Funeral Services Held Tuesday A. M. For H. Walter Sadler

H. Walter Sadler, 57, a native son of two of Gatesville's old pioneer families, passed away Sunday morning, April 27, in the home of Mrs. Sadler's mother, Mrs. Dave Cox in Temple, after a brief illness. Mr. Sadler was born in Gatesville May 2, 1890, and was the son of Sumner and Nina Atkins Sadler. He grew to manhood in Gatesville, and was married in 1911 to Miss Rosa Cox, of another of Gatesville's old families who have since moved away. Mr. Sadler engaged in the abstract and realty business here for several years, moving to Coleman in 1916, and to Dallas in 1926, where he has been a well-known and successful realtor until failing health caused him to retire this year. He had never forgotten Gatesville and his friends here, and has been a leading spirit in the "Gatesville Club" in Dallas.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at Scott's Funeral home here, with interment in the Masonic Cemetery beside his father and mother. Services were conducted by the Rev. W. H. Dickinson of Dallas, assistant pastor of the Highland Park Methodist church. The Rev. Dickinson is Mr. Sadler's son-in-law.

Survived by Mr. Sadler are his wife, three daughters—Mrs. W. H. Dickinson, Mrs. Lewis Wilds, and Mrs. John Lange, and one granddaughter, little Peggy Wilds, all of Dallas; one brother Col. W. H. Sadler. All of these were present at the funeral.

GREGORY DEFENDS GSSB ADMINISTRATION IN SPEECH BEFORE HOUSE: SAYS NONE "BEATEN TO PULP" AS INVESTIGATION SAID!

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas, May 5.—(AP)—The week-long controversy over conditions at the Gatesville State School for Boys erupted again in the House today when Representative Sid Gregory of Gatesville, defended the school's administration and denounced as "absolutely ridiculous" charges made against the school.

Gregory's speech, sparked by the House Committee's unfavorable report on the Gatesville State School for Boys last week by charges in the House that two boys in the school had been "beaten to a pulp", and had been hidden away from investigators.

Gregory said he talked with the two boys. They said they had been given "only 10 or 12 licks," instead of 35 lashes as reported by the Committee.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS

By V. C. MARSHALL
Executive Director, Texas State
Soil Conservation Board, Temple,
Texas

The Texas Legislature took a wise step when in 1939 it gave farm people a soil conservation district law. It has provided farmers and ranchmen the sort of at-home leadership they have wanted and needed. Texas now has 133 soil conservation districts. They cover two-thirds of the state. The Hamilton-Coryell District is one of the best. You will agree after reading this story.

The Hamilton-Coryell Conservation district has brought many benefits to its co-operators. But it really outdid itself late in August when work was finished on the district-owned building in Gatesville. It marked the first time any Texas soil conservation district had occupied its own quarters.

Originally the building was granted to the district as surplus property from Noth Camp Hood, Rep. W. R. Poage of Waco helped get the property. That was last spring. The trim white stucco building today sits on a district-owned lot in Gatesville. It bears little resemblance to the weathered structure which had been granted at the Army camp.

Almost $5000 of district money went into remodeling the building. Part of it was floored with hardwood, equipped with fluorescent lights, modern plumbing and showers, and rented to the Soil Conservation Service technical staff assigned to that part of the district. Another portion of the structure was converted into automobile storage space. The Soil Conservation Service rents part of that. Still a third part of the new quarters became a storage room and shop where seed cleaning operations are carried on by the soil conservation district. The building is 114 feet long. For most of its length it is 20 feet wide, but the office quarters widen out to 40 feet.

Besides the Gatesville office, the Hamilton-Coryell District owns two other buildings granted it as surplus property. Those structures, not yet remodeled, are in Hamilton. One is leased to the city of Hamilton at $1 a year for use as a veteran's training school; the other will be made into office quarters and storage space similar to the Gatesville building.

Sale of 17 other surplus buildings, large and small, given the district through the efforts of Congressman Poage, has helped pay the expense of remodeling work in Gatesville. Those buildings sold for $3000.

The lot on which the Gatesville building stands cost the district $1250. In spite of spending a most $5000 on the building and the lot at $1250, the district owes only a few hundred dollars. Hard at work for farmers and ranchers for more than 5 years, it had some money on hand before it went into the office remodeling business.

The district was first organized back in 1940 by vote of the landowners in the 1,228,000 acres in its boundaries. Shortly after the organization vote a board of five farmers and ranchers was elected by the landowners to run its affairs. Today that board of supervisors is made up of Cliff Tinkle, chairman, Hico; Glenn Riley, secretary-treasurer, and E. W. Newsum, both of near Hamilton; and Virgil Lockhart and Sam J. Powell both of near Gatesville.

The original board, in developing a program and work plan for the district, was faced with this situation: 9 per cent of the land showed no erosion; half the land in the district had lost about a quarter of its topsoil; a third had lost more than half its topsoil; and 4 per cent was almost bare of topsoil. With this degree of erosion, which was gathering speed at the time, the district asked for and got technical personnel of the Soil Conservation Service assigned to work in the area.

With the help of the Soil Conservation Service men, the district supervisors began executing agreements with farmers and ranchers. Agreements were first worked out between the technicians and the land owners. Then they were passed on by the supervisors before actual work began in designated neighborhoods called conservation groups. Strip crops, terraces, outlets, some legume crops, proper stocking rates, and range improvement work got under way. But the conservation practices raised a number of problems. If farmers were to plant legumes, for example, where could they get the seed?

That was something for the supervisors to work on. They bought 7700 pounds of hairy vetch seed and sold it to district cooperators at cost plus handling. That was in the fall of 1944. In 1946, as a result of that original seed purchase, district cooperators harvested 71,000 pounds of hairy vetch seed. And last fall the district cooperators planted an estimated 7,750 acres of hairy vetch for winter cover, supplemental pasture, hay, green manure, and seed production. The traffic has been so heavy in vetch seed that growers in the Hamilton end of the district have formed the Hamilton Legume and Nurse Crop Association. It handles the legumes and companion crops, principally rye and oats.

How Abruzzi Rye Started

Abruzzi rye got its start in the Hamilton-Coryell district when the supervisors bought 1000 pounds of its seed and distributed it to cooperators. The harvest was around 15,000 pounds in 1946; that amount and additional 60,000 lbs. bought elsewhere will bring the year's seedings of rye to about 75,000 pounds in the district.

More than 10,000 pounds of the soil-improving Hubam was harvested in 1946. First plantings of Hubam came from 2,600 pounds of the legume which the soil conservation district made available to cooperators a year ago. Last fall, about 30,000 pounds of Hubam were seeded in the district.

In 1946 hairy vetch was given another boost. The district was instrumental in getting eight badly-needed seed drills, which were equipped with fertilizer attachments. While it didn't finance the drill purchase, the district made the contract that resulted in cooperators being able to buy the drills. Farmers needed them to help in seeding hairy vetch.

Range improvement is another important soil conservation practice in the district, and a highly necessary one. One of the big needs in range and pasture improvement is seed—native grass seed. Buffalo grass is one of the best seeds for use in range and pasture improvement in the district. But when they decided to plant it the cooperators found themselves with no seed.

The district stepped in. The supervisors sized up the usefulness of an old truck which had been donated to the district. They decided they could get along without it. Its sale brought $525. The supervisors asked the help of the Soil Conservation Service technicians Paul Browning, W. R. Heizer and E. L. Stewart in designing a buffalo grass seed harvester. When the design was finished the supervisors, with their $525, bought the necessary parts for the machine. They also bought some tires for an old four-wheel trailer which had been given to the district. With aid from the Soil Conservation Shop, the seed harvester was finished and mounted on the trailer. It was operated briefly in the fall of 1944. Necessary modifications were made that winter. In the fall of 1945 the harvester took to the field and picked up 5,000 pounds of buffalo grass seed, gross weight.

That seed resulted in a profit of more than $2,000 to the district. It was harvested on farms and ranches in the neighborhood, 10 per cent of the seed going to the land owner. As a result of the 1945 harvest, 500 acres in the soil

Put on a Lid

If you aren't a deadbeat and you expect to stay out of bankruptcy and you want a decent credit record, the chances are that you pay your expenses pretty much as you go. When emergencies arise, you watch your budget so that you spend as little as possible. It's a good old American custom to live within income. That's a practice that makes for sturdy citizenship and for community stability.

But here we are, all of us together as a nation, very much wanting to cut our taxes but very leery about reducing budget expenditures. The national budget, you know, represents what we do with our tax money. It is fine to shout hooray when taxes are cut, but it will make more sense if we first learn to whittle down our alarming budget without frowning. A good strong lid on government spending is the only sane route to tax reductions.

A Halt to Spending

The President has proposed a budget of $37,500,000,000 which Congress is currently reviewing. Sentiment exists in Congress for a ceiling on federal spending much lower than the budget recommended by the President. Congress, as soon as possible, should place a limit of $30,000,000,000 above which federal spending may not go. Ultimately, a budget of $20,000,000,000 ought to be adequate to run our federal machinery.

Most citizens claim little comprehension of these astronomical figures. Twenty billion may seem more like measurements characteristic of distances to the stars. But the figure is dollars. This proposed peacetime expenditure program of $37,500,000,000 is $9,330,000,000 more than we spent for non-defense items in 1946, not counting interest on national debt.

This astronomical budget means that almost $300 is asked from every living American. It is estimated that such a budget would cost the average family $1,000 in taxes this year. Budget in hand, your pencil will show in short order that we have no better way to get out from under our tax burdens than to limit our spending. We may cut our taxes without paying any attention to federal spending, but the outcome will be deficit spending and added debt.

You're Paying Salaries

Senator Byrd says there has been very little reduction in war-expanded personnel of government. Not counting the various war agencies, Senator Byrd points to constantly increasing personnel totals. These jumped nearly 300,000 since V-J Day. Moneywise, this tendency is graphically shown by the request of the Department of Commerce for $261,000,000 in 1948. This is an increase of 600% over the $39,000,000 this department spent in 1932.

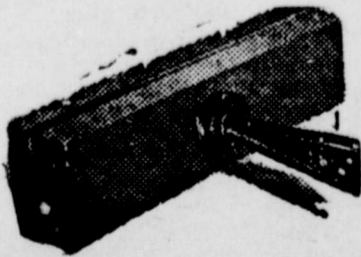

Budget reductions reviewed by Congressional committees have suggested elimination of about one-half million federal payrollers. This is all too few. To bring the number of civilian employees of the government down to the swollen figure of 1939 we must lay off 1,500,000. (We'd still have 900,000 eating from the public breadbasket.) This would be a most logical way to avoid an annual expenditure of more than five billion dollars. This could be money saved. It's out of your pockets and mine.

HAMILTON-CORYELL—

conservation district were seeded to buffalo grass last spring. The plantings were generally successful. Some even provided small amounts for grazing in 1945.

Additional modifications have been made on the seed harvester. At first a tractor was used to pull it. But now a motor has been installed on the trailer to propel the entire outfit.

The Hamilton-Coryell Soil Conservation District is one of the few in Texas which employs a full-time equipment manager. Theo Whatley of Gatesville operates the buffalo grass seed harvester. He also tends to the two spiral seed separators, seven rotary fensos, two gass seed drills, a combine, a seed cleaner. All the equipment except the drills and the combine is district owned. The two spiral separators, at the moment are leased to the Hood-Parker and the Bosque Soil Conservation Districts.

The seed cleaner, a $550 "Clipper" model, bought in September 1945, provides another useful service. Most of the 10,000 pounds of Hubam sweet clover harvested in the district has been cleaned with the equipment. Oats, buffalo grass, vetch, and alfalfa have been cleaned. Farmers say the quality of its work is excellent.

Much Work to be Done

There are almost a dozen private contractors building terraces and shaping outlets in the district. But that number isn't enough to do all the work which needs doing. After being approached by the district cooperators, the commissioners of Hamilton county started a terracing rig of county equipment. The Vocational Agriculture Boys FFA organization also is operating a rig.

More than 900 cooperatib landowners are establishing conservation measures on their farms and ranches through help extended by the Hamilton-Coryell Soil Conservation District. There have been 40,728 acres contour planted; 7,299 acres in cover crops; 22,012 acres where crop residue management is practiced; 3,661 acres of strip-cropped; 30,722 acres of range land properly stocked; 19 farm and ranch ponds built; 1,689.6 miles of terraces built; 443,795 lineal feet of diversion terraces constructed; and six water facilities set up.

Virgil Lockhart, the only remaining supervisor of the original board, has wroked especially hard. He has devoted a great deal of time to the affairs of the district. All of the supervisors, with the exception of Cliff Tinkle, who has just bought a new farm, are well on the way to completing coordinated conservation measures on their own farms and anches.

Profits Fallacy

The profit incentive is widely misunderstood and maligned. Many folks talk about profits as though they were injurious. These folks indulge in side-glances, as if profits were a vicious imposition upon the people. Profits, to some who are misled or misinformed, have assumed a negative sound. The fallacy is that industry arrives at selling prices by piling onto production costs as much profit as the traffic will bear. This is not the way profits are calculated.

Sales prices on the tags are the prime consideration. In a free competitive market, the price tag is not marked according to preconceived notions of what the profit ought to be. Another fallacy, that free enterprise makes goods for profit rather than for use, comes to light here. The consumer is king in a free market; the price tag is slave to the demands of a price-conscious buying public. This is one game in which the consumer takes the sweepstakes.

Efficiency Is King

You and I manufacture radios. We meet squarely in the market, where mine is priced at $100 and yours at $75. If the quality is the same, I must either lower my selling price to compete or give to the customer one-third greater value than you do. The lower the price and the more quality included, the better off each of us will be—saleswise. And the first one of us to achieve quantity sales, or real mass production, will be the first one to give the customer lower prices and better quality. Competition thus regulates the selling price regardless of my costs.

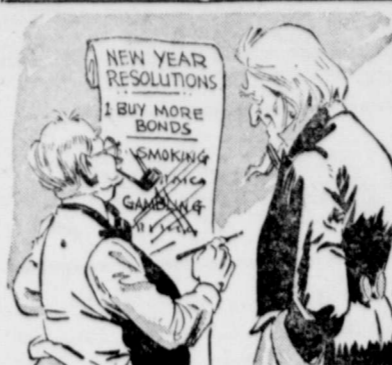

The cycle is just that simple. To keep factories running, the goal of our industries is to make a better product available to a larger number of people through mass production and lower selling costs. After deducting costs from the customer's price the result may or may not be a profit. When the margin is uncomfortably close, the next logical step will be toward more efficient production.

Efficiency of operation means to industry the ability to keep down costs of making and selling a product. The object is a favorable position on the open market. This means that factories must be busy constantly, taking up the unemployed, supplying products at lower costs to an ever increasing buying public. Not only idle men, but idle money, is called for to provide the tools to increase output.

The Public Profits

Winner of this game is the buying public. Because of the profit incentive and free competition, the public reaps huge dividends in the form of better merchandise at fair prices. To the average citizen of socialistic and totalitarian countries, where I have observed that these things are never duplicated, these simple facts seem an unattainable dream. What American would wish to exchange this system for methods that have never succeeded half so well?

Profit is no parasite feeding on our economic system. Profit is the life blood of the industrial and business enterprises responsible for the highest level of civilization the world has known. Freedom to compete against skill and efficiency by using better skill and more efficiency means a progressive civilization—not a static economy that either withers away or makes spoilage for the spoilers.

How many of your New Year's resolutions are unbroken? Some you made in jest. Others represent a serious effort, such as a thrift plan. You may have resolved to step up your savings bonds allotment through the Payroll Savings Plan, or you may have resolved to ask your bank to buy a savings bond for you every month out of your deposited funds. You can't afford not to keep this resolution for your own good. Even an $18.75 investment once a month in a $25 savings bond will provide you with a $2,500 nestegg in ten years.

Farm Youngsters Taught Value of Good Grooming

FARM mothers teach their daughters from childhood that "pretty is as pretty does," points out the Rural Home editor of nationally-circulated Capper's Farmer.

"Getting an early start is as important in learning beauty and grooming lessons as in most other things," she writes. "The little girl who always brushes her teeth after every meal and loves her splash in the tub before bedtime is the one who grows up to have a pretty smile.

"She'll be known for her dainty freshness. And her own children will love her because, she always looks so good and smells so sweet!"

Tooth brushing is a habit with 5-year-old Alice Jane, daughter of Mrs. Doyt Galloway of Van Wert county, Ohio. Mother and daughter enjoy spending a few minutes together each day keeping up their good looks.

Alice Jane knows the right method for brushing to give clean, white teeth and healthy gums. Her own little footstool by the lavatory makes it easy for her to climb up and look in the mirror to watch the brushing.

Poage Sees Threat To Dam on Leon River Under New Bill
 WASHINGTON, May 2.—Rep. W. R. Poage of Waco fears that the Dondero bill, to require a re-investigation of all water projects previously authorized, may threaten the Miller Springs dam on the Leon river, which was approved last year.

Poage had little hope of getting funds for building the dam thru the Republican-controlled congress any way. "In normal times, we would have already had the money by legislative action this session," he said. "However, I am now afraid that the authorization which we have already secured is in danger. If our projects are h'trown out by economy moves, of course that will mean that Republican projects will be cast aside to, so maybe there is a faint gleam of hope yet," he added.

Even if the money could not be appropriated this year, the authorization might remain on the books to expedite appropriations in some future session, he said".
