NUMBER 18

Here's a view The Dallas Morning News, editorially, takes of Texas' first "Town Inspection" which was just completed last week, and which has caused quite a stir in Texas towns and cities all over the state, and even a telegram was received in Gatesville from the State of Arkansas, regarding this inspection.

Here's the editorial:
"Town Takes Look In
Honest Mirror

"Other Texas cities and towns have no call to give thanks that they are not like Gatesville. That city, concerned over its fires and its consequent 15 per cent penalty insurance rates, recently had its fire hazards exposed by inspectors. Now it is hastening to remove the hazards before they cause more fires. But most other communities have fire hazards like those of Gatesville. And some are less concerned over discovering and removing them.

"While Gatesville people are making their city safer from fire, those in other communities could profit by inviting similar inspections. In many of them would be found hazards that had been overlooked. Gatesville is by no means the only city that has been tolerating short-circuited fuses, carelessly placed electric wires, blocked auditorium exit doors and trash piles in business buildings and garages. Those who delay getting rid of such hazards may pay a high price for their neglect."

That's nice! And when they tell you something is the matter and you do something about it, you gain. When you don't, what's the use.

This brings this up. Seth Turner and Mysie were still advertising Coryell County and Gatesville Friday in Houston, showing his $13,500 piece of cow to customers of Weingarten's stores.

Now, some of my farm relatives, and yours, have always maintained "grandpappy" and "pappy" used to do it this way 'nigh on to 40 years ago! That's so, and that WAS fine 'nigh on to 40 years ago! But it didn't and won't win $13,500.

Just because you do something like somebody else did who was a success, is no sign it's going to work in 1949. This is 1949, and it takes new methods, new procedures and new "wrinkles" to click now.

Turner bought "top" stock from a "top" stockman, and took "top" tips from "top" raisers and ended up on "top". He didn't do it like his forebears did; not much. He pioneered a new route, and made a new record. He's only 20, probably been stock raising not over 5 or 10 years and working in competition with stockmen in the business for 50 years, and HE wins!

There ought to be a lesson in that!

Little boys and girls, who don't too often tell you about their business, are ready to service and serve you with their service and merchandise, as outlined in a page advertisement in today's and Friday's News.

Among these are Drake's Furniture Store, Gatesville Ice Co., Jim Miller, Mrs. J. B. Graves Florist, Guaranty Bank & Trust Co., Dixie Service Station, Dyer's Sinclair Service Station, Graham's Sewing Machine Shop, Horace Jackson Insurance, Perry Bros., Scott Motor Co., S. & R. facts found in the middle and lower levels of the surface middens. There are the same projectile types; thick heavy blades. The constricted base with definite barb; the constricted base with shoulder; the Yuma-like type, all well pointed. In fact, the projectile type runs thru the whole category of forms found in the middle and lower levels of the surface middens.

We have removed about a score and a half of artifacts from sites, including knives. The knives, too, are of the types found in the surface middens. This number of artifacts, however, is too small to bring one to definite conclusions without other evidence. We have plenty of other evidence if we work on the assumption that many caved off middens found along the river banks came from the buried middens, and close examination shows that by far the greater number of the cave-offs had that source. The cave-offs have, in many places, lodged near the waters edge, and on branches, so that they may be examined. They have all the characteristics of the surface middens, also of those buried in the river banks. Burnt rock, quantities of shells, and fragments of flint, and considerable numbers of artifacts, as manos, of all types, hammer stones, knives, scrapers, and all types common to the surface middens.

THE DUNCAN SITE

There are two sites where this conformity does not so closely tie in with the surface middens. Here, too, our evidence is rather meager. The first of these two sites is located in the bank of the Leon River on the Duncan farm. The midden strata at this site is 8 feet below the present level of the valley above it. Above we mentioned a fire place, or hearth, at this site. We have since made further exploration, and found the hearth to consist of a core of small stones, the soil between the stones was burned to a brick red, intermixed were plenty of fragments of mussel shells. The artifacts found here are considerably lower than is found in the surface middens, however, the types found here are also found at the Peugh Creek Hilltop Midden on top of the hills that border Peugh Creek four miles to the northwest.

THE PAT NEFF EXCAVATION

The other site is in the bottom of an excavation on the Pat Neff farm. The site here is 6 feet below the present valley level. Since this site is fully described elsewhere we will discuss the artifacts found. Even tho they are crude and show considerable age, similar types are found thruout the hill section of the Peugh Creek area.

These two latter sites are the only ones where the cultural remains point to lower cultural levels than enjoyed by the builders of the burnt rock middens found on the surface. Nor does this imply that another race of people left the deeply buried middens than the race that carried on their building into historic times. What it may, and probably does imply, is that these lower cultural levels found in these buried middens is that the burnt rock midden cultures had its origin and its ending in this Central Texas limestone area, and that these lower middens are the genesis from which that culture sprang.

The middens found on the contact of the original valing and management. Attention to minor details such as bedding the calf on cool sand under a harbor in summer. Proper exercise to keep the calf in shape is important. Good sanitation around the lot is of utmost importance. Even though the calf is fat and his type excellent he won't win unless he is properly groomed. In many cases the final decision depends on how the animal is shown.

Dairying

Milk has been one farm product very much in demand during the last six or seven years. There has been a margin of profit during these years for the dairyman producing grade A milk. Grade A milk is milk produced under sanitary conditions. With modern farmers fast to adopt new methods even though the initial investment is higher, there are springing up over the county, Grade A dairies. Jack Weaver and J. R. Hodges of Pancake have put in Grade A. Mr. Weaver states that the operation of a Grade A dairy is both profitable and pleasant. Dairymen of the county should give some thought to replenishing their herds. This means using well bred cows and development of calves sired by four star bulls. If the farmer raises his own feed—grains and hay—the sale of milk will be profitable. There are many factors which mean a difference between small and large profit from dairying. Good cows, good pastures, ample home grown feed and proper housing of cows in winter cover the main ones.

I love to discuss problems with young people because their problems are so simple and can be solved with a few dollars.

Up until 1860 more than half the advertising in many newspaper was patent medicine advertising.

Agents of Central Texas attended a cotton meeting at Hillsboro, February 9, for more education on cotton insects and their control. Early season dusting with 3-5-40 will control the group of insects which will hit early. The three ingredients mentioned above include BHC, DDT and Sulphur. There will be more about cotton later. Sandy lands and loams should have 150 lbs. of fertilizer applied two weeks ahead of planting. Thrips cost farmers heavily in this county in 1948. This insect is easily controlled with 7 to 10 lbs of 3-5-40.

Coryell, Lampasas and Hills Counties showed Champions and Reserve Champions at the Fort Worth and Houston Shows. Seth Turner was asked in Houston why this section was showing such good calves. # The Texas Poll

The Statewide Survey of Public Opinion

By JOE BELDEN,
Director, The Texas Poll

AUSTIN, Texas, February 19-- Under the doctrine of the separation of church and state, the teaching of religion is kept out of public schools and left entirely to churches and church schools. This doctrine has long been accepted as a strong point in the American system of government.

However, one of the country's great religious leaders, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, points out that the absence of religion in public school studies is also a weakness in the American front against the spread of communism. Our spiritual heritage, which has given us liberty and democracy, is the best bulwark against communism, he says, and this heritage is sadly being neglected in our public school. It is Dr. Fosdick's idea that the doctrine of separation of church and state need not necessarily keep religion out of public school studies, so long as teachers confine themselves to teaching instead of indoctrination. He recommends the teaching of the great religious classics, especially the Bible, in literature courses. In other courses, such as history and sociology, he believes other aspects of religion should be emphasized.

Millions of Americans, says Dr. Fosdick, are convinced that the words "God and Liberty" belong together, and they can't understand why the public schools should divorce them.

In a recent statewide survey of opinion, The Texas Poll found adult Texans about evenly divided on the teaching of religion in public schools.

The question was put in the following words to a cross section of qualified voters:

"Do you think children should be taught religion in public schools, or do you feel the teaching of religion should be left entirely to churches and church schools?"

Public schools should teach religion.....47%
Leave it up to churches and church schools.....49%
No opinion.....4%

Main objection to teaching religion in public schools, according to comments collected in this poll, is the difficulty of satisfying all denominations. Some people say it would be impossible to find the right teachers.

Dr. Fosdick has an answer: What about economics? he asks, this is a course of study that offers the same objections. Yet the public schools have a way of teaching economics. The same could be true in teaching non-sectarian religion. Teachers who preach sectarian doctrine could be expelled just like those who use their economics courses for propaganda purposes.

Hundreds of thousands of Texans would agree with Dr. Fosdick, especially on the teaching of the Bible. In 1941, The Texas Poll asked a cross section of the adult population this question: "Do you believe courses in Bible should be taught in Texas public schools?" A two-thirds majority answered "yes". Typical comment of the majority was that "if such teaching is kept non-sectarian, it could be offered to all children as the greatest book of all time." But a good-sized minority objected. They couldn't trust the teaching to be "non-sectarian." "What Bible," asked an El Paso man, "Protestant, Catholic, or Jewish? I'm against it."

HAMILTON CORYELL SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

The supervisors of the Hamilton-Coryell Soil Conservation District held a called meeting at Hamilton February 4th. The board was unable to meet at their regular time because of icy roads.

Those present were: Sam J. Powell of Gatesville, Virgil Lockhart of Pidcoke, E. W. Newson of Hamilton and Mack Riley of Hamilton. R. C. Madeley of the Soil Conservation Service was also in attendance.

The Board approved 23 applications for assistance on 8,563 acres. The Hamilton Work Unit had 8 agreements approved for a total acreage of 2,408.

The Board agreed to sponsor a field day on March 15 and 16 in cooperation with the State Board of Control. All agricultural agencies and workers will be invited to attend. The State School plans to have approximately 17 pieces of equipment operating during the two days and they plan to train the State Farm Supervisors in terrace construction, terrace maintenance and waterway construction. The above work to be done with farm equipment.

The Board plans to invite all cooperators and the general public to attend the demonstration on the afternoon of March 15 and all Veteran classes on March 16th.

The technicians of the Soil Conservation Service ran 20 miles of terrace lines last week on the following district cooperators farms: Henry Schroeder, Elbert Pancake, R. O. Berry, Virgil Gardner, Paul Haynes, Wallace Daniels, Ramon Ray, and Herbert Kriege. These terraces will be constructed as soon as weather permits.

Dear Friends:
Feb. 11, 1949.

The House has held some long sessions this week. Several nights it has been long after dark when we adjourned. Probably the most important issue before us has been the extension of the power of the President to renew and extend the reciprocal trade agreements. For a number of years we have been gradually reducing our tariffs thru these agreements. I have often pointed out that I believe the world would be much better off if we had no tariffs or other trade barriers between countries. Surely the competition that Texas cotton mills face from North Carolina is more severe than any that we face from England. Surely the wheat of Kansas offers Texas wheat growers more competition than Argentine wheat. Yet, who would suggest a tariff against North Carolina or Kansas! I am not afraid of foreign competition if the American producer is left in a position to meet it on equal terms. In other words, I am willing to sell in a free market if I can in turn buy in a free market. The trouble has been that too many of us have had to sell in a free (or world) market, and buy in a protected (local) market. The basic fallacy of the tariff theory is exposed when one recognizes that no one could receive any benefit if every article were subjected to exactly the same tariff by every country. The only result would be to raise the cost of living for everyone. The only way a tariff can appear to help some groups, is at the expense of another group. Throughout all history some groups have sought to receive some special privilege for themselves at the expense of others. I don't believe that special privilege is consistent with honest government. Our present system of special protection to special groups should be changed, but I recognize that it cannot be changed overnight without great loss to some. It is, therefore, desirable that the change be effectuated over a period of years.

That is exactly what the reciprocal trade agreements do. If the policy is continued long enough, we will gradually eliminate not only our own tariffs but the tariffs of other countries. I think this program is the best yet devised for the elimination of a bad tariff system. Most of the House evidently thought so, too, because in spite of two full days of debate, and long hours of oratory against the program, the House voted 319 to 69 for the bill. Of course I voted "Aye".

Another matter of possible great importance was the Governmental Reorganization Bill. On several occasions in the past there have been efforts to reorganize the Executive Branch of the Federal Government. Everyone agrees that it should be done, but as soon as anyone attempts to wipe out or reduce any specific activity, there will be a loud howl to the effect that their particular agency should be left alone. For years legislators as well as Presidents, Republicans as well as Democrats, have agreed that it was simply impossible for Congress to do this job, and that the only way would be for the President to submit a reorganization program to Congress. The bill we passed authorizes the President to do this, and then gives Congress the right to review, and, if it desires, to reject the plan. I don't know that the President will be able to submit a sound program, but I do know that if we are to have any improvement in efficiency or reduction in size of our Federal agencies, it must come this way. I therefore voted for the bill.

I also voted FOR the measure to provide additional funds for the Committee on Un-American Activities. This Committee has been subjected to lots of criticism, but I think most of us must agree that some one MUST do this work. I believe the Committee as now constituted will do the job in a more fair and judicious manner than has been done in some cases in the past. Evidently most of the Members thought so, because the vote was the largest ever given to an appropriation for this Committee.

I have just this afternoon come from a conference with the Senate on the Bill passed by the House to exclude cotton planted in 1949 from the calculation of any future allotments. After two hours argument the Senate agreed to the Bill as passed by the House.

With best wishes, I am
Your friend,
W. R. POAGE.

Another Trophy Comes To Coryell Attendance At Production Credit

Coryell County members of the Waco Production Credit Association scored a triumph in the attendance contest at the annual stockholders' meeting in Waco on February 11. This being the third time in succession that the Coryell members had won the attendance contest, the trophy becomes their permanent property and will remain on display in the Gatesville office of the Association. Paul Hinson, of Ames, chairman of the Coryell County advisory committee, accepted the trophy for the members, and thanked them for their cooperation. Other members of the advisory committee are: Verne Perryman of Copperas Cove, Otha C. Martin of Oglesby, Albert Jacobs of Gatesville, Rt. 2, Jeff Buckner of Purmea, W. A. Copan of Kempner, Sam D. Hinson of Turnersville, A. C. Spradley of Turnersville, and G. D. Wright of Izora.

Lathel O. Caskey of Salado, and R. M. Jones of Clifton, were re-elected directors for a three-year term, and the following members were elected to serve as a Nominating Committee for the 1950 annual meeting: A. E. Lamar of Temple, Frank Kirkpatrick of Meridian, Verne Perryman of Copperas Cove, C. H. Redding of Marlin, and Morris C. Stewart of Waco.

Sanford S. Hancock of Marlin, entertained the crowd with feats of magic and also conducted the "I. Q." program, handing out cash for correct answers to a series of tricky questions to the great amusement of all and the financial gain of some.

The other directors of the Association are Lloyd Williamson of Pearl, W. D. Walker of Satin, and Ben D. Giles of Waco. Carlos Val Smith of Waco, is secretary-treasurer, Frank J. Brown of Gatesville is Coryell County representative.

For Morris Federation

Last Saturday afternoon members and guests of the Morris Federation were entertained in the home of Miss Orpa Mayo who was assisted by Miss Ruth Martin and Mrs. Will Powell as cohostesses.

After a short business meeting the president, Mrs. Byron Leaird, Jr., paid a beautiful tribute to the memory of a recently departed member, Mrs. H. T. Chapman, as she spoke of the inspiration she had given because of her loyal and devoted service during a period of thirty years.

Guests introduced by Miss Martin were Mesdames L. C. McCamey, Pat Holt, E. Routh and her five daughters, Miss Mary Routh, Mesdames Harry Flentge, Crawford Scott, Charles Powell and ley level and the deep alluvial deposit above, are not the only buried middens found in the Leon River banks. They occur at all levels from the sand gravel that was the original valley floor up to and above, the present surface. The cave-offs show the same cultural manifestations are present at all levels, however, with gradual improvements as one progresses upward.

On the surface middens cultural intrusions, as pottery, more refined technique in chipping, various artifacts, are found. Such cultural intrusions are highly specialized fist axes, pottery, boat stones, many "bird points" thumb-nail scrapers, and other artifacts. However, the lower level types of flint artifacts still were in use to the very period when burnt rock middens ceased to be used, or piled up by the original American. Also fragments of seashells, and of obsidian, occur. There were intrusions from every direction. However, it does not follow that the original burnt rock midden builders were superceded by another race. The evidence is that the burnt rock midden builders absorbed the cultural intrusions and continued to pile up burnt rock middens to historic times. Also, the burnt rock midden builders were the first aboriginal people to occupy this valley, and that as the alluvial deposits raised the valley level the burnt rock midden builders rose with each succeeding level and continued their dominion here. Cultural intrusions who that they were under pressure from the east and northwest by Caddoan races, from the north by the relentless Comanche, from the northwest and west by the ruthless Apache, and from the south by the coast tribes. They were slowly being exterminated by pressure from other races when white men arrived on the scene in the early 19th century. The Tonkawa were removed from this region when Fort Gates was evacuated in 1852. This was probably the oldest existing race found in Texas on arrival of the white race.

Two of the outstanding cultural traits of Texas find their strongest manifestation in the Burnt Rock Midden area, that is, the curved base tanged knife, and the corner tang knife, also the boat stone culture.

How long did this culture last? It lasted thru the period of time it took erosion to carry down silt enough to raise the Leon Valley level from three to more than ten feet above its original level on the "light sandy" foundation mentioned frequently in the above text. During that time the people who dwelt here found themselves always under pressure from other peoples beyond their borders.

Price Neeley.

The guest speaker, Miss Mary Routh, was introduced by Mrs. Leaird as one of our Gatesville girls who had become renowned in her chosen profession, having graduated from the Texas State College for Women and later receiving a Masters' Degree from Columbia University. She is now Clothing Specialist in the Extension Service at Texas A and M College and has the supervision of the fourteen districts in Texas, extending from the Amarillo area in the north to Brownsville area in the south.

Miss Routh is a most versatile speaker and with a vast wealth of data on the Extension Service, gave a most comprehensive picture of the work which is an outgrowth of the need for Agricultural Education. The first experiment in Texas was carried out in 1903 on a cotton farm near Tyler following infestation by the boll weevil. Ten years later Texas could boast of having 18 County Agricultural Agents and thirteen Home Demonstration Agents; now there are 300 County Agents and 200 H. D. Agents with an enrollment of 44,000 girls in the 4-H Clubs. Reporter.

The basic purpose of this service, as stated by Miss Routh, is to help the rural people raise their standard of living and increase their farm income. Her illustrated talk showed what wonderful progress has been made. In the first of a series of films shown, home improvements were featured through colored pictures of kitchens, dining rooms, bedrooms, refinished and upholstered furniture, ventilated pantries, and yards beautifully landscaped. The second film was a Roadside Markets showing flowers, bakery products, dressed poultry, fresh and canned fruits and vegetables.

The last of the series of pictures was in the field of clothing which included three types of dresses—school dresses made of cotton, best dresses, made of crepe, and tailored suits made of wool, and all modeled by the 4-H Girls who made them.

Miss Routh, with one assistant, gives instructions to all County Demonstration Agents of the State by means of 3-Day Schools held in each district. She carries a full working laboratory which includes a portable sewing machine, ironing board, electric irons, patterns and materials. She also sponsors dress reviews in the districts. The winners in the three types of dresses are then privileged to attend the State Review, where special coaching is given in grooming and posture by outstanding stylists.

During the social hours following the program, Miss Routh was greeted by her friends who expressed great appreciation for the work she is doing and for bringing us the first showing of the films which are to be used through out the State as a means of information for the public.

As a final courtesy the hostesses served coffee, cherry pie, nuts and olives from a beautifully appointed table with pink azaleas for a center piece and Valentine

PENICILLIN

WHEN Penicillin was first discovered, it was so hard to extract that there was scarcely enough of it in existence to treat a single case of pneumonia. Furthermore, it was so expensive to produce that such a treatment would have cost $100,000. Today Penicillin is being produced in plentiful quantities at a price reasonable enough for all.

This bacteria killer is extracted from a common mold, related to bread mold. It compares in efficiency with the sulfa drugs, with the added advantage of being less toxic.

It is impossible to estimate the number of lives Penicillin has already saved. It has done wonders against pneumonia and infection. It has made possible delicate brain operations which otherwise might have been fatal. It is one of medicine's greatest gifts to humanity.

Always see your physician. If you require Penicillin, he will give you the proper prescription.

Pearl Tops Pottsville in Third Game At GHS Gym 25-14; Play February 25, Abilene

Pearl's Dragons are the 1949 representatives of Coryell County in Class B. Basket Ball, having won the District 25-B title by defeating Pottsville in a two out of three series, one at Pearl, one at Pottsville and the third at Gatesville 25-14.

The Dragons will play in a Regional Tournament at Abilene beginning at 10 a. m. February 25, but it is not yet known who they will meet.

In Thursday night's game, the Dragons got off to a nice start, running up the count to 11-5 by the end of the first period, and it was at the half, 17-9. Pottsville put on the heat and the third, tho still showing Pearl out in front by a greater margin, did not indicate the defense being put up by Pottsville, and the third period ended 23-10. The final period also saw the locals held to 2 points while the visitors got four, indicating the defensive play that was done by both clubs.

Carswell was high with 3, including 2 field goals and 4 free, while Lovell gathered in 3 field goals and 1 free. Jowers, who got hot in the opener for Pearl, continued high for Pottsville with 6.
