5 GRANDMAS! THAT'S WHAT LITTLE WELDON D. JONSE'S GOT!

Now can any of you kids beat that! Well count 'em up, your grandmas, and just see if'n you got more'n "Weldon".
You Know, that's a lot, and grandmas can do a lot of good for a fellow, or give him a mighty lot of worry, but not these five grandmas.
Here they are, Mrs. Velva Martin, of Belton, grandmother, Mrs W. C. Roberts of Levita, great-grandmother, and Mrs W A Blount, great-great-grandmother. On his father's side, his grandmother, Mrs. Oscar Jones, of White Hall, and great-grandmother Mrs G. T. Vernon of White Hall. That boy, certainly ought to be taken care of

BODY OF SOLDIER FOUND IN SWOLLEN STREAM AT CAMP

The body of a Cmp Hood soldier whose car had been washed a mile down stream in Cowhouse creek Thursday was recovered at 2:30 p. m. Friday by parties dragging the stream.

Identity of the man who lost his life was withheld by camp authorities pending notification of next of kin, who had not been located last night His body was found in House creek, a tributary of Cowhouse.

The soldier apparently had driven his car a civilian vehicle into the rain-swollen stream where West Range road fords it, before realizing that the rains had made it a swift, roaring torrent.

It still was not known last night whether there were any other occupants of the car. No other bodies had been recovered Friday night.

FAILURE TO NOTIFY AGO OF ADDRESS CHANGES CAUSES DELAY IN CASUALTY NOTIFICATIONS

The War Department has urged all emergency addressees of soldiers serving overseas to keep The Adjutant General informed at all times of any address changes in order to avoid unnecessary delays in the transmission of casualty notifications.

Large numbers of casualty telegrams are being returned undelivered to The Adjutant General's Office because addresses of friends or next of kin to be notified in emergency are incomplete or incorrect. Practically every case of non-delivery has been directly attributable to outdated addresses resulting from the failure of the emergency addressee to notify The Adjutant General of any change of address. More than 4,000 such casualty telegrams are delayed every month.

Emergency addressees who have moved following the departure of the soldier for an overseas destination should write to The Adjutant General, War Department, Washington 25, D. C., Attention: Casualty Branch, giving both the old and new address. Also included should be the soldier's full name, rank, serial number and his organization and APO number.

North Camp Hood NEWS

A German youth who fled the Hitler way of life and the doctrines of Nazism for freedom—a freedom he found here in America is anxiously awaiting the time he can come to grips with the enemy of free people, that of his native land.

This young man, now wearing the uniform of the United States Army, is T/5 Rudolph F. Nottrodt currently attached to Hqs Det., 151st Infantry Replacement Battalion at Camp Hood.

A former leader in the Hitler Nazi Youth Movement T/5 Nottrodt saw at the age of 16 what fanatics the Fuehrer was making of the German youth and took immediate steps to rid himself of the yoke of a regimented life. He found a haven in the United States when he came here in 1936 to join his father, a naturalized citizen, who had come to this country in 1929.

Hitler's strength Nottrodt asserted lies in the German youth, a majority of whom are firm believers in his policies.

And the condition is explainable Nottrodt observed, because all belong to his Nazi Youth Movement and Hitler's teachings are pounded into their heads daily. The older Germans do not approve, but Hitler doesn't care. They are disregarded but watched closely, in many instances by sons and daughters.

Just how did Hitler sell himself to the youth of German? the former leader in the movement was asked.

He played on our gullibility, Nottrodt replied. After ascending to power in 1933 he founded the Nazi Youth Movement, likening it to the Boy Scouts of America. It was to be a recreational organization where we could build our bodies big and strong. Then, one of his first acts was to suspend school classes on Saturday, giving us an extra holiday each week. That won favor of course, and the membership increased from 200,000 to several million within six months.

An organized 'play session' then was adopted for Saturdays and Sundays of each week. These games, Nottrodt explained, turned out to be fundamentals of military training, featuring creeping, crawling camouflage, estimation of distances and altitudes. Everything had to do with the military training Nottrodt added, but nothing was ever said about the war.

Asked why he joined the movement, Cpl. Nottrodt explained:

Membership was not compulsory, but virtually so. If a boy or girl didn't join, he or she was ostracized, shunned and watched like a mad dog. If a youth sought a job, he was asked if he belonged to the Youth Movement. If he didn't there wasn't any job for him. It was only natural for the German youth to join. There was not any alternative.

Soon, however the games became more militaristic in fashion, leaders were chosen and good participation was rewarded with recognition and fancy uniforms. Up on attaining the age of 18, a Nazi youth became a Storm Trooper and then a part of the army.

As I studied and analyzed the program, I found my freedom was being curtailed daily, Nottrodt said. We lived as Hitler wanted us to and later he began talking about how other countries were going to attack us and that we must be prepared for that. He sold the nation on that score.

Knowing I was approaching the age for the Storm Troopers and army, I decided I wanted no part of it. I wrote my father asking him to send for me. He did that was in 1936.

Arriving in Chicago, T/5 Nottrodt said his presence there was discovered which he believes was not an accident. He was asked to join the German-American Bund. He attended several of these meetings and found the closing ceremony was a recitation of the oath affirming allegiance and devotion to the Fatherland. That was comparable to the Nazi Youth Movement teachings where they were forced to relate such slogans as: Germany must live, even if we have to die! The flag is more than death! and We are always ready when the Fuehrer calls!

Severing his connection with that organization Nottrodt sought the companionship of real Americans. He found one who sent him to business college and began teaching him the American way of life.

That is when I really found out what freedom was and meant.

He soon became a derivative citizen through his father. Nottrodt received wide publicity as a government witness in the trial against the German-American Bund and in the trial of the German saboteurs who landed from a submarine on the coast of Florida. One of the men executed Herbert Haupt, was a personal acquaintance.

With reference to the German rearmament program, Nottrodt said the people were kept in the dark as to what they were making.

Each man worked on a certain piece he said and did not know what he was making. No assembling was done in the kind of plants. Hitler had assembling plants about which the people knew nothing, and only those men he could really trust were employed in those. To this day, I can't tell where they were located.

Then came the day when Hitler announced Germany was prepared to resist any efforts of any other nation to attack our country. The entire nation was amazed when the completed tanks armored vehicles trucks and troops paraded.

Nottrodt said he was anxious to bear arms against Nazi Germany because I want the German youth to know what freedom really is. They can be changed.

Now married and father of a child Nottrodt attempted to enlist as an aviation cadet in the Army Air Forces, but was rejected because he had not lived here 10 years. He volunteered for induction and only recently appeared before the OCS board of the IRTC at Camp Hood.

At the Mid-Winter Conference of School Executives and Teacher Trainers held at Austin, Texas on January 11, 12 and 13. Capt. Jack K. Hays, Tactics Dept. Tank Destroyer School, Camp Hood, gave a demonstration on army methods of instruction showing the use of charts and training aids. Speaker was especially requested from Camp Hood as a result of a tour through this installation by Texas school superintendents in October 1944, at which time the visitors expressed themselves as much impressed with army methods of training.

The purpose of the conference was to consider ways and means of improving education for health and safety, conservation of our natural resources, character, interAmerican relation and to consider next steps in education.

Following the Capt. demonstration, Dr. J G Umstadt Professor of Secondary Education, Texas U; Dr. T D Brooks, Dean, Graduate School, A&M College of Texas; Mr E W Jackson, Superintendent, Beaumont Public Schools; Maj. F. C. McConnell, Kingman Army Air Field, Kingman, Ariz. and Capt. Hays participated in a panel discussion of "What Can Be Adopted from the Army Method of Instruction".

Members of the conference were vitally interested in the method of presentation by the use of covered charts, the possibilities of scale models as training aids and the streamlined methods used by the Army for instruction and training.

"Father is quite a chess player. He used to beat me regularly"

The father in this case is Brig. Gen. Anthony Clement McAuliffe 46-year-old red haired airborne commander whose stubborn and defiant gambit at Bastogne when it looked like a checkmate, has become symbolized by his reply to a German surrender ultimatum "NUTS!"

The son is Private John H. McAuliffe, 21-year old, red-haired, hard-working trainee at the Tank Destroyer Replacement Training Center, Camp Hood, Texas.

Pvt McAuliffe spent many years traveling with his father from Army post to Army post, going to school at Ft Sill, Washington, and in Hawaii, and playing chess and hunting with his dad. Favorite recreations of both father and son. The first word that he had that his father was in action at Bastogne was a telegram from his mother in Washington, who had heard a news flash on the radio. Since then the family has had a brief cable from the busy general—"Safe and well."

Three weeks before the German break through into Belgium, they had heard from General McAuliffe that the 101st Airborne Division had been pulled out of line in Holland, where it went in with the First Allied Airborne Army in the attempted "end run" around Arnhem, and sent back to a rest camp.

When the enemy struck, Gen. McAuliffe was in command of the 101st, Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor having returned to Washington. The paratroopers and glidermen hurried into Bastogne with parts of the 9th and 10th Armored Divisions of the U. S. Third Army. Other stragglers from outfits that had been chewed up fell back into town. Gen. McAuliffe rounded them up as the Germans encircled the road hub December 19. They held out until an armored relief column broke through the day after Christmas.

Pvt McAuliffe is sure his father was glad to have every Tank Destroyer he did in Bastogne. Gen. McAuliffe held his tanks and TD's inside the town as a "Fire Brigade" and a news account relating of "vengeance on the perimeter" said "the wily paratroopers let the German tanks filter thru to ambush by the Tank Destroyers Rocket-firing fighter bombers took advantage of infrequent holes in the low cloud ceiling and added to the carnage among German armor. When the battle was over and the Germans frustrated from spilling thru the Sedan Gap, more than 200 German tanks and self-propelled guns made a ring of wreckage around Bastogne.

The general and his men today are busy hammering the Wehrmacht back into Germany and his son is busy studying communications at the Tank Destroyer Replacement Training Center. Pvt McAuliffe, deferred for physical reasons, was well through his second year in a pre-war course at Georgetown University when he was reclassified and enlisted last October. After the war, he doesn't know if the Army or law will be his career.

Wearing typical college girls' costumes of slouch sweaters in one act, "The 45 Carabet Revue" of the University of Texas will come to Camp Hood. Originating 3 years ago, the musical show of the University Curtain Club is a serviceman's show. Specialities include a precision number, a conga line of ten, torch singing and comedians.

Because of costuming difficulties, one chorus is made up of girls dressed in pastel sweaters and skirts, and in another chorus number the girls wear white gym shorts and white sweatshirts.

The Revue has a cast of 31 including 5 who are ex-servicemen and women. Mrs Ruth Morgan, a former WAC, is director, and Rosemary Davis, who has been a WAVE serves as light crew head and program chairman. Ex-army men are Jeff Miller, script writer, Roy Upshaw, music supervisor, and R J Hughes, skit director.

Mrs. Myron Leonard the former Johnnie Belle Coskrey has just returned from a 6 weeks visit with her husband's parents in Youngstown, Ohio. Mrs Leonard is living with her parents, in Gatesville, Mr. and Mrs John Coskrey while Lt. Leonard is serving in a tank destroyer battalion overseas.

Here's a letter from Cpl H I Swindall, who's an APO out of New York, and he says:

Dear Mat: Today, I received a couple of Christmas packages and in one of them were two copies of the News. The fact that they were both about three months old didn't greatly lessen my interest in reading them right down to, and including the classified advertising.

I notice that you are making a file of pertinent facts regarding Service Men and Women from Coryell County, so just in case you don't have the dope on me as yet, here goes: (and he gives us the dope).

"My wife, if you don't know is the former Miss Vivian Chatfield of New York City. She attended Drake and Columbia Universities and while doing special work at Hunter College enlisted with the Navy WAVES, took boot training at Hunter College; Specialist training at Atlanta, Ga where she attained the rank of SP (T) 3/c and was assigned as a link instructor, to the Naval Air Station, Norman, Okla. She was honorably discharged in September because we anticipated a "Blessed Event" in January. (NOTE: This also came true, and congratulations to both of you.

I believe you spent some time in France, so you may be interested to know that it is probably much the same now as then, except that the D-Day invasion didn't do any good at all to the towns. Many of them are nothing but heaps of shattered masonry and tile. The mud is probably just as deep and just as sticky as ever.

I've seen quite a lot of France, since I've been over here, but haven't grown so fond of it, but that I'll be ready and willing to return to the U S A., as soon as the job is done over here. I think I'd like to spend at least 2 years under an Arizona cactus, just toasting my shins in the sunshine. Since entering the service in April 1942, I've seen more cold rain and deep, goey mud than in all of the 35 years before that. It has seemed my bad fortune always to be stationed in places that always had the kind of weather that Gatesville sometimes has in winter—chilly, drizzling rains that never seem to end.

Sincerely,
T/5 Hiram Swindall.

Thanks Hiram, for you and your wife, and the babe, and when you get this letter or paper you can say, that we've just ended up a siege of that same kind of Gatesville weather you refer to. There are many, many places in the old world that have worse climates than Gatesville, even if we do think we don't have climate, but "weather". It's just a pretty daddened good place to live—no matter what you've seen, or experienced.

AN 8TH AIR FORCE BOMBER of John F. Byron, 21 of Gatesville from 2nd to first lieutenant has been announced at this 8th AAF B-17 Flying Fortress station.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude R. Byrom of Gatesville, and was a student at Texas U. before entering the AAF in November, 1942.

T/Sgt. Frank Bates Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bates of Moshem has been promoted to First Sergeant at the Los Angeles Port of Embarkation, an installation of the Army Transportation Corps, where he has been on duty since September 1944.

First Sgt. Bates attended Gatesville high school and before entering military service was employed by an aircraft company in San Diego, Calif. His wife, Mrs. Janet L. Bates, and their two small sons are living in Moshem.

Mrs. Bates was the former Miss LaVerne Patterson Sgt. Bates is stationed at Camp Ross, Wilmington, Calif.

With The 30th Infantry Division The situation was that the military writers sometimes termed "fluid" in the Belgian town of Stavelot Dec. 21—three times Lt. Theodore A Foote of Gatesville was run out of his platoon Command Post by a Tiger Tank and three times he came back into it. During a flaming street battle the first platoon of A company, 177th Infantry was waging with tanks and SS infantryment, the 30th D Division officer came back to his CP to find a Tiger Tank sitting at his doorstep. It was chased away. Again this happened.

At the third occurrence, Lt. Foote considerably annoyed declared: "I'm getting sick and tired of this", an drallying his bazooka teamnd rifle grenadiers harried the Tiger tanks into final retreat. Lt. Foote remains triumphant in his Command Post.

BAAF Waco—The Air Medal will be presented Monday afternoon here and also with two Oak Leaf Clusters to Mrs Pearl D. Sweat of Gatesville for Sgt. Sweat who at present is missing in action over enemy occupied territory in Europe. The presentation will be made by Col. Percy at the Retreat ceremony.

Sgt. Sweatt has two destroyed enemy planes to his credit. His citation reads, "The courage, coolness and skill of this Enlisted Man reflects great credit credit on himself and the Armed Forces of the United States.

Sgt. Lawrence Whisenhunt who has served 32 months overseas in India recently visited his mother and father and is now stationed at Lowrey Field Denver Colo.

Pfc Howard Robuck isn't that any more. He's just been promoted to SSergeant, according to information received here.

Lt. H K Jackson Jr. of Malden AAF, Malden Mo., is visiting on furlough with his parents, Mayor and Mrs H K Jackson of Gatesville
