay for the month of June. City Hall was turned over to the army, and several classes even were conducted in the Regal Theatre for the purpose of showing training films.

Battalion Guests Of Gatesville July 4th: To Parade and Park On Square

One battalion from Camp Hood will help Gatesville celebrate July 4th, Saturday of this week.

Arrangements were made last week with Capt. Milton H. Vaubhan, Jr., Headquarters Division of Camp Hood to have the battalion here, and they will be met at the intersection of Pidcoke road and U. S. 84 by a reception committee from Gatesville, including Mayor C. E. Gandy, Andrew Kendrick, Dick Palmatier, and representatives of the sheriff's office and the State Highway Patrolmen.

Route of Parade Is Announced

Entering the city on U. S. 84 from the west, passing down East Main Street to Lutterloh avenue, then south to Leon and back to the square. No one will be allowed to park around the square except on the outside edge, next to the stores, as the equipment for display will take up the other space. A man will be stationed at each piece of equipment to explain its use to the public.

At noon the men will have dinner, a barbecue, with all the fixing, in Raby Park, and then in the afternoon there'll be a baseball game between the battalion's team and the Gatesville State Training School on the State Diamond.

TAKE A SOLDIER HOME WITH YOU, OR THREE OR FOUR OR MORE

Citizens of Gatesville and Coryell County are asked to telephone the USO Club No. 345, and tell Dick Palmatier how many soldiers they can give, we say "supper," to the evening of the Fourth. It is imperative that you do this as soon as you read this, so that plans may be completed. Both enlisted men and officers will like to be invited out. You will meet them at the USO Club at 7 o'clock.

After you've given them a home-cooked meal let them relax, and have a chat with them, more activities are to be in store for them.

At the "Stockyards Stadium," there'll be a softball game at 9:00 under the lights between the Gatesville Ramblers and the battalion's team.

Also at 9 o'clock for those that prefer dancing, there'll be a dance at the high school gymnasium, and of course, girls, these men of the battalion will need partners, and you're invited. Both these evening events are under the direction of Dick Palmatier of the USO and his committees of Gatesville citizens.

Committees handling this entertainment include Byron Leaird Jr., and Earl Heath.

General Committee: George B. Painter, chairman, J. H. McClellan, Ted Copeland, and Mrs. Mabel Gardner.

In charge of the meal will be Rufus Brown, chairman, Lieut. Jim McClellan, and C. H. Wallace, who will name other committees to assist.

"30" Brahma Bull Ain't Been Rid Yet: That's All

If you've worked in a newspaper office or listened to a radio, and heard the stuff-stealing commentators say "that's '30' for now," you'll know what "30" means.

"That's all."

And at Gatesville's Rodeo and Frontier Celebration, Earl Sellers, Rodeotrician has a bull, a Brahma Bull by that name. "30."

This particular bovine has never been ridden. And that isn't all. More than 180 cowboys, some of them the best of the lot have tried, but no one has stuck.

So "30" is a good name for a good Brahma and "That's all."

Mrs. Billingsley received a gash on her forehead, Mr. Billingsley, her husband had a back injury, and their daughter, Beverly Ann, was injured. Corp. Smith escaped with minor scratches and bruises, but Sgt. Beryl Kirby had some of his front teeth knocked out, and Sgt. Sternal B. Killian was injured internally, how seriously is not known.

State Highway Patrolmen were at the scene of the accident, and took charge of the situation.

SIDE GLANCES ON TEXAS HISTORY

McIntire Goes After Adventure In Texas

In 1902 old Jim McIntire of Kansas City published the reminiscences of a man who, he wrote in the introduction, had "seen as much lawless life and had perhaps as many hair-raising adventures as any man living." He had chased Indians and outlaws, had himself been chased across three states, had run gambling-houses and saloons, had shot up towns, and had been marshal and deputy sheriff in frontier settlements. And it all came from reading dime novels.

The reminiscences were McIntire's own and were entitled "Early Days in Texas." The volume is one of a score of valuable first-hand commentaries on old-time cowboy life available in the extensive Texas Collection of the University of Texas Library.

Earl in life McIntire "developed an ambition to be a cowboy and see life on the plains as portrayed by the dime novels I had been reading," he wrote in his book. So he left his Ohio home, came to Texas, became a cowboy, and impatiently awaited adventures as those related in the little yellow backed books, which had meant as much in his early life as western movies often mean in the lives of boys today.

He Meets the Indians

McIntire came to Texas late in the 1860's and immediately got work on a ranch near Jacksboro—"right in the heart of the Indian country, surrounded by hostile Kiowas and Comanches." His boss was a man named J. C. Loving, and "Loving's ranch," he wrote, "was the outpost of civilization and was the first ranch the Indians had to pass in going from the Reservation to the settlements."

This he quickly discovered. On March 17, 1867, the men on the ranch gathered to eat dinner before going out on a general roundup, when suddenly, right in the midst of the meal, a shot rang out near the corral. Some thirty-five Indians appeared. "In an instant everything was excitement," McIntire wrote; "here it was that I got my first taste of Indian fighting, and I plunged into the thickest of it."

The object of the attack, it turned out, was the herd of ranch horses, which the men managed to get into the corral just as the fighting began. Then, McIntire went on, "Mrs. White, Loving's sister-in-law, loaded guns for me, and I took a position under a big oak tree in the yard, firing at the approaching Indians as fast as I could load the guns.—Bullets were flying thick and fast around me, as the greater part of their fire was directed at me and Mr. Loving, who were between the Indians and the corral where all the horses were."

A Woman's Place

"The coolest one of the whole party, was Mrs. White, who loaded guns and handed them out to me just as if that were her regular business," he remembered in after years. "Her three little children were in the house, but not even a thought of the danger they were in affected her nerves."

Gradually the Indians lost ground, primarily because they were out-numbered; and at last only two remained within rifle range. Then Mrs. White, McIntire wrote, "thought they might be dislodged by a big old-fashioned foreign-made gun which shot a very large bullet. She handed this out to me saying, "Here is a big gun; try them two setting on their horses." I laid down, taking careful aim, and fired high." They got away.

Thus, after half an hour, McIntire's first Indian fight was ended. Though one of his comrades was fatally wounded, he himself was untouched. But he was off to a good and satisfying start on his dime-novel career.

100 YEARS AGO IN TEXAS

"Gen. Post Office.—We have learned with much pleasure that the business of this office, under the law passed at the last session, has been conducted with more economy than at any previous period, and the receipts have more than double those of any preceding year. This office, however, continues to be a burden of pence to the Republic. The appropriation of fifty thousand dollars in promissory notes last year, has been found too small by nearly forty thousand dollars. The whole expenses of the department having been about one hundred and thirty thousand dollars, promissory notes, and the receipts are not above the appropriation, amounting to forty thousand dollars.

"Most of the contracts have been taken at less than eight dollars a mile, and the contracts for the coming year, it is believed will be still less. We understand the Secretary of State estimates the current expenses of the next year, over and above the receipts for postage, &c., at seventeen thousand dollars, par funds."

"This paper will, in the course of two weeks, be much enlarged and improved. A large quality of type for this office is expected to arrive from Houston, today or tomorrow; and a large supply of paper has been ordered, and may be expected by the next boat from New Orleans."—The Texas Centinel (Austin,) November 11, 1841.

Egg-On It! How'm I Goin' to Keep It Up

Really, an egg with a tail to it! What're you folks feeding these chickens? Monkey glands! A Simcsean comes in, and then, on the same day, here comes one with a tail. E. L. Sellers, Route 1 brought this last one.

Not to be in trouble, but it seems William Jennings Bryan and some body argued a long time in Dayton, Tennessee over this very same thing that is being demonstrated in the county—Evolution! Now, may be we've stuck our foot in it.

Anyway, there's some strange critters in these here hills, and, that's not foolin, either. We've been writing these egg stories for six months or more, and the eggs get worse and worse.

What are you folks doing to these hens. Maybe you ain't feedin' these Old Biddies, right.

HERE THEY ARE: 2nd OOC CLASS GRADUATES IN GATESVILLE

Here's the Second Officers Orientation Course personnel of the Tank Destroyer School, which completes its work today, and these men will leave for their respective posts throught the United States. As far as is known now, this officially ends the OOC's for Gatesville, and if any more are instituted they have not yet been announced. Men of this class as well as the previous classes have been "enjoyed" by Gatesville citizens, and we can only hope they've found us "enjoyable." Anyway, we've tried to be.

Wherever they go, we're sure the good will and good-luck wishes of ALL Gatesville goes with you, gentlemen.

HOW TO GET LONGER WEAR FROM YOUR

Appliance Cords

With appliance cord production curtailed, you'll want to make your present ones last, so you can make full use of your electric appliances. These tips will help:

Don't pull plug from outlet by yanking on cord. Eventually, you'll loosen connections and break wires. Take hold of plug itself.

Don't place cords in door jams. Squeezing action from opening and closing door will break protective covering around wires.

Don't run cords under rugs. Constant walking on them will wear off insulation and allow wires to come in contact, causing a "short."

Don't use appliance or extension cords as substitutes for permanent wiring. Such makeshifts are dangerous. Never tack or nail through a cord.

Don't run cords across radiators or other hot metal objects. Heat may burn through insulation and allow wires to touch metal.

Insist on approved cords, identified by a band certifying inspection by Underwriters Laboratories. They wear longer and are safe.

Don't wad up cords and store in drawer when not in use. Hang loosely from a hook or nail. Avoid knots and kinks.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Navy Cruisers are built in two classes, light and heavy, the latter displacing about 10,000 tons. Our navy has about an equal number of light and heavy Cruisers, the 10,000 ton Cruiser costing approximately $20,000,000. Many Cruisers are under construction and many more are needed.

To pay for these speedy and powerful ships with their heavy guns and armament we must buy War Bonds. Citizens of a large town or a given community, working in unity, could buy one of these ships for the Navy if they put at least ten percent of their income in War Bonds every pay day.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Garand semi-automatic rifle, which is the standard issue today for the U. S. army, is superior to the old Springfield rifle in many respects. We literally need millions of these fast shooting powerful rifles

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Navy Cruisers are built in two classes, light and heavy, the latter displacing about 10,000 tons. Our navy has about an equal number of light and heavy Cruisers, the 10,000 ton Cruiser costing approximately $20,000,000. Many Cruisers are under construction and many more are needed.

To pay for these speedy and powerful ships with their heavy guns and armament we must buy War Bonds. Citizens of a large town or a given community, working in unity, could buy one of these ships for the Navy if they put at least ten percent of their income in War Bonds every pay day.

U. S. Treasury Department

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Garand semi-automatic rifle, which is the standard issue today for the U. S. army, is superior to the old Springfield rifle in many respects. We literally need millions of these fast shooting powerful rifles to equip our army. They cost $35 each and are being manufactured at the rate of one a minute. They fire sixty 30-calibre shells a minute.

Every one of the 40,000,000 employed persons in America could easily buy one of these rifles for the army. Not that we need that many, but the reserve could go into shells and other much needed supplies. Buy more and more War Bonds and top the quota in your county by investing at least ten percent of your income every pay day.

Wasted money is wasted lives. Don't waste precious lives. Every dollar you can spare should be used to buy War Bonds. Buy your ten percent every pay day.

Washington, D. C.
WAAC ENLISTMENTS
Thousands of determined women, eager to don the WAAC uniform, are driving WAAC officials wacky.

The campaign for enlistments in the Women's Army Auxiliary corps has succeeded too well. Maj. Oveta Culp Hobby and her chief lieutenants, Mrs. Arthur Woods and Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick, have a bear by the tail and they know it.

Sad truth is that there cannot possibly be more than 500 WAAC officer-candidates taken in now. No "auxiliaries," that is, non-officer WAAC's, can be recruited until the officers have been trained, possibly around September 15. The greatest number of WAAC's that can be taken in this year is estimated at 25,000, and all of these will be subjected to a minimum of four weeks' training. This leaves some 275,000 disappointed would-be WAAC's out of an estimated registration of 300,000.

Toughest job of all falls upon the chief recruiting officers in the nine army corps areas. It is their job to sort out the WAAC registrants and select the lucky women. Those chosen then must face a series of very stiff aptitude tests.

BOND LOTTERY

Rep. Adolph Sabath of Illinois, genial chairman of the house rules committee, wasn't able to sell the President on government-sponsored lotteries when he called at the White House. However, he was given a novel idea on how to use the lottery principle in the sale of war bonds.

Sabath contended that a legalized lottery, conducted monthly by the treasury, would greatly aid in relieving taxation and raise billions in revenue for the war effort.

Under a bill he is sponsoring, the Illinoisian said, the government would realize approximately $875,000,000 from the sale of a billion $1 tickets, whereas if it borrowed this amount at 3 per cent for 20 years, the interest alone would total $525,000,000.

"It wouldn't be the first time our government has held a lottery," argued Sabath. "We did it in 1776 to help finance the Revolutionary war."

"Yes, I know," said the President, adding that he doubted the advisability of lotteries at this time because of the strong opposition of religious groups. Instead, he proposed a compromise.

"Why not apply your lottery ideas to the sale of war bonds," he suggested. "The Belgian government held bond lotteries for a number of years."

SHAKY CHINA

Chinese leaders in Washington are not shouting it from the housetops, but behind closed doors they are doing some tough talking to the effect that an increasing number of Chinese are getting discouraged about the war and would like to see some kind of appeasement with Japan. Chinese leaders give this as the reason why China must have airplanes—and have them, immediately.

The Chinese don't demand a lot of planes. But they do say that even a small fraction of the munitions going to Russia would wonders in...stering Ch...

Here is the Chinese picture now being presented to U. S. war strategists. After five years of war, the Chinese are warweary. Most discouraging thing is the ironical fact that the Chinese are worse off now, with Allies, than they were before, fighting alone. The Chinese were delighted after Pearl Harbor because it meant they had a powerful ally against Japan. But now after six months of it, they almost wish they had been left to hold out alone.

That is why recent reverses in Burma and along the China coast have shaken Chinese determination down to the foundation.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is not weakening. But many Chinese are, especially the well-to-do class, the people who yearn for restoration of normal business, who would rather have a chance to make money and live peacefully even under the Japs than to pay the frightful cost of continued war.

Meanwhile, Japan seems determined to crush China now. Apparently the U. S. bombing raids on Tokyo scared the Japs sick, made them see the danger of nearby Chinese bases, caused them to shift their strategy to cleaning up China ahead of other warfronts.

Heard in the navy press room: A sailor after 20 years' service retired with a sizeable fortune of $60,000. He amassed this sum through careful investment, enterprise, initiative—and the death of an uncle who left him $59,000.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
Marco Polo, famed 13th Century Venetian traveler, comes to the Court of Kublai Khan in Peking to procure valuable trade agreements for his father. There Marco meets and falls in love with the Emperor's beautiful daughter, Kukachin, who is betrothed to the King of Persia. Their romantic meetings are spied upon by Ahmed, the ruthless and crafty Minister of State, who persuades Kublai Khan to dispose of the troublesome Venetian by sending him to the camp of the rebellious chieftain, Kaidu, to act as spy for the Emperor.

Chapter Four

Marco Polo was more than ordinarily alert as he and Binguccio rode westward toward Nung Po pass with a column of troops headed by Ahmed's guard, Bayan. When they reached the pass Marco could see that the mountain trail swerved into a narrow defile on the edge of a sheer precipice. Bayan suddenly gave the order to halt and Marco realized that trouble was at hand. The troops reined in their horses, all eyes turned toward Marco. Bayan drew his sword. Marco glanced into the gorge below, grimaced, and whispered to Binguccio:

"I'm going to try to get us out of this — if I can. Ride westward!"

There was a shout from Bayan and the troopers began to close in on Marco. He swung his horse around in an attempt to make a dash for the end of the pass. Binguccio's horse reared violently, throwing the startled little man to the ground. He picked himself up quickly and ran as fast as he could to the West. The converging troopers, their spears flashing, closed in on Marco, until they had forced his horse to the very edge of the precipice. The animal reared up and fell backwards. There was a triumphant shout from the troopers and Bayan's scarred and ugly face was suffused in a happy grin. He gave the order to march — back to Peking.

But Marco had not fallen into the ravine. As his horse fell he had caught the limb of a twisted tree on the sloping cliff and clung to it with the desperation of a doomed man. Presently he shook the dust of the avalanche from his face and clambered up a little so that one foot was firmly braced against the tree trunk. Then slowly, inch by inch, he began to make his ascent up the face of the cliff. Once he looked down into the gorge and shuddered. Sweat poured from his face.

Meanwhile, in Peking, Kublai Khan was preparing to lead the army in battle against Japan. Seated in his magnificent howdah, at the head of his army, he waved a last farewell to his daughter, Princess Kukachin. From the Citadel Tower Ahmed watched the scene. He turned to the officer at his side and remarked significantly.

"The China Sea is a powerful adversary. One typhoon might end the glorious reign of Kublai Khan."

The officer smiled understandingly.

Night, black and cold, descended on the plains of Tartary. Marco Polo and Binguccio trudged westward toward the lights of a camp. When they reached it they crouched behind a bush to reconnoiter. A sharp voice behind them demanded to know their identity and their business.

"We are two citizens of Venice, on our way to Peking," Marco told him.

"Take him to Lord Kaidu," the officer ordered the guards.

Marco started. "Kaidu! Are you Kaidu's man?"

The captain laughed derisively. "You didn't know that, did you? Spy!"

Marco and Binguccio were hustled into a tent and held there until morning.

Within another tent, Lord Kaidu was bucking on his armor. Nazama, his beautiful wife, reclined among the silken cushions and fur coverlets of her bed. She leaned towards him languorously.

"Kaidu, my beloved," she said. "Come to me and hold me in your arms." Kaidu, bucking on his belt, was preoccupied and annoyed. "Are you my husband?" Nazama inquired with vehement sarcasm. "Are you a man? Or are you nothing but a great hulking animal who can do nothing but work — like the oxen who haul your war machines. Kaidu was still silent, and his voice rose shrilly. "Your belt is crooked!"

"Kaidu, a towering and warlike figure in his massive armor, covered before his wife's displeasure, thought gently to appease her.

"I love you Nazama," he said scathingly. "I love you better than all the birds and all the flowers of all the stars in all the heavens."

For answer, Nazama threw a piece of coal at him. Kaidu made a hasty exit, cursing under his breath. Outside the tent an officer made his reports. Over a thousand detachments. The soldiers of the secret corps had mutinied the night before. The food supply was falling and treason was everywhere.

Kaidu fumed. "That's enough! In the work of Ahmed's agents. We in the name of all the seven devils don't you ever catch any of them?"

He stormed into the main tent for his breakfast. He was in a bad mood indeed until, looking up, he saw the serving maid. She was a pretty, demure little thing. He beamed at her. The maid smiled back timidly. The flirtation was abruptly cut short by the shadow of Nazama, who entered the tent and regarded him with open suspicion.

"Have you," she inquired acidly, "ever seen me so much as look at another man since we were married?"

Kaidu sighed and answered readily. "No, love of my life."

"Then don't let me ever catch you casting sheep's eyes at another woman!"

After breakfast Kaidu, with Nazama beside him, reviewed the business of the day. The case of Soon Chung was brought up first.

"The charge," an officer informed Kaidu, "is that Soon Chung wilfully and brutally put to death eight of his men without giving them benefit of trial."

"It was necessary for discipline," put in Soon Chung, an evil looking Tartar.

Kaidu barked, "Then it's bad discipline — when we need every man we can get!"

Nazama was yawning with boredom. Kaidu said, "That Soon Chung is one of the worst brutes in the army." He turned to the officer. "Boil him in oil."

Marco Polo and Binguccio were brought forward. Binguccio's knees shook.

"We are only commercial travelers, Lord Kaidu," explained Marco. "From Venice, far across the ocean to the West."

"Venice? Never heard of it. But tell me, why were you coming through Nung Po Pass, which has always been East of here? Ha, ha! Torture them a little. Maybe by that time he will come from the South."

Marco saw that his chance for freedom was not by reasoning with Kaidu. Nazama had noticed him, and he turned to her deliberately with his most appealing, ingratiating look. Nazama reacted favorably.

"Wait!" she cried as the soldiers began to drag him away. "What is your occupation, young man?"

"My occupation," began Marco. "Is looking —"

"Some people call it spying," interrupted Kaidu.

"Perhaps it is, my Lord. But not in the political sense. I have wandered over the earth looking for the greatest of God's creations, a lovely woman."

Nazama began to purr. "And have you found her?"

"I am your prisoner, my lady," said Marco pointedly. "And if I told the truth —"

"Obviously, my love," said Nazama to Kaidu, "this gentleman is not a spy."

Kaidu looked from one to the other. "Oh, obviously, my love, obviously!"

He was struck by a brilliant idea. He dismissed everyone but Marco Polo.

"You are no longer a prisoner, but you must not be impatient to get away, my friend," said Kaidu. "Here, have a drink. You see, for years, I have been looking for a man who could divert my wife's attention. You seem to be the one who can do it. You will be charming to her, and keep on being charming — until I tell you to stop."

"Suppose," said Marco squinting. "My chavin gives out?"

Kaidu smiled. "We'll keep the oil boiling."

The Post Exchange FOX FLASHES

By Pfc. J. C. Fox

Morale, they say, keeps the army going. One of the chief builders of morale is the post or as it is known, now, camp exchange. How different it is than the last fracas with the Red Cross and Salvation Army hand-outs.

In the field, whenever possible, huge mobile units are set up, equipped with the sundries of the soldier and with dry ice refrigeration to cool the variety of canned fruit juices and soft drinks on hand.

How nice it is, at the end of a days work, to wander over to the P. X., talk over things with your buddies, while imbibing a cool refreshing bottle of soda or munching some candy or a box of cakes.

These outfits are primarily for the benefit of the soldier but the civilian workers on any area may obtain a package of cigarettes or two, provided only that the men have positive identification of the facts that they are boni-fied workers. They are allowed no other purchases.

One of the busiest places and near the C. X. is the barber shop which is completely equipped with all necessary tonsorial needs.

Standard camp exchanges are set up in all the areas here at places are under the care of branch managers and their assistants. They are supplied thru headquarters situated in Temple. The officers for these exchanges will be moved when the bulk of the men move into the main area near Killeen. Situated also in Temple are the warehouses who continually send out fresh supplies as priorities permit. Within a short time there will be about 10 or 12 camp exchanges built. At present Branch No. 3 is in a tent but this work has started on a permanent wooden edifice.

Branch manager, E. C. Gerhardt, his assistant manager, Edwin J. Vasek are in charge and announce the fact that besides the necessary sundries there will also be freshly made sandwiches, canned fruit juices, and thru present contacts, ample reading materials which include newspapers from the principal cities of the eastern seaboard.

The hours of the Camp Hood Exchange are from 11:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 4:30 to 9 p. m. daily.

Due to military secrets, there isn't much one can say about the future C. X.'s, but we gather it will be quite an elaborate affair, Camp Hood and everwhere troops are likely to be situated. These which will make those back East pale in significance.

We understand that the U. S. has three navies now, one in the Atlantic, one in the Pacific and one in Arkansas.

FOX FLASHES OR THE WYVERN SPEAKS

Some of the men wanted to know the why and wherefore of the naming of Camp Hood.

A fighting General of the War between the States gave it the name it can well be proud of.

In the battle of the Wilderness, it was the able guidance and military savvy of General John Bell Hood, who turned an otherwise lost engagement into a Confederate victory.

Hood's Brigade, as it was known was a forerunner of the guerrilla warfare, so ably handled during that affair by both forces. His troops caused plenty of headaches in the Unionists ranks by their harrasing and forays of the supply lines.

Corp. Taylor is slightly befuddled by this pay raise. It is after considerate figuring of the longevity and pay scales that he discovered that he'll get 10 cents less monthly. Tsh, Tsh.

Pfc. Beath of Rec. Co., is well known in vaudeville circles. He worked the Keith and Gayety Circuit, which is well known throughout the land as the best of entertainment. Beath acted as straight man for some of the best known comics. One of his best efforts is the age-old Baseball skit—"What's on 1st? No, Who's on 1st." etc.

It does seem that this part of the country has turned in to a 3 or 5 day "Gretna Green." Every week-end some of the soldier boys take that walk down the aisle to hear those blending words. June brides and Groans.

Now that the pay raise is here an old friend of the doughboy is on its way out. A test is being made at a camp on the advisability of discarding the canteen check. This is in line with the President's idea of gradually eliminating installment buying. It will also cut down on the bookkeeping.

One of the most photographed objects of wildlife hereabout is the young Hawk specie unknown, which adopted Pvt. Phillips of Hdqs. Co. The bird has been "mugged" in every company so far and photos have no doubt been sent home showing the folks, "look at the boid I caught."

The boys admire and berate the military stratdgy of the various insects here. The Rec. group, the fireflies send out their flares and light up the scenes for the main fighting groups, the mosquitoes. Overhead hovers the divebombers, the wasps take care of the aerial warfare and the chiggers and ticks act as tanks and troublesome "jeeps."

"Reverse Pressure" Harry Graham of the Pillpushers, hails from Arlington, Va., "Where the South really Begins."

Pvt. Woods' personal engagements are temporarily halted due to injuries he recently received.

Sports Hits and Bits
The baseball season is temporarily at a standstill. An adequate baseball field has been located and as soon as it is laid out and other details are arranged, Lt. Hunter, the Morale Officer, announces that a schedule will be made.

He also announced the fact that as soon as possible a trophy will be given to "B" Co., emblematic of their victorious campaign on the softball field. A trophy may also be given "C" Co. for the second half honors. In any field events, the winners will be given such trophies.

The shortage of baseball equipment is one of the factors holding up the schedule.

All men who want to play on the 893rd. Battalion Baseball team are urged to report that fact to Morale Officer. State position desired to play and alternate.
