TO RATION OR NOT TO

Washington, Aug. 5 (PA).—The problem of keeping tires on the nation's wheels resolved itself today into a choice between nationwide gasoline rationing, long supported by the OPA and a system of "mileage rationing" and speedometer check-ups, advocated by the ODT.

ALLRED-O'DANIEL TALK WAR

The Hammer and Tonk Boys are at it again. The run-off campaign will bust loose this week. Allred's already busted with two-bit cotton for the farmers, and a lot of other "golden promises" that make it look almost like he's trying to steal O'Daniel's stuff. The platform looks to us as if designed to be "very vote-getting" and that's just about "30."

SIDE GLANCES ON TEXAS HISTORY

By Charles O. Hucker
University of Texas Library

GENERAL COS LOSES A TREASURE

The actual storming of San Antonio early in December, 1835, one of the great military successes of the Texas Revolution, was undertaken by the Texans as a last resort. It was to be a difficult business, they knew; but they had played out their hand to the end in vain, and there was nothing else to be done.

In the beginning there had been hope of a better solution. Stephen F. Austin, then commander of the Texas forces, first suggested a peaceful settlement to General Cos, who commanded the besieged town, and received only insults in return. Then he settled down to starve Cos into submission, but succeeded only well enough to force him to send out a company for prairie grass that his horses might stay alive.

Yet another hope, as the story goes in the Texas Collection of the University of Texas Library, was that Cos's men might rebel. The Texans had learned that General Ugartachea was on his way to San Antonio with a shipment of silver, the Mexican payroll; and, if only they could intercept that shipment, Cos fight well find himself unable to control his men.

Mule Train in Sight

Probably with such a hope in the back of his mind, Austin kept scouts constantly on the lookout around San Antonio; and hope glowed bright early in the afternoon of November 26th when suddenly famous old Deaf Smith galloped into camp with news that a guard of 100 Mexican soldiers was approaching the town escorting 70 heavily laden pack mules.

"Ugartachea!" The cry swept through the Texas camp. The caravan was still about three miles from the town, with a convoy of only 100 men. The silver—and with it San Antonio, as they thought—was in their grasp. Col. James Bowie with an equal number mounted behind him quickly dashed out to the fight, and practically the entire Texan force followed him soon in a wave.

A mile from the town and in sight of it, Bowie came upon the caravan and charged. The Mexicans were surprised and quickly alarmed and, seeing no chance of beating the Texans to the town with their pack mules, retreated into a ravine for the night.

All Loss and No Gain

Cos's defending force inside the gates, meanwhile, had observed the sudden activity in Austin's camp and soon put in their appearance en masse to save the precious caravan. Bowie, forced thus to turn his attention from the ravine, fought them off for a time; then his reinforcements came up from behind, relieved him of this burden on his flank, and settled down for a bitter battle over the treasure.

But the caravan had been creeping steadily toward San Antonio all this time, moving unobserved down the ravine. And now Cos's men began to fall back, always maneuvering the Texas out of position to reach it. At last, however, a final and determined charge by Bowie's men scattered this protection and swept upon the mule train, in one stroke the Mexicans fled into the town, leaving some fifty dead and their precious pack mules on the field. The Texans, saddened only by the loss of one man, naturally descended upon the mules in a mass, eagerly and peacefully ripping open the packs. And they found Cos's treasurer—not silver, but the grass he needed for his starving horses.

100 Years Ago in Texas

"A gentleman from Bexar has informed us, that it is now currently reported in the west, that the sack of Refugio was made by a party of Mexicans who have been regarded as citizens of Texas, and resided near Carlos' Rancho. Their object was not so directly for the purpose of plunder, as to destroy the records of the district court, which contained bills of indictments against several of them, as accessories and principals in the robbery of Col. Karnes, and other merchants on the San Antonio, a few years since, while returning from Aransas, with several teams loaded with merchandise. They plundered the teams and attempted to murder Col. Karnes.—Fearing they would be convicted they have taken this summary method of destroying the evidence of their guilt, and in doing it, have committed a greater crime than the first. We understand a full investigation will be made relative to the affair at the next term of the district court, and it is hoped that the guilty wretches will be detected and made to atone for their villainies. Agator, their leader has fled to the Rio Grande; but it is supposed many of his accomplices still remain near Bexar and consider themselves secure under the impression that no evidence can be brought against them. Nous verons."—The Telegraph and Texas Register (Houston), December 1, 1841.

ALEUTIANS IMPORTANT

Behind the army-navy attempts to blast the Japs out of the Aleutian islands is more than natural antipathy to having an enemy on American soil or the fear of an invasion of Alaska.

These are important. But, in addition, events in Egypt may mean that more than ever we shall have to use these vital stepping stones of the Aleutian islands to carry the war to the heart of Japan.

To get the full significance of the picture it is necessary to recall that ever since Pearl Harbor there has been an honest difference of opinion among U. S. war strategists as to whether we should concentrate on fighting Japan in the Pacific or Hitler in Europe.

At one time, shortly after Pearl Harbor, high-up U. S. naval advisers worked out an elaborate war plan, which is no longer a secret, for concentrating almost all our naval strength in the Pacific and making a direct attack on the Japanese islands—at a time when the Japs had their lines dispersed to Manila, Singapore and the South Seas.

But the plan meant leaving the Atlantic coast relatively unguarded, also virtually abandoning convoys to Britain and Russia. In the end it was decided that the Russian front was all-important and must be supplied at all costs. The wisdom of this decision seems to have been borne out by subsequent events.

Japs Worried. However, those who urge the all-out war in Asia have persisted, and their argument has been strengthened by recent developments. One is the fact that the Japs, obviously scared at the prospect of a second front in Asia, are fighting feverishly to clean out the Chinese before China gets important help from us. Fear of a second front in Asia also was why the Japs nipped part of the Aleutian islands.

Main development, however, was the defeat at Tobruk and the serious Nazi threat to the entire Near East; for if the Near East falls, with its vital supply route opened by American railroad engineers from the Gulf of Persia to the Caucasus, then it may be absolutely imperative to open new supply lines to Russia via Alaska and Siberia.

And, even more important, the entire focus of the war, so far as the United States is concerned, may turn to the Far East; for, if Hitler secures the oil of Iran, Iraq and Mosul, it may be the wisest strategy to knock Japan out of the war first—because the Nazis will have the resources to continue for a long time.

WHAT IS AN EXPERT?

When Federal Communications Chairman Lawrence Fly appeared before the house interstate commerce commission recently, he was asked by Representative Clarence Brown of Ohio:

"What is your definition of an expert?"

"Well," replied Fly, "I once heard an expert described as any damned fool away from home."

"Do you pick your experts at the FCC on that basis?" inquired Congressman Brown. "No," said Fly. "We generally take them from the industry, where they have proven their worth."

"I am asking these questions because of a peculiar experience I had recently," explained the Ohio congressman, and went on to tell how a congressional committee had referred him to an expert on accounting, "a young man who graduated from college in 1939 and was still a trifle wet behind the ears."

A short time later, Brown continued, he called at the War Production board on another matter and was referred to an "agricultural expert." "Lo and behold, the expert proved to be the same young man."

"Following this, I again called at the WPB on a matter pertaining to metal," said Brown. "This time I was referred to an expert on copper and, believe it or no, Mr. Fly, it was the same agent."

"And," Brown warned the chairman of the Federal Communications commission, "if I ever come down to your commission and find this chap, you and I are going to tangle."

FOOD FOR FREEDOM

By Sidney G. Gibson, Texas A. & M. College Extension Service
It's Tomato Time in Texas

Every person needs to eat citrus fruit or tomatoes daily. At this season tomatoes are plentiful for table use and for home canning. Recipes for tomato juice cocktail, cream of tomato soup, stuffed baked tomatoes, tomatoes with cottage cheese, green tomato pie, and tomatoes sherbet are given in Starring Tomatoes, a leaflet available at the County Agent's office. Directions for canning tomato juice and salad pack tomatoes are also printed in it. To conserve her tomato products and to save metal both, Mrs. M. E. Rodgers of Pidoke used reflatged No. 2 cans and filled 63 of them with tomato juice. Mrs. C. L. Beane canned over 56 quarts of tomato juice and she extracted it with the sopro-siv which is made for that purpose.

Bright red, ripe tomatoes make good quality juice. It can be extracted quickly if the tomatoes are heated before running through the colander or sepro-siv. If the jars are sterilized and the tomatoes are of excellent quality, it is necessary only to heat the juice in the jars to simmering, seal them and place them in the boiling water bath canner for five minutes.

The Green Tomato Surplus Solved
 "I've kept tomatoes until January," is a remark made by a Coryell county homemaker recently when the subject of storing vegetables was under discussion. Her method is to pull the vines before the freeze and hang tops down in a well ventilated room where they will keep cool but will not freeze. There should be just enough moisture in the room to prevent freezing.

"How can I keep the green tomatoes I have already pulled off the vines?" is a question which arose in the discussion. The answer to this is to paint the stems and scar with a wax made of 1 part parafin, 1 part beeswax, and 2 parts mineral oil. Then store in a cool, well ventilated place to ripen. Place them so they do not touch on a slatted shelf or deck in a cellar or cave. By the day, do all persons know that the "ventilated pantry" is one with a hole in the floor and a hole in the ceiling so that the cool air from under the house keeps it very cool in summer?

A Recipe for "Green Tomato Pie"

Four or five large green tomatoes peeled and sliced and placed in baking dish. Cover with minced parsley, a small chopped onion, small diced cucumber, tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon sugar, salt and pepper to taste.

Spread 2 cups well seasoned hot mashed potatoes over the tomatoes, sprinkle with 3 tablespoons grated cheese and bake in moderate oven until brown.

Some Current Yard Observations
 July and August are hot months and hard on for lawns to remain green and attractive. In case a green one is seen, it more than likely has been sodded with San Augustine or "marsh" grass.

This is a wide-bladed luxuriant growing lawn grass. It requires watering at this time of the year to keep it in best condition. Some trouble with leaf spots on euonymus japonica has been seen. This starts with a small orange colored dot on the leaf and spreads until the leaf finally falls off the plant. Dusting with sulphur while dew is on the plant to make it stick on the leaves is recommended for this rust condition. Another trouble to avoid is chlorosis or "yellowing off" by working a cup of cottonseed meal, sulphur, or copperas into the soil. Symptoms of chlorosis are yellow leaves with green veins.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: When Steve Larwitt's underworld enterprises cause an attempt to be made on his life, his lovely young wife, Brenda, begs him to stop making money and go abroad. Steve refuses, and Brenda conspires with her lawyer, Slant Kolma, to have him tried for income tax offenses, planning to put him safely in jail for a year at most. But Slant, who wants a clear field with Brenda, conducts Steve's defense in such a way that a ten-year sentence results. When Steve is in jail Brenda repulses Slant's advances, but he reminds her that they share a common secret. Brenda, deeply devoted to Steve, lives near the prison and builds her life toward the day when he will be free. After six months she meets Tim Nilon, buoyant young aviation engineer, who persuades her to visit a flying field with him. Quietly her uneasy protests, he takes her up in his private plane.

Chapter Five

At first, as the plane began to soar, Brenda sat tensely, trying to control her fear. But after several minutes, looking down, she was amazed at the beauty and serenity of the scene, at the smallness and apparent insignificance of the buildings and people below.

"How does it look to you?" he smiled as they soared above a come out. If you need any cash or anything, just give me a ring."

Through the ever-resourceful Brenda managed to get a job in Alameda. The job was singing in a fifth-rate cafe; but the money was obscure, and obscurity was what she wanted more than anything else.

But Mary's propensity for confiding things to Nolan had not yet left her; and so it was that Nolan found Brenda in her dressing room at the Sorrento Cafe. His reception turned out to be a chilly one.

"I'm earning my living here and I like it," she told him flatly. "And it isn't any of your business what I do or where I do it."

"No, I guess it isn't. But if there's anything I can do I'd like to help you."

"There is a way you can help. And that's by leaving me alone. Get out of my life and stay out. And I mean it!"

On the same night Nolan, abstractedly going over blueprints in his office, received a visit from Slant Kolma. Kolma outlined his business briefly and pointedly. He informed the engineer that Brenda Bentley was Mrs. Steve Larwitt, wife of the famous underworld character; that Larwitt still had connections with the shooting set; and that as Brenda's attorney, it was his duty to warn Nolan that any further attentions paid to her, Larwitt might result in some very unpleasant developments for him.

"Sounds like an ultimatum," said Nolan grimly.

"Call it anything you want, but

He made for their table as if he had expected to find them there.

bank of white clouds. "All I can see is an ocean of fluff. I feel as if I were lost in space. It's wonderful — it's all so clean."

They celebrated Brenda's first flight at lunch — with champagne. "Wait till you get a look at yourself," he told her. You look like a different person. You're alive — that chip's fallen off your shoulder."

But her happy mood was not for long. Glancing toward the door of the dining room, she saw Slant Kolma entering. He made ready for their table, as if he had expected to find them there. Brenda introduced Tim to Slant. After a brief, perfunctory exchange of greetings Slant left them, but not without significantly expressing the hope that he would see her again soon.

Soon afterward Brenda made her excuses to Nolan and asked for a cab. He watched her ride off, puzzled and unhappy at the sudden change in her mood.

Brenda called on Slant at his room in the Ritz-Curzon in response to his telephone message. She half expected what was about to happen. Slant informed her that her money was all gone; the Government had taken it for Steve's unpaid income taxes. As for her jewelry, that had just paid for the trial. But there was no need for despair — she could have anything she wanted — from Slant. And he reminded her, incidentally, that he was crazy about her.

When she answered him with a silent look of loathing, Slant reminded her also that Steve might be interested to know who had been responsible for his going to jail. And he would surely be interested to know that his wife was running around with Tim Nolan.

She looked at him, white-faced. "Have you said everything you wanted to say?"

"I'm hanging around town for a little while to see how things as long as we understand each other."

"I think we do. Good night, Mr. Kolma."

The next visiting day found Brenda, as usual, at the prison awaiting her turn to be shaved in. As the guard nodded to her, Slant detached himself from the crowd and walked into the visiting room with her.

"He mustn't know the money is gone," she said in a low, urgent voice.

Steve showed pleasure at seeing Slant. "You're seeing that Brenda gets everything she wants, aren't you, Slant?"

"Whatever she wants, she can get," said Slant.

"Now that you're in town you can take her out to the shows and dinner. It's been tough for her — she doesn't know anyone." He turned smilingly to Brenda. "I'll bet you were glad to see Slant."

Brenda managed to force a smile. Steve added further to her anguish by ordering Slant to give her a roadster for her birthday. Slant watched her face, enjoying her reaction.

The way, Slant, it's taking me a long time to catch up with you. What about it?" "I'm working on it."

A guard announced that time was up.

Steve leaned toward Brenda. "If I didn't know what they'd do to me, I'd bust right through this glass and take you in my arms. Goodbye, honey... Look after her, Slant."

"I will," promised Slant. "I was surprised to find Steve looking so well," he told Brenda on the ferry going back. "It's wonderful what you're doing for him. It would be unfortunate if he ever lost faith in you."

"Steve is never going to lose faith in me," she answered calmly.

"Well, of course, Brenda, that's for you to decide."

(To be concluded)

Mrs. M. Buettner and son, Max Robert, of Baltimore, Maryland, spent the week end with her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Krutz, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. English.

Dear Wardie:

I used to wonder what they meant when they said "Youth will be served." Now I know, because Earl Caldwell and Bear Track Greer of the Ft. Worths is a servant in the youth of the Texas League a lot of what it takes to get the youth out.

I come home the other night and Aunt Minnie was a singing that song, "Oh How I Miss You Tonight." I couldn't figger it out, till I seen her a throwin' cups at Uncle Tobias, and she missed him five times in a row.

With all the tightenin' up of restrictions on people's clothes, Uncle Tobe wants to know if they's a going to be any tightenin' up on women's sweaters. I told him he would have to write to Henderson fer the low down on the tightenin' up.

Aunt Mamie's girl, Gloriana, the one that's in San Antonio, lost five bucks last Saturday. She works in the telephone office there. A Saturday she went into a bookie shop and picked the wrong plug.

I was in to San Antonio a Sunday. I had a date with a lieutenant. He played golf that morning.

You know, it's a funny thing. A. buy will go play golf and walk five miles. But he has got to get his car out to go a block and a half to a beer joint.

I'll be seein' you, Pal. Keep 'em Firin'.

Yours,
LOONEY LUCY.

Last Friday was "pay off day." We got paid and we were rich once again. Some by now are paupers, broke, no more money. Easy come, easy go; but long time to wait, this time five glorious week ends and we get paid on a Monday this month. That's bad, why can't we get paid Saturday? I've seen a private put a ten dollar bill around a lot of ones. He just camou-FLASHED his bank roll.

HERE 'N THERE: Overheard in town (Temple) a Sergeant conversing with a Corporal in the U. S. O. Club: "A Major may have a gold leaf on his shoulder, but to us he's poison ivy" * * * Last night that gold-bricker was out with a gold digger. I wonder if he meant Pvt. Paul McGinty? * * * One of our new recruits is looking for a gal who can sew, cook, bake a pie like mother use to make, keep house and who does not smoke, pet or go out nights without him. My suggestion buddy is, that you o to the cemetery and dig up one from the grave * * * Sergeants and Corporals may differ at times, but first class privates are of one stripe * * * When a certain guy from the Medics called "Trick" watches a hula dancer do her stuff and says: "I think I'll hit the hay;" it's no sign he's sleepy * * * Some of the boys got new khaki uniforms last week and they were fitted like a gloves * * * Yeah! boxing gloves * * * Suggestion to crap shooters ;try to have your dice throw anything but sevens. I heard of a guy whose dice threw nothing but sevens. It can be said he died a "natural" death * * * A fast one was pulled the other day by one of our brilliant K. P.'s, who asked a Sarge would he like his eggs turned over. Sarge being quick on the trigger said: "Yes—to the museum" * * * A corporal from Recon. Company was out with a girl last week end and says her kisses were dynamite. I suggest the next time we have orders to blow a tank, we'll take her along * * * Corporal Michel McClory, "C" Company, said he'll not marry until this war is over. He believes in one war at a time * * * Sunday night a sentry yelled Halt! who goes there? Stranger answered a friend and a bottle. Sentry passed the friend and halted the bottle * * * Classification of certain duties: Laterine Orderly—Sanitary Engineer. Fireman—Boiler Technician.

Watermelon Cutting: Soldiers

invited, Saturday night. If they are able afterward, there will be informal games and dancing. Limit, 40 pounds of melon.

Hostesses group will help with arrangements and the new recording machine is getting the works, many sending "loving letters" to their families and G. F's.

Mrs. Laura Bess Florey has assumed her duties Monday and will soon organize the women's activities.

Four thousand cookies have been given by Turnersville and Liberty communities, and a great many have come in from Gatesville women.

The "Packaging Counter" is really wrapped up in "wrapping up" parcels for mailing for soldiers and also arranging for telegrams and telephone calls.

Soldiers Wanted: Every Sunday several soldiers wanted to have dinner with some civilian. Just don't make any special arrangements but just drop by the USO and take 'em home with you. Two or three wouldn't hurt you and you might even take four. Ever been away from home? You'll then know how this lifts morale.

JUNK needed for War

"What's it good for?"
"Guns, tanks, and maybe part of a plane"

In the barnyards and gullies of farms and in the basements and attics of homes is a lot of Junk which is doing no good where it is, but which is needed at once to help smash the Japs and Nazis.

Scrap iron and steel, for example.

Even in peacetime, scrap provided about 50% of the raw material for steel. It may be rusty, old "scrap" to you, but it is actually refined steel—with most impurities removed, and can be quickly melted with new metal in the form of pig iron to produce highest quality steel for our war machines.

The production of steel has gone up, up, UP, until today America is turning out as much steel as all the rest of the world combined. But unless at least 6,000,000 additional tons of scrap steel is uncovered promptly, the full rate of production cannot be attained or increased; the necessary tanks, guns and ships cannot be produced.

The rubber situation is also critical. In spite of the recent rubber drive, there is a continuing need for large quantities of scrap rubber. Also for other waste materials and metals like brass, copper, zinc, lead and tin.

The Junk which you collect is bought by industry from scrap dealers at established, government-controlled prices.

Will you help?

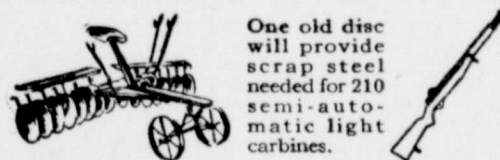

First—collect all of your waste material and pile it up.

Then—sell it to a Junk dealer, give it to a charity, take it yourself to the nearest collection point, or get in touch with your Local Salvage Committee.

If you live on a farm, consult your County War Board or your farm implement dealer.

Throw YOUR scrap into the fight!

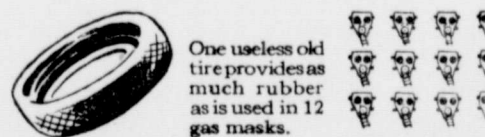

JUNK MAKES FIGHTING WEAPONS

One old shovel will help make 4 hand grenades.
