ADDITIONAL RAIN HELPS WHEAT FARMERS PLEASED AND HOPEFUL

COGITATIONS and APHORISMS of JODOK

Well, that was a good show the fellows put on here last Saturday, and I really believe that nearly everybody who attended it was surprised at the number and quality of the stock that was there on exhibition.

I have heard it estimated that there were over 200 head of hogs along on display, and that is not all. They are saying that they were all good hogs, and if I am any judge of such things, they were exactly that, and they ranged in size and age from the two or three weeks old pigs to the mature brood sows and herd boars, and there were several different breeds among them, and all of the leading breeds for this country.

Another remarkable thing about the stock that was there on exhibition is that it was all just from the farm and had not been slicked and combed and polished up as stock usually is before being placed on exhibition. The only "dressed-up" stock that was there, was the calves that were brought in by the 4-H club or Calf-club boys, and they were really "dressed-up."

Yet everybody said this stock was all nice, notwithstanding this fact that they were all just taken from the farm pens and stalls. And there was a goodly number of breeding jacks on display also; and they were all nice animals—that is, if a jack can be called a nice looking animal—and they were all just that. I had no idea there were so many jacks in Parmer County.

I have heard lots of people praising this show, and the kind of stock that was on display, and complimenting those who had the management of the show in charge. And I have even heard a few making proposed plans for larger and permanent buildings in which to house the show in future years.

And that is not all—there were lots of people attended the show last Saturday, and they were all well pleased with it. There was a lady at the door, who was registering those who came in, and a young lady pinning badges on those who registered, and they registered and pinned badges on about 635 people, when their supply of badges was exhausted, and they ceased registering, but it was said that there were many others came in after that, and it is estimated that there were near 1,000 visitors at the fair during the day.

And the stock show was not all. The ladies, under the direction of Miss St. Clair, County Home Demonstration Agent, had a fine display of canned and preserved meats and other foods, which proved beyond a doubt, their deep interest in the show, and their display was really fine and as complimentary to the ladies as the stock show was to the men and the boys.

And now I am wondering just what inventive genius will do next for the farmers, for I see they are now building a small tractor to suit the needs of the small farmers, that is, those farmers who cultivate only a few acres, such as 20, 40, or 60 acre farms, and they are building them at a cost of about four good horses or mules, and that will draw a load about such as a four-horse team will draw, and that can be operated at a less expense, and with all kinds of attachments suitable for cultivating small crops such as beans, peas and lettuce, and also orchards and vineyards.

This is only one of the many things they are doing for these small acreage farmers, but it is the latest I have heard of, but there will be plenty more of them, and I suppose there are lots more of them now that I have not heard of.

I hear lots being said about getting a "fair break" in life, so that a person may succeed in any endeavor he may put forth. Now, I am wondering whether we are to get a "fair break" or should we make one for ourselves, for I have noticed that

Fourth Stock Show Best More Room Planned

It is generally conceded by all who visited, that the fourth annual Parmer County Livestock Show, which was held here last Saturday, was the best by far, of any that have yet been held. It is the same show that has heretofore been known as the Parmer County Calf and Meat Show, but the new name seems more appropriate.

It was estimated that there were at least one thousand people in attendance during the day, and expressions of appreciation, interest and surprise were heard on all sides—appreciation of the quality of the exhibits and the efforts put forth by the managers and promoters, and surprise at the number of the exhibits.

The show was held in the school bus barn adjoining the athletic field of the Friona High School, and the football court was used as a field for parading the stock following the awarding of the ribbons, the stadium serving as an amphitheatre for the spectators to view the stock.

Although the management thought it had secured a building that would afford ample room to house all the exhibits that would be entered, it was soon seen that it was by far too small for the number of entries that were present for space this year, and plans are already being freely talked of for more commodious and better equipped buildings for next year, and it is confidently expected that some of these plans will begin to assume signs of maturity within the near future and that plans for bringing them into execution will also be matured in time to have the buildings in readiness for the next show.

Prof. J. T. Gee, and his class of "aggie" boys are deserving of thanks and appreciation for the work they did in building the pens and equipping the building for the show, and the committee on arrangements is also deserving of praise for the great amount of publicity which they put out and for the orderly manner in which the entire program was carried out.

Jason O. Gordon, county agent, is deserving of thanks for the interested part he took in making the show a success. And County Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Margaret St. Clair, rendered valuable service toward the success of the show by her direction of the Home Demonstration display that was presented by the ladies of the various home demonstration clubs in the various parts of the county. It was a splendid display and added a most worthwhile feature to the show. A feature of this part of the show was the demonstration of the method of storing cured meats with cotton seed oil, which was given by Mrs. Garvin Thorn, and Mrs. Roy Daniels, of the Lazbuddy Demonstration team.

The hog department included Duroc Jerseys, Hampshires, Berkshires, black and spotted Poland Chinas and Chester Whites, and ranged in size and age from pigs of about a week old to the mature breeding animals, both sows and boars, of which there were 150 head in all. There were about twenty head of sheep, five fine jacks, and 35 head of cattle of varying ages and breeds which included the red, roan, and white shorthorns, Herefords, Jerseys, and black Angus, making a total of about 210 animals in the show.

Of this total number of animals, the baby heaves of the 4-H club boys, were the only ones that had received any preparation for the show ring, and they were truly handsome and fair samples of the best to be seen in any show ring.

All the other animals had been brought in just as they were, from the pens, lots, or stalls where they were being kept by their owners, yet the general expressions were all complimentary as to their appearance.

The judging was done by a competent judge, it being Prof. N. C. Fine, assistant professor of Animal Husbandry of Texas Technological College at Lubbock, and Professor Fine also expressed pleasure and surprise at the number and quality of the animals entered.

The competition was limited to the Pat Calf Division, for the 4-H club and F. F. A. boys of the county, it being one of the main purposes of the shows to encourage an interest in farming and stock raising among the boys of the county, and since the shows have been held it is a noticeable fact that the quality of these calves has been gradually advanced, and the interest in such work has spread, not only among the boys of the county, but among the fathers as well, and for this purpose alone, if for no other, the shows are well worth the time, labor and expense say the promoters.

Grand champion prizes were awarded to Albert Cannon, of Friona, for best sow, and to Marston Mars, of Lazbuddy, for best barrow. In the baby beef department or division, young Mars again came in for the honors of grand champion on his Hereford calf, while Jack Julian, also of Lazbuddy, was awarded the reserve grand championship on his Black Angus calf in the baby beef department.

Prof. J. T. Gee, of the Friona Vocational Department, was awarded grand champion for the best litter, George Wingert, also of Friona, received the gold honors on the best spotted Poland China; E. E. Woelfel, of Bovina, for best boar, and Melvin Suddarth, of Oklahoma Lane, for best lamb.

H. G. Morris, one of the men who took the lead in the arrangements for this show, has stated that the committee is now busy planning for a commodious building for this show, and planning for an agricultural and livestock fair for this fall or late summer, and it is the opinion of this writer that such plans will meet with the universal approval of the people of the county.

A complete list of all the prize-winners of the show held last Saturday will appear in this issue of the Star.

LIST OF ELECTION JUDGES FOR PARMER COUNTY FOR 1938

- OKLAHOMA LANE—F. E. Kepley, W. N. Foster, Clyde Perkins, J. T. Hanna.
- RHEA—L. H. Hoffman, William McClothlin.
- LAKEVIEW—E. B. Whitefield, T. A. O'Brien.

SPENT WEEKEND WITH PAR- ENTS

Miss Geneva Massey, who is holding a clerical position at Lubbock with an oil company there, came over Saturday evening and spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Otis Massey, at their farm home nine miles southeast of town.

Miss Massey is a graduate of the Friona High School and of the Art Department of the Texas Technological College at Lubbock. Arrangements have been made by which she will receive the Friona Star each week for a year. She returned to her work Sunday evening.

STORK-O-GRAM

Born February 20th, to Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Ferguson, a son, Kenneth Ray. Mrs. Ferguson was formerly Miss Elizabeth Massey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Massey.

Harold Lillard, and Misses Beatrice Buchanan and Eva Settle, all of whom are attending college at Lubbock, came home for the weekend Saturday and Sunday, and to visit the Parmer County Livestock show. They returned to Lubbock Sunday evening.

New Grain Lineup. Farmers Nat'l Quits.

On Thursday of last week, March 3, the directors of the Friona Wheat Growers Inc., met in Amarillo for business discussion with the directors of similar organizations located in the Panhandle of Oklahoma, New Mexico, and the Panhandle of Texas.

The principal object of the discussion was to devise ways and means by which a corporation could be formed, through which the interested elevator companies could cooperatively do their business.

An agreement was reached by which a new "million dollar" grain firm was formed, with forty-two farmer elevator companies subscribing sufficient stock to put the venture over. The charter was applied for with virtual assurance that it would be granted. The company was named "S. W. Grain Inc." (The S. W. standing for South West.)

The meeting in Amarillo was characterized by a display of friendly feeling and oneness of purpose. The sentiment predominating the whole group was that farmers must put forth intelligent and up-to-date efforts to help themselves market their own products, but not at the expense of the consumer, or to the detriment of any essential business group. The various groups at the meeting would indicate a spurning of the necessity, or even the advisability of any farm bonus, or any unfair advantage to the farmer over any American business.

But these farmer representatives showed themselves to be one hundred per cent cooperators (one with the other) for the purpose of putting over any sound business projects. They seemed to believe in the soundness of the "group-bargaining" philosophy.

They are to meet again in Amarillo, March 15th, to adopt their constitution and by-laws, elect officers and get the business going. It is hoped the new firm can take over the business of the Farmers National Grain Corporation, which is to be voluntarily dissolved on April 30th.

The thought is that this organization, with headquarters in the midst of the Southwest agriculture, can better serve the general interests than the old Farmers National could serve from afar.

TAKING DIESEL ENGINEERING COURSE

Russell Massey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Massey, of this community, is taking a course in Diesel engineering, in preparation for an expert in handling the Diesel engine.

He is doing the preliminary part of the course by correspondence and home study; but the completion of the course will be done in the Diesel shops at Los Angeles, where the actual work of building and operating the engines will be learned. He visited Tulsa, Plainview and Lubbock, Saturday.

ATTENDED MOTHER-IN-LAW DAY

Among those who attended the Mother-in-law Day celebration at Amarillo on Wednesday were: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McLean, S. P. Warren, Edw. Spring and family, Frank Griffith and family, Buck Fallwell and his mother, P. L. New, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Landrum.

National Forest Log
Ranking first in many things, Texas slips a long way down the ladder to twenty-fourth place in national forests. There are only 614,000 acres of National Forest land in this state, as compared to more than 19,000,000 acres in California, Idaho and Alaska.

FOOD SALE

The ladies of the Methodist Ladies Aid will hold a food sale here Saturday. Cakes, pies and dressed chickens will be on sale. They solicit the patronage of the public.

Miss Thelma Chronister, of Hereford, visited her mother and sister, Mrs. John Chronister and Miss Melissa Chronister, Saturday night. Miss Melissa accompanied her back to Hereford.

OUR CALIFORNIA LETTER

To The Star:
I visited one of the largest poultry ranches a few days ago, and I feel sure what I saw would interest a good many of your readers.

On this ranch there are kept about 20,000 layers.

They have something like 3000 on another ranch near the coast. In May they expect to send these layers to the coast ranch and brood 65,000 chicks for their next year's layers here.

The summers here are too hot for good laying, so they keep the layers here in the Valley in the winter and spring, then move them up to a higher altitude for the summer.

They have something like ten or fifteen acres fenced with high net wire for the laying houses scattered out in this enclosure.

They have about thirty laying houses, perhaps 40 by 70 feet in size. The houses are open on three sides with only burlap sacks on the west. These houses serve for roosting houses as well as laying. They grind and mix all the feed on the ranch, and grow most of it, also. They are feeding about two and a half tons a day now, so that during the year they need about six hundred tons of feed.

During the summer there are only the growing chicks here on this ranch.

I was there just as they were bringing in the morning eggs. They gather the eggs twice a day. The eggs were brought in in a truck, in large buckets. They were then run through the electric grader and graded into "large," "medium," and "small"; though in the 1000 that I watched being graded there were only six or seven "small" and no pweeews.

They graded about half "large" and half "medium."

They use no artificial heat at any time, neither when brooding or any other time.

Of course, the hens are all white leghorns.

It was quite interesting to see how chickens are handled in such large flocks. The hens are all kept in the one large pen.

The eggs are all graded, candied, and crated at the ranch and all sold here in the Valley.

A. P. McELROY,
Friend John: I am enclosing a letter describing (to some extent) the way they handle chicks on a large poultry ranch here in the Valley.

I was intending to go to Bakersfield today but a storm tore out some bridges, so I will have to put off my visit there for a while. I expect to start back to Friona about the 1st of April. Keep things going as well as you can till I get back.

Send me the Star till I leave here. Spring is in the air here. I saw wild gooseberries as large as peas up in the mountains last Tuesday. Looked like spring to me.

I am feeling fine and enjoying myself as well as I should.

I saw Reuben Gishler again a few days ago in Calexico.

So long.

A. P. McELROY.

GONE TO OKLAHOMA

Mrs. Oscar Pope, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Pope and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Talbot departed last week for Oklahoma City, where Lloyd will undergo a physical examination. He has been failing in health for some time and is anxious to ascertain the cause of his illness.

Mr. Pope remained at home in charge of the farm and is keeping bachelor's hall during their absence.

TAINT NARRY BITTA USE by GAVISHEM

Well, when it comes to having a fine lot of people, you can sure find them in Friona. The other night at the banquet it seemed that the space was not great enough to hold the crowd that attended, as the local folks gave up their places so that the visitors would not be disappointed in their visit, and I call that real sportsmanship and here's to you: Home Ec girls, you sure did a fine job in preparing the meals and when it comes to serving my hat is off to you as you did it in first class style.

Boy howdy; did you ever see so many people at one place? The stock show just can't help from getting bigger each year and from the looks, it is sure that we will need a larger building in the near future, so let's see if it can be done and we hope that t can. The eastern magazines may give us a dig and call it a dust bowl, but we can sure show them that we have some of the finest stock in the country, and can these Parmer County kids raise them, I'll say they can.

Well, Mothers of Mothers, you will have your day on March the Ninth, making it the fifth time that the Mother-in-laws have a day all to themselves, and what a day you are to have. Bands, floats, flowers and speeches from several great people, so just put on your glad clothes and tell the rest of the family that you'll see them after it is all over. So little lady, I know that some of you have seen so little of this great world and seldom seen great people that will be on hand, so the writer hopes that you will have the time of your life, and don't forget some of the family will be on the streets to see you as you pass by in the parade and I know that they will be proud of you, so here's a pleasant time to you.

Just a little caliche and some fair size rocks sure does a neat job of decorating the place, and the Sheets Bros. did just such a thing, they have made a neat looking front at their place of business. Well, Chester, Obie, Harry and Cecil, I hope that you can get Kay to haul up some more stones and put out a real flower bed. You can do it, so go to it.

John Chronister seems to have been disappointed here lately, his claim is that news of today is somewhat lacking, just what you mean in lacking is beyond me, and the only thing I can think of is that we might add a little red pepper to the ink and it might turn out some hot news, but anyway, here's hoping that you will find some interesting news in the next issue.

Friona has another new business going full blast. C. H. Fallwell has his large building turned into a used auto parts department and from the looks of the amount of wrecked cars that he has already dismantled, people might be able to get parts that they have wanted, so here's luck to you and your new business, Claridge.

Here are a few things in and about the main part of the business district that takes places as usual. B. Short, collecting rocks out of the street, Stub Jones yelling at McNeil, Roy Price wondering why so many keys get broken off in the locks of cars; Levi Ritter getting a fresh stock of cigars, I. C. Giles looking for B. Short; Buck Fallwell reporting late for work so that he can go to lunch early; Smiley polishing up the furniture at the Cafe; Dan Ethridge talking about insurance; H. Attaway trimming his show windows; Silas Taylor rebuilding the front of the Miller Recreation Hall; Buford Hughes repairing a car and complaining when the oil drips in his face. Well, this could go on forever, but it will give you an idea that regardless how dull business is people can and do find something to occupy their mind.

Miss Beatrice Buchanan, who is attending college at Lubbock, came home to spend the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Buchanan.

SYNOPSIS

In Spanish-governed California of 1783 a conflict between Church and State is represented by two friendly enemies, frail old Fray Junipero Serra, Franciscan missionary, and Don Pedro Fages, civil governor. After telling Serra he is sending to Mexico for his wife and son, whom he has not seen for eight years, he refuses his aid toward founding the Santa Barbara Mission. In Mexico City, Dona Eulalia, accompanied by her duenna, Angustias, arrives at the embassy in response to a letter from her husband, Don Pedro. She agrees to go to California. Don Pedro sends for Serra, telling him that two priests are on their way from Mexico with Eulalia and young Pedro and that he is leaving to meet them. Fages engages a young Indian girl, Indreulia, as maid for Eulalia. Eulalia sails from San Blas. It is a desolate trip. From the port of Loreto, a large cavalcade loaded with Eulalia's party starts out for the long overland trip. Eulalia, accustomed to luxury and comfort, bitterly regrets having been persuaded to come. The two priests, Fray Mariano and Fray Bartolomeo, call on her and arouse her suspicions as to their genuineness. As the cavalcade stops at various missions, Eulalia hears rumors of the approach of her husband.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

"But, my Lady, allow me—"
"Keep your hands off me, sir! I will not move."
"But, Senora, see, it is night! We must go on. We must progress!"
"Progress! I have done nothing but progress for weeks—months! And I arrive nowhere! Now I will go no farther."
The Captain gripped his hands.
"But we have no water here, no food—no provisions for the night! We can not stay here. Up, Senora, come, come! This is serious."
Eulalia settled herself firmly on the ground.

"Serious! I should say it was serious. No water—no food! Is that my fault? Is it my duty to see the skins and casks are filled? Did I send the provisions ahead so that we should be without food?"
She tossed her hair out of her eyes and glared at him.

"Look at me! Look at me! Disheveled, dirty, hungry, thirsty, weary, and no place to lay my head! And it is your fault! Ah, wait until I tell his Excellency the Governor how you have treated me! Leading me into this, and offering no relief except riding more and more miles to some spring which no doubt will turn out to be a dry one! You are responsible!"
Canete's dignity was touched.
"Senora, it was certainly not I that suggested this trip. It is no pleasure jaunt to me, I assure you. It was only at the earnest solicitations of the Viceroy himself, in behalf of my friendship with your husband the Governor, that I undertook it."

"Nevertheless, you are responsible; you and the Viceroy—and the King himself!"
She clenched her hands and beat them on her breast.

"I wish his Excellency the Viceroy Mayorga, and his Majesty the King of Spain could be here, in my place. If they're so anxious to make California a colony, why don't they come here themselves? Let them have the dirt and heat and thirst and cactus and rattlesnakes! Would they want it then? Would they call California the brightest jewel in the diadem of Spain?"
She stamped her feet.
"No! No! They would say, as I do, 'My God, is this California? Let the Indians have it, or England, or whoever wants it! That's what they would say! And yet they let me, a poor, defenseless woman sacrifice herself to make California a crown jewel!'"

Her voice reached a hysterical pitch.
"California, Spain's brightest jewel! Her choicest possession!" she mimicked ironically. Then her voice broke.
"Spain's rotten egg!" she screamed, and leaned sobbing against her saddle.
By this time the whole cavalcade was milling around the spot.

Angustias stepped into the breach. She smoothed her mistress' hair, arched a scowl over it, patted the heaving shoulders and whispered meaningless, affectionate, comforting words. Then she turned to Canete.

"I think you can help my lady to mount now," she said.

As the Captain stooped to take the lady's foot in his hand he noticed the moonlight play a strange trick with Angustias' face. It almost seemed that she winked.

To make sure he gave the duena a lift into her own saddle.

"Thank you, sir," she said grimly. Then, "You are a gentleman, sir, but you need a firmer hand."

Some time later they rode into the camp at Santa Marta, and found it in a great state of excitement. Far, far below them a pillar of fire blazed against the dark night, blazed, and faltered, and blazed again.

Young Pedro riding before Canete, as the burro had not been found, shivered.

"Indians?" he asked. "Bad Indians?"
Then they heard running feet.

Three Indians, naked except for breech-clouts, panting and shining, entered the camp and stood before the fire.

"El Capitan, which is he?" they asked.

"I am he. What is your message?"
"Senor, El Gobernador, Don Pedro Fages, is camped a day's journey from here. His smoke is yonder in the valley. He sent us to find you, and bid you hasten."

Capitan Canete heaved a great sigh of relief.

"Praise God!" he murmured devoutly. Then he detailed three other Indians from his train to make all haste to the Governor's camp.

"Tell him we will be with him by nightfall tomorrow," he said. He looked around at the drawn face of the Governor's lady. "And tell him all in my expedition are well, happy, and enjoying the trip!" he added.

CHAPTER VII

Pedro Fages listened to the report of Capitan Canete's Indians and dismissed them that they might eat and rest after their all-night journey.

Striding to the spring, the Governor splashed face and head, smoothed his hair with his fingers and wrung his beard. Then, cupping both hands to mouth, he whooped until the silent morning rang and echoed.

"Rise, my children! Rise and greet the sun! Rise and say your prayers, and hear the tidings! Tonight there will arrive here the cavalcade of Capitan Canete . . . Rise, beggars, vagabonds!"

Curiosity overcame laziness, and soon the camp was buzzing with anticipatory preparations. The arrival of Canete meant news from home; letters, messages from Spain and Mexico. It meant a fiesta, for there were women in the Captain's train, surely the Governor's lady would bring maids!

Don Pedro moved with dynamic energy. His eyes glowed, his step was light, his energy boundless and his orders legion.

Indians were dispatched into the canons for deer, quail, rabbit, antelope. Others gathered wood and piled a mighty pyre on the beach.

At last the Governor, having assigned to each his task, turned to one he would entrust only to himself.

A large round tent which had remained rolled and packed on the journey, had been pitched some distance away from the camp. He entered it, and almost fell over a tiny Indian boy, naked as a rabbit, brown as a berry, with wild bright eyes.

"Ah, Escabellito! Lazy little one, begone and eat thy tortillas! Wouldst sleep all day?"

The child scampered toward the cooking fire, and the Governor went to work with the happy expression of a man performing a labor of love. He began opening bundles that had been a mystery on the trip as they had never been opened, and had taxed the pack-animals to the ears.

There were bright blankets of Indian weave, supple serapes in gay colors, skins of mountain lion, wildcat and bear, robes of otter and rabbit. These he spread on the ground until it was covered, arranging and rearranging until their disposal suited his fancy. And as he worked he sang a little soldier's song beneath his breath.

Eulalia had seen a painting of a lady of the French court dressed in a green velvet riding habit, with voluminous draped skirt, tight fitting basque trimmed in rich cream lace, on her head a saucy velvet hat with a nodding, sweeping plume. A clever Parisian sempstress, maroomed in Mexico City, had copied the costume for Eulalia.

But she had been hustled away into exile, and one of her regrets at leaving was that she had never worn the green velvet habit. Nevertheless it was packed in a leather trunk, which Angustias had marked with a green cross in a circle. And when the Governor of California greeted his lady wife he would see, not a bedraggled, travel-stained pilgrim in dusty black, her head covered with a rebozo like a Mexican peasant woman, but a real lady of high degree, her velvets green against a white jennet, her proud head high with nodding plumes. And jeweled—

Ah, yes! She would wear her emeralds, of course. The heavy gold-set necklace, the long earrings, the massive ring on her first finger. Yes, the green was a happy thought; green velvet and gems set off a skin that is white and dazzling—

Capitan Canete rode ahead, his perspiring brow furrowed with anxiety. By all the saints, this was the worst day of the entire journey! A narrow trail zigzagged down the side of a mountain which seemed to bulge over the sea, thousands of feet below; a tortuous, treacherous trail, so narrow it was necessary for the cavalcade to travel in single file, and so winding the animals had almost to bend themselves double at some turns.

When his thoughts permitted him, he admired the Governor's lady, riding so calmly behind him, with never an outcry or even a gasp of fear as her trembling horse avoided the ever present side-winder rattlesnakes, and picked its way among rolling pebbles where a misstep would send horse and rider plunging to death down the mountainside into the ocean lapping hungrily below.

What a woman! And after that scene of last night.

But the lady's head was full of other things: the green velvet habit, the jewels that lay dark in the little case strapped to her jennet, only waiting a gleam of light to make them leap and glow like green flames against her white skin.

Tonight she would see her husband again.

Would he be the same? Would he look the same? She could picture him in armor and plumed helmet like the great conquistador, Cortez; or in rich velvets like the gentlemen of the viceregal court, or as the Governor of the Californias, surrounded by bowing attendants.

But no extension of her imagination could show Pedro Fages as he actually was, a bluff soldado de cuera. Early in the California campaigns he and his tough little company of Catalanion volunteers had adopted cuirasses of hide, and had immediately been dubbed, "the leather jackets"—soldados de cuera. And Don Pedro, though he had risen from a humble lieutenant of the Catalanion volunteers to the governorship of the Californias, was still only a soldado de cuera and wore his cuirass on all expeditions. His skin was tanned to the color of his jacket, his beard grizzled, his face lined.

Poor lady! How could her imagination stretch to such imaging!

As evening approached the trail twisted between two great arms of the mountain that opened to the Vermillion sea, and led gradually into an arroyo.

After a consultation with the Indian guides, Capitan Canete turned to the lady.

"It is only several hours from here to the camp of his Excellency, and if you wish to stop and refresh yourself before going farther I will withdraw and send the bearers ahead."

"I will gladly avail myself of the opportunity. You are very kind."

She pulled her little jacket over her bosom and turned slowly around.

The tiny fitted jacket was of red with a little white lace collar, and puffs of golden-colored embroidery over the shoulders like epaulettes; the long close-fitting sleeves broke at the wrists with another puffing of satin, then tapered over her hands. A row of jeweled buttons followed the curves of her breast. The gay garment terminated in a short waistline with charming little tabs, the one directly in back sticking jauntily out like a drake's tail.

This she wore over a full skirt of many breadths of white satin covered by an overskirt of embroidered tulle that fell just short of her ankles and the buckled shoes.

Her hair, except for a few waves in front, was concealed by the red-cilla, typical of the Maja, a knitted cap ending in a long queue and a tassel.

Angustias gazed at her in satisfied admiration.

"Lovely, lovely nina. You know you never looked more beautiful. How pleased Don Pedro will be!"

said Eulalia with a smile that wiped out all the calamities of the night before. "So kind that I will ask you to get me one chest from my belongings—a large iron-studded chest—marked with a green cross in a circle."

Canete looked at the chests and boxes strapped on the weary burros and opened his mouth. But Eulalia smiled again.

The captain approached the animals, searched carefully, then called an Indian who carried the trunk to the lady. Then the train moved on out of sight down the canyon.

Eulalia and Angustias unfastened the great lock with little laughing cries of anticipation. Slowly Angustias lifted out a garment, and shook it. It was not velvet, and it was not green. Eulalia gasped.

Grimly the duena began throwing things out of the chest on to the ground until it was strewn with garments. But the riding habit was not among them. And the pack-animals were out of sight and sound. Angustias looked fearfully at her mistress whose lip trembled.

"What shall I do? Oh, Angustias, what shall I do? I had set my heart on that green velvet!"

Angustias braced herself. She could cope with the situation when her lady wept. It was only the cold tearless storms that baffled her. She turned to the scattered garments.

"Ah, God be praised! Nina, look! This is perfect, here is the little Maja costume. The sweetest, prettiest, most becoming thing you ever had! I haven't laid eyes on it since I left Spain—God bless the place."

"Let me see that dress, Angustias." The woman held it up.

"Yes, it is charming. I suppose there is nothing else to do. But how you could make such a mistake in the chests, Angustias, I don't know. And I had set my heart on the—"

"Ah, this is better. Much better. The green would not be so becoming to you now since you have grown so tanned—so bonny and brown!" she amended hastily as she heard a snort from the lady.

"Yes, yes, it is all here, even the little buckled shoes and the red-cilla. Come, nina, let us get this on you before it grows too dark to see what we are doing."

Eulalia permitted herself to be dressed, at first submitting in sulky silence, then growing interested and at last enthusiastic as the charming little Maja costume was fitted to her. As she fussed, Angustias talked volubly.

Eulalia spoke briskly.

"Come now, woman, how do I look?" She pulled her little jacket over her bosom and turned slowly around.

The tiny fitted jacket was of red with a little white lace collar, and puffs of golden-colored embroidery over the shoulders like epaulettes; the long close-fitting sleeves broke at the wrists with another puffing of satin, then tapered over her hands. A row of jeweled buttons followed the curves of her breast. The gay garment terminated in a short waistline with charming little tabs, the one directly in back sticking jauntily out like a drake's tail.

This she wore over a full skirt of many breadths of white satin covered by an overskirt of embroidered tulle that fell just short of her ankles and the buckled shoes.

Her hair, except for a few waves in front, was concealed by the red-cilla, typical of the Maja, a knitted cap ending in a long queue and a tassel.

Angustias gazed at her in satisfied admiration.

"Lovely, lovely nina. You know you never looked more beautiful. How pleased Don Pedro will be!"

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK.—Many years ago, in South America, this writer was always hearing somebody mutter "Perros!" (dogs), as he passed by. It expressed dislike of all North Americans. Upton Sinclair's book, "The Jungle," about the Chicago packing houses, had been carefully mistranslated, in a widely circulated version, which made multitudes of South Americans believe all North Americans ate dogs. Even in remote jungle towns, I found European trade scouts and salesmen making diligent use of the book. It was the neatest trade propaganda trick of the century.

The one-sided battle has continued through the decades. Late reports are that South American radio stations are belting Uncle Sam with everything at hand, and, to the same degree, apostrophizing Italy, Germany and Japan.

For this reason, there appears to be more than meets the eye in the printed story of our new airwave rearmament, and the assignment of a new short-wave channel for broadcasts to South America.

With Secretary Hull, Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American union, pleads for "stronger cultural ties" in the first broadcast. Spanish translations follow the English version.

While all this is in the name of "peace and good-will," and official announcements carry no hint of a defensive propaganda war, it appears to be the answer—perhaps the only possible reply—to the widespread smearing campaign against the U. S. A. in Latin American countries.

The sixty-six-year-old Dr. Rowe is a happy choice to head America's "cultural," if not propaganda, outreach in this direction. He has become widely known and decidedly persona grata in South America in his 32 years of pleading and proselytizing for solidarity, friendship and understanding in the Americas.

He has fraternized with South Americans more than any other northerner, lecturing, writing, evangelizing and expounding his doctrines of friendly co-operation—always on the high plane of cultural and intellectual intercourse. He has been head of the Pan-American union since 1920, succeeding John Barrett.

TIPS to Gardeners

Miscellaneous Tips

BEFORE planting, work soil deeply, making the top three or four inches as fine and loose as possible.

For better germination, pour water into the drill or furrow just before sowing. Use enough water to moisten the soil, but not enough to cause caking.

If you have had little experience and wish to try the vegetables easiest to grow, select radishes, carrots, beets, Swiss chard, and turnips. With a good-sized garden you might add spinach, peas, beans and corn.

If your garden is small and you wish to increase the total yield, try the following quick-growing vegetables:

Radish, leaf lettuce, beets, carrots, peas and beans. You can replant most of these after space has been made for them by early harvest.

Do not plant seeds deeper than directed. After planting cover seeds immediately, pressing the soil down firmly.

How Often Should Your Furniture Be Polished?

Housewives differ on the question of "when to polish their furniture." Some have no set time for it—polishing when they think of it—or when, casting a glance about, they decide that the furniture can "stand it." Others, polish every cleaning day—which ordinarily occurs once a week. Others dedicate but one day a year to this important procedure. And still others, polish the furniture in their home regularly, once a month. This last group is the largest—but their schedule is not sufficiently frequent. Furniture can not be polished too often! True, the outward benefit of the best oil polish—the luster—will last through a single week—and more—but this same polish, with its light oil base, preserves and "feeds" the furniture, revives it, prolongs its life! So that every application is highly beneficial to woodwork and the various pieces of fine wood in the home. Our advice, therefore, for the sake of endurance, as well as appearance, of your furniture, is "polish up" with a good oil polish at least twice a month!

While all this is in the name of "peace and good-will," and official announcements carry no hint of a defensive propaganda war, it appears to be the answer—perhaps the only possible reply—to the widespread smearing campaign against the U. S. A. in Latin American countries.

FOTO-FEATURE

This Magician Makes Himself Into Gurgling, Babbling Brook Or a Terrifying Wind Storm

Fifty-three-year-old Joseph Delfino has been making movies realistic since 1928, but no one heard of him until FOTO-FEATURE visited the Delfino rendezvous, a crowded storeroom on the Twentieth Century-Fox lot in Beverly Hills, Calif. His "studio," the only one of its kind in the industry, furnished the moaning, howling, rumbling, roaring, crackling and hissing for "In Old Chicago," "Lloyds of London" and other productions, most recently for "Sally, Irene and Mary." To see Delfino placidly winding a crank at the left, you'd hardly imagine that a few weeks hence cinema audiences will sigh over the poetic sound made by a babbling brook. For that, precisely, is the noise this contraption sends into the motion picture microphone.

sounds like an elevated train or a roller-coaster. The panorama scene of his headquarters gives you an idea of the complicated job handled by this strange craftsman.

After making queer noises all day, it's nice to sit before the fireplace in your West Los Angeles home, reading while the wife does a bit of needlework. Delfino thinks up a lot of new sound effect gadgets at home, but has also found time to build more than half the furniture for this cozy cottage. He and his wife personally decorated the house.

Above our hero is seen reading a script of "Sally, Irene and Mary," the new Fox production. From this script he prepared an advance work sheet for special sound effects, then collaborated with the sound recording engineer and assistant director on what was needed before work started.

This done, he goes into the kitchen (left) and dons an apron, turning out tastier "grub" than his wife. At least that's Delfino's story. And on Sunday they go strolling.

JODOK
The fellow who has a "fair break" does not always make a success of his endeavors, while others, who seem to have a very UNFAIR break, quite frequently put their job over and win the plaudits of their friends for doing so.

And I do not have to get out of my tracks to find one of the former, for, while I was not born in the lap of luxury, or with a silver spoon in my mouth, I have always had plenty to eat and to wear, and a good use of all my limbs and senses. And although I have never spent a day in high school in my life, I did have the advantage of a good common school, and very seldom had to miss a day on account of ill health or bad weather. I always had a good pair of course cowhide boots and a pair of woolen socks, a pair of jeans pants and jeans coat, with a suit of underwear made of common brown domestic, and a cap; and sometimes a pair of homeknit yarn mts for my winter wardrobe, and I always walked to school, regardless of how deep the snow was or how hard it might be raining.

I also had plenty in my lunch bucket for my dinner, and all the books I needed, and have had very little illness during my entire life, and if that is not a "fair break" I do not know what you would call one; yet the only thing I have made a success of is—making a failure of everything I have ever undertaken.

It therefore occurs to me that the "even break" or "fair break" I hear so much about, does not amount to so much after all, but it rather depends more upon the individual to make his own "even break."

On the other hand, I have known some of my fellows who never seemed to have any "break" at all, and they seemingly had probably enough food or clothing to make them comfortable, and a rather cheerless home with little or no encouragement therefrom, who have gotten out into life's swim and have crowded, edged and elbowed their way through a maze of adverse circumstances until they are now on "Easy Street."

And it just occurs to me that if our young men and young women will not think of what kind of a "break" they have, but will just get out on the race track of life and be ready to tackle "Old Opportunity" either by the forelock as he approaches, or by the fetlocks as he passes, and mount him and ride him for all he is worth, it will soon not matter to them whether they had an "even break" or not, and there are seeds of opportunities right here at Friona, if you will but watch for them and tackle them aright.

Some time ago I quoted a part of a poem, which said the "Has Beens do come back." Well, I am not a "have been," I am a "never was," but I may be a "will be" some time, if I keep on trying, which I mean to do, for I am planning on a long life, if I do not die or get killed too soon. And if a man in his "eighties" might make a mark of distinction for himself, then surely our young people in their later "teens", twenties and thirties should be able to make a "break" for themselves. Anyway, there is lots of fun thinking about it; but one cannot afford to do it all in thinking, there must be a practice as well as theory.

We have a lot of nice cherry sprouts over to our house, which are in the way of "Milady" in making her garden and we will have to dig them up. They are of the "black cherry" variety, mighty good and good bearers, and if any of the neighbors want them to set out they may have them if they will come and dig them out. She would rather some of her neighbors should have them than to throw them away.

The trees from which these sprouts came were verily loaded with cherries last year but "Milady" has several other young trees coming on and does not need these, and she would much rather give something she does not need to some neighbor than to destroy it. She seems to be always thinking about "OTHERS."

And while we are planning and striving to make a "break" for ourselves, it will be lots better if we are always ready to help some others of our fellows secure a "good break" for themselves, which reminds me of an old song I used to hear sung when I was a youngster, one verse of which was like this:

Many a bright, goodhearted fellow,
Many a noble-minded man,
Finds himself in water shallow—
Then assist him if you can.

Some succeed at every turning,
Fortune favors every squall,
Others, too, though more deserving,
Never get fair winds at all.

Then don't give way to foolish sorrow,
Let this keep you in good cheer
Brighter days may come tomorrow
If you try, and persevere.

Darkest nights will have a morning
Though the sky be overcast,
Longest lanes will have a turning
So the tide will turn at last.

Then do your best for one another,
Making life a pleasant dream
For each worn and weary brother
Pulling hard against the stream.

FOR SALE—One 22-36 International Tractor, and one No. 83 3-row lister. All in good condition. Will sell worth the money. Ervin Johnson, Friona.

THE PRE-SHOW BANQUET
The banquet given here last Friday night by the local Chamber of Commerce in honor of the 4-H club boys of the county, has been proclaimed the best and largest banquet of the kind yet held in Friona.

About 200 plates were sold, and a few local people were obliged to leave the building hungry, not being able to find plates at the table, but all are rejoicing over the success of the banquet, nevertheless.

An unusually appreciated program was presented in connection with the banquet, with attorney Sam Aldridge of Farwell, as Toast Master, with prompt and interesting responses from chosen ones of the guests.

H. G. Morris, one of the most interested and energetic members of the executive committee, having the banquet and the show of the following day in charge, in a few well chosen words, extended the sincere thanks and appreciation of the entire committee, to all those who in any way aided in the success of the banquet and the show.

The singing for the occasion was under the direction of Rev. C. Carl Dollar, pastor of the local Congregational church, and the manner in which he handled his part of the program received the plaudits and praise of the banqueteers.

The guest speaker for the occasion failed to appear and O. M. Stewart, superintendent of the Friona schools, was, at the last minute, pressed into service to deliver the address of the evening. And those who heard him declared they could not tell by his speech, that he had not had ample time for its preparation, so logical and well delivered was it.

So well pleased were the promoters of this banquet, that plans are already formulating for a bigger and better banquet next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Garren and son, Junior, of Amherst, moved to the Friona community, Monday.

Mrs. M. S. Weir visited relatives at Farwell, Monday.

Miss Eva Settle, of Lubbock, visited friends and relatives here, Sunday.

FARMER COUNTY PUREBRED STOCK BREEDERS

The following list of breeders of purebred stock in Farmer County has been secured by the Friona Star, which we are pleased to give, not only for the publicity of the individual breeders, but for the benefit and information of all our readers as well.

- In each paragraph will be found first the names of the breeder, followed by the post office address, then the name of the breed or breeds and finally the name of herd sire, if any is owned by the breeder. The names are listed alphabetically.
- Armstrong, J. R., Farwell, Short-horn, no name; Poland China, regular papers applied for.
  - Bender, Karl, Friona, Herefords, Prince Axtel Ninth.
  - Bewley, Willard, Friona, Poland China, HI Boy.
  - Hammond, R. G., Farwell, Short-horn, Deloney.
  - Jersig, Mrs. Anne, Bovina, Herefords, Superior Diamond 37th.
  - Lacy, M., Friona, Herefords, Axtel Chief Fifth.
  - Lillard, Harold, Friona, Short-horns, none.
  - Lillard, L. F., Friona, Shorthorn, Bates Dreadnaught.
  - Osborn, Forest, Friona, Spotted Poland, Majestic Texan; Spotted Poland, none.
  - Schlenker, F. T., Friona, Herefords, Mischief 2nd (twin); Spotted Poland, Hot Shot.
  - Smith, Albert, Farwell, Poland China, Big Bob.
  - Tempar, Ernest, Muleshoe, Poland China, Sunbeam Supreme.
  - Welch, F. N., Friona, Shorthorns, Burghfield Bates.

The above list of breeders is sufficient evidence of the fact that Farmer County farmers are awake to the fact that it pays to grow the best purebred stock on their farms, as they cost less to produce and are worth more when they produce. The list of breeders further shows that they are in line with the best in their selection of breeds, all shown here being of the leading and most popular breeds, both in cattle and hogs.

It is, perhaps, rather surprising that there are no breeders of purebred sheep quoted in the county, since it appears to have been definitely proven by many of our farmers that sheep are as great dividend payers as are either cattle or hogs. However, it is only within the past few years that many of our farmers have given much attention to the sheep industry, and it is quite probable that within the next year or two there will be several breeders of purebred sheep here.

The Eyes Will Get It

Although the grapefruit eaters in 43 of the 48 states tasted the Texas variety in 1937, more people in more states are due to taste it in the next few years. There are a greater number of young grapefruit trees, ranging from 3 to 12 years, in the lower Rio Grande valley now than in any other producing area in the United States. This means that the biggest increase in production will probably be in Texas, since few of these trees are not yet full-bearing. The bulk of trees in Florida and California are 13 or more years old.

REV. BEATTIE SENDS POEM TO STAR

In the mail which arrived at the Star office early this week was a large envelope addressed to the editor, from Rev. J. L. Beattie, of Abingdon, Virginia, which, when it was opened, was found to contain a poem, entitled "Childhood Memories," with Rev. Beattie as its author.

Rev. Beattie is quite well known here at Friona, he having served for four years as pastor of the local Congregational church, and he and his good wife still have a host of friends here.

The poem is filled with moral and religious sentiment, and memories that usually fall to the lot of those who have passed the meridian of life, and all those of our readers who have known its author can realize its sincerity. It reads as follows:

"Childhood Memories"
By Rev. J. L. Beattie
Wait here a minute friends, whose hair is gray,
And read these lines of days that passed away,
When we were children, happy, active, free,
As birds, that singing, flew from tree to tree,
The while there'll come to you in Memory's flow,
What most you prize, and set your heart aglow.

The world for you was all of wonders then;
A house not made with hands, prepared for men,
With floors of green—twice so in light of sun—
Clear shining after rain, with bow o'erhung—
And dome of blue where nightly shone the moon
Belated traveler's guide and shepherd's boon,
And stars like sheep in azure fields astray
To rival fair the sun's great work by day.

More pleasing yet than heaven's glories bright
Was this wide world of life and sense delight.
Great wonders then entranced us all to see
Dumb brutes with senses five, the same as we,
And mind enough to know their daily need
And seek what best they liked on which to feed;
The weaker yielding foremost place, or fight
Like pagan folk, whose rule is "might Makes Right."
Then flowers in ten thousand shapes and hues
Made all the wisest look thereon and muse,
For they enshrined the secret spring and flow
That feeds the hungry world and makes it grow.

On every hand things wonderful occurred,
And caution grew by fact or fancy stirred.
We soon learned well the creatures swift of wing,
Whose sure defense was in their burning sting;
And snakes, whose strike, twice quicker than a fist,
Shot open-mouthed, blood-red, with breath that hissed.

And when to foreign shows we got to go
And see the elephant, giraffe and hippo,
And monster cats, that eat up men, and bears;
The ostrich tall, whose plume my lady wears,
And apes and big gorillas looking grave,
With faces less manly than lions brave,
With neither hands to work nor feet to walk,
With mouths and tongues to eat but not to talk,
With naught to do but climb on trees for fruit,
A mock of men and joke among the brutes;
We sure were glad to turn from wild and strong
To tame and tamed that ne'er would do us wrong.

Our beasts and fowls knew us and we knew them,
For all we had a place, for each a name,
And when the young appeared creation new,
It brought new pleasure, wealth and wonder, too,
Then mother love, with wistful, patient fear,
Begged all to careful be of hers' most dear.

Ten thousand words and phrases scarce could draw
An outline picture of the things we saw
And see again, if oft we think full well
Of where we were and what to us befel,
If those dear great and happy yesterdays
Until the whole in clearness reappears.

From things in skies above so grand and pure
And things on earth below in law secure,
To work with fire that wildly melts down trash
And turns the greatest cities into ash,
To go to church for treasure of the heart
And then to school for science and expression's art,
Our parents all in faith set precious store
By sons and daughters, yet more and more,
And some would early plan alliance fair,
To carry on their likes and loves so rare;
And others dreamed of teachers yet to be,
Or doctors, preachers, all to set folks free,
And 'Een among the poor, ambitions great
Raised up their share to bless the church and state,
And we, who saw the troop a-coming fast
Felt each new soul would prove a friend at last.

We turned our wits to find excitement rare

In things we liked to do and dare:
To climb high hills and trees to look below;
To ride on wheels and slide on ice and snow;
To make a raft to float on water fine,
To try for wily fish with hook and line,
To train ad og to mind us bravely well
And share our lunches, fun and frolics, swell,
To do our best to imitate in play
What all our grown folks did from day to day,
To go to fairs and see the superfine
And join in games that quicken skill and mind,
To hear all music, good and noble song,
Which cheer the heart and move the world along,
To enter wild wood groves and build us huts;
To wander far in forest shades for nuts;
To work with fire that wildly melts down trash
And turns the greatest cities into ash,
To go to church for treasure of the heart
And then to school for science and expression's art.

Our parents all in faith set precious store
By sons and daughters, yet more and more,
And some would early plan alliance fair,
To carry on their likes and loves so rare;
And others dreamed of teachers yet to be,
Or doctors, preachers, all to set folks free,
And 'Een among the poor, ambitions great
Raised up their share to bless the church and state,
And we, who saw the troop a-coming fast
Felt each new soul would prove a friend at last.

How handsome, strong and proud young husbands were
To own their wives so pure in love and fair,
And watch their children grow in size and mind
And with their Lord and neighbors favor find;
For they did reason well, saw far, felt joy,
And with disciplined mind did time employ,
They planned their work with hope and courage high,
Resolved to earn their part while time sped by.

How great the day when these young couples stood
Before the church to own each child for God!
'Twas done with holy vows of parents, both,
In strength of faith, confirmed with solemn oath,
To live as one in truth for each child's sake,
An obligation grand that all should take.

How glad we were to have such friends on earth,
To teach and train and keep us from our birth,
Is ought so great in life to hear as this,
That one for all should die in sacrifice,
And Christians gladly for each other live
And, like God's Son, their all for all to give?

Such work at home and church combined in love
Makes glad the angels, pure in heart above,
And yet another day for us was great,
That was our happy confirmation date,
We then had come to know and love God's way,
And prize the gifts that on his altar lay,
Then when we stood to say in unison the creed
And speak our vows to God's own Son,
All eyes were turned to us with deep content,
All sure we stood for Christ, from Heaven sent.

Then on our minds was well impressed the fact
That bread and wine, by one blessed signal act
Should evermore to men be gospel seals
And earnest of the years God still reveals,
So when to us the previous ailment was brought,
We all in thankful worship bent.

When now we look upon our daily bread,
Or see the branching vine with fruit all red,
We gratefully look to him who gave his life
To free us from this vain world's lust and strife,
From that day forth our minds were counted strong
To reason well and judge 'twixt right and wrong;
To think and speak for good, as of men mature,

And leave off childish ways with hearts demure,
We too, remember years in school, to learn
What all the wise had done, their fame to earn,
Not Godless then, our Godless teachers they,
Who stood before the young and knelt to pray;
For in God's book they found the words of light,
That saves us all from sin's dark blight,
And taught, as well they should, the perfect life
That must at last save man from war and strife.

And there were some of us, alas, who died

Before their life had reached its potent tide,
Whom we remember still, just as they were,
Like buds unfolding in the spring-time air;
Each full of promise, beauty, hope and love,
And now at home with God in heaven above.

How came they there? What body do they wear?
Why ask, when Holy Writ the answers bear?
The soul at death returns to God who gave,
The body made of dust, sleeps in the grave,
That which we bury, like the grain we sow,
Is not the body which we next shall know;
But one celestial, pure in person true,
Transfigured spirit-filled, in powers new.

And this we learned long time ago, when death,
Came near to sink our hearts with bated breath,
And still we're sure that heaven's home for all,
Who dwell in love and pray, both great and small.

Last Week's

The new farm bill will be of much benefit to the great Southwest. That a farm program is desirable is manifest to every thinking person. Anyone with even a short memory can recall the days of five cent cotton and twenty cent wheat, ten cent corn and three cent cattle. These prices wrecked business and industry everywhere by destroying the purchasing power of the farm and ranch, thus causing millions of blameless people to walk the streets in idleness.

One of the features that is especially desirable for the South and Southwest is the one which makes the payments to the farmers who conserve their soil regardless of whether there is actual production. Representatives from many sections wanted payments to be made only on actual production. Of course, such a program would have reduced the payments in drought years to almost nothing just at the time when they are most needed.

Fortunately, we were able to retain in the bill as finally adopted a provision that payments should be earned by the acreage planted and the soil treatment, regardless of whether the land actually produced a crop during the year. This provision will mean millions in added benefits to the Panhandle and Southwestern area.

In addition, the allotments will be on the basis of seeded acres rather than on the production.
Another feature that means much to our section is the provision for a range program. This has been so adjusted that it can apply to the non-crop lands and pasture lands on the small farms.

Another matter of prime importance is the provision for an effort to secure a better freight rate structure for farm products. There has been entirely too much discrimination against agricultural products in the freight rate schedules that have been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Heretofore there has been no one whose business it was to see that these discriminations were removed and that proper adjustments were made so that a larger percentage of the ultimate price paid by the consumer would go to the producer.

Our section of the country has been peculiarly fortunate in that we have been able to secure in the farm bill a provision which takes care of droughts and crop failures and that we have also been able to secure provisions that protect in every practicable way the livestock producer as well as the farmer.

The question of the success of the measure will depend largely on the cooperation of the farmers and livestock producers in whose interest the legislation has been passed. They can do much to help make it a success, and, of course, no measure can succeed without their support.
Amendments may be necessary from time to time but the movement for a square deal for the producer as of farm and ranch products must go on.

Junk: A Thriving Industry

The mighty Leviathan, once queen of the seas, is now being dismantled in an English shipyard, its iron and steel destined to work not for peace, but for war. Attention is again focused on the trade in old iron, a booming industry since Europe and Asia contracted war fever. The Leviathan, which covered itself with glory as a troop transport during the World war, brought $800,000 as scrap, and will play an important part in Britain's rearmament program. But bullets and bombs just as deadly are being fashioned from pieces of old stoves, kitchen utensils and old automobiles. Pulleys, auto wheels, gears and gear housings form the conglomeration above awaiting shipment on New York's waterfront.

Junk dealers do not lead healthy lives. Day after day they handle weather-beaten, rusted pieces of scrap iron, heavy and cumbersome material that is often jagged or sharp. Torn gloves and torn hands are commonplace, often followed by infection.

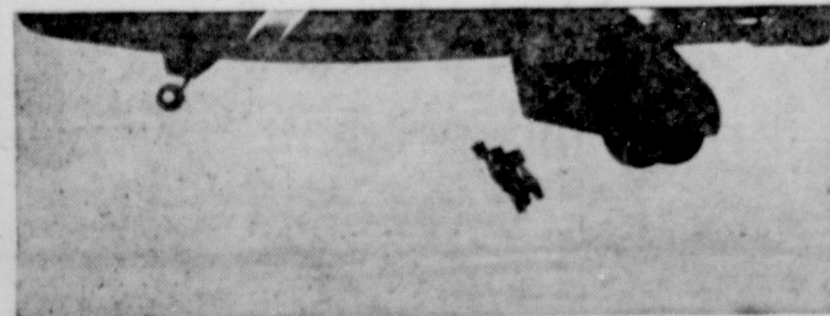

Above: From small beginnings to big money. Kids who yesterday sold magazines and newspapers to earn spending money, have found there's more to be made by collecting scrap iron. Youngsters now comb dumps for scrap which they will sell to a junk dealer, who in turn will sell it to an exporter, who will sell it to an importer abroad, who finally disposes of it to munition factories. All profit except to the ultimate recipient, who receives it in the form of a bullet or bayonet through his vitals. Right: Car track rails that have carried thousands, millions, to work, home, pleasure, are being cut up for shipment abroad. They may yet serve to carry many to the hereafter as they are transformed into instruments of murder in the hands of Mars.

In England and other European countries (as in America) it has been a popular custom to mount decrepit cannon in parks and civic centers, there to stand as testimonials against war. Today the war-makers are tearing down these memorials and turning them into modern cannon.

A mountain of scrap iron, composed of hundreds of bales, or "bricks" that have been compressed to this form for convenience in shipping. Each "brick" weighs about 500 pounds. Daily a steady stream of scrap metal leaves United States shores for France, England, Japan, Spain and elsewhere, as the race goes on building up the sinews of war. Noted peace observers have pointed out that there is a grave inconsistency in any neutrality law that forbids the export of arms but permits the raw material from which arms are created.

Let's hope the scrap never returns in this form, as bombs!

Farm System Solution to Yank Menace

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

WITH anti-monopoly and trust-busting movements abroad in the land, baseball men generally would welcome with three rousing cheers any formula that would effectively break up the pennant monopoly of the New York Yankees. Winners of the American league pennant and the world's series in 1936 and 1937, Joe McCarthy's Yankees look like such sure-fire repeaters again this year in both fields that there seems to be little chance of heading them off.

But in the future it is obvious that something must be done to improve other clubs in the American and National leagues—particularly the last three teams in each circuit—if national interest in the national sport is to be maintained. The tailenders are so hopelessly out of the pennant race from the start that the most ardent followers lose interest.

Two major suggestions have already been brought forward. One is a sort of share-the-wealth plan which proposes that the Yankee machine be broken up and the talent distributed to less fortunate clubs. Baseball men agree that this is a bad suggestion. The other way suggested to break that pennant monopoly is to build up the weaker clubs in both the American and National leagues to meet it. This can be done. And the way to do it is by the extension of the farm system.

Yanks Get Talent

The Yankees, supported by Colonel Ruppert's wealth, have constructed a splendid farm system with Newark in the International league and Kansas City in the

Joe McCarthy.

American Association as their principal training grounds for talent. These two powerful minor league clubs will continue to produce fine baseball ability every year for the Yankees.

The Yanks are one of several teams that have discovered that the proper method of supplying a winning major league club with capable talent is to own some minor league teams. Ruppert first tried paying high prices for advertised stars when he took over the Yanks. This proved too costly. The farm method has proved far better. It costs less and supplies classier material. The St. Louis Cardinals under Branch Rickey made a similar discovery a few years back and they now have the most extensive chain farm system in baseball.

The thing for the other clubs to do is to build farm systems that are as good as the Yankees or the Cardinals have and the Giants, Cubs and Indians are developing. Such a measure would eventually equalize the playing strength of the various teams and bring into a more even balance the strength of the American and the now admittedly weaker National league.

Of course there is the alternative of a bigger scouting system for every team. But if the top clubs continue to increase their farm activities, the field for scouting will be so limited that it will be difficult to find adequate talent except on teams owned by other clubs. Scouts are said to be running into that situation already.

Baseball fans everywhere love a winner. They are content as long as their team is in the fight. But they are justly dissatisfied with teams that have no chances whatever.

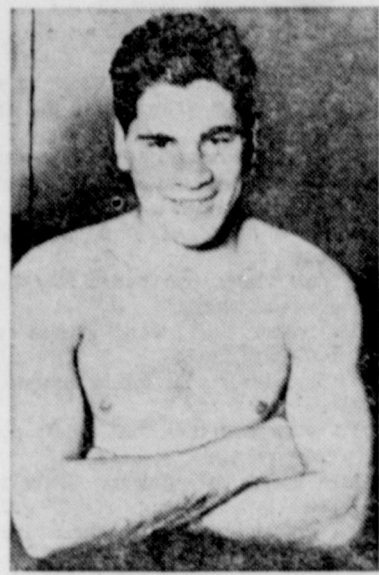

Unless the problem of strengthening the tailenders is solved shortly, it is not inconceivable that major leagues be cut to six clubs each or some of the franchises moved. Moving the franchises might not remedy the situation more than temporarily. The solution is for all major league clubs to be so financed that they can establish adequate farm systems of their own.

Do You Remember When:

Jack Dempsey left a job as an assistant cook in a restaurant and Jack Kearns said he would become heavyweight champion of the world. Every one laughed when the late William the "Duke of Muldoon" said Jim Braddock would some day be heavyweight king. Helen Wills Moody wore pig tails and won her first tennis championship out in California. Mollie Mallory, the national champion, made Suzanne Lenglen quit in a match in a national tournament at Forest Hills.

Numerology de Luxe

JACK KEARNS may be coming up with another heavyweight champion in Jimmy Adamick of Detroit, if association means anything. Jimmy crashed into the big time recently when he won a decision over Harry Thomas at Madison Square Garden in New York. Adamick has a double "M" ring name the same as Jack Dempsey. He has been hailed the "Midland Macer." Dempsey, you may recall, was known as the "Manassa Mauler." Both have had Kearns as manager and both have seven letters in their last name.

Carrying this business a little further, you will find that the first names of ten of the fifteen listed heavyweight champions of history began with "J" and three of them were called "James."

The current heavyweight title holder, Joe Louis, also figures in the Adamick picture. Jimmy got his start in the same frame-lifting department of a Detroit automobile factory as Joe Louis. So now all Jimmy has to do is go out and win the championship.

Doing that, however, promises to be considerable of a job, particularly in view of Louis' recent showing when he knocked out husky Nathan Mann of New Haven, Conn., in less than eight minutes. The Brown Bomber looked impressive in his second defense of the title he won last June from Jim Braddock. His timing and all-around punching power were reminiscent of the days when he was a sensational contender for the title.

Hitless Wonders

NOTES gleaned from official National league batting averages: Boston's Bees truly were the hitless wonders of 1937. They had a team average of .247, made the fewest number of runs, of hits, of total bases, and wound up the campaign in fifth place, only a stone's throw from the first division. The answer lay in a defense that was stouter than any other in the league.

It was a bad year for Cincinnati's betting baseball players. Manager Charley Dresen wagered, among other things, eight hats to one of Jimmy Wilson's that the Reds would beat out the Phils in the standings; and Chick Hafey, who had a sporting wager with Wally Berger over relative batting marks, found his .261 average more than 20 points under that of the Giants' outfielder.

With the retirement of Frank Frisch from active baseball the National league lost the outstanding turn around hitter in its history. There were six regular turn around hitters last season—Herschel Martin, Lonny Frey, Jimmy Brown, Ripper Collins, Augie Galan, and Del Young. None of them hit as high as .285.

There were fewer 300 hitters in the National league in 1937 than in either of the two previous years. Also the general league batting average last season was lower than in either of the two other years. Yet, despite the decline of offensive power, the league ruled for a deader ball.

Football Barter

THE recent appointment of bald eagle-faced Tad Wieman as head coach of the Princeton university football team brought to consummation a series of interesting swaps between Princeton and the University of Michigan.

First, Michigan signed Fritz Crisler, Princeton coach, as head football mentor and assistant athletic director at Ann Arbor. Then Princeton selected Wieman, a Michigan alumnus who had assisted Crisler, as its football coach.

Crisler then appointed Campbell Dickson and Earl Martineau, Princeton end and backfield coaches as his assistants at Michigan and Wieman was faced with the task of filling two holes in his coaching staff.

Wieman was graduated from Michigan in 1921. He played tackle and fullback under Fielding Yost. He assisted Yost for six years, then became head coach at Michigan in 1927. After the 1928 season he confined his activities to assistant athletic director. He went to Minnesota in 1930 to assist Crisler, followed him to Princeton and remained with Crisler until the latter transferred to Michigan.

Fashions Bloom in Spring

EXCEPTIONALLY smart new things for yourself and your daughter, that you'll enjoy making right now, and wearing on into the summer. Yes, even if you've never done much sewing, you'll enjoy working from our simple, easy-to-follow patterns, each accompanied by a complete and detailed sew chart. Hundreds of beginners are saving money, and creating really individual clothes, by making their own this season.

The Charming Basque. Here's a perfect design for slim, youthful figures. The snug basque top, above a full, rippling skirt, is dramatized by little puff sleeves. Think how delightful it will look, made up in a plain or printed material, either one, but choose something colorful, because it's such a gay, young little dress.

Little Girl's Dress, With Doll. Yes, this pattern brings you directions for making the little girl's dress, the doll, and a dress for the doll just like her small mama's. Just think how all that newness will make your little daughter dance with joy. The child's dress is a darling, with its full skirt, pockets, puff sleeves and round collar. Make it up in printed percale or gingham. Old-fashioned rickrack braid would be pretty to trim it.

The Classic Shirtwaist. This is distinctly a woman's version of the indispensable shirtwaist dress, gracious, slenderizing and dignified. The shoulders are beautifully smooth and the skirt has exactly the correctly tailored, straight effect. It's so easy to make, and looks so smart, that you'll want it now in sheer wool or light-weight flannel, and later in tub silk or linen.

The Patterns. 1471 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 (32) requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material, with 3/4 yard of contrast for collar. Belt not included. 1411 is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. Size 3 requires 1 1/4 yards of 39-inch material, with 1/4 yard of contrast for collar, and 1 1/4 yards of edging to trim. Doll's body is included in the pattern. Sixteen-inch doll requires 1/2 yard of 35-inch material, with 3/4 yard for doll's dress, and 3/4 yard of edging. 1207 is designed for sizes 34 to 50. Size 36 requires 4 3/4 yards of 39-inch material, with short sleeves. With long sleeves, 4 3/4 yards.

Famous Food Expert To Conduct Feature
BEGINNING with this issue this paper is pleased to announce a new series of articles which we believe to be the most original and up to date food department in the country. We wanted to offer a food department that was live—interesting—different. We wanted to get away from the usual "recipe column." We believe the women of this community are primarily interested in food in its relation to health, in its effect on growing children. Information of this sort has usually been too scientific to be understood by the average person, but in this series it is presented in clear, understandable language and applied so that it will fit the average household.

C. Houston Goudiss, famous author, lecturer, and radio personality, will conduct this department each week. Many housewives will want to make scrapbooks of these articles. Don't miss a single issue.

Nation Celebrates 250th Anniversary Swedenborg's Birth

AMAZING as it seems that one mind could encompass so many varied realms of knowledge, nevertheless it is true that Emanuel Swedenborg, the 250th anniversary of whose birth is being celebrated this year, made important contributions in many fields of science, theoretical and practical, in statesmanship, philosophy, and religion.

In 1716-1718 he published the first scientific periodical in Sweden, containing records of his mechanical inventions, and mathematical discoveries, which included the first airplane design to have fixed wings and moving propeller, the first air-pump to employ mercury, and the description of a method for determining latitude and longitude at sea by observations of the moon among the stars. In the "Principia," a work on physics and cosmology, he arrived at the nebular hypothesis theory before Kant and Laplace. He was 150 years ahead of any other scientist in his works on the functions of the brain and spinal cord, and on the functions of the ductless glands.

Swedenborg served as an active member of the parliament of his country for more than fifty years, introducing fiscal reforms and much general legislation.

WHAT TO EAT AND WHY

Food Provides the Key to Mental and Physical Power

You Can Be Strong, Beautiful, Wise, Rear Healthy Children Only If You Know How to Combine the Right Food Materials in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th Street, New York

SINCE the world began, food has been man's first consideration. For it he has fought and died. To find it he has traveled over great continents and braved unknown dangers. His quest for food has changed the map of the world and colored the history of nations. But in all of these historic struggles, he has been motivated solely by the desire to get enough food to satisfy hunger.

Today, actual hunger is rare. But hundreds of thousands of people starve in the midst of plenty because they do not realize the tremendous power of food for good or for evil.

They do not realize that as a man eats, so he is, and that his choice of food materials gives or takes away the power to live vigorously—to think clearly—to feel warmly—to be strong, healthy and wise.

It can be truly said that your food is your fate. It has the power to shape your body—to make it strong and beautiful, or weak and ugly. It has the power to influence your language, your gait, your tone of voice, in short—your life. With the right food, life becomes a glorious adventure, for it increases your leadership, intensifies your magnetic qualities, strengthens your morale, and increases your physical defenses and resistance. Without it, one drags through miserable days—never realizing even half of his potential mental and physical powers.

Food—the Fuel of Life.

The human body is a machine, far more complex than any machine devised by the mind of man. Food is the fuel which runs this amazing machine. Food is also the material used to repair worn-out parts, and to keep the intricate mechanism in good working order.

The body machine cannot be run efficiently without proper food fuel any more than a car could be run without gas, or a house could be heated without oil, coal or wood.

Food also has the power to speed up or slow down the workings of the mind. It likewise influences the state of our nerves, the warmth of our affections, the type of characters we possess.

Finally, the power to have strong, healthy children is based on proper food. And nutritional scientists have discovered that the wrong food can even take away from us the greatest blessing that Nature has bestowed—our earthly immortality. For it can deprive us of the ability to bear children who will carry on after we are gone.

Six Groups of Food Substances.

What food substances are necessary to build and maintain top health—to develop the greatest physical and mental power? There are six groups of food substances which must be included in the balanced diet which promises increased health, happiness and longevity:

1. PROTEINS which build and repair body tissues. These are found in such foods as milk, eggs, meats, fish, cheese and nuts.
2. FATS which yield heat and energy. The fats are represented by butter, cream, oils and the fat of meats.
3. CARBOHYDRATES—the starches and sugars. These also supply heat and energy, and are found chiefly in such foods as bread, potatoes, cereals and sweets.
4. MINERALS which build, repair, protect and regulate. Among the minerals which are absolutely necessary to health and vigor are calcium, phosphorus, iron, copper, iodine, sulphur, manganese, magnesium, sodium and potassium. These are found in varying amounts in milk, eggs, fruits, vegetables, whole grain cereals and meats.
5. VITAMINS which are necessary for body regulation, and as a protection against dread deficiency diseases. Six have been discovered to date—A, B, C, D, E and G.
6. WATER which is a part of

C. Houston Goudiss, outstanding food authority, author, and radio lecturer, author of "What to Eat and Why." He knows food from soil to serving, from table to tissue. Watch for his articles each week.

stand up under the physical strain with the battle. For those who collapse, all is lost.

The Homemaker's Responsibility.

Every wife and mother is therefore faced with the tremendous responsibility of keeping her family mentally and physically fit. Her husband must have the right kind of food in order to earn a living. Her own diet must be adequate and well-balanced if she is to have the energy, wisdom, and patience required of a mother at all hours of the day. Her baby will not grow into a healthy man or woman unless he or she has the right nourishment from the moment of birth. And school children can't keep up with their classes without the right food.

If you will follow this series of articles, and put into practice the principles of correct eating that I advocate, I can promise that you will increase both mental and physical efficiency, and as a result, achieve greater health and happiness for every member of your family.

Food Affects Your Body and Mind

Each morning when you awake, a new life is ahead of you. Whether that day and the days to follow will be better or worse than those that went before, depends largely upon what you eat. For nothing short of a miracle is performed at every meal.

Within a few hours the bread, meat, vegetables and liquids that you swallow are transformed into your personality. They become YOU. What was food yesterday, today is carrying on the important business of the world, running banks, operating machines, poring over school books, or carrying on that most important of all works, the making and keeping of a home.

Each meal that you eat helps or hinders the efficiency and ease with which these various duties are performed. That is why it is true that as you eat, so you are. And that is why I say that three times a day, at your table, you SIT DOWN TO LIFE.

EASY MONEY

Two men joined the police force. They were so keen that they summoned dozens of people on minor charges, and most of the defendants had to pay fines. The two young constables were on the eve of promotion when the inspector was surprised to receive their resignations. "Why do you wish to leave the force?" he asked. "Are you discontented in any way?" "It's not that," replied one of them. "Myself and Dan intend starting a station of our own. He'll run in the beggars and I'll fine them."—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Not Accommodating

Egbert and Oswald embarked on their maiden hunting expedition with one gun and one shell between them. Eg carried the gun; Os, the shell.

Suddenly a rabbit darted into view and Eg, excited, took hasty aim. "Wait!" shouted Os. "The dang gun ain't loaded!" "Can't help it," yelled back Eg. "Th' dern rabbit won't wait!"

The Artistic Stunt

"How's old Crimson Gulch?" asked the commercial traveler. "All right," answered Cactus Joe. "But most of us old ruffians have been working in motion pictures. We have become so refined that we think of changing the name of the place to 'Peacock Alley'."

PARROTS, MAYBE

"Have you any little ones home, Mrs. De Style?" "Oh, just two of the loveliest little darlings you ever saw! And they're both Poms."

Cramped

"Boys," said the old sail, impressively, "you'd hardly believe it, but the last time I was shipwrecked I lived for a week on a can of beans!" There was a long silence. "Gosh!" finally ventured one small lad. "Ya didn't have much room to move around, didja?"

A Friendly Warning

"I realize I owe a lot to my country," declared the orator. "Not too much of that, mate," whispered a sympathetic voice. "You're not the only one that has not paid his income tax."—Providence Journal.

Lazy Art

Myrtle—Is that picture a sunrise or a sunset? Martin—Sunset. I knew the artist. He never got up early enough to paint a sunrise.

Upstanding

Sally—But, Joey, Bill is such a big boy! Did you really stand up to him? Joey—We-e-l-l, not all of me—just my hair!

Don't Blame Him

"So you had to kill your dog. Too bad. Was he mad?" "Well, he didn't seem exactly pleased about it."

PLAIN ENOUGH

"Why does de fellers call Tom de Missing Link?" "Cos he escaped f'um de chain-gang."

Correction

Willie—There was a burglar in our house last night. Teacher—And what did your father do under those circumstances? Willie—He wasn't under the circumstances—he was under the bed.

Satisfaction

"I want a reliable chauffeur who takes no risks," said the would-be employer. "I'm your man, sir," replied the applicant. "Can I have my salary in advance?"—Hartford Times

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Trim Your Couch Cover in Contrasting Cord

IF SPRING is not in the air yet it soon will be. It is the season when every room in the house seems to need a lift. If your couch or daybed looks as though it has had a hard winter now is the time to give it a thought.

The couch of the type shown here may be made to fit into almost any decorating scheme if it has a smart and appropriate cover. The one shown here is ideal for a room with modern furniture or for one that follows no particular period. It would also give an interesting accent in a Colonial or provincial room. The cushions match the couch cover. A roughly woven navy blue cotton material is used and the seamlines are outlined with heavy cream colored cable cord. If you would like a gayer color scheme, use red cord with navy blue. Cream or yellow cord with brown material also makes an attractive cover.

A curved candlewick tufting needle such as is shown here at the lower right is good to use for sewing the cord in place. Thread about size 8 or 10 to match the cord should be used. The needle shown is really a medium size version of an upholsterer's needle which is another piece of sewing equipment that you will find useful if you like to renovate old furniture.

So often mystifying technical details stand in the way of making things that would add beauty and comfort to your home. It is with this in mind that Mrs. Spears wrote and illustrated her book, SEWING for the Home Decorator. With clear sketches and text it explains the simplest and most professional methods of making new slipcovers, correctly styled curtains, difficult dressing tables, pleasingly proportioned lamp shades and dozens of other things that will give your rooms new charm and freshness. This book will save you many dollars. Readers wishing a copy may address Mrs. Spears, 210 So. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill., enclosing 25 cents (coins preferred) and a copy of the book will be sent post-paid, by return mail.

SORE THROAT WITH COLDS Given Fast Relief

Take 2 Bayer Tablets with a full glass of water.

Crush 3 Bayer Tablets in 1/2 glass of water—gargle twice every few hours.

The speed with which Bayer tablets act in relieving the distressing symptoms of colds and accompanying sore throat is utterly amazing . . . and the treatment is simple and pleasant. This is all you do. Crush and dissolve three genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in one-third glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back.

This medicinal gargle will act almost like a local anesthetic on the sore, irritated membrane of your throat. Pain eases promptly; rawness is relieved.

You will say it is remarkable. And the few cents it costs effects a big saving over expensive "throat gargles" and strong medicines. And when you buy, see that you get genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DIRECTORS FOR VOTING
 County Agent Jason O. Gordon issued additional information Tuesday pertaining to the cotton referendum in which Farmer county farmers will participate, to be held on Saturday, March 12th.
 Gordon announced that voting boxes will be established in Farwell, Oklahoma Lane, Lasbuddy, Bovina, and Friona, with farmers from Black and Lakeview casting their ballots in the Friona box.
 It is exceedingly important that the majority of cotton producers cast their ballots at this time, either for or against the cotton marketing quota. Gordon stated, as this election will determine whether or not the quota will go into effect.
 Those in charge of the various polls, which will be open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., have been named as follows:
 Farwell—Olen Schleiter, chairman; A. F. Phillips, Eddie Smith.
 Bovina—A. O. White, chairman; Wilbur Charles, Chas. Calloway.
 Oklahoma Lane—O. T. Watkins, chairman; Jim Perkins, E. H. Meeks, secretary.

Health Notes

Austin, Texas—Proclaimed in Austin this week was April 3 to 10 as State Clean-up and Paint-up Week, by Governor James V. Allred.
 The Texas State Department of Health and the Fire Insurance Department will jointly sponsor this week in Texas.
 Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, states that the accumulation of winter's debris represents a distinct menace to the health of adults and particularly little children, and urges everyone to clean up their houses and yards during this week.
 "It is not only good housekeeping but ordinary sanitary principles indicate the necessity of prompt removal of all waste matter in and around the neighborhood of yards and homes, and the definite lessening of the spread of diseases, especially those affecting infants, is vitally connected with this procedure," stated Dr. Cox.
 "Texas is annually being host to more and more tourists, and we want Texas to appear at its best for the approval of these visitors. If all property holders will repair and paint their buildings, and replace weeds with flowers and shrubs, we can make Texas the beautiful place Nature intended it to be."
 Sanitation of the individual home is a splendid protection against communicable diseases.

Austin—For the protection of the public a law was passed in 1921 making it mandatory for every person who is employed in any public eating place, bakery, meat market, dairy or candy factory, to secure a health certificate from a reputable physician. This law is intended to eliminate all persons having any communicable disease from handling any foodstuff. These certificates must be renewed every six months.
 Typhoid fever, diphtheria, and amoebic dysentery carriers have been found numbers of times working in dairies, cafes, and other places where food is prepared or offered for sale. It is not too much for the consuming public to demand that those who sell them food shall be free from communicable diseases. If the examinations for food handlers are properly carried out, much good will be accomplished in protecting the health of the buyer as well as giving the applicant for a certificate accurate information as to his physical condition.

The Texas State Department of Health has repeatedly advocated periodic physical examinations for the general public, as it is during these examinations that many incipient diseases may be discovered and treatment begun in time to stop its development to such a degree that treatment will not be helpful. Many deaths and much suffering would be eliminated if every one would have this periodic check. In the case of food handlers, only the diseases that are communicable will withhold the issuance of a certificate. The cost is money well invested and the consuming public should demand that those they buy from have this evidence of good health.
