W. D. Collier, head of the Distributive Education part of the Veteran Training program of Coryell county has just been named as a state supervisor of this part of the program for the state.

The State of Texas will take over this entire training program July 1, according to reports, but the exact setup as they say, has not yet been released.

A Mr. Turner is here to replace Collier, who will remain for some time due to the fact that there is no place for his family elsewhere, and that a great part of his program is closer to Gatesville than to Austin.

It's Closed Now, They're In The Stretch, Candidates

Coryell County's Democratic Executive Committee, headed by Chairman J. D. Brown Jr. closed the entries, Monday, and they're now running "in the stretch" for the summer's political derby. With the weather around the century mark, it looks like politics is the thing in Coryell county, and the other 253 adjoining counties of Texas.

Ten thousand ballots are to be printed, due to the possibility of an extremely large veteran vote, and the cost to the candidates, when divided is going to be somewhat staggering, running around $2,098.00. Liberty always d'd come high, and, still does.

Claud Giddens just got in under the wire for Sheriff, and made it a 5-way proposition, with Joe White, Frank Farquhar, Rufus Bureson and Ed Altum, the others in the race.

There's a load, too, for representative, Earl Huddleston, Sid Gregory, Jr., Bayne Blankenship and Byron Leaird McClellan.

In the county Superintendents race, it's Ollie Little, Virgil Jones, Robert M. (Peck) Tharp, are the ticket.

And, it's Bert Davis and Bruce Jones in the Tax Assessor-Collector race.

Commissioners, Beat 1, are Curtis Smith and J. P. Pearce; Beat 2, Roy Evetts, A. H. Donaldson and Raby Le; Beat 4, Dick Payne and Cleo H. Carroll.

Unopposed officials are T. R. Mears, Floyd Zeigler, A. W. Ellis, Oscar Fowler, Carl McClendon and George Miller, Bill Allen, and C. E. Gandy.

W. C. Wittie is in the Constable Precinct 1 race.

WASHINGTON : PREFABRICATION FOR THE NATION

By Jack Stinnet
AP Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON — Many prospective homeowners will get a chance within the next two or three years to find out whether they would like to live in a prefabricated house.

Under the veteran's emergency housing program, which calls for starting the construction of 2,700,000 dwelling units of all kinds in 1946 and 1947, some 850,000 would be prefabricated houses. The program provides for the building of 250,000 prefabs this year and 600,000 in 1947. If the producers complete even half their quota a lot of prefabs will be given the once-over by millions of Americans.

MANY firms went into the prefabrication business to provide essential defense housing during the war. Some of their products were regarded by home-owners as rather sad specimens. Other prefabs were rated excellent from the standpoint of appearance as well as utility.

A market now gives prefabricators an opportunity to make good in a big way. The government will contract to buy from a producer a certain portion of the houses he is unable to sell within a reasonable period after their production.

Veterans will have a priority on these, but non-veterans will get an opportunity to buy those not purchased by veterans within a certain time limit. The law says that the government's guarantee of the prefabricated house shall not be more than 90 percent of the producers standard delivery price.

Housing expediter Wilson Wyatt has announced that the prefabricated program is to be aimed sharply at low-cost product. The present plan is that the guarantee would depend upon the development of a house to sell at approximately $3,500 for a one-bedroom unit, plus about $500 for each additional bedroom. That would be the factory price, including the necessary equipment but not including the cost of land or of erecting the house.

To get a guarantee, the manufacturer will have to show that he is able to produce a house which meets "sound standards of safety, durability, livability and health". He also will have to demonstrate that he is able to turn out and distribute a satisfactory number of houses within a specified time limit.

WYATT says that while the bulk of the homes in the emergency program must be built by conventional methods, factory prefabrication is important from the manpower angle because it requires a smaller percentage of highly skilled workmen.

Factory prefabrication also fits in with the use of surplus plants as well as assuring full use of the existing prefabrication industry. It also is well adapted to the use of substitute materials in housing construction.

Texans 'n Washington

By L. T. (TEX) EASLEY
AP Special Washington Service

WASHINGTON, June —(AP)

—Wednesday sessions in the House have become somewhat bewildering affairs to the spectators in the galleries, all because of the FEPC.

Texas and southern congressmen are determined that pending legislation to establish the Fair Employment Practices Committee as a permanent agency won't be passed. Proponents headed by Rep. Marcantonio refuse to give up, so it has become a fight in which parliamentary tactics are called upon by strategists of both sides.

Thus casual onlookers in the Chamber are usually at a loss to understand why all the fuss over motions to adjourn, as if a big issue were the question being voted upon—but in effect, that's actually the case.

This is the reason: The FEPC boosters long ago got their legislation out of the Labor Committee, but the Rules Committee has kept it securely in a pigeon hole. The latter committee in a sort of traffic cop role, gives the "go ahead" signal and fixes the time for consideration of a measure on the floor.

Without a "rule", a measure can be brought up by the various committees on so-called "Calendar Wednesday," the day set aside for bills which normally are not of major importance and can be passed quickly. Committees are called upon in their alphabetical order for measures they wished brought up for consideration.

For weeks now the anti-FEPC forces have forced adjournment before the Labor Committee could get its turn. They concede that the proponents would win out if it ever got up for a vote. Their objective therefore, is to keep it from coming up for a vote before the end of the session. (Should it pass the House, it undoubtedly would be blocked by a Senate filibuster or other maneuvers as was done in that chamber earlier this year.)

Moves adopted by the opponents in the House each Wednesday include that of asking repeatedly for a "Quorum Call." This consumes about 30 minutes while the clerk goes over the roll of members to see how many are present.

If the leaders of the southern bloc think they have the greatest number on the floor they will ask for an adjournment; then the next Wednesday the call of the committees would again begin from the first of the list.

Evidence that the FEPC is a highly political issue is seen in the fact that frequently on a voice or standing vote a clear majority will vote to adjourn, then upon demand of Marcantonio or others that a roll call be taken some decisions are reversed. Many democrats from large eastern cities where there is a strong negro vote, and a great many republicans, will vote to adjourn on the unrecorded tally and then switch when its put down in black and white.

Created originally by an executive order of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the FEPC ceased to function last April 30 because Congress would appropriate no more money for its activities. Its announced objective was to eliminate race discriminatory practices detrimental to the war effort; opponents charged it was a tool to break down racial segregation.

If it isn't passed this year, it's almost certain to come up again in the 80th Congress starting in January of 1947.

Visiting here as director of the National Council Against Conscription was Dr. Walter W. Sikes, formerly connected with both Hardin-Simmons University and Abilene Christian College at Abilene. A professor of philosophy and religion now at Berea College, Berea, Ky., he is on temporary leave while working against universal military training legislation.

Here from Wichita Falls for conferences at the War Department regarding the future of Sheppard Field have been Rhea Howard, Wichita Falls Times business manager, Paul Montgomery, hotel man, and Edgar Mann, attorney. With them also as secretary, was Miss Mildred Unsell. The group was assured that Sheppard Field would not be declared surplus, although prompt deactivation would proceed as scheduled. While still in army hands for use in an emergency, the field is to be leased to the city for $1 annually. The city in turn can sublease its hangers and other facilities for prospective industrial users.

Members of the House Juriciary Committee gave Dallas' veteran Congressman Hatton W. Sumners a surprise testimonial luncheon in the Speaker's dining room at the Capitol. The retiring legislator has been in the committee since 1919 and chairman since 1931. They presented him with a silver tray on which was inscribed an expression of their admiration and affection for him, and the signatures of all committee members.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ned Brown of Bryan were visitors here during the rodeo.

NEW YORK—The spring season in this town has held itself off for considerably longer than usual this year. The days and nights have been cold, damp and foggy. Each morning we walk down Fifth Ave. at dawn after a 4 a. m. sandwich in Reuben's, talking about the weather, which seems to all of us to be about one whole month late in changing to the balmy temperature which New York usually enjoys at this time of year.

MANHATTAN, these mornings, is a strange eerie sight as we have our goodnight, or good-morning walk, before heading to bed. My office is in Radio City, and the buildings are bulky and awkward as they stretch into the fog, 20, 40, 70 stories overhead. Sometimes even the smallest Radio City buildings have their tops shrouded in gloomy, chilly mist, and the airplanes which roar in muffled efficiency overhead seem to be barely skimming the towers and penthouses.

The streets are all but empty. Tommy Christian, the cop on 52nd St., always tries to keep me talking a few minutes more. He has to keep on his post until 8 a. m. I can get myself into a discouraging lonely state right at this time each morning. Tommy is a big policeman, chosen for his beat because of the Byrnes-like diplomacy with which he keeps order on the busiest night club block in town. He is a familiar figure, talking swiftly, firmly into the ears of belligerent drunks and hapless Swing Street visitors who think they can run things after a couple of drinks. By the 4 a. m. closing time, however, Tommy is very tired of being a uniformed diplomat and likes to keep the sober citizens around as long as he can. It's a long couple of hours until 8 a. m. and Tommy likes, and needs, the company.

AS THE dawn sneaks over the towers, sometimes beautiful in purples, golds and reds but more often in shabby gray, like a discouraged matron in mourning, Manhattan is a tired city, at the tawdry finish of a full 24 hours of gayety, getting ready for the fun which seems to be its surface stock in trade.

No one pays much attention to the laborers mending the streets the waiters on their way home to bed, the meager handful heading for the subways and their jobs. It is a lonely, in-between moment in Manhattan's workaday whirl, when everything seems quiet, discouraged, a little shabby and abandoned. And very, very lonely.

SWISS CITIZENSHIP COSTS THOUSANDS

AP Newsfeatures
BERN — Twenty-nine Swiss, mostly residents of Germany, have lost Swiss citizenship because they were accused of conspiracy against Switzerland's security.

In addition, 56 persons lost Swiss citizenship in 1945 because they had made false declarations to obtain Swiss nationality or because their conduct was prejudicial to Switzerland.

Loss of Swiss citizenship in many cases a financial loss. It costs a lot of money to become a Swiss citizen. Government statistics showed that in 1943, in 1,684 cases of naturalization, individuals paid the equivalent of $361,000 to the communities and $170,000 to the cantons of their residence.

Individual fees for naturalization vary among the various communities and cantons. The authorities of the communities and of the cantons decide whether citizenship can be granted, but the federal justice and police department is the final authority.

The procedure is long and rigorous. "We do not want anyone to become a Swiss citizen who has worshipped foreign ideologies or has taken an active part in foreign politics," a spokesman of the Justice and Police Department said.

A foreigner must have lived for many years in the community to which he would like to belong, before he can fill out an application for naturalization.

"In the last ten years," said the representative of the Justice and Police Department, "the practice has been not to grant citizenship to a foreigner unless he has resided in one and the same canton for at least 20 years".

In 1945, 814 foreigners with their families, a total of 1,526 persons, were granted Swiss citizenship.

SPIKE BLANDY, GO GETTER ADMIRAL

By FRANK I. WELLER
(AP) Newsfeatures
WASHINGTON—You can't help believe the tall tales you hear about Vice Admiral "Spike" Blandy, boss of the Atom bomb tests.

They say that when he was at Annapolis 32 years ago he stepped into a coiled anchor hawser and got jerked overboard. And that once when he grabbed a piling in the process of casting off a boat line, the crew went off and left him hanging there a couple of hours.

Such stories are pretty apocryphal. The fact is that William Henry Purnell Blandy finished at the top of his class, winning the annual awards for excellence in ordnance and gunnery.

The kidding is because everyone seems to like the crisply genial "Old Salt", now 55, who has fought somewhere in all the Navy's wars since the 1916 scrap with Mexico.

any of his batteries. "Treat a gun right," he insisted, "and it will treat you right."

He had a hitch as torpedo officer of the Asiatic Destroyer Squadron. In fact, there hardly is a naval task afloat or ashore he hasn't taken a whack at sometime.

The joint chiefs of staff selected Vice Admiral Blandy to command amphibious warfare in the Pacific and with the approval of President Truman named him commander of Joint Task Force One to carry out the atom bomb tests.

When he directed amphibious attacks (land, sea and air) he startled some of the "brass" and "braid" by saying our victories in any potential future war would depend largely on Army and Navy officers having well-founded training in both arms of the service.

"Spike" Blandy proposed that at least 500 naval officers returning from sea duty each year, be sent to army camps instead of blanketing them behind shore desks and that the same number of young army officers after finishing their tours of duty be sent to sea.

In exchange, Not Unification Said he: "Henceforth, we must have a Navy Staff with broad and thorough Army training; and an army staff with an equally sound navy background."

This doesn't mean that he favors a unified land and sea command. He is "navy" from bow to keel.

It is not a question of what the bomb can destroy, Blandy says, but a question of whether we can build better to replace the stuff destroyed.

The Vice Admiral was born in New York City and reared in Newark, Del. He still wants to be a locomotive engineer.

Chuckle Covers Sternness

He admits the truth of raucous friends' stories about his fishing, swimming and golfing. He can't catch anything strong enough to swim, he's almost scared to take a drink of water in the Pacific for fear of shark-bite, and he has probably mused up more golf courses than any other man home from the seas.

Blandy is a friendly man who tries to get the chill out of his eyes when he takes but can't because he has seen too much. But, his chuckle wipes away the sternness like a wet rag. He speaks with the speed of a trip-hammer.

Promoted Over 100 Seniors

"Spike", so-called because in his youth he was long, lean and as hard as nails, is 5-feet-11 and as sturdy as a mainmast.

The late President Roosevelt jumped him over 100 senior officers in naming him navy ordnance chief. In the first year of war he tripled production of weapons in some 700 naval and contract factories.

They built the great guns to the specifications set up by his office, and the U. S. Navy developed the finest precision fire power afloat. He pitched in and invented the mechanical range-finder, mechanical range-keeper.

Navy men still tell of Blandy's lone fight to install mechanical fire-detectors with which one man could fire all the guns in a turret while he sighted on the target. He finally won.

During 24 years as a gunnery officer he pounded knowledge of safety precautions into gun crews, and there never was a disaster in

HISTORY'S BIGGEST TESTBIKINI BLAST

By ELTON C. FAY

AP Newsfeatures
TAT goat, placidly chomping on his cud, is standing at one of the great crossroads of history.

Indeed, along with the atom bomb, he'll help make it.

What happens to him when the world's deadliest explosive blasts the air and waters of Bikini Atoll in a measure, decide what will happen to fleets and fighting men in any atomic warfare of tomorrow.

He's symbolic of the scope of the most elaborate peacetime military experiment — goats, battleships, fantastic heat and pressure. Like the battleship he will be a target for blast, heat, deadly radioactive rays.

It's a joint job . . . Navy admirals, Army generals, civilian scientists . . . 37,000 men converging on a little Pacific lagoon to determine what A-bombs can do to warships, airplanes, tanks and all the other tools of war . . .

The idea for the test, primarily on seapower, dates back to late last year. It isn't quite clear who officially decided it should be held. Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, commander of the project, says the joint chiefs of staff (the chiefs of the army, navy and army air forces) ordered it "with the President's approval." The White House has said President Truman ordered it.

Test Not 'Rigged'

Some civilian scientists have ascertained the tests won't prove anything, that the target fleet can be so disposed that nothing conclusive can be demonstrated.

Blandy denies that the tests will be "rigged", declares that the main objectives of the tests are to disclose desirable changes in ship design, tactical formations at sea, strategy in the concentration and deployment of naval forces.

The manpower mustered for "Joint Army-Navy Task Force No.

1" would be enough to man at full battle strength a dozen capital ships, more than enough for two Army divisions.

The joint task force staff includes: Maj. Gen. W. E. Kempner, Army airman; Maj. Gen. A. C. (Tony) McAuliffe, army ground forces; Rear Adm. W. S. Parsons, the Navy's A-bomb specialist.

Nagasaki Type Bomb

The weapon is a bomb of the type which destroyed Nagasaki, better than the one that hit Hiroshima or the first one used in the New Mexico test last July.

A vast quantity of special equipment is being gathered — instruments for measuring blast, heat, radioactivity, pressures transmitted to hulls through the air and water, inclinometers to tell the extent of roll or pitch a ship develops when pounded by blast and a possible tidal wave, dozens and scores of types.

They must record their findings without the help of man because no man will be aboard the ships. Samples of all equipment, including ammunition, fuel, aircraft, radar and communications equipment will be left aboard the ships. The propelling machinery and auxiliaries of the anchored ships will be shut down except for certain equipment on special vessels. The ships will be "buttoned up", in battle condition.

The laboratory animals — the rats, goats, sheep and pigs — will bear mute testimony of what can be expected to happen to men aboard a fighting ship when an atom bomb explodes. Task force officers decided upon the use of animals only after scientists had insisted that there were some things instruments couldn't record.

Training Is Complicated

The training and preparation for the test is as complicated and comprehensive as the special equipment. Crews of Navy Seabees and army engineers have been working at Bikini for weeks, blowing away coral formations, clearing channels into the lagoon, readying anchorages for the target fleet. Down in the flat plains country of eastern New Mexico, Army air force crews have been training . . . B-29 bombardiers dropping dummy bombs from prescribed altitudes . . . other B-29 crews releasing practice parachutes like those which will record effects of the explosion in the air . . . another AAF outfit making itself perfect at guiding unmanned B-17 bombers by radio control, planes which will automatically register and bring back recordings of radioactivity in the bomb cloud or send them back by radio . . . camera planes practicing . . . and all of them rehearsing for perfect synchronization when D-Day and H-hour come at Bikini.

The Third "R"

For a short while before my first day at school, and for several weeks after, I heard a great deal of conversation about the three R's of education. My elders seemed to expect me to think it was very funny that the three R's should stand for reading, writing and arithmetic. It left an impression, to say the least. I still know that education includes some variety.

One of the things about modern education that dismays me is the fact that students don't pursue the three R's long enough. They are at liberty too early to ignore one of them—the last one. Figures are dry at first and a lot of youngsters drop mathematics. High school freshmen have learned to say "it's only a waste of time to study things you don't like and will never use."

Ignorance Is Costly

"What you don't know doesn't hurt you," is rubbish. Certainly what you don't know does not do you any good. Truly an actor may draw a fabulous salary for years and die in debt. Tales are told of artists and musicians who can't balance their check stubs. Their ignorance of math did not make them better artists. It would be like saying liquor made Poe a poet, or that harems make great kings.

A national poll might show that millions of Americans don't know what it means to balance the budget. It wouldn't be surprising; most of us don't even have a personal budget, we live so easily and well. But our national budget needs to be balanced. People who try to laugh that off don't know what it means or, worse yet, would welcome national bankruptcy as a stepping stone to revolution.

What Does It Mean?

Balancing a budget, whether it is a family budget or a national budget, means keeping a safe relation between income and outgo. The inevitable result of spending more than we get is debt, bankruptcy and loss of credit. That's just another way of saying "loss of our good name and the respect of our neighbors." When we stop paying our debts and start breaking our promises, that's loss of credit.

Uncle Sam is on his way to that social level. He has not reached it yet, but when he does it will be too late to save him. Now is the time to balance the national budget. I was never so proud of my home state as when the entire Arkansas delegation in Congress, senators and representatives, went on record in March as favoring a balanced national budget. That's practical statesmanship.

Read These Truths

"A balanced federal budget can be accomplished in the next fiscal year if congress will meet its full responsibility and adopt a program of economy. By considering each appropriation bill in the light of its effect on total necessary expenditures, we can hold the cost of government within the annual revenues collected. . . . The time to begin is now." So said the statement.

Habitually spending money we do not have can't help but lead this nation to collapse, and nothing worse could happen to the world's economic welfare. Think of the war functions now idling along; of the men whose energies might be transferred to the credit column. In every locality there is uncounted waste that should be and can be transformed into a bit of thrift.

HONOR AMONG THIEVES: THANKS FOR BUGGY RIDE

ST. LOUIS — AP — Victor Fienup would like to thank the person who stole his automobile. There was the new equipment.

FEW TREES ACHIEVE TREE SCORE AND TEN

STAMFORD, Conn.—AP—Very few trees die of old age. Most of them die prematurely because of lack of care or ravaging by insects and disease. F. A. Bartlett of the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories says.

Normal life span of an elm is around 400 years, a hemlock 600. Yet a 250 year old tree is a rarity, Bartlett said, "because many of our fine trees are living under unnatural conditions and fail to receive proper care."

MEN UNAFFECTED BY RADAR WAVES

AP Newsfeatures DENVER — Relax war wives. Exposure to radar waves won't leave your GI sterile, balding or anti-social.

Capt. Meyer Berke of Lowry Field gave sterility tests to 30 enlisted men who handle aircraft radar. He found them all perfectly normal.

Reports rose during the war that radar waves would produce all sorts of ill effects on humans.

One woman complained her husband had nightmares after exposure to the waves.

Another, whose hubby wrote that he had to climb over radar antennae to make repairs, said his photograph showed clearly "he is becoming as bald as an admiral."

Scientists took no stock in these notions but air force surgeons at Duke University made some experiments on guinea pigs anyway which seemed to thrive on their diet of electrons.

Berke went a step farther by using men in the tests.

MEN BEAT SHARKS IN TABLE BAY RACE

JOHANNESBURG — AP — South Africa's minister of transport, F. C. Sturrock, rescued the crew of a dinghy in danger of being eaten by sharks in Table Bay. He was in his yacht, powered by an auxiliary engine, overhauling the dinghy when noticed the sharks charging the smaller vessel.

Sturrock switched on his engine pulled ahead, and made fast a repe. then a strange procession headed for harbor at full speed: first the yacht, then the unpretentious dinghy in tow and then the school of sharks. The yacht won, and the disgruntled sharks turned back into the bay.

VIRGINIA FIGHTS ROCKY MOUNTAIN FEVER

RICHMOND, Va. — AP — Rocky Mountain spotted fever is the name, but Virginia in the Appalachians had the most cases in the nation last year—93. Health authorities now are distributing vaccine against the disease and warning people to check any skin sensations occurring after walks in the woods or grasslands, for fear they may be from the wood tick that spreads the ailment. The tick waits four hours after biting before shooting germs into the skin. About one case of the disease in six is fatal.
